Generally.—If the paper bear internal evidence of its official origin, and of the purpose for which it was issued, it comes within the definition of original process, and the broad discretion with which judges are clothed by this section may be freely exercised, subject only to the restriction that the alteration shall not disturb or impair any intervening rights of third parties. Cheatham v. Crews, 81 N. C. 343; Thomas v. Womack, 64 N. C. 657; Redmond v. Mullenax, 113 N. C. 505, 510, 18 S. E. 708.

For an elaborate review of the authorities upon amendments of the process, particularly as to the signature and seal thereof, see Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496.

Not Permissible as to Prejudice Acquired Interest.—Amendments of process are not admissible when the effect will be to prejudice acquired interests or take away any defense which could be made to an action begun at the time of the amendments. Phillips v. Holland, 78 N. C. 31. Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496, 498.

Defects Curable by General Appearance Amendable.—With reference to the amendment of a process, it is held that whether a summons should be amended is a discretionary matter and not reviewable (Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496). From this is to be deduced the rule, in regard to the amendment of process, that any defect or omission of a formal character, which would be waived or remedied by a general appearance or answer upon the merits, may be treated as a matter which can be remedied by amendment at the discretion of the court, when the rights of other persons are not affected and no protection withdrawn from the officer. Jackson v. McLean, 90 N. C. 64, 65.

Absence of Clerk's Signature.—Under this section the absence of the clerk's signature on a summons is a defect of a formal character which may be waived by general appearance and is therefore remediable by amendment. Hooker v. Forbes, 202 N. C. 364, 368, 162 S. E. 903.

The Seal.—But, unless there is something upon the face of the paper which stamps upon it unmistakably an official character, it is not a defective summons, but no summons at all—no more than one of the usual printed blanks kept by the clerks of the courts. The seal of the court is evidence throughout the state of the fact that a paper to which it is attached emanates from the tribunal to which it belongs, and though the clerk's signature is the prescribed evidence of genuineness as to all process to be served in the county in which his court is held, yet, if he issue to such county a summons in the usual form, attested by his official seal, but not subscribed, and containing his name only as printed in the body of the paper, the court has the power, after the defendant has entered an appearance, to amend by allowing the clerk to sign his name. Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496; Redmond v. Mullenax, 113 N. C. 505, 510, 18 S. E. 708.

On the other hand, where a summons is issued to an adjacent county, signed by the clerk of the superior court, but not attested by the seal, and served upon the defendant, it was held that, after an appearance by virtue of such service, the court might, in its discretion, allow the seal to be attached, as it could also to final process upon which property had been sold in another county, and after it had been returned by the officer who sold. Clark v. Hellen, 23 N. C. 421; Seawell v. Bank, 14 N. C. 279; Purcell v. McFarland, 23 N. C. 34. Redmond v. Mullenax, 113 N. C. 505, 511, 18 S. E. 708.

The seal, though not required, or the signature, though not imparting authenticity in the county to which the summons issues, is evidence of the fact that the clerk has approved the prosecution bond or permitted the issuance on a proper affidavit; and when the defendant waives the informality or irregularity by appearing, the curative power of amendment may be invoked, but not when there is nothing upon the face of the paper to give assurance that it received the sanction of the clerk before it was delivered to the sheriff to be served. Redmond v. Mullenax, 113 N. C. 505, 512, 18 S. E. 708.

Same—Process Issued Out of County.—By amendment a seal may be affixed to a process issued out of the county after its return. McArter v. Rhea, 122 N. C. 614, 30 S. E. 128.

Informalities Cured.—Informalities in the process may be cured by amendment, if allowed by the court. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

Amendment to Give Effectual Jurisdiction.—Where process is erroneously made returnable before the clerk, instead of to the term of the court, the court at term, having acquired jurisdiction, may make all necessary amendments of the process and proceedings in order to give it effectual jurisdiction, if no intervening and vested right is injuriously affected, and when the process is thus amended, it justifies the original service of any official action previously taken under it. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

Allegations as to Value Supplied.—Where in an action of claim and delivery of personal property, the allegation as to the value was omitted in the summons, the justice of the peace properly allowed a motion to amend by filling in the blank left for such allegation. Cox v. Grisham, 113 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 212.

VI. AMENDMENTS AS TO PARTIES.

Generally.—The power of the judge to make additional parties to an action is settled, especially when the amendment did not change the cause of action, nor work any injustice to the opposing party. Mills v. Callahan, 126 N. C. 756, 36 S. E. 164.

Discretionary and Not Reviewable.—It very rarely happens that the making of additional parties prove prejudicial, and hence orders making such parties are discretionary with the trial court, and are not reviewable upon appeal. Tillery v. Candler, 118 N. C. 888, 889, 24 S. E. 709; Bernard v. Shemwell, 139 N. C. 446, 447, 52 S. E. 64. Burrel v. Hughes, 116 N. C. 430, 21 S. E. 971; State v. Arrington, 101 N. C. 109, 7 S. E. 652; Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 12 S. E. 890.

New Parties to a Pending Action.—By amendment proper new parties may be brought in to a pending action. Dobson v. Southern Ry. Co., 129 N. C. 289, 40 S. E. 42.

Making Parties after Judgment.—In a proper case additional parties can be made even after judgment. Bird v. Gilliam, 125 N. C. 76, 78, 34 S. E. 196.

Joint Payees—Statute of Limitation.—Where a note is made to the husband and his wife as joint payees, and the action thereon is brought by the husband alone, an amendment joining the wife as a party to the action, after the running of the statute of limitations is in effect the bringing of a new action, which also will be barred. Fishell v. Evans, 193 N. C. 660, 137 S. E. 865.

Correction of Mistake as to Parties Defendant.—Where a mistake has been made in designating the parties defendant to the action it is within the discretionary power of the superior court to allow the plaintiff to correct the mistake, both in the process and pleadings. Rosenbacher & Bro. v. Martin, 170 N. C. 236, 86 S. E. 785.

Disintegrating Misjoined Parties.—Where there has been a misjoinder of parties as well as causes of action, it is within the discretion of the trial judge at any time before verdict or adverse decision, to permit the withdrawal of one of the parties, leaving the action proceed singly as to the other, and to allow a proper amendment of the pleadings as to the remaining cause, where the defendant has asked no affirmative relief and his defense cannot be prejudiced; but the defendant is entitled to recover his cost against the party retiring from the case. Campbell v. Washington Light, etc., Co., 166 N. C. 488, 82 S. E. 842.

Withdrawal of One of Joint Plaintiffs—Statute of Limitation.—Where damages are sought by joint plaintiffs upon the alleged negligence of the defendant, the cause of action is such negligence; and where one of them is permitted to withdraw and the other to amend, owing to a mistaken construction of a contract as to the joint ownership of the property damaged, the amendment referring to the same alleged negligent act does not create a new cause of action, but, being upon the same cause, relates back to the issuance of the summons, and when that was done in time the statute of limitations will not have run against it. McLaughlin v. Raleigh, etc, R. Co., 174 N. C. 182, 93 S. E. 748. See "Introducting New Cause of Action, Defense or Relief," III.

Striking One of Several Plaintiffs.—Under this section the court, in its discretion, may allow the motion of one of the several plaintiffs to strike out his name, and the exercise of such discretion, whether by refusing or granting the motion, is not reviewable. Jarrett v. Gibbs, 107 N. C. 303, 12 S. E. 272.

Refusal to Strike Discretionary.—The refusal or granting of a motion to strike out the name of a party is a matter of discretion and not reviewable, unless the refusal is placed on the want of power, in which case an appeal lies. Henderson v. Graham, 84 N. C. 496; Jarrett v. Gibbs, 107 N. C. 303, 304, 12 S. E. 272.

Substituting a Stranger for a Party.—In Bullard v. Johnson, 65 N. C. 436, 438, the question whether, under the broad power of amending, the superior court in an action by A could strike out the name of A and insert that of B, a stranger to the controversy, either directly or indirectly, as by first adding the name of B as co-plaintiff, and then striking out the name of A, was raised but was not decided.

Substitution of Corporation for President Thereof. — The trial judge has the power to allow the substitution of the company as the party plaintiff for the president of the company, the character or nature of the action not being substantially changed thereby. Street v. McCabe, 203 N. C. 80, 164 S. E. 329.

Making Trustee Party.—Where money is borrowed to pay off a prior mortgage and the lender takes another mortgage to secure the money so borrowed which is later declared invalid for improper acknowledgment, and the lender brings action to foreclose under the first mortgage under the doctrine of equitable subrogation: Held, the trustee can be made a party by amendment if it should be necessary. Investment Securities Co. v. Gash, 203 N. C. 126, 164 S. E. 628.

Making New Parties upon Appeal to Superior Court.—A connecting line of carriers had been sued in a justice's court for the statutory penalty in failing to transport the shipment within a reasonable time, and appealed to the superior court from an adverse judgment. It was held proper for the court, in its discretion to order the other carrier to be made a party therein, though the amount involved was less than $200, without the necessity of remanding the case to the justice's court for that purpose. Sellars Hosiery Mills v. Southern R. Co., 174 N. C. 449, 93 S. E. 952.

Substitution of Plaintiff upon Appeal to Superior Court.—In Bullard v. Johnson, 65 N. C. 436, and State v. Cauble, 70 N. C. 62, a new plaintiff was allowed to be substituted in a warrant issued by a magistrate after it reached the superior court by appeal. Cheatham v. Crews, 81 N. C. 343, 364.

Mistake in Designating Parties Defendant.—Where a mistake has been made in designating the parties defendant to the action it is within the discretionary power of the superior court to allow the plaintiff to correct the mistake, both in the process and pleadings. Rosenbacher & Bro. v. Martin, 170 N. C. 236, 86 S. E. 785.

Correction of Mistake in Name Authorized.—The correction of a mistake in the name of a party after judgment is expressly authorized by this section and does not come within the limitation of "one year after notice thereof" prescribed by section 600. Rosenthal v. Roberson, 114 N. C. 594, 597, 19 S. E. 667.

Descriptio Personae.—In a summons against A. H. B., the words "President of Southern Improvement Company," are mere descriptio personae and do not make the company a party to the proceeding, but the court can allow an amendment making the company a party either with its consent or by service of such amended summons upon the corporation. Plemmons v. Southern Improve. Co., 108 N. C. 614, 13 S. E. 188.

To Show Real Parties.—Upon the facts in this case, it is held, on appeal, that the trial court properly allowed the plaintiffs to amend their complaint to allege that some of the plaintiffs had acquired the interests of the others in a policy of insurance against loss by fire, in furtherance of justice, under the provisions of this section. Redmon v. Netherlands Fire, etc., Ins. Co., 184 N. C. 481, 114 S. E. 758.

VII. AMENDMENTS BEFORE JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Generally.—A justice of the peace has power to amend any warrant, process, pleading or proceeding in any action pending before him, either civil or criminal, either in form or substance. Cox v. Grisham, 113 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 212.

Before the adoption of the Code there was no statute investing the court with the power of amending a process, proceedings, &c., had before justice of the peace. The only legislation on that subject was that "no process issued by a justice of the peace shall be set aside for the want of form if the essential matters are set forth therein." This embraced civil as well as criminal process, but gave no power to amend in matters of substance. State v. Vaughn, 91 N. C. 532, 534.

Nature of Pleadings—Ample Power to Amend.—The pleadings in a justice's court need not be in any particular form or drawn with technical accuracy, but are sufficient if they "enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant," and they may not "be quashed or set aside for want of form, if the essential matters are set forth therein," and ample powers are given the court to amend either in substance or form, at any time before or after judgment in furtherance of justice. Aman v. Dover, etc., R. Co., 179 N. C. 310, 102 S. E. 392.

Amendment to Show Jurisdiction.—In a proceeding before a justice's court, if the averment of value is omitted from the summons by mistake or inadvertance, an amendment may be allowed even on the trial in the superior court, to make it appear that the justice's jurisdiction was not improperly exercised. Cox v. Grisham, 113 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 212.

VIII. SPECIFIC INSTANCES.

Setting up Mistake in Deed.—In an action to recover land, the Court may allow an amendment so as to set up a mistake in a deed. Ely v. Early, 94 N. C. 1.

A petition to lay out roads is within the meaning of this section authorizing the court to amend pleadings in any action, etc. Pridgen v. Anders, 52 N. C. 257.

Express Contract of Complaint on Quantum Meruit.—Upon a complaint broad enough to set out an action on the quantum meruit, the plaintiff will not be confined to the express contract, and if not broad enough, the court may allow an amendment after a verdict making it so. Roberts v. Deming Woodworking Co., 111 N. C. 432, 16 S. E. 415.

Increasing Amount of Demand.—In an action by the mortgagee to recover the value of a crop, subject to the lien of his chattel mortgage against the defendant, who is alleged to have received it to his own use, it is discretionary with the trial judge to allow the plaintiff to amend his complaint, either before or after verdict, so as to increase the amount of his demand in conformity with the facts he has proved upon the trial. Warrington v. Hardison, 185 N. C. 76, 116 S. E. 166.

To Allege Warranty.—Where the plaintiff seeks to recover damages upon the allegation that the defendant falsely and knowingly induced him to purchase an automobile upon false representations, it is within the sound discretion of the trial judge to permit an amendment alleging a warranty, in addition to the allegations in the original complaint; and where the statute of limitations has not run as to the latter, the amendment cannot be construed to have a different result. Wiggins v. Landis, 188 N. C. 316, 124 S. E. 621.

After Plea of Contributory Negligence.—Where, in an action involving the issue of negligence, contributory negligence is pleaded in substance by defendant, an amendment allowed defendant to make his allegation more specific is not held reversible error. Gholson v. Scott, 200 N. C. 429, 157 S. E. 64.

§ 548. Amendment changing nature of action or relief; effect.—When the complaint is so amended, as to change the nature of the action and the character of the relief demanded, the judgment rendered does not operate as an estoppel upon any person acquiring an interest in the property in controversy prior to the allowance of the amendment. (Rev., s. 508; 1901, c. 486.)

Cited in Pierce v. Mallard, 197 N. C. 679, 681, 150 S. E. 342.

§ 549. Unsubstantial defects disregarded.—The court or judge shall, in every stage of the action, disregard any error or defect in the pleadings or proceedings which do not affect the substantial rights of the adverse party; and no judgment may be reversed or affected by reason of such error or defect. (Rev., s. 509; Code, s. 276; R. C., c. 3, ss. 5, 6; C. C. P., s. 135.)

As to effect of immaterial variances between pleadings and proof, see section 552.

Under this section the form of the prayer for judgment is not material. It is the facts alleged that determine the nature of the relief to be granted. Bolich v. Prudential Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 144, 150, 173 S. E. 320.

Trial of Causes upon Their Merits.—It is manifest from this and other sections of the Code that the new system, in its whole structure and scope, looks to a trial of a cause upon its merits, and discountenances objections for defects which may be corrected and removed when made in apt time, and will not entertain them after trial and verdict. Halstead v. Mullen, 93 N. C. 252, 255.

In construing the identical section of the Ohio Code it is said: "Slight mistakes or omissions in pleading, will be cured by judgment; but where the pleading is totally defective, showing on its face that the party can claim no right under it, the judgment will be held erroneous." See 2 Ohio State Reports 21.

Clerical errors shall be disregarded under the provisions of this section. See Patterson v. Walton, 119 N. C. 500, 26 S. E. 43; Clawson v. Wolfe, 77 N. C. 100, 102.

A warrant in attachment, in substantial conformity with sec. 805, and, in fact, executed by the deputy sheriff of the proper county, is valid, and will not be held otherwise when verified by a proper agent, though by apparent clerical error it was stated in its beginning to have been made by a member of the firm, the power of the trial judge to allow amendments being plenary under the provisions of this section. May Co. v. Menzies Shoe Co., 186 N. C. 144, 119 S. E. 227.

Defective Return of Process—Defect in Name.—A defective or informal return of process will be cured after judgment. Crawford v. Bank, 61 N. C. 136; so will also a defect in the name of a defendant in the summons. Clawson v. Wolfe, 77 N. C. 100.

Mistake in Name.—Names are used to designate persons, and where the identity is certain a variance in the name is immaterial, and hence will be disregarded. Patterson v. Walton, 119 N. C. 500, 26 S. E. 43.

By the Supreme Court.—The Supreme Court will disregard errors or defects in the pleadings or proceedings in the Superior Court, which are immaterial and where no substantial rights of the appellant will be injuriously affected thereby. Ricks v. Brooks, 179 N. C. 204, 102 S. E. 207.

The interpretation put upon a similar section in the courts of New York is that such defects as would be remediable by amendment that does not change substantially the claim or defense, will not sustain an application to dismiss the action. Loundsbury v. Purdy, 18 N. Y. 515. Halstead v. Mullen, 93 N. C. 252, 255.

Cited in Bridgeman v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 599, 150 S. E. 15; Brewer v. Brewer, 198 N. C. 669, 153 S. E. 163; Pierce v. Mallard, 197 N. C. 679, 681, 150 S. E. 342.

§ 550. Defendant sued in fictitious name; amendment.—When the plaintiff is ignorant of the name of a defendant the latter may be designated in a pleading or proceeding by any name; and when his true name is discovered, the pleading or proceeding may be amended accordingly. (Rev., s. 510; Code, s. 275; C. C. P., s. 134.)

Editor's Note.—A defendant ought to be sued in the surname of his ancestors and the christian name given to him in baptism. If he is known by two names, he may be sued by either, or if the real name is unknown he may be sued, under this section, by a fictitious one.

Discretion of Court.—Where a mistake has been made in designating the parties defendant to the action it is within the discretionary power of the superior court to allow the plaintiff to correct the mistake, both in the process and pleadings. Rosenbacher & Bro. v. Martin, 170 N. C. 236, 86 S. E. 785.

Two Names Designated.—In construing the similar section of the Ohio Code it is said: "The law supposes every one to have a family name and a given name, and allows two fictitious names to be inserted when either of the real ones are unknown." 5 Rob. 599.

Middle Name.—The law recognizes but one middle name. The omission of a middle name is unimportant, and if a wrong middle name is inserted, it may be struck out as surplusage. 39 Barb. 479; 5 Johns 84. See also, Evans v. Brendle, 173 N. C. 149, 91 S. E. 723.

§ 551. Supplemental pleadings.—The plaintiff or defendant respectively may be allowed on motion to make a supplemental complaint, answer or reply, alleging facts material to the case occurring after, or of which the party was ignorant when his former pleading was filed. Either party may set up by a supplemental pleading, the judgment or decree of any court of competent jurisdiction, rendered since the commencement of an action, determining all or any part of the matter in controversy in said action, and if the judgment is set up by the plaintiff, it shall be without prejudice to any provisional remedy theretofore issued or other proceedings had in the action on his behalf. Such motions may be made before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the action is pending, by filing with the clerk the original and one copy of the proposed amended pleading and motion, which copy shall be forwarded to the opposing party or counsel and in which motion the clerk shall name a day and time of not less than ten days, unless by consent, to hear any objection to same; from the determination of the clerk, either party may have the matter sent to the judge of, or holding courts in the judicial district in which the matter is pending, by giving notice thereof to the clerk and opposing party or counsel within ten days from such date of hearing by the clerk: Provided, such motion shall be made at least thirty days before the convening of a term of court at which the cause may be calendared for trial. (Rev., s. 511; Code, s. 277; C. C. P., s. 136; 1929, c. 95.)

Editor's Note.—At common law defendant could take advantage of a defense arising after the commencement of the action by a plea puis darrein continuance if it occurred after the plea was filed. Williams v. Hutton, etc., Co., 164 N. C. 216, 80 S. E. 257. The supplemental answer prescribed by this section takes the place of the former plea puis darrein continuance.

The Act of 1929 added the third sentence and proviso to this section.

The office of a supplemental pleading is to bring into the record new facts, so that the court may render its final judgment upon the facts existing at the time of its rendition. See 90 Indiana Reports 585. And it has been held that the analogus section of the Ohio Code affords the only proper method of presenting facts occurring during the pendency of an action. See 37 O. S. 291; 10 O. S. 372.

It is within the discretionary power of the trial court to allow the filing of a supplemental complaint. Speas v. Greensboro, 204 N. C. 239, 167 S. E. 807.

Plea of Puis Darrein Waived Previous Pleas.—At common law such a plea confesses the matter which was before in dispute between the parties, and is therefore a waiver of all the pleas previously pleaded. But in this state a plea of puis darrein continuance is in no case construed as a relinquishment of any plea or pleas previously entered. Morgan v. Cone, 18 N. C. 234, 235.

Truth of Plea of Puis Darrein.—A plea of puis darrein continuance will be refused unless the court is satisfied of its truth. McNaughton & Co. v. Naylor, 2 N. C. 180.

Same—When Allowance Discretionary.—Where a petition to be allowed to file a plea puis darrein continuance does not set forth facts which, if true, would be a bar to a recovery, its allowance is discretionary with the court. Balk v. Harris, 130 N. C. 381, 41 S. E. 940.

Release Puis Darrein.—A release to party to a suit, made during its pendency and after the issues are joined, can not operate as a defense, unless it be pleaded specially since the last continuance. Smithwick v. Ward, 52 N. C. 64, 75 Am. Dec. 453.

Defect of Title Raised by Plea Puis Darrein.—While a plaintiff cannot recover upon the title accruing after the commencement of an action to recover land, a defendant will be permitted by an amendment to his answer in the nature of a plea since last continuance to plead defects in the plaintiff's title, or matter validating his own, which accrued since the action began. Taylor v. Gooch, 110 N. C. 387, 15 S. E. 2.

When Supplemental Complaint or Answer Required of New Parties.—A supplemental complaint or answer, is required from new parties only when the previous record of the cause does not show how they are connected with the controversy or interested in its result: but where the death of the original party and the relationship of the new parties to him are ascertained, there seems to be no necessity for supplemental pleading. Hughes v. Hodges, 94 N. C. 56.

When a nonsuit has been entered, it is too late to file a supplemental answer containing a counterclaim. Sydnor Pump etc., Co. v. Rocky Mount Ice Co., 125 N. C. 80, 34 S. E. 198.

Laches is, in the discretion of the court, ground for refusing consent to file supplemental pleadings. 16 Abb. 269; 6 Duer 661, affirming 19 N. Y. 207.

§ 552. Variance, material and immaterial.— 1. No variance between the allegation in a pleading and the proof shall be deemed material, unless it has actually misled the adverse party to his prejudice in maintaining his action upon the merits. Whenever it is alleged that a party has been so misled, that fact and in what respect he has been misled must be proved to the satisfaction of the court; and thereupon the judge may order the pleading to be amended upon such terms as shall be just.

2. Where the variance is not material as herein provided, the judge may direct the fact to be found according to the evidence, or may order an immediate amendment without costs. (Rev., ss. 515, 516; Code, ss. 269, 270; C. C. P., ss. 128, 129.)

Editor's Note.—Under this section two situations may present themselves: (1) If the variance is not material, the court may direct the facts to be found according to the evidence; (2) if the variance is material and the adverse party has been taken by surprise or been misled, the court may allow an amendment upon such terms as may be just. Deligny v. Tate Furniture Co., 170 N. C. 189, 86 S. E. 980; Brown v. Morris, 83 N. C. 252, 256; Wills v. Branch, 94 N. C. 142, 148.

Hence, when the proof materially departs from the allegation, there can be no recovery without an amendment. McKee v. Lineberger, 69 N. C. 217; Brittain v. Daniels, 94 N. C. 781; Faulk v. Thornton, 108 N. C. 314, 12 S. E. 998; Pendleton v. Dalton, 96 N. C. 507, 2 S. E. 759; Hunt v. Vanderbilt, 115 N. C. 559, 20 S. E. 168; Green v. Biggs, 167 N. C. 417, 83 S. E. 553; Talley v. Harriss Granite Quarries Co., 174 N. C. 445, 447, 93 S. E. 995.

In construing the same provision of the Ohio Code it is said: To constitute a variance between the allegations and the proofs, the difference must be as to the substantial elements of the case, and not as to the legal conclusions from the facts drawn by the pleader. 27 O. S. 159.

Difference of the Old and New Rule on Variances.—The only observable difference between the old and the new rule is that a variance, so slight and unimportant that the adverse party cannot have been misled by it is deemed immaterial and the court will either order an amendment without terms, or will consider the pleading as if amended, and permit evidence to be given under it. And even in the case of a material variance, so substantial that the adverse party may have been misled by the averments, still, if the proofs have an apparent relation to and connection with the allegations, the court will allow an amendment, though, upon terms. But where the proof establishes a case wholly different from the one alleged and inconsistent therewith, then no amendment is permitted, but the cause of action must fail. Carpenter v. Huffsteller, 87 N. C. 273, 278.

Uniformity of Allegata et Probata Not Wholly Dispersed.—The liberal construction given to pleadings under the Code system does not avoid the necessity that the proof must correspond with the allegation, for proof without allegation is as unavailing as allegation without proof; and where the difference between the allegation of the pleading and the proof is substantial, so as to grossly mislead the other party, amounting to alleging one cause of action and proving another, it is not allowed. Talley v. Harriss Granite Quarries Co., 174 N. C. 445, 93 S. E. 995; Willis v. Branch, 94 N. C. 142, 148.

The chief purpose of pleading is to enable the parties to litigate their rights intelligently and fairly and prevent shifts and undue advantage. It is a well-settled rule that there must be allegata et probata. If it follows that the court should not receive evidence that is not pertinent in some aspect of material allegations in the complaint, nor should it receive evidence to prove a cause of action not alleged. McKee v. Lineberger, 69 N. C. 217; McLaurin v. Cronly, 90 N. C. 50; Brittain v. Daniels, 94 N. C. 781; Greer v. Herren, 99 N. C. 492, 6 S. E. 257; Faulk v. Thornton, 108 N. C. 314, 320, 12 S. E. 998.

Evidence Not Rejected unless Party Misled.—Even though there be a variance between the allegations of the complaint and the evidence adduced, the evidence should not be rejected unless the variance will mislead the other party to his prejudice. Mode v. Penland, 93 N. C. 292, 293, 295; Morgan v. First Nat. Bank, 93 N. C. 352, 357.

Accordingly it is held that where a railroad company is sued by a passenger for a wrongful ejection from its train alleged to have been at a certain one of its stations, and upon the trial the evidence of both parties relates with unanimity to a certain other of its stations. the variation will not be deemed as material. Edwards v. Southern R. Co., 162 N. C. 278, 78 S. E. 219.

Leave to Amend in Case of Substantial Variance.—Where there is a substantial variance between the allegations of the pleading and the proof, the proper procedure is to ask leave to amend the pleading to conform to the proof, (which will be allowed without cost) and it cannot be maintained that the judge should disregard the variance and give judgment according to the proof irrespective of the allegations of the pleading. Haughton v. Newberry, 69 N. C. 456, 459.

Objection to Be Taken in Apt Time.—An objection to a variance between the allegations of the pleadings and the proof, when prejudicial and misleading, etc., should be taken in apt time. Patterson v. Champion Lumber Co., 175 N. C. 90, 94 S. E. 692.

Defendant Must Pursue Remedy Prescribed.—In the case of a variance between the allegations of the complaint and the proof upon the trial, the defendant must pursue the remedy prescribed in this section or the variance, under our liberal practice of construction, will be deemed immaterial. Simmons v. Roper Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 220, 221, 93 S. E. 736.

The adverse party must allege that he was misled, and must prove that fact "to the satisfaction of the court," and show wherein he was misled, and the only penalty and remedy prescribed is an amendment upon such terms as the court may deem just. There is no penalty allowed of dismissal of the action or loss of substantial rights by either party. The sole object is that the case shall be tried and decided upon its merits. Wright v. Teutonia Ins. Co., 138 N. C. 488, 496, 51 S. E. 55.

Allegations of time and place are not in general material, and hence a variance between them and the proof shall be disregarded. Pegram v. Stoltz, 67 N. C. 144, 147.

Examples of Immaterial Variances.—In an action against a street car company for injuries sustained, the plaintiff alleges that at the time of his injury he was using an iron rod to replace the derailed car on the track, and that he first connected the rod with the car and then with the rail, and he was permitted to prove that he first connected the rod with the rail and then with the car. This was held to be a variance but not such as to mislead the defendant, and therefore immaterial. Dellinger v. Charlotte Elect. R. Co., 160 N. C. 532, 539, 76 S. E. 494.

Where the complaint against a telegraph company for damages for delay in the delivery of a message alleges that the defendant received the telegram sued on at its office at A., and the evidence tends to show that it was received at B., a near-by point, and telephoned to A., by the defendant's agent there, and there is nothing to indicate that the defendant was misled or was unprepared to meet the evidence introduced, or was thereby prejudiced. Held, the variance between the allegation and the proof was neither material nor fatal. Brown v. Western Union Tel. Co., 169 N. C. 509, 86 S. E. 290.

Where the answer averred a mutual understanding between the intestate and feme defendant, that an adequate compensation should be provided in the former's will, "to the extent of $2,000 at least," while the verdict establishes a fixed and definite sum, it was held that this did not constitute a material variance. Lawrence v. Hester, 93 N. C. 79, 81.

Where the allegations of the complaint set forth a promissory note, and the evidence introduced proved the instrument to be a bond, the variance was, in view of the circumstances of the case, held to be an immaterial one which should be disregarded. Lilly v. Baker, 88 N. C. 151, 152.

Where a plaintiff, in his complaint, alleged and set out a case in trover, and the proof showed that it should have been in the nature of an assumpsit for money had and received, it was held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover, notwithstanding the variance. Oates, etc., Co. v. Kendall, 67 N. C. 241.

In an action for the recovery of the possession of personal property where the proof revealed that the defendant did not have the possession of such property, though he had converted it, the complaint may be so amended as to change the relief sought from that for the possession of the property to that for the recovery of the value thereof, since the defendant will not be misled thereby. Haughton v. Newberry, 69 N. C. 456; Webb v. Taylor, 80 N. C. 305.

§ 553. Total failure of proof.—Where the allegation of the cause of action or defense to which the proof is directed is unproved, not in some particular or particulars only, but in its entire scope and meaning, it is not deemed a case of variance, but a failure of proof. (Rev., s. 517; Code, s. 397; C. C. P., s. 223.)

Editor's Note.—A failure of proof is where no cause of action or defense whatever has been proved. 9 Daley 391. If there is a failure to prove a cause of action or ground of defense in some particular, it is a variance only, but if there is total want of any allegation in the pleading of the subject matter as a cause of action or ground of defense, it is a failure of proof. 10 Barb. 321; 2 N. Y. 500.

No Amendment Where Proof Wholly Different from Allegations.—No amendment of pleadings will be allowed where the cause of action proved is wholly different from that alleged. Grant v. Burgwyn, 88 N. C. 95.

Same—Relief.—A plaintiff cannot sue upon one contract and prove another essentially different contract. This is more than a mere variance; it is a failure of proof. But if he sues for specific relief, to which he is not entitled, upon facts which show him entitled to other and different relief, he may be adjudged to have that relief to which he is in law entitled. Wright v. Teutonia Ins. Co., 138 N. C. 488, 492, 51 S. E. 55.

SUBCHAPTER 7. TRIAL AND ITS INCIDENTS

Art. 19. Trial

§ 554. Defined.—A trial is the judicial examination of the issues between the parties, whether they be issues of law or fact. (Rev., s. 526; Code, s. 397; C. C. P., s. 223.)

Summary Proceedings.—In construing the section of the Ohio Code which it identical with this section, the court, in Railway v. Thurstin, 44 O. S. 523, 528 says: "It seems clear that the issues here referred to are those which arise upon the pleadings and do not relate to controversies involved in summary proceedings like the one now under consideration, although the pendency of the action in which it is involved depends upon the disposition of it by the court."

Impaneling a jury is embraced in a "trial" 42 Ohio State Reports, 596, 602.

§ 555. Joinder of issue and trial.—Pleadings shall be made up and issues joined before the clerk. After pleadings have been so made up and issues joined, the clerk shall forthwith transmit the original papers in the cause to the court at term for trial upon the issues, when the case shall be proceeded with according to the course and practice of the court, and on appeal with the same procedure as is now in force. (1919, c. 304; s. 8; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 13.)

Editor's Note. — This section was re-enacted without change by the Public Laws of 1921, Extra Session.

Trial Procedure Before Passage of This Section.—Prior to this act the practice, concisely stated, was as follows: the summons was returnable to a regular term of the superior court to be held in the county from which it was issued; the complaint was to be filed in the clerk's office on or before the third day of the term to which the action was brought, and at the same term the defendant was to appear and demur or answer; if the defendant failed to appear the plaintiff, if not entitled to a judgment by default final, was authorized to take a judgment by default and inquiry. The inquiry was to be executed at a succeeding term for the obvious reason, if for no other, that the defendant's right to answer precluded such inquiry at the return term. Hill v. Huffines Hotel Company, 188 N. C. 586, 588, 125 S. E. 266.

This section has reference to the clerk and was not intended to impair the broad powers conferred on the judge, who "may in his discretion and upon such terms as may be just allow an answer or reply to be made, or other act done, after the time limited or by an order to enlarge the time," under section 536. Smith v. New York Life Ins. Co., 208 N. C. 99, 101, 179 S. E. 457.

Transferring Papers Where No Answer Filed.—If this section were interpreted as providing that original papers can be transferred to the docket for trial in term only after an answer is filed, some difficulty might be encountered in assessing damages in cases where no answer is filed. Hill v. Huffines Hotel Company, 188 N. C. 586, 589, 125 S. E. 266.

§ 556. How issue tried.—An issue of law must be tried by the judge or court, unless it is referred. An issue of fact must be tried by a jury, unless a trial by jury is waived or a reference ordered. Every other issue is triable by the court, or judge, who, however, may order the whole issue, or any specific question of fact involved therein, to be tried by a jury, or may refer it. (Rev., s. 527; Code, ss. 398, 399; C. C. P., ss. 224, 225.)

For reference by consent see sec. 572 and annotations. For compulsory reference see section 573 and annotation.

Plaintiff Entitled to Jury Trial.—In all actions under the C. C. P., where legal rights are involved and issues of fact are joined by the pleadings, the plaintiff is entitled to a trial by jury, and cannot be deprived of this right except by his consent. Andrews v. Pritchett, 66 N. C. 387; approving Hatchell v. Odom, 19 N. C. 302.

Methods of Waiving Jury Trial.—There are three modes of waiving a jury trial: 1, by default; 2, by written consent; and 3, by oral consent, entered on the minutes of the Court. Armfield v. Brown, 70 N. C. 27, 29.

When Issues of Fact Tried by Judge.—The duty of trying issues of fact cannot be imposed on the judge except when, by consent of the parties, the judge is substituted for the jury. Lee v. Pearce, 68 N. C. 76, 89, overruling Goldsborough v. Turner, 67 N. C. 403.

What the evidence would have been had a jury been impaneled could not be anticipated by the court, and the court was without jurisdiction under this section to try the issues of fact which arose upon the pleadings. Hershey Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 207 N. C. 122, 124, 176 S. E. 265.

Judge May Disregard Agreement to Waive Jury Trial.—The trial judge, in the exercise of a sound discretion, may disregard the agreement of the parties that a jury trial shall be waived or that a reference shall be made of issues other than those of fact in an action upon contract. Lumber Company v. Lumber Company, 137 N. C. 431, 49 S. E. 946. As to waiver, see § 568 and notes thereto.

Right to Jury Trial When Case Referred.—Where a reference is by consent, the parties waive the right to have any of the issues of fact passed on by a jury. Where the reference is compulsory, the excepting party has the right to have all issues of fact which arise on the pleadings, submitted to a jury, but not the questions of fact which arise on exceptions to the findings of fact by the referee. State v. Askew, 94 N. C. 194; Armfield v. Brown, 70 N. C. 27.

Equitable Element Cannot Defeat Right to Jury Trial.—A party has a right to a jury trial of an issue of fact, as well when it involves an equitable as a legal element entering into the merits of the controversy. Worthy v. Shields, 90 N. C. 192.

Submission of Evidential Issues Error.—The only issues proper to be submitted to the jury are those raised by the constitutive facts alleged on the one side and denied on the other; and those issues which are merely evidential, and when found by the jury, only furnish facts which would be evidence to prove the main issue, should never be submitted. Patton v. Western, etc., R. Co., 96 N. C. 455, 456, 1 S. E. 863.

Jury Impaneled but No Evidence Adduced.—On the trial of a civil action when the jury were sworn and impaneled and issues framed, but no evidence adduced on either side, and the jury were discharged without verdict it was Held,

(1) That the parties stood at issue on the pleadings just as they were before the jury were sworn.

(2) That in such case the judge has no right to pass upon the issues, except upon a waiver of jury trial in accordance with section 568. Chasteen v. Martin, 81 N. C. 51.

Cited in Piedmont Wagon Co. v. Byrd, 119 N. C. 460, 26 S. E. 144.

§ 557. Issues of fact.—Every issue of fact joined on the pleadings, and inquiry of damages ordered to be tried by a jury, must be tried at the term of the court next ensuing the joinder of issue or order for inquiry, if the issue was joined or order made more than ten days before such term, but if not, they may be tried at the second term after the joinder or order. (Rev., s. 528; Code, s. 400; C. C. P., s. 226; 1923, c. 54.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the passage of the Act of 1923 the time specified by this section was thirty days before the term. The same act substituted the word "may" for "must" in the next to the last line of the section.

Acts 1925, c. 5 did not affect the wording of the section but corrected an error in the amending act of 1923.

Power of Judge to Compel Party to Proceed.—The judge is without authority to compel a party to an action to proceed with the trial of a cause transferred to the civil issue docket when the issue has been joined within ten days from the commencement of the term. Cahoon v. Everton, 187 N. C. 369, 121 S. E. 612.

Amended Answer Raising Additional Issue.—Where, at trial term, an amended answer to an amended complaint raises additional issues of fact, the defendant is entitled to a continuance. Dobson v. Southern Ry. Co., 129 N. C. 289, 40 S. E. 42.

Issue of Insanity.—In an indictment for murder, there being no allegation that the prisoner was insane at the time of the trial, no issue as to insanity need be submitted. State v. Spivey, 132 N. C. 989, 43 S. E. 475.

Cited in Demark v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 185, 12 S. E. 54.

§ 558. Issues of fact before the clerk.—All issues of fact joined before the clerk shall be transferred to the superior court for trial at the next succeeding term, and in case of such transfer neither party is required to give an undertaking for costs. (Rev., s. 529.)

Denial of Good Faith in Condemnation Proceedings. — When in proceedings by a railroad company to condemn lands, the answer denies the intention of the petitioner in good faith to construct the proposed railroad, the pleadings, in this respect, do not raise an issue of fact to be transferred to and tried by the Superior Court in term, under the provisions of this section. Madison County R. Co. v. Gahagan, 161 N. C. 190, 76 S. E. 696.

Review of Clerk's Decisions.—The rulings or decisions of the clerks of the court must, as stated in this section, be transferred for trial to the next succeeding term of the Superior Court, if determinative issues arise on the pleadings in a procedure where the adversary rights of litigants are presented; and if there be issues of law or material questions of fact decided by the clerk, they may be reviewed by the judge at term or in chambers, on appeal properly taken; and in passing upon these questions of fact, the court may act on the evidence already received, or if this is not satisfactory, it may ordinarily require the production of other evidence as an aid in the proper disposition of the question presented. Mills v. McDaniel, 161 N. C. 112, 76 S. E. 551.

§ 559. Continuance before term; affidavit.—A party to an action may apply to the court in which it is pending, or to the judge thereof, by affidavit, thirty days before the trial term, and after three days notice in writing to the adverse party, to have the trial continued to a term subsequent to that in which it is regularly triable. The court or judge may continue the trial as asked for, on such terms as may be just, if satisfied—

1. That the applicant has used due diligence to have his case ready for trial.

2. That by reason of circumstances beyond his control, which he must set forth, he cannot have a fair trial at the regular trial term. If the application is made by reason of the expected absence of a witness, it must state the name and residence of the witness, the facts expected to be proved by him, the grounds for the expectation of his nonattendance, and that the applicant expects to procure his evidence at or before some named subsequent term. The applicant must in all cases pay the costs of the application. (Rev., s. 530; Code, 401; C. C. P., s. 227.)

For full treatment of continuances, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 383 et seq.

Continuance Lies in Discretion of Judge.—The matter of granting or refusing a continuance of a cause for trial rests in the discretion of the trial judge, and the exercise of such discretion is not reviewable on appeal, in the absence of gross abuse. Piedmont Wagon Company v. Bostic, 118 N. C. 758, 24 S. E. 525.

Continuances Not Favored by Law.—Continuances are not favored by the law. One of the immortal provisions of the Magna Charta is that justice shall neither be delayed nor denied, and these are coupled together, for a delay of justice is often a denial of justice. Piedmont Wagon Company v. Bostic, 118 N. C. 758, 759, 24 S. E. 525.

Who May Make Affidavit.—In the United States Supreme Court it has been held that an affidavit for a continuance must be made by some one interested in the suit or action. See Hunter v. Kennedy, 1 Dall. 81, 1 L. Ed. 46.

§ 560. Continuance during term.—The judge at any time during the term at which an action is triable may continue the trial on the application of either party, and on such terms as shall be just, if satisfied—

1. That the applicant has used due diligence to be ready for trial.

2. That he cannot have a fair trial at that term, by reason of circumstances stated, and if the ground of application is the nonattendance of a witness, the affidavit must contain the particulars required by subdivision two of the preceding section. Unless the applicant also sets forth in his affidavit that the facts upon which his application is grounded occurred or came to his knowledge too late to allow him to apply as prescribed in the preceding section, and that his application is made as soon as it reasonably could be after the knowledge of those facts, the continuance shall not be granted, except on the payment of the costs in the action for the term. (Rev., s. 531; Code, s. 402; C. C. P., s. 228; R. C., c. 31, c. 57)

Continuance Discretionary with Judge.—The granting or refusing a continuance is entirely discretionary with the presiding judge, and cannot be assigned for error on appeal, in the absence of gross abuse. Dupree v. Va. Home Ins. Co., 92 N. C. 418; Piedmont Wagon Co. v. Bostic, 118 N. C. 758, 24 S. E. 525; Slocumb v. Construction Co., 142 N. C. 349, 55 S. E. 196; Watson v. Black Mountain R. Co., 164 N. C. 176, 80 S. E. 175. For other cases supporting this statement, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 384. See In re Bank, 202 N. C. 251, 162 S. E. 568, affirming the rule announced in the Dupree case.

A court cannot lay down a general rule for the continuance of causes; but must, under the circumstances of each case, take care that injustice is not done, either by precipitate trials or wanton delays, and where there appears to be a fair ground for the postponement, the case will be continued. Symes v. Irvine, 2 Dall. 383, 384, 1 L. Ed. 425.

The absence of a party or witness must be accounted for before a cause will be continued on these grounds. Crites v. Lanier, 1 N. C. 110.

Attorney Son of Trial Judge.—The fact that an attorney in an action is the son of the trial judge is not a ground for continuance. Allison v. So. R. Co., 129 N. C. 336, 40 S. E. 91.

Sickness of members of a defendant's family may be a ground on which the judge, in his discretion, may grant a continuance. Skinner v. Bryce, 75 N. C. 287.

Insanity of Defendant.—Where defendant becomes insane pending an action against her for divorce, the action should be continued if there is any hope of recovery. Stratford v. Stratford, 92 N. C. 297.

To Prove Bad Character of Witnesses.—Where defendant has asked for a continuance under this section without complying with the requirements and the purpose given for seeking the continuance is to secure depositions as to the bad character of the State's witnesses when defendant has already been permitted to cross-examine the witnesses and they admitted being prosecuted for criminal offenses, refusal of the trial judge to grant the continuance is not an abuse of discretion. State v. Banks, 204 N. C. 233, 167 S. E. 851.

Amendment of Pleadings.—Refusal of a continuance on a defendant filing on the day of trial, an answer substantially like that of the other defendants, and raising no additional issue, is not an abuse of discretion. Slingluff v. Hall, 124 N. C. 397, 32 S. E. 739.

But where an amendment is such as to cause surprise, it is cause for continuance, Martin v. Bank, 131 N. C. 121, 42 S. E. 558; Sams v. Price, etc., Co., 119 N. C. 572, 26 S. E. 170; and ordinarily an amendment which changes the issues on the parties causes such surprise as will authorize the continuance. Watson v. Black Mountain R. Co., 164 N. C. 176, 80 S. E. 175; and it has been held that the allowance of an amendment alleging fraud, if such as to take defendant by surprise, entitles him to a continuance. Dockery v. Fairbanks Morse Co., 172 N. C. 529, 90 S. E. 501. See also note of Dobson v. Southern Railway Co., 129 N. C. 289, 40 S. E. 42, under § 557. Likewise if an allegation of time and place is made, and a party has prepared his evidence, based wholly upon such allegation, and is surprised at the trial by the evidence of another time or place, he should be given another opportunity to meet such evidence. Brown v. Western Union Tel. Co., 169 N. C. 509, 86 S. E. 290.

Conditions on Granting.—See 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 385.

§ 561. Counter affidavits as to continuance. — It is competent in all civil cases only for the opposing side to controvert the allegations of fact in applications for continuance, and to offer counter affidavits to that end. The judge shall not allow the continuance unless satisfied, after thorough examination of the evidence aforesaid, that the ends of justice demand it. (Rev., s. 532; 1885, c. 394.)

In General.—As the two preceding sections, in the judgment of the legislature, were not sufficient to protect against the "laws delay," this section was passed. Piedmont Wagon Co. v. Bostic, 118 N. C. 758, 759, 24 S. E. 525.

Judge Must Be Satisfied.—If the judge is left in doubt he must refuse the continuance. Piedmont Wagon Co. v. Bostic, 118 N. C. 758, 759, 24 S. E. 525.

§ 562. Order of business.—The criminal calendar must be first disposed of, unless, by consent of counsel, or for reasons satisfactory to the judge, particular criminal actions may be deferred. The issue on the civil calendar must be disposed of in the following order, unless, for the convenience of parties or the dispatch of business, the court otherwise directs:

1. Issues of fact to be tried by a jury.
2. Issues of fact to be tried by the court.
3. Issues of law.

§ 563. Separate trials.—A separate trial between a plaintiff and any of several defendants may be allowed by the court when, in its opinion, justice will thereby be promoted. (Rev., s. 534; Code, s. 407; C. C. P., s. 230.)

For criminal cases see 4 Enc. Dig. 134 et seq. For civil cases see 11 Enc. Dig. 952 et seq.

Severance Not a Matter of Right.—It is within the sound discretion of the court, on motion of the defendants, or any of them, to allow severance and a separate trial as to each defendant if thereby justice will be promoted. However it was error for the court to hold that the defendants had a right to demand it, and a judgment rendered upon such holding will be reversed. Bryan v. Spivey, 106 N. C. 95, 11 S. E. 510.

Division Allowed in Case of Misjoinder.—Where there is a misjoinder of causes of action, the court may allow the action to be divided; or, where there is a misjoinder of parties, the court in its discretion can do the same. Pretzfelder, etc. v. Merchants' Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 491, 496, 21 S. E. 302.

Result of Order of Severance.—An order of severance is equivalent to dividing the action into several suits, with all the usual provisions for costs, etc., incident thereto. Bryan v. Spivey, 106 N. C. 95, 11 S. E. 510.

§ 564. Judge to explain law, but give no opinion on facts.—No judge, in giving a charge to the petit jury, either in a civil or criminal action, shall give an opinion whether a fact is fully or sufficiently proven, that being the true office and province of the jury; but he shall state in a plain and correct manner the evidence given in the case and declare and explain the law arising thereon. (Rev., s. 535; Code, s. 413; C. C. P., s. 237; R. C., c. 31, s. 130; 1796, c. 452.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

Editor's Note. — This section is but a renewal of an act, Rev. Stat., ch. 31, sec. 136. The policy differs from the federal rule and the rule in most states, and the section has been the subject of some criticism.

It should, in the opinion of most legal writers on the subject, not only be the right but the duty of the court to aid the jury by recalling the testimony to their recollection, by suggesting grounds of preference where there is contradiction, by directing their attention to the most important facts, by stating the true point of inquiry, by resolving the evidence, however complicated, into its simplest elements, and by showing the bearing of its several parts and their combined effect, stripping off every consideration which otherwise might mislead or confuse them. At common law the judge was not forbidden to express an opinion upon the facts in the case, for it was deemed that the judge could be of aid to the jury in expressing an opinion upon the reasonable inference to be drawn from the evidence, though of course he could not direct the verdict when there was conflicting evidence. The same rule still obtains in England, in all the federal courts, and the courts of nearly every state of the union.

II. OPINION OF JUDGE.

A. General Considerations.

Purposes and Effect of Section. — The necessity of judges, in obedience to the statute, avoiding any expression, however inadvertent or well intentioned, which may be reasonably construed by a jury, quick to perceive the judge's point of view, as more favorable to one side than the other, has never been better expressed than by Mr. Justice Walker in Withers v. Lane, 144 N. C. 184, 187, 56 S. E. 855. He quotes, from Chief Justice Taylor in Reel v. Reel, 9 N. C. 63, as follows: "Upon considering the whole of the charge, it appears to us that its general tendency is to preclude that full and free inquiry into the truth of the facts which is contemplated by the law, with the purest intentions, however, on the part of the worthy judge, who, receiving a strong impression from the testimony adduced, was willing that what he believed to be the very justice of the case should be administered. We are not unaware of the difficulty of concealing all indications of the conviction wrought on the mind by evidence throughout a long and complicated cause; but the law has spoken, and we have only to obey."

Mr. Justice Walker, continues in his own language as follows: "What these eminent jurists have so well said about the duty of the trial judge under our statute, and the consequence of a violation of it, will, if it is properly heeded, conduce to the more perfect and satisfactory trial of causes. The judge should be the embodiment of even and exact justice. He should at all times be on the alert lest in an unguarded moment something be incautiously said or done to shake the wavering balance which, as a minister of justice, he is supposed, figuratively speaking, to hold in his hands. Every suitor is entitled by the law to have his cause considered with the 'cold neutrality of the impartial judge,' and the equally unbiased mind of a properly instructed jury. This right can neither be denied nor abridged." Starling v. Selma Cotton Mills, 171 N. C. 222, 228, 88 S. E. 242.

In State v. Jones, 181 N. C. 546, 106 S. E. 817, the court said: "This Court has always been very careful to enforce the provision of the statute which prohibits a judge from expression of opinion in the trial of causes before the jury, this section, extending the inhibition to such expression in the hearing of the jury at any time during the trial, and whether the objectionable comments may be towards the testimony offered, the witness testifying, or the litigant and the cause he is endeavoring to maintain."

An expression of an opinion by the judge as to an essential fact involved in an issue is condemned by this section. Abernethy v. State Planters' Bank, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 46, 49, 161 S. E. 705.

A Substantial Right of Litigants. — This section gives the parties to the action a substantial right. The jury has the sole and exclusive function of finding the facts from the evidence under the law thus given them, and it is not their duty, in any event, to determine what is the law. Wilson v. Wilson, 190 N. C. 819, 130 S. E. 834.

Cannot be Extended. — The North Carolina statute being a restriction upon the almost universal rule, cannot be extended beyond its terms. State v. Baldwin, 178 N. C. 687, 689, 100 S. E. 348; State v. Pugh, 183 N. C. 800, 111 S. E. 849.

Evidence Must Be Stated Impartially. — It has been accepted as the proper construction and meaning of the act of this section, though it goes beyond the words: that a judge in charging a jury shall state the evidence fairly and impartially, and that he shall express no opinion on the weight of evidence. State v. Jones, 67 N. C. 285.

Where Law Gives Testimony Artificial Weight. — It is only where the law gives to testimony an artificial weight that the judge is at liberty to express an opinion upon its weight. Bonner v. Hodges, 111 N. C. 66, 15 S. E. 881.

Section Not Confined to Charge. — In terms, this statute refers to the charge, but it has always been construed as including the expression of any opinion, or even an intimation by the judge, at any time during the trial which is calculated to prejudice either of the parties. And when once expressed such opinion or intimation cannot be recalled. State v. Bryant, 189 N. C. 112, 126 S. E. 107, 108.

Section Applies Throughout Trial. — This section applies to any expression of opinion by the judge in the hearing of the jury at any time during the trial. State v. Cook, 162 N. C. 586, 77 S. E. 759.

It was considered so essential to protect the right of trial by jury that this section was broadly worded and was among the earliest of our remedial enactments, and, while it refers in terms to the charge, it has always been construed as including the expression of any opinion, or even an intimation of the judge, at any time during the trial, calculated to prejudice either of the parties. Morris v. Kramer Bros. Co., 182 N. C. 87, 90, 108 S. E. 381.

Motive of Judge Immaterial. — The probable effect or influence upon the jury, and not the motive of the judge, determines whether the party whose right to a fair trial has been impaired is entitled to a new trial. State v. Bryant, 189 N. C. 112, 126 S. E. 107, 108.

What Remarks Presumed Correct. — The remarks of the trial judge in discharging a jury after verdict, or in impressing upon jurors and the public the duty of jurors in their conduct, are prima facie presumed on appeal to be correct. State v. Pugh, 183 N. C. 800, 111 S. E. 849.

Province of Court and Jury. — It is not for the judge to pass upon the intensity of the proof. That is a matter which lies solely within the province of the jury. The verdict may be set aside by the court, if found to be against the weight of the evidence, but the right of the plaintiff to have it submitted to the jury can not be denied provided there is some evidence tending to establish the plaintiff's contention. The jury should be instructed that the evidence must be clear and satisfactory in cases to which that principle applies, but it is for them to say whether the evidence is of that convincing character. Avery v. Stewart, 136 N. C. 426, 430, 48 S. E. 775.

Weight and Sufficiency of Evidence Question for Jury. — Whether there be any evidence is a question for the judge. Whether it is sufficient evidence is a question for the jury. Wittkowsky v. Wasson, 71 N. C. 451; State v. Hardee, 83 N. C. 619; State v. Moses, 13 N. C. 452; Withers v. Lane, 144 N. C. 184, 56 S. E. 855.

A judge is prohibited by this section from expressing an opinion upon the weight of the evidence, and could not instruct the jury that this was or was not clear, strong, and convincing. Earnhardt v. Clement, 137 N. C. 91, 95, 49 S. E. 49.

It is the province of the jury to ascertain the facts from the evidence, the weight and credibility thereof being exclusively for its determination. In re Will of Bergeron, 196 N. C. 649, 146 S. E. 571.

Judge Cannot Withdraw Case. — A judge cannot pass upon the weight of evidence and withdraw a case from the jury when it appears to him that the evidence is not clear, strong, and convincing. Lehew v. Hewett, 138 N. C. 6, 9, 50 S. E. 459.

Nonsuit. — It is the duty of the judge to nonsuit, when the evidence is not legally sufficient to justify a verdict for the plaintiff. Kearns v. R. Co., 139 N. C. 470, 52 S. E. 131.

But he cannot enter a judgment of nonsuit on the grounds of plaintiff's contributory negligence without deciding an issue of fact. Osborne v. Southern R. Co., 160 N. C. 309, 311, 76 S. E. 16.

Directing a Verdict. — Where the evidence upon the trial is permissible of more than one construction or different inferences may be drawn therefrom, peremptory instructions directing a verdict thereon in favor of either party to the controversy is an expression of an opinion thereon by the trial judge, forbidden by this section. United States Railroad Administration v. Hilton Lumber Co., 185 N. C. 227, 117 S. E. 50.

Court Cannot Direct Affirmative Finding. — Where the party upon whom the burden of proof rests offers no evidence to prove the issue the trial judge should direct a negative finding; but in no case, however strong and uncontradictory the evidence is in support of this issue, should the court withdraw the issue from the jury and direct an affirmative finding. Anniston Nat. Bank v. School Committee, 121 N. C. 107, 28 S. E. 134; Cable v. Southern R. Co., 122 N. C. 892, 29 S. E. 377.

Examination of Witnesses Discretionary. — The manner of conducting the examination of witnesses is left largely to the discretion of the judge and can but seldom be the subject of review, even when not entirely approved by this court. State v. Brown, 100 N. C. 519, 6 S. E. 563.

Dissertation upon Moral Questions.—This section does not prohibit a judge, in his charge to the jury, from pronouncing a dissertation upon such moral questions as are suggested by the incidents of the trial, provided the language used is without prejudice to either party. Stilley v. McCox, 88 N. C. 18.

A Venire de Novo for Violation. — Under this section the trial judge is restricted to stating plainly and correctly the evidence and declaring and explaining the law arising thereon; and when his peculiar emphasis, or language, or manner in presenting or arraying the evidence indicates his opinion upon the facts, or conclusion of facts, a venire de novo will be ordered. Withers v. Lane, 144 N. C. 184, 56 S. E. 855.

Exceptions after Verdict. — The fact that exception was not entered at the time a remark was uttered is immaterial. The statute is mandatory, and all expressions of opinion by the judge during the trial, in like manner, with the admission of evidence made incompetent by statute, may be excepted to after the verdict. State v. Bryant, 189 N. C. 112, 126 S. E. 107, 109.

This case apparently overrules, without so stating, State v. Brown, 100 N. C. 519, 6 S. E. 568. In that case it was held that an objection made after verdict was too late.

Record on Appeal Must Show Error. — If an appeal is taken on the ground that the judge, by his manner or emphasis intimated an opinion upon the facts the record must allege the tone, emphasis or manner. Davis v. Blevins, 125 N. C. 433, 34 S. E. 541. Citing State v. Wilson. 76 N. C. 120; State v. Jones, 67 N. C. 285.

Applied in Misskelley v. Home Life Ins. Co., 205 N. C. 496, 508, 171 S. E. 862; Rand v. Home Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 760, 768, 174 S. E. 749; Lamm v. Lamm, 206 N. C. 905, 173 S. E. 309.

Cited in Hunsinger v. Carolina, etc., Ry., 194 N. C. 679, 681, 140 S. E. 608; State v. Newsome, 195 N. C. 552, 143 S. E. 187; Bridgeman v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 599, 150 S. E. 15; Bostwick v. Jackson, 197 N. C. 785, 148 S. E. 925; State v. Sawyer, 198 N. C. 459, 152 S. E. 153; American Exch. Nat. Bank v. Winder, 198 N. C. 18, 22, 150 S. E. 489; Brown v. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., 198 N. C. 771, 153 S. E. 457; Moss v. Brown, 199 N. C. 189, 154 S. E. 48; Pyatt v. Southern R. Co., 199 N. C. 397, 407, 154 S. E. 847; Nelson v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 199 N. C. 443, 450, 154 S. E. 752; Rogers v. Ray, 199 N. C. 577, 155 S. E. 253; State v. Johnson, 205 N. C. 839, 171 S. E. 926; Jones v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 916, 918, 175 S. E. 162.

B. What Constitutes an Opinion.

In General. — This section has been interpreted to mean that no judge, in giving a charge to the jury or at any time during the trial, shall intimate whether a fact is fully or sufficiently proved. State v. Mitchell, 193 N. C. 796, 798, 138 S. E. 166, citing State v. Kline, 190 N. C. 177, 129 S. E. 417; State v. Hart, 186 N. C. 582, 120 S. E. 345. See Speed v. Perry, 167 N. C. 122, 83 S. E. 176, where this section, in all of its phases, is discussed at considerable length, with full citation of authorities.

The judge who tries a cause has no right to intimate in any manner his opinion as to the weight of the evidence, nor to express an opinion on the facts. Powell v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 68 N. C. 395.

A correct charge of the court upon the evidence in a case will not be held for error as containing an expression of opinion prohibited by this section, when nothing of this character appears from a careful perusal of the charge on appeal that could bias a mind of ordinary firmness and intelligence. Keller v. Caldwell Furniture Co., 199 N. C. 413, 414, 154 S. E. 674.

Test of Violation. — It is a violation of this section for a judge at any time in the progress of a trial (as well as during his charge to the jury) to express an opinion as the weight of evidence or to use language which, fairly interpreted, would make it reasonably certain that it would influence the minds of the jury in determining a fact. State v. Browning, 78 N. C. 555.

Direct Language Not Necessary to Constitute Error. — Where an intimation as to whether any fact is sufficiently proved is reasonably inferred from the manner of the judge or his peculiar emphasis of the evidence, or in his presentation thereof or his form of expression, or by the tone or general tenor of the trial, giving advantage to the appellee thereby, such as to impair the credit which might otherwise, under normal conditions be given by the jury to the testimony, it comes within the prohibition of this section. State v. Hart, 186 N. C. 582, 120 S. E. 345.

Possibility of Unfair Inference Insufficient. — It is not sufficient to show, that what the judge did or said might have had an unfair influence, or that his words, critically examined and detached from the context and the incidents of the trial, were capable of a construction from which his opinion on the weight of testimony might be inferred; but it must appear, with ordinary certainty, that his manner of arraying and presenting the evidence was unfair, and likely to be prejudicial, or that his language, when fairly interpreted, was likely to convey to the jury his opinion on the weight of the testimony. State v. Jones, 67 N. C. 285.

Section Applies to Issues. — The facts on which this section restrains the judge from expressing an opinion to the jury are those respecting which the parties take issue or dispute and on which, as having occurred or not occurred, the imputed liability of the defendant depends. Long v. Byrd, 169 N. C. 659, 86 S. E. 574; Citing State v. Angel, 29 N. C. 27.

Language Subject to Misapprehension. — When there is a conflict of testimony which leaves a case in doubt before the jury, and the judge uses language which may be subject to misapprehension and is calculated to mislead, the Supreme Court will order a venire de novo. State v. Rogers, 93 N. C. 523, 524.

Remarks Made in Mere Pleasantry. — Remarks made in mere pleasantry by the trial judge in the presence of the jury, in relation to irrelevant testimony of a witness he had theretofore been patiently endeavoring to properly confine, will not be held for reversible error as an expression of his opinion forbidden by statute, when it could not reasonably have had any appreciable effect upon the jury, and could only have been regarded by them in the manner in which it was uttered. State v. Jones, 181 N. C. 546, 106 S. E. 817.

Charge Predicated on Jury Findings. — Where the trial judge predicates his statements in his charge upon what the jury may find the facts to be, it is not an expression of opinion forbidden by this section. Ivie v. King, 167 N. C. 174, 83 S. E. 339.

Positive and Negative Testimony. — It is not error, as a general proposition, for a judge to say that positive testimony is entitled to more weight than negative. Henderson v. Crouse, 52 N. C. 623.

Assumption of Truth of Fact. — An instruction which assumes the truth of controverted facts is erroneous, as invading the province of the jury. Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., R. Co., 126 N. C. 735, 36 S. E. 181; Pigford v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 93. 75 S. E. 860.

Assumption of Non-Existence of Facts. — A new trial will be awarded, where the charge of the court assumed that certain facts had not been proved, thus taking the questions from the jury. Powell v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 68 N. C. 395.

Uncontroverted Facts. — An instruction is not erroneous in assuming an admitted fact. Crampton v. Ivie, 124 N. C. 591, 32 S. E. 968.

Uncontroverted Evidence. — Where the defense is based on the uncontradicted testimony of a witness, it is proper for the court to instruct the jury to find for defendant if they believe such witness. Love v. Gregg, 117 N. C. 467, 23 S. E. 332; Purifoy v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 100, 12 S. E. 741; Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 101 N. C. 223, 7 S. E. 770, 775.

However, this principal does not apply where the evidence, if true, is susceptible of more than one deduction. Armour Fertilizer Works v. Cox, 187 N. C. 654, 122 S. E. 479.

Submission to Jury. — Where issues are submitted to the jury, an instruction that plaintiff can not recover can not be granted. Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., R. Co., 126 N. C. 735, 36 S. E. 181; Witsell v. West Asheville, etc., R. Co., 120 N. C. 557, 27 S. E. 125.

Instruction That There Is No Evidence. — If any testimony, however slight or insufficient, is given, which tends to establish the issue, it is error to instruct the jury that there is none. State v. Allen, 48 N. C. 257.

Failure of Proof. — Where there is no evidence to prove the affirmative of an issue, the jury may be instructed to answer it in the negative if they believe the evidence. Woodbury v. Evans, 122 N. C. 779, 30 S. E. 2; Newsome v. Western Union Tel. Co., 144 N. C. 178, 56 S. E. 863.

Remark That Fact is "Sufficiently Proved." — The judge is not permitted to express an opinion as to whether a fact, is sufficiently proved, in his charge to the jury. Williams v. Crosby Lumber Co., 118 N. C. 928, 934, 24 S. E. 800.

Hypothetical Statements by Judge. — Merely hypothetical instructions are erroneous, and should not be indulged in, as they proceed on an assumption of facts. State v. Collins, 30 N. C. 407; State v. Benton, 19 N. C. 196; Johnson v. Bell, 74 N. C. 355; State v. Murph, 60 N. C. 129.

It is not error to refuse any instruction asked on a hypothetical state of facts. Wilson v. Holley, 66 N. C. 408.

Applies to Inferences of Fact. — Whether a fact if sufficiently proved is within the province of the jury to determine, and upon which the court may not intimate an opinion, and this inhibition extends not only to the ultimate facts, but to all the essential inferences of fact arising from the testimony upon which the ultimate facts necessarily depend. Phillips v. Giles, 175 N. C. 409, 410, 95 S. E. 772.

Remarks Must Be Prejudicial. — Unless it appears with ordinary certainty that the rights of either party have been in some way prejudiced by the remarks or conduct of the court, it cannot be treated as error. State v. Browning, 78 N. C. 555.

Evidence Tends to Show. — It is not error, as commenting on the weight of evidence, to use in instructions the phrases, "the evidence tends to show," and "evidence tending to show." Lewis v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 132 N. C. 382, 43 S. E. 919.

The use of the words "the evidence tends to show" by the trial court in his charge to the jury, applied both to the evidence for the State and for the defendant, is not an expression by him upon the weight and credibility of the evidence forbidden by this section. State v. Jackson, 199 N. C. 321, 154 S. E. 402.

Remarks to Counsel. — Remarks of the judge, made, not in his charge but to counsel during the introduction of the evidence, are not a ground for a new trial, unless it reasonably appears that a party is prejudiced in the minds of the jury by such remarks. Williams v. Crosby Lumber Co., 118 N. C. 928, 24 S. E. 800.

Reprimand of Spectators. — A reprimand of spectators is not a violation of this section. State v. Robertson, 121 N. C. 551, 28 S. E. 59.

Credibility of Witnesses. — Where there is a disputed fact depending for its proof upon the testimony of witnesses, the credibility of the witnesses is always a question for the jury, and this is so though the testimony may be all on one side. In this case, the judge may charge the jury, if they find the facts to be as testified by the witnesses, to answer the issue in a certain way; but not upon the evidence, so to answer it. Dobbins v. Dobbins, 141 N. C. 210, 53 S. E. 870; Smith v. Cashie, etc., Lumber Co., 140 N. C. 375, 53 S. E. 233.

Appearance and Manner of Witness. — The presiding judge should not state to the jury his estimate of the appearance and manner of a witness. Crutchfield v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 76 N. C. 320.

Remark Complimentary to Witness. — A remark of the trial judge complimentary to the character of one who was a witness in the cause, made before the jury is empanelled, is not forbidden by this section. State v. Howard, 129 N. C. 584, 40 S. E. 71.

Amount of Recovery. — Mathematical computations in a charge on the measure of damages is not a usurpation of the powers of the jury, where the court charges they are used merely as an example. Spreight v. Seaboard, etc., Railway, 161 N. C. 80, 76 S. E. 684.

Remarks Made in Directing Nonsuit of One of Several Defendants. — It is error for the judge in the presence of the jury, to nonsuit one of several defendants upon the evidence he did not participate in the offense charged against them all in the indictment, when the judge's remarks intimated that the appealing defendants had committed the offense. State v. Sullivan, 193 N. C. 754, 138 S. E. 136.

C. Illustrative Cases.

1. Remarks Held Not Erroneous.

a. Remarks Concerning a Party to the Trial.

Parties as Witnesses.—Where plaintiff and defendant are the principal witnesses, and the former testifies distinctly to one contract and its breach by defendant, who testifies as distinctly to another and a different contract, it is not error to charge that, if the jury find that plaintiff has stated the contract correctly, they will find for him, but, if defendant stated it correctly, then the verdict should be for him. Barringer v. Burns, 108 N. C. 606, 13 S. E. 142.

Remarks During Former Trial. — The remarks of the judge in sentencing a prisoner during the previous week cannot be held as improper for the trial of another defendant for participating in the same offense tried during the next week. State v. Baldwin, 178 N. C. 687, 688, 100 S. E. 348.

Remark That Prisoner Would Escape. — A remark of the judge before trial began, that the jailer had informed him the prisoner "would escape if he had the opportunity" is not an expression of opinion upon the facts. State v. Jacobs, 106 N. C. 695, 10 S. E. 1031.

Statement That Judge Did Not Understand Claim. — Where the judge in charging the jury said, "I am not sure, and I frankly confess that I am not sure, that I understand fully the claim upon which the plaintiff based the eleven thousand and some odd dollars," it was held that this was not an expression of opinion prohibited by this section. McDonald v. MacArthur Bros. Co., 154 N. C. 11, 69 S. E. 684.

b. Remarks Concerning Witnesses.

Remark Concerning Emotion of Witness. — On a trial for rape a remark by the judge concerning the mother of the prosecutrix, that "some allowance must be made for the woman, as she is overcome with emotion": was held not to be error. State v. Laxton, 78 N. C. 564.

Statement That Witness Corroborates Another. — A recitation that the testimony of a witness corroborated the testimony of another witness is not an expression of opinion. State v. Mitchell, 193 N. C. 796, 138 S. E. 166.

Remark That Witness Has Fully Answered Question. — Where the same witness has several times fully answered a question it is within the discretion of the trial judge to relieve the witness from answering substantially the same question; and his statement before the jury that the witness had already fully answered, is not an expression of his opinion upon the credibility of the witness. State v. Mansell, 192 N. C. 20, 133 S. E. 190.

Referring to Eyewitnesses.—Upon the trial under an indictment for assault and larceny, where some of the State's witnesses were eye-witnesses and some were not, and the defendant had admitted he was present at the time, an instruction as to the first class "now that is the testimony of eye-witnesses," followed by correct instructions as to the second class, is not objectionable as an expression of opinion by the trial judge forbidden by this section. State v. Boswell, 195 N. C. 496, 142 S. E. 583.

c. Remarks Concerning Weight and Credibility of Testimony.

Instruction Based on Law. — Where there is evidence of fraud and undue influence in the making of a will, and it appears that it was by a woman who derived the property from her first husband, of which marriage there was one child, and she had given this property to the children of her second marriage, an instruction to the jury that, in the absence of some reasonable ground for such preference, this would constitute what the law calls an unreasonable will, which may be considered with the other evidence in the case as evidence upon the question of mental capacity and of undue influence, is not objectionable as an expression of opinion by the judge, In re Will of Hardee, 187 N. C. 381, 121 S. E. 667.

Statement That Phases of Case Were Admitted. — A trial judge in an action for damages who stated to the jury that there were phases of the case apparently admitted by the defendant's counsel and if not, to be passed upon by the Jury, did not violate this section. Means v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 126 N. C. 424, 35 S. E. 813.

Statement Concerning Admission. — It is not a violation of this section for the judge to tell the jury that the evidence that the defendant had admitted execution of a bond, if believed by the jury to be true, is entitled to more weight than the opinion of experts to the genuineness of the signature, and that such opinions should be received with caution. Buxly v. Buxton, 92 N. C. 479.

Reference to Testimony of One Witness. — Where the court was evidently stating the contentions of the parties as to the force of the evidence taken as a whole, his reference to the testimony of one witness is not improper as tending to restrict the consideration of the jury to it alone. Wheeler v. Cole, 164 N. C. 378, 80 S. E. 241.

Charge Based on Uncontradicted Testimony. — A charge by the court for the jury to return a verdict of guilty if they believed or found as true the testimony of an uncontradicted witness (capable of only one meaning), is not an expression of the court's opinion upon the weight and credibility of the evidence. State v. Moore, 192 N. C. 209, 134 S. E. 456.

Statement That Evidence Satisfies "Beyond Reasonable Doubt."—Where the trial court instructed the jury "all the evidence tends to show a homicide committed in the perpetration of a robbery," and that the State has offered evidence, "which, it contends, tends to show, and which should satisfy you, gentlemen, beyond a reasonable doubt," etc.: Held, the charge will not be held for error on defendant's exception on the ground that it contained an expression of opinion by the court in violation of this section. State v. Johnson, 207 N. C. 273, 176 S. E. 581.

d. Miscellaneous Remarks.

Where Defense Not Applicable to Issue. — Where the testimony of all the officers of a bank conversant with the facts that the bank was an indorsee for value and a holder in due course of the note sued on was not contradicted, and the maker relied solely on the fraud of the payee in procuring the note, the court properly charged that if the jury believed the evidence, the verdict should be for the bank. First Nat. Bank v. Griffin, 153 N. C. 72, 68 S. E. 919.

Statement to Jury. — Where the jury has returned for further instructions which the court fairly and impartially gives, his statement to them that they should reconcile the evidence if they could and that if they could not, the court would "have to do something else," is not an intimation as to whether "any fact has been fully and sufficiently proved." Nixon v. Buckeye Cotton Oil Mill, 174 N. C. 730, 94 S. E. 410.

Comment on Jury's Duty. — Where the jury has failed to that time to agree upon a verdict in a criminal action, an instruction by the judge that in effect it was a matter of indifference to him, but it was their duty to agree if they could do so without violence to their consciences; that they must find for conviction beyond a reasonable doubt, uninfluenced by prejudices, etc., was held, not to be an expression of opinion by the judge upon the evidence. State v. Pugh, 183 N. C. 800, 111 S. E. 849.

Statement after Verdict Excusing Jurors for Term. — When the trial judge has stated to a jury after rendering a verdict in a criminal action, that from their verdict their attention was evidently attracted by important business matters at home, and therefore he would excuse them for the term, cannot be construed as an expression of opinion forbidden by this section though one of the same jurors sat upon this case. State v. Pugh, 182 N. C. 800, 111 S. E. 849.

Remark Concerning Recall of Witness. — A remark by a judge, when he permitted a witness to be recalled, and asked a question to impeach his credibility, that if he had known the counsel intended to ask that question he would not have allowed the witness to be recalled, is not an expression of opinion about the facts. DeBerry v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 100 N. C. 310, 6 S. E. 723.

Question to Counsel. — Where the judge asked defendant's counsel in the hearing of the jury, if he thought that an objection to certain proof in the case "would be fair," it was held that the remark of the judge was no violation of this section. State v. Brown, 100 N. C. 519, 6 S. E. 568.

Response to Request of Counsel. — Where the prisoner's counsel called attention to the judge's failure to state in his summary that the prosecutrix had said that she did not know a certain woman, to which the judge said, "Yes, I believe that she did say that," it was held, that such remarks were a sufficient response to the request of the prisoner's counsel, and did not convey an opinion of the judge in violation of this section. State v. Freeman, 100 N. C. 429, 5 S. E. 921.

Suggestion of Method of Settlement. — In an action for the purchase price of a horse, defended upon the ground of a breach of warranty, a suggestion by the judge, that a good test would be for each party to select a man and drive the horse sufficiently to see what his condition was, is not an expression of opinion. Long v. Byrd, 169 N. C. 658, 86 S. E. 574.

Matters Subject to Mathematical Calculation.—Where the answers to the issues as to the amounts recoverable, in case the defendants were found liable to the plaintiffs, is merely a matter of mathematical calculation, peremptory instructions in regard thereto do not constitute prejudicial or reversible error under this section. State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 212, 159 S. E. 427.

Opinion on One Count Applies to Others. — Where the verdict of the jury has acquitted the defendant under a count charging an unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors, but has convicted him of having the unlawful possession of the liquor for the purpose of sale, an expression of his opinion by the trial judge upon the evidence that the defendant had made the unlawful sale, applies also to the count charging that he had the unlawful possession for the purposes of sale, and constitutes error. State v. Sparks, 184 N. C. 745, 114 S. E. 755.

2. Remarks Held Error.

a. Remarks Concerning a Party to the Trial.

Character of Accused. — It was held to be error for a judge to tell the jury that, "in a plain case, a good character would not help the prisoner; but in a doubtful case, he had a right to have it cast into the scales and weighed in his behalf"; the true rule being that in all cases a good character is to be considered. State v. Henry, 50 N. C. 66.

Motive. — A charge, "While it is permissable to show a motive as a circumstance to be considered by the jury, it is not necessary. All the State has to do is to satisfy the jury beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendants did the acts charged in the indictment," was held to be error under this section. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 628, 629, 48 S. E. 670.

Comment on Absence of Defendants. — Where the trial judge has questioned a witness as to the absence of the defendants from court, where their deed was being attacked for fraud, his remark that their absence was a circumstance that a fraud had been committed is an expression of opinion forbidden by this section. Greene v. Newsome, 184 N. C. 77, 113 S. E. 569.

Ordinary Care. — An instruction, that if a porter, injured in getting on a train, could have got on in safety by using both hands, his failure to do so was not the exercise of ordinary care, was erroneous. Sanders v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 526, 76 S. E. 553.

"Proverbial Slowness of Messenger Boy." — In an action against a telegraph company it is error for the court to refer in its charge to the "proverbial slowness of the messenger boy." Meadows v. Western Union Tel. Co., 131 N. C. 73, 42 S. E. 534.

Corporation Benefits. — In an action against a corporation the judge recited the benefits conferred by corporations upon the citizens, without mentioning the benefits they received in return, and intimated that he would not permit a verdict rendered upon "guesswork, sympathy, pity, or prejudice," etc., the charge was held to be an expression of opinion. Starling v. Selma Cotton Mills, 171 N. C. 222, 223, 88 S. E. 242.

Identification of Defendant. — Where the only evidence connecting the defendant with operating a still was a coat found there with a receipt with defendant's name on it in one of the pockets, an instruction that the name on the receipt was sufficient evidence that it was the property of defendant, is an expression of an opinion. State v. Allen, 190 N. C. 498, 130 S. E. 163.

Remark Concerning Plaintiff as Witness. — In an action of claim and delivery for a horse, an instruction by the trial judge, that in passing upon the credibility of the plaintiff as a witness the jury should consider the fact that he had $50 of the defendant's money in his pocket and refused to give it to him, amounts to an expression of an opinion upon the facts. Faulkner v. King, 130 N. C. 494, 41 S. E. 885.

Time Plaintiff Would Live.—In an action to recover damages for a permanent injury alleged to have been negligently inflicted, an expression in the charge as to the presumed time the plaintiff would live, and the consequent diminution of his earning capacity, falls within the inhibition of our statute. Cogdill v. Boice Hardwood Co., 194 N. C. 745, 140 S. E. 732.

b. Remarks Concerning Witnesses.

Remark That Witness was "Admirably Lucid." — The expression of the opinion of the court as to the "admirably lucid" testimony of a medical expert witness constituted reversible error. State v. Horne, 171 N. C. 787, 88 S. E. 433.

Comments upon Witnesses. — "The expression, 'This witness has the weakest voice or the shortest memory of any witness I ever saw'—is clearly susceptible of the construction that the testimony of the witness was at least questioned by the court, if not unworthy of credit." State v. Bryant, 189 N. C. 112, 126 S. E. 107, 109.

Questioning Non-Resident As to Professional Ethics. — In an action to recover damages for personal injury, where a release from liability is set up, it is an ineradicable error for the judge, during the trial and in the presence and hearing of the jury, to stop the testimony of the defendant's witness, a nonresident attorney who had procured the release, and question him upon the professional ethics involved and the standard in his own State, of such conduct; which reflected on the witness. Morris v. Kramer Bros. Co., 182 N. C. 87, 108 S. E. 381.

Witness Included in Same Indictment. — Where there is a severance on the trial of defendants, and another party charged in the bill testifies in behalf of the accused, it is error, as indicating the opinion of the court on the facts, to charge that the very fact that the witness is included in the same indictment will impair his testimony, and that the same should not be placed on the same plane or footing with that of a witness of undoubted character who is disinterested. State v. Jenkins, 85 N. C. 544.

Interest of Witness. — It is error to charge the jury that they are bound to believe who is unimpeached and uncontradicted. Though he tells a credible story, his connection with the parties may shake the jury's confidence. Noland v. McCracken, 18 N. C. 594.

Minister As Witness. — Where a judge charged that, because a witness was clergyman, his testimony was therefore entitled to more weight, it is sufficient ground for a new trial. Sneed v. Creath, 8 N. C. 309.

Statement That "Both Witnesses Are Gentlemen." — For the judge, where the testimony of two witnesses conflicted, to tell the jury: "Both witnesses are gentlemen. It is a matter of memory"—was erroneous, as interfering with the province of the jury to determine the credibility. McRae v. Lawrence, 75 N. C. 289, cited in notes in 61 L. R. A. 514, 515.

c. Remarks Concerning Weight and Credibility of Testimony.

Remark That Circumstance Was a "Strong Badge of Fraud." — Where a creditor postponed taking judgment because the debtor alleged that he was making arrangements to borrow the money, but before the expiration of the extended time the debtor made an assignment, preferring other creditors, an instruction that the circumstance was a strong badge of fraud was held to be error. Bonner v. Hodges, 111 N. C. 66, 15 S. E. 881.

Instruction As to Former Marriage. — In an indictment for bigamy an instruction that the weight of the evidence was that there had been no first marriage, is a violation of this section. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517.

Determination of Preponderance. — A request in a civil action that, "when the minds of the jury are in doubt, they must find for the defendant," is error. Willis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 905, 29 S. E. 941.

Instruction That Evidence Rebuts a Prima Facie Case.— When the plaintiff makes out a prima facie case, then to instruct the jury that the evidence rebuts it and overcomes it, is to invade the province of the jury and violates this section. Sherrill v. Western Union Tel. Co., 116 N. C. 655, 657, 21 S. E. 429.

Statement That Evidence Left Matter Unproved. — Where the judge presiding at a trial said that, while there was some evidence to go to the jury, it was a bare scintilla, leaving the matter not proved, it was held error. The evidence was competent or it was not, and should have been withdrawn from the jury or submitted without expression of opinion. Boing v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 87 N. C. 360.

Concerning Value of Book As Testimony. — For the judge to say that a book on farriery, which had been read by counsel, was entitled to as much authority as a witness who had been examined as an expert in the science of diseases of horses, is a clear violation of this section. Melvin v. Easley, 46 N. C. 386, 62 Am. Dec. 171.

Concerning Map. — Where a certain location is material and a surveyor had testified and his map was put in evidence, it is reversible error for the trial judge to instruct the jury that they must be guided in their judgment, not from the map, but from the testimony of the surveyor and other witnesses. Swain v. Clemons, 172 N. C. 277, 90 S. E. 193.

Concerning Location and Acreage. — The weight of the circumstance that one claimed location would give the acreage called for by the deed, while the other would give a greater acreage, being for the jury, it was error to charge that the acreage was not of great value to aid the jury in determining the location. May v. Manufacturing, etc., Co., 164 N. C. 262, 80 S. E. 380.

Instruction as to Value of Deed. — In an action for ejectment it was error to instruct the jury that the deed was sufficient to vest the title in the grantees, where plaintiff's right to recover was dependent upon evidence that the defendant's grantor was estopped to claim the land, as the credibility of the witnesses was a matter for the jury. Campbell v. Everhart, 139 N. C. 503, 52 S. E. 201.

Where the charge on the issue of testamentary capacity, read from the text-book, is that where the testator's sickness is wholly physical, proof of his condition as to lethargy, unconsciousness, etc., "is entitled to little consideration," and that the courts will "scrutinize efforts by witnesses to infer mental weakness or insanity from mere physical decrepitude," and that "the will of an aged person should be regarded with great tenderness" when not procured by fraud, etc., is held as reversible error under this section. In re Will of Bergeron, 196 N. C. 649, 146 S. E. 571.

d. Miscellaneous Remarks.

Instruction Not Barred on All Elements — An instruction which states that, if the jury find certain facts grouped in the instruction, there was no negligence, is objectionable, unless all the material elements of the case are included. Ruffin v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 142 N. C. 120, 55 S. E. 86.

Inference from Evidence. — An instruction charging the jury that, if they believed the evidence, they should find certain evidential facts to be true and that thereupon, certain other facts must be true, is error. Kinney v. North Carolina R. Co., 122 N. C. 961, 30 S. E. 313.

Charge Based on Contradicted Witness. — It is error in the judge to designate a single witness who is contradicted by other witnesses, and to instruct the jury that if they believe the testimony of such witness, then the prisoner is guilty. State v. Rogers, 93 N. C. 523.

On Contradictory Evidence. — Where the evidence was conflicting, an instruction, "if the jury believe the evidence, the answer to the first issue should be no," is a violation of this section. Rickert v. Southern R. Co., 123 N. C. 255, 31 S. E. 497; Leak v. Covington, 99 N. C. 559, 6 S. E. 241.

Where the case is tried upon special issues, an instruction that plaintiffs are not entitled to recover if the jury believe the evidence is improper. Jones v. Balsley, 154 N. C. 61, 69 S. E. 827; Baker v. Brem, 103 N. C. 72, 9 S. E. 629. See Cauley v. Dunn, 167 N. C. 32, 83 S. E. 16.

Assumption of Conflicting Fact.—Where defendant railway claimed that decedent found on its tracks was already dead when struck by the train, and the evidence on this point was in sharp conflict, an instruction which assumed that decedent was killed by the train was erroneous under this section. Hunsinger v. Carolina, etc., Ry., 194 N. C. 679, 140 S. E. 608.

Remark That "We Are Not Informed." — Where there is any evidence to the contrary, it is erroneous in the judge to say, "We are not informed" of the fact upon which it is for the jury to pass. Powell v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 68 N. C. 395.

Degree of Crime. — Although the defendant in a trial for murder introduced no evidence, and all the evidence for the State tended to show only murder in the first degree, it was error to instruct the jury that if they believed the evidence they should find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree. State v. Gadberry, 117 N. C. 811, 23 S. E. 477.

When No Presumption at Law. — A trial judge cannot say to the jury that any fact proved or admitted, that does not in law raise a presumption of the truth of the allegation of fraud, is a strong circumstance tending to establish it. National Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 703, 22 S. E. 2.

Arguing Law to Jury. — That a case cited by counsel for plaintiff, and relied on to establish his position, was an authority directly against that position, and that counsel knew or ought to have known it, was held to be error. Perry v. Perry, 144 N. C. 328, 57 S. E. 1.

Trial for Attempted Rape. — On a trial of an indictment for an assault with intent to commit rape, where there was evidence that the defendant had been found on the six year old child, while on her back with her clothes up, it was held to be error for the court in its charge to the jury to remark with emphasis, "Why was she on her back, and why was he on her?" State v. Dancy, 78 N. C. 437.

Insurance. — A requested charge that, if insured was more than 55 years of age when he applied for membership, the association was not liable on the policy, "as the same was procured under a misrepresentation of the age" of insured, was properly refused as an expression of opinion upon the facts. Tillery v. Royal Ben. Soc., 165 N. C. 262, 80 S. E. 1068.

Regarding Duty of Railroad to Build Culvert. — It was held error in a trial judge to instruct the jury that it was the duty of a railroad company to build a culvert over a certain ravine, and it was also held error to express the opinion that the said branch, regarding which there was conflicting evidence, was not a natural water-course. Fleming v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 115 N. C. 676, 20 S. E. 714.

Validity of Lien. — In an action involving the validity of a lien on certain crops, an instruction that the lien is void, because it was recorded in one county, while the debtor resided in another, involves an expression of opinion as to the facts of the case. Weisenfield v. McLean, 96 N. C. 248, 2 S. E. 56.

Bills and Notes. — In an action on a note, where defendant testified that he signed as surety, with the knowledge of the payee, and the payee testified to the contrary, it was error to instruct the jury that if they believed the evidence they should find that the payee knew that defendant signed as a surety. Harris v. Carrington, 115 N. C. 187, 20 S. E. 452.

Value of Property. — In an action for damages plaintiff testified that the property destroyed was worth a specified sum, and defendant introduced as a witness the tax lister who testified that plaintiff stated that a much lower valuation was too high for purposes of taxation, it was held, that instructions that the jury had the uncontradicted evidence of plaintiff as to the value of the property destroyed was erroneous, as withdrawing from the consideration of the jury the testimony of the tax lister. Dobson v. Southern R. Co., 132 N. C. 900, 44 S. E. 593.

III. EXPLANATION OF LAW AND EVIDENCE.

A. General Considerations of the Charge.

Editor's Note. — When the Supreme Court in Hinshaw v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 118 N. C. 1047, 24 S. E. 426, overruled Emry v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 589, 14 S. E. 352, and modified the broad rule laid down in State v. Boyle, 104 N. C. 800, 10 S. E. 696, 1023, in a series of adjudications that followed it, it was not intended that the jury should be left to grope in utter darkness, unless counsel were sufficiently diligent to draw fire from the court by prayers for instruction. McCracken v. Smathers, 119 N. C. 617, 620, 26 S. E. 157.

The Object of Instructions. — The chief object contemplated in the charge of the judge is to explain the law of the case, to point out the essentials to be proved on the one side and the other, and to bring into view the relations of the particular evidence adduced to the particular issues involved. Bird v. United States, 180 U. S. 356, 361, 45 L. Ed. 570.

Benefits to be Derived from Charge. — The principal benefit to be derived from a charge to the jury is not a statement of law but the elimination of irrelevant matters. Irvin v. Southern R. Co., 164 N. C. 5, 80 S. E. 78.

Theory as to Evidence. — Much confusion as to proceeding with evidence, when a prima facie showing has been made, is eliminated by a proper application of this section. Under our system the trial court, during the production of the evidence, must necessarily proceed upon the theory that the jury has a right to find as true all the evidence submitted by either party. Hunt v. Eure, 189 N. C. 482, 127 S. E. 593, 595.

Charge Must Be Considered as a Whole. — The charge to a jury must be considered as a whole in the same connected way in which it was given, and upon the presumption that the jury did not overlook any portion of it. If, when so considered, it presents the law fairly and clearly to the jury, it will afford no ground for reversing the judgment, though some of the expressions, when standing alone, might be regarded as erroneous. Gilliland v. Board, 141 N. C. 482, 54 S. E. 413. In re Will of Hardee, 187 N. C. 381, 121 S. E. 667.

"The charge must be considered contextually and not disjointly. Riverview Milling Co. v. State Highway Comm., 190 N. C. 692, 697, 130 S. E. 724, and cases cited therein.

In determining whether a charge comes up to the requirements of this section it (charge) must be considered as a whole. Gore v. Wilmington, 194 N. C. 450, 457, 140 S. E. 71. See State v. Moore, 197 N. C. 196, 197, 148 S. E. 29.

The charge of the trial court will be construed as a whole, and if, upon such construction, it fully charges the law applicable to the facts and does not impinge this section, it will not be held for error on appeal. Harrison v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 207 N. C. 488, 177 S. E. 423.

Matters Stricken from Complaint. — Requested instructions as to matters stricken from the complaint as to which the evidence had been withdrawn from the jury should be refused. Tilghman v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 167 N. C. 163. 83 S. E. 315.

Applications of Instructions to Case. — It is not error for the court to refuse to give instructions which, though correct in the abstract, are not applicable to the case. McMillan v. Baxley, 112 N. C. 578, 16 S. E. 845.

The refusal to instruct as to a point not material to the verdict is not prejudicial error. Mendenhall v. North Carolina R. Co., 123 N. C. 275, 31 S. E. 480.

However, the giving of an instruction not strictly applicable to the material questions to be determined is not ground for reversal, where no prejudice is shown and it appears the jury could not have been misled thereby. Evans v. Howell, 84 N. C. 461.

Arguments of Counsel.—It was not error in the court to recapitulate fairly such contentions of counsel as illustrated the bearing of the evidence on the issues. Clark v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 430, 14 S. E. 43, 14 L. R. A. 749.

Unauthorized Charge. — A judge cannot make a charge not authorized by the pleadings. Thus in an action for a debt barred by the statute of limitation, where the statute is not pleaded, the judge cannot charge that the debt is barred although requested to make such a charge. Albertson v. Terry, 109 N. C. 8, 13 S. E. 713.

Inconsistent or Contradictory Instructions. — An inconsistent charge by the court which leaves the jury in doubt as to the law applicable to their findings upon an issue is error. Patterson v. Nichols, 157 N. C. 406, 73 S. E. 202; Blanton Grocery Co. v. Taylor, 162 N. C. 307, 78 S. E. 276.

Erroneous Instruction Not Cured by Correct Instruction. —An error in giving an erroneous instruction is not cured by subsequently correctly stating the law. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 628, 48 S. E. 670.

When Charge Contains a "Powerful Summing up." — Where the trial judge in his general charge gives "every reasonable contention of the state," it is erroneous to give an entirely new charge, containing "a powerful summing up" for the state. State v. McDowell, 129 N. C. 523, 39 S. E. 840.

Contentions Not Necessarily a Part of Instructions. — The contentions of the parties to an action are not a necessary part of the instruction of the trial judge to the jury upon the law of the case. State v. Whaley, 191 N. C. 387, 132 S. E. 6.

Requiring Jury to Be Satisfied. — An instruction requiring the jury to be "satisfied" as to the facts of justification relied on to defeat an action for false arrest and imprisonment does not require too great a degree of proof to establish justification. Sigmon v. Shell, 165 N. C. 582, 81 S. E. 739.

Weight of Defendant's Testimony. — The testimony of defendant if accepted as true by the jury, is given the same credibility as that of a disinterested witness, and a charge to that effect, after a proper instruction as to interest, is not error. State v. Beavers, 188 N. C. 595, 125 S. E. 258.

Instructions Should Be Restricted to Answers Expected. —Where the case is submitted for a special verdict, the jury should only be instructed on questions which they are to answer, and it is error to inform them as to the effect their answers will have on the ultimate rights of the parties, or to authorize them to answer in the form of a legal conclusion. Earnhardt v. Clement, 137 N. C. 91, 49 S. E. 49; Bottoms v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 72, 13 S. E. 738.

Defendants can not complain that the court embodied in the charge, as an abstract proposition, what is known as the "rule of the prudent man" in response to its requests, where, in specific instructions, the court correctly applies the law of negligence and contributory negligence to the facts of the case. Blackwell v. Lynchburg, etc., Railroad, 111 N. C. 151, 16 S. E. 12, 17 L. R. A. 729, 32 Am. St. Rep. 786.

Where Charge Favorable to Appellant. — The failure of the court to comply with this section will not be sufficient ground for a new trial, where the case on appeal shows that the charge of the court presented the case in the most favorable light for the defendant. State v. Pritchett, 106 N. C. 667, 668, 11 S. E. 357.

Requests for Instructions Must Be Timely. — A party desiring more specific instructions than those given in the general charge must ask for them in apt time. A complaint of the charge, made after verdict, is too late. Simmons v. Davenport, 140 N. C. 407, 53 S. E. 225. See also State v. Brady, 107 N. C. 822, 12 S. E. 325.

Exception Must be Specific. — An exception that the trial judge "failed to state in a plain and correct manner the evidence, and declare and explain the law arising thereon as required in this section," is too general and cannot be sustained. Jackson v. Ayden Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 317, 74 S. E. 350.

Error Cured by Verdict. — Where there are several counts of an indictment, and the charge was correct upon those on which a conviction has been had, the verdict cures the error committed in not giving the principles of law arising from the evidence upon the count which the appealing defendant was acquitted. State v. Church, 192 N. C. 658, 135 S. E. 769.

Same—Failure to Call Judge's Attention to Error. — The appellant must at the time call the attention of the trial judge to errors he is alleged to have committed in stating the contentions of the parties to the jury, when he has not done so as an exception after verdict comes too late to be considered on appeal. State v. Beavers, 188 N. C. 595, 125 S. E. 258.

B. Explanation Required.

1. In General.

Rule Stated. — It is held under the requirements of this section, to be the duty of the judge in charging the jury, to segregate the material facts of the case, array the facts on both sides, and apply the principles of law to each, so that the jury may decide the case according to the credibility of the witnesses and the weight of the evidence. State v. Rogers, 93 N. C. 523, 531. Citing State v. Dunlop, 65 N. C. 288; State v. Jones, 87 N. C. 547.

He is required to state clearly and distinctly the particular issues arising on the evidence, and on which the jury are to pass, and to instruct them as to the law applicable to every state of the facts which upon the evidence they may reasonably find to be a true one. State v. Matthews, 78 N. C. 523, 537.

And in criminal cases this section requires the court to give to the jury such instructions as will enable them to understand the nature of the crime and properly determine each material fact upon which may depend the guilt or innocence of the accused. State v. Fulford, 124 N. C. 798, 801, 32 S. E. 377.

An instruction meets the requirements of this section when it clearly applies the law to the evidence introduced upon the trial and gives the position taken by the respective parties as to the prominent and controlling features which make for the ascertainment of the facts. State v. Graham, 194 N. C. 459, 140 S. E. 26.

Where the trial court in his charge to the jury explains the law applicable and gives the contention of the parties, but fails to instruct the jury as to the application of the law to the substantial features of the case, the charge is insufficient to meet the requirements of this section and a new trial will be awarded. Com'r of Banks v. Florence Mills, 202 N. C. 509, 163 S. E. 598.

Where the charge of the court fails to point out the distinction between the counts in the indctment, and leaves the jury with the impression that both counts are valid when there is only one question to be answered constitutes reversible error, under this section. State v. Ray, 207 N. C. 642, 178 S. E. 224.

Scope of Instruction. — The court should instruct the jury on all the issues presented by the pleadings and the evidence. Patterson v. North Carolina Lumber Co., 145 N. C. 42, 58 S. E. 437.

Where the effect of a charge of the court to the jury is to eliminate from the case an instruction upon a principle of law arising from the evidence, so necessary that its omission would necessarily and substantially prejudice one of the parties, in the consideration of the evidence by the jury, it is error, notwithstanding the party so prejudiced has not tendered a prayer for instruction covering the omission of which he complains. Bowen v. Schnibben, 184 N. C. 248, 114 S. E. 170.

Where Facts Are Simple. — The section does not require the judge to "charge the jury where the facts at issue are few and simple, and no principle of law is involved, unless he is requested to do so; but in cases where the witnesses are numerous, or the testimony conflicting or complicated, and different principles of law are applicable to different aspects of the case, it is his duty to conform to the requirement of the statute. Duckworth v. Orr, 126 N. C. 674, 677, 36 S. E. 150, citing Holly v. Holly, 94 N. C. 96; State v. Reynolds, 87 N. C. 544; State v. Grady, 83 N. C. 643.

Instructions to the jury should be addressed to specific issues, but, where the issues are simple, and they do not appear to have misled the jury, the error in this respect will not be held as reversible. Craig v. Stewart, 163 N. C. 531, 79 S. E. 1100.

Mere Statement of Contentions. — It is error simply to state the contentions of the parties, both as to the facts and as to the law and not declare and explain the law applicable to the facts as the jury might find them from the evidence. Nichols v. Champion Fibre Co., 190 N. C. 1, 5, 128 S. E. 471; Parker v. Thomas, 192 N. C. 798, 803, 136 S. E. 118. See Fowler v. Champion Fibre Co., 191 N. C. 42, 131 S. E. 380.

Contentions of Parties.—Although it is not required by this section that the trial judge should state the contentions of the parties to the jury, the practice has grown up in our courts as a helpful and accepted procedure, and a fair statement of the contentions of a party will not be held for error upon exception. Rocky Mount Sav., etc., Co. v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 204 N. C. 282, 167 S. E. 854.

Explanation of Subordinate Features of Case.—The charge of the court did not fail to comply with the provisions of this section if it sufficiently pointed out and explained the substantive features of the case, and as to subordinate features the prisoner should have aptly tendered prayers for special instructions. State v. Ellis, 203 N. C. 836, 167 S. E. 67.

Duty Cannot Be Omitted. — The duty of the court to explain technical words used in instructions cannot be omitted because some of the jury may be able to explain them. State v. Clark, 134 N. C. 698, 47 S. E. 36.

Salutation of Instruction. — The trial judge should instruct "that if the jury find from the evidence" and not "if they believe the evidence." State v. Green, 134 N. C. 658, 46 S. E. 761; State v. Seaboard Airline R., 145 N. C. 570, 59 S. E. 1048.

But where instructions consisting of several clauses contain at the beginning the words, "If the jury find from the evidence," it is not necessary to repeat such words in each clause. Wilkie v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 127 N. C. 203, 37 S. E. 204. Rehearing in 128 N. C. 113, 38 S. E. 289.

2. Statement of Evidence.

In General.—All that is required of a charge by this section is that the essential evidence offered at the trial be stated in a plain and correct manner, together with an explanation of the law arising thereon. State v. Fleming, 202 N. C. 512, 514, 163 S. E. 453; In re Beale, 202 N. C. 618, 163 S. E. 684.

By virtue of this section where the charge of a trial court fails to state the evidence of a party relative to a material point and which directly bears on the amount recoverable, a new trial will be awarded. Myers v. Foreman, 202 N. C. 246, 162 S. E. 549.

Slight inaccuracies in the statement of the evidence in the instructions of the court to the jury will not be held for reversible error when not called to the attention of the judge at the time and the charge substantially complies with this section. State v. Sterling, 200 N. C. 18, 19, 156 S. E. 96.

Repetition of Testimony Insufficient.—This duty is not performed by simply repeating the testimony in the order in which it was delivered, or in a general statement of the principles of law applicable to the case; but it requires the judge to state clearly and distinctly the particular issues arising in the controversy; to eliminate the controverted facts; to arrange the testimony in its bearing on their different aspects, and to instruct the jury as to the law applicable thereto in such manner as will enable them to see and comprehend the matters which are essential to an intelligent and impartial verdict. State v. Boyle, 104 N. C. 800, 10 S. E. 696, 1023.

This section is not complied with where the court reads to the jury full notes of all the testimony in the cause, and tells them that he does this to refresh, and not to control, their recollection of the testimony, that it is their duty to remember the testimony, and that they ought to rely in the last resort on their own recollection. State v. Boyle, 104 N. C. 800, 10 S. E. 696, 1023.

Possibilities of Fact.—Where there are several possibilities of fact, different from the inference tended to be drawn from the evidence offered, a judge is not required to note one such possibility, and specifically bring it to the attention of the jury. State v. Clara, 53 N. C. 25.

Restricting Evidence to Purpose for Which Admissible.—It is error to admit evidence, competent for one purpose only, to be considered and acted on generally by the jury, without instructions restricting it to the special purpose for which it is admissible. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 84 N. C. 193. See also, State v. Ballard, 79 N. C. 627.

Recapitulation Unnecessary.—The judge is not bound to recapitulate all the evidence in his charge to the jury; it is sufficient for him to direct the attention of the jury to the principal questions they have to try, and explain the law applicable thereto. Boon v. Murphy, 108 N. C. 187, 12 S. E. 1032; State v. Gould, 90 N. C. 658.

Nor is the judge required to recite the testimony of each witness in the order in which he was examined, but need only give a clear and intelligent statement of the evidence, with its legal bearing upon the issue. State v. Jones, 97 N. C. 469, 1 S. E. 680.

Second Recapitulation Not Required.—The trial judge is not required to recapitulate the testimony a second time, although one of the parties may request it to be done. Aston v. Craigmiles, 70 N. C. 316.

Judge May Omit Testimony.—Unless there be some reason why the judge should remark particularly on the testimony of a witness, he may with propriety, decline to comply with a request to do so. Findly v. Ray, 50 N. C. 125.

Agreement of Counsel.—The failure of a judge to recite the testimony in his charge to the jury is not error, where it was agreed by the counsel on both sides that the testimony need not be recapitulated. Wiseman v. Penland, 79 N. C. 197.

Effect of a "Slip of the Tongue".—A mere inadvertent "slip of the tongue" in stating the evidence, will not be held as prejudicial error when counsel for defendant might easily have called attention thereto and had it corrected then and there. State v. Sinodis, 189 N. C. 565, 127 S. E. 601.

Weight and Credibility.—Where the trial judge gives the contentions of the State and of the defendant, clearly stating that they are but contentions in a trial for unintentional manslaughter, and correctly charges the law arising upon the evidence, objection that he has therein impinged upon the provisions of this section, in expressing his opinion upon the weight and credibility of the evidence, is untenable. State v. Durham, 201 N. C. 724, 726, 161 S. E. 398.

3. Explanation of Law.

In General.—This section confers upon litigants a substantial legal right and calls for instructions as to the law upon all substantial features of the case. Williams v. Eastern Carolina Coach Co., 197 N. C. 12, 15, 147 S. E. 435, citing Wilson v. Wilson, 190 N. C. 819; S. v. O'Neal, 187 N. C. 22, 24; Blake v. Smith, 163 N. C. 274, 79 S. E. 596; Bowen v. Schnibben, 184 N. C. 248, 249, 114 S. E. 170.

As was said in S. v. Matthews, 78 N. C. 523, 537, the requirements of this section are not met by a general statement of legal principles which bear more or less directly, but not with absolute directness upon the issues made by the evidence. Williams v. Eastern Carolina Coach Co., 197 N. C. 12, 15, 147 S. E. 435.

Party Must Request.—Where the judge has sufficiently charged the jury as to the law arising under the evidence in the case in compliance with this section, such further matters of instruction as the appellant may desire should be offered by special request of instruction. Gore v. Wilmington, 194 N. C. 450, 140 S. E. 71; Murphy v. Power Co., 196 N. C. 484, 483, 146 S. E. 204. See Graham v. State, 194 N. C. 459, 140 S. E. 26.

But the rule stated in Bank v. Rochamora, 193 N. C. at p. 1, 8, 136 S. E. 259, that "where the instruction is proper so far as it goes, a party desiring a more specific instruction must request it," applies to subordinate elaboration, but not substantive, material and essential features of the charge. McCall v. Lumber Co., 196 N. C. 597, 602, 146 S. E. 579.

When a judge has charged generally on the essential features of the case, if a litigant desires that some subordinate feature of the cause or some particular phase of the testimony shall be more fully explained, he should call the attention of the court to it. Acme Mfg. Co. v. McPhail, 179 N. C. 383, 388, 102 S. E. 611; Riverview Milling Co. v. State Highway Comm., 190 N. C. 692, 130 S. E. 724; State v. Johnson, 193 N. C. 701, 138 S. E. 19.

Where the charge of the court is sufficiently full to meet the requirements of this section, it will not be held for reversible error on defendant's exceptions, it being incumbent on defendant, if he desires more specific instructions on any point, or a more detailed and complete statement of his contentions to aptly make request therefor. State v. Caudle, 208 N. C. 249, 180 S. E. 91.

If the indictment fully describes the offense, and this was read to the jury by the court, then the charge is in compliance with this section, it being the duty of the defendant, if he desires more elaborate instruction, to aptly tender a request therefor. State v. Gore, 207 N. C. 618, 178 S. E. 209.

Explanation Must Cover any Authorized Finding.—It is the duty of the judge to explain and adapt the law to any authorized findings which the jury may make upon the evidence. Lawton v. Giles, 90 N. C. 374, 375, 379; State v. Jones, 87 N. C. 547.

Law on Facts and Inferences.—It is necessary to state the law arising on the various phases of the evidence, and on all facts which the jury should find from the evidence, when such facts constitute a part of the basis for the answers to the issues. Wilson v. Wilson, 190 N. C. 819, 821, 130 S. E. 834, and cases therein cited.

Instructions Based on Assumption.—When instructions are asked for upon an assumed state of facts, which there is evidence tending to prove, and thus questions of law are raised which are pertinent to the case, it is the duty of the judge to answer the question so presented, and to instruct the jury distinctly what the law is, if they shall find the assumed state of facts to be true, and so in respect to every state of facts which may be reasonably assumed upon the evidence. State v. Dunlop, 65 N. C. 288.

But where a prayer for instructions assumes certain facts to be in proof, and in the opinion of the judge there is no evidence tending to prove them, he ought to say so, and thus not embarass the jury by the consideration both of the assumed facts and of the questions of law predicated on their assumption. State v. Dunlop, 65 N. C. 288.

Instruction Necessary to Reach Verdict.—Where an instruction upon the law is necessary for the jury to arrive at a verdict upon a material issue, it is the duty of the trial judge to charge the law thus arising without a request for special instruction. Jacob Stove Works v. Boyd, 191 N. C. 523, 132 S. E. 273.

Substantial Compliance with Request Sufficient.—The trial judge is not required to give special instructions in the precise works asked, even when unobjectionable. A substantial compliance is sufficient. State v. Booker, 123 N. C. 713, 31 S. E. 376.

The trial court is not required to give instructions in the language of the prayers, provided the instructions given are correct and cover the various phases of the testimony. State v. Wilcox, 132 N. C. 1120, 44 S. E. 625.

Charge Covering Subordinate Features.—When a judge has followed this section and charged generally on the essential features of the case, if a litigant desires that some subordinate feature of the cause or some particular phase of the testimony shall be more fully explained, he should call the attention of the court to it by prayers for instructions or other proper procedure; but on the substantive features of the case arising on the evidence, the judge is required to give a correct charge concerning it. Acme Mfg. Co. v. McPhail, 179 N. C. 383, 388, 102 S. E. 611.

Request for Special Instructions.—Where the trial judge has instructed the jury correctly but generally on the essential features of the cases, the charge will not be held for error upon appellant's exception that he had not explained to the jury the legal principles in conformity with the provisions of this section when he has not submitted in apt time correct special prayers for instruction to such effect. Planters Bank, etc., Co. v. Yelverton, 185 N. C. 314, 117 S. E. 299.

Refusal to Correct Special Request for Instructions. — Where the general charge of the court to the jury covers every correct principle applying under the evidence in the case, and of the special prayers, it is not objectionable that the court refused to correct special requests for instructions in the language offered by the appellant. Williams v. Hedgepeth, 184 N. C. 114, 113 S. E. 602.

Waiver of Error.—A failure to comply with this section is error which is not waived by failure to request special instructions, where there is no charge applicable to the facts given in evidence. Nichols v. Champion Fibre Co., 190 N. C. 1, 128 S. E. 471.

Objection as to Fullness of Statement. — An instruction which gives to the jury a clear and comprehensive charge on the law applicable to the evidence in the case, stating the position of the respective parties as to every feature thereof, is not erroneous as failing to explain and declare the law arising from the evidence, as required by this section and an objection that a fuller statement of the evidence was required cannot be considered on appeal when exception thereto has not been brought to the attention of the trial court at the time of the alleged omission. Tatham v. Andrews Mfg. Co., 180 N. C. 627, 105 S. E. 423.

Charge on Degrees of Crime.—Where a person indicted for a crime may be convicted of a lesser degree of the same crime and there is evidence tending to support the milder verdict, he is entitled to have the law with respect to the lesser offense submitted to the jury under a correct charge. A statement of the contentions or of certain phases of the evidence accompanied with a mere enunciation of a legal principle is not a compliance with this section. State v. Hardee, 192 N. C. 533, 535, 135 S. E. 345, citing State v. Lee, 192 N. C. 225, 134 S. E. 458; Watson v. Sylva Tanning Co., 190 N. C. 840, 130 S. E. 833; Wilson v. Wilson, 190 N. C. 819, 130 S. E. 834; State v. Williams, 185 N. C. 685, 116 S. E. 736.

Failure to Charge on Second Degree Murder.—See note under § 4642.

Cited in State v. Weston, 197 N. C. 25, 26, 147 S. E. 618.

C. Illustrative Cases.

Instructions on Interest of Counsel.—An instruction that "it is the business of counsel to make their side appear the best side, their reasons the best of reasons; but you and I are under different obligations" is erroneous. State v. Hardy, 189 N. C. 799, 128 S. E. 152.

Instruction as to Presumption of Character.—Where the character of a witness had not been impeached either by contradictory evidence or the manner of his cross-examination, it is presumed to be good, and the testimony of other witnesses thereto will be excluded; and where in a criminal action the case has been given to the jury, who return to court with a request for a further instruction as to whether a witness's character is considered good until proven bad in court, the judge's reply that it is presumed to be good until the contrary is shown, is free from error. State v. Pugh, 183 N. C. 800, 111 S. E. 849.

Omission of Necessary Instruction.—Where the defendant, charged with murder, introduced evidence of an alibi which was material to his defense, but the judge in his charge to the jury did not refer to this evidence and it was held to be error. State v. Melton, 187 N. C. 481, 122 S. E. 17.

Instruction to "Settle Case as Between Man and Man".—Where there is much conflicting evidence, it is error for the judge to instruct the jury to "take the case and settle it as between man and man," without charging on the different aspects of the case. Blake v. Smith, 163 N. C. 274, 79 S. E. 596.

Charge as Essay.—Though the charge of a judge presiding over a trial for murder is correct as a general essay on homicide, and his propositions taken generally are supported by the authorities, still it is not a full compliance with this section. State v. Dunlop, 65 N. C. 288.

Omission in Charge.—Where a charge excluded from consideration important evidence in the case bearing upon the essential inquiry whether defendant had waived, or surrendered, all rights under an agreement, if he had any, and agreed to go back to an original contract, it was erroneous. Acme Mfg. Co. v. McPhail, 179 N. C. 383, 387, 102 S. E. 611.

Instruction as to Subordinate Features.—In the absence of a special request for instruction it is not reversible error under this section for the trial judge to have failed to instruct the jury that they should scrutinize the testimony of detectives who were paid to secure evidence to convict the defendant, the same being as to subordinate and not substantive features of the evidence in the case. State v. O'Neal, 187 N. C. 22, 120 S. E. 817.

Duty of Judge in Issue of Contributory Negligence.—Where no requests for instruction are made by counsel as to the application of the law to the testimony bearing upon an issue involving contributory negligence, it is the duty of the trial judge to give the general definition of ordinary care. McCracken v. Smathers, 119 N. C. 617, 26 S. E. 157.

Same—Fraud Necessary to Violate Deed.—It is not required to charge the jury of the full definitions of fraud upon which equity will set aside a deed, the subject of the action, if he instructs them correctly and clearly upon such of the principles as are applicable to the issue under the relevant evidence in the case, and the general charge, as so given, is within the intent and meaning of this section. Williams v. Hedgepeth, 184 N. C. 114, 113 S. E. 602.

Same—Bills and Note.—Where from the pleadings and evidence an issue is raised for the jury to determine whether the holder of a note had elected to sue the original payee instead of the maker, under the provisions of this section it is the duty of the trial judge to charge the jury upon the phase of the case, material to the determination of the controversy upon the principles of law applying thereto, without a prayer for special instructions. Darden v. Baker, 193 N. C. 386, 387, 137 S. E. 146.

Same—Fraud in Negotiable Instrument.—Where there is evidence in a suit to set aside an instrument for fraud, tending to show the existence of the fraud both in the factum and in the treaty, a failure of the trial judge to charge the principles arising therefrom upon fraud in the factum is error. Parker v. Thomas, 192 N. C. 798, 136 S. E. 118.

Same—Illegality of Contract.—Where in an action upon a contract there is evidence that the contract was a wagering one, the judge should explain the statute, the consideration of the contract which would make it illegal, and the law applicable; and his merely instructing the jury to answer the issue "Yes" if the defendant had shown it was illegal, but if it had failed in this respect to answer it "No", is insufficient. Orvis Bros. & Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 231, 91 S. E. 948.

Cited in Mulholland v. Brownrigg, 9 N. C. 349; Currie v. Clark, 90 N. C. 355; Fry v. Currie, 91 N. C. 436; Dupree v. Virginia Home Ins. Co., 92 N. C. 418; State v. Chastain, 104 N. C. 900, 904, 10 S. E. 519; McMillan v. Baxley, 112 N. C. 578, 16 S. E. 845; Dissension of C. J. Faircloth in State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 597, 26 S. E. 933; State v. Kale, 124 N. C. 816, 32 S. E. 892; Gates v. Max, 125 N. C. 139, 34 S. E. 266; Davis v. Blevins, 125 N. C. 433, 34 S. E. 541; Neal v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 126 N. C. 634, 36 S. E. 117; State v. Edwards, 126 N. C. 1051, 1053, 35 S. E. 540; Kearns v. Southern R. Co., 139 N. C. 470, 52 S. E. 131; State v. Rogers, 168 N. C. 112, 83 S. E. 161; Ball Thrash Co. v McCormack, 172 N. C. 677, 90 S. E. 916; Futch v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 178 N. C. 282, 100 S. E. 436. See State v. Cline, 179 N. C. 703, 103 S. E. 211.

Same—Forcible Trespass.—In a prosecution for forcible trespass, a charge to the jury that the defendant's guilt depended on the fact of his presence, without further instructions, is not a compliance with this section. State v. Lawson, 98 N. C. 759, 4 S. E. 134.

Contributory Negligence.—Where the trial judge has charged correctly and fully upon the issue of contributory negligence in regard to the defendant, it is not error for him to fail to charge the alternate propositions of law in regard to the plaintiff under the provisions of this section. Lipscomb v. Cox, 197 N. C. 64, 147 S. E. 683.

Particulars of Duty Required of Automobile Driver.—Where the plaintiff was not walking along the highway but ran out from behind another automobile near an intersection and was struck and injured by the defendant's car for which injury he seeks to recover damages in his action: Held, it is not reversible error for the trial judge to fail to charge the jury specifically upon the various particulars as to the speed, etc., required of the driver of an automobile upon the highway at a cross-road, if he charges correctly upon the general law arising from the evidence. Fisher v. Deaton, 196 N. C. 461, 146 S. E. 56, distinguishing Bowen v. Schnibben, 184 N. C. 248, 114 S. E. 170.

Negligence in Injury to Passenger.—In an action to recover damages of a bus line where there is sufficient evidence tending to show that a passenger was injured by the negligence of the defendant in not providing an adequate catch or other device to prevent a folding seat from falling when raised, and that it fell upon the plaintiff's hand and caused the injury in suit; and also evidence that the injury thus inflicted was caused by the independent act of a fellow passenger or by the act of the plaintiff herself, a charge of the court correctly placing the burden of proof and generally defining the law of actionable negligence, etc., but omitting to explain the law arising upon the particular phases of the evidence, is not a compliance with the mandate of this section and constitutes reversible error. Williams v. Eastern Carolina Coach Co., 197 N. C. 12, 147 S. E. 435.

§ 565. Request for instructions.—Counsel praying of the judge instructions to the jury, must put their requests in writing entitled of the cause, and sign them; otherwise the judge may disregard them. They must be filed with the clerk as a part of the record. (Rev., s. 538; Code, s. 415; C. C. P., s. 239.)

For further treatment see 11 Enc. Dig. 1031 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This section does not fix a time limit within which the request for instructions must be filed, and there is an apparent conflict in the reported cases as to the proper time allowed. The succeeding section, section 566, requires requests for written instructions from the judge to be made at or before the close of the evidence. There seems to be a divergence of opinion in the Supreme Court as to whether these two sections should be read together. In Craddock v. Barnes, 142 N. C. 89, 54 S. E. 1003, it was held that these two sections should not be read together and the time limit expressed in section 566 had no bearing on this section. In Barringer v. Deal, 164 N. C. 246, 80 S. E. 161, section 566 was read into this section and the headnote to the case stated that requests for special instructions had to be made before the close of the evidence. This is mere dicta, however, for the requests in this case were handed up after the conclusion of the charge.

The headnote to Merrill v. Whitmire, 110 N. C. 367, 15 S. E. 3, also, defined "apt time" as "at or before the close of testimony." In this case, however, the requests for special instructions was made after argument had opened. The definition of the court as to "apt time" is dicta, therefore the headnote to Ward v. Albemarle, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 168, 16 S. E. 921, makes the same error. Here, too, the request for special instructions was made during argument.

The discrepancy here is more apparent than real and the error seems to have crept into the headnotes rather than into the decisions. The Craddock case seems correct. In that case at the close of the testimony the court adjourned until the next day, and at the opening of the court the next morning the plaintiff tendered in writing certain special instructions and the refusal of the judge to consider them was held to be error. There seems to be no reason, other than propinquity, why section 566 should be read into this section. The true rule, as garnered from the decided cases, seems to be that requests for special instructions must be in before the beginning of argument. This rule apparently fits all the decisions, though dictoa to the contrary will be found.

Requests for special instructions should be presented in time to give the Court opportunity to consider them before submitting them to the jury. State v. Rowe, 98 N. C. 629, 4 S. E. 506.

Special instructions requested after the Judge has concluded his charge will not be considered on appeal. Posey v. Patton, 109 N. C. 455, 14 S. E. 64. But this does not mean that the court is prevented from granting the request if he desires, and it has been held that it is discretionary with the presiding judge whether he will recall the jury and submit instructions, which were not presented until the charge was finished and the jury had retired to consider their verdict. Scott v. Green, 89 N. C. 278.

Section Mandatory.—Failure to grant an instruction not asked for in writing is not ground for exception. Marshall v. Stine, 112 N. C. 697, 17 S. E. 495. And the trial judge may disregard oral requests. Justice v. Gallert, 131 N. C. 393, 42 S. E. 850; State v. Hoiton, 100 N. C. 443, 6 S. E. 238.

Failure to Sign—Discretion of Court.—It is within the sound discretion of the trial judge to give or refuse a prayer for special instruction not signed by the attorneys tendering it as required by this section. Avery County Bank v. Smith, 186 N. C. 635, 120 S. E. 215.

Court Need Not Use Exact Words of Instruction.—Where a party prays for an instruction to which he is entitled, it is error to refuse it. The court, however, is not required to adopt the words of the instruction prayed for, but it is error to change its sense or to so qualify it as to weaken its force. Brink v. Black, 77 N. C. 59; Lloyd v. Bowen, 170 N. C. 216, 86 S. E. 797.

Party Cannot Complain of Favorable Instructions. — The defendants cannot, on appeal from a conviction, complain of an erroneous instruction which was not prejudicial to them but in their favor. State v. Freeman, 122 N. C. 1012, 29 S. E. 94.

Instruction Arising only on Verdict.—It is not error in the judge to omit to charge the jury upon matters of law which can only arise upon the verdict, and have no bearing on the questions to be considered by the jury. Dupree v. Virginia Homes Ins. Co., 92 N. C. 418.

Oral Exception.—Where the judge in instructing the jury, submitted a phase of a question which there was no evidence to support, an oral exception to the question immediately taken and noted and assigned as error for the case on appeal is sufficient to present the matter on appeal, though no written instruction on the subject was prayed for. Lee v. Williams, 112 N. C. 510, 17 S. E. 165.

Assignment of Error.—Though the failure to give an instruction asked for in writing is deemed excepted to, yet, it it is not set out in the case on appeal, it will be deemed to have been waived, and will not be passed on by the Supreme Court. Marshall v. Stine, 112 N. C. 697, 17 S. E. 495. Taylor v. Plummer, 105 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 266.

Exceptions to the refusal of the court to grant a prayer for instructions, or in granting a prayer, or to instructions generally, cannot be taken for the first time in the Supreme Court; they should be made on a motion for a new trial, but it is sufficient if they are assigned in the statement of the case on appeal. Lee v. Williams, 111 N. C. 200, 16 S. E. 175.

The appellant is entitled to have his assignments of error for refusing or granting special instructions, if set out by him in his statement of the case on appeal, incorporated by the judge in the case settled. If they are omitted, certiorari will lie. Lowe v. Elliott, 107 N. C. 718, 12 S. E. 383.

Judge's Statement of Oral Instructions Binding.—A statement of the trial judge as to what the instructions to the jury were, where orally given, and in the absence of a request that they be put in writing, is binding on appeal. Justice v. Gallert, 131 N. C. 393, 42 S. E. 850..

Conflicting Evidence.—The trial judge commits reversible error in failing to give substantially a material instruction duly requested under this section embodying a correct principle of law supported by the evidence in the case, though the evidence may be conflicting. Parks v. Security Life, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 453, 142 S. E. 473.

C. 314, 318, 154 S. E. 406; Pyatt v. Southern R. Co., 199 N. C. 397, 402, 154 S. E. 847; Lane v. Paschall, 199 N. C. 364, 154 S. E. 626.

§ 566. Instructions in writing; when to be taken to jury room.—The judge, at the request of any party to an action on trial, made at or before the close of the evidence, before instructing the jury on the law, must put his instructions in writing and read them to the jury. He shall sign and file them with the clerk as a part of the record of the action.

When a judge puts his instructions in writing either of his own will or at the request of a party to the action, he must, at the request of either party to the action, allow the jury to take his instructions with them on their retirement, and the jury must return the instructions with their verdict to the court. (Rev., ss. 536, 537; Code, s. 414; C. C. P., s. 238; 1885, c. 137.)

Editor's Note.—It is not the policy or purpose of the statute, nor does the language used bear such rigorous construction as to forbid any and all oral expressions from the presiding judge. As what he may tell the jury in matters of law for their information and guidance must be written and read, so he is not permitted to add to, take from, modify or explain what he delivers as his charge, for this would be to change perhaps the meaning which would otherwise be ascribed to the writing and produce the very mischief intended to be remedied. But the act, upon any reasonable interpretation of its terms, does not go further and put an interdict upon every oral utterance with is in precise accord with what is written and affects it in none of the suggested particulars, at the peril of a venire de novo if he does thus speak. Currie v. Clark, 90 N. C. 355, 361. See State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1058, 21 S. E. 502.

For discussion of this section with the preceding section, see the Editor's Note to § 565.

Section Mandatory.—The requirements of this section are mandatory in criminal as well as civil cases and if the judge fails to comply with a request duly made that he reduce his charge to writing, a new trial will be ordered. Currie v. Clark, 90 N. C. 355; State v. Connelly, 107 N. C. 463, 12 S. E. 251. The question is not whether the record contains the instructions as actually delivered, there being no admission in regard to it, but whether the request was duly made and refused and the refusal followed by an exception. State v. Black, 162 N. C. 637, 638, 78 S. E. 210.

The court must put its charge, as to the law, in writing, however inconvenient, if the request is made in apt time. Jenkins v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 110 N. C. 438, 15 S. E. 193.

Applies to Later Instructions.—It is error to charge the jury orally upon any point when they return into court for instructions, when counsel has requested written instructions. State v. Young, 111 N. C. 715, 16 S. E. 543.

"Instructions" Defined.—The word "instructions" as used in this section, relates to the principles of law applicable to the case, and which would influence the action of the jury, after finding the facts, in shaping their responses to the issue. State v. Dewey, 139 N. C. 556, 51 S. E. 937.

Does Not Include Evidence.—A request to give instructions in writing, under this section does not require that the recapitulation of evidence be in writing. Phillips v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 130 N. C. 582, 41 S. E. 805; Dupree v. Virginia Home Ins. Co., 92 N. C. 418.

Request Must be Specific.—A request that the trial judge "charge the jury in writing, and as follows" is a request solely to deliver those instructions to the jury, and is not a request to put the entire charge in writing. Phillips v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 130 N. C. 582, 41 S. E. 805.

But where the defendant at the close of the evidence requested the court "to put the charge to the jury in writing and in part to charge the jury as follows," and the whole charge on the law was not put in writing, this was held to be error. Sawyer v. Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 161, 55 S. E. 84.

Oral Instructions Same as Written.—Where the court gave oral instructions not differing from those set out in the written charge, and the appellant makes no suggestion to the contrary, his exception to the oral part of the charge does not constitute ground for a new trial. Currie v. Clark, 90 N. C. 355.

Exception.—An exception to the failure of the judge to put his charge in writing, when asked "at or before the close of the evidence." is taken in time if first set out in appellant's "case on appeal." Sawyer v. Lumber Co., 142 N. C. 161, 55 S. E. 48. The headnote to Phillips v. Wilmington, etc., Ry. Co., 130 N. C. 582, 41 S. E. 805, is not the holding of that case but is merely dicta.

An exception "for refusal of prayers for instructions" does not embrace a refusal or failure to grant a prayer to put the charge in writing. State v. Adams, 115 N. C. 775, 20 S. E. 722.

Effect of Violation.—When it appears from inspection of the record, that the court below refused to put its charge in writing, at the request of one of the parties made in apt time, a new trial will be granted by the Supreme Court. State v. Connelly, 107 N. C. 463, 12 S. E. 251.

Judge's Statement of Oral Instructions Controlling. — A statement of the trial judge as to what the instructions to the jury were, where orally given, and in the absence of a request that they be put in writing, is binding on appeal. Justice v. Gallert, 131 N. C. 393, 42 S. E. 850; Cameron v. Power Co., 137 N. C. 99, 49 S. E. 76.

Request of Juror.—It is proper for the court to permit the jury to carry the charge with them on retiring to the jury room, at the request of one of the jurors. Gaither v. Carpenter, 143 N. C. 240, 55 S. E. 625.

Request Made after Charge in Hands of Jury.—Where the trial judge, having at the request of plaintiff put his charge in writing, read and handed it to the jury and allowed them to carry it to the jury room, the plaintiff objected upon the ground that the court had not been requested to hand the written charge to the jury. Thereupon, and after his Honor had offered to withdraw the written charge from the jury in whose possession it had been about five minutes, the defendant requested that the jury be permitted to keep the written charge, it was held that it was not error upon such request of the defendant to permit the jury to retain the written charge. Little v. Carolina Central R. Co., 119 N. C. 771, 26 S. E. 106.

Special Prayers Not Included.—Where the charge of the court was taken to the jury room on retirement, but by oversight the special prayers asked by appellant and given were not also handed to the jury, this does not constitute error, where his counsel were present in the court room and did not then, or at any time before verdict, call the matter to the attention of the court. Gaither v. Carpenter, 143 N. C. 240, 55 S. E. 625.

Data Other than Charge.—It is error for the trial judge, under objection, to permit the jury to take plats of or certificates relating to the location of disputed lands to their room and inspect them in their deliberations. Nicholson v. Eureka Lumber Co., 156 N. C. 59, 72 S. E. 86. So with plaintiff's estimate of damages. Burton v. Wilkes, 66 N. C. 604. An account rendered. Watson v. Davis, 52 N. C. 178.

Depositions read on trial. Lafoon v. Shearin, 95 N. C. 391. Papers read as evidence. Williams v. Thomas, 78 N. C. 47.

Cited in Lowe v. Elliott, 107 N. C. 718, 12 S. E. 383; Powell v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 68 N. C. 395; Merrill v. Whitmire, 110 N. C. 367, 15 S. E. 3; Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53; Craddock v. Barnes, 142 N. C. 89, 54 S. E. 1003; Barringer v. Deal, 164 N. C. 246, 80 S. E. 161.

§ 567. Demurrer to evidence.—When on trial of an issue of fact in a civil action or special proceeding, the plaintiff has introduced his evidence and rested his case, the defendant may move to dismiss the action, or for judgment as in case of nonsuit. If the motion is allowed the plaintiff may except and appeal to the supreme court. If the motion is refused the defendant may except, and if the defendant introduces no evidence the jury shall pass upon the issues in the action, and the defendant has the benefit of his exception on appeal to the supreme court. After the motion is refused he may waive his exception and introduce his evidence just as if he had not made the motion, and he may again move to dismiss after all the evidence on both sides is in. If the motion is then refused, upon consideration of all the evidence, he may except, and after the jury has rendered its verdict, he has the benefit of the latter exception on appeal to the supreme court. (Rev., s. 539; 1897, c. 109; 1899, c. 131; 1901, c. 594.)

For further treatment see 11 Enc. Dig. 984.

Editor's Note.—The power of the superior court to grant an involuntary nonsuit is altogether statutory, and did not exist prior to the passing of this section in 1897. See Riley v. Stone, 169 N. C. 421, 422, 86 S. E. 348.

Under this section as originally passed, Acts 1897, chap. 109, upon the defendant's motion being refused, he could introduce evidence, and at the close of the evidence on both sides, renew the motion to dismiss, on the first motion and also on the second motion. Purnell v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 832, 29 S. E. 953; Wood v. Bartholomew, 122 N. C. 177. But under the amendment of 1899, Acts of 1899, chap. 138, this practice is not allowed. The defendant may stop his case at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, and move to dismiss upon the ground that the plaintiff has not made a prima facie case. And if his motion is refused he has the right of appeal from the ruling of the court.

But if he does not stop his case and appeal, and introduce evidence, he loses the right of appeal from the refusal to dismiss. When the evidence is all in, he may again move to dismiss upon the ground that the plaintiff has not made out a case, and the only difference between this motion and the one made at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, is that the plaintiff's evidence stands as it stood when the first motion was made, and he also has the benefit of any new evidence that may have been introduced since that motion was made, by either side, favorable to the plaintiff.

The rule now seems to stand just as it did before the passage of the Act 1897, chap. 109, and the amendment of 1899, except that under this legislation it is now discretionary with the defendant whether he will introduce evidence after the motion to dismiss, or not; while before these acts, it was discretionary with the court whether it would allow the defendant to introduce evidence after resting his case and making the motion. See Means v. Carolina Central R. R. Co., 126 N. C. 424, 35 S. E. 813.

It was held in State v. Houston, 155 N. C. 432, 71 S. E. 65, that this statute did not apply to criminal cases. Thereupon the legislature enacted chap. 73, Laws 1913, (Sec. 4643, of this code) extending this section to all criminal courts. For Criminal Cases see annotations under that section.

Section Explained.—Under this section the defendant is not put to his election to move for a judgment of nonsuit or proceed with the evidence unless the plaintiff has produced his evidence and rested his case. If the motion for judgment is therein refused he can note his exception and proceed as if he had made no motion. Worth v. Ferguson, 122 N. C. 381, 29 S. E. 574.

Nonsuit under this section, is permissible only on demurrer to the evidence, and not on demurrer to the complaint or motion for judgment on the pleadings. Dix-Downing v. White, 206 N. C. 567, 174 S. E. 451.

Time to Make Motion to Nonsuit.—The allowance of a motion as of nonsuit is based upon purely statutory grounds, and the requirements of this section must be strictly followed, and where the defendant fails to move for judgment as of nonsuit at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, his exception to the refusal of his motion therefor at the close of all the evidence is not sufficient to present on appeal the question of whether upon all the evidence the plaintiff is entitled to recover. Penland v. French Broad Hospital, 199 N. C. 314, 154 S. E. 406.

Admissions and Inferences.—A motion to dismiss under this section, is substantially a demurrer to the evidence, which waives all objection to its competency, and admits as true that which the evidence tends to prove. Roscoe v. Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 42, 32 S. E. 389.

The demurrer to the evidence admits all facts of which there is any evidence and all conclusions which can be fairly and logically drawn from such facts. This rule is substantiated by a long array of cases. See Snider v. Newell, 132 N. C. 614, 44 S. E. 354. Hopkins v. Bowers, 111 N. C. 175, 16 S. E. 1. For other cases, see 11 N. C. Enc. Dig. 984, 985, 986.

A demurrer to evidence is defined to be a proceeding by which the court, in which the action is pending, is called upon to decide what the law is upon the facts shown in evidence; and it is regarded in general as analogous to a demurrer upon the facts alleged in pleading. Van Stone v. Stillwell, etc., Mfg. Co., 142 U. S. 128, 134, 35 L. Ed. 961.

Evidence Adjudged Against Defendant.—In cases of demurrer and motions to dismiss under this section the evidence must be taken most strongly against the defendant. Gates v. Max, 125 N. C. 139, 34 S. E. 266; Purnell v. Raleigh etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 832, 29 S. E. 953; Cowles v. McNeill, 125 N. C. 385, 34 S. E. 499.

Plaintiff Entitled to Benefit of Inferences.—On a motion to nonsuit, the evidence is to be taken in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, and he is entitled to the benefit of every reasonable intendment and reasonable inference to be drawn therefrom. Standard Oil Co. v. Hunt, 187 N. C. 157, 121 S. E. 184. Southwill v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 189 N. C. 417, 127 S. E. 361; Lindsey v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 189 N. C. 118, 126 S. E. 174. Ghorley v. Atlantic, etc., Ry. Co., 189 N. C. 634, 127 S. E. 634. Inge v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 192 N. C. 522, 135 S. E. 522. Considering only so much of the evidence as is favorable to the plaintiff and rejecting that which is unfavorable. Newby v. Atlantic, etc., Realty Co., 182 N. C. 34, 108 S. E. 323; Rush v. McPherson, 176 N. C. 562, 97 S. E. 613. For other cases following this rule, see Smith v. Raleigh Granite Co., 202 N. C. 305, 162 S. E. 731; Pearson v. Standard Garage, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 14, 161 S. E. 536; Almond v. Oceola Mills, 202 N. C. 97, 161 S. E. 731; Sampson v. Jackson Bros. Co., 203 N. C. 413, 166 S. E. 181; Puckett v. Dyer, 203 N. C. 684, 167 S. E. 43; Pendergraft v. Royster, 203 N. C. 384, 166 S. E. 285; Tuttle v. Bell, 203 N. C. 154, 165 S. E. 333; Thigpen v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 204 N. C. 551, 168 S. E. 845; Lynch v. Carolina Tel., etc., Co., 204 N. C. 252, 257, 167 S. E. 847; Holton v. Northwestern Oil Co., 201 N. C. 744, 746, 161 S. E. 391; Broadway v. Gate City Life Ins. Co., 201 N. C. 639, 640, 161 S. E. 71; Sanders v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 201 N. C. 672, 676, 161 S. E. 320; Nance v. Merchants' Fertilizer, etc., Co., 200 N. C. 702, 158 S. E. 486; Hunt v. Meyers Co., 201 N. C. 636, 637, 161 S. E. 74; Smithwick v. Colonial Pine Co., 200 N. C. 519, 157 S. E. 612; Moore v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 201 N. C. 26, 158 S. E. 556; Hobbs v. Kirby, 205 N. C. 238, 171 S. E. 94; Keller v. Southern R. Co., 205 N. C. 269, 171 S. E. 73; Smith v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 205 N. C. 387, 171 S. E. 346; Moore v. Powell, 205 N. C. 636, 172 S. E. 327; Dickerson v. Reynolds, 205 N. C. 770, 172 S. E. 402; Broadway v. Cope, 208 N. C. 85, 179 S. E. 452; Gossett v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 208 N. C. 152, 179 S. E. 438; Brunswick County v. North Carolina Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 127, 173 S. E. 327; Hood v. Mitchell, 206 N. C. 156, 173 S. E. 61; Sherwood v. Southeastern Exp. Co., 206 N. C. 243, 173 S. E. 605; Blackman v. New York Life Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 429, 174 S. E. 294; Kitchen Lbr. Co. v. Tallassee Power Co., 206 N. C. 515, 174 S. E. 427.

On a motion to nonsuit under this section, the evidence is to be taken in the light most favorable to the plaintiff and he is entitled to the benefits of every reasonable intendment upon the evidence and every reasonable inference to be drawn therefrom. Brown v. Southern Ry. Co., 195 N. C. 699, 701, 143 S. E. 536; Cromwell v. Logan, 196 N. C. 588, 593, 146 S. E. 233; Newbern v. Western Union Tel. Co., 195 N. C. 258, 141 S. E. 592; Gilbert v. Wright, 195 N. C. 165, 168, 141 S. E. 577; Finch v. North Carolina R. Co., 195 N. C. 190, 141 S. E. 550; Nash v. Royster, 189 N. C. 408, 410, 127 S. E. 356; Smith v. Ritch, 196 N. C. 72, 74, 144 S. E. 537; Cromartie v. Stone, 194 N. C. 663, 140 S. E. 612; State v. Carter, 194 N. C. 293, 139 S. E. 604.

Consideration of Defendant's Evidence.—Upon a motion as of nonsuit the defendant's evidence will not be considered unless favorable to the plaintiff or not in conflict therewith, when it may be used to explain or make clear the evidence introduced by the plaintiff. Harrison v. North Carolina R. R. Co., 194 N. C. 656, 140 S. E. 598.

Defendant's evidence, which conflicts with that tending to support plaintiff's claim, is not to be considered on motion to nonsuit under this section. Davidson v. Western Union Tel. Co., 207 N. C. 790, 178 S. E. 603.

When Motion Should Be Disallowed.—Defendant's motion as of nonsuit, will be denied when the evidence, taken in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, and every reasonable intendment therefrom, is sufficient to take the case to the jury and support a verdict as a matter of law in the plaintiff's favor. Robinson v. Ivey & Co., 193 N. C. 805, 138 S. E. 173.

The defendant, after the court has refused his motion as of nonsuit upon the evidence, may except, introduce evidence, and renew his motion after all the evidence has been introduced; but his last motion only can be considered, and upon all the evidence in the case, and if therein the plaintiff has made out a case, the motion should be disallowed. Blackman v. Woodmen, 184 N. C. 75, 113 S. E. 565.

Not Allowed after Verdict.—An exception that there is no evidence on an issue in a case can only be taken before verdict. Hart v. Cannon, 133 N. C. 10, 45 S. E. 351; Sugg v. Fatson, 101 N. C. 188, 7 S. E. 709; Wilson Cotton Mills v. Randleman Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 475, 20 S. E. 770.

Where the court reserves his rulings on motions of nonsuit until after rendition of a verdict the court may not set aside the verdict for insufficiency of the evidence as a matter of law, and grant the motion for judgment as of nonsuit made at the close of all the evidence. Batson v. City Laundry Co., 202 N. C. 560, 163 S. E. 600.

Plaintiff's Evidence Must be Nil.—If there is more than a scintilla of evidence tending to prove the plaintiff's contention it must be submitted to the jury. Gates v. Max, 125 N. C. 139, 34 S. E. 266. Cable v. Southern Ry. Co., 122 N. C. 892, 29 S. E. 377. Cox v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 123 N. C. 604, 31 S. E. 848, and cases therein cited.

It was not the intention or effect of the passage of this section, to deprive parties of the right of trial by jury in cases where there is any evidence or to make the weight and effect of the evidence always a question of law for the courts. Willis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 905, 29 S. E. 941.

How Questions of Law and Fact Presented. — Whether there is evidence from which the jury could answer an issue in the affirmative is a question of law, and is presented to the court for decision by motion for judgment of nonsuit. McCall v. Textile Industrial, 189 N. C. 775, 128 S. E. 349.

On demurrer to evidence, the court is substituted in the place of the jury, as judges of the facts. Bank v. Guttschlick, 14 Pet. 19, 10 L. Ed. 335.

Additional Evidence Allowable.—Where a motion to nonsuit under this section is made, it is discretionary with the judge, before passing on it, to allow the plaintiff to introduce additional evidence. Featherston v. Wilson, 123 N. C. 623, 31 S. E. 843.

The trial court, after the plaintiff had rested his case, and after the motion of the defendants for judgment as of nonsuit under this section was denied, and before either of the defendants had offered evidence, allowed the plaintiff to offer additional evidence. This action of the court was within its discretion, and for that reason is not reviewable by this court, and the rights of the defendants under this section were not affected by the action of the court. Pearson v. Simon, 207 N. C. 351, 354, 177 S. E. 124.

Motion Must be Renewed.—Where defendant moved to dismiss the case and direct a verdict, when plaintiff rested her case, but after denial of the motion introduced evidence, and did not renew at the close of the whole case, it was held that the defendant could not, on appeal, complain of the denial of his motion to dismiss. Cole Mfg. Co. v. Mendenhall, 240 Fed. 641.

Waiver.—The introduction of evidence by the defendant upon the overruling of his motion at the conclusion of the plaintiff's evidence, and his failure to renew his motion on all the evidence, is a waiver of his right under the statute. Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628; Nash v. Royster, 189 N. C. 408, 127 S. E. 356; Gilland v. Carolina, etc., Co., 189 N. C. 783, 128 S. E. 158.

The defendant waives his right to maintain the insufficiency of the evidence to take the case to the jury by not making a motion as of nonsuit thereon at the close of the evidence. Gibbs v. Telegraph Co., 196 N. C. 516, 146 S. E. 509; Murphy v. Power Co., 196 N. C. 484, 494, 146 S. E. 204.

Where the defendant in a civil action does not comply with the provisions of this section, in making a motion for judgment as of nonsuit he waives the question of the sufficiency of the evidence. Harris v. Buie, 202 N. C. 634, 163 S. E. 693.

A motion for dismissal or for judgment of nonsuit made, under this section at the close of the plaintiff's evidence and not renewed at the close of all the evidence is waived. Debnam v. Rouse, 201 N. C. 459, 460, 160 S. E. 471.

Where a defendant makes a motion as of nonsuit at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, and upon the motion being overruled, introduces evidence in his own behalf, he waives his right to present the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to go to the jury by failing to renew his motion at the close of all the evidence, and his appeal will be regarded as if no motion had been made by him. Lee v. Penland, 200 N. C. 340, 157 S. E. 31.

Where the defendant does not move for nonsuit as provided by this section, in the lower court he waives his right to have the insufficiency of the evidence to be submitted to the jury considered on appeal. Harrison v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 207 N. C. 487, 177 S. E. 423.

Same—Introduction of Evidence.—A defendant waives his right to object to the sufficiency of the evidence on his motion of nonsuit made at the close of the plaintiff's evidence by introducing evidence in his own behalf and not renewing his motion after the close of all the evidence in the case. Grant v. Power Co., 196 N. C. 617, 146 S. E. 531; Harrison v. North Carolina R. R. Co., 194 N. C. 656, 140 S. E. 598.

Exception Considered on Appeal. — Where exception is taken to the refusal of the court to dismiss the action, both after the close of plaintiff's evidence and after the defendant's evidence has been introduced, only the exception taken after the close of all the evidence will be considered on appeal, under the express provision of this section, and, so considered, the evidence must be accepted as true and construed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff. Butler v. Holt-Williamson Mfg. Co., 182 N. C. 547, 109 S. E. 559.

Where exception is taken to refusal to grant defendant's motion to nonsuit made at close of plaintiff's evidence, but he then elected to offer evidence only the exception noted at the close of all the evidence could be urged or considered on appeal. Harrison v. North Carolina R. Co., 194 N. C. 656, 140 S. E. 598, citing Nash v. Royster, 189 N. C. 408, 127 S. E. 356; Harper v. Supply Co., 184 N. C. 204, 114 S. E. 173.

Under this section an exception to a motion to dismiss in a civil action, taken after the close of the plaintiff's evidence and renewed by defendant after the introduction of his own evidence, does not confine the appeal to the plaintiff's evidence alone, and a judgment will be sustained under the second exception if there is any evidence on the whole record of the defendant's liability. Lynn v. Pinehurst Silk Mills, 208 N. C. 7, 11, 179 S. E. 11.

Motion to Set Aside Verdict.—An order of the court setting aside a verdict upon motion that it was against the weight of evidence is in conflict with his further sustaining a motion to nonsuit the plaintiff upon the evidence under this section. Riley v. Stone, 169 N. C. 421, 86 S. E. 348.

Motion for Judgment on Exceptions.—In a proceeding attacking the validity of an improvement assessment, the burden is on the defendant municipality to sustain the assessment, and a motion by the plaintiff for judgment on her exceptions after defendant's evidence is in, is in effect a motion for judgment as of nonsuit under this section. Holton v. Mocksville, 189 N. C. 144, 126 S. E. 326.

Effect of Remanding Case.—When in the Supreme Court the lower court is reversed for refusing a motion to dismiss upon the evidence as of nonsuit, it is equivalent to the direction to dismiss the action. Tussey v. Owen, 147 N. C. 335, 61 S. E. 180; Hollingsworth v. Skelding, 142 N. C. 246, 55 S. E. 212.

The superior court is without authority to allow an amendment or to proceed contrary to the opinion, but the plaintiff may bring another suit within twelve months after the judgment of nonsuit. Tussey v. Owen, 147 N. C. 335, 61 S. E. 180.

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Defendant's motion as of nonsuit upon the evidence will be denied if there is any sufficient evidence, testified to by either the plaintiff's or defendant's witnesses, circumstantial or otherwise, viewed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, to take the issue to the jury for determination. Goss v. Williams, 196 N. C. 213, 145 S. E. 169. See Dalton v. Stoneville Cabinet Co., 195 N. C. 870, 142 S. E. 480; Burnett v. Williams, 196 N. C. 620, 146 S. E. 533; Cromartie v. Stone, 194 N. C. 663, 140 S. E. 612.

Same—Illustrative Cases.—Where the defense of an independent contractor is relied upon in an action to recover damages for alleged negligent injury, evidence in plaintiff's behalf tending to show that the relationship of independent contractor had before the happening of the accident been severed and that the defendant's employees were in charge of and loading logs upon the defendant's tramroad when the plaintiff's injury occurred in the course of his employment, is sufficient to take the case to the jury as to his employment by the defendant at the time, upon defendant's motion as of nonsuit. Lilley v. Interstate Cooperage Co., 194 N. C. 250, 139 S. E. 369.

Where in a personal injury negligence case there is evidence for defendant that the injury in suit was caused either by the act of God, etc., or by an accident, and, per contra, that it was proximately caused by the defendant's negligence in the exercise of ordinary care to furnish the plaintiff, his employee, a reasonably safe place to work or reasonably safe appliances under the circumstances, defendant's motion for nonsuit will be denied. Jones v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 194 N. C. 227, 139 S. E. 242.

When the father has entered into a contract with his son for support of himself and wife for life, and gives as a consideration certain of his property, without retaining sufficient property to pay his then existing creditors, and the pleadings and evidence raise the question of the son's good faith and part performance without notice, these questions should be submitted to the jury upon appropriate issues; and motion for nonsuit is properly refused. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Mackorell, 195 N. C. 741, 143 S. E. 518.

In an action for negligence of defendant's delivery truck driver, evidence as to the driver's identity and that he was acting within scope of his employment at time of injury, is sufficient to take the case to the jury and deny defendant's motion for a nonsuit. Misenheimer v. Hayman, 195 N. C. 613, 143 S. E. 1.

Evidence tending to show that plaintiff's intestate was struck and killed by defendant's train, that the engineer failed to blow for the crossing, and that the track was straight and unobstructed for a distance of about two hundred yards and that the engineer could have seen the intestate and the cow for that distance is held sufficient to take the case to the jury on the doctrine of last clear chance, the evidence tending to show that the intestate was on the track oblivious or otherwise insensible of danger, and defendant's motion for judgment as of nonsuit is properly denied. Triplett v. Southern R. Co., 205 N. C. 113, 110 S. E. 146.

In an action on a disability clause in a policy of life insurance where plaintiff testified that at the time of the issuance of the policy his eyesight was not impaired and that he was thoroughly examined by insurer's physician upon his application for the policy, and that no impairment or disease of his sight was disclosed by the physician's examination and test of his eyes, and that subsequent blindness had rendered him disabled, and defendant introduced testimony of an eye specialist that from his examination of plaintiff's eyes plaintiff was suffering from a chronic eye disease several years prior to the application for the policy, and moved for a nonsuit on the ground that the evidence showed that the disease resulting in plaintiff's disability originated prior to the issuance of the policy: Held, the evidence, viewed in the light most favorable to plaintiff, was sufficient to be submitted to the jury and a motion for a nonsuit was properly overruled. Misskelley v. Home Life Ins. Co., 205 N. C. 496, 171 S. E. 862.

The parking of a truck on a public highway at night without lights in violation of statute, is negligence per se, and where the evidence is conflicting as to whether such improper parking proximately caused plaintiff's injuries, resulting from a collision between the truck and the car in which he was riding as a guest, the question of proximate cause is for the determination of the jury upon an appropriate issue, and a motion as of nonsuit is properly denied. Barrier v. Thomas, etc., Co., 205 N. C. 425, 171 S. E. 626.

In an action by the daughter of the deceased against his administrators to recover the value of services rendered deceased, it was held that under the evidence the relationship between plaintiff and her father raised no presumption that the services were gratuitous, and a motion as of nonsuit was properly denied. Keiger v. Sprinkle, 207 N. C. 733, 178 S. E. 666.

The conviction of the defendant in a criminal action in a lower court procured by the prosecuting witness upon evidence known to him to be perjured is not conclusive evidence of probable cause, and in an action by the defendant against the plaintiff for malicious prosecution, a motion for judgment as in case of a nonsuit is properly denied. Moore v. Winfield, 207 N. C. 767, 178 S. E. 605.

Where the evidence tended to show an agent had apparent authority, the evidence that the act of agent was within his apparent authority and binding on his principal is a question for the jury, and a motion as of nonsuit on the ground of not being bound by an agent's unauthorized act is properly denied. Charleston, etc., Ry. Co. v. Lassiter & Co., 207 N. C. 408, 177 S. E. 9.

It is improper for the court to sustain a motion for judgment under this section where the evidence is anticipated, the plaintiff not having "introduced his evidence and rested his case" as provided by this section. Hershey Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 207 N. C. 122, 176 S. E. 265.

Where there is evidence in support of plaintiff's contention as to the amount of indebtedness sued on, defendant's motion as of nonsuit under this section is properly denied, although there is evidence in contradiction. Pearson v. Simon, 207 N. C. 351, 177 S. E. 124.

Where every element of the crime of having carnal knowldege of a female child under sixteen years of age in violation of § 4309 of the Code, is supported by the State's evidence in the case, defendant's motion as of nonsuit under this section is properly denied. State v. Houpe, 207 N. C. 377, 177 S. E. 20.

Where the evidence is sufficient to support a verdict in plaintiff's favor, defendant's motion as of nonsuit under this section is properly overruled. Davidson v. Western Union Tel. Co., 207 N. C. 790, 178 S. E. 603.

Evidence which raises only a mere suspicion or conjecture of the issue to be proved is insufficient to be submitted to the jury. Sutton v. Herrin, 202 N. C. 599, 163 S. E. 578; Shuford v. Scruggs, 201 N. C. 685, 687, 161 S. E. 315; Shuford v. Brown, 201 N. C. 17, 18, 158 S. E. 698.

It is well settled that evidence which does no more than raise a suspicion, that a fact material to the cause of action alleged in the complaint, may be as alleged therein, is not sufficient for submission to the jury as tending to sustain the allegation of the complaint. Broughton v. Standard Oil Co., 201 N. C. 282, 288, 159 S. E. 321.

Evidence tending to show a definite contract by deceased to devise his property to plaintiff, and upon the death of the deceased intestate, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury in plaintiff's action against deceased's administrator for breach of the contract and motion as of nonsuit was properly refused. Hager v. Whitner, 204 N. C. 747, 169 S. E. 645.

Where the plaintiff brought suit on a policy of accident insurance in which she was named beneficiary, and which provided for the payment of a certain sum if the assured was killed by being struck by a gasoline propelled vehicle: the evidence that the assured met his death by being struck by a vehicle propelled by gasoline was sufficient to be submitted to the jury and motion for nonsuit was properly refused. Colboch v. Independent Life Ins. Co., 204 N. C. 716.

Where the answer pleads a counterclaim the plaintiff may not take a voluntary nonsuit over the defendant's objection. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Griffin, 200 N. C. 251, 156 S. E. 515.

Defendant Cannot Withdraw Counterclaim in Order to Enter Motion as of Nonsuit.—Where the defendant in an action on a contract sets up a counterclaim arising out of the same contract declared upon by the plaintiff, the defendant may not withdraw his counterclaim over the plaintiff's objection in order to enter a motion as of nonsuit as provided by this section, on the plaintiff's cause of action. McGee v. Frohman, 207 N. C. 475, 177 S. E. 327.

When Nonsuit Proper.—Where the evidence of paintiff is not sufficient to be submitted to the jury it is proper for the court to sustain defendant's motion for judgment as in case of nonsuit at the close of plaintiff's evidence. Lloyd v. Speight, 195 N. C. 179, 180, 141 S. E. 574.

In the absence of any evidence tending to sustain an affirmative answer to the issue submitted to the jury there was error in the refusal of the court to allow defendant's motion, at the close of all the evidence, for judgment as of nonsuit. Ford v. Willys-Overland, 197 N. C. 147, 150, 147 S. E. 822.

Where there is no evidence tending to sustain the plaintiff's cause of action the defendant's exceptions to the refusal of the trial court to grant his motion of nonsuit or his request for a directed verdict will be sustained on appeal. Ferguson v. Glenn, 201 N. C. 128, 159 S. E. 5.

Same—Illustrative Cases.—Where a contract creating a local representative for the sale of automobiles by interpretation as to its effect, creates the relationship of vendor and purchaser, the local representative may not bind the vendor upon a warranty of the machines, and the vendor is not liable for representations or warranties made by the local dealer, and an action against it on such warranty is properly nonsuited. Ford v. Willys-Overland, 197 N. C. 147, 147 S. E. 822.

Evidence tending to show that the plaintiff was injured by an explosion of a cartridge which the defendant's young son threw in defendant's store on Saturday when the son was helping his father therein, is insufficient to hold his father liable in damages, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit is properly granted. Norman v. Porter, 197 N. C. 222, 148 S. E. 41.

A contract of hire at a stipulated hourly wage, without reference to the number of hours the employment was to continue, gives the employee no right of action for damages because he was employed a fewer number of hours than other employees engaged at the same time, and it was not error to nonsuit the plaintiff under this section. Sherrill v. Graham County, 205 N. C. 178, 170 S. E. 636.

Where plaintiff's evidence tended to show plaintiff was not acting within the scope of his employment at the time of the injury, defendant's motion as of nonsuit should have been allowed, plaintiff being sui juris. Colvin v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 205 N. C. 168, 170 S. E. 639.

In an action by an employee against her employer to recover for personal injury alleged to have resulted from the employer's negligence, it was held that where there was no evidence of any negligence on the part of defendant employer, the evidence tending to show that the injury resulted solely from the act of plaintiff's fellow-servant, a judgment as of nonsuit should be sustained under this section. Armstrong v. Acme Spinning Co., 205 N. C. 553, 172 S. E. 313.

Where the evidence tended to show the negligence of a municipality in the care of its streets, it was held that to be liable the danger must be of an unusual character and one that exposes travelers to unusual hazards, and that a demurrer to the evidence should be properly sustained unless such danger was shown. Haney v. Lincoln, 207 N. C. 282, 176 S. E. 573.

Contributory Negligence.—The burden of proof on an issue as to contributory negligence rests upon the defendant, and while the court can hold that a party upon whom rests the burden of proof has failed to offer any evidence to sustain it, it cannot adjudge that he has proved his case, for where there is any evidence the jury alone can pass upon its truth. Sims v. Lindsay, 122 N. C. 678, 30 S. E. 19.

A judgment of nonsuit upon the evidence may not be granted under this section when there is legal evidence of the employers negligence upon the sole ground of the plaintiff's contributory negligence. Inge v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 192 N. C. 522, 135 S. E. 522.

Where the plaintiff's evidence made out a case of negligence, and contributory negligence was relied upon as a defense, under this section it was not error to refuse to dismiss the action. Wood v. Bartholomew, 122 N. C. 177, 29 S. E. 959.

But where the evidence on the part of the plaintiff (the defendant having introduced none) is demurred to, and if true, establishes negligence on the part of the plaintiff, and of the defendant, concurrent to the last moment, a judgment as of nonsuit, sustaining the demurrer, is proper. Neal v. Carolina Central R. Co., 126 N. C. 634, 36 S. E. 117. See Hollingsworth v. Skelding, 142 N. C. 246, 55 S. E. 212.

Contributory negligence may be taken advantage of on a motion as of nonsuit when the plaintiff's own evidence tends only to establish it. Elder v. Plaza Ry., 194 N. C. 617, 140 S. E. 298. See also Hendrix v. So. R. Co., 198 N. C. 142, 144, 150 S. E. 873.

In an action for wrongful death at a railroad crossing it was held that the defendant's motion as of nonsuit should have been sustained on the issue of contributory negligence. Harrison v. North Carolina R. R. Co., 194 N. C. 656, 140 S. E. 598.

Same—Logging Railroad Employee.—As the contributory negligence of a logging railroad employee under §§ 169, 3467 and 3470 does not bar the recovery of damages for his death when engaged in performance of his duties, defendant's motion for judgment as of nonsuit is properly refused. Brooks v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 194 N. C. 141, 138 S. E. 532.

Same—Evidence Sufficient to Deny Nonsuit.—Where the failure of defendant employer to furnish the plaintiff, its employee, a safe place to work, concurs with the negligence of a fellow servant in proximately causing the injury in suit, the defendant is liable in damages for the consequent injury, and his motion as of nonsuit upon the evidence, under this section is properly denied. Beck v. Thomasville Chair Co., 188 N. C. 743, 125 S. E. 615.

Where there is evidence that the defendant railroad company negligently coupled a car under which the deceased was at work to its train, causing his death, the fact that the deceased was guilty of contributory negligence in failing to place the customary signals where he was at work, does not entitle the defendant to a judgment as of nonsuit. Ritchie v. Denton R. Co., 192 N. C. 666, 315 S. E. 770.

Where a railroad company has for some time kept a watchman to warn travelers crossing its tracks at a public street and this is known to the plaintiff, who was injured by a train while attempting to cross, the absence of the watchman and the failure to give warning is an implied invitation to the traveler to cross, which may be considered by the jury and the defendant's motion as of nonsuit upon the evidence is properly denied. Barber v. Southern R. Co., 193 N. C. 691, 138 S. E. 17.

See, also, Brooks v. Suncrest Lumber Co., 194 N. C. 141, 138 S. E. 532.

Same—Demurrer Sustained.—Where the plaintiff was employed by defendant, and defendant's superintendent, as a matter of accommodation, invited the plaintiff to ride to his home in an automobile furnished him by defendant, during which ride plaintiff was injured as a result of the superintendent's negligent driving, it was held that defendant's demurrer to the evidence should have been sustained. Peters v. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 194 N. C. 172, 138 S. E. 595.

Sufficiency of Evidence May Be Res Judicata on Second Appeal.—Where the Supreme Court has ruled on a former appeal that the evidence was sufficient to overrule defendant's motion as of nonsuit under this section, and the evidence upon the second trial is substantially the same, the question of the sufficiency of the evidence is res judicata and will not be considered on the second appeal. Jernigan v. Jernigan, 207 N. C. 831, 178 S. E. 587.

Setting Aside after Refusal of Motion.—Where the trial court has refused to grant the defendant's motion as of nonsuit, he may not set aside the verdict on the ground of the insufficiency of the evidence as a matter of law, but may do so only as a matter within his discretion. Lee v. Penland, 200 N. C. 340, 157 S. E. 31.

Ejectment.—On a trial in an action of ejectment, where the question involved is whether a tenant holding over the possession from a former owner had agreed to pay rent to the purchaser, and the evidence is conflicting, a motion as of nonsuit is properly denied. Carnegie v. Perkins, 191 N. C. 412, 131 S. E. 750.

However it is error for the judgment to incorporate an adjudication in defendant's favor as to his title, as such is only permissible on affirmative findings sufficient to justify it. Moore v. Miller, 179 N. C. 396, 102 S. E. 627.

Where the defendant denied being in possession, but there was evidence that he was present at a survey made for the plaintiff, and claimed to be the owner, pointed to wood he had cut upon it, and forbade the surveyor to enter on it, a judgment of nonsuit was improper. Cowles v. McNeill, 125 N. C. 385, 34 S. E. 499.

Where, in an action to recover damages for procuring the sheriff to wrongfully seize and sell plaintiff's property, the complaint alleged that the sheriff sold his property under an execution, it was incumbent on the plaintiff to show on the trial that the seizure and sale were unlawful, and upon his failure to offer any evidence as to the invalidity of the judgment, it was not error to nonsuit the plaintiff under this section. O'Briant v. Wilkerson, 122 N. C. 304, 30 S. E. 126.

Agency.—Where there is evidence to show that defendant's night watchman was employed to perform his duties only within a certain enclosure; that he had been deputized to act for defendant as special policeman; that he had arrested the plaintiff at a remote place on the mill settlement property, where he was not authorized to guard, and caused his incarceration in the city jail; that the case was dismissed by the justice of the peace for the lack of evidence and the plaintiff finally discharged: It was held, a question for the jury in plaintiff's action for damages, of whether the defendant's night watchman was acting within the scope of his employment and a motion of nonsuit upon the evidence was properly denied. Butler v. Holt-Williamson Mfg. Co., 182 N. C. 547, 109 S. E. 559.

New Trial Granted.—In an action to set aside a sale of lands under a former judgment defendants moved to nonsuit at the close of the plaintiff's evidence, but did not renew the motion at the close of the plaintiff's evidence. As fraud was alleged, which plaintiff might show, a new trial was granted by the Supreme Court instead of dismissing the action. Rackley v. Roberts, 147 N. C. 201, 60 S. E. 975.

Joinder in Demurrer.—No judgment can be rendered upon a demurrer to the evidence, until there is a joinder in demurrer. Fowle v. Alexandria, 11 Wheat. 320, 6 L. Ed. 484. But it is a matter of discretion with a court, whether it will compel a party to join in demurrer to evidence. Young v. Black, 7 Cranch 565, 3 L. Ed. 440.

One party cannot insist upon the other party joining in demurrer, without distinctly admitting upon the record, every fact, and every conclusion, which the evidence given for his adversary conduced to prove. Young v. Black, supra.

Applied in Sakellaris v. Wyche, 205 N. C. 173, 170 S. E. 638; Love v. Queen City Lines, 206 N. C. 575, 576, 174 S.

E. 514; Keith v. Liggett, etc., Tobacco Co., 207 N. C. 645, 178 S. E. 90.

§ 568. Waiver of jury trial.—Trial by jury may be waived by the several parties to an issue of fact, in actions on contract, and with the assent of the court in other actions, in the manner following:

1. By failing to appear at the trial.

2. By written consent, in person or by attorney, filed with the clerk.

3. By oral consent, entered in the minutes. (Rev., s. 540; Code, s. 416; C. C. P., s. 240.)

Editor's Note.—A waiver of jury trial is provided for by act 4, Sec. 13, of the constitution.

As to waiver of jury trial by reference see sec. 572 and note thereto.

Consent Necessary.—A party cannot be deprived of the right to a trial by jury except by his own consent. Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427.

Methods of Waiver.—The waiver of a jury trial by consent, must be in writing, filed with the papers in the case, or by oral consent entered on the minute-docket of the court. Hahn v. Brinson, 133 N. C. 7, 45 S. E. 359.

Waiver by Failure to Make Motion in Apt Time.—The parties to an action may waive their right to trial by jury guaranteed by our State Constitution, Article IV, § 13, but the manner of such waiver is governed by this section, and where the plaintiff in mandamus proceedings to compel a power company to furnish it electricity for redistribution to its customers at retail fails to move in apt time for the preservation of its right to trial by jury under § 868, but makes such motion after the judge has heard the evidence and argument, and is ready to decide the facts at issue and enter judgment thereon, the motion is not made in apt time, and the right to trial by jury is waived. Holmes Electric Co. v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 197 N. C. 766, 150 S. E. 621.

Reference.—If a reference is made by consent it is a mode of trial selected by the parties and is a waiver of the right of trial by a jury. Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 21; Green v. Castleberry, 77 N. C. 164. See § 572 and notes thereto.

Consent Necessary to Vacate Waiver.—Consent to waiver under this section binds both parties until it is vacated by common consent. Morisey v. Swinson, 104 N. C. 555, 10 S. E. 754.

Failure to Object.—Failure to object to an order of reference at the time it is made is equivalent to consent. Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427.

Judge May Disregard Waiver.—The trial judge, in the exercise of a sound discretion, may disregard the agreement of the parties that a jury trial shall be waived. Lumber Co. v. Lumber Co., 137 N. C. 431, 49 S. E. 946.

Review of Decision Refusing to Submit Issues.—Where after the jury has been empanelled the parties to an action on a note admit facts sufficient to support a judgment determining the rights of the parties under the law applicable to such facts, the refusal of the court to submit issues to the jury will be upheld in view of this section. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 205 N. C. 648, 172 S. E. 185.

Applied in Blades v. Wilmington Trust Co., 207 N. C. 771, 772, 178 S. E. 565; Shore v. Norfolk Nat. Bank of Commerce, 207 N. C. 798, 178 S. E. 572.

§ 569. Findings of fact and conclusions of law by judge.—Upon trial of an issue of fact by the court, its decision shall be given in writing, and shall contain a statement of the fact found, and the conclusions of law separately. Upon trial of an issue of law, the decision shall be made in the same manner, stating the conclusions of law. Such decision must be filed with the clerk during the court at which the trial takes place, and judgment upon it shall be entered accordingly. (Rev., s. 541; Code, s. 417; C. C. P., s. 241.)

For additional treatment see 11 Enc. Dig., 1073 et seq.

Consent Necessary. — On the trial of a civil action a jury was sworn and impaneled and issues framed, but no evidence adduced on either side, and the jury was discharged without rendering a verdict, it was held that the judge had no right to pass upon the issues, except upon a waiver of jury trial in accordance with this section. Chasteen v. Martin, 81 N. C. 51.

Sufficient Compliance.—Where the court does nothing more than indicate from what source the facts may be gleaned, it is not a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this section that the court's decision shall contain a statement of the facts found. Shore v. Norfolk National Bank of Commerce, 207 N. C. 798, 799, 178 S. E. 572.

Separate Conclusions of Facts and Law. — A judge of the Superior Court, in passing upon a mixed question of law and fact, should, as required by this section, state the facts found and the conclusions of law separately. Foushee v. Pattershall, 67 N. C. 453; Walker v. Walker, 204 N. C. 210, 167 S. E. 818.

The decision of the judge in writing, with a separate statement of his findings of fact and conclusions of law is sufficient under this section. Eley v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 78, 80 S. E. 1064.

Findings of Judge Conclusive. — When a trial by jury has been waived by the parties for the judge to find the facts his findings thereof are conclusive on appeal if there is evidence to support them. Eley v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 78, 80 S. E. 1064; Yarborough v. Moore, 151 N. C. 116, 65 S. E. 763.

Exceptions. — Where the judge has acted according to this section the relevant and pertinent facts found by him are conclusive on appeal when there is sufficient legal evidence to support them. An exception to a finding of fact on the ground that there was no evidence thereof, must be made in apt time before the judge. Buchanan v. Clark, 164 N. C. 56, 80 S. E. 424.

Where the Court simply responded formally to the issues and directed judgment, to which no exception was taken, and no assignment of error was made, the judgment will be affirmed. Parks v. Davis, 98 N. C. 481, 4 S. E. 202.

Motion to Vacate Attachment. — This section is not applicable to a motion to vacate a warrant of attachment. Millhiser v. Balsley, 106 N. C. 433, 11 S. E. 314.

Cited in Surratt v. Dennis, 199 N. C. 757, 758, 155 S. E. 865.

§ 570. Exceptions to decision of court. — 1. For the purpose of an appeal, either party may except to a decision on a matter of law arising upon a trial by the court within ten days after the judgment, in the same manner and with the same effect as upon a trial by jury. Where the decision does not authorize a final judgment, but directs further proceedings before a referee or otherwise, either party may except thereto, and make a case or exception as above provided in case of an appeal.

2. Either party desiring a review, upon the evidence appearing on the trial of the questions of law, may at any time within ten days after the judgment, or within such time as is prescribed by the rules of the court, make a case or exceptions in like manner as upon a trial by jury, except that the judge in settling the case must briefly specify the facts found by him, and his conclusions of law. (Rev., s. 542; Code, s. 418; C. C. P., s. 242.)

Editor's Note. — In Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 20, which since its decision has been cited as the case par excellence on this section it was held that the right of appeal, and not the mere matter of making up the case, was the subject of this section.

In that case it was also decided that "case or exceptions" was a correct print and an attempt to point out that this section should read "case on exceptions" was erroneous.

Purpose of Section. — The main object of this section is to declare that the trial by the Court shall not be conclusive; but that just as an appeal lies when the trial is by jury, so an appeal lies when the trial is by the court. Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 20, 25.

Exceptions Necessary. — Where the decision of all questions both of law and fact is left to the judge, his findings and conclusions will not be reviewed by the Supreme Court, unless exceptions appear to have been aptly taken, or error is distinctly pointed out. Chastain v. Coward, 79 N. C. 543.

§ 571. Proceedings upon judgment on issue of law.—On a judgment for the plaintiff upon an issue of law, he may proceed in the manner prescribed by the first two subdivisions of section 595 herein upon failure of the defendant to answer, where the summons was personally served. If judgment is for the defendant, upon an issue of law, and if taking of an account or the proof of any fact is necessary to enable the court to complete the judgment, a reference or assessment by jury may be ordered, as provided in section 596 herein. (Rev., s. 543; Code, s. 419; C. C. P., s. 243.)

Cited in Ranson v. McClees, 64 N. C. 17; Morisey v. Swinson, 104 N. C. 555, 10 S. E. 754.

Art. 20. Reference

§ 572. By consent.—Any or all of the issues in an action, whether of fact or law, may be referred, upon the written consent of the parties, except in actions to annul a marriage, or for divorce and separation. (Rev., s. 518; Code, s. 420; C. C. P., s. 244.)

For complete treatment of the subject of Reference see 10 Enc. Dig. 903 et seq., 15 Enc. Dig. 353 et seq.

Editor's Note. — A trial by reference cannot have the effect of withdrawing the actions or the causes of action from the jurisdiction of the court. The referee, by consent of the parties, becomes a mere adjunct, and acts in the place of the court, and, in appropriate cases, in the place of the court and jury, in respect to the trial.

He must make a report of his proceedings and actions, and his report, unless objected to in the way prescribed, stands as the decision of the court, and on application to the judge, he may enter judgment upon the same.

If the judge does not formally find the facts, it is presumed that he accepts the facts as found by the referees.

A reference, by consent of the parties, of an entire cause, for the determination of its issues, though not strictly a submission of the controversy to arbitration—a proceeding which is governed by special rules—is a submission of the controversy to a tribunal of the parties' own selection, to be governed in its conduct by the ordinary rules applicable to the administration of justice in tribunals established by law. Oteri v. Scalzo, 145 U. S. 578, 36 L. Ed. 824.

It was not intended by this and the following sections to deprive parties of the right to refer all or any matters in controversy to arbitrators with power to make an award, which should be a rule of the court. It was said by the court in Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185, 187, that "The parties can undoubtedly make such a reference, and the only question possible would be whether the judge would recognize the award and make it a rule of court, enforceable by its process, or leave the parties to their action on the arbitration bond or other like remedy. We can not suppose it was intended to abolish so useful a mode of adjusting rights by indirection, and we think that the power to make an award a rule of court still exists as included to every court under its power to enter judgment by confession." It has often been held by the court that these sections have not repealed the common law practice of reference to arbitrators, and that the practice is still extant, notwithstanding them. See Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 273, 276, and citations.

The common law practice was extant until the legislature of 1927 passed a statute regulating arbitration and award. This statute has been codified as §§ 898(a) et seq., of this code, and the notes written thereto which set forth the prior law, discuss the relation to this and the following sections, and set out pertinent annotations from cases construing similar provisions of the statutes of other states.

Definitions. — A reference has been defined as the act of sending any matter by a court of chancery, or (as in North Carolina), one exercising equitable powers, to a master or other officer, in order that he may ascertain facts and report to the court. Bouv. Law Dict., title Reference.

Distinction between Consent and Compulsory Reference. — Where a reference is by consent, the parties waive the right to have any of the issues of fact passed on by a jury. Where the reference is compulsory, either party has the right to have all issues of fact which arise on the pleadings submitted to a jury, but not the questions of fact which arise on exceptions to the findings of fact by the referee. State v. Askew, 94 N. C. 194; State v. Brown, 70 N. C. 27.

What May Be Referred. — All or any of the issues in an action may be referred by consent of the parties. Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 184, 185, 187.

Waiver of Jury Trial. — A reference made by consent is a waiver of the right of trial by a jury. Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 20.

Judge May Disregard Agreement to Refer. — The trial judge, in the exercise of a sound discretion, may disregard the agreement of parties that a reference shall be made. Lumber Co. v. Lumber Co., 137 N. C. 431, 49 S. E. 946.

Strict Words of Statute Not Required. — It is proper that the agreement to refer should specify in terms the "issues of law and fact;" but where the purpose is obvious, the strict words of the statute will not be required. Morisey v. Swinson, 104 N. C. 555, 10 S. E. 754; Vaughan v. Lewellyn, 94 N. C. 472.

Order Entered of Record Sufficient. — An order of reference by consent entered of record is a sufficient compliance with this section requiring the same to be in writing.

And when entered it must stand until a full report is made. White v. Utley, 86 N. C. 415.

Plea in Bar.—A reference of a cause cannot be ordered when anything is pleaded in bar of plaintiff's right of action, until such plea is tried. Jones v. Beaman, 117 N. C. 259, 23 S. E. 248.

Reference Does Not Deprive Court of Jurisdiction. — Sending a case to be tried by a referee does not deprive the court of its jurisdiction, and it can make any and all necessary orders therein pending the trial before the referee. McNeill v. Lawton, 97 N. C. 16, 1 S. E. 493.

Plaintiff May Take Non-Suit.—A plaintiff may take a non-suit while the case is pending before a referee, if the case be one in which he is entitled to do so. McNeill v. Lawton, 97 N. C. 16, 1 S. E. 493.

No Appeal from Order of Reference. — Upon a consent reference to try a cause, the question as to whether all the issues raised by the pleadings are to be considered depends upon the extent of the agreement of the parties, and the finding of the trial court is conclusive. Barrett v. Henry, 85 N. C. 322.

Referee Must Discharge Duties. — The referee selected by the parties must remain in the discharge of his duties, unless with like consent another is substituted in his place, until the order has been fully executed and the final report made. Perry v. Tupper, 77 N. C. 413.

Referee's Report Set Aside. — When for cause the referee's report is set aside, the order of reference is not thereby revoked; it continues, and a second trial may be had before the same referee, although a party may not consent to such a second trial. Flemming v. Roberts, 77 N. C. 415.

Consent Necessary to Vacate Reference. — Where an action is once referred the order of reference cannot be annulled except by the consent of all parties. Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427; Morisey v. Swinson, 104 N. C. 555, 10 S. E. 754. Unless a sufficient cause therefor is made to appear. Patrick v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 101 N. C. 602, 8 S. E. 172.

Cited in Green Sea Lumber Co. v. Pemberton, 188 N. C. 532, 125 S. E. 119; Andrews v. Jordan, 205 N. C. 618, 623, 172 S. E. 319.

§ 573. Compulsory.—Where the parties do not consent, the court may, upon the application of either, or of its own motion, direct a reference in the following cases:

1. Where the trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account on either side; in which case the referee may be directed to hear and decide the whole issue, or to report upon any specific question of fact involved therein.

2. Where the taking of an account is necessary for the information of the court, before judgment, or for carrying a judgment or order into effect.

3. Where the case involves a complicated question of boundary, or one which requires a personal view of the premises.

4. Where a question of fact other than upon the pleadings arises upon motion or otherwise, in any stage of the action.

5. Where the issues of fact and questions of fact arise in an action of which the courts of equity of the state had exclusive jurisdiction prior to the adoption of the constitution of one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, and in which the matter or amount in dispute is not less than the sum or value of five hundred dollars.

The compulsory reference under this section does not deprive either party of his constitutional right to a trial by jury of the issues of fact arising on the pleadings, but such trial shall be only upon the written evidence taken before the referee. (Rev., s. 519; Code, s. 421; 1897, c. 237, ss. 1, 2; C. C, P., s. 245; 1917, c. 280; 1919, c. 7.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

Editor's Note. — It is the order of reference that extends the jurisdiction and controls the relation of the court to the trial by referees of the issues of fact and law, and extends its authority to compel the parties to the action, by proper judgments and orders in the regular course of procedure, to do and submit to what ought to be done as the result of the reference.

The referee, once appointed, is like the judge when there is a waiver of a jury trial, invested with the powers of both judge and jury, but with the difference that the authority is conferred upon the referee not for a particular term or limited time, but until a final hearing of the cause.

The difficulty of examining or taking long and often complicated accounts in the progress of a trial, so as to enable a jury to reach a satisfactory conclusion in reference to the bearing of such evidence upon their verdicts, rendered it necessary to confer upon the trial judge the power to order compulsory reference for the purpose of making calculations and presenting results instead of data.

The right to refer by consent is without limit, but the court cannot order a compulsory reference except in the cases enumerated in this section. This distinction exists because in the compulsory reference the parties reserve their right to jury trial upon the coming in of the report of the referee, and as the parties will be subjected to expense and delay of two trials, it ought not to be resorted to for the trial of the issues raised by the pleadings, except when a long account, complicated boundary, or some other intricate questions arise which cannot be intelligently investigated before a jury (Hall v. Craige, 65 N. C. 51, 53; Peyton v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 167 N. C. 280, 282, 83 S. E. 487). Where there is a plea in bar it must be disposed of before a reference for an account can be made. Royster v. Wright, 118 N. C. 152, 24 S. E. 746; Oldham v. Rieger, 145 N. C. 254, 255, 58 S. E. 1091. The reason of this rule is that it would be useless to take an account, if the plea in bar would defeat the plaintiff's action, if found for the defendant. But it is otherwise where the matter pleaded in bar would not defeat the plaintiff's action, if found for the defendant. Humble v. Mebane, 89 N. C. 410. This is so for the reason that what is pleaded in bar is not a bar. See Lee v. Thornton, 176 N. C. 208, 97 S. E. 23.

When a reference is ordered for any of the reasons set forth in this section, it should appear clearly and affirmatively that the courts act upon the authority herein found. See Kerr v. Hicks, 133 N. C. 175, 177, 45 S. E. 529.

No order of reference should be permitted by the court until the pleadings are in and the parties are at issue. The failure to observe the law of procedure always results in confusion and too often in sacrifice of substantive rights.

In State v. McKenzie, 65 N. C. 102 it was held that a party had no right to demand a trial by jury of an issue involving a complicated account, but the court subsequently declared the ruling modified (State v. Brown, 70 N. C. 27; Lippard v. Roseman, 70 N. C. 34) so as to concede the right, if not barred by failure to demand it in apt time (Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427).

II. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Liberally Construed. — This section, allowing a compulsory reference by order of the trial judge, should be liberally construed, to expedite the trial of causes and to promote substantial justice between the parties litigant. Murchison Nat. Bank v. Evans, 191 N. C. 535, 132 S. E. 563.

Where several causes of action arising out of the same transaction or series of transactions are properly joined in the complaint, the court may not ordinarily order that one of them be referred to a referee, but under the facts and circumstances of this case the court's order of compulsory reference of one of the causes of action was upheld, it appearing that the action involved a long account and that the controversy was so involved that it could not be readily presented to a jury, this section being liberally construed to afford the salutary procedure therein provided. Fry v. Pomona Mills, 206 N. C. 768, 175 S. E. 156.

What Constitutes a "Long Account."—There is no statutory or judicial definition of a "long account," but a correct conclusion as to whether an account was "long" would depend upon the facts and circumstances of a given case, and the account in controversy was correctly classified as a "long account." Dayton Rubber Mfg. Co. v. Horn, 203 N. C. 732, 167 S. E. 42.

What constitutes a "long account" must be determined upon the facts of each particular case, it not being necessary that the action be for an accounting, it being sufficient if a long account is directly and not merely collaterally involved in the action. Fry Pomona Mills, 206 N. C. 768, 175 S. E. 156.

No Waiver of Jury Trial. — By a compulsory reference the parties waive nothing, and are still entitled to a trial by jury, on the issues as if no reference had been made. State v. Askew, 94 N. C. 194; Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 20.

But a failure to object to an order of reference, at the time it is made, is a waiver of the right to a trial by jury. Belvin v. Raleigh Paper Co., 123 N. C. 138, 31 S. E. 655.

Exception to Order of Court. — By excepting to an order of court referring to a long account between the parties as determinative, a party may preserve his right to a trial by jury upon the evidence thus taken, unless he waives his right during the progress of the reference; and while an issue determinative of the action should first be tried before a reference is ordered, a party excepting to the order may not successfully insist thereon when the issue is to be determined solely by the reference provided for by this section. Green Sea Lumber Co. v. Pemberton, 188 N. C. 532, 125 S. E. 119.

A party duly and aptly excepting to an order of reference, and also to the admissions of evidence before the referee, and submitting issues, secures his right thereby to a trial by jury upon the issues presented by him. Brown v. Buchanan, 194 N. C. 675, 140 S. E. 749.

But the failure of a party to except to an order for compulsory reference and to file exceptions in apt time to particular findings of fact by the referee when the report is unfavorable and to tender issues on the exceptions and demand a jury trial thereon will be deemed a waiver of his right to trial by jury. C. S., 573. Booker v. Highlands, 198 N. C. 282, 151 S. E. 635.

A party who would preserve his right to a jury trial in a compulsory reference must object to the order of reference at the time it is made, and on the coming in of the report of the referee, if it be adverse, he should reasonably file exceptions to particular findings of fact made by the referee, tender appropriate issues based on the facts pointed out in the exceptions and raised by the pleadings, and demand a jury trial on each of the issues thus tendered. Marshville Cotton Mills v. Maslin, 200 N. C. 328, 329, 156 S. E. 484.

Where a case is one properly subject to a compulsory reference under this section, a party excepting to the order of reference is not entitled to have issues tendered upon the hearing of exceptions to the referee's report submitted to the jury when the issues do not arise upon the exceptions. Atlantic Joint Stock Land Bank v. Fisher, 206 N. C. 412, 173 S. E. 907.

Where defendant sets up no plea in bar, and the pleadings indicate the necessity of examining a long account between the parties, defendant's exception to an order for compulsory reference will not be sustained under this section. Texas Co. v. Phillips, 206 N. C. 355, 174 S. E. 115.

Common Law Arbitration. — The provisions of the code of Civil Procedure have not repealed the common law practice of reference to arbitrators. Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 273, 276.

Judge of Probate Court Cannot Refer. — A judge of the court of probate cannot refer the taking of the account to a referee, and, if he does, the account will be set aside as irregularly taken. This section does not extend the jurisdiction of the probate judge. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110.

Power of Court to Vacate Reference.—Where the trial judge has orderd a compulsory reference upon the ground that the complaint stated a long and involved account, and where no exception is taken to the order by either party, the court is without authority to set aside the order of reference and submit the case to the jury when upon his rulings the referee has committed error in excluding certain evidence materially bearing upon the controversy. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 196 N. C. 428, 146 S. E. 68.

Motion to Refer Must Be Timely. — A motion for a compulsory reference should be made in an action before the jury has been impaneled, or the rights of a party thereto will be considered as waived. Peyton v. Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., 167 N. C. 280, 83 S. E. 487.

It is not error to refuse a compulsory reference, when the motion to refer is not until after the close of the evidence. Hughes v. Boone, 102 N. C. 137, 138, 9 S. E. 286.

Reference Should Follow Pleas. — A reference should not be ordered, after overruling a demurrer, until the pleadings are in and the parties are at issue. Penn. Lumber Co. v. McPherson, 133 N. C. 287, 45 S. E. 577.

Reference Precedes Court Adjudication of Liability. — A reference to hear and determine all matters in controversy, under this section, precedes any adjudication by the court of the liability of the parties. Governor v. Lassiter, 83 N. C. 38.

But it is irregular to proceed with a reference to state an account while there are matters of defense left open which, if sustained by evidence, would bar the claim to have such account. The issue raised by the replication should be submitted to the jury before ordering a reference to take the account demanded. Sloan v. McMahon, 85 N. C. 296.

Appeal before Judgment Premature. — In Leroy v. Saliba, 182 N. C. 575, 108 S. E. 303, it was said: "The jury having found that the partnership existed, an appeal from the order of reference before judgment upon the report thereon is premature and must be dismissed. The defendant should have noted his exception and upon the coming in of the report and exceptions thereto should have brought up his appeal from the final judgment."

When Non-Suit Allowed. — A plaintiff may take a nonsuit while the case is pending before a referee, if the case be one in which he is entitled to do so. McNeill v. Lawton, 97 N. C. 16, 1 S. E. 493.

However, in cases purely equitable in their nature, if a reference for an account has been ordered and a report made, the plaintiff will not be allowed to take judgment of nonsuit. Boyle v. Stallings, 140 N. C. 524, 53 S. E. 346.

Jury Trial on Issues. — In a case of a compulsory reference either party may, at some stage of the proceedings to be determined by the Court, demand a trial by jury of the issues arising in the report of the referee. State v. Brown, 70 N. C. 27.

Plea in Bar Defeats Order of Reference. — When the answer raises a plea in bar, which if established would end the action, a compulsory order of reference can not be properly ordered until such plea is decided. Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 126 N. C. 320, 35 S. E. 588; Commissioners v. White, 123 N. C. 534, 31 S. E. 670.

It is error for trial court to order a compulsory reference under this section before disposing of pleas in bar set up by defendants on the grounds of laches and the bar of the statute of limitations. Graves v. Pritchett, 207 N. C. 518, 177 S. E. 641.

A plea in bar of a reference is not conclusive unless it extends to the whole cause of action so as to defeat it absolutely and entirely. Reynolds v. Morton, 205 N. C. 491, 171 S. E. 781.

Pleas in Bar. — The following pleas have held to be pleas in bar: (1) Statute of Limitations. Oldham v. Rieger, 145 N. C. 254, 58 S. E. 1091. (2) Account stated. Kerr v. Hicks, 129 N. C. 141, 39 S. E. 797; Kerr v. Hicks, 131 N. C. 90, 42 S. E. 532; Jones v. Wooten, 137 N. C. 421, 49 S. E. 915. (3) Failure to comply with the provisions of a contract which are conditions precedent to liability. Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 126 N. C. 320, 35 S. E. 588. (4) Plea of sole seizin by reason of adverse possession of twenty years against a tenant in common. But plea of sole seizin which by its very terms involves an accounting, is not a good plea. Duckworth v. Duckworth, 144 N. C. 620, 57 S. E. 396. (5) Release. McAuley v. Sloan, 173 N. C. 80, 91 S. E. 701. (6) Accord and satisfaction. McAuley v. Sloan, 173 N. C. 80, 91 S. E. 701. (7) Estoppel by judgment. Jones v. Beaman, 117 N. C. 259, 23 S. E. 248. (8) Answer denying trust. Reynolds v. Morton, 205 N. C. 491, 171 S. E. 781.

Party Cannot Object to Reference. — A party to an action may not successfully object to a compulsory reference when the same is allowed by this section and the complaint states a good cause of action, and no complete plea in bar to the entire cause is set up by him. Murchison Nat. Bank v. McCormick, 192 N. C. 42, 133 S. E. 183.

Consent Necessary to Vacate Reference. — Where an action is once referred the order of reference cannot be annulled except by the consent of all parties. Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427.

Failure to Refer Not Error. — Where the controversy involves the taking of a long account, it should be referred but where it has otherwise been tried, without error or prejudice to the appellant, the judgment of the trial court will not be disturbed. Ragland v. Lassiter-Ragland, 174 N. C. 579, 94 S. E. 100.

Report of Referee as Evidence.—Compulsory references are authorized in certain instances by this section, but when such a reference is ordered under the statute neither party is deprived of his constitutional right to a trial by jury of the issues of fact arising on the pleadings. It is provided, however, that "such trial shall be only upon the written evidence taken before the referee." This refers to the testimony of all the witnesses taken down by the referee, or under his direction, signed by them, and returned to the court as a part of the record in the cause as required by § 577. But the report of the referee, consisting of his findings of fact and conclusions of law, would not be competent as evidence before the jury. See Bradshaw v. Hilton Lumber Co., 172 N. C.

219, 90 S. E. 146. Booker v. Highlands, 198 N. C. 282, 285, 151 S. E. 635.

It has been said, however, that where an amendment to the pleadings is allowed, after the report is in, containing an additional charge, the parties ought to be allowed to offer evidence before the jury as to such charge, for it was not embraced in the reference. See Moore v. Westbrook, 156 N. C. 482, 72 S. E. 482. Boooker v. Highlands, 198 N. C. 282, 285, 151 S. E. 635.

Applied in Marshville Cotton Mills v. Maslin, 200 N. C. 328, 156 S. E. 484; Perry v. Pulley, 206 N. C. 701, 702, 175 S. E. 89.

III. ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.

Location of Dividing Line.—A compulsory reference may be ordered by the trial judge in an action involving the true location of a dividing line between the owners of adjoining lands, in an action of trespass, and the wrongful cutting of timber, where the location of the line is complicated or requires a personal view of the premises. Waller v. Dudley, 194 N. C. 139.

Suit to Vacate Deed. — Where a suit to set aside a deed to lands, an action for possession, and a petition for dower, have been consolidated, an allegation of the wife's adultery is in bar of the wife's right, and whether the compulsory order of reference be treated as one of consolidation and reference of the consolidated action, or a reference of each action and proceeding under one form, it is improvidently entered. Lee v. Thornton, 176 N. C. 208, 97 S. E. 23.

Reservation of Timber. — When a conveyance of lands reserved all the trees of a certain size on the date of the deed, it is error for the court to dissolve an order restraining the cutting of the trees solely upon the ground that it was impossible to ascertain at a later date which trees were of the required size on the date of the deed, as such may be fairly approximated by experts, who, upon the failure of the parties to agree, may be appointed by the court. Kelly v. Enterprise Lumber Co., 157 N. C. 175, 72 S. E. 957.

Suit to Sell Corporation Assets. — Where a stockholder sued to compel the corporation to sell certain lands and distribute the proceeds among the stockholders, and the corporation claimed that such lands should have been included in a conveyance previously made by it to another corporation, but that they were omitted by mistake it was a proper case for a reference. Pinchback v. Bessemer Min., etc., Co., 137 N. C. 171, 172, 49 S. E. 106.

Contract for Rent. — Where the question involved in the action is the amount of rent due under a contract placing the rental at not less than a certain monthly sum, with obligation of the lessee to pay more in accordance with what other tenants were paying in the locality for other stores, etc., of the same rental value, the question to be determined by the jury does not require a view of the premises, entitling the party requesting it to a compulsory reference under the provisions of this section. Kearns v. Huff, 191 N. C. 593, 132 S. E. 566.

Suit on Confessed Judgment. — A compulsory reference cannot be ordered by the court in a suit on a judgment confessed by the defendants as executors before the Civil War, where the only matters of defense are payments made by them in Confederate currency during the war, and alleged counter-claims for notes due from the plaintiffs to them as executors. Hall v. Craige, 65 N. C. 51.

Action by Ward against Guardian. — Where in an action by a guardian to impeach a former decree, it appeared that alleged expenditures for the benefit of the ward should be ascertained before final judgment, it was held not to be error in the court to direct a mistrial and order a reference. Sutton v. Schonwald, 80 N. C. 20.

Action on Administration Bond. — A plea in an answer to a complaint on an administration bond of "performance of the condition of the bond by payment to the next of kin," is good in substance, and an issue taken upon it may be the subject of a compulsory reference under this section. Flack v. Dawson, 69 N. C. 42.

Suit by Creditor against Executor. — In an action by a creditor against an executor if the defendant denies the debt, and also that he has assets, the issue as to the debt is tried in the ordinary way; and if the debt be established a reference is to be had to ascertain the amount of the debts and their several classes, and upon the coming in of the report a judgment will be entered in favor of all the creditors who have proved their debts, for such part of the fund as they may be entitled to. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 710.

E. 595; Bank of Rose Hill v. Graham, 198 N. C. 530, 532, 152 S. E. 493; Nissen v. Baker, 198 N. C. 433, 152 S. E. 34, 38.

§ 574. How referee chosen or appointed.—In all cases of reference the parties as to whom issues are joined in the action (except when the defendant is an infant or an absentee) may agree in writing upon a person or persons, not exceeding three, and a reference shall be ordered to him or them, and to no other person or persons. And if such parties do not agree, the court shall appoint one or more referees, not more than three, who are free from exception. No person may be appointed referee to whom all parties in the action object. No judge or justice of any court may sit as referee in action pending in the court of which he is judge or justice, and not already referred, unless the parties otherwise stipulate. (Rev., s. 520; Code, s. 423; C. C. P., s. 247.)

§ 575. Referees may administer oaths.—Every referee has power to administer oaths in any proceeding before him, and has generally the power vested in a referee by law. (Rev., s. 521; Code, s. 599; C. C. P., s. 356.)

§ 576. Powers of referee of trial.—The trial by referees shall be conducted in the same manner as a trial by the court. Referees have the same power to grant adjournments and to allow amendments to pleadings and to the summons as the court upon such trial, upon the same terms and with like effect. They shall have the same power to preserve order and punish all violations thereof upon such trial, and to compel the attendance of witnesses before them by attachment and to punish them as for contempt for nonattendance or refusal to be sworn or to testify, as is possessed by the court. (Rev., s. 522; Code, s. 422; C. C. P., s. 246.)

For complete treatment of qualifications, powers and duties of referees see 10 Enc. Dig. 920-925, 15 Enc. Dig. 356.

Referee Has No Inherent Power. — A referee has no inherent or original powers and can only do those things expressly enumerated in the code, and such as he is authorized to do by the court which sends him the case. While he may "allow amendments to any pleadings," he is not authorized to allow a defendant who has not previously done so to file an answer, except by consent. Jones v. Beaman, 117 N. C. 259, 23 S. E. 248.

May Make New Parties. — Under this section, a referee has power to admit new parties to an action. Perkins v. Berry, 103 N. C. 131, 9 S. E. 621.

However a notice issued by a referee and served upon a surety on the administrator's bond to appear before him, no order having been made to make such surety a party, is not a legal process effective to bring him into court. Koonce v. Pelletier, 115 N. C. 233, 20 S. E. 391.

Power to Enforce Rulings. — The referee has power to enforce obedience to the rulings on the trial of the issues before him, just as the court would have upon the trial before it. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters Ass'n., 83 N. C. 133.

To review the action of the referee in permitting amendments to pleadings and the making of new parties, under this section, and contending successfully on appeal that there was a misjoinder of parties and causes of action, it is required that the appellant should have excepted in apt time and have preserved his exceptions or they will not be considered on appeal to the Supreme Court. Sheffield v. Alexander, 194 N. C. 744, 140 S. E. 726.

Power to Amend Pleadings and Make New Parties.—The authority of the referee to allow amendments to pleadings and to make new parties is expressly given by this section. Sheffield v. Alexander, 194 N. C. 744, 140 S. E. 726, citing Rosenbacher & Bro. v. Martin, 170 N. C. 236, 86 S. E. 785; Blanton v. Bostic, 126 N. C. 418, 35 S. E. 1035; Koonce

v. Pelletier, 115 N. C. 233, 20 S. E. 391. See note under § 547.

Cited in Gillam v. Life Ins. Co., 121 N. C. 369, 373, 28 S. E. 470.

§ 577. Testimony reduced to writing.—The testimony of all witnesses on both sides must be reduced to writing by the referee, or under his direction, and signed by the witnesses, and the evidence so taken and signed shall be filed in the cause, and constitute a part of the record. (Rev., s. 523; 1897, c. 237, s. 3.)

Cited in American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 196 N. C. 428, 146 S. E. 68; Texas Co. v. Phillips, 206 N. C. 355, 358, 174 S. E. 115.

§ 578. Report; review and judgment.—The referee shall make and deliver a report, within the time ordered by the court, to the clerk of the court in which the action is pending. Either party, during the term or upon ten days notice to the adverse party out of term, may move the judge to review the report, and set aside, modify or confirm it in whole or in part, and no judgment may be entered on any reference except by order of the judge. (Rev., s. 524; Code, s. 423; C. C. P., s. 247.)

See note under § 579.

Editor's Note. — Originally, as cited in C. C. P. sec. 247, the time limit of the referee's report was 60 days, and in default thereof either party could end the reference. Maxwell v. Maxwell, 67 N. C. 383.

Power of Judge—Recommittal of Case.—The supervisory power of the trial judge over the referees report under this section is broad and comprehensive. Dumas v. Morrison, 175 N. C. 431, 95 S. E. 775. In the exercise of the power the trial judge may recommit the report for the correction of errors and irregularities, or for more definite statement of facts or conclusions of law, and such order recommitting the report for such purpose is not appealable. Mills v. Apex Ins., etc., Realty Co., 196 N. C. 223, 225, 145 S. E. 26, citing Commissioners v. Magnin, 85 N. C. 115; Lutz v. Cline, 89 N. C. 186; S. v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 695, 110 S. E. 593; Coleman v. McCullough, 190 N. C. 590, 130 S. E. 508.

Reference to Another Referee. — Where a compulsory reference is made, and the report filed containing findings of fact and conclusions of law, the trial judge may not refer to it to another referee with partial approval thereof for action upon the unapproved parts. Mills v. Apex Ins. etc., Co., 196 N. C. 223, 145 S. E. 26.

Judge May Set Aside Reference. — The judge, in his discretion, may set aside a reference after the report is filed and proceed and try the case. Cummings v. Swepson, 124 N. C. 579, 32 S. E. 966.

When Decisions Reviewable. — The decision of the judge in revising the report of a referee, is available as to questions of law, but not as to the findings of fact. Vaughan v. Lewellyn, 94 N. C. 472

The Supreme Court has no power to review the conclusions of fact as found by the referee and sustained by the judge, unless it appears that such findings have no evidence to support them. Boyle v. Stallings, 140 N. C. 524, 53 S. E. 346.

The court retains the cause and its jurisdiction in every case of reference, with power to review and reverse the conclusions of law of the referee; and a discretion to modify or set aside the report, and its ruling in the latter respect is not reviewable unless it appears that such discretion has been abused. Cummings v. Swepson, 124 N. C. 579, 32 S. E. 966.

Under this section the Superior Court, on exceptions taken to the referee's report, may affirm, set aside, make additional findings, modify, or disaffirm the report. Wallace v. Benner, 200 N. C. 124, 156 S. E. 795. But the findings of fact of a referee approved by the trial judge cannot be reviewed upon appeal if supported by any competent evidence. Id.

Upon the filing of the report of the referee in a consent reference, as well as in a compulsory one, the trial court has the power to affirm, amend, modify, set aside, make additional findings and confirm, in whole or in part, or disaffirm the report of the referee, and where the court has made additional findings and there is evidence to sustain them the action of the court will be given the effect of a verdict of a jury and will not ordinarily be disturbed on appeal. Thigpen v. Farmers' Banking, etc., Co., 203 N. C. 291, 165 S. E. 720.

The referee's findings are subject to review by the District Judge and where exceptions are not filed in the District Court to the admission of testimony before the referee, they will not be considered by the Circuit Court of Appeals. Fruit Growers' Exp. Co. v. Plate Ice Co., 59 F. (2d) 605.

§ 579. Report, contents and effect. — The referee must state the facts found and the conclusions of law separately. His decision must be given, and may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner and with like effect in all respects as in cases of appeal; and he may in like manner settle a case or exceptions. The report of the referee upon the whole issue stands as the decision of the court, and judgment may be entered thereon upon application to the judge. When the reference is to report the facts, the report has the effect of a special verdict. (Rev., s. 525; Code, s. 422; C. C. P., s. 246.)

Cross Reference.—As to reviewing, on appeal, findings of fact by referee, see § 578 and the note thereto.

For full treatment of the Referee's Report see 11 Enc. Dig. 925 et seq. 15 Enc. Dig. 376 et seq. For reference by consent see annotations under sec. 572. As to Compulsory Reference see annotations under sec. 573.

Editor's Note. — The referee must state in his report his findings of fact and law separately, and when the judge, who hears exceptions to the report, makes no special finding of fact, it is presumed that he adopts those of the referee which are considered prima facie correct. In such cases the Supreme Court will not review the findings of fact made or adopted by the judge below, its appellate jurisdiction being confined to the review of matters of law. This is so even though the action is one cognizable in a court of equity prior to 1868. Battle v. Mayo, 102 N. C. 413, 9 S. E. 384; Barcroft & Co. v. Roberts & Co., 91 N. C. 363.

In the exercise of the power conferred by this section, as well as in the application of general principles of procedure of courts of equity, the court has authority to set aside, modify, or confirm, in whole or in part, the report of the referee, and the appellate jurisdiction attaches to the ruling in matters of law only, Vaughan v. Lewellyn, 94 N. C. 472. The court may modify the report and recommit the matter to the referee. Morisey v. Swinson, 104 N. C. 555, 10 S. E. 754. Also see Barcroft & Co. v. Roberts & Co., 91 N. C. 363; Patterson v. Wadsworth, 89 N. C. 407.

One valid objection may be raised to the findings of fact by the referee adopted by the judge, directly or by failure to modify them, or to those of the judge substituted for the referee's, but this raises in reality only a question of law, i. e., whether there is any evidence to support the conclusions of fact. When no such objection is made in apt time, the findings of the judge, whether made or adopted, are final and cannot be reviewed in the Supreme Court. If, upon hearing such exceptions when taken, it appears in the Supreme Court that there is no evidence to sustain the finding it will be deemed conclusive. Usry v Suit, 91 N. C. 406; Reaves v. Davis, 99 N. C. 425, 6 S. E. 715.

In cases of reference by consent if no exceptions be taken before the referees, and their report goes up without exceptions, and either party desires to except, then and there in term time he must be permitted to do so. And then his honor must pass upon the exceptions as if they had been taken before the referees. The practice is the same in compulsory references, except that when a report is made, exceptions filed, and issues made by the exceptions, either party has the right to have the issues submitted to a jury; because, not having waived a jury trial, as is done when the reference is by consent, the party has a constitutional right to a trial by jury. And in a case where the reference is by consent, if issues arise on exceptions which the judge is unwilling to try himself he may order a jury to find the issue to aid him, but it is not a right which the party has. Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 20, 24, 26.

Exceptions to the order of the court should conform to the ruling of the Supreme Court in Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427. For a striking illustration of the confusion and uncertainty into which the rights of the parties litigant are thrown by a failure to observe the provisions of this section and the holdings thereunder, see Kerr v. Hicks, 133 N. C. 175, 45 S. E. 529.

Referee's Duty under This Section. — It is the duty of a referee to state positively and definitely all the facts constituting the grounds of action or defence, and not to leave to inference what is the precise fact intended to be found. Conclusions of law and fact must be stated separately; otherwise the appellate court cannot review the referee's conclusions of law, and the report of the referee will be set aside as being defective. Earp v. Richardson, 75 N. C. 84; State v. McKenzie, 65 N. C. 102.

Findings of Fact Conclusive. — The findings of fact by a referee, adopted by the trial judge, are conclusive. Joyner v. Stancill, 108 N. C. 153, 12 S. E. 912, following Battle v. Mayo, 102 N. C. 413, 9 S. E. 384.

Presumption. — The findings of fact reported by a referee are presumed to be right unless shown to be wrong. If there is no evidence to support them, they will not be sustained. Green v. Jones, 78 N. C. 265.

Report Has Effect of Special Verdict. — Where the reference is by consent the referee's report has the effect of a special verdict. Battle v. Mayo, 102 N. C. 413, 9 S. E. 384. Subject however to the right of either party, on notice, to move the court to review his report, to set it aside, to modify or confirm it. Barrett v. Henry, 85 N. C. 322, 325.

Agreement to Arbitrate Made Out of Court. — Where an agreement to submit the matters in controversy in a pending action is made out of court, and no order of court is made to make the award when filed a rule of court, the court has no power to enter a judgment on the award, but the remedy is by a new action on the award. Jackson v. McLean, 96 N. C. 474, 1 S. E. 785.

Judge May Submit Issues to Jury. — It is not the duty of a judge, in passing on exceptions to a referee's report, to decide all questions of fact without a jury, but on the contrary, if the facts depend upon doubtful and conflicting testimony, he may cause issues to be framed and submitted to a jury for information. Maxwell v. Maxwell, 67 N. C. 383.

Unfinished Report. — It is error for the judge to pass upon exceptions to an unfinished report. White v. Utley, 86 N. C. 415.

Right to Jury Trial. — In case of a compulsory reference a litigant can renew his demand for a jury trial by excepting to the report of the referee and pointing out the findings so excepted to as a basis for the issues. Wilson v. Featherstone, 120 N. C. 446, 27 S. E. 124.

But to avail himself of this right he should, by exceptions made in apt time, distinctly designate the controverted facts that he demands shall thus be determined. Yelverton v. Coley, 101 N. C. 248, 7 S. E. 672.

Conclusiveness—Exception to Report.—Construing this and § 579 together as being in pari materia: it is held that a party moving for a reference to report the facts is not bound by the findings of the report as if a special verdict, and he is entitled to except to the report of the referee. Hardaway Contracting Co. v. Western Carolina Power Co., 195 N. C. 649, 143 S. E. 241.

Exceptions to Referees' Report Must be Specific. — An exception to the report of a referee must be specific; it must point out the conclusion at which it is aimed and the precise error complained of. Battle v. Mayo, 102 N. C. 413, 9 S. E. 384.

An exception to the admission of evidence by a referee, which is not specific, but is vague and indefinite in form, will not be considered. Perkins v. Berry, 103 N. C. 131, 9 S. E. 621.

Exceptions to a referee's report made the basis of a demand for a trial by jury should be explicit enough for the opposing party to see clearly what the issue will be, so as to prepare to meet it with his evidence. Wilson v. Featherstone, 120 N. C. 446, 27 S. E. 124.

An exception, "The plaintiff excepts to such rulings adverse to it and appeals," is too general to be considered. Commissioners v. Erwin, 140 N. C. 193, 52 S. E. 785.

Exceptions before Court. — If no exceptions be taken before the referees and their reports go up without exceptions and either party desires to except then and there in term time, he must be permitted to do so. The court must then pass upon them as if they had been taken before the referees. Green v. Castlebury, 70 N. C. 20, 21; Green v. Castleberry, 77 N. C. 164.

Failure to Specify Objection Constitutes Waiver. — Although a party has his objection to a compulsory reference entered in apt time, he may waive his right to a trial by jury by failing to assert it definitely and specifically in each exception to the referee's report. Keystone Driller Co. v. Worth, 117 N. C. 515, 23 S. E. 427.

Exceptions Should Be to Court Action. — Where an appeal is taken from the action of the trial court in passing upon exceptions to the report of a referee, exceptions should be taken and stated in the record to the rulings of the court which it is sought to have reviewed, and the case ought not to be sent to the Supreme Court to be heard only on the exceptions taken to the ruling of the referee. Traders Nat. Bank v. Lawrence Mfg. Co., 96 N. C. 298, 3 S. E. 363.

All Evidence Not Reported. — That the referee has not reported all the evidence is not a ground of exception. If all the evidence is not sent up, the remedy of the prejudiced party is, by application to the judge for an order directing the referee to send up that which has been omitted. Perkins v. Berry, 103 N. C. 131, 9 S. E. 621.

No Appeal From Order Recommitting Report. — Where the court orders a compulsory reference, an appeal does not lie from an order recommitting the report of the referee for the correction of errors and irregularities. State v. Magnin, 85 N. C. 115.

Art. 21. Issues

§ 580. Defined.—Issues arise upon the pleadings, when a material fact or conclusion of law is maintained by one party and controverted by the other. They are of two kinds:

1. Of law.
2. Of fact.

(Rev., s. 544; Code, s. 391; C. C. P., s. 219.)

For a full treatment of the subject of issues see 10 Enc. Dig. 216 et seq., 15 Enc. Dig. 224 et seq.

In General. — An issue is a single, certain and material point, arising out of the allegations or pleadings of the parties, and, generally, should be made up by an affirmative and negative. Simonton v. Witner, 5 Pet. 141, 149, 8 L. Ed. 75.

An issue is a statement of a material fact in the pleading of one party which is denied in its pleading of another party. 7 Ohio Law Reporter 163, 164.

Form of Issues. — Defendant can not complain of the form of the issues where he did not except or submit other issues. Drennan v. Wilkes, 178 N. C. 512, 103 S. E. 9.

Failure to Submit Issue. — Where defendant in a processioning proceeding did not tender any issues, and did not except to the one submitted, he can not complain on appeal that no issue of title was submitted, particularly where he offered no evidence to support his allegations of title. Exum v. Chase, 180 N. C. 95, 104 S. E. 67.

Province of Judge and Jury. — The province of the jury is restricted to passing upon issues of fact raised by the pleadings in the light of the testimony offered. When no testimony is offered, it is the duty of the trial judge to determine the issues of law, if any are raised, and then to proceed to enter such judgment as either of the parties may have the right to demand upon the admissions of fact contained in the pleadings and the determination of the controverted questions of law. McQueen v. Peoples Nat. Bank, 111 N. C. 509, 513, 515, 16 S. E. 270.

Cited in Braswell v. Johnston, 108 N. C. 150, 12 S. E. 911; Piedmont Wagon Co. v. Byrd, 119 N. C. 460, 468, 26 S. E. 144; Tucker v. Satterthwaite, 120 N. C. 118, 119, 121, 27 S. E. 45; Dees v. Apple, 207 N. C. 763, 766, 178 S. E. 557.

§ 581. Of law.—An issue of law arises upon a demurrer to the complaint, answer or reply, or to some part thereof. (Rev., s. 545; Code, s. 392; C. C. P., s. 220.)

§ 582. Of fact.—An issue of fact arises—

1. Upon a material allegation in the complaint controverted by the answer; or,
2. Upon new matter in the answer, controverted by the reply; or,
3. Upon new matter in the reply, unless an issue of law is joined thereon. (Rev., s. 546; Code, s. 393; C. C. P. s. 221.)

For further treatment see 10 Enc. Dig. 217 et seq. 15 Enc. Dig. 224 et seq.

Pleadings Must Raise Issues. — The issues in a cause are made by the pleading, and it is not error to refuse to submit an issue which the pleadings do not raise. McElwee v. Blackwell & Co., 82 N. C. 345; Wright v. Cain, 93 N. C. 296; Patton v. Western N. C. R. Co., 96 N. C.

455, 1 S. E. 863. But see Lackett v. Rumbaugh, 45 Fed. 23. See also Ellis Motors Co. v. Belcher, 204 N. C. 769.

An issue should be directed to the matter alleged on the one side and denied on the other. The judge may, in addition to the issue, submit a question to the jury pertinent to the matters in controversy, but he is not compelled to do so and his refusal is not reviewable. Crawford v. Masters, 140 N. C. 205, 52 S. E. 663.

However, it is error to submit an issue as to a contract different from that alleged in the complaint. Dickens v. Perkins, 134 N. C. 220, 46 S. E. 490.

In an action for the recovery of land, if the defendant wishes to disclaim as to any portion of the locus in quo and put in issue the title to only a specific portion, he should do so in his answer. Crawford v. Masters, 140 N. C. 205, 52 S. E. 663.

Issue Cannot Be Raised by Evidential Fact. — Where there are no allegations in the pleadings which suggest the matter set out in the issue, it is improper to submit such an issue to the jury nor can an issue be raised by evidential facts. Fortesque v. Crawford, 105 N. C. 29, 31, 10 S. E. 910, citing Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 209; Howard v. Early, 126 N. C. 170, 35 S. E. 258.

Issues Should Be Material. — It is only necessary to submit such issues as arise out of the pleadings material to be tried and such as will admit all material evidence upon the whole matter in controversy. Cecil v. Henderson, 121 N. C. 244, 28 S. E. 481.

Refusal to Submit Defendant's Issue. — Where an issue raised by the new matter in the answer, controverted by the reply, is material to the defense, there is error in refusing to submit the issue tendered by defendants, or at least an issue involving the matters relied upon by the defendants, and alleged in their answer. Brown v. Ruffin, 189 N. C. 262, 126 S. E. 613, 615.

Cited in Abbott v. Georgia, etc., R. Co., 90 N. C. 462.

§ 583. Order of trial.—Issues both of law and of fact may arise upon different parts of the pleadings in the same action. In these cases the issues of law must be first tried, unless the court otherwise directs. (Rev., s. 547; Code, s. 394; C. C. P., s. 222.)

Pleas in bar must be tried before a reference is ordered. See Annotations under sections 572, 573.

§ 584. Form and preparation.—Issues shall be framed in concise and direct terms, and prolixity and confusion must be avoided by not having too many issues. The issues arising upon the pleadings, material to be tried, must be made up by the attorneys appearing in the action, or by the judge presiding, and reduced to writing, or before during the trial. (Rev., ss. 548-9; Code, ss. 395-6.)

For full treatment of the subject of issues see 10 Enc. Dig. 216, 15 Enc. Dig. 224.

Editor's Note. — The Supreme Court in construing this section has laid down three rules; (1) only issues of fact raised by the pleadings must be submitted; (2) the verdict, whether in response to one or many issues must establish facts sufficient to enable the court to proceed to judgment; (3) of the issues raised by the pleadings, the judge may, in his discretion, submit one or many, provided that neither of the parties to the action is denied the opportunity to present to the jury any view of the law arising out of the evidence through the medium of pertinent instructions on some issues passed upon.

This section is mandatory and where no issues are tendered by either party it is the duty of the judge either to compel counsel to prepare the proper issues or to prepare them himself and submit them to the jury. Such an adherence to the statute is absolutely essential, not only to the fair trial of the case, but to an intelligent appreciation of its merits upon an appeal. Denmark v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 185, 12 S. E. 54; Burton v. Rosemary Mfg. Co., 132 N. C. 17, 43 S. E. 480.

It should be borne in mind that the code system contemplates distinct findings upon material issues. These should be submitted where it can be done without repetition of confusion. Emery v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 102 N. C. 209, 9 S. E. 139. It is not necessary that the language of the pleadings should be incorporated in the issues, or that it should be clearly followed in drawing them.

While the pleadings are to be construed liberally with a view to substantial justice between the parties, the proof must conform substantially to the allegation. As was said by the Supreme Court in Parsley v. Nicholson, 65 N. C. 207, 209. "The rules of pleadings at common law have not been abrogated by the Code of Civil Procedure, the essential principles still remain and have only been modified as to the technicalities and matters of form. The object of pleading, both in the old and the new system, is to produce proper issues of law and fact, so that justice may be administered between the parties litigant with regularity and certainty." See Tucher v. Satterthwaite, 120 N. C. 118, 27 S. E. 45; Braswell v. Johnston, 108 N. C. 150, 12 S. E. 911.

For an excellent discussion by the Supreme Court of the provisions and requirements of this section see Piedmont Wagon Co. v. Byrd, 119 N. C. 460, 26 S. E. 144.

When Sufficient. — It seems that the law is settled that if the issues submitted by the court are sufficient in form and substance to present all phases of the controversy, there is no ground for exception to the same. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 459, 115 S. E. 166.

Issues Precede Testimony. — This section contemplates that the issues shall be drawn before the introduction of testimony. Beasley v. Surles, 140 N. C. 605, 53 S. E. 360.

Multiplicity of Issues. — This section does not contemplate or require, that an issue shall be submitted to the jury as to every important material fact controverted by the pleadings, nor it is necessary, expedient, or proper to do so. Patton v. Western N. C. R. Co., 96 N. C. 455, 464, 1 S. E. 863.

The only issues proper to be submitted to the jury are those raised by the constitutive facts alleged on the one side and denied on the other; and those issues which are merely evidential, when found by the jury only furnish facts which would be evidence to prove the main issue, should never be submitted. Patton v. Western N. C. R. Co., 96 N. C. 455, 456, 1 S. E. 863.

Separate Causes of Action. — Where the plaintiff brings a single suit on two distinct causes of action a separate issue should be submitted as to the damages arising on each separate cause of action. Kelly v. Durham Tract. Co., 133 N. C. 418, 45 S. E. 826.

Complaint Differs with Issue. — Where a contract alleged in the complaint is different from that submitted in the issue, an instruction that if the contract was as alleged, the issue should be answered in the affirmative, is error. Dickens v. Perkins, 134 N. C. 220, 46 S. E. 490.

Issues Not Determinative. — A judgment upon the verdict of the jury upon issues raised by the pleadings which are not determinative of the controversy between the parties, is erroneously entered. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Carolina Broom Co., 188 N. C. 508, 125 S. E. 12.

Single Issue Sufficient. — It is not error for the court, to submit only an issue involving the question whether a plaintiff has been injured and has sustained damage through the negligence of a defendant, even where contributory negligence is set up as a defense. McAdoo v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 105 N. C. 140, 11 S. E. 316; Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 576, 633, 11 S. E. 665.

Insufficient Issues. — When issues of fact are raised by the pleadings it is error to submit only the question whether the plaintiff is entitled to recover; that is a question of law arising after verdict and addressed solely to the court. Braswell v. Johnston, 108 N. C. 150, 12 S. E. 911.

Example of Insufficient Issues. — Where in an action for damages, the defendant tendered the issues; (1) Were plaintiff's injuries caused by the defendant's negligence? (2) Was there contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff? (3) What damage is the plaintiff entitled to recover? And the court declined to submit these, but substituted instead a single issue—What damages, if any, is the plaintiff entitled to recover? It was held to be error. Denmark v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 107 N. C. 185, 186, 12 S. E. 54.

Inconsistent Causes of Action. — Where the plaintiff alleged inconsistent causes of action in different counts of his complaint, it was error for the court to submit the case on a single issue as to whether plaintiff was injured by defendant's negligence, as alleged in the complaint. Griffin v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 134 N. C. 101, 46 S. E. 7.

Cited in Wilson v. Featherstone, 120 N. C. 446, 27 S. E. 124, 126; Howard v. Early, 126 N. C. 170, 35 S. E. 258.

Art. 22. Verdict

§ 585. General and special.—A general verdict is that by which the jury pronounce generally upon all or any of the issues, either in favor of the plaintiff or defendant. A special verdict is that by which the jury finds the facts only, leaving the judgment to the court. (Rev., s. 550; Code, s. 408; C. C. P., s. 232.)

I. General Consideration.
II. Rendition and Reception.
III. Polling Jury.

Cross Reference.

For full treatment of verdicts generally, see Trial, 11 N. C. Enc. Dig. 1055.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

General Verdict.—The verdict is general when the jury, under appropriate instructions from the court as to the law applicable, simply respond affirmatively or negatively to the issues submitted. Porter v. Western, etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 66, 71, 2 S. E. 591; Morrison v. Waston, 95 N. C. 479.

Such a verdict settles in favor of the prevailing party every litigated question of fact. It is to be liberally construed, and to be sustained unless it is clearly inconsistent with any theory provable under the issues that the evidence may tend to support. Ed. Note.

Same—Embodies Law & Fact.—A general verdict embodies both the law and facts. The jury, taking the law as given by the court, apply that law to the facts as they find them to be and express their conclusions in the verdict. Walker v. New Mexico, etc., R. Co., 165 U. S. 59, 596, 41 L. Ed. 837.

The only way in which the jury can decide the law of a case is by finding a general verdict. Georgea v. Brailsford, 3 Dall. 1, 5, 1 L. Ed. 483.

Special Verdict.—The adoption of this section wrought a radical change upon the old practice in regard to what should be stated in special verdicts. Under the former practice, after the finding as to all the facts necessary in determining the rights of the parties, with a prayer for the advice of the court as to the law arising thereon, the special verdict concluded conditionally, that if, upon the whole matter, the court shall be of opinion that the plaintiff has a cause of action, they then find for the plaintiff; if otherwise, for the defendant. Under the law as it now stands it is no longer necessary for the condition to be included. Ed. Note.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 321, for a note on the special verdict in Criminal Procedure.

Special Verdict Cannot be Added to.—"In any case, the trial judge may decline to receive a special verdict, and insist that the jury return a general verdict of guilty or not guilty; but when a special verdict is found by the jury, neither the trial court nor the appellate court can add any fact not directly found, nor can its existence be presumed." State v. Colonial Club, 154 N. C. 177, 186, 69 S. E. 771.

The court can not add any facts to the verdict, nor pass upon any facts not stated or derivable from the facts appearing by such verdict, except such as are admitted by the pleadings. 8 N. Y. 483.

Where Findings of Jury in Conflict.—If there be an irreconcilable conflict in the findings of the jury upon the issues submitted, or between the verdict and the judgment, a new trial will be awarded. Morrison v. Watson, 95 N. C. 479. And where such is the case, the rule that requires a special verdict to prevail over a general (under section 586) one has no application. Porter v. Western, etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 66; 2 S. E. 581.

II. RENDITION AND RECEPTION.

Presence of Court.—A special verdict requires the presence and assent of the court. Suydam v. Williamson, 20 How. 427, 15 L. Ed. 978.

If it is not received by the court, nor in any way made matter of record, and where, with the assent of the attorney of the party in whose favor it was given, the jury retire by the courts direction and consider further of their verdict and return another verdict of which ouster is entered, it is of no weight as evidence for any purpose. United States v. Addyson, 6 Wall. 291, 18 L. Ed. 919.

Presence of Parties.—A party has the right to be present upon the rendition of the verdict, State v. Jones, 91 N. C. 654. This right is personal to the parties themselves and the absence of the counsel at the rendition is not a ground for a new trial. Barger Bros. v. Alley, 167 N. C. 362, 83 S. E. 612.

But the entry of a verdict against a plaintiff, who is not present either in person or by attorney, is irregular. Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120.

Waiver of Right to be Present — (1) In Civil Cases.—The right of the parties to be present when the verdict is returned in a civil case is waivable. Barger Bros. v. Alley, 167 N. C. 362, 83 S. E. 612, and cases there cited.

Same — (2) Criminal Cases.—In the trial of capital felonies the rule of practice seems to be uniform in all the states that the prisoner must be present during the whole trial. See State v. Paylor, 89 N. C. 539, 541, which contains also a full discussion of the application of the principle in regard to felonies of a lower nature and as to misdemeanors.

Verdict Received by Clerk.—A clerk of the court may by consent receive a verdict, even if the judge is not in the court room, provided it was done before the expiration of the term. Ferrell v. Hales, 119 N. C. 199, 25, 821; Barger Bros. v. Alley, 167 N. C. 362, 83 S. E. 612.

III. POLLING JURY.

Not Indispensable but May be Asked for.—It is not essential to the validity of the proceedings that the jury be polled, this being merely a privilege which may be asked for by either party. State v. Toole, 106 N. C. 736, 11 S. E. 168; Smith v. Paul, 133 N. C. 66, 67, 45 S. E. 348.

The right of a party to have the jury polled after the rendition of its verdict exists in civil as well as criminal cases. Smith v. Paul, 133 N. C. 66, 45 S. E. 348; State v. Toole, 106 N. C. 736, 11 S. E. 168; State v. Young, 77 N. C. 498.

Dissent or Disagreement of Jurors.—On a poll of the jury, the dissent of one juror renders the verdict invalid. Owens v. Southern R. Co., 123 N. C. 183, 31 S. E. 383; but mere reluctance on the part of one juror will not be fatal to the verdict, Lowe v. Morgan, 125 N. C. 301, 34 S. E. 442.

See note of Porter v. Western, etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 66, 2 S. E. 581, under sec. 585, analysis line "General Considerations." 1.

Editor's Note.—It is well settled by the reported cases in other states, construing provisions of their codes similar to this section, that a general verdict should stand unless the special findings are necessarily repugnant to it. To be inconsistent with the general verdict it must appear that the special findings are irreconcilable, in a legal sense, with the general verdict; and to justify to the court in setting aside the general verdict on the ground that it is inconsistent with such findings the conflict must be clear and irreconcilable. See 69 Ohio State Reports 101. In other words the special verdict must admit of no rational conclusion which is consistent with the general verdict.

§ 587. Character of, for different actions.—In an action for the recovery of specific personal property, if the property has not been delivered to the plaintiff, or the defendant by his answer claims a return thereof, the jury shall assess the value of the property, if their verdict is in favor of the plaintiff; or if they find in favor of the defendant, and that he is entitled to a return thereof, they may at the same time assess the damages, if any are claimed in the complaint or answer, which the prevailing party has sustained by reason of the detention or taking and withholding the property. In every action for the recovery of money only, or specific real property, the jury, in their discretion, may render a general or special verdict. In all other cases, the court may direct the jury to find a special verdict in writing, upon all or any of the issues; and in all cases may instruct them, if they render a general verdict, to find upon particular questions of fact, to be stated in writing, and may direct a written finding thereon. The special verdict or finding shall be filed with the clerk, and entered upon the minutes. (Rev., s. 551; Code, s. 409; C. C. P., s. 233.)

When Character of the Verdict Discretionary with Jury.—The section contains two specific cases in which the jury may, in their discretion, render either a general or special verdict, they being for the recovery of, (1) money only or (2) specific real property. In every other case the court may insist upon a special verdict upon any or all the issues. See Porter v. Western etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 66, 2 S. E. 581. Ed. Note.

Injuries to Personal Property in Seizure.—In claim and delivery, when for any cause judgment cannot be given for the recovery of the property in specie, as where pendente lite the property was sold under order of the court, judgment should be rendered for the recovery of the value of the property at the time of the tortious taking, with interest thereon, in lieu of damages for deterioration and detention, and for the costs. Hall v. Tillman, 110 N. C. 220, 14 S. E. 745, and cases there cited.

Time of Assessment of Damages.—In an action for claim and delivery of personal property, when the property cannot be redelivered by plaintiff in specie, the value thereof, in case of a judgment for the defendant, should be assessed at the time of the trial and not at the time of its seizure by the sheriff. Holmes v. Godwin, 69 N. C. 467, 468.

Account and Settlement of Trust Fund.—The court has the power under this section, to direct a special finding upon an issue in an action for an account and settlement of a trust fund, and so also, in all other cases except where the suit is for "money only" or "specific real property." Commissioners v. Lash, 89 N. C. 159; Porter v. Western, etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 66, 2 S. E. 581. See also, Bean v. Western, etc., R., Co., 107 N. C. 731, 742, 12 S. E. 600.

§ 588. Jury to assess damages; counterclaim.—When a verdict is found for the plaintiff in an action for the recovery of money, or for the defendant when a counterclaim for the recovery of money is established beyond the amount of the plaintiff's claim as established, the jury must also assess the amount of the recovery; they may also, under the direction of the court, assess the amount of the recovery when the court gives judgment for the plaintiff on the answer. If a counterclaim, established at the trial, exceeds the plaintiff's demand so established, judgment for the defendant must be given for the excess; or if it appears that the defendant is entitled to any other affirmative relief, judgment must be given accordingly. (Rev., s. 553; Code, s. 411; C. C. P., s. 235.)

Editor's Note.—Great difficulty has been encountered in the decision of the question whether an affirmative judgment can be given in favor of a defendant upon a counterclaim, the amount of which is not within the jurisdiction of the court. This section serves as an additional guide-post for the courts and its chief purpose would seem to be to carry out the provisions of the Code to the effect that the superior court may render such judgment as is necessary to do justice between the parties in administering both law and equity, thus placing the decision of this much disputed question in the same category with those cases falling within the accepted construction of the general provisions of the Code. This being the true interpretation of the section then, as was said in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 229.

"These decisions (falling under and bearing on this section) fix the rule of practice in North Carolina in accordance with the practice declared to exist in other jurisdictions. In a court of limited jurisdiction, the defendant may use his demand as set-off or recoupment to defeat or reduce the plaintiff's demand, but he cannot obtain an affirmative judgment upon his counterclaim, when the amount exceeds the jurisdiction. In a court of general jurisdiction, judgment may be rendered for the excess of defendant's claim, although no original action could have been brought thereon in such court." (Parenthesis and black type supplied.)

Allowance of "Interest to Date".—The verdict must be understood in connection with the charge, and when it allows "interest to date," it must be taken to intend it, and in conformity with the instruction, and thus the time for which the computation is to be made is rendered definite and certain. Greenleaf v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 91 N. C. 33, 38.

Reduction of Verdict.—The trial judge has no power to reduce a verdict without the consent of the party in whose favor the verdict is rendered, but when the trial judge thinks injustice has been done it is his duty to set aside the verdict, and he may set it aside as to damages either excessive or inadequate. Isley v. Bridge Co., 143 N. C. 51, 55 S. E. 416; Shields v. Whitaker, 82 N. C. 516, 523.

Punitive Damages.—The question of punitive damages is one properly to be submitted to the jury as one within their discretion, under a proper charge of the law applicable, and is not a matter of law for the court. Blow v. Joyner, 156 N. C. 140, 72 S. E. 319.

§ 589. Entry of verdict and judgment.—Upon receiving a verdict, the clerk shall make an entry in his minutes, specifying the time and place of the trial, the names of the jurors and witnesses, the verdict, and either the judgment rendered thereon or an order that the cause be reserved for argument or further consideration. If a different direction is not given by the court, the clerk must enter judgment in conformity with the verdict. (Rev., s. 554; Code, s. 412; C. C. P., s. 236.)

To Whom Returnable.—The verdict should be returned before the presiding judge, Zagier v. Southern Exp. Co., 171 N. C. 692, 89 S. E. 43, but by consent of the counsel, the clerk of the superior court can represent the judge in taking the verdict of the jury. Barger Bros. v. Alley, 167 N. C. 362, 83 N. C. 612.

The discretionary act of the trial judge in rendering judgment upon a verdict of the jury returned during recess of the court without the consent of counsel will not be reviewed on appeal when it appears from the finding of the court that the jury had not discussed the case before delivering it to the clerk, though several had done so thereafter with appellee's attorney; that the verdict was agreed to before the jurors separated, no improper influence had induced it, and the issues were not recorded until after the verdict was returned to the judge. Zagier v. Southern Express Co., 171 N. C. 692, 89 S. E. 43.

An agreement empowering the judge to sign judgment "out of terms" gave him no power after the adjournment of the term to hear and pass upon a motion to set the verdict aside. Knowles v. Savage, 140 N. C. 372, 374, 52 S. E. 930.

Verdict Must Be Accepted.—Before a verdict returned into open court by a jury is complete, it must be accepted by the court for record, and it is the duty of the judge to look after the form and substance of a verdict, so as to prevent a doubtful or insufficient finding from passing into the records. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277

Informal and Irregular Verdict.—When a jury returns an informal, insensible, or a repugnant verdict, or one that is not responsive to the issues submitted, they may be directed by the court to retire and reconsider the matter and bring in a verdict in proper form; but it is incumbent upon the judge not even to suggest the alteration of a verdict in substance. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277.

§ 590. Exceptions.—1. If an exception is taken upon the trial, it must be reduced to writing at the time with so much of the evidence or subject matter as may be material to the exception taken; the same must be entered in the judge's minutes and filed with the clerk as a part of the case upon appeal.

Exceptions as Condition for Appeal.—See section 643 and the notes thereto—analysis line, "Requisites of Case on Appeal, III.

Time for Exception.—It is a general rule, applicable alike to criminal and civil causes, that exceptions must be taken in apt time on the trial, State v. Ballard, 79 N. C. 627, and unless so taken it will be deemed to have been waived. Byrd v. Hudson, 113 N. C. 203, 213 18 S. E. 209.

It is too late after the trial to make exceptions to the evidence, remarks of the judge, or other matters occurring during the trial, except as to the charge. Alley v. Howell, 141 N. C. 113, 114, 53 S. E. 821.

Where, however, evidence is made incompetent by statute, exception thereto may be made after verdict. Broom v. Broom, 130 N. C. 562, 41 S. E. 673.

Taking and Noting.—Under this section, the trial judge is not required to take down the exceptions himself, but may require the attorneys for the excepting party to prepare them in writing. Buckner v. Madison County R. Co., 164 N. C. 201, 80 S. E. 225.

Exception Should be Specific.—Exceptions taken upon the trial should be as specific as possible and should point out the nature of the error complained of. Williams v. Johnston, 94 N. C. 633; State v. English, 164 N. C. 497, 498, 80 S. E. 72, and cases cited.

Indefinite Exception.—An indefinite exception will be overruled. Streator v. Streator, 145 N. C. 337, 9 S. E. 112; Hendricks v. Ireland, 162 N. C. 523, 77 S. E. 1011.

A "broadside" exception cannot be entertained on appeal. Jackson v. Williams, 152 N. C. 203, 67 S. E. 755; Kelly v. Johnson, 135 N. C. 650, 47 S. E. 672.

Motion for Judgment.—If an answer or reply is insufficient, the opposite party may move for judgment, and if the motion is refused he can have his exception noted. If he fails to do this, the objection is usually waived. Walker v. Scott, 106 N. C. 56, 57, 11 S. E. 364.

2. If there is error, either in the refusal of the judge to grant a prayer for instructions, or in granting a prayer, or in his instructions generally, the same is deemed excepted to without the filing of any formal objections. (Rev., s. 554; Code, s. 412; C. C. P., s. 236.)

As to instructions generally, see sec. 564-566 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—The courts have given to this provision a rather limited interpretation. The phrase "the refusal to grant at prayer for instructions" has been construed as not to have for its purpose the elimination of the necessity for formal objections. The phrase "in his instructions generally" has been construed to mean to embrace erroneous statements of the law, that is, for inherent and apparent error, and not to allow the broad wording of this enactment to be used by counsel as a method for obtaining a reviewal of every instruction given by the trial judge.

Where Exceptions Taken Orally.—Where the Judge below, in instructing the jury, submitted a phase of a question which there was no evidence to support, an oral exception to the question immediately taken and noted and assigned as error for the case on appeal is sufficient to present the matter on appeal, though no written instruction on the subject was prayed for by the excepting counsel. Lee v. Williams, 112 N. C. 510, 511, 17 S. E. 165.

Errors in Charge.—An exception taken for the first time in the appellant's assignment of error will not be considered on appeal, except under this section as to the charge of the court, etc., when it is required that the record show that the exception had been duly and properly taken. Brown v. Brown, 182 N. C. 42, 108 S. E. 380.

Errors in the charge of the court, or in granting or refusing to grant prayers for instruction, shall be deemed excepted to without the filing of any formal objections, if specifically raised and properly presented in the case on appeal, prepared and tendered in proper time; and when exceptions are taken they should be considered and passed upon by the trial court, and upon being overruled, made to appear in the record on the appeal to the Supreme Court. Consolidated Statutes, secs. 643, 641, 640, and this section. Paul v. Burton, 180 N. C. 45, 104 S. E. 37.

Exceptions to the Judge's charge taken for the first time after the trial, but set out in the appellant's case on appeal duly tendered or served, are aptly taken under the provisions of section 643, and this section. And an exception to a previous intimation of the judge made upon the trial to the effect objected to, is not required. Cherry v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 186 N. C. 263, 119 S. E. 361.

Failure to Give Charge Requested.—An omission to give a charge to which a party would have been entitled is not error, unless the same was requested on the trial and refused. Fry v. Currie, 91 N. C. 436. See sec. 566.

Effect of Failure to Object or Except.—Instructions, the giving or refusal of which was not excepted to on the trial, and where the attention of the court was not called to anything objectionable therein, will not be considered on appeal. White v. Clark, 82 N. C. 6.

An assignment of error cannot be considered if it appears from the record that neither objection nor exception, as provided by this section was made at the trial. Stadiem v. Harvell, 208 N. C. 103, 106, 179 S. E. 448.

Cited in Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. v. Boddie, 196 N. C. 666, 667, 146 S. E. 598.

§ 591. Motion to set aside.—The judge who tries the cause may, in his discretion, entertain a motion, to be made on his minutes, to set aside a verdict and grant a new trial upon exceptions, or for insufficient evidence, or for excessive damages; but such motion can only be heard at the same term at which the trial is had. When the motion is heard and decided upon the minutes of the judge, and an appeal is taken from the decision, a case or exceptions must be settled in the usual form, upon which the argument of the appeal must be had. (Rev., s. 554; Code, s. 412; C. C. P., s. 236.)

For full treatment of grounds for new trial, see New Trial, 9 N. C. Enc. Dig. 704.

Sufficiency, Scope, and Time for Taking Exceptions.—See note to sec. 590.

Discretion of the Judge.—A motion to set aside a verdict as not in conformity with the evidence is addressed to the discretion of the trial judge, when the evidence is conflicting, and will not be considered on appeal. Hoke v. Tilley, 174 N. C. 658, 94 S. E. 446.

The discretion given by this section to the trial judge to set aside a verdict, is not an arbitrary one to be capriciously exercised, but reasonably with the view to an equitable result in the correct administration of justice, and will not be reviewed on appeal except in cases of abuse thereof. Baily v. Dibbrell Mineral Co., 183 N. C. 525, 112 S. E. 29. See also Strayhorn v. Fidelity Bank, 203 N. C. 383, 166 S. E. 312; Goodman v. Goodman, 201 N. C. 808, 161 S. E. 686; Harrison v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 207 N. C. 487, 177 S. E. 423.

The trial judge has the discretionary power during the term to set aside a verdict as being against the weight and credibility of the evidence, and his action in so doing is not ordinarily reviewable, but an order setting aside the verdict on such grounds at a succeeding term of court upon a continuance of the defendant's motion therefor will be reversed on appeal where the record shows that the plaintiff did not consent to the continuance and did not waive his right to accept thereto. Manufacturers' Finance Accept. Corp. v. Jones, 203 N. C. 523, 166 S. E. 504.

The power of a trial court to set aside a verdict and to order a new trial, in its discretion, is inherent, and is necessary to the proper administration of justice, which is after all the function of a court, and is recognized by this section; its exercise at any time during the term at which the action was tried has been uniformly approved by this court. Brantley v. Collie, 205 N. C. 229, 231, 171 S. E. 88.

Same—Reduction of Verdict.—The discretionary power of the trial judge to set aside the verdict of the jury for "excessive" or "inadequate" damages, does not extend to his authority to reduce the verdict and render judgment accordingly, unless assented to by the party against whose interest it has been done, and without this consent the Supreme Court, on appeal, will direct that the amount of the judgment be entered according to the verdict. Hyatt v. McCoy, 194 N. C. 760, 140 S. E. 807.

Where Jury Commits Palpable Error.—When it appears from the evidence, the charge of the court, and the verdict, that the jury has committed a palpable error in the answer to one of the issues, it is the duty of the trial judge to set it aside to prevent a miscarriage of justice. Hussey v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 183 N. C. 7, 110 S. E. 599.

Court Not Empowered to Change Verdict.—The trial judge has the authority to set aside the verdict of the jury as to matters in his sound discretion or as a matter of law, leaving the cause at issue, but he may not change the verdict and thereupon dismiss the action as a matter of law, the exercise of such power being allowed only for want of jurisdiction or upon the ground that no cause of action has been sufficiently alleged in the complaint. Rankin v. Oates, 183 N. C. 517, 112 S. E. 32.

The court under this section has the power to set aside the verdict, but none to reverse the answers of the jury. Bundy v. Sutton, 207 N. C. 422, 427, 177 S. E. 420.

Agreement Made by Attorney for Client.—Where the trial judge has announced his decision to set aside a verdict unless the parties should agree in a certain particular, to which the plaintiff's attorney agreed without the consent of his client and against her instructions, and the judgment so agreed upon has been accordingly entered, the plaintiff may not thereafter repudiate the agreement made in her behalf by her attorney, and also repudiate the result thereby attained, and she is estopped from resisting the entry of judgment setting aside the verdict nunc pro tunc. Bizzell v. Auto Tire, etc., Co., 182 N. C. 98, 108 S. E. 439.

Where Matter Determined Out of Term. — Where the losing party moves to set aside a verdict after the trial, as within the statutory discretion of the trial judge, and the judge intimates he will grant the motion, but the parties agree that he may determine the matter out of the term, in view of attempting to compromise the disputed matter; and not hearing from the parties the judge renews his previous intimation, and sets a time and place for hearing, at which one of the parties appears and refuses the suggestion of the judge as a basis of a just settlement, his then setting the verdict aside within his reasonable discretion deals with the record as it originally stood, and is not abuse of the discretion given him by this section. Bailey v. Dibbrell Mineral Co., 183 N. C. 525, 112 S. E. 29.

SUBCHAPTER VIII. JUDGMENT

Art. 23. Judgment

§ 592. Defined.—A judgment is either interlocu-

tory or the final determination of the rights of the parties in the action. (Rev., s. 555; Code, s. 384; C. C. P., s. 216.)

Cross References. — For full treatment of the subject-matter in this article, see Judgments, 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 20; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 536.

Definition of Final Judgment. — A judgment is final which decides the case upon its merits without reservation for other and future directions of the court. Sanders v. May, 173 N. C. 47, 91 S. E. 526; Flemming v. Roberts, 84 N. C. 532.

Definition of Interlocutory Order. — An interlocutory order or decree is provisional or preliminary only. It does not determine the issues joined in the suit, but merely directs some further proceedings preparatory to the final decree. Johnson v. Robertson, 171 N. C. 194, 88 S. E. 231. It remains in the control of and in the breast of the court, and upon good cause shown they may be amended, modified, charged or rescinded, as the court may think proper. Maxwell v. Blair, 95 N. C. 317, 318.

Jurisdiction. — It is a well established principle that in order that a judgment or decree may be valid and binding, the court rendering the same must have jurisdiction both of the person and of the subject matter. Wetmore v. Karrick, 205 U. S. 141, 51 L. Ed. 745.

Nature of Judgment. — In its ordinary acceptation, a judgment is the conclusion of the law or facts admitted or in some way established. Sedbury v. Southern Exp. Co., 164 N. C. 363, 79 S. E. 286.

Judgments are the solemn determinations of judges upon subjects submitted to them, and the proceedings are recorded for the purpose of perpetuating them. They are the foundation of legal repose. Williams v. Woodhouse, 14 N. C. 257.

A judgment or decree has been defined as an act or conclusion of the mind, founded upon a view of all the facts and circumstances surrounding the subject as to which that conclusion is formed. Steamer Oregon v. Rocca, 18 How. 570, 15 L. Ed. 515.

It is the result of the courts exercise of its jurisdiction, or right to hear and determine. Daniels v. Tearney, 102 U. S. 415, 26, L. Ed. 187.

Sanction of Court.—Every judgment should and must have the sanction of the court, except in case of consent judgments, and those must be entered with its knowledge and permission. Branch v. Walker, 92 N. C. 87.

Relief Granted. — Since the gist of the accepted definition of a judgment is "the final determination of the rights of the parties to an action," courts are required to recognize both the legal and equitable rights of the parties, and to frame their judgments so as to determine all the rights of the parties, equitable as well as legal. Hutchinson v. Smith, 68 N. C. 354, 355; Lee v. Pearce, 68 N. C. 77, 80; McCown v. Sims, 69 N. C. 159, 161.

A judgment may grant to the defendant any affirmative relief to which he may be entitled. Hutchinson v. Smith, 68 N. C. 354, 355.

Judgment as a Contract. — While judgments are sometimes spoken of as contracts, they are not in reality contracts, and are never so considered in reference to the clause in the federal constitution which forbids that contracts should be impaired by state legislation. Mottu v. Davis, 151 N. C. 237, 65 S. E. 969.

However, judgments are considered as contracts to distinguish a cause of action thereon from one ex delicto. Moore v. Nowell, 94 N. C. 265.

A judgment for damages, estimated in money, is sometimes called by text-writers a specialty or contract of record, because it establishes a legal obligation to pay the amount recovered, and, by a fiction of law, the promise to pay is implied where such legal obligation exists. Louisiana v. New Orleans, 190 U. S. 285, 27 L. Ed. 936.

It is upon this principle that an action in form ex contractu will lie on a judgment of a court of record. Chitty on Contracts 87. Garrison v. New York, 21 Wall. 196, 22 L. Ed. 612. But this fiction cannot convert a transaction wanting the assent of parties into one which necessarily implies it. Louisiana v. New Orleans, 109 U. S. 285, 27 L. Ed. 936.

Operation of Judgment In Rem as Passing Title. — A condemnation in a proceeding in rem does not necessarily exclude all claim to other interests than those which were seized. Day v. Micou, 18 Wall, 156, 21 L. Ed. 860. In admiralty cases and in revenue cases a condemnation and sale generally pass the entire property to the thing condemned and sold. Day v. Micou, 18 Wall, 156, 21 L. Ed. 393.

But such is not the case in many proceedings which are in rem. Decrees of courts of probate or orphan's courts directing sales for the payment of a decedent's debt or for distribution are proceedings in rem. So are sales under attachments or proceedings to foreclose a mortgage in rem. In none of these is anything more sold than the estate of the decedent, or of the debtor, or of the mortgagor in the thing sold. The interests of others are not cut off or affected. Day v. Micou, 18 Wall, 156, 21 L. Ed. 860.

Extrinsic Evidence. — Extrinsic evidence to aid in the interpretation of a judgment or decree is inadmissible, unless, after reference to the pleadings and proceedings, there remains some ambiguity or uncertainty in it. Burthe v. Denis, 133 U. S. 514, 33 L. Ed. 768.

Cited in Never Fail Land Co. v. Cole, 197 N. C. 452, 456, 149 S. E. 585.

§ 593. Judgments authorized to be entered by clerk; sale of property; continuance pending sale; writs of assistance and possession.—The clerks of the superior courts are authorized to enter the following judgments: (a) All judgments of voluntary nonsuit. (b) All consent judgments (judgments coming within the meaning of (a) and (b) may be entered at any time). (c) In all actions upon notes, bills, bonds, stated accounts, balances struck, and other evidences of indebtedness within the jurisdiction of the superior court. (d) All judgments by default final and default and inquiry as are authorized by sections 595, 596, 597, and in this law provided. (e) In all cases where the clerks of the superior court enter judgment by default final upon any debt secured by mortgage, deed of trust, conditional sale contract or other conveyance of any kind, either real or personal, or by a pledge of property, the said clerks of the superior court are authorized and empowered to order a foreclosure of such mortgage, deed of trust, conditional sale contract, or other conveyance, and order a sale of the property so conveyed or pledged upon such terms as appear to be just; and the said clerks of the superior court shall have all the power and authority now exercised by the judge of the superior court to appoint commissioners to make such sales, to receive the reports thereof, and to confirm the report of sale thereof or to order a resale, and to that end they are authorized to continue such causes from time to time as may be required to complete the sale, and in the final judgment in said causes they shall order the execution and delivery of all necessary deeds and make all necessary orders disbursing the funds arising from the sale, and may issue writs of assistance and possession upon ten days notice to parties in possession. The commissioners appointed to make foreclosure sales, as herein authorized, may proceed to advertise such sales immediately after the date of entering judgment and order of foreclosure, unless otherwise provided in said judgment and order. (1919, c. 156; ex. sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 12; 1929, cc. 35, 49.)

Editor's Note. — The primary object of this section is to effect a speedy hearing and determination of uncontested rights involved in the particular class of actions enumerated herein. It was settled even when the section provided for a different return day, that this section was not repugnant to section 476 which purports to apply to "all civil actions in the superior court," and hence the general repealing clause of that section did not serve to repeal the remedy herein provided for in these specially designated cases. The courts, in their endeavor to discover the legislative intent, have construed the two sections together and section 593, although ratified four days prior to the amendment of section 476 in 1919, was considered an exception to that section and the remedy prescribed regarded as an additional and more speedy method of relief in the stated classes of suits. Young v. Davis, 182 N. C. 200, 108 S. E. 630.

Prior to the amendment of this section by the Public Laws of 1921, the section pertained merely to what is now the third class (c); the other classes (a), (b), (d) and (e), were added by the act of 1921. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 16.

This section was amended twice by the Public Laws 1929. Ch. 35 added the last sentence and provided that the amendment should not affect pending litigation or vested rights. Ch. 49 inserted the words "conditional sales contract" in subsection (e).

Constitutionality. — This section is not an unconstitutional interference with the jurisdiction of the judge of the court, as the clerk is a component part of the superior court, and the exercise of the power of the judge is recognized and preserved by the right of appeal. Thompson v. Dillingham, 183 N. C. 566, 112 S. E. 321.

An Enabling Act. — This statute is an enabling act and does not deprive the superior court in term of its jurisdiction to render judgments, and the jurisdiction of a judge in term to render judgments upon voluntary non-suits, by consent of the parties to the action, upon notes, bills, bonds, stated accounts, balances struck, or other evidences of debt within the jurisdiction of the superior court, is not affected by the provisions of this section. The authority of the clerk is concurrent with and additional to that of the judge in term. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329; Hill v. Huffines Hotel Co., 188 N. C. 586, 125 S. E. 266; Young v. Davis, 182 N. C. 200, 108 S. E. 630, 1 N. C. Law Rev. 16, 282.

The clerk of the Superior Court has jurisdiction under this section to sign a consent judgment in an action even while the action is pending before a referee. Weaver v. Hampton, 204 N. C. 42, 167 S. E. 484.

A consent judgment may be entered at any time by the clerk of the superior court in which the action is pending by this section, and it is not required that such judgment be entered on a Monday as is the case with other judgments which the clerk is authorized to enter under § 597(b). Hood v. Wilson, 208 N. C. 120, 179 S. E. 425.

Judgment by Default When Plaintiff Fails to Answer. — Where the parties are properly before the court and the subject-matter of the action is also jurisdictional in the superior court, the clerk, having authority under the provisions of this section, may render a judgment against the plaintiff by default for want of a reply to an answer setting up affirmative relief. Finger v. Smith, 191 N. C. 818, 133 S. E. 186.

Effect of Judgments Entered by Clerk. — Judgments entered by the clerk as authorized by this section, are judgments of the superior court, and are of the same force and effect, in all respects, as if entered in term and before a judge of the superior court. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329.

Appeals from Clerk to Judge. — There is no provision in the statute regulating an appeal from a judgment entered by the clerk under the authority of the statute upon the ground that such judgment is erroneous. It would seem that the appeal from such judgment, upon this ground, may be taken from the clerk to the judge, as provided by the statute, for appeals from orders and judgments upon other grounds. The proper practice, we think, is for the complaining party to except to the judgment, as entered by the clerk, and to appeal therefrom to the judge, as in other cases provided for in the statute. An appeal will then lie from the judge of the superior court to the Supreme Court. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S E. 329, 332.

§ 594. When clerk transfers to term for default judgment.—In cases where the clerk has no jurisdiction and the plaintiff shall be entitled to have judgment by default and inquiry or judgment by default final, the clerk shall transfer the same to the court at term time to be determined by the court under existing procedure. (1919, c. 304, s. 9.)

Judgment Made Final after Transfer by Clerk. — Where the clerk has failed to enter a judgment by default and inquiry by default of an answer when the statute so provides, but transfers the cause to the civil issue docket, it is not error for the trial judge, after the lapse of several terms, and the answer having long since been due, to proceed with the inquiry before the jury on the issue of damages, and when accordingly the jury has assessed the damages, his action in refusing to sign judgment thereon on the defendant's motion as a matter of law, as not being in accordance with the due course and practice of the courts, is reversible error. Hill v. Huffines Hotel Co., 188 N. C. 586, 125 S. E. 266.

1. Where the complaint sets forth one or more causes of action, each consisting of the breach of an express or implied contract to pay, absolutely or upon a contingency, a sum of money fixed by the terms of the contract, or capable of being ascertained therefrom by computation. Upon proof of personal service of summons, or of service of summons by publication, on one or more of the defendants, and upon the complaint being verified, judgment shall be entered as provided in the last section for the amount mentioned in the complaint, against the defendant or defendants, or against one or more of several defendants.

2. Where the defendant, by his answer in such action, does not deny the plaintiff's claim, but sets up a counterclaim, amounting to less than the plaintiff's claim, judgment may be had by the plaintiff for the excess of his claim over the counterclaim, in like manner in any such action, upon the plaintiff's filing with the court a statement admitting the counterclaim, which statement must be annexed to and be a part of the judgment roll. Or the court may in its discretion, order the pleadings to be so amended and the action severed as to entitle the plaintiff to judgment upon all of the claims admitted over and above the setoff or counterclaim pleaded by the defendant; and, upon application of the plaintiffs, shall enter judgment for the plaintiff for so much of the claim as is admitted. The action shall thereupon be continued as to subsequent proceedings, as if it had been brought for the remainder of the claim, and the counterclaim or setoff as pleaded by the defendant shall apply thereto. Said remainder of the claim shall in any event be sufficient to cover the full amount of the principal and interest set up by the defendant in the counterclaim or setoff, and an amount in excess thereof, if in the discretion of the court the same is necessary, the court being empowered to designate and determine what part of the plaintiff's claim shall be held for the subsequent proceedings herein referred to.

3. In actions where the service of the summons was by publication, the plaintiff may, in like manner, apply for judgment, and the court must thereupon require proof to be made of the demand mentioned in the complaint, and if the defendant is not a resident of the state, must require the plaintiff or his agent to be examined on oath respecting any payments that have been made to the plaintiff, or to any one for his use on account of such demand, and may render judgment for the amount which he is entitled to recover. Before rendering judgment the court may in its discretion require the plaintiff to cause to be filed satisfactory security to abide the order of the court touching the restitution of any estate or effects which may be directed by such judgment to be transferred or delivered, or the restitution of any money that may be collected under and by virtue of said judgment, in the case the defendant or his representatives apply and are admitted to defend the action, and succeed in such defense.

4. In actions for the recovery of real property, or for the possession thereof, upon the failure of the defendant to file the undertaking required by law, or upon failure of his sureties to justify according to law, unless the defendant is excused from giving such undertaking before answering.

5. In actions for the recovery of personal property, or for the possession thereof, or to have the plaintiff or plaintiffs adjudged the owner or owners thereof, if the complaint be verified. (Rev., s. 556; Code, ss. 385, 390; C. C. P., s. 217; 1870-1, c. 42; 1867-70, c. 193, s. 4; 1919, c. 26; 1929, c. 66.)

I. IN GENERAL.

A. Failure to File Answer.

Against State. — It has been held in several instances by the U. S. Supreme Court that judgment by default for want of appearance may be entered against a state. United States v. Girault, 11 How. 22, 13 L. E. 587.

Time to Answer. — As to time for answering, see sec. 467 and the notes thereto. As to time of filing complaint and extension thereof, see 505 and notes thereto.

In a suit to set aside certain deeds alleged to be void and to declare the plaintiff the owner of the title to lands, a judgment by default is regularly entered when the defendant has failed to file an answer within the statutory time, and the summons has been duly served. Jernigan v. Jernigan, 178 N. C. 84, 100 S. E. 184.

Where a complaint in an action set up two causes of action, one for indebtedness due on a note and the other for fraudulent conversion of money, the court may, where the defendant makes no appearance or defense, enter judgment by default final as to the first charge but not as to the second. Stewart v. Bryan, 121 N. C. 46, 28 S. E. 18.

Where Answer Insufficient. — When matters are alleged in the complaint to be in the personal knowledge of the defendant, an averment in the answer thereto that he "has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truthfulness thereof and, therefore, denies the same," is insufficient, and judgment can be rendered for want of an answer if such allegation goes to the cause of action. Streator v. Streator, 145 N. C. 337, 59 S. E. 112.

Effect of Failure Promptly to Take Judgment by Default.—A failure to take a judgment by default as soon as the same is allowable does not work a discontinuance. Governor v. Lassiter, 83 N. C. 38.

B. The Complaint.

Should Conform to the Complaint. — Judgment by default should be so drawn as to be in strict conformity with the complaint filed. Currie v. Mining Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980.

Complaint Should Be Definite. — A pleader desiring a judgment by default must set forth clearly the facts upon the admission of which, by failure to answer, he bases his right to relief, that the court may, upon the interpretation of his complaint, adjudge his rights to correspond with such facts, for otherwise the judgment would be irregular. Currie v. Mining and Milling Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980.

Court Must Construe Complaint. — Upon motion made before the clerk to set aside a judgment by default final for the want of an answer, under this section, and also heard on appeal in the superior court, the failure of the defendant to have filed his answer only admits the truth of the facts alleged in the complaint, leaving the court to construe the complaint to ascertain if the facts alleged are sufficient to sustain the judgment, and if not, the judgment, will be set aside. Beard v. Sovereign Lodge, 184 N. C. 154, 113 S. E. 661.

New Parties. — Where a complaint was filed against the defendant, and in the progress of the action another party defendant is brought in, the complaint must be amended or another complaint filed as to him, unless he waive his right to the same by answering the original complaint. Vass v. Building, etc., Ass'n., 91 N. C. 55. If no complaint is filed as to such new parties the judgment is irregular and may be set aside. Id.

Verification of Complaint Essential. — A complaint which is not verified as required by statute is insufficient and must be regarded as unverified, upon which a final judgment by default can not be rendered, for it is only proper to render a final judgment when the complaint is verified. Witt v. Long, 93 N. C. 388.

Same — Substantial Compliance Sufficient. — While it is essential that the complaint be verified it is not necessary that it be subscribed by the party making it, and a substantial compliance is sufficient, and meets the requirements when it appears that the plaintiff swore to the complaint before an officer authorized to administer oaths. Currie v. Mining Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980; Miller v. Curl, 162 N. C. 1, 77 S. E. 952.

Same—Where Complaint Improperly Verified. — Where a properly verified complaint would entitle a plaintiff to a judgment final, for want of an answer, if the complaint is not properly verified, the judgment should be by default and inquiry. Cole v. Boyd, 125 N. C. 496, 34 S. E. 557.

Breach of Contract.—In order to authorize a judgment by default final in an action based on the contract the complaint must set forth not only the agreement of the parties, but the alleged breach, so that the court may determine whether the action as stated can be maintained. Baker v. Corey, 195 N. C. 299, 141 S. E. 892.

II. NATURE AND ESSENTIALS.

A. Definite Debt.

Editor's Note. — This section, authorizing the clerk to enter judgment in all cases where the defendant fails to answer, carries out the general intent of the statute, namely, to effect a speedy settlement of the controversies in litigation. To warrant the granting of a judgment by default final the debt must be definite; when it is for an unascertained amount, the judgment is by default and inquiry, the case going up to the term for the inquiry. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 17.

Express Promise to Pay.—When personal service on the defendant has been properly made, a judgment by default for want of an answer may be obtained, if the complaint alleges an express promise to pay a sum due. Currie v. Mining and Milling Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980.

Implied Promise to Pay. — Where the allegation is of a sum certain expended for the benefit of the defendant and therefore upon an implied promise to repay, and the complaint is verified and no answer filed, the judgment is properly by default final. Cowles v. Cowles, 121 N. C. 272, 28 S. E. 476.

Same — Goods Sold and Delivered. — Where the action is on an implied contract to pay for goods sold and delivered the judgment rendered should be by default and inquiry and not by default final. Jeffries v. Aaron, 120 N. C. 167, 26 S. E. 696.

On Note. — A judgment by default on a note for the payment of money only, against one who fails to appear and answer the complaint, is regular in all respects. Morehead Banking Co. v. Duke, 121 N. C. 110, 28 S. E. 191.

Failure to Allege Promise to Pay. — Where the complaint only alleges the value of the goods sold without also alleging a promise to pay, upon a failure to answer, the judgment should be by default and inquiry. Hartman v. Farrier, 95 N. C. 177, 178.

Damages Must Be Certain. — When the amount of the debt is precise and final by the agreement of the parties, or can be rendered certain by mere computation, there is no need of proof, as the judgment by default admits the claim. Adrian v. Jackson, 75 N. C. 536, 539.

Same—Breach of an Official Bond.—In an action on an official bond, on failure of a defendant to answer, a judgment entered against him on default cannot be final since the section is not for the breach of an express or implied contract to pay a definite sum of money. Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668.

Same—Bail Bond. — A judgment by default final for want of an answer in a suit upon a bail bond cannot be sustained. It should be by default and inquiry. Roulhac v. Miller, 90 N. C. 175.

Sum Certain or Computable.—A judgment by default final is irregularly entered upon a pleading that does not allege a sum certain or computable, due upon contract, express or implied. Byerly v. Acceptance Corporation, 196 N. C. 256, 145 S. E. 236.

Express Promise to Pay.—If the verified complaint alleges a breach of an express promise to pay absolutely a definite sum of money particularly specified for valuable consideration, judgment by default final is proper. Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Goods Sold and Delivered.—A judgment by default final is irregular when rendered for the want of an answer filed in an action upon contract for goods sold and delivered when the alleged cause, as appearing from the complaint, is not upon an expressed contract, but for the reasonable value of the goods, in which event a judgment by default and inquiry is the proper one, unless it is made to appear that the defendant has by his acts or conduct or in some recognized legal way admitted owing the amount in suit. Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Services Rendered Decedent.—In order for the plaintiff to be entitled to a judgment by default final upon the complaint for the want of an answer in his action to recover from the estate of the deceased for services rendered before her death, in taking care of and providing a support for her, at her request and promise to pay for them, there must have been a definite price fixed upon and understood and agreed to by both of the parties; and where the complaint alleges merely an estimate by the parties of a reasonable price to be paid for such services it supports a judgment by default and inquiry only. Baker v. Corey, 195 N. C. 299, 141 S. E. 892.

Where Complaint States More than One Cause of Action.—Where a complaint states two or more causes of action arising from the same default, and any one is sufficient to uphold a judgment by default final for the want of an answer, which has been entered in the due course of practice of the courts, such judgment will be upheld. Bostwick & Bros. v. Laurinburg R. Co., 179 N. C. 485, 102 S. E. 882.

Same—Separate Notes Sued on in Same Complaint. — Where two notes are set out in the complaint, each being used as a separate cause of action, and no defense is interposed as to one, it is error to refuse judgment as to this one, and from such refusal, since it is a denial of a substantial right, an appeal may be taken. Curran v. Kerchner, 117 N. C. 264, 265, 23 S. E. 177.

Where Complaint Sets up Matter Constituting Statutory Lien. — Where the complaint declares upon a contract and alleges damages for its breach in a sum certain, and sets up matters that would constitute a statutory lien upon the subject-matter of the contract, the clerk of the court, under the provisions of our statute, has authority to render judgment by default for the want of an answer in the specific amount demanded, and to declare and enforce the lien, (section 595, 593) and issue an execution thereunder, and order a distribution of the funds so received, Crye v. Stoltz, 193 N. C. 802, 138 S. E. 167.

B. Service of Summons.

As to summons generally, see secs. 475 et seq.

Necessity for Service of Summons. — As in the case of judgments and decrees generally it is essential to the rendition of a valid decree pro confesso, for failure to appear, that the court shall have acquired jurisdiction of the defendant by due service of sufficient process. Thomson v. Wooster, 114 U. S. 104, 29 L. Ed. 105.

Judgments by default form no exception to the general rule that in order to render a valid judgment or decree a court must have jurisdiction of the person as well as of the subject matter, and it is essential that jurisdiction of the person shall have been obtained by the due service of process. Wetmore v. Herrick, 205 U. S. 141, 51 L. Ed. 745.

When Personal Service Required. — Where a personal judgment is sought against a defendant it is essential that personal service of summons be made on him. Currie v. Mining Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980.

Charged with Notice. — Notice to the adverse party of a motion in term for a judgment by default for the want of an answer is not necessary, for in legal contemplation the defendant is in court by service of a summons and is charged with notice of whatever action the court takes during the pendency of the suit. Reynolds v. Greensboro Boiler, etc., Co., 153 N. C. 342, 69 S. E. 248; Jernigan v. Jernigan, 178 N. C. 84, 100 S. E. 184.

Judgment Void Where No Process Had. — Where there is no service of process the court has no jurisdiction and its judgment is void. Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 200; Stancill v. Gay, 92 N. C. 455, 462.

III. AFFIRMATIVE RELIEF BY DEFENDANT.

For full treatment of this subject, see Set-Off and Counterclaim, 11 N. C. Enc. Dig. 179; see also Judgments, 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 200.

Judgment by Default Not Allowed Where Court Permits Formal Denial. — The defendant is not entitled to judgment by default on his counterclaim where the court in the exercise of its discretion allows a formal denial to be entered. Tillinghast Co. v. Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 268, 55 S. E. 621; Bernhardt v. Dutton, 146 N. C. 206, 59 S. E. 651.

IV. REAL PROPERTY.

Recovery of the Property Sought. — Where in an action to recover land, the defendant fails to file, or is not excused from filing the required bond, a judgment by default may be entered; and this is true even if there has been a failure to file an answer arising from excusable neglect. Vick v. Baker, 122 N. C. 98, 100, 29 S. E. 64.

Possession of the Property. — In an action to recover possession of land, where the defendant fails to file an answer or the required bond, and does not ask leave to answer without giving bond until the time for answering has expired, it is proper to enter judgment by default. Jones v. Best, 121 N. C. 154, 28 S. E. 187.

Where a tenant is joined with his landlord as co-defendant, and the tenant fails to give the required undertaking, judgment may be entered against him. Harkey v. Houston, 65 N. C. 137.

Nature and sufficiency of undertaking, see section 495.

Time of Filing. — The trial judge, in his discretion, may permit a defendant at the trial to file the required bond. Carraway v. Stancill, 137 N. C. 472, 49 S. E. 957.

Notice. — Upon the failure of the defendant to file the necessary bond, it is error to strike out his answer and enter judgment by default without due notice and an opportunity to show cause. Cooper v. Warlick, 109 N. C. 672, 14 S. E. 106. See also, McMillan v. Baker, 92 N. C. 111.

Waiver of Bond. — The bond required of the defendant is for the benefit of the plaintiff and he can waive it, and will be deemed to have done so, if he allows a number of terms of court to pass without demanding it. If not waived entirely, it is waived until demanded. McMillan v. Baker, 92 N. C. 111.

Failure to "Justify" Bond. — A failure to file a "justified" bond, as is required, does not necessarily avoid the bond, but it is a defect which may be cured by waiver. Becton v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 559, 560, 50 S. E. 289.

V. PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added subsection 5.

VI. SETTING ASIDE.

Meritorious Defense.—A judgment by default final for want of an answer, when it is made to appear on appeal that one by default and inquiry should have been entered, is an irregular judgment, but on defendant's motion to set aside, he must show a meritorius defense. Baker v. Corey, 195 N. C. 299, 141 S. E. 892; Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co. 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Remand for Determination of Question.—Where on appeal from the setting aside an irregular judgment of default final it does not appear that the question of a meritorious defense was considered or passed upon, and that the movant intended to allege one, the case will be remanded for the determination of this question as to whether the defendant has such meritorious defense as calls for the vacating of the judgment. Baker v. Corey, 195 N. C. 299, 141 S. E. 892.

§ 596. By default and inquiry.—In all other actions, except those mentioned in the preceding section, when the defendant fails to answer and upon a like proof, judgment by default and inquiry may be had as provided in the last section but one, and inquiry shall be executed at the next succeeding term. If the taking of an intricate or long account is necessary to execute properly the inquiry, the court, at the return term, may order the account to be taken by the clerk of the court or some other fit person, and the referee shall make his report at the next succeeding term; in all other cases the inquiry shall be executed by a jury, unless by consent the court is to try the facts as well as the law. (Rev., s. 557; Code, s. 386.)

Editor's Note. — This section is somewhat in the nature of a "residuary clause," the provisions of which are applicable to all those classes of cases not falling within the provisions of section 595. The same purpose found in the preceding section is likewise embodied in this section, although the procedure herein provided is more time-consuming since it is necessary in these cases to determine, by way of inquiry, the respective rights of the parties and, more particularly the precise amount of recovery the one is entitled to receive.

Nature in General. — "A judgment by default is one thing; a judgment by default and inquiry consists of two things. There are two kinds of judgments by default—one final, the other interlocutory. In actions sounding in damages the interlocutory judgment, which is rendered for want of an answer, is an admission or confession of the cause of action; and there follows a writ of inquiry by means of which the damages are to be assessed." (Black type by the Court.) Junge v. MacKnight, 137 N. C. 285, 288, 49 S. E. 474. See also Bowie v. Tucker, 206 N. C. 56, 173 S. E. 28, also referring to sections 593-5.

A judgment by default and inquiry for the want of an answer establishes the cause of action and leaves the question of the amount of damages open to the inquiry. Farmer-Cole Plumbing Co. v. Wilson Hotel Co., 168 N. C. 577, 84 S. E. 1008; Armstrong v. Ashbury, 170 N. C. 160, 86 S. E. 1038; but the burden of proving any damages beyond such as are nominal still rests upon the plaintiff. Hill v. Hotel Co., 188 N. C. 586, 125 S. E. 266.

A judgment by default and inquiry is conclusive that the plaintiff has a cause of action and entitles him to nominal damages without further proof. Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

A judgment by default final as authorized by § 595, is different in effect and result from a judgment by default and inquiry as authorized by this section. The former establishes the allegations of the complaint and concludes by way of estoppel, while the latter "establishes a right of action in the plaintiff of the kind stated in the complaint" the precise character and extent of which remain to be determined by a hearing in damages and final judgment thereon. DeHoff v. Black, 206 N. C. 687, 689, 175 S. E. 179.

Where Action Sounds in Damages. — In an action sounding in damages, for an unliquidated money demand, the judgment should be by default and inquiry. Moore v. Mitchell, 61 N. C. 304.

In actions sounding in damages, as in assumpsit, covenant and trespass, a judgment by default is only interlocutory, and the amount of damages must be ascertained by a jury. But in actions not sounding in damage it is held, that if the plaintiff's claim for damages is precise and final by the agreement of the parties, or can be rendered certain by mere computation, there is no need of proof, as the judgment by default admits the claim. An inquiry is necessary only where the claim is uncertain. Adrian v. Jackson, 75 N. C. 536, 539, cited in note in 20 L. R. A., N. S., 23.

Where a complaint has been properly filed showing a right of action for unliquidated damages, a judgment by default and inquiry establishes plaintiff's right of action and that he is entitled at least to nominal damages. And in this State it is further held that such a judgment concludes on all issuable facts properly pleaded and that evidence in bar of plaintiff's right of action is not admissible on the inquiry as to damages. DeHoff v. Black, 206 N. C. 687, 689, 175 S. E. 179.

Action on Official Bond. — See note of Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668. Section 595,—Analysis Line, "Definite Debt." Also 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 53.

Action on Contract for Goods Sold and Delivered. — See note of Jeffries v. Aaron, 120 N. C. 167, 26 S. E. 496, Section 595—Analysis Line, "Definite Debt." Also 8 N. C. Enc. Dig 55.

Where Amount Cannot Be Ascertained by Computation. —Where it appears that the amount of the final judgment on default of answer could not be ascertained by computation or be fixed by the terms of the contract sued on, it is proper to enter judgment by default and inquiry. Skinner v. Terry, 107 N. C. 103, 12 S. E. 118.

Time of the Inquiry. — An inquiry as to damages cannot be executed at the same term or that at which judgment by default is rendered, unless it is expressly allowed by statute. Brown v. Rinehart, 112 N. C. 772, 774, 16 S. E. 840.

Where it appears on appeal that the inquiry was made at the same term the cause will be remanded so that the inquiry may be made as this section provides. And this is true although the defendant was in the courtroom and did not except to the inquiry or to the submission of the issues there in the capacity of a witness for plaintiff. As to whether a party may waive this provision of the statute, quaere? Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

§ 597. By default for defendant.—If the answer contains a statement of new matter constituting a counterclaim, and the plaintiff fails to reply or demur thereto, the defendant may move for such judgment as he is entitled to upon such statement; and if the case requires it, an order for an inquiry of damages by a jury may be made. (Rev., s. 558; Code, s. 249; C. C. P., s. 106).

Editor's Note. — In the dissenting opinion by Walker, J., in Wilmington v. Bryan, 141 N. C. 666, 682, 54 S. E. 543, it is intimated that in view of the fact that the section does not expressly make provision for the defendant taking judgment for the excess of his counterclaim, as is the case of the plaintiff whose claim exceeds the defendant's counterclaim, it is contemplated that there be rendered a separate judgment for the respective claims of the parties. But there was an inclination to construe the section so as to conform with the general spirit of the code that all controversies should be settled in one action and as far as possible by one judgment.

Section Applicable Only Where Affirmative Relief Sought. —It is only when a counterclaim is relied on as grounds for substantial relief that the plaintiff's failure to reply may afford grounds for a judgment for want of a replication, but not when the matter constitutes a defense to the action merely. Barnhardt v. Smith, 86 N. C. 473, 483.

Where Defendant's Counterclaim Unanswered. — Where the defendant seeks substantial relief in his answer, by way of counterclaim, and the plaintiff fails to reply (or demur) thereto in apt time, the defendant is entitled to judgment for such relief as the facts therein set forth may warrant. Dempsey v. Rhodes, 93 N. C. 120, 127, and the defendant is entitled to judgment even though the objection to his counterclaim would have been refused if it had been made in apt time and form. Rountree v. Britt, 94 N. C. 104.

Where in an action in which defendants set up a counterclaim, the plaintiff failing to reply thereto, and the defendants failed to except to a refusal of their motion for judgment by default, it was held, that the defendants had waived the right to judgment on their counterclaim for want of a reply. Faucette v. Ludden, 117 N. C. 170, 171, 23 S. E. 173.

Recovery by Administrator Prior to That on Defendant's Counterclaim. — Where an administrator recovers judgment upon his cause of action, and the defendant also upon his counterclaim, the former is entitled to an execution for the entire amount of his recovery; but the execution on the defendant's judgment will be stayed until it is ascertained what amount of the assets of the estate of the intestate is applicable thereto. Rountree v. Britt, 94 N. C. 104.

§ 597(a). Judgment by default where no answer filed; record; force; docket.—If no answer is filed, the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment by default final or default and inquiry as authorized by sections 595, 596, and 597, and all present or future amendments of the said sections; and all judgments by default final shall be duly recorded by the clerk and be docketed and indexed in the same manner as judgments rendered in term, and in all respects be and become judgments of the superior court and be of the same force and effect as if rendered in term and before a judge of the superior court; and in all cases of judgment by default and inquiry rendered by the clerk, the clerk shall docket the case in the superior court at term time for trial upon the issues raised before a jury, or otherwise, as provided by law, and all judgments by default and inquiry shall be of the same force and effect as if rendered in term and before a judge of the superior court. (Ex. Sess., 1921, c. 92, s. 9.)

Cited in Earle v. Earle, 198 N. C. 411, 151 S. E. 884.

§ 597(b). Time for entering judgments; liens.— No judgment shall be entered by the clerk except as herein otherwise provided, except on every Monday of each month. The liens of all judgments rendered on the same Mondays shall each be of equal priority, and each Monday shall be held and construed, in determining the priority of judgment liens, as a term of court, and the first day thereof. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 10; 1923, c. 68.)

Editor's Note. — The act of 1923 amended this section by authorizing the clerk to render judgment on every Monday of each month instead of on the first and third Monday. It is said in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 283, that since the clerk is required to be personally in his office on every Monday for the transaction of probate business, this gives him a greater latitude for disposing of civil actions in which he may render judgment. See also 1 N. C. Law Rev. 17.

It was also pointed out in the Law Review article that the failure of the amendment to apply to section 597(c), was probably an oversight. The purpose of the 1925 amendment to section 597(c) was to cure the oversight and make the practice uniform in this respect.

By the Act of 1927, chapter 187, section 1, the legislature of North Carolina provided: "That in every case where, prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven, a judgment by default final has been entered by the clerk of the Superior Court of any county in this State on a day other than Monday, contrary to section five hundred and ninety-seven (b) and nine hundred and ninety-seven (c), volume three, Consolidated Statutes, such judgment shall be deemed to have been entered as of the first Monday immediately following the default and is hereby to all intents and purposes validated; 'Provided, however, nothing in this act shall be construed to affect the rights of any interested party, as provided in section six hundred of Consolidated Statutes, volume three, other than for irregularity as to date of entry of the judgment by the clerk of the court.' That this act shall not apply to pending litigation."

This section does not apply to judgments by consent, which were rendered, as authorized by § 593, on a day other than a Monday. Hood v. Wilson, 208 N. C. 120, 123, 179 S. E. 425.

Cited in Earle v. Earle, 198 N. C. 411, 414, 151 S. E. 884.

§ 597(c). Time for entering judgment where copy of complaint served on defendant. — If the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall cause a copy of the complaint to be served upon any of the defendants, either at the time of issuing summons or thereafter, then judgment shall be entered by the clerk as to the defendants served on any Monday after the expiration of time to answer. (Ex Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 11; 1925, c. 16.)

See Editor's note to the preceding section.

§ 598. Rendered in vacation.—In all cases where the superior court in vacation has jurisdiction, and all of the parties unite in the proceedings, they may apply for relief to the superior court in vacation, or in term time, at their election. (Rev., s. 559; Code, s. 230; 1871-2, c. 3.)

Judgment May Be Taken out of Term by Consent. — By consent of the counsel of both sides, a judgment may be entered in vacation. Westhall v. Hoyle, 141 N. C. 337, 53 S. E. 863, and cases cited.

Amendment of Judgment after Adjournment without Consent Invalid. — An amendment of a judgment made by a judge after the last session of the court, in his room at a hotel, without the consent, and in the absence of the opposing counsel, is invalid. Hinton v. Insurance Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.

§ 599. On frivolous pleading.—If a demurrer, answer or reply is frivolous, the party prejudiced thereby may apply to the court or judge for judgment thereon, which may be given accordingly. (Rev., s. 560; Code, s. 388; C. C. P., s. 218.)

For full treatment of this subject see Pleading, 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 207.

Purpose of the Section. — The main object of this section is to prevent the rights of one of the parties from being prejudiced by the impertinent and unwarranted pleadings of the other, and to accomplish this result the provision of the section, when brought into operation, simply sets the demurrer (or answer) aside, and leaves the party prejudiced by it to obtain his judgment as if it had not been filed. Shinner v. Terry, 107 N. C. 103, 12 S. E. 118.

Nature of Frivolous Answer. — A frivolous answer, entitling the plaintiff to a judgment on the pleadings, is one which is manifestly impertinent, as alleging matters which do not affect the plaintiff's right to recover. Dail & Bros. v. Harper, 83 N. C. 5, 8.

When the answer is filed in good faith, and the matter of it is not manifestly impertinent, the defendant is entitled to have the facts alleged therein admitted by demurrer or passed on by the jury. Dail & Bros. v. Harper, 83 N. C. 5.

Its Bad Character Should Be Apparent. — An answer should never be held frivolous unless it is so clearly and palpably bad as to require no argument or illustration to show its character. Hull Co. v. Carter, 83 N. C. 249.

Manner of Objecting. — On the refusal of the court to hold the answer frivolous, no appeal lies, but the plaintiff should have their exception noted in the record, and if they should lose their case at the trial term the exception would then come up on appeal from the final judgment, or by motion for judgment non abstante veredicto. Walters v. Starnes, 118 N. C. 842, 24 S. E. 713; Joyner v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 111, 113, 16 S. E. 917; Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 89, 90, 31 S. E. 271.

Judgment on Frivolous Answer.—When the complaint in an action on a note is verified, judgment may be rendered on a frivolous answer. Bank v. Pearson, 119 N. C. 494, 26 S. E. 46.

Nature of Frivolous Demurrer. — A demurrer is not frivolous that raises a question fit for consideration or discussion. New Bern Banking Co. v. Duffy, 156 N. C. 83, 72 S. E. 96.

Relief. — When a demurrer to the complaint is frivolous, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment by default, unless the trial court is of the opinion that in the exercise of a discretion the facts justify permission to answer over. Morgan v. Harris, 141 N. C. 358, 54 S. E. 381.

Cited in Shuford v. Yarbrough, 198 N. C. 5, 150 S. E. 618.

§ 600. Mistake, surprise, excusable neglect.—The judge shall, upon such terms as may be just, at any time within one year after notice thereof, relieve a party from a judgment, order, verdict or other proceeding taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect, and may supply an omission in any proceeding. The clerk may hear and pass upon motions to set aside judgments rendered by him, whether for irregularity or under this section, and an appeal from his order on such motion shall lie to the judge at the next term, who shall hear and pass upon such motion de novo: Provided, however, nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the rights of innocent purchasers for value in foreclosure proceedings where personal service is obtained. (Rev., s. 513; Code, s. 274; 1893, c. 81; C. C. P., s. 133; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 14.)

I. IN GENERAL.

See note under § 536.

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section was added by the Ex. Sess. of 1921.

The older decisions indicate that this section received, at first, a rather strict construction and the party seeking relief hereunder was required to show that his case fell within the accepted definition, which was a rigid one, of the particular term on which he based his request. However, the courts, in the more recent cases, have been far more liberal. The statute is remedial in its nature and bespeaks the legislative intent for the courts to discover the substantial rights and equities of the parties and to prevent as far as possible the miscarriage of justice because of some technical rule of law.

In reference to the conflicting decisions under this section, the court in Depriest v. Patterson, 85 N. C. 376, 378, said: "The cases are numerous and not in entire harmony upon the proper rendering of this statute, which enlarges the authority of the court over its own judgments, and permits, in specified cases, their reversal (or modification) within a year after notice of their rendition, at the discretion of the court." (Parenthesis supplied).

Applies only to Matters of Fact.—This section does not extend to mistakes as to the law applicable, but only as to matters of facts by which the party may reasonably be misled or surprised. Skinner v. Terry, 107 N. C. 103, 12 S. E. 118.

Applicable to Both Adult and Infant Parties.—In application for relief under this section no distinction is made between adult and infant parties, provided the latter are represented according to the requirements of the law and the practice of the court. Mauney v. Gidney, 88 N. C. 200.

Not Applicable to Irregular Verdicts.—Where an irregular verdict is rendered by the court the same cannot be set aside or altered under the provisions of this section. Becton v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 559, 50 S. E. 289; Gough v. Bell, 180 N. C. 268, 104 S. E. 535.

Where Judgment Rendered on Verdict.—The statute, in conferring the power, confines its exercise to judgments rendered under the specified conditions, and does not embrace such as necessarily follow the verdict, and the setting aside of which, without at the same time disturbing the verdict, would be of no advantage to the party, for it must again be entered in response to the jury findings. Flowers v. Alford, 111 N. C. 248, 16 S. E. 319. Hence, where a judgment has been rendered on a verdict the judgment and verdict may not be set aside for excusable neglect under this section. Brown v. Rhinehart, 112 N. C. 772, 777, 16 S. E. 840; Clemmons v. Field, 99 N. C. 400, 6 S. E. 790.

Applicable only to Judgments Rendered at Prior Terms.—A motion to set aside a judgment for excusable neglect, made at the time the judgment was signed, will be denied, such matters being in fieri during the term, as this section applies only to judgments rendered at prior terms. Gold v. Maxwell, 172 N. C. 149, 90 S. E. 115.

Excusable Neglect and Meritorious Defense.—A judgment may be set aside under this section if the moving party can show excusable neglect, and that he has a meritorious defense. Dunn v. Jones, 195 N. C. 354, 356, 142 S. E. 320. And see Henderson Chevrolet Co. v. Ingle, 202 N. C. 158, 162 S. E. 219; Bowie v. Tucker, 206 N. C. 56, 59, 173 S. E. 28, affirming 197 N. C. 671, 150 S. E. 200.

The action of the trial court in setting aside the judgment for surprise and excusable neglect, etc., and placing the parties in statu quo, will be upheld on appeal, under this section, the record disclosing that the answer of the defendant set up a meritorious defense. Cagle v. Williamson, 200 N. C. 727, 158 S. E. 391.

The court's order setting aside the judgment by default against the corporation that had not been properly served with summons on the ground of excusable neglect was not error, the motion having been made in apt time and a meritorious defense also being found as a fact upon supporting evidence. Hershey Corp. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 203 N. C. 184, 165 S. E. 550.

Where a cause has been remanded to the State from the Federal court by the latter court, and the clerk of the former court has had entered, without notice to defendant, a judgment by default and inquiry for the want of an answer, pending the disposition of the cause in the Federal Court, and the order of remand has been regularly made, upon motion of the plaintiff's attorney, the judge of the Superior Court of the State having jurisdiction may set aside the judgment by default and inquiry upon the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, upon the showing of a meritorious defense. Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

Where the judge presiding at a term of the Superior Court corrects a judgment he has inadvertently signed dismissing the action, and in the absence of the defendant, enters a judgment sustaining a demurrer to the complaint and granting the parties additional time in which to file amended pleadings, and the plaintiff files an amended complaint, a copy of which the defendant fails to receive, and the clerk grants a judgment by default and inquiry thereon, the action of the trial court at a succeeding term setting aside such judgment for excusable neglect without a finding of a meritorious defense will be reversed. Bowie v. Tucker, 197 N. C. 671, 150 S. E. 200.

Meritorious Defense Must Be Shown.—In order to set aside a judgment for mistake, surprise or excusable neglect, there must be a showing of a meritorious defense so that the courts can reasonably pass upon the question whether another trial, if granted, would result advantageously for the defendant. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Duke, 187 N. C. 386, 122 S. E. 1; Hill v. Huffines Hotel Co., 188 N. C. 586, 125 S. E. 266. See also Fellos v. Allen, 202 N. C. 375, 162 S. E. 905.

A party seeking to have a judgment set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, must at least set forth in his application such a case as prima facie amounts to a valid defence; whether the defence is valid, is a question to be determined by the court, not by the party. Mauney v. Gidney, 88 N. C. 200.

Same—When Defendant Non Compos Mentis.—A judgment obtained against one who was non compos mentis is not void, but voidable, and can only be set aside for excusable neglect and the showing of a meritorious defense. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Duke, 187 N. C. 386, 122 S. E. 1.

Under this section a verification of a complaint which is in substantial compliance with the law is not a sufficient ground for setting aside a judgment entered by default. Fellos v. Allen, 202 N. C. 375, 376, 162 S. E. 905.

Where the trial court upon conflicting evidence finds as a fact that the summons in the action was in fact served on the defendant, the finding is conclusive. Hooker v. Forbes, 202 N. C. 364, 162 S. E. 903.

Consent Judgment.—Where the court enters a judgment on its record appearing to have been by the consent of the parties, it cannot thereafter be changed or altered, or set aside, without the consent of the parties to it, unless it appears, upon proper allegation and proof and a finding of the court wherein it had been entered, that it was obtained by fraud or mutual mistake, or that consent had not in fact been given, the burden is on the party attacking the judgment to show facts which will entitle him to relief. Gardiner v. May, 172 N. C. 192, 89 S. E. 955.

Where, upon a motion to set aside a judgment for surprise and excusable neglect as provided by this section, on the ground that the judgment was a consent judgment and was signed by movant's attorney without authority, and a motion to set aside the consent judgment for such want of authority by movant's attorney, the court finds, upon evidence by affidavits, that the attorney was duly authorized to sign the judgment for movant, the finding is conclusive on the Supreme Court upon appeal, and the order refusing the motions will be upheld. Alston v. Southern Ry. Co., 207 N. C. 114, 176 S. E. 292.

Valid Judgment Regularly Entered.—In order for the trial judge to set aside a judgment of the clerk of court, for default of an answer, under this section, the judgment must be a valid one and regularly entered. Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

The "Mistake, etc.," Must Be of the Party Seeking Relief.—This section applies only where the mistake, surprise, etc. is that of the party seeking relief and has no application where the mistake, and surprise arises from the fraudulent conduct of another. Boyden v. Williams, 80 N. C. 95; nor where a motion is made to correct an erroneous judgment rendered at a former term if it appears that the error committed was that of the court and not that of the party. Simmons v. Dowd, 77 N. C. 155.

Time.—A party operating under this section has a right to set aside a judgment rendered against him within a year after notice thereof. Howell v. Harrell, 71 N. C. 161, 162; Long v. Cole, 74 N. C. 267; and where the motion is not made within such time it is fatal to the proceedings. Young v. Greenlee, 85 N. C. 593, 594. But an irregular judgment need not be set aside within this period. Monroe v. Whitted, 79 N. C. 508, 510.

Same—Estimation of Period Allowed.—Where the judgment complained of is rendered on a summons personally served within the jurisdiction, this one-year period shall be estimated from its rendition. Lee v. McCracken, 170 N. C. 575, 87 S. E. 497; McLean v. McLean, 84 N. C. 366.

Personal Notice Required.—The language "through his" contained in this section indicates personal knowledge. Foster v. Allison Corp., 191 N. C. 166, 131 S. E. 648. Where not personally served, the party may make his motion within twelve months after actual notice of the judgment. McLean v. McLean, 84 N. C. 366, 367; Jernigan v. Jernigan, 178 N. C. 84, 100 S. E. 184.

Where a party has been brought into court by the personal service of a summons, or voluntarily does so as a party defendant, he is presumed to take notice of all the various legal steps in the proceedings, and when he seeks to have a judgment therein rendered set aside after notice, etc., he must show the surprise, mistake or excusable neglect necessary for his purpose within one year, under the provisions of this section. Foster v. Allison Corp., 191 N. C. 166, 131 S. E. 648; Askew v. Capehart, 79 N. C. 17.

Where judgment was rendered against the defendant in a justice's court, from which he appealed to the superior court, where judgment was again rendered against him, he making no defence to the action, and more than one year after the docketing of the judgment the judge of the superior court sets the same aside and ordered the case to be reopened on the ground that defendant had no notice of the judgment, it was held to be error. McDaniel v. Watkins, 76 N. C. 399.

Same—Where Service Had by Publication. — Where the summons is served by publication the rights of the parties are more directly affected and controlled by sec. 492 of the Code not under this section. Bank v. Palmer, 153 N. C. 501, 69 S. E. 507; Foster v. Allison Corp., 191 N. C. 166, 131 S. E. 648.

Applicable in Supreme Court.—Although this section, in terms, applies only to a judge of the superior court, the spirit and equity of its provisions extend equally to the Supreme Court, and the same power resides here to relieve from a judgment taken against a party through "mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable negligence." Wade v. New Bern, 73 N. C. 318, 319.

Facts Must be Stated.—Before a judge can vacate a judgment under this section on the grounds of excusable neglect he must find and state the facts. Clegg v. New York White Soapstone Co., 66 N. C. 391; Powell v. Weith, 66 N. C. 423.

Nature of Question Involved.—The mistake, surprise, inadvertence or excusable neglect, as a ground for relieving a party from a judgment, etc., is a question of law, and if the judge below errs in his ruling in regard thereto, his decision is subject to review. Powell v. Weith, 68 N. C. 342, 343.

Applied in Anderson v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 202 N. C. 835, 162 S. E. 922; Spell v. Arthur, 205 N. C. 405, 171 S. E. 171.

Cited in Buchanan v. B. & D. Coach Line, 194 N. C. 812, 813, 140 S. E. 439; Union Nat. Bank v. Hagaman, 208 N. C. 191, 193, 179 S. E. 759.

II. THE RELIEF.

Discretionary with the Judge.—The application for relief under this section is addressed to the discretion of the judge presiding. Bank v. Foote, 77 N. C. 131, 132.

The discretion to set aside a judgment is not given by this section, unless there has been excusable neglect. If the judge finds correctly that the negligence was inexcusable, that ends the motion; if he finds correctly that the negligence was excusable or not, his discretion to set aside is not reviewable, unless in case of gross abuse of discretion. Norton v. McLaurin, 125 N. C. 185, 34 S. E. 269. As to setting aside the judgment see note of Beck v. Bellamy, 93 N. C. 129—analysis line, "Pleading and Practice."

The setting aside of a judgment under this section is in the sound legal discretion of the trial judge. Dunn v. Jones, 195 N. C. 354, 142 S. E. 320.

Nature of Relief.—A judgment may be set aside, in whole or in part; the court is invested by the statute with full legal discretion over the matter. Geer v. Reams, 88 N. C. 197, 198.

Refusal to Entertain Motion.—The provisions of this section make it discretionary with a judge whether he will relieve a party against a judgment taken against him through his "inadvertence, mistake, surprise, or excusable neglect." If a judge refuses to entertain a motion to set aside a judgment for any of the enumerated causes, because he thinks he has no power to grant it, then there is error, and he has failed to exercise the discretion conferred on him by law. Hudgins v. White, 65 N. C. 393.

Injunction Improper. — An injunction to restrain plaintiff from executing his judgment against defendant will not be granted. The proper remedy to remove an alleged grievance is an application to modify the terms of the judgment. Parker v. Bledsoe, 87 N. C. 221; Walker v. Gurley, 83 N. C. 429, 430.

Modification by One Judge of Judgment Rendered by Another.—Where on notice and showing that there was on the part of the complainant a mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect by which he was injured, the judgment rendered against him may be modified by a judge other than the one by whom it was rendered. Johnson v. Marcom, 121 N. C. 83, 28 S. E. 58.

Effect of Availability of Other Relief.—The fact that a plaintiff may, when nonsuited, bring a new action within a year does not prevent the judgment from being set aside, like any other judgment, on the ground of excusable neglect, but to authorize the court to set aside such a judgment excusable neglect must clearly appear. Stith v. Jones, 119 N. C. 428, 25 S. E. 1022.

III. APPLICATION OF THE PRINCIPLES.

A. Neglect of Party.

Cross Reference.—For treatment of neglect in general, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 64; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 544, 545.

For the personal inattention of a suitor no relief can be granted under this section. Royster & Co. v. Wicker, 87 N. C. 14, 15.

Where Summons Regularly Served.—A party is guilty of inexcusable neglect, and is not entitled to relief against a judgment rendered against him, where it appears that a summons was regularly served, and he paid no attention to the case either in person or by attorney, even although he supposed he was not required by the law to answer the complaint until served with a copy. Churchill v. Brooklyn Life Ins. Co., 88 N. C. 205.

Mistake as to Nature of Summons.—The fact that a defendant supposed a summons which was served on him to be a paper in another cause pending between himself and plaintiff, and for that reason did not take any measure to answer the same, is not such excusable neglect as entitled him to relief. White v. Snow, 71 N. C. 232, 233. See Holden v. Purefoy, 108 N. C. 163, 167, 12 S. E. 848, where relief was granted a party who thought he was being summoned as a witness when in fact he was summoned as the defendant.

Where Party Very Old and Forgetful.—That the defendants were old and feeble, although of sound mind, and that they forgot about the service of summons upon them, and therefore took no steps to defend the action does not show excusable neglect. Pierce v. Eller, 167 N. C. 672, 83 S. E. 758.

Sickness of Party.—Where the defendant was of sound mind, and, though his bodily infirmities confined him, carried on business and defended other suits, a default judgment against such defendant will not be vacated on account of excusable neglect, because of his infirmities. Jernigan v. Jernigan, 179 N. C. 237, 102 S. E. 310.

Sickness of Family.—Where the defendant indorser of a note was required by the illness of his wife to be outside the state, and the complaint was filed on the first day of the term, and judgment by default was entered two days later, there was sufficient excuse for failure to answer to justify the opening of the default. Bank v. Brock, 174 N. C. 547, 94 S. E. 301.

Where Party Obligated to Question His Counsel.—While, as a general rule a client will be relieved against a judgment by default taken against him through the negligence of his attorney, yet where it devolves upon the client to question his counsel in regard to his case, his failure to do so is inexcusable neglect and relief will be denied. Holland v. Edgecombe Benev. Ass'n, 176 N. C. 86, 97 S. E. 150.

Where the defendant, upon the suggestion of his counsel, allows judgment by default to go against him, he cannot, upon discovering that the recovery is greater than he had anticipated, seek relief under this section for his action does not amount to excusable neglect. State v. Matthews, 81 N. C. 289.

Where Endeavor Is Made to Compromise.—Judgment by default for the want of an answer will not be set aside for excusable neglect, when it was regularly entered at the preceding term of the court, and it appears that the moving party, after endeavoring to compromise, promised to send at once the amount sued for, failed to do so, and his attorney had been notified before the commencement of the term at which the judgment was entered that this course would be taken. Union Guano Co. v. Middlesex Supply Co., 181 N. C. 210, 106 S. E. 832.

Misled by Conversation of Counsel.—The fact that the party was misled by a conversation between his counsel and the attorney for the adversary does not entitle him to relief under this section. Hutchinson v. Rumfelt, 83 N. C. 441, 443.

Change of Post Office.—A judgment by default will not be set aside on the ground of excusable neglect, when it appears that defendants changed their postoffice and did not receive the answer mailed to them by their counsel until eleven months after it was mailed, no inquiry for letters having been made by them at their former postoffice, and no communication being addressed to their counsel concerning the matter until eleven months after the time for answering the complaint had expired. Vick v. Baker, 122 N. C. 98, 29 S. E. 64.

Attorney's Death within Knowledge of Client.—Where an attorney, in whose hands a cause has been placed, dies and the client has notice of such fact and fails to file his answer at the proper time, he cannot later claim relief under this section on the ground of excusable neglect. Simpson v. Brown, 117 N. C. 482, 23 S. E. 441.

Under this section wife's neglect to file answer upon assurances of her husband that he would do so is excusable in joint action against them. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Turner, 202 N. C. 162, 162 S. E. 221.

Absence from Trial.—It is the duty of a party to be present in court at the trial of his cause for the performance of matters outside the proper duties of his attorney, and where he without cause remains out of court, he cannot claim relief under this section as his act amounts to inexcusable neglect. Cobb v. O'Hagan, 81 N. C. 293.

But the fact that an order in the cause which in effect deprived the plaintiff of the right of appeal, was made at midnight when the plaintiff was absent and did not know, and had no reason to believe that the court was in session, and his counsel not being able to attend to the trial, constitutes a case of "excusable neglect." Long v. Cole, 74 N. C. 267.

Applied in Colt Co. v. Martin, 201 N. C. 354, 160 S. E. 287.

For full treatment of the subject, see 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 545.

Editor's Note.—As to what acts of an attorney are or are not attributable to the client, the courts do not appear to be entirely in accord. All seem to adhere to the same general principles, but an almost irreconcilable conflict arises upon the application of these principles to the particular cases. The ruling in each case had been predicated upon one or two outstanding features found therein, and the great weight attached thereto by the courts. A few of the leading cases illustrative of the applicability of the provisions of this section to this particular subject are found in the following passages.

Dividing Line between the Cases Difficult to Determine.—It is difficult to deduce any distinct practical principle from the numerous adjudications, or to run a well-defined line separating those neglects that are, from those that are not excusable in the sense of the statute, and hence the facts relied on must be arranged on the one and then on the other side of that line, in each case as they arise. Mebane v. Mebane, 80 N. C. 34, 40.

Gross Negligence of Attorney.—The omission of an attorney, retained as counsel in a cause, to perform his duty as such in the conduct of the cause is excusable neglect in the party, and the judgment may be vacated under this section. Wiley v. Logan, 94 N. C. 564, 566; Griel v. Vernon, 65 N. C. 76; and this is especially true where the counsel is insolvent and unable to respond in damages for his negligence. Ice Mfg. Co. v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 125 N. C. 17, 24, 34 S. E. 100. This view was adopted in English v. English, 87 N. C. 497, and also in Deal v. Palmer, 68 N. C. 215.

Where Reputable Counsel Employed.—Where a party to an action employs a reputable attorney and is guilty of no negligence himself, the attorney's negligence in failing to appear and answer will not be imputed to such parties in proceeding to vacate default judgment, but the law will excuse the party and afford him relief. Stallings v. Spruill, 176 N. C. 121, 96 S. E. 890.

Where defendants who employed counsel, learned in the law, and skillful and diligent in its practice, whose zeal and fidelity to the cause of a client are unquestioned, verified their answers promptly and intrusted them to their attorneys for filing, attorneys' failure to file the answers within time required by law was not due to such negligence on part of defendants as deprived the judge of power to grant them relief from a default judgment under this section. Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

Where a defendant has employed a licensed, reputable attorney of good standing, residing in one county of the state, to defend an action brought in another county, and has put him in possession of the facts constituting his defense, and the attorney has prepared and duly filed an answer, and the case has been calendared and called for trial without notice to the defendant or his attorney, upon a judgment being obtained by default against the defendant, the defendant may, upon his motion aptly made, have the judgment set aside for surprise, excusable neglect, etc., under this section upon a showing of a meritorious defense, the negligence of the attorney, if any, not being imputed to the client, and the latter being without fault. Meece v. Commercial Credit Co., 201 N. C. 139, 159 S. E. 17.

This section has no bearing on a case of neglect to file answer to a summons and complaint. Washington v. Hodges, 200 N. C. 364, 156 S. E. 912.

Where Counsel Instructed to Employ Other Counsel.—Where the defendant in an action has retained an attorney for his defense, of high character and reputation for diligence and faithfulness in the practice of his profession, with instructions to employ an attorney local to the litigation, and has fully relied on him to notify him of the steps necessary to be taken in his defense, and seeks to set aside a judgment by default therein entered against him for his failure to answer, the laches of the attorney, if any, nothing else appearing, is not attributable to the defendant and the order of the superior court setting aside the judgment for his excusable neglect when otherwise counsel will be sustained on appeal. Helderman v. Hartsell Mills Co., 192 N. C. 626, 135 S. E. 627.

Where Counsel Notified by Mail.—The refusal of a motion as provided by this section, to set aside a judgment for surprise and excusable neglect will be upheld where the trial court finds from competent evidence that notice of the time set for trial was duly sent movant's counsel through the mail, but was not received by him. Clayton v. Adams, 206 N. C. 920, 175 S. E. 185.

Client Misinformed by Attorney as to Time of Trial.—When a defendant moved to vacate a judgment, upon the ground of excusable neglect, and the excuse assigned was that his counsel, by mistake, had misinformed him as to the time of holding court whereby he failed to answer, it was held that the excuse was not sufficient, when the facts show that the defendant did not suffer harm by the mistake of his counsel. Clegg v. New York White Soapstone Co., 67 N. C. 302, 304.

Where an attorney has ample notice as to the day of the trial, the continued absence of the client for two successive calls is inexcusable neglect for which no relief can be had under this section. Henry v. Clayton, 85 N. C. 372, 374.

Disqualification of Counsel During Pendency of Trial.—Pending a reference, the counsel for a party to the action became disqualified, but the client, although having notice of the subsequent orders, proceedings, etc. in the cause, neglected to retain another counsel. It was held, that this did not require the court to set aside the report and recommit the matter passed upon therein. Smith v. Smith, 101 N. C. 461, 8 S. E. 128.

Where Attorney Withdraws.—Though an attorney may withdraw from a case with the permission of the court in proper instances, his client is entitled to such specific notice, either before or after the withdrawal, as will permit him to protect his rights, and where for the failure of such notice a judgment upon a verdict has been obtained against the client and he was without laches in moving to set it aside for surprise and excusable neglect upon a showing of a meritorious defense, it is correct for the trial judge to grant his motion under this section. Gosnell v. Hilliard, 205 N. C. 297, 171 S. E. 52.

Mistaken Legal Advice.—Mistaken legal advice by counsel acted on by client, is not remediable under this section—being a mistake of law and not of fact. Phifer v. Travellers Ins. Co., 123 N. C. 405, 406, 31 S. E. 715.

Attorney Prevented from Examining Complaint.—On motion to set aside a judgment on the ground of excusable negligence, it appeared that the defendant had twice called on the clerk to enter upon the docket the name of the attorney whom he had employed, and the clerk promised to do so. The attorney himself applied to the clerk to examine the plaintiff's complaint, but was unable to see it, and during the remainder of the term was absent in obedience to a summons as a witness, it was held that the defendant's neglect was excusable. Wynne v. Prairie, 86 N. C. 73.

Where Negligence of Attorney Attributable to Party.—A judgment will not be set aside for irregularity and surprise when it appears that it had come to issue and was regularly set upon the trial docket, and judgment entered in the due course and practice of the court, the only grounds upon which relief is sought being the employment of nonresident local attorneys, who were not notified, though means of easy communication in ample time were available, the neglect of the attorneys being personally attributable to the party of the action, whose duty it was also to attend to the action himself, as well as to employ attorneys for the purpose. Hyde County

Land, etc., Co. v. Thomasville Chair Co., 190 N. C. 437, 130 S. E. 12.

Failure of Defendant's Attorney to File Answer.—Where it appears upon the defendant's motion to set aside a judgment by default, pursuant to this section, that the same was regularly calendared for trial, the defendant had notice thereof and was afforded full opportunity to file his answer, but that his attorney had failed to do so, and that the judgment was accordingly rendered, he has not shown such excusable neglect as will entitle him to have the judgment set aside on his motion under the provisions of the statute. Gaster v. Thomas, 188 N. C. 346, 124 S. E. 609; but where no laches are attributable to the client he will be granted relief. Geer v. Reams, 88 N. C. 197, 198.

Removal to Federal Court.—Where the clerk has erroneously granted defendants' motion to remove a cause to the Federal Court under § 913(b), the moving defendants may assume that no further proceedings will be had in the State Court until the cause has been remanded from the Federal Court, and where a judgment by default and inquiry has been entered therein for the want of an answer, without notice, nothing else appearing to show laches on the part of defendants' attorneys upon relevant findings of the trial judge, including that of meritorious defense, the action of the trial judge in setting aside the judgment and permitting the defendant to file answer will not be disturbed on appeal. Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

C. Omissions.

Duty of Court to Supply Omissions.—It is the duty of every court to supply the omissions of its officers in recording its proceedings and to see that its record truly sets forth its action in each and every instance; and this it must do upon the application of any person interested, and without regard to its effect upon the rights of parties, or of third persons; and neither is it open to any other tribunal to call in question the propriety of the action or the verity of its records, as made —— and no lapse of time will debar the court of the power to discharge this duty. Walton v. Pearson, 85 N. C. 35, 49.

May Not Be Collaterally Attached.—The effect of an amendment made by the court cannot be collaterally considered, but must be done in a proceeding brought for that purpose. Foster v. Woodfin, 65 N. C. 29.

IV. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Burden of Proof.—A party seeking to vacate a judgment under this section is always at default and the burden is upon him to show facts which would make the refusal to vacate appear to be an abuse of discretion. Kerchner v. Baker, 82 N. C. 169, 170.

Filing of Affidavits.—In hearing a motion to set aside judgments under this section, there is no rule requiring the affidavits to be filed before the hearing of the motion is entered on. Jones v. Swepson, 94 N. C. 700, 706.

Failure of Judge to State the Facts Found.—When, in setting aside a judgment for excusable negligence, the judge does not state the ground on which he founded his order, his action will be upheld if in any aspect of the case it would be proper. Foley, Bro. & Co. v. Blank, 92 N. C. 476.

Rehearing.—A rehearing under this section is not a matter of right, but rests in the sound discretion of the court. Williams v. Alexander, 70 N. C. 665.

Appeal from Order of Clerk.—A motion to set aside and vacate a judgment entered by the clerk, as authorized by statute, may be made before and passed upon by either the judge or the clerk. From an order made by the judge, upon such motion, an appeal may be taken to this court, which has jurisdiction to pass upon and determine all matters of law or legal inference duly presented by appeal. Const. of N. C. art. 4, § 8. From an order made by the clerk, upon such motion, an appeal will lie to the judge, who shall hear and pass upon the motion, de novo. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329, 332.

The findings of fact by the trial judge upon an appeal from an order of the clerk denying defendant's motion to set aside a judgment under this section, are not reviewable when supported by competent evidence. Kerr v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 205 N. C. 410, 171 S. E. 367.

Presumption on Appeal.—When the court below refused a party permission to file an answer at a term subsequent to the time allowed by a former order, the appellate court must assume that the question of "excusable neglect" was passed upon. Clegg v. New York White Soapstone Co., 67 N. C. 302, 304.

Where no evidence appears in the case on appeal from an order setting aside a judgment for surprise and excusable neglect under this section, it will be presumed that the findings of fact are based upon sufficient evidence in the absence of exceptions to the findings, and the order will be affirmed where the findings sustain the court's holding that movants have shown excusable neglect and meritorious defense. Radeker v. Royal Pines Park, 207 N. C. 209, 176 S. E. 285.

Right of Appeal May be Lost.—The right of appeal from a judgment, and a review thereof for errors of law in it, cannot be restored to a party who has lost the right by a mere motion to vacate and an appeal from the refusal, whether founded on irregularity or for the causes under this section. Badger v. Daniel, 82 N. C. 468, 470.

Same—Certiorari.—The writ of certiorari, as a substitute for an appeal lost, as alleged in this case, will be granted only when the petitioner shows that he has been diligent, and there has been no laches on his part in respect to his appeal, and further, that his failure to take and perfect the same was occasioned by some act or misleading representation on the part of the opposing party, or some other person or cause in some way connected with it and not within his control. Graves v. Hines, 106 N. C. 323, 324, 11 S. E. 362. Williamson v. Boykin, 99 N. C. 238, 5 S. E. 378.

Questions Reviewable on Appeal.—Whether upon the facts found by the judge, the neglect of attorneys for defendants to file answers to the complaint within the time required by statute was excusable, or whether, in any event, such neglect was imputable to defendants, are questions of law, with respect to which the conclusions of the judge are reviewable on appeal. Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

Discretion of Judge Not Reviewable on Appeal.—The Supreme Court can review on appeal what is a mistake, surprise or excusable neglect under this section, but it cannot review the discretion exercised by a judge of the superior court under the section. Foley, Bro. & Co. v. Blank, 92 N. C. 476; Branch v. Walker, 92 N. C. 87, 91. But should the judge set aside a judgment upon a state of facts which did not bring the case within the scope of the statute, his action would be subject to correction on appeal. Beck v. Bellamy, 93 N. C. 129.

When the judge grants the relief, in the exercise of his discretion, that conclusion is also not reviewable; but whether the facts found constitute, in law, mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, may be reviewed, and if it be determined that the court below erred therein, the judgment will be corrected, and the motion remanded, to the end that the trial judge may exercise the discretion conferred on him alone by the statute. Weil & Bro. v. Woodard, 104 N. C. 94, 10 S. E. 129.

Same—Abuse of Discretionary Power.—The refusal of a motion to set aside a judgment on the grounds of surprise or excusable neglect is a matter of discretion with the judge below and cannot be reviewed on appeal, unless it should appear that such discretion was abused. Cowles v. Cowles, 121 N. C. 272, 273, 28 S. E. 476.

After hearing the evidence and finding the facts under this section, the action of the judge is conclusive upon the parties, from which there is no appeal; yet this discretion, however, is not arbitrary, but implies a legal discretion. As for instance, if the judge mistake the meaning of the statute as to what is "mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect." In such cases his judgment is the subject of appeal and review. Hudgins v. White, 65 N. C. 393; Albertson v. Terry, 108 N. C. 75, 77, 12 S. E. 892.

Where Remedy Sought by Independent Action.—The institution of an independent action in lieu of a renewal of the motion is such an abandonment of the remedy by motion as worked a discontinuance of the same. Norwood v. King, 86 N. C. 81, 85.

§ 601. Stands until reversed.—Every judgment given in a court of record having jurisdiction of the subject is, and continues to be, in force until reversed according to law. (Rev., s. 561; Code, s. 935; R. C., c. 31, s. 103; 4 Hen. IV, c. 23.)

Cross Reference.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 251, for note on the "Effect of judgment pending" with reference to this section.

Irregular Judgments.—Even though the judgment be irregular it stands until vacated or reversed, Stafford v. Gallops, 123 N. C. 19, 20, 31 S. E. 265; and such judgment may be corrected only in a direct proceeding. Pinnell v. Burroughs, 168 N. C. 315, 84 S. E. 364; Brown v. Harding, 170 N. C. 253, 86 S. E. 1010.

Applied in Myers v. Wilmington-Wrightsville, etc., Causeway Co., 204 N. C. 260, 167 S. E. 858.

Cited in Tallassee Power Co. v. Peacock, 197 N. C. 735, 150 S. E. 510.

§ 602. For and against whom given; failure to prosecute.—1. Judgment may be given for or against one or more of several plaintiffs, and for or against one or more of several defendants; and it may determine the ultimate rights of the parties on each side, as between themselves.

2. It may grant to the defendant any affirmative relief to which he may be entitled.

3. In an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment against one or more of them, leaving the action to proceed against the others, whenever a several judgment is proper.

4. The court may also dismiss the complaint, with costs in favor of one or more defendants, in case of unreasonable neglect on the part of the plaintiff to serve the summons on other defendants, or to proceed in the cause against the defendant or defendants served. (Rev., s. 563; Code, s. 424; C. C. P., s. 248.)

Editor's Note.—The primary object of the provisions of this section is to prevent as far as possible multiplicity of actions, and to settle in a single suit all the controverted matter arising or likely to arise out of the transaction. That this end may be accomplished the courts, wherever the particular case can be justly and equitably brought within the provisions of this section, have allowed, and sometimes compelled, the parties to submit and litigate all the issuable matters in one suit, whether the respective claim be against a party on the same side or against one on the other side.

Both Legal and Equitable Rights Recognized.—The courts in North Carolina are required to recognize both the legal and equitable rights of the parties, and to frame their judgments so as to determine all the rights of the parties, equitable as well as legal. Hutchinson v. Smith, 68 N. C. 354, 355; Melvin v. Stephens, 82 N. C. 284, 288. And this is true of any relief to which the facts alleged and proved entitle him, whether demanded in the prayer for relief or not. McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 52, 55, 11 S. E. 265.

Anyone or All May be Compelled to Answer.— The proper construction of this section is that when the plaintiffs bring the defendant into court to answer a claim for a debt which he owes them, he cannot only require them, but either one of them, to answer for a debt due him, whether it is connected specially with their debt against him or is an independent claim. Sloan & Co. v. McDowell, 71 N. C. 356, 358.

The Rights and Liabilities of the Defendants May be Determined.—The court is fully empowered under this section to determine the rights and liabilities of the defendants, not to the plaintiff but among themselves. Clark v. Williams, 70 N. C. 679, 684. And when in the exercise of their power a judgment is rendered in favor of a plaintiff and an affirmative one in favor of a defendant, they constitute but one judgment though written and attested separately. Hall v. Younts, 87 N. C. 285.

Where the Defense Set up Applies to Entire Res.—When a bill is filed for the specific performance of a contract to convey a tract of land, and the defendant alleges that the tract consists of two parts, of which he admits that he is the owner of one, but avers that the other belongs to his wife, and sets up a defense which, if good, applies to the whole contract, it is erroneous to make a decree in favor of the plaintiff as to the part of which the defendant admits he is the owner, and to reserve the question as to the other part. Swepson v. Rouse, 65 N. C. 34.

Primary and Secondary Liability.—The primary and secondary liability as between two joint tort-feasors should be adjusted in the same action, where there are two defendants sued for the same negligent act alleged in the complaint, and judgment in the consolidated cases accordingly may be rendered under this section. Bowman v. Greensboro, 190 N. C. 611, 130 S. E. 502.

Where Another Suit Pending.—The entire spirit of our code procedure is to avoid multiplicity of actions and where an action for damages arising by tort from a collision between automobiles has been brought by one of the parties, he may successfully plead the pendency of this action to one brought against him by the opposing party in another county, and have it dismissed, the remedy of the defendant in the second action being by way of counterclaim, pursuant to this section; and that relief may be asked for by each in his own action does not affect the fact that the subject of both actions is the same acts or transactions, to be determined by one judgment either for the plaintiff or defendant in the case. Allen v. Salley, 179 N. C. 147, 101 S. E. 545.

"Cross Complaint" Allowed.—Under this section the defendant is entitled to file a "cross complaint" to establish his rights in the premises and to seek the appropriate relief. Dillon v. Raleigh, 124 N. C. 184, 186, 32 S. E.. 548.

Same—Conformity to Original Complaint Required.—A cross action by a defendant against a co-defendant or third party must be in reference to the claim made by the plaintiff and based upon an adjustment of that claim. Independent and unrelated causes of action cannot be litigated by cross actions. Bowman v. Greensboro, 190 N. C. 611, 130 S. E. 502.

Recovery on Counterclaim.—Where an action on contract has originally and properly been brought in the superior court because of an equity involved, or its being for the possession of personal property, the recovery on a counterclaim, in the superior court, will not be denied for want of jurisdiction on the ground that the demand thereof was for a less sum than two hundred dollars, the jurisdiction as to matters of counterclaim coming within the provisions of C. S., sections 519, 521, and this section. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

Where There is Concert of Action Among the Defendants.—Where an injury is caused by the separate action of several persons whose interests are adverse to the plaintiff, it is proper under this section, to join them as defendants in an action for damages. Long v. Swindell, 77 N. C. 176.

Where, however, there is no unity of design or concert of action, and the separate action of each defendant causes the single injury, the share of each in causing it is separable and may be accurately measured. In such case the jury can properly assess several damages. Long v. Swindell, 77 N. C. 176.

In an action against a railroad company and the Director General of Railroads, following the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States, there is no liability upon the railroad company, but the action may be continued against the Director General under the provisions of this section, that a several judgment may be entered. Kimbrough v. R. R., ante, 234, cited and applied. Smith v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 182 N. C. 290, 109 S. E. 22.

§ 603. Against married women.—In an action brought by or against a married woman, judgment may be given against her for costs or damages or both, in the same manner as against other persons, to be levied and collected solely out of her separate estate. (Rev., 563.)

Where the Wife Can Sue and be Sued Alone.—It is not required that the wife, as such, prosecute or defend an action concerning the lands by guardian or next friend. Craddock v. Brinkley, 177 N. C. 125, 98 S. E. 280.

Same—Husband, When Joined, is the Agent of the Wife.—The joinder of the husband in an action maintainable against the wife alone, though unnecessary, makes the husband the agent of the wife, when she is not present in person or by attorney, for the purpose of the suit. Craddock v. Brinkley, 177 N. C. 125, 98 S. E. 280.

Judgment by Consent Not Binding on The Wife.—Where a married woman, pending an appeal by her from a personal judgment rendered against her husband on notes given for property bought by her husband and secured partly by a mortgage on her land, consented to withdraw the appeal and to allow a compromise judgment to be entered against her husband for a certain amount payable in installments, it was held, that she had no power to consent to such judgment, and it had no binding force on her although she was personally present and represented by counsel of her own selection at the time of its rendition. McLeod v. Williams, 122 N. C. 451, 30 S. E. 129.

§ 604. Nonsuit not allowed after verdict.—In actions where a verdict passes against the plaintiff, judgment shall be entered against him. (Rev., s. 1520; Code, s. 936; R. C., c. 31, s. 110; 2 Hen. IV, c. 7.)

Theory of Nonsuit Explained.—"A plaintiff can at any time before verdict withdraw his suit, or, as it is termed, 'take a nonsuit,' by absenting himself at the trial term. If he does so and fails to answer, when called, by himself or by his attorney, the court directs a nonsuit to be entered, the cost is taxed against him, and that is an end of the case. Even when the plaintiff appears at the trial, takes a part in it by challenging jurors, examining and cross-examining witnesses, and by the argument of his counsel, if he finds from an intimation of the court that the charge will be against him, he may submit to a nonsuit and appeal. This is every day's practice. It is based upon the idea that the plaintiff announces his purpose not to answer when called to hear the verdict, and the advantage is that the plaintiff can have his Honor's opinion reviewed, and should the decision of the Supreme Court be against him, he can commence another action; whereas if he allows a verdict to be entered it is conclusive unless set aside." Graham v. Tate, 77 N. C. 120. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Shore, 171 N. C. 51, 55, 87 S. E. 938.

The Principle Stated.—The principle would seem to be that a plaintiff may elect to be nonsuited in every case where no judgment other than for costs can be recovered against him by the defendant, and when such judgment may be recovered he cannot so elect. McKesson v. Mendenhall, 64 N. C. 502, 504.

Retirement of Jury for Correction of Formal Defect.—It is too late after verdict upon an issue or issues of fact for a plaintiff to take a nonsuit; and where the jury, after rendering a verdict, had returned to the jury-room to correct a mere formal defect in the verdict, and as they retired the counsel for plaintiff informed the trial judge that the plaintiff would take a nonsuit, there was no error in refusing it. Strause v. Sawyer, 133 N. C. 64, 45 S. E. 346.

Where Defendant Seeks Affirmative Relief.—When, by the pleadings, the plaintiff ceases to be merely an actor, and becomes also a defendant, as, for example, if the defendant seeks affirmative relief and demands judgment, the right to take a nonsuit ceases. McKesson v. Mendenhall, 64 N. C. 502, 504; McLean v. McDonald, 173 N. C. 429, 92 S. E. 148. But after a plea of tender or payment of money into court the plaintiff may take a nonsuit. Id.

Same—Counter Claim Must be Independent of Plaintiffs' Complaint.—When the counterclaim on a cause of action arises independently of that alleged in the complaint, the plaintiff may submit to a voluntary nonsuit as to his own cause of action. Yellowday v. Perkinson, 167 N. C. 144, 83 S. E. 341.

Same—Where Counterclaim Arises Out of Matter Set Forth in Complaint.—Where, however, the defendant's counterclaim arises out of the contract or transaction set forth in the complaint as the grounds of the plaintiff's cause of action, the plaintiff cannot take a nonsuit, this being placed on the principle that it is equitable and just that the right of the parties arising out of such contract be settled in one suit and at the same time. Yellowday v. Perkinson, 167 N. C. 144, 83 S. E. 341.

Where Interlocutory Order Entered.—An interlocutory judgment does not deprive a plaintiff of the right to take a nonsuit. Piedmont Mfg. Co. v. Buxton, 105 N. C. 74, 11 S. E. 264.

Nonsuit Not Allowed Where Defendant Wrongfully Dispossessed.—Whenever a defendant is wrongfully dispossessed of his land by legal process, he is entitled to a writ of restitution and an inquisition of damages in that action of which the plaintiff is not permitted to deprive him by taking a nonsuit. Lane v. Morton, 81 N. C. 38, 39.

Refusal to Allow Nonsuit after Verdict Not Reviewable.—Refusal of the superior court to allow a nonsuit after verdict and judgment will not be reviewed in the Supreme Court. Brown v. King, 107 N. C. 313, 12 S. E. 137.

§ 605. Party dying after verdict.—In no action shall the death of either party between the verdict and the judgment be alleged for error, if the judgment is entered within two terms after the verdict. (Rev., s. 564; Code, s. 938; R. C., c. 31, s. 112; 17 Charles II, c. 8.

Judgment for or against Deceased Parties.—The great weight of authority in this country is to the effect that where the court has acquired jurisdiction of the subject matter and the person during the lifetime of a party, a judgment for or against a deceased person is not wholly void or open to collateral attack. De La Vergne, etc., Mach. Co. v. Featherstone, 147 U. S. 209, 37 L. Ed. 138, 13 S. Ct. 283.

Judgment Neither Void nor Irregular.—A judgment in favor of a dead man is not void, and not, on that account, irregular. Wood v. Watson, 107 N. C. 52, 12 S. E. 49.

Judgment Against Dead Person Voidable.—A judgment against a party to a suit rendered after his death is voidable, even if the fact of death was unknown. Wood v. Watson, 107 N. C. 52, 12 S. E. 49.

Parties on Appeal.—If appeal by the adverse party was desired, the proper course was to make the heirs at law parties to the action, and serve notice of appeal upon them. Wood v. Watson, 107 N. C. 52, 12 S. E. 49.

§ 606. When limited by demand in complaint.—The relief granted to the plaintiff, if there is no answer, cannot exceed that demanded in his complaint; but in any other case the court may grant him any relief consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue. (Rev., s. 565; Code, s. 425; C. C. P., s. 249.)

Purpose of the Section.—The apparent purpose of this section, while simplifying the method of procedure, is to afford any relief to which the plaintiff may be entitled upon the facts set out in his complaint, although misconceived and not specially demanded in his prayer. Jones v. Mial, 79 N. C. 164, 168.

General Relief Where Answer Filed.—If there be an answer any relief may be granted which is consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue, although other and different relief may be sought by the pleader and demanded in the prayer for judgment. Wright v. Teutonia Ins. Co., 138 N. C. 488, 492, 51 S. E. 55; Bryan v. Canady, 169 N. C. 579, 86 S. E. 584; Council v. Bailey, 154 N. C. 54, 69 S. E. 760.

Relief Limited to That Demanded Where No Answer Filed.—Where no answer is filed then the relief shall not exceed that demanded in the complaint. Jones v. Mial, 82 N. C. 252, 257.

Where Improper Action Brought.—Where a plaintiff, in his complaint alleged and set out a case in trover, and the proof showed that it should have been in the nature of an assumpsit for money had and received, it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover, notwithstanding the variance. Oats, etc., Co. v. Kendall, 67 N. C. 241.

Where Amount Tendered is Larger than Amount Due.—The verdict of the jury rendered in an action upon a mortgage note will not be affected by a tender of a larger amount made before the commencement of the action, which was refused and not kept good, and the relief will be confined to that found to be due. DeBruhl v. Hood, 156 N. C. 52, 72 S. E. 83.

Cited in Bowie v. Tucker, 206 N. C. 56, 59, 173 S. E. 28.

§ 607. When passes legal title.—In any action wherein the court declares a party entitled to the possession of real or personal property, the legal title of which is in another party to the suit, and the court orders a conveyance of such legal title to him so declared to be entitled, or where, for any cause, the court orders that one of the parties holding property in trust shall convey the legal title to be held in trust to another person although not a party, the court, after declaring the right and ordering the conveyance, has power also, to be used in its discretion, to declare in the order then made, or in any made in the progress of the cause, that the effect thereof is to transfer to the party to whom the conveyance is directed to be made the legal title of the said property, to be held in the same plight, condition and estate as though the conveyance ordered were in fact executed; and shall bind and entitle the parties ordered to execute or to take benefit of the conveyance, in and to all such provisions, conditions and covenants as are adjudged to attend the conveyance, in the same manner and to the same extent as the conveyance would if the same were executed according to the order. A party taking benefit under the judgment has the same redress at law on account of the matter adjudged as he might on the conveyance, if the same had been executed. (Rev., s. 566; Code, s. 426; R. C., c. 32, s. 24; 1850, c. 107; 1874-5, c. 17.)

Strict Conformity with the Section Required. — A decree does not operate as a conveyance, unless it complies with the requirements of this section and section 608 declaring "that it shall be regarded as a deed of conveyance" ——— and the mere fact that the court, while omitting this statement, intended that the decree should have such effect, is not sufficient for this purpose. Morris v. White, 96 N. C. 91, 2 S. E. 254.

This decision was criticized in the case of Evans v. Brendle, 173 N. C. 149, 91 S. E. 723, it was said that a too narrow construction was being given to the statute. The precise point arose in both cases, namely, the failure of the court to insert in the decree the words "that it shall be regarded as a deed of conveyance," although it was left undecided in the Evans case, the court merely expressing its disfavor as to the former holding and then resting its own decision upon a different ground. In the dissenting opinion in Evans v. Brendle, in which two justices concurred, much weight is attached to the argument used by the court in Morris v. White. Ed. Note.

Same—Where Specific Performance Asked for.—It is not necessary that a decree in favor of the plaintiff in a suit for specific performance should declare that it should operate as a conveyance in order to constitute a complete adjudication of the rights of the holder of the naked legal title —— and the failure to make such insertion in no manner effects the equitable title which the plaintiff acquired by decree. Skinner v. Terry, 134 N. C. 305, 309, 46 S. E. 517.

Married Woman May be Declared Trustee.—Where a married woman admits the execution of a fraudulent deed which does not convey all that was expected by the grantee, she will not be allowed to profit by the fraud but will be declared a trustee of the part of the land not conveyed, the purchase price of which she has received. Bell v. McJones, 151 N. C. 85, 65 S. E. 646.

Consent Decree until Impeached Passes Legal Title.—A decree by consent binds the parties and their privies in estate, but is open to impeachment by the privies on the ground that it was fraudulent to their injury; but until impeached the decree passes a legal title. Rollins v. Henry, 78 N. C. 342, 352.

Cited in Ayden v. Lancaster, 197 N. C. 556, 562, 150 S. E. 40.

§ 608. Regarded as a deed and registered. — Every judgment, in which the transfer of title is so declared, shall be regarded as a deed of conveyance, executed in due form and by capable persons, notwithstanding the want of capacity in any person ordered to convey, and shall be registered in the proper county, under the rules and regulations prescribed for conveyances of similar property executed by the party. The party desiring registration of such judgment must produce to the register a copy thereof, certified by the clerk of the court in which it is enrolled, under the seal of the court, and the register shall record both the judgment and certificate. All laws which are passed for extending the time for registration of deeds include such judgments, provided the conveyance, if actually executed, would be so included. (Rev., ss. 567-8; Code, ss. 427, 429; R. C., c. 32, ss. 25, 27; 1850, c. 107, ss. 2, 4; 1874-5, c. 17, ss. 2, 4.)

See sec. 607 and notes thereto.

Consent Decrees Convey Title.—A consent decree for the recovery of the lands in fee has the effect of conveying the legal estate in fee "as between the parties," and is good as against third persons in the absence of fraud or collusion. Morris v. Patterson, 180 N. C. 484, 105 S. E. 25.

Same—Agreement in Divorce Proceedings.—In an action brought by the wife for a divorce a mensa, an agreement that the wife have a life estate in certain of her husband's lands, is binding as a consent judgment, though a divorce has not been decreed therein; and it is not affected by the fact that an award of the children has therein been made with the sanction of the court. Morris v. Patterson, 180 N. C. 484, 105 S. E. 25.

Marginal Cancellation Not Essential but Advisable.—When a decree of court adjudges a deed to be void, no marginal cancellation of record, as in the case of mortgages and deeds of trust, is required, but it is commendable and convenient practice. Smith v. King, 107 N. C. 273, 277, 12 S. E. 57.

§ 610. In action for recovery of personal property.—In an action to recover the possession of personal property, judgment for the plaintiff may be for the possession, or for the recovery of possession, or for the value thereof in case a delivery cannot be had, and damages for the detention. If the property has been delivered to the plaintiff, and the defendant claims a return thereof, judgment for the defendant may be for a return of the property, or for the value thereof in case a return cannot be had, and damages for taking and withholding the same. (Rev., s. 570; Code, s. 431; C. C. P., s. 251.)

In General.—Where the defendant in claim and delivery replevies the property, the form of the judgment against him should be for the possession of the property with damages for its detention and costs, or for the value thereof if delivery cannot be had and damages for its detention. Boyd v. Walters, 201 N. C. 378, 160 S. E. 451.

Judgment Should Be Alternative.—In claim and delivery the judgment should be for the delivery of the property or its value, Oil Co. v. Messick Grocery Co., 136 N. C. 354, 48 S. E. 781; Hendrick v. Ireland, 162 N. C. 523, 77 S. E. 1011; and this is true of a judgment on a forthcoming bond in claim and delivery proceedings. Grubbs v. Stephenson, 117 N. C. 66, 67, 23 S. E. 97.

Same—When Judgment for Defendant.—When the pleadings, in an action to declare valid a sale of property under mortgage, raise questions as to whether the mortgage had been released, and the sale was unlawful, and the property wrongfully seized under claim and delivery proceedings, the defendant, if successful, is entitled to judgment "for a return of the property, or for the value thereof in case return cannot be had, and damages for taking and withholding the same" and issues were properly submitted to the jury to ascertain the value of the property alleged to have been wrongfully converted. Penny v. Ludwick, 152 N. C. 375, 67 S. E. 919.

Applicability of Doctrine of Res Judicata.—Where judgment is rendered against the defendant and the surety on his bond in claim and delivery, and therein no issue is submitted to the jury on the question of damages for the wrongful detention of the property it does not estop the plaintiff from bringing an independent action to recover such damages. Moore v. Edwards, 192 N. C. 446, 135 S. E. 302; Woody v. Jordan, 69 N. C. 189.

Same—Where Judgment Unsatisfied.—Where the plaintiff, who had recovered judgment in an action of claim and delivery (in which he was defendant) for the return of the property, but the same had not been returned, thereafter brought suit against the plaintiff, in such action for damages for the conversion of the property, it was held that he was entitled to recover. Asher v. Reizenstein, 105 N. C. 213, 10 S. E. 889.

Same—Applicable Only as to Matters Litigated upon.—The fundamental reasons for the application of the doctrine of res adjudicata are that there should be an end of litigation and that no one should be vexed twice for the same cause; therefore, when the defendant in claim and delivery proceedings has recovered of the plaintiff therein such damages for his wrongful seizure of the defendant's property as allowed by this section and he has claimed no more, he may, by an independent action, sue for such damages to his business as may have been caused by the malicious prosecution of the plaintiff's action, for such was not the subject of recovery in the claim and delivery proceedings, and the doctrine of res adjudicata has no application. Ludwick v. Penny, 158 N. C. 104, 105, 73 S. E. 228.

Where Counterclaim Filed.—A suit for maliciously prosecuting a proceeding in claim and delivery for the purpose of breaking up the business of another will not lie before the termination of the claim and delivery proceedings, and the defendant in such proceedings cannot therefore set up a counterclaim in that action for the damages he may have sustained in his business. Ludwick v. Penny, 158 N. C. 104, 105, 73 S. E. 228.

Measure of Damages When Property Beyond Control of Court.—In an action of claim and delivery, where it appears that the defendant was in possession under a contract of purchase, and the property had been placed beyond the control of the court, the equities will be adjusted and judgment rendered against the defendant for the balance of the purchase money, with interest from the date of purchase. Hall v. Tillman, 115 N. C. 500, 20 S. E. 726.

Estimation of Interest.—When the verdict of the jury has only established that the plaintiff has wrongfully converted to his own use an excess of property in a certain sum over that required to pay off defendant's mortgage to him, the judgment thereon should not include interest from the time of the alleged conversion, but only from the date of the judgment, the conversion being a tort and the damages unliquidated; and when on appeal the judgment of the court is erroneous in this respect only, it will be ordered to be amended and affirmed. Penny v. Ludwick, 152 N. C. 375, 67 S. E. 919.

Where Additional Item Allowed by Consent.—Where the defendant in claim and delivery of crops has replevied the property, and the plaintiff has recovered final judgment, an additional item of expense or cost allowed by consent to the plaintiff will be held as binding upon the parties on appeal. Hendricks v. Ireland, 162 N. C. 523, 77 S. E. 1011.

Liability of Surety.—Where the plaintiff is successful in his action wherein claim and delivery have been issued, the surety on the defendant's replevin bond, given in accordance with this section, is liable for the full amount thereof to be discharged upon the return of the property and the payment of damages and cost recovered by the plaintiff; or second, if the return cannot be had, the judgment should order that the surety be discharged upon the payment to the plaintiff of the amount of his recovery, within the amount limited in the bond, for the value of the property at the time of its wrongful taking and detention, with interest thereon, together with the cost of the action. Orange Trust Co. v. Hayes, 191 N. C. 542. 132 S. E. 466.

Where the defendant in the action has retained possession of the property in claim and delivery, and the plaintiff is successful in the action, the latter is entitled to summary judgment against the surety on the replevin bond given in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Orange Trust Co. v. Hayes, 191 N. C. 542, 132 S. E. 466.

Issues and Judgment Should Cover Whole Case.—Where the action is brought to recover property conveyed to secure a debt, in order to avoid circuity of action, when the debt is denied, the issues and judgment should cover the whole case, including the balance due upon the debt, and for the benefit of the sureties upon the undertaking the value of the property at the time of the seizure should also be ascertained, as they are liable for such value, not exceeding the indebtedness secured. Griffith v. Richmond, 126 N. C. 377, 35 S. E. 620.

Cited in Harrell v. Tripp, 197 N. C. 426, 428, 149 S. E. 548; Green v. Carroll, 205 N. C. 459, 464, 171 S. E. 627.

§ 611. What judge approves judgments.—In all cases where a judgment, decree or order of the superior court is required to be approved by a judge, it shall be approved by the judge having jurisdiction of receivers and injunctions. (Rev., s. 571; Code, s. 432; 1876-7, c. 223, s. 3; 1879, c. 63; 1881, c. 51.)

Motions for the appointment of a receiver may be made before the resident judge of the district, or one assigned to the district, or one holding the courts thereof by exchange, at the option of the mover. Corbin v. Berry, 83 N. C. 28.

Restraining Orders must be made returnable before the judge in the district in which the action is pending. Galbreath v. Everett, 84 N. C. 546.

§ 612. Judgment roll.—Unless the party or his attorney furnishes a judgment roll, the clerk, immediately after entering the judgment, shall attach together and file the following papers which constitute the judgment roll:

1. In case the complaint is not answered by any defendant, the summons and complaint, or copies thereof, proof of service, and that no answer has been received, the report, if any, and a copy of the judgment.

2. In all other cases, the summons, pleadings, or copies thereof, and a copy of the judgment, with any verdict or report, the offer of the defendant, exceptions, case, and all orders and papers in any way involving the merits and necessarily affecting the judgment. (Rev., s. 572; Code, s. 434; C. C. P., s. 253.)

Section Directory.—The provisions of this section as to the judgment roll should be complied with, but they are directory, and the clerk's failure to "attach together" the papers did not vitiate the judgment which was entered of record and regular in form. See Brown v. Harding, 171 N. C. 686, 89 S. E. 222, in spite of the holding in Dewey v. Sugg, 109 N. C. 328, 329, 13 S. E. 923, to the effect that a judgment to constitute a lien must be docketed in the "prescribed manner.

§ 613. Docketed and indexed; held as of first day of term.—Every judgment of the superior court, affecting the right to real property, or requiring in whole or in part the payment of money, shall be entered by the clerk of said superior court on the judgment docket of the court. The entry must contain the names of the parties, and the relief granted, date of judgment and date of docketing; and the clerk shall keep a cross-index of the whole, with the dates and numbers thereof. In all cases affecting the title to real property the clerk shall enter upon the judgment docket the number and page of the minute docket where the judgment is recorded, and if the judgment does not contain particular description of the lands, but refers to a description contained in the pleadings, the clerk shall enter upon the minute docket, immediately following the judgment, the description so referred to.

All judgments rendered in any county by the superior court, during a term of the court, and docketed during the same term, or within ten days thereafter, are held and deemed to have been rendered and docketed on the first day of said term, for the purpose only of establishing equality of priority as among such judgments. (Rev., c. 573; Code, s. 433; C. C. P., s. 252; Supr. Ct. Rule VIII; 1909, c. 709; 1929, c. 183.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added to the second paragraph the words "for the purpose only of establishing equality of priority as among such judgments." The section was also amended by Public Laws 1929, ch. 88, applicable only to Durham County, by adding at the end thereof the following:

"Provided, that it shall be necessary to enter upon the index and cross index of the judgment docket as defendant only such party or parties to any proceeding who or which may be fixed and charged with any liability in the judgment."

Strict Compliance Necessary.—The observance of this law is regarded as so important to subsequent purchasers and mortgagees that, wherever the system of docketing obtains, a very strict compliance with its provisions in every respect is required. Jones v. Currie, 190 N. C. 260, 129 S. E. 605.

Clerk Liable upon Failure to Index Judgment.—An action of tort will lie against the clerk upon his failure to index a judgment, such neglect resulting in damage to the plaintiff. Shackelford v. Staton, 117 N. C. 73, 23 S. E. 101.

Same—Duty of Judgment Creditor to See Judgment Properly Docketed.—It is the duty of a judgment creditor to see that his judgment is properly docketed. If the clerk neglects to docket the judgment, subsequent encumbrancers and claimants under the judgment debtor are not to be prejudiced thereby, and the remedy of the judgment creditor is against the clerk for loss suffered by reason of the failure to docket the judgment. Holman v. Miller, 103 N. C. 118, 9 S. E. 429.

Where Judgment Docketed in Foreign County.—Where the transcript of a judgment recovered in one county is sent to another for docketing, the transcript must not only be docketed but must be entered on the cross-index, giving the names of all the judgment debtors and the name of at least one plaintiff. Jones v. Currie, 190 N. C. 260, 129 S. E. 605; Dewey v. Sugg, 109 N. C. 328, 13 S. E. 923.

Contents of the Index and Purpose Thereof.—When there are several judgment debtors in the docketed judgment, the index should and must specify the name of each one, because the index as to one would not point to all or any of the others. The purpose is, that the index shall point to a judgment against the particular person inquired about if there be a judgment on the docket against him. A judgment not thus fully docketed does not serve the purpose of the statute, and is not docketed in contemplation of law. Dewey v. Sugg, 109 N. C. 328, 329, 13 S. E. 923. Jones v. Currie, 190 N. C. 260, 264, 129 S. E. 605.

Initials in Index Valid.—"J. Mizell' or "Jo. Mizell" is a sufficient cross-indexing for a judgment against "Josiah Mizell." Valentine v. Britton, 127 N. C. 57, 37 S. E. 74.

One Cross-Indexing Not Sufficient for Two Judgments.—One cross-indexing is insufficient for two judgments, though they appear on the same page and include the same parties, and only the first judgment on its page will constitute a lien. Valentine v. Britton, 127 N. C. 57, 37 S. E. 74.

Judgment Signed out of Term.—The provisions of this section that judgments relate to the first day of the term, apply when the judgment was rendered and docketed during the term, or within ten days after adjournment thereof, and not to a judgment signed out of term by the consent of the parties, except where third persons are prejudiced; and the position may not be maintained that a sale of lands to be made by commissioners appointed to sell property, etc., was not made within the time prescribed by the order, under the theory that the date of the order was to relate back to the commencement of the term, when it appears that by consent the order was signed after the term of court, and the sale occurred within the time prescribed from the actual date on which the judge signed it. Contestee Chemical Co. v. Long, 184 N. C. 398, 114 S. E. 465.

Consent Judgments.—The provisions of this section that judgments rendered during a term should relate back to the first day thereof, and that the liens of all judgments rendered on the same Monday shall be of equal priority, do not apply to judgments by consent. Hood v. Wilson, 208 N. C. 120, 179 S. E. 425.

Judgment against Corporations.—A judgment against a corporation does not relate back, by implication of law, to the beginning of the term, so as to create a lien on the corporate property as against the vesting of the title in a receiver, under the statute, who had in the meantime been appointed. Odell Hdw. Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 308, 92 S. E. 8.

Cited in Pentuff v. Park, 195 N. C. 609, 143 S. E. 139.

§ 614. Where and how docketed; lien.—Upon filing a judgment roll upon a judgment affecting the title of real property, or directing in whole or in part the payment of money, it shall be docketed on the judgment docket of the superior court of the county where the judgment roll was filed, and may be docketed on the judgment docket of the superior court of any other county upon the filing with the clerk thereof a transcript of the original docket, and is a lien on the real property in the county where the same is docketed of every person against whom any such judgment is rendered, and which he has at the time of the docketing thereof in the county in which such real property is situated, or which he acquires at any time thereafter, for ten years from the date of the rendition of the judgment. But the time during which the party recovering or owning such judgment shall be, or shall have been, restrained from proceeding thereon by an order of injunction, or other order, or by the operation of any appeal, or by a statutory prohibition, does not constitute any part of the ten years aforesaid, as against the defendant in such judgment, or the party obtaining such orders or making such appeal, or any other person who is not a purchaser, creditor or mortgagee in good faith. (Rev., s. 574; Code, s. 435; C. C. P., s. 254.)

I. IN GENERAL.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 365, 367.

Applicable to Legal and Equitable Estates. — This section is sufficiently comprehensive to include equitable as well as legal estates. Mayo v. Staton, 137 N. C. 697, 50 S. E. 331, the principle is equally applicable when the sale to satisfy the judgment is made by an administrator. Mannix v. Ihrie, 76 N. C. 299, 301.

Where a debtor executes a deed in trust to a trustee to secure certain debts therein mentioned, and after the registration of the deed a creditor obtains judgment and has the same docketed, the judgment, under the provisions of this section, is a lien upon the equitable estate of the debtor. McKeithan v. Walker, 66 N. C. 95.

A judgment from the time it is docketed has a lien on all the interest of whatever kind the defendant has in real estate, whether it be such as can be seized under execution or not. Glenn Co. v. Shober, 69 N. C. 154.

A lien is a right of property, and not a mere matter of procedure. So far as it relates to lands, it is a technical term, that means a charge upon the lands running with them, and incumbering them in every charge of ownership. Ingles v. Bringhurst, 1 Dall. 341, 345, 1 L. Ed. 167.

Property converted from its original nature, as land into money, is not subject to the lien of a judgment, or to sale under execution issued thereon, although the statute gives a lien, under the judgment, on all the real property of the debtor in the county, which by construction of this court embraced both legal and equitable estates. Clifton v. Owens, 170 N. C. 607, 87 S. E. 502, 505, citing Dixon v. Dixon, 81 N. C. 323.

Liability of Trustee. — A trustee having a surplus in his hands after the sale of land under a conveyance to secure money loaned thereunder, who is affected with notice by docketing of judgments against the trustor, or the one who otherwise is entitled to receive it, under the provisions of this section may not pay the same to the trustor without incurring liability; and in an action brought for that purpose the judgment creditors are necessary parties, and a final judgment therein entered without them is reversible error. Barrett v. Barnes, 186 N. C. 154, 119 S. E. 194.

Requirement That Clerk to Docket Judgment Mandatory.—A judge cannot, under this section, validly issue an order to the clerk not to docket a judgment pending the fulfillment of a conditional order directed to the parties. Hopkins v. Bowers, 111 N. C. 175, 179, 16 S. E. 1; see also, section 613 and notes thereto.

Cited in Jones v. Rhea, 198 N. C. 190, 151 S. E. 255.

II. CREATION OF THE LIEN AND PRIORITIES.

A. Sufficiency.

1. Realty.

Docketing Fixes the Lien. — The docketed judgment fixes the lien and the debtor cannot escape it; if he sells thereafter the purchaser takes subject to the statutory lien given by this section. Moore v. Jordan, 117 N. C. 86, 89, 23 S. E. 259. The mere rendition of the judgment will not constitute a lien, Alsop v. Mosely, 104 N. C. 60, 63, 10 S. E. 124; nor does the execution fix the lien. Pasour v. Rhyne, 82 N. C. 149, 152.

A judgment for a fine, duly docketed, constitutes a lien on realty under § 4655, and attaches immediately upon the docketing of the judgment under the provisions of this section. Osborne v. Board of Education, 207 N. C. 503, 177 S. E. 642.

In other words, the section specifies two requisites as conditions precedent to the fixing of the lien, namely (1) rendition and (2) docketing; when these two requirements are met the lien attaches as of the date of rendition. Ed. Note.

Same—Subsequent Purchasers. — The docketing of the judgment having fixed the lien, the rights of the judgment creditor become fixed thereby, and the subsequent registration of a deed or mortgage to or on the same property cannot divest those rights. Cowen v. Withrow, 112 N. C. 736, 741, 17 S. E. 575. See post, this note, "Priorities" II, B.

Same—Not Essential to Issuing an Execution. — Docketing is not a condition precedent to the enforcement of the judgment by final process. Bernhardt v. Brown, 122 N. C. 587, 594, 29 S. E. 884. See also, Holmon v. Miller, 103 N. C. 118, 9 S. E. 429, where it was said, "under the present system no lien is acquired upon land in the absence of an execution and levy, until the judgment has been docketed."

Docketing First in County of Rendition. — A judgment rendered in one county can not be docketed in another without having been first docketed in the county where it was rendered. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Transcript Sent to Foreign County. — In Wilson v. Patton, 87 N. C. 318, it was held that the transcript of a judgment sent from one county to another to be docketed, which sets out the date of its rendition, the names of the parties to the suit, the amount of the judgment and the costs of the action, is a sufficient docketing to create a lien on the defendant's land. Lee v. Bishop, 89 N. C. 256, 260.

2. Personalty.

Levy Necessary to Constitute Lien on Personalty. — There is no lien upon personal property, except from the levying. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 524, 20 S. E. 765; Selby v. Dixon, 11 N. C. 424.

B. Priorities.

Record as Notice. — A plaintiff will be charged with notice of judgment entered at a regular term of court as of the time of the entry. Sluder v. Graham, 118 N. C. 835, 23 S. E. 924.

Consent judgments, under this section, have priority in accordance with priority of docketing, since the provisions of § 613 are not applicable to consent judgments. Hood v. Wilson, 208 N. C. 120, 179 S. E. 425.

Between Judgments. — If a number of justice's judgments be docketed in the superior court, they will, under this section, be a lien upon the land of the defendant from the time when they were docketed, and will have a priority over a judgment obtained in court by another person against the same defendant at a subsequent time, and though an execution be issued on the latter and the sheriff levies it on the land and advertises it for sale, yet, if before the sale executions are issued on a part of the justice's docketed judgments, and are placed in the hands of the sheriff, the proceeds of the sale of the land must be first applied to the payment of all the justice's judgments. Perry v. Morris, 65 N. C. 221.

Between Docketed Judgment and Unrecorded Deed. — The lien of a regularly docketed judgment is superior to a claim under an unrecorded deed from the judgment debtor. Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 128 S. E. 494.

Where there is a lien by judgment under this section against the holder of an equitable title to lands who also holds a registered mortgage from his grantee under an unregistered deed to secure the balance of the purchase price, his deed registered after the lien of the judgment had taken effect, cannot render the lien under the mortgage superior to the judgment lien, and equity will remove the lien of the mortgage cloud upon the title of the purchaser at the execution sale holding the sheriff's deed. Mayo v. Staton, 137 N. C. 670, 50 S. E. 331; Mills v. Tabor, 182 N. C. 722, 109 S. E. 850.

An adverse holder of land under § 430, pursuant to an unrecorded deed, has title superior to the lien of a judgment based on this section, but acquired and registered after the elapse of the 20-year period against the original grantor. Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 143 S. E. 857.

Between Judgment and Previous Conveyance.—A judgment is not a lien upon the lands of the judgment debtor that he had previously conveyed bona fide either by registered deed or mortgage upon which foreclosure has been made. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 576.

Between Judgment and Subsequent Mortgage.—Where after the recordation of a judgment, the judgment debtor executes a mortgage on certain of his land, and the land is foreclosed under prior mortgages antedating the judgment, and the judgment debtor makes no claim to his homestead, the judgment creditor has a preference in the proceeds of the sale over the subsequent mortgage made. Duplin County v. Harrell, 195 N. C. 445, 142 S. E. 481.

Between Lien and Subsequent Purchaser.—Upon the docketing of a judgment it becomes a lien on all the land to which the judgment debtor has title for a period of ten years from the time of its docketing, under this section, and the land is not relieved of the judgment lien by a subsequent transfer of title by the judgment debtor. Moses v. Major, 201 N. C. 613, 160 S. E. 890.

A judgment creditor or his assignee has a lien on the lands of the judgment debtor, and where the judgment is duly docketed, under this section, the lien exists against a subsequent purchaser from the judgment debtor, carrying with it the right to subject the property and improvements thereto to the satisfaction of the debt, but the judgment creditor or his assignee has no title or estate in the lands. Byrd v. Pilot Fire Ins. Co., 201 N. C. 407, 160 S. E. 458.

Execution Sale under Prior Judgment.—A judgment is not a lien upon the lands of the judgment debtor conveyed under execution sale of a prior docketed judgment. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 576.

Subject to Homestead.—A lien on the lands of the judgment debtor, is subject to the homestead interest as provided by Const., Art. X, sec. 2. Farris v. Hendricks, 196 N. C. 439, 146 S. E. 77.

Purchaser at Execution Sale. — Where the judgment creditor and a mortgagee under a prior registered mortgage claim the land from the same person, they are ordinarily estopped to deny the title of their common source, but where the deed from this common source, upon which the mortgagor's title depends, has been registered after the judgment lien has taken effect, this element of estoppel does not apply to the purchaser at the execution sale. Mills v. Tabor, 182 N. C. 722, 109 S. E. 850.

Sale under Junior Judgment. — The effect of a sale under a junior judgment is to pass the debtor's estate unencumbered with the lien of an older docketed judgment; and the affect of a sale under both is to vest the title in the purchaser, and transfer the liens, in the same order of priority to the proceeds of sale. Cannon v. Parker, 81 N. C. 320, 321.

Same—Priorities Must Be Observed. — The sheriff must observe these priorities, of which he has notice upon the face of the execution, in paying out the money to the respective creditors. Cannon v. Parker, 81 N. C. 320, 321.

Merger. — Where a creditor sues on his judgment constituting a lien on the homestead of the debtor and obtains a new judgment, the first judgment is not merged in the second. Springs v. Pharr, 131 N. C. 191, 42 S. E. 590.

As to Bona Fide Purchasers. — Where a judgment is entered during the term, the lien has no application against claimants who have in the meantime acquired bona fide title, and in such case the law will take notice of fractions of a day in favor of such a purchaser, and receivers of the debtor should be classed as a purchaser. Odell Hdw. Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 308, 92 S. E. 8.

Bona fide purchasers are also protected where there is a great delay in making motion to revive the lien, and execution being issued after the lapse of the ten year period. See note of Spicer v. Gambill, post this note, analysis line, "Issuing Execution" IV.

Judgment Creditor Prior to Debtor's Homestead. — The lien of a judgment duly docketed in the county where the land lies is superior to that of a subsequently registered mortgage on land outside of the debtors allotted homestead, and therefore, the proceeds of the sale of such land should be applied first to the payment of the judgment debt. Gulley v. Thurston, 112 N. C. 192, 195, 17 S. E. 13. But see note of Kirkwood v. Peden, and also Vanstorn v. Thornton, post this note, analysis line, "Property Subject to the Lien" III.

Interlocutory Judgment. — An interlocutory judgment, containing recitals made only for the purpose of directing a commissioner how to proceed in the sale of land, and the land was not sold, does not affect the rights of the parties. Mayo v. Staton, 137 N. C. 670, 50 S. E. 331.

III. PROPERTY SUBJECT TO THE LIEN.

A. Property Located in County Where Judgment Docketed.

In General. — A docketed judgment is a lien only upon so much of the real property of the defendant as is situated in the county where the same is docketed. King v. Portis, 77 N. C. 26, but it gives no peculiar lien upon any particular parcel of land. Bryan v. Dunn, 120 N. C. 36, 27 S. E. 37.

A judgment is a lien upon the lands of the judgment debtor that he may own in the country at the time the judgment was docketed. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 576.

Title to Standing Timber. — An estate created by a deed conveying standing timber, with a right to cut and remove the same within a specified time, is, while it exists, subject to the lien of a docketed judgment and to the ordinary methods of enforcing collection of the same as in other cases of realty. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 84 S. E. 852.

Property converted from its original nature, see note of Clifton v. Owens, ante this note, analysis line "In General" I.

Homestead Not Subject to Judgment Lien. — The mere right of homestead is not such an estate or interest in lands as is subject to a lien by judgment. Kirkwood v. Peden, 173 N. C. 460, 92 S. E. 264. See also Gardner v. Batts, 114 N. C. 496, 19 S. E. 794, where it was said that the homestead right or estate is salable or assignable and the purchaser can hold the land to which it pertains to the exclusion of judgment creditors during its existence.

Same—Reversionary Interest May Be Subjected. — The only reason for keeping a judgment in full force and effect during the existence of the homestead is to subject the reversionary interest to its payment when the homestead expires, as such interest cannot be sold under execution during the life of the homestead. Kirkwood v. Peden, 173 N. C. 460, 92 S. E. 264.

A docketed judgment is a lien on all the land of the debtor in the county where docketed from the date of the docketing, and the creditor may presently enforce the same on all the debtor's land outside of the homestead boundaries, but must await the termination of the homestead estate to subject the land to which it pertains, and no act of the debtor can change or impair the creditor's rights under such lien. Vanstory v. Thornton, 112 N. C. 196, 204, 17 S. E. 566.

Cited in Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 143 S. E. 465.

B. After-Acquired Property.

In General. — Under this section the lien of docketed judgments attaches to after-acquired lands in the same county at the moment that the title vests in the judgment debtor, and the proceeds of a sale under such judgments should be distributed pro rata without reference to the day when they were docketed. Moore v. Jordan, 117 N. C. 86, 87, 23 S. E. 259.

Judgment by Confession. — Though a judgment by confession is given out of the ordinary course of procedure, nevertheless, it at once, when docketed, becomes a lien upon the judgment debtor's real property. Sharp v. R. R., 106 N. C. 308, 319, 11 S. E. 530.

Judgments against Land Held in Remainder. — The docketing of judgments against a debtor who holds land in remainder, dependent upon a life estate in another, creates a lien upon such estate, which, not being susceptible of immediate occupancy, is not protected from sale under execution by the Constitution and laws relating to homestead exemptions. Stern Bros. v. Lee, 115 N. C. 426, 20 S. E. 736.

Successive Transfers of Different Tracts. — Where there is a judgment lien on land, part of which is sold by the debtor, the remaining portion will be first sold in satisfaction of the judgment before resorting to the land first sold, and the rule extends to a purchaser of the remaining land from the judgment debtor, but this equity is never enforced against the creditor when he will in any substantial way be prejudiced by it. Brown v. Harding, 170 N. C. 253, 86 S. E. 1010, rehearing denied 171 N. C. 686, 89 S. E. 222.

Attaches upon Conveyance to Judgment Debtor. — The lien of a judgment attaches when the land is conveyed to the judgment debtor, and is superior to any equity which his grantor could retain by a parol agreement or a subsequently recorded conveyance. Colonial Trust Co. v. Sterchie Bros., 169 N. C. 21, 85 S. E. 40.

C. Nature of Right Acquired.

No Estate Vested. — The lien created by docketing a judgment does not vest any estate in the property subject to it in the judgment creditor, but only secures to the creditor the right to have the property applied to the satisfaction of his judgment, and such lien extends only to such estate, legal or equitable, as may be sold or disposed of at the time it attaches. Bruce v. Nicholson, 109 N. C. 202, 13 S. E. 790.

Title to Property in Third Party. — A docketed judgment constitutes no lien upon real property purchased and paid for by the debtor, where title is taken in the name of some third person. Dixon v. Dixon, 81 N. C. 323, 324.

Same—Remedy of Creditor. — In such case the creditor has a right to follow the fund in equity, but the institution of a suit for that purpose confers no lien, and can have no further effect than to give the creditor first bringing his suit a priority over other creditors, and to disable the holder of the property from defeating, by a conveyance, the object of the proceedings. Dixon v. Dixon, 81 N. C. 323, 324.

Persons Entitled to Enforce. — In an action to enforce the lien of judgments against land formerly owned by the judgment debtor, it was no concern of the defendants that the person in whose name the judgments were taken was not the beneficial owner of the judgments, as defendants would be protected by payment to the plaintiff of record. Brown v. Harding, 170 N. C. 253, 86 S. E. 1010, rehearing denied, 171 N. C. 686, 89 S. E. 222.

Where Equitable Execution and Accounting Necessary. — Where there was a conflict as to the priorities of the secured creditors the plaintiff, whose docketed judgment constituted a lien on the resulting trust in a deed of trust, could not enforce his lien by the ordinary process of execution but had to resort to an action in the nature of an equitable execution where an account could be taken. Trimble v. Hunter, 104 N. C. 129, 134, 10 S. E. 291.

Same—Reason for the Rule. — As it (the resulting trust) could not be levied on or sold by the common law to satisfy the execution, no lien arose from its issuing or what the sheriff calls its levy. For as the lien arises or is created as a means to the end, it would be in vain for the law to raise it when the end could not be attained. McKeithan v. Walker, 66 N. C. 95, 96.

IV. ISSUING EXECUTION.

See the analysis line immediately following in this note.

Purpose. — The sole office of the execution is to enforce the lien by the sale of the land upon which it has attached. Pasour v. Rhyne, 82 N. C. 149, 152.

Time Allowed. — Leave to issue execution upon a docketed judgment may be granted at any time within ten years from the docketing. Adams v. Guy, 106 N. C. 275, 278, 11 S. E. 535.

Same—Appeal. — The motion for leave to issue execution is made in apt time, though the ten years expired pending the appeal and though no undertaking is given; this is true because the time during which the judgment creditor was restrained by the operation of the appeal is not to be counted, as the appeal had the effect to prevent the issuing of execution within the time prescribed. Adams v. Guy, 106 N. C. 278, 11 S. E. 535.

Motion to Revive. — Where a judgment creditor delays issuing execution until within a short time before the expiration of the lien of his judgment and then gives notice of a motion to revive and for leave to issue execution, and the motion is heard and execution issued after ten years from the date of the judgment, a purchaser at the execution sale of land gets no title as against one who bona fide bought the land during the ten years. Pipkin v. Adams, 114 N. C. 201, 19 S. E. 105; Lilly v. West, 97 N. C. 276, 1 S. E. 834. The same principle applies where the execution is levied before the expiration of the lien but the sale does not take place until after the expiration of the lien. Spicer v. Gambill, 93 N. C. 378, 383.

Failure to Docket Judgment. — If a party who obtains judgment below neglects to docket it in any county, then upon obtaining judgment in the Supreme Court, he will have no lien prior to the teste of his execution from that court. Rhyne v. McKee, 73 N. C. 259, 260, 262.

Leave of court is not necessary for execution upon a judgment after the lapse of three years where the execution is issued after the effective date of the act of 1927, which repealed § 668, and within ten years from the date of the docketing of the judgment. Moses v. Major, 201 N. C. 613, 160 S. E. 890.

V. LOSS OF THE LIEN.

In General. — The lien of a judgment docketed under this section is lost by the lapse of ten years from the date of the docketing of the judgment; and this is so notwithstanding execution has been issued within the ten years. Pasour v. Rhyne, 82 N. C. 149, 152; Lyon v. Russ, 84 N. C. 588.

When Mandate to Sell the Land Expires. — A judgment recovered in the superior court for the payment of money is a lien on land from the moment it is docketed, and executions issued to enforce collection are returnable to the next term of the court beginning not less than forty days after they are issued. With the return day the mandate expires and the power to sell land under the particular writ is thereafter withheld. Jeffreys v. Hocutt, 193 N. C. 332, 335, 137 S. E. 177.

Cancellation of Judgment to Remove Cloud. — Where a deed of trust to secure certain bonds upon the lands has been duly registered, and contains the provisions that the lands may be sold in part by the trustor, and with the consent of the trustee who is to receive the purchase price and apply it on the bonds secured by the instrument, one who has purchased a part of the lands and paid part of the purchase price to the trustee who has paid it on the secured bond but has not joined in the deed by the trustor and the trust deed is uncanceled of record, the docketing of a judgment against the trustor before the party to whom the trustor conveyed a part of the land without consent in writing of trustee—purchaser who paid the purchase price, is entitled to the relief sought in his suit, to have the judgment canceled to the extent that it is a cloud upon the title to his land thus conveyed to him. Boyd v. Bristol Typewriter Co., 190 N. C. 794, 130 S. E. 858.

In What Court Judgment Impeachable. — A justice's judgment docketed in the superior court is for the purpose of execution there, and that court has no power to set it aside, unless the cause be carried up by appeal or writ of recordari. A judgment can be vacated only by the court which rendered it. Morton v. Rippy, 84 N. C. 611, 612.

§ 615. Of supreme court docketed in superior court; lien.—It is the duty of the clerk of the supreme court, on application of the party obtaining judgment in that court, directing in whole or in part the payment of money, or affecting the title to real estate, or on the like application of the attorney of record of said party, to certify under his hand and the seal of said court a transcript of the judgment, setting forth the title of the court, the names of the parties thereto, the relief granted, that the judgment was so rendered by said court, the amount and date of the judgment, what part thereof bears interest and from what time; and said clerk shall send such certificate and transcript to the clerk of the superior court of such counties as he is directed; and the clerk of the superior court receiving the certificate and transcript shall docket them in like manner as judgment rolls of the superior court are docketed. And when so docketed, the lien of said judgment is the same in all respects, subject to the same restrictions and qualifications, and the time shall be reckoned as is provided and prescribed in the preceding sections for judgments of the superior court, so far as the same are applicable. The party desiring the certificate and transcript provided for in this section may obtain them at any time after such judgment has been rendered, unless the supreme court otherwise directs. (Rev., s. 575; Code, s. 436; 1881, c. 75, ss. 1, 4.)

Editor's Note.—The foundation of the purpose of the enactment of this section is to be found in the great importance attached to the requirement that every judgment, to constitute a lien, must be docketed, the imperativeness of which has been dealt with in the preceding section. Hence by the very provisions of this section the substantial elements of a final judgment rendered by the Supreme Court must be transmitted to the various superior courts and when docketed (and not until then) in the proper county the judgment forms a lien upon the real estate of the debtor situated therein.

Rendition Does Not Perfect Lien.—The simple rendition of a judgment in the Supreme Court will not constitute a lien upon the judgment debtor's land until "docketed" in the county where the land lies, as required by the statute. Alsop v. Moseley, 104 N. C. 60, 64, 10 S. E. 124.

Issuing Execution Prior to Docketing.—See note of Bernhardt v. Brown, under section 614.

Judgment of Supreme Court Applied to Docketed Lower Court Judgment.—The defendant, by a decree in the Supreme Court, had recovered from the plaintiffs a sum of money; while the execution was in the hands of the sheriff the plaintiff recovered from the defendant, by judgments before a magistrate, a like amount for items in their account not allowed in the case in the Supreme Court. These latter judgments were docketed, and executions were taken out upon them and returned nulla bona; the plaintiffs then asked for an order to have the amount of the decree in favor of the defendant applied to their judgments and it was held that they were entitled to such relief. Hogan v. Kirkland, 64 N. C. 250.

§ 615(a). Fees for filing transcripts of judgments by clerks of superior courts.—The fee for filing, docketing and indexing transcripts of judgments in the offices of the several clerks of the superior court in North Carolina shall be the same fee charged for filing, docketing and indexing transcripts of judgments in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county from which the transcript of judgment is sent to said county. (1933, c. 435, s. 1.)

§ 616. Of federal court docketed; lien.—Judgments and decrees rendered in the circuit and district courts of the United States within this state may be docketed on the judgment dockets of the superior courts in the several counties of this state for the purpose of creating liens of such judgments and decrees upon property within the county where the same are so docketed in like manner as judgments of superior courts for the purpose of creating liens upon property, but in no other manner, extent or order than as contemplated, provided and intended by the act of Congress entitled "An act to regulate the liens of judgments and decrees of the courts of the United States," approved August first, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight. And it is the duty of the clerk of the superior court, when a judgment roll of said circuit and district courts is filed with him, to docket it as judgments of the said superior courts are required to be docketed. (Rev., s. 576; 1889, c. 439.)

Judgment Rendered in District Court.—Judgment rendered by district and circuit courts, in order to be liens must be docketed as required by the state laws, and, since the United States may take advantage of any state or federal statute without being bound by its limitations, it may enforce the lien of the judgment in its favor though barred by the ten years limitation contained in this statute. United States v. Minor, 235 Fed. 101.

Date of Docketing Fixes the Lien.—Under the act of Congress as to docketing judgments of federal courts, and the provisions of this section authorizing the docketing of judgments and decrees of the federal courts on the judgment dockets of the superior courts of this state for the purpose of creating liens, such judgments on a money demand are liens on real property only from the date of their docketing in the county where the land is situated. Riley v. Carter, 165 N. C. 334, 81 S. E. 414.

§ 616(a). On what property judgment of federal court constitutes a lien; recordation.—Judgments and decrees rendered in a circuit or district court of the United States within this State shall be a lien on property in this State and its various subdivisions in the same manner and to the same extent and under the same conditions when the same shall be registered, recorded, docketed and indexed as is required of a judgment or decree of the courts of this State, in the same way and manner and to the same extent as the same judgment rendered in a court of this State and so registered, recorded, docketed and indexed would become a lien when so registered, recorded, docketed and indexed, and such judgments shall then have all the rights, and force, and effect, as judgments of the Superior Court of said county. Such decrees and judgments of a circuit court or a district court of the United States within this State when authenticated in the same way and manner as required of judgments and decrees of courts of this State are authorized to be registered, recorded and indexed exactly under the same conditions and circumstances and in the same offices and in the same way and manner and with the same effect as judgments of courts of this State are authorized to be.

It is the intent and purpose of this section to conform the State law to the requirements of the acts of Congress entitled "An Act to Regulate the Liens on Judgments and Decrees of the Courts of the United States" being the act of August first, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, chapter seven hundred and twenty-nine, twenty-five Statutes at large, page three hundred fifty-seven. (1929, c. 310, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 617. Paid to clerk; docket credited; transcript to other countries.—The party against whom a judgment for the payment of money is rendered, by any court of record, may pay the whole, or any part thereof, to the clerk of the court in which the same was rendered, at any time thereafter, although no execution has issued on such judgment; and this payment of money is good and available to the party making it, and the clerk shall enter the payment on the judgment docket of the court, and immediately forward a certificate thereof to the clerk of the superior court of each county to whom a transcript of said judgment has been sent, and the clerk of such superior court shall enter the same on the judgment docket of such court and file the original with the judgment roll in the action. Entries of payment or satisfaction on the judgment dockets in the office of the clerk of the superior court, by any person other than the clerk, shall be made in the presence of the clerk or his deputy, who shall witness the same, and when entries of full payment or satisfaction have been made, the clerk or his deputy shall enter upon the judgment index kept by him, opposite and on a line with the names of the parties to the judgment, the words "Paid" or "Satisfied." (Rev., s. 577; Code, s. 438; R. C., c. 31, s. 127; 1823, c. 1212; 1911, c. 76.

Payment Made to Clerk.—A trustee may properly pay money to the clerk as part payment in satisfaction of a judgment. Sugg v. Bernard, 122 N. C. 155, 156, 29 S. E. 221.

A judgment debtor under this section is entitled to credit on the judgment for amounts paid by him on the judgment to the clerk of the Superior Court in whose office the judgment is docketed, although the clerk fails to enter payment on the judgment docket, the judgment debtor being under no duty to require the clerk to make entry of payment on the judgment docket and the clerk being in effect the statutory agent of the owner of the judgment in making such entries. Dalton v. Strickland, 208 N. C. 27, 179 S. E. 20.

Same—Where Execution is in the Hands of Sheriff. — A debtor has no right to pay the money to the clerk when the execution is in the hands of the sheriff. Bynum v. Barefoot, 75 N. C. 576.

Clerk Receiving Depreciated Currency.—Whenever it is sought to establish an authority in a clerk to bind a plaintiff by the receipt of depreciated currency in payment of a judgment, it must be shown either that the receipt was expressly authorized by the plaintiff or that the plaintiff has done acts from which such an authority may fairly be implied. Purvis v. Jackson, 69 N. C. 474.

Misappropriation of Payment by Clerk.—Where a judgment debtor has paid the judgment entered against him in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court, and the clerk has misappropriated the payment, so that the debtor has again paid the judgment, the equitable doctrine as to whether he is subrogated to the right of the judgment creditor does not necessarily arise, and a right of action will lie against the surety on the clerk's bond for the direct misappropriation of the money. Gilmore v. Walker, 195 N. C. 460, 142 S. E. 579.

Liability for Loss.—The clerk of the Superior Court and the surety on his bond are liable for loss resulting to the owner of a judgment from the clerk's failure to perform his statutory duty to enter the judgment and payments thereon on the judgment docket or his failure to account to the owner for sums paid on the judgment by the judgment debtor, as provided by this section. Dalton v. Strickland, 208 N. C. 27, 179 S. E. 20.

§ 618. Payment by one of several; transfer to trustee for payor.—In all cases in the courts of this state wherein judgment has been, or may hereafter be, rendered against two or more persons or corporations, who are jointly and severally liable for its payment either as joint obligors or joint tort-feasors, and the same has not been paid by all the judgment debtors by each paying his proportionate part thereof; if one of the judgment debtors shall pay the judgment creditor, either before or after execution has been issued, the amount due on said judgment, and shall, at the time of paying the same, demand that said judgment be transferred to a trustee for his benefit, it shall be the duty of the judgment creditor or his attorney to transfer without recourse such judgment to a trustee for the benefit of the judgment debtor paying the same; and a transfer of such judgment as herein contemplated shall have the effect of preserving the lien of the judgment and of keeping the same in full force as against any judgment debtor who does not pay his proportionate part thereof to the extent of his liability thereunder in law and in equity, and in the event the judgment was obtained in an action arising out of a joint tort, and only one, or not all of the joint tort-feasors, were made parties defendant, those tort-feasors made parties defendant, and against whom judgment was obtained, may, in an action therefor, enforce contribution from the other joint tort-feasors; or at any time before judgment is obtained, the joint tort-feasors made parties defendant may, upon motion, have the other joint tort-feasors made parties defendant.

If the judgment debtors do not agree as to their proportionate liability, and it be alleged in such action by petition that any judgment debtor is insolvent or is a nonresident of the state and cannot be forced under the execution of the court to contribute to the payment of the judgment, the court shall, in the action in which the judgment was rendered, after notice to the defendants or such of them as may be within the jurisdiction of the court, submit proper issues to a jury to find the facts arising on such petition and any answer that may be filed thereto, and shall, upon such verdict and any admissions in the petition and answer, enter judgment declaring the proportionate part each judgment debtor shall pay.

Any judgment creditor who refuses to transfer a judgment in his favor to a trustee for the benefit of a judgment debtor who shall tender payment and demand in writing a transfer thereof to a trustee to preserve his rights in the same action, as contemplated by this section, shall not thereafter be entitled to an execution against the judgment debtor so tendering payment. (1919, c. 194, ss. 1, 2; 1929, c. 68.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 amended the first paragraph of this section by permitting contribution between joint tort-feasors, and the joinder of joint tort-feasors not made parties. The amendment, of course, does not apply to a suit commenced before its enactment. Bargeon v. Transportation Co., 196 N. C. 776, 777, 147 S. E. 299.

Assignment to Third Party Necessary to Claim Subrogation.—A surety defendant in a judgment with the principal according to principles heretofore obtaining in North Carolina, without the aid of a statute, in order to preserve the judgment lien and enforce it for his reinbursement, is required on payment to have it assigned to some third person for his benefit, and, in case of collateral security, he is in such instances also entitled to the full equitable doctrine of subrogation; but if he pays the judgment debt on which he himself is bound, without having it assigned, as indicated, he then becomes the simple contract creditor of his principal. Bank v. Sprinkle, 180 N. C. 580, 104 S. E. 477.

Subrogation Applicable between Co-Sureties.—A surety may preserve the lien of judgment against the principal and himself by paying the judgment creditor and having the judgment assigned to a third person for his own credit, and this also applies to a judgment against his co-sureties and himself in enforcing an equality of obligation between them. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 84 S. E. 852.

What Constitutes a Refusal to Transfer.—Under a proper interpretation of the relevant parts of this section the refusal of the judgment creditor to transfer the judgment to some third person to preserve the lien thereof for the benefit of the surety, tendering payment of the same, means his final refusal to do so, and not when the status of the parties remain the same, and the judgment creditor subsequently offers and stands willing to assign the judgment as the statute requires. Bank v. Sprinkle, 180 N. C. 580, 104 S. E. 477.

Proportionate Liability of Sureties.—The liability of sureties among themselves is controlled by the equitable principle of equality arising out of a common risk, and in case of insolvency or nonresidence these rights are adjusted by reference to the number of sureties who are solvent or who have property available to process within the jurisdiction of the court. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 84 S. E. 852.

Surety Cannot Raise Question of Liability after Judgment.—By paying the whole judgment, one joint tort-feasor, under this section, can lose no right it has against the other tort-feasor or its surety. If the surety is a party to the judgment and bound thereby it cannot thereafter raise the question of its liability to the defendant, when it pays the judgment in full and requires the transfer of said judgment to a trustee by virtue of the provision of this section. Hamilton v. Southern R. Co., 203 N. C. 468, 471, 166 S. E. 392.

Contribution between Joint Tort Feasors.—This section seems to abrogate the well-settled rule, that, subject to some exceptions (Gregg v. Wilmington, 155 N. C. 18, 70 S. E. 1070), there can be no contribution between joint tort-feasors. Lineberger v. Gastonia, 196 N. C. 445, 146 S. E. 79, 82, citing Raulf v. Elizabeth City Light, etc., Co., 176 N. C. 691, 97 S. E. 236.

Cited in Jones v. Rhea, 198 N. C. 190, 151 S. E. 255; Gaffney v. Phelps, 207 N. C. 553, 560, 178 S. E. 231.

§ 619. Clerk to pay money to party entitled.—The clerk, to whom money is paid as aforesaid, shall pay it to the party entitled to receive it, under the same rules and penalties as if the money had been paid into his office by virtue of an execution. (Rev., s. 578; Code, s. 439; R. C., c. 31, s. 128; 1823, c. 1212, s. 2.)

§ 620. Credits upon judgments.—Where a payment has been made on a judgment docketed in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and no entry made on the judgment docket, or where any docketed judgment appealed from has been reversed or modified on appeal and no entry made on such docket, any person interested therein may move in the cause before the clerk, upon affidavit after notice to all persons interested, to have such credit, reversal or modification entered; and upon the hearing before the clerk he may hear affidavits, oral testimony, depositions and any other competent evidence, and shall render his judgment, from which any party may appeal in the same manner as in appeals in special proceedings. On the trial of any issue of fact on the appeal either party may demand a jury trial, which shall be had upon the evidence before the clerk, which he shall reduce to writing. On a final judgment ordering any such credit, reversal or modification, transcript thereof shall be sent by the clerk of the superior court to each county in which the original judgment has been docketed, and the clerk of such county shall enter the same on the judgment docket of his county opposite such judgment and file the transcript. No final process shall issue on any such judgment after affidavit filed in the cause until the motion for credit, reversal or modification has been finally disposed of. (Rev., s. 579; 1903, c. 558.

Parol Agreement to Convey Land Not within Section.—Upon a motion to enter satisfaction of a judgment under this section, a defendant may not set up his parol executory agreement to convey lands to the plaintiff for that purpose, such is not in the purview of the statute, and not enforcible by him under the statute of frauds. Brown v. Hobbs, 154 N. C. 544, 70 S. E. 906.

§ 621. For money due on judicial sale.—The supreme and other courts ordering a judicial sale, or having possession of bonds taken on such sale, may, on motion, after ten days notice thereof in writing, enter judgment as soon as the money becomes due against the debtors or any of them, unless for good cause shown the court directs some other mode of collection. (Rev., s. 1524; Code, s. 941; R. C., c. 31, s. 129.)

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional and does not contravene the right of trial by jury. Ex parte Cotten, 62 N. C. 79, 81.

Motion Proper Method to Enforce Contract.—An independent action upon an obligation to secure the payment of money given on a purchase under a judicial sale will not be entertained if objection be made in apt time; the proper course is to enforce the contract by a motion in the cause in which the sale is decreed, Lackey v. Pearson, 101 N. C. 651, 8 S. E. 121; but this matter is within the control of the court and in proper instances the court may decree a resale of the land if the purchaser does not pay within a specified time —in this case, sixty days. Davis v. Pierce, 167 N. C. 135, 83 S. E. 182.

Same—When Independent Action Allowed.—If the objection is not made at the proper time the court may proceed with the independent action. Lackey v. Pearson, 101 N. C. 651, 8 S. E. 121. Such objection will not be entertained when made for the first time in the Supreme Court. Id.

Failure of Purchaser to Comply with His Bid.—If a purchaser at a judicial sale fails to comply with his bid, the court may either decree, first, that he specially perform his contract, or, second, that the land be resold and the purchaser released, or third, that without releasing the purchaser the land be resold; but in this case the purchaser must undertake, as a condition precedent to the order of sale, to pay all additional costs and to make good any deficiency in the price. Hudson v. Coble, 97 N. C. 260, 1 S. E. 688.

Ten Days' Notice Required.—Any court, which orders a judicial sale, has the power to make a decree for the money after ten days' notice thereof. Exparte Cotten, 62 N. C. 79.

Waiver of Right to Jury Trial.—Although the defendant under this section is entitled to have the issue, where the debt sued on was contracted for the purchase of land, tried by a jury, yet, if after being duly summoned he fails to appear and answer, he waives that right. Durham v. Wilson, 104 N. C. 595, 10 S. E. 683.

Sale by Administrator.—A sale of land for assets, made by an administrator, pursuant to a judgment in a probate court, in a proceeding instituted for that purpose, is a judicial sale, and the provisions of this section are applicable thereto. Mauney v. Pemberton, 75 N. C. 219, 220; Chambers v. Penland, 78 N. C. 53.

When Court May Reopen Case.—Where the commissioner for the private sale of lands for division has withheld from the knowledge of the court the actual price the purchaser has agreed to pay, and reported a lesser sum, which the court has confirmed by final judgment, it is an imposition on the court, and will not conclude it from reopening the case on the petition of the commissioner in the cause, after notice, and affording the proper relief. Lyman v. Southern Coal Co., 183 N. C. 581, 112 S. E. 242.

Petition by Commissioner.—A commissioner appointed for the sale of land in proceedings for partition, after confirmation of sale to a private purchaser, filed a petition in the cause after notice alleging in effect that in addition to the purchase price he had reported, the purchaser had agreed to pay a larger sum to include his commission, etc., and had paid only the smaller sum, reported and confirmed, and refused to pay the balance as agreed after having received the deed from the clerk's office, where it had been deposited. It was held, upon demurrer, that the allegations of the petition must be considered as true, and it was reversible error for the trial judge to sustain the demurrer, and not require an answer to be filed to set the matters at issue for the purpose of proceeding to determine the controversy. Lyman v. Southern Coal Co., 183 N. C. 581, 112 S. E. 242.

§ 622. Applicable to justices' courts.—This article applies, wherever appropriate, to proceedings in courts of justices of the peace. (Rev., s. 562; Code, s. 389.)

Art. 24. Confession of Judgment

§ 623. When and for what.—A judgment by confession may be entered without action either in or out of term, either for money due or to become due, or to secure any person against contingent liability on behalf of the defendant, or both, in the manner prescribed by this article. (Rev., s. 580; Code, s. 570; C. C. P., s. 325.)

See section 624 and notes thereto.

This section and §§ 624, 625 are mere procedural statutes, regulating the practice of the courts, and can of course have no extraterritorial effect or be looked to as limiting the powers of corporations. Monarch Refrigerating Co. v. Farmers' Peanut Co., 74 F. (2d) 790, 793.

Court Must Have Jurisdiction.—It is essential that the court have jurisdiction before a judgment on confession can be validly entered. Slocumb v. Shingle Co., 110 N. C. 24, 14 S. E. 622.

Same—May Be Collaterally Impeached.—Judgment, void if for want of jurisdiction in the court, if such appears on the record, may be collaterally impeached in any court in which the question arises. Hervey v. Edmunds, 68 N. C. 243.

Manner of Attacking Judgment by Confession.—Judgment by confession, being a final judgment, cannot be collaterally attacked for fraud, this must be done by an independent action properly constituted for that purpose. Sharp v. Danville etc., R. R., Co., 106 N. C. 308, 11 S. E. 530; Uzzle v. Vinson, 111 N. C. 138, 16 S. E. 6.

For What Judgment May be Confessed.—A judgment by confession may be taken to cover a future debt. Bank v. Higginbottom, 9 Pet. 48, 9 L. Ed. 46.

So also a judgment may, it seems, be confessed for a specific sum claimed, subject to the right of the party confessing to reduce the amount, and in case of failure or omission to do so the whole amount will be collectible. Gear v. Parish, 5 How. 168, 12 L. Ed. 100.

Confession by Partner.—It would seem to be well settled that, even before dissolution, one partner cannot confess judgment so as to bind his copartners. Hall v. Lanning, 91 U. S. 160, 23 L. Ed. 271.

Confession by Guardian.—A judgment confessed by a guardian of one non compos mentis, under the provisions of this section, if the statement required be verified by the guardian in the absence of fraud, is not irregular. McAden v. Hooker, 74 N. C. 24.

In White v. Albertson, 14 N. C. 241, the process had been served on the guardian above, [alone] and not on the infants also, as it should have been, and the guardian permitted judgment against the infants by nil decit; yet it was held that the judgment was not irregular, although in that case it was said the court had acted unadvisedly in permitting the guardian whose interests were opposed to those of the ward to represent him in that case. The analogy between infants and lunatics is so close as to justify the conclusion that a similar judgment against a lunatic would not be irregular. McAden v. Hooker, 74 N. C. 24, 29.

A judgment confessed by executors on a debt created after the death of the testator and during the time of administration will bind them in their individual capacity, though they style themselves as executors in making such a confession. Hall v. Craige, 65 N. C. 51.

Confession May be Made to State.—A person may confess a judgment, or recognizance on record, to the state for a sum of money, as well as to an individual. Therefore, where A was convicted on an indictment and fined, and ordered into the custody of the sheriff, and B, in consideration that A should be discharged from custody, confessed a judgment to the state for the fine and costs, it was held that the judgment could not afterwards be set aside. State v. Love, 23 N. C. 264.

Confession by Corporation.—A corporation, nothing to the contrary appearing, may by the action of its proper officers confess judgments as a natural person, if the essential requirements of the statute are complied with. Sharp v. Danville etc., R. R. Co., 106 N. C. 308, 11 S. E. 530.

Same—Authority Should Be Shown.—A corporation may confess judgment, without action, in or out of term, but the record should show that the officer or person who represented the corporation in the proceedings was duly authorized to act, and that he did act under the direction of his principal. Nimocks v. Cape Fear Shingle Co., 110 N. C. 20, 22, 14 S. E. 622.

Construction of Warrant of Attorney.—It seems to be an established principle that an authority given by warrant of attorney to confess a judgment against the maker of a note must be clear and explicit and strictly construed, and the court cannot supply any supposed omissions of the parties. National Exchange Bank v. Wiley, 195 U. S. 257, 49 L. Ed. 184.

Effect of Confession.—It has been held that the confession of a judgment does indeed create a contract; but it is only on the side of the defendant, who thus acknowledges or assumes upon himself a debt, which may be made the ground of an action. Livingston v. Moore, 7 Pet. 469, 8 L. Ed. 751.

But on the side of the plaintiff, the necessity of resorting to certain means of enforcing that judgment, is not an obligation arising out of contract, but one imposed upon him by the laws of the country. Id.

Parol Evidence Not Admissible.—Where a judgment is confessed by one against himself, and so entered of record, parol evidence is not admissible to show that it was intended to have been entered against another. Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 620.

Mistake as Ground for Relief.—If a judgment be confessed under a clear mistake, a court of law will set the judgment aside, if application be made, and the mistake shown, while the judgment is in its power. Walden v. Skinner, 101 U. S. 577, 25 L. Ed. 963.

But, if the judgment is no longer in the power of a court of law, relief may be obtained in a court of chancery. Id.

§ 624. Debtor to make verified statement.—A statement in writing must be made, signed, and verified by the defendant, to the following effect:

1. It must state the amount for which judgment may be entered, and authorize the entry of judgment therefor.

2. If it is for money due, or to become due, it must state concisely the facts out of which it arose, and must show that the sum confessed is justly due, or to become due.

3. If it is for the purpose of securing the plaintiff against a contingent liability, it must state concisely the facts constituting the liability, and must show that the sum confessed does not exceed the same. (Rev., s. 581; Code, s. 571; C. C. P., s. 326.)

Editor's Note.—This section must be read in connection with the preceding one, as compliance with the provisions of the one without the other is not sufficient. As was said in Sharp v. Danville, etc., R. R. Co., 106 N. C. 308, 319, 11 S. E. 530, "It is not sufficient simply to confess and enter judgment. It is essential that the confession and entry shall have the additional requisites further prescribed by the statute." (Reference being made to this section.)

Section Strictly Construed.—Strict compliance with the provisions of this section is required, and if all the requirements are not met the judgment is void because of a want of jurisdiction in the court to render judgment, which is apparent on the face of the proceedings. Smith v. Smith, 117 N. C. 348, 23 S. E. 270.

It is essential to the validity of a judgment by confession that it be confessed and entered of record according to the provisions of this section. These are essential matters required by the section to confer jurisdiction on the court, and to insure validity of the judgment. Farmers' Bank v. McCullers, 201 N. C. 440, 160 S. E. 494.

Verified Statement of Facts Required.—A judgment confessed under this section must contain a verified statement of the facts and transactions out of which the indebtedness arose. Davenport v. Leary, 95 N. C. 203, 204. And a mere statement that the debts are bona fide due, without embracing the account which was filed, is not a sufficient compliance. Id. See also, Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 620, and Merchants Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765, the latter case holding that the confession is sufficient when it is for "goods sold and delivered," although omitting the time of sale, quantity, price and value of the goods.

Debts Evidenced by Note or Bond.—A judgment confessed upon the statement that defendant is indebted to the plaintiff in a certain sum "arising from the acceptance of a draft," setting out a copy thereof, is irregular and void. Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 621.

A statement that the amount was due by a certain note described in the judgment, that said note became due on a day named, and that the consideration was cotton sold and delivered—was a compliance with this section. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

Where the affidavit stated that the amount was due on a bond under seal for borrowed money, due and payable 2 November, 1876, it was held that the statement was sufficient. Uzzle & Co. v. Vinson, 111 N. C. 138, 16 S. E. 6.

Same—This Requirement Mandatory.—The filing of the concise statement of the facts out of which the indebtedness arose, required of the party confessing judgment, is mandatory. Davidson v. Alexander, 84 N. C. 620, 625.

Same—Reason for the Rule.—A confession of judgment being a proceeding in derogation of a common right, the statute requires, as a protection against the perpetration of fraud, that the consideration out of which the debt arose be stated, and an averment that the debt for which the judgment is confessed "is justly due." Smith v. Smith, 117 N. C. 348, 350, 23 S. E. 270.

Confession of Judgment with Defeasance.—It is a well recognized practice to confess a judgment with a defeasance, and the courts will take notice of the condition, and will not permit an execution to issue in violation of it. Hardy v. Reynolds, 69 N. C. 5.

A stipulation in a confession of judgment that no execution shall issue thereon within a time specified is not such a reservation for the benefit of the debtor as impairs the rights of other creditors, and does not vitiate the judgment. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

Where a judgment confessed by a wife in favor of her husband shows only that it was based upon a sum alleged to be due on account of money advanced by the husband from time to time to take care of obligations due at the banks by the wife, and fails to state the items constituting the claim, when advanced and to whom, and that the advancements were not gifts to the wife, the judgment is insufficient to meet the requirements of the statute, and is void. Farmers' Bank v. McCullers, 201 N. C. 440, 441, 160 S. E. 494.

Showing that Debt is Due Sufficient without Statement.—A confession of judgment which states the amount for which the judgment is confessed, and states that the same is due by a certain promissory note due and payable on a day named, and that the consideration for the same was an article sold and delivered, sufficiently conforms to the statute provided the statement is true, for then it follows that it is shown that the amount "is justly due." Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

Description of the Nature of the Indebtedness Sufficient.—The failure to file with the confession of judgment the note or other evidence of indebtedness does not invalidate the judgment, provided the confession contains a sufficient description of the nature of the indebtedness to enable a party to make inquiry and ascertain the truth of the matter. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

Where Judgment Does Not Expressly Authorize Filing.—Although a confession of judgment does not contain words expressly authorizing the clerk to enter the same upon the records, yet, if the record shows that the confession was sworn to and filed and judgment thereupon entered, the filing is equivalent to an express authority for its entry and sufficiently conforms to the statute. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

Judgment Is a Lien for the Amount Named.—A judgment confessed to provide security against a contingent liability is authorized by the code, and must be a lien for the full amount named till the actual loss is determined at a lesser sum. Darden v. Blount, 126 N. C. 247, 250, 35 S. E. 479.

Judgment Containing Irregularities.—Ordinarily, a judgment by confession without action will not be set aside for mere irregularities, the party confessing the judgment being presumed to have waived them; but where the judgment is void for a cause appearing in the record, or the record omits some essential element, it will be set aside or quashed. Nimocks v. Cape Fear Shingle Co., 110 N. C. 20, 22, 14 S. E. 622.

Same—Judgments by Confession May Be Amended as Other Judgments.—Such irregularities in a confession of judgment as might be corrected by amendment in the case of ordinary judgments may be the subject of amendment in a confession of judgment. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

Same—Irregularities Only May Be Cured by Amendment.—If the proceedings are so defective in form and substance that it is void upon its face, no amendment can be made to give it life; but if there are irregularities they may be cured by amendment. Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 524, 20 S. E. 765.

Same—Who May Set Aside the Judgment.—A judgment may be set aside for irregularity only upon the application of a party thereto. Uzzle v. Vinson, 111 N. C. 138, 16 S. E. 6.

§ 625. Judgment; execution; installment debt.—The statement may be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the defendant resides, or if he does not reside in the state, of some county in which he has property. The clerk shall indorse upon it and enter on his judgment docket a judgment of the court for the amount confessed, with three dollars costs, together with disbursements. The statement and affidavit, with the judgment indorsed, thenceforth become the judgment roll. Executions may be issued and enforced thereon in the same manner as upon judgments in other cases in such courts. When the debt for which the judgment is recovered is not all due, or is payable in installments, and the installments are not all due, the execution may issue upon such judgment for the collection of such installments as have become due, and shall be in the usual form; but must have indorsed thereon, by the attorney or person issuing it, a direction to the sheriff to collect the amount due on such judgment, with interest and costs, which amount shall be stated, with interest thereon, and costs of said judgment. Notwithstanding the issue and collection of such execution, the judgment remains as security for the installments thereafter to become due; and whenever any further installment becomes due, execution may, in like manner, be issued for its collection and enforcement. (Rev., s. 582; Code, s. 572; C. C. P., s. 327.)

Substantial Compliance Required.—The requirements of this section, like those contained in the two preceding sections, must be, at least, substantially complied with. Sharp v. Danville, etc., R. R. Co., 106 N. C. 308, 321, 11 S. E. 530.

When and Where Judgment Entered.—The mere fact that the judgments were entered in the night time and in the law office of counsel, which was near to the courthouse and convenient, did not render them void or irregular. Sharp v. Danville, etc., R. R. Co., 106 N. C. 308, 321, 11 S. E. 530.

Art. 25. Submission of Controversy without Action

§ 626. Submission, affidavit, and judgment. — Parties to a question in difference which might be the subject of a civil action may, without action, agree upon a case containing the facts upon which the controversy depends, and present a submission of the same to any court which would have jurisdiction if an action had been brought. But it must appear by affidavit that the controversy is real, and the proceedings in good faith to determine the rights of the parties. The judge shall hear and determine the case, and render judgment thereon as if an action were pending. (Rev., s. 803; Code, s. 567; C. C. P., s. 315.)

Editor's Note.—The prime (and practically the only) object of this section is to prevent expensive litigation. This being true, its provisions are quite limited in their operation. They are applicable only to a case where there are parties to a question which might be the subject of a civil action in which a judgment might be rendered for one party against the other.

The purpose of this section, is to enable parties to a question in difference, which might be the subject of a civil action, where they agree as to the facts involved, to submit the facts to the court, for its decision of the question in difference, and for its judgment in accordance therewith, without the expense and formalities required for a civil action. Hicks v. Greene County, 200 N. C. 73, 76, 156 S. E. 164.

Where the parties submit to the court questions of law arising upon facts agreed, without showing that they have rights involved in the questions, upon which they would be entitled to judgment, in a civil action the court is without jurisdiction, under this section, and should decline to consider the questions submitted for its decision. Id.

The jurisdiction to render advisory opinions with respect to, or judgments declaring the rights and liabilities of parties to actions or proceedings on an agreed statement of facts, was not conferred by this section. Wright v. McGee, 206 N. C. 52, 54, 173 S. E. 31.

Court Must Have Jurisdiction.—The submission of controversy without action under this section must be to a court of competent jurisdiction over the subject matter. Lenoir Drug Co. v. Town, 160 N. C. 571, 76 S. E. 480: And as the superior court has no jurisdiction over an action to recover a town tax of $5 paid to an incorporated town under written protest, an action therefor in that court should be dismissed. Id.

A special judge is without authority of law to hear and determine at chambers a controversy without action submitted under the provisions of this section, when the Governor has not specially appointed him under the provisions of statute to hold a term of court at that time, Constitution, Art. IV, § 11; and the proceedings of a special judge under such circumstances are a nullity, and on appeal the cause will be dismissed. Greene v. Stadiem, 197 N. C. 472, 149 S. E. 685.

Not Applicable to Justices' Court. — This section has no application to the court of a justice of the peace. Wilmington v. Atkinson, 88 N. C. 54, 55. .

Verification by Affidavit Essential.—It is essential that the submission be verified by an affidavit. Millikan v. Fox, 84 N. C. 108, 109; Hervery v. Edmunds, 68 N. C. 243. And where there is a failure to file an affidavit to the effect that the controversy is real, and the proceedings are in good faith to determine the rights of the parties, the Supreme Court will refuse to hear the case, as this requirement, under the section, is an indispensable requisite to the exercise of jurisdiction in such a case. Grant v. Newsom, 81 N. C. 36. 37. See also, Grandy v. Gulley, 120 N. C. 176, 177, 26 S. E. 779; Arnold v. Porter, 119 N. C. 123, 25 S. E. 785; Wilmington v. Atkinson, 88 N. C. 54.

Same—Exception.—While the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction of a case submitted without action, under this section, where it does not appear by affidavit that a controversy is real, yet, where all the parties interested in the construction of a will (including the executor, who is a claimant and is in possession of the property concerning which the question arises) agree, as petitioners, to submit the question to the decision of a judge of the superior court, it was held, that this court will take cognizance of the case as an application by the executor for a construction of the will, so as to enable him to dispose of the fund in his hands. Ruffin v. Ruffin, 112 N. C. 102, 16 S. E. 1021.

Interests Must Be Antagonistic.—For the courts to pass upon a controversy submitted under the provisions of this section the interest of the parties must be antagonistic, and the case will be dismissed if it appears that the parties are one in interest, or desire the same relief. Burton v. Durham, etc., Realty Co., 188 N. C. 473, 125 S. E. 3.

Where it appears that an action is instituted solely to obtain the advice and opinion of the Court as to the validity of a proposed county bond issue upon the facts agreed, and that the interest of both parties is the same and there is no "question of difference" between them, the proceeding will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Moore v. Caldwell County, 207 N. C. 311, 176 S. E. 580.

An agreement as to the facts and for the court to rule the law, in a suit to quiet title to lands, differs from a controversy submitted without action under the provisions of this section. Dowling v. So. Ry. Co., 194 N. C. 488, 140 S. E. 213.

Section Contemplates the Rendition of a Judgment.—The true construction of this section is, that it does not confer upon certain parties who differ as to their rights to propound to the court on a case agreed interrogatories in respect thereto, but that the purpose is simply to dispense with the formalities of a summons, complaint and answer, and upon an agreed state of facts to submit the case to the court for decision, and thereupon the judge shall hear and determine the case and "render judgment thereon as if an action were pending." McKethan v. Ray, 71 N. C. 165, 170; Farthing v. Carrington, 116 N. C. 315, 325, 22 S. E. 9 ; Little v. Thorne, 93 N. C. 69.

Same—Sufficiency of Facts Stated.—The statement of the facts agreed upon should contain sufficient averments to constitute a cause of action upon which the court could render judgment. Farthing v. Carrington, 116 N. C. 315, 335, 22 S. E. 9.

When a case is heard under this summary method authorized by the Code, the statement should embrace all the facts material to a final and complete determination, with nothing further to be done except to carry the judgment into effect. Moore v. Hinnant, 87 N. C. 506.

Same—Where Question of Great Public Concern Involved.—Where, under this section a controversy is submitted which involves matters of great public concern and which is supported by an affidavit that a real case exists, and that the controversy is submitted in good faith to determine the rights of the parties, the Supreme Court will, upon appeal, determine the question of law thus raised, it being stated with entire distinctness, although the statement of facts is not full enough to render a judgment commanding or prohibiting a thing to be done. Farthing v. Carrington, 116 N. C. 315, 22 S. E. 9.

No Prayer for Judgment Necessary.—In an action submitted without controversy no prayer for judgment is necessary. Williams v. Commissioners, 132 N. C. 300, 43 S. E. 896.

Exhibits Containing Facts Not Attached.—The summary method provided by this section for the submission of an action upon a case agreed, contemplates that all the facts necessary to a determination of the questions submitted shall be fully stated in the case agreed; and where it appeared that some of the facts were recited in exhibits which were not attached, and that leave was given the parties to add other matters, the cause was remanded to be perfected. Piedmont R. Co. v. Reidsville, 101 N. C. 404, 8 S. E. 124.

Plaintiff Permitted to File Affidavit after Case Docketed.—Where, when the case was docketed in the Supreme Court, no affidavit had been filed as required by this section, the plaintiff upon motion (the defendant being present and not objecting) was allowed to file the required affidavit. Bank v. Trust Co., 119 N. C. 553, 554, 26 S. E. 131.

Parties.—All persons having an interest in the controversy must be parties, to the end that they may be concluded by the judgment, and the controversy be finally adjudicated as in case of an action instituted in the same way. McKethan v. Ray, 71 N. C. 165, 170.

Facts Must Show Equitable Dealings When Wife is Party.—Where a controversy, properly constituted, is submitted without action under the provisions of this section, involves the question as to the necessity of the wife of a tenant in common to join in his deed voluntarily given to divide the lands between himself and the other tenants in common, on appeal the case will be remanded if it does not appear in the facts agreed that the division so made was a fair and equitable one. Valentine v. Granite Corp., 193 N. C. 578, 137 S. E. 668.

Conflicting Claims to Money, in Sheriff's Hands.—Where a sheriff has money in his hands under executions in favor of different creditors, against the same defendant, and the creditors set up conflicting claims to the money, it is not such a case as may be submitted to a judge, without an action, under this section, by the adverse claimants. Bates v. Lilly, 65 N. C. 232.

Title to Office May Not Be Tried under Section.—A civil action in the nature of a writ of quo warranto it the proper mode of trying title to a public office; the submission of a controversy without action under this section for that purpose cannot be sustained. Davis v. Moss, 81 N. C. 303.

Where Controversy May Not Be Considered.—An action brought by the seller of a cotton-scale beam may not be maintained against the purchaser thereof in anticipation of the latter's claim for damages arising upon the breach of an implied warranty against defects that caused damages to the purchaser, and under this section upon demurrer the controversy may not be considered by the court as upon a case agreed. Equitable rights of bills of peace, quia timet, and to remove clouds on title to lands distinguished. Jacobi Hdw. Co. v. Jones Cotton Co., 188 N. C. 442, 124 S. E. 756.

Jury Trial Not Contemplated by the Section.—This section does not contemplate a trial by jury. Moore v. Hinnant, 90 N. C. 163, 164. Whether or not the Supreme Court can remand the case and direct an issue of fact to be tried by a jury in the court below was left undecided, although inclination was shown that this might be done if the application therefor is made in apt time.

Illustrative Cases.—It is impossible in a work of this nature to collect all the cases bearing upon this section, and to state the facts found and the question involved therein. A few of the leading cases are given to show that where the essential requirements have been complied with, the courts have not confined the application of the method prescribed by the provisions of this section to any particular classes of questions. Ed. Note.

Case May Be Submitted after Issues Joined.—The parties may agree upon a state of facts and submit it to the judge for his decision, even after issues are joined. Hervey v. Edmunds, 68 N. C. 243, 247.

Same—Recovery of Specific Legacy.—A controversy, the purpose of which was to recover a specific legacy given by the terms of a will, and to determine the conditions on which it was to be received, was submitted to the court under this section. University v. Gatling, 81 N. C. 508, 509.

Same—Homestead and Personal Property Exemption. — The question whether or not minor children, whose mother and father died, neither of whom having applied for a homestead or personal property exemption, were entitled to claim such exemptions, was decided under the method prescribed by the provisions of this section. Welch v. Welch, 78 N. C. 240.

Same—Bank Deposit Applied on Matured Note. — The legality of the application by the banks of the balance of a bankrupt depositor on a note already matured, was the question submitted without action in Trust Co. v. Spencer, 193 N. C. 745, 138 S. E. 124.

Same—Sheriff's Right to Commission.—The facts agreed upon in the case of Board v. Commissioners, 137 N. C. 63, 49 S. E. 47, presented for determination the question whether or not a sheriff is allowed to retain a commission out of the school taxes collected by him.

Same—Specific Performance.—The question whether the plaintiff, who had contracted to convey certain land, could compel the defendant to fulfill the contract, when some doubt as to whether he (the plaintiff) could convey a good and indefeasible title arose by force of certain terms used in a will under which the plaintiff acquired the land, was submitted in Watts v. Griffin, 137 N. C. 572, 50 S. E. 218.

Same—Land Claimed under Conflicting Grants.—Where the parties claimed the same land under conflicting grants, the question as to the true owner was submitted without action in Janney v. Blackwell, 138 N. C. 437, 438, 50 S. E. 857.

Same—The recovery of advances of money to meet losses sustained by a broker, the advances being made at the request of his principal, was the purpose of the action in Black & Co. v. Carr, 80 N. C. 295.

Same—The determination of the owner of the legal title of a safe sold upon a conditional sales contract, followed by the bankruptcy of the purchaser, was the question in Brem v. Lockhardt, 93 N. C. 191, 192.

Taxes.—The section is applicable in the determination of the question whether a party is obligated for taxes demanded of him. Pullen v. Commissioners, 68 N. C. 451.

Same—Purchase of Municipal Bonds.—The determination of the liability of the defendants, under an agreement to purchase certain municipal bonds, was the question involved in the case submitted in Charlotte v. Shepard, 120 N. C. 411, 412, 27 S. E. 109.

Same—General Assignment.—The question submitted without action in Winston v. Biggs, 117 N. C. 206, 23 S. E. 316 was this: Is the assignee under a general assignment for the benefit of creditors required upon demand to pay a dividend out of funds in his hands for distribution upon the basis of the entire debt of one of the creditors secured in the deed, who has, and who had at the time of the execution of the assignment, a prior security upon a piece of property also conveyed in the assignment, or is the trustee to pay such creditor a dividend only on the balance due after the creditor has exhausted his prior security and applied the same to his debt?

Part Due Bonds as Counterclaim.—The question presented without action in Bourne v. Board of Financial Control, 207 N. C. 170, 176 S. E. 306, was this: Can past due county bonds owned at the commencement of the action, be used as a counterclaim against a promissory note belonging to said county?

Parity of Street Assessment with Tax Liens.—The question presented for determination under this section and § 628 in the case of Saluda v. Polk County, 207 N. C. 180, 176 S. E. 298, was whether a street assessment constitutes a lien on a parity and of equal dignity with tax lien.

Applied in Webb v. Port Comm., 205 N. C. 663, 172 S. E. 377, with reference to the constitutionality of certain private corporate acts; in Beaufort County v. Mayo, 207 N. C. 211, 176 S. E. 753, with reference to determining title to land.

Farmers', etc., Bank, 197 N. C. 438, 439, 149 S. E. 546; Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. v. Black, 198 N. C. 219, 151 S. E. 269; Commerce Union Trust Co. v. Thorner, 198 N. C. 241, 151 S. E. 263; New York Indemnity Co. v. Corporation Commission, 197 N. C. 562, 150 S. E. 16; Lowery v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 197 N. C. 299, 148 S. E. 926; Callahan v. Flack, 205 N. C. 105, 170 S. E. 125.

§ 627. Judgment roll.—Judgment shall be entered on the judgment docket, as in other cases, but without cost for any proceedings prior to trial. The case, the submission, and a copy of the judgment, constitute the judgment roll. (Rev., s. 804; Code, s. 568; C. C. P., s. 316).

Judge May Sign Judgment in Vacation.—A judge of the superior court has a right, with consent of parties, to sign a judgment in vacation out of court, and to order the same to be entered of record at the ensuing term. Hervey v. Edmunds, 68 N. C. 243; but this does not apply to criminal cases. State v. Alphin, 81 N. C. 567.

§ 628. Judgment enforced; appeal.—The judgment may be enforced in the same manner as if it had been rendered in an action, and is subject to appeal in like manner. (Rev., s. 805; Code, s. 569; C. C. P., s. 217.)

No particular assignment of error is necessary, when the appeal is taken from a judgment on an agreed statement of facts. Davenport v. Leary, 95 N. C. 203, 204.

Facts Showing No Cause of Action.—Where the facts agreed in a controversy without action show no cause of action, an appeal from a judgment thereon will be dismissed in the Supreme Court, as where the plaintiff claims title under a deed, avers that her purchaser was prevented from accepting her deed by the claims of the defendants, without allegation of the facts and circumstances or setting forth sufficiently the terms of the deeds, or making her purchaser and other necessary parties, parties to her action, thus presenting a moot question which the court will not decide. Waters v. Boyd, 179 N. C. 180, 102 S. E. 196.

Art. 25A. Declaratory Judgments

§ 628(a). Courts of record permitted to enter declaratory judgments of rights, status and other legal relations.—Courts of record within their respective jurisdictions shall have power to declare rights, status, and other legal relations, whether or not further relief is or could be claimed. No action or proceeding shall be open to objection on the ground that a declaratory judgment or decree is prayed for. The declaration may be either affirmative or negative in form and effect; and such declarations shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree. (1931, c. 102, s. 1.)

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 57, for note on this section.

Editor's Note.—Section 14 of the act from which this article is codified provides: "The several sections and provisions of this act, except sections one and two, are hereby declared independent and severable, and the invalidity, if any, of any part or feature thereof shall not affect or render the remainder of the act invalid or inoperative."

This valuable legislation is passed in substantially the form of the Uniform Act recommended by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, the variations from that standard being to adjust it more effectively to local procedure. See the explanation and comments in 9 N. C. Law Rev. 20-24.

One has only to look at the state of the law in North Carolina as disclosed in the case of Hicks v. Greene County, 200 N. C. 73, 156 S. E. 164, by way of contrast to appreciate the improvement which the Declaratory Judgment Act brings to procedure in this state. N. C. Law Rev. 352, 353.

This and subsequent sections applied in Edgerton v. Hood, 205 N. C. 816, 172 S. E. 481, to determine the rights and duties of the parties with respect to the administration of assets of the Rutherford Bank under the provisions of Chapter 344, public local laws of North Carolina, 1933.

Necessity for a Controversy.—If it does not appear that any controversy exists between plaintiffs and defendants as to their respective rights, status, or legal relations, the action will be dismissed as not coming within the provisions of this and the following sections. Wright v. McGee, 206 N. C. 52, 173 S. E. 31.

Applied in Farnell v. Dongan, 207 N. C. 611, 178 S. E. 77, with reference to rights in the property of deceased.

Cited in In re Reynolds, 206 N. C. 276, 286, 173 S. E. 789.

§ 628(b). Courts given power of construction of all instruments.—Any person interested under a deed, will, written contract or other writings constituting a contract, or whose rights, status or other legal relations are affected by a statute, municipal ordinance, contract or franchise, may have determined any question of construction or validity arising under the instrument, statute, ordinance, contract, or franchise, and obtain a declaration of rights, status, or other legal relations thereunder. A contract may be construed either before or after there has been a breach thereof. (1931, c. 102, s. 2.)

§ 628(c). Who may apply for a declaration. — Any person interested as or through an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian or other fiduciary, creditor, devisee, legatee, heir, next of kin, or cestui que trust, in the administration of a trust, or of the estate of a decedent, an infant, lunatic, or insolvent, may have a declaration of rights or legal relations in respect thereto: (a) To ascertain any class of creditors, devisees, legatees, heirs, next of kin or others; or (b) To direct the executors, administrators, or trustees to do or abstain from doing any particular act in their fiduciary capacity; or (c) To determine any question arising in the administration of the estate or trust, including questions of construction of wills and other writings. (1931, c. 102, s. 3.)

clusive.—The enumeration in sections 628(b) and 628(c) does not limit or restrict the exercise of the general powers conferred in section 628(a) in any proceedings where declaratory relief is sought, in which a judgment or decree will terminate the controversy or remove an uncertainty. (1931, c. 102, s. 4.)

§ 628(e). Discretion of court.—The court may refuse to render or enter a declaratory judgment or decree where such judgment or decree, if rendered or entered, would not terminate the uncertainty or controversy giving rise to the proceeding. (1931, c. 102, s. 5.)

§ 628(f). Review.—All orders, judgments and decrees under this act may be reviewed as other orders, judgments and decrees. (1931, c. 102, s. 6.)

§ 628(g). Supplemental relief.—Further relief based on a declaratory judgment or decree may be granted whenever necessary or proper. The application therefor shall be by petition to a court having jurisdiction to grant the relief. If the application be deemed sufficient, the court shall, on reasonable notice, require any adverse party whose rights have been adjudicated by the declaratory judgment or decree, to show cause why further relief should not be granted forthwith. (1931, c. 102, s. 7.)

§ 628(h). Parties.—When declaratory relief is sought, all persons shall be made parties who have or claim any interest which would be affected by the declaration, and no declaration shall prejudice the rights of persons not parties to the proceedings. In any proceeding, which involves the validity of a municipal ordinance or franchise, such municipality shall be made a party, and shall be entitled to be heard, and if the statute, ordinance or franchise is alleged to be unconstitutional, the attorney general of the State shall also be served with a copy of the proceeding and be entitled to be heard. (1931, c. 102, s. 8.)

§ 628(i). Jury trial.—When a proceeding under this act involves the determination of an issue of fact, such issue may be determined in the same manner as issues of fact are tried and determined in other civil actions in the court in which the proceeding is pending. (1931, c. 102, s. 9.)

§ 628(j). Hearing before judge where no issues of fact raised or jury trial waived; what judge may hear.—Proceedings under this act shall stand for trial at a term of court, as in other civil actions. If no issues of fact are raised, or if such issues are raised and the parties waive a jury trial, by agreement of the parties the proceedings may be heard before any judge of the Superior Court. If in such case the parties do not agree upon a judge for the hearing, then upon motion of the plaintiff the proceeding may be heard by the resident judge of the district, or the judge holding the courts of the district, or by any judge holding a term of the Superior Court within the district. Such motion shall be in writing, with ten days notice to the defendant, and the judge so designated shall fix a time and place for the hearing and notify the parties. Upon notice given, the Clerk of the Superior Court in which the action is pending shall forward the papers in the proceeding to the judge designated. The hearing by the judge shall be governed by the practice for hearing in other civil actions before a judge without a jury. The term "Superior Court Judge" used in this section shall include emergency and special judges of the Superior Court. (1931, c. 102, s. 10.)

§ 628(k). Costs.—In any proceeding under this act the court may make such award of costs as may seem equitable and just. (1931, c. 102, s. 11.)

§ 628(l). Liberal construction and administration.—This act is declared to be remedial; its purpose is to settle and to afford relief from uncertainty and insecurity with respect to rights, status, and other legal relations, and it is to be liberally construed and administered. (1931, c. 102, s. 12.)

§ 628(m). Word "person" construed. — The word "person" wherever used in this act, shall be construed to mean any person, partnership, joint stock company, unincorporated association, or society, or municipal corporation or other corporation of any character whatsoever. (1931, c. 102, s. 13.)

§ 628(n). Uniformity of interpretation. — This act shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it, and to harmonize, as far as possible, with Federal laws and regulations on the subject of declaratory judgments and decrees. (1931, c. 102, s. 15.)

§ 628(o). Short title.—This act may be cited as the Uniform Declaratory Judgment Act. (1931, c. 102, s. 16.)

SUBCHAPTER IX. APPEAL.

Art. 26. Appeal

§ 629. Writs of error abolished.—Writs of error in civil actions are abolished, and the only mode of reviewing a judgment, or order, in a civil action, is that prescribed by this chapter. (Rev., s. 583; Code, s. 544; C. C. P., s. 296.)

Editor's Note. — Prior to the adoption of the Code of Civil Procedure writs of error were allowed in proper cases. But in Smith v. Cheek, 50 N. C. 213, it was held that the Supreme Court had no power to issue a writ of error. Section 296 of the Code of Civil Procedure abolished writs of error and substituted appeals therefor. Lynn v. Lowe, 88 N. C. 478; White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 93, 12 S. E. 80.

Cited in King v. Wilmington, etc., Ry., 112 N. C. 318, 16 S. E. 929.

§ 630. Certiorari, recordari, and supersedeas.— Writs of certiorari, recordari, and supersedeas are authorized as heretofore in use. The writs of certiorari and recordari, when used as substitutes for an appeal, may issue when ordered upon the applicant filing a written undertaking for the costs only; but the supersedeas, to suspend execution, shall not issue until an undertaking is filed or a deposit made to secure the judgment sought to be vacated, as in cases of appeal where execution is stayed. (Rev., s. 584; Code, s. 545; 1874-5, c. 109.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

The original Code of Civil Procedure of 1868, abolished writs of error and substituted appeals, but did not provide for writs of certiorari and recordari, as was pointed out by the Supreme Court in Marsh v. Williams, 63 N. C., 371. And thereupon this section was enacted, (Public Laws 1874-75, c. 109).

Whenever a substantial wrong has been done in judicial proceedings, giving a litigant legal right to redress, and no appeal has been provided by law, or the appeal that has been provided proves inadequate, the Supreme Court to all courts of the state and the superior courts to all subordinate courts, over which they exercise appellate power, may issue one or more of these writs and thereby see that the error is corrected and justice administered. State v. Tripp, 168 N. C. 150, 154, 83 S. E. 630.

II. CERTIORARI.

A. Editor's Note.

For regulations of the Supreme Court in regard to the writ of certiorari see Supreme Court rule 34. It is very important that appellant's petition should comply with these regulations as the writ will be dismissed for his failure to do so. Where petitioner failed to give the notice required by Supreme Court Rule 34 the writ will not issue. Sanders v. Thompson, 114 N. C. 282, 19 S. E. 225; Keerans v. Keerans, 109 N. C. 101, 13 S. E. 895. However notice may be waived. Anonymous, 2 N. C. 405.

The writ of certiorari is an extraordinary remedial writ and lies for two purposes: First, as a writ of false judgment to correct errors of law and, second, as a substitute for an appeal. In either case it can issue only to the court where the judgment is. Therefore when the cause has been transferred by appeal the writ must be dismissed. Williams v. Williams, 71 N. C. 427. Its object is to prevent an improper deprivation of appeal.

Where a cause is removed from one superior court to another, the latter has the right to issue a writ of certiorari to the former, directing a more perfect transcript to be certified; for the right to issue writs of certiorari is not founded on the circumstance that the court from which the writ issues is superior to that to which it is directed; but upon the principal that all courts have the right to issue any writ necessary to the exercise of their powers. State v. Reid, 18 N. C. 377.

Where appellant has lost his right to appeal by the neglect of an officer of the law, the contrivance of the opposite party, or improper conduct in the inferior court, a certiorari will be granted without reference to the merits of the cause. McConnell v. Caldwell, 51 N. C. 469.

Where a statute authorizing a proceeding makes no provision for a review, certiorari may be maintained for that purpose. Board of Comm'rs v. Smith, 110 N. C. 417, 14 S. E. 972.

Where no appeal to the superior court from an inferior court is prescribed by the statute creating such court, and where an appeal would otherwise lie, a certiorari in lieu of appeal will issue from the superior court. McPherson Drug Co. v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 173 N. C. 87, 91 S. E. 606.

It is the only method by which the Supreme Court can review the judgment in habeas corpus proceedings in matters not involving the custody of children. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872. Certiorari may issue from the superior courts as well as the Supreme Court. Rhyne v. Lipscombe, 122 N. C. 650, 29 S. E. 57.

B. General Consideration.

Substitute for Appeal. — A writ of certiorari to bring up the record in a case is the proper substitute for an appeal. State v. McGimsey, 80 N. C. 377.

If an appeal is unavoidably lost, certiorari may be granted as a substitute. Anonymous, 2 N. C. 302; Norwood v. Pratt, 124 N. C. 745, 32 S. E. 979.

Discretion of Supreme Court. — The granting or refusing of a petition for a certiorari, is a matter within the discretion of the Supreme Court. King v. Taylor, 188 N. C. 450, 124 S. E. 751; Waller v. Dudley, 193 N. C. 354, 137 S. E. 149; Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Parks, 191 N. C. 263, 131 S. E. 637.

When Certiorari a Matter of Right. — Certiorari will be granted, as a matter of right, where it appears that appellant has been deprived of his appeal by the conduct of the opposing party. Wiley v. Lineberry, 88 N. C. 68; State v. Bennett, 93 N. C. 503; State v. Bill, 35 N. C. 373. Even though the conduct was unintentional. Walton v. Pearson, 83 N. C. 309.

If a party prays an appeal, and the court refuses to allow it, the certiorari is granted as "a matter of course." Bledsoe v. Snow, 48 N. C. 100.

Cannot Be Dispensed with. — Certiorari is a discretionary writ, and counsel may not despense with it by agreement. In re McCade, 183 N. C. 242, 111 S. E. 3; State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

Persons Entitled. — To entitle one to a writ of certiorari he must have some interest in the proceeding sought to be reviewed, and sustain injury thereby. Petty v. Jones, 23 N. C. 408. See Shober v. Wheeler, 119 N. C. 471, 26 S. E. 26; Otey v. Rogers, 26 N. C. 534.

When Another Remedy Available. — Certiorari is not a proper remedy where another adequate remedy is available. Petty v. Jones, 23 N. C. 408; Watson v. Shields, 67 N. C. 235.

Finality of Determination. — Where the judgment against a party is retained for further orders, the judgment is interlocutory and certiorari will not be granted. Smith v. Miller, 155 N. C. 247, 71 S. E. 355.

Applicant Must Negative Laches. — He who seeks a certiorari must negative laches. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Parks, 191 N. C. 263, 131 S. E. 637; Cox v. Kinston Carolina, etc., R. Co., 177 N. C. 277, 98 S. E. 704; Mitchell v. Baker, 129 N. C. 63, 39 S. E. 633.

Negligent Delay. — One who negligently allows the time for bringing his appeal to expire without seeking such remedy is not entitled to the remedy by certiorari. Suiter v. Brittle, 92 N. C. 53, In re Brittain, 93 N. C. 587.

Necessity of Filing Record. — The appellant must aptly file a record proper in the case appealed from as a prerequisite for the Supreme Court to grant his motion for a certiorari to bring up the case for review. Brock v. Ellis, 193 N. C. 540, 137 S. E. 585; Lindsey v. Knights of Honor, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013.

Necessity of Security. — Since certiorari is but a substitute for an appeal, it can only be allowed on the same security, and justification thereof, as in cases of appeal. Chastain v. Chastain, 87 N. C. 283.

But the Supreme Court has the power, in a proper case, to allow the writ to issue without such undertaking. Brittain v. Mull, 93 N. C. 490. The contrary is apparently held in Weber v. Taylor, 66 N. C. 412, but this was in reality not a "proper case."

Certiorari Denied When Appeal Waived. — A writ of certiorari will not issue where the right of appeal has been waived. King v. Taylor, 188 N. C. 450, 124 S. E. 751.

Imposition of Terms on Applicant. — When granted the appellant may be laid under terms not to avail himself of a technical advantage. Collins v. Nall, 14 N. C. 224.

Only Errors Apparent of Record. — Under a writ of certiorari, the object of which is only to bring up the record of an inferior court, only such errors or defects as appear on the face of such record can be considered. Hartsfield v. Jones, 49 N. C. 309; Boseman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10.

Case on Appeal Not Settled. — When for any sufficient cause the case on appeal is not settled in time to have the case docketed at the term of the Supreme Court to which the appeal should be brought, the appellant should in apt time file a transcript of the record proper and move for a certiorari. Tripp v. Somersett, 182 N. C. 767, 108 S. E. 633; McNeil v. Virginia-Carolina R. Co., 173 N. C. 729, 92 S. E. 484. See Walsh v. Burleson, 154 N. C. 174, 69 S. E. 680.

In such a case if appellant does not apply for certiorari at the first term next after the trial, he is not entitled to certiorari at the next term. Joyner v. Hines, 108 N. C. 413, 12 S. E. 901; Haynes v. Coward, 116 N. C. 840, 21 S. E. 690.

Issuance of Successive Writs.—Although a certiorari has once been issued from the Supreme Court, upon a suggestion of a defect of the record, and has been returned, yet the court may, a second time or oftener direct writs of certiorari to issue if it sees reason to think the transcript defective. State v. Munroe, 30 N. C. 258.

But where the return of a certiorari, substituted for an appeal, shows an imperfect record, and no statement of the case, a new writ of certiorari will not be granted. Skinner v. Badham, 80 N. C. 14.

Effect of Certiorari. — Where a defendant has lost his appeal, but is granted a writ of certiorari in lieu thereof, the granting of the writ has the effect of an appeal as to stay of execution, and if the offense be bailable, he is entitled to bail. State v. Walters, 97 N. C. 489, 2 S. E. 539. See Pender v. Mallett, 122 N. C. 163, 30 S. E. 324.

Docketing as a Condition Precedent for Certiorari. — All of the transcript that can be obtained must be docketed at the first term and certiorari asked to complete the transcript. Pittman v. Kimberly, 92 N. C. 562; Slocumb v. Construction Co., 142 N. C. 349, 55 S. E. 196; Walsh v. Burleson, 154 N. C. 174, 69 S. E. 680.

Same—Waiver. — Requirement of Supreme Court that on application for certiorari for case on appeal transcript of record proper must be docketed cannot be waived by appellee. Murphy v. Carolina Elect. Co., 174 N. C. 782, 93 S. E. 456.

Same—When Transcript Cannot Be Docketed. — Where the papers constituting the record proper have been misplaced without any laches of an appellant, the proper practice is to file the case on appeal settled by the trial judge, and ask for certiorari for the record proper. Slocumb v. Construction Co., 142 N. C. 349, 55 S. E. 196. See also Burrell v. Hughes, 120 N. C. 277, 26 S. E. 782; Parker v. Southern R. Co., 121 N. C. 501, 504, 28 S. E. 347; McMillan v. McMillan, 122 N. C. 410, 29 S. E. 361.

Applied in Hamilton v. Southern R. Co., 203 N. C. 468, 166 S. E. 392.

C. Illustrative Cases.

Failure to Serve Case on Appeal. — A petition for a writ of certiorari to bring up the case on appeal will not be granted where the appeal was lost by failure to serve the case on appeal. Zell Guano Co. v. Hicks, 120 N. C. 29, 26 S. E. 650.

Waiver of Statutory Requirements. — When there is an alleged waiver of the statutory requirements in settling case on appeal, a certiorari will issue if the allegations of petitioner's affidavit are not denied. Holmes v. Holmes, 84 N. C. 833, 834.

Delay of Judge. — Where the delay in prosecuting the appeal is owing to no fault of the appellant, but to the delay of the judge, certiorari, in lieu of an appeal may be granted. Sparks v. Sparks, 92 N. C. 359; Haynes v. Coward, 116 N. C. 840, 841, 21 S. E. 690.

Retirement of Judge before Preparing Case. — Where the trial judge goes out of office before preparing a case on appeal, held, that certiorari is proper as a substitute for appeal, if the parties can agree on a statement of the case. Shelton v. Shelton, 89 N. C. 185. But where the trial judge has died certiorari will not lie. Taylor v. Simmons, 116 N. C. 70, 20 S. E. 961.

Loss Caused by Mistake of Clerk. — After a party has prayed an appeal and offered his sureties, if he be defeated of the appeal by the neglect, omission or delay of the clerk, he shall have his cause carried up by a certiorari. Chambers v. Smith, 2 N. C. 366; Graves v. Hines, 106 N. C. 323, 327, 11 S. E. 362.

But not where the clerk fails to send up the transcript. Pittman v. Kimberly, 92 N. C. 562.

Neglect of Counsel.—Where the appellant's counsel told him that he would do everything necessary towards perfecting his appeal, but the counsel failed to file a proper appeal bond it was held, no ground for a certiorari. Winborne v. Byrd, 92 N. C. 7.

Sickness of Appellant. — Sickness of appellant is a sufficient excuse for failure to perfect an appeal so as to entitle him to certiorari as a substitute therefor. Howerton v. Henderson, 86 N. C. 718.

Sickness of Applicant's Attorneys. — The sickness of an attorney is a sufficient excuse for want of diligence in perfecting an appeal, and certiorari will lie. Mott v. Ramsay, 90 N. C. 372.

However the sickness of one of two attorneys is not sufficient although the other is absent from the county. Boyer v. Garner, 116 N. C. 125, 21 S. E. 80.

Error of counsel, whereby a party fails to appeal from a final judgment, is not ground for the certiorari, except under very exceptional circumstances. Smith v. Miller, 155 N. C. 247, 71 S. E. 355; Barber v. Justice, 138 N. C. 20, 50 S. E. 445.

Failure to File Appeal Bond. — The fact that the appeal was not perfected because of the failure of appellant's counsel to file a proper appeal bond is not ground for certiorari in lieu of appeal. Winborne v. Byrd, 92 N. C. 7; Churchill v. Brooklyn Life Ins. Co., 92 N. C. 485. Nor for failure to file appeal bond in time. Bowen v. Fox, 99 N. C. 127, 5 S. E. 437. Nor when justification of sureties is omitted. Turner v. Powell, 93 N. C. 341.

For a contra case see Manning v. Sawyer, 8 N. C. 37, where it was held that where the appellant has failed to bring up the appeal bond along with the transcript, and swears that neither he nor the clerk knew it was his duty to do so, and that he did not intend to abandon his appeal, he shall have a certiorari to bring it up. This case decided at an early day seems to be the only one where a certiorari was allowed because an appeal was lost through the applicant's ignorance as to the requirements of the appeal bond.

Inability to Give Bond. — A certiorari will not be granted where the petitioner is unable to give bond for his appeal, unless it be shown that the judge below refused to make an order allowing the appeal in forma pauperis. Lindsay v. Moore, 83 N. C. 444.

Failure to Pay Clerk's Fees. — Certiorari will not be granted where it appears that the petitioner lost his appeal owing to his failure to comply with a demand for the payment of clerk's fees for making out the transcript. Smith v. Lynn, 84 N. C. 837; Sanders v. Thompson, 114 N. C. 282, 19 S. E. 225. Even though the clerk's fees were exhorbitant. Brown v. House, 119 N. C. 622, 26 S. E. 160.

Omission of Assignment of Errors. — If by accident or inadvertence, without appellant's negligence, an assignment of errors is omitted from the record on appeal appellant may apply to the Supreme Court for certiorari to have such assignments sent up. McDowell v. Kent Co., 153 N. C. 555, 69 S. E. 626, and for incorporation of exceptions. Cameron v. Power Co., 137 N. C. 99, 49 S. E. 76.

Stenographer's Notes. — The mistake of appellant's counsel in sending up the stenographer's notes on appeal, instead of a properly settled case, does not entitle appellant to a certiorari. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

D. Requirements of Application.

Editor's Note. — Under the analysis line "General Considerations," II, B, ante, this note, will be found many cases pertaining to, though not expressly referring to, the application. These cases considering the subject generally should be consulted with reference to the requisites of the application.

Affidavit Required. — The writ of certiorari or recordari to review the judgment of a lower court will be issued only on a proper showing of merits, on affidavit filed. Taylor v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 84, 87 S. E. 981.

Affidavit Must Show Merits. — An application for a writ of certiorari must show a prima facie case of merits. March v. Thomas, 63 N. C. 249; Short v. Sparrow, 96 N. C. 348, 349, 2 S. E. 233. For affidavit held sufficient see Bayer v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 125 N. C. 17, 34 S. E. 100.

When Merit in Appeal Need Not Be Shown. — Where defendant is not able, at the time, to procure sufficient sureties for an appeal, he is entitled to a certiorari, without showing any merits in fact, where the case discloses that there were questions of law which he had a right to have decided by the superior court. Britt v. Patterson, 31 N. C. 197.

Where an opportunity of appealing has been lost by the neglect of an officer of the law, the contrivance of the opposite party, or improper conduct in the inferior court, a certiorari will be granted, without reference to the merits. Collins v. Nall, 14 N. C. 224; McConnell v. Caldwell, 51 N. C. 469, 470.

Loss of Papers. — Where an application for certiorari states that the papers asked to be sent up were lost, but does not aver that steps have been taken to supply them, the writ will not issue. Sanders v. Thompson, 114 N. C. 282, 19 S. E. 225.

Failure to Show Reason for Neglect. — Where a petition for a writ of certiorari did not allege that the adverse party prevented defendants from taking an appeal, and it did not appear that an appeal was ever taken, and no reason was assigned for the neglect, it was held that the writ would not issue. Cox v. Pruett, 109 N. C. 487, 13 S. E. 917.

Case Inaccurately Made. — When it is suggested that the case on appeal is inaccurately made out, the Supreme Court will award a certiorari, in order that the judge, if he sees proper, may make correction. State v. Gay, 94 N. C. 821.

Must Show Judge Will Make Corrections. — Where it is sought to have the case as settled by the judge corrected by a certiorari, the petitioner should set out his grounds for believing that the judge would make the corrections if given an opportunity, and not merely that he believes that probably the judge would do so. Porter v. Western, etc., R. Co., 97 N. C. 63, 2 S. E. 580; Allen v. McLendon, 113 N. C. 319, 18 S. E. 205.

Ability and Willingness to Correct. — The Supreme Court will not, by certiorari, direct the trial court to make changes in the case on appeal where the letter of the trial judge states his opinion that the record is fair and correct; the relief being granted only when the judge by letter indicates that he is willing to make the corrections desired. Slocumb v. Construction Co., 142 N. C. 349, 53 S. E. 196.

Omitted Matter Must Be Relevant. — A certiorari will be denied where it does not appear that the matter omitted from the case settled is relevant to the exceptions presented on appeal. City Nat. Bank v. Bridgers, 114 N. C. 107, 19 S. E. 276; Clark v. Soco-Pettee Mach. Works, 150 N. C. 88, 63 S. E. 153.

Mistake Must Be Apparent. — Certiorari to correct a mistake stated on appeal will not be granted unless it is probable that the judge below would make the desired correction, or unless it is apparent that there was a mistake. Currie v. Clark, 90 N. C. 17; Cheek v. Watson, 90 N. C. 302; Ware v. Nisbet, 92 N. C. 202; Allen v. McLendon, 113 N. C. 319, 18 S. E. 205.

E. Time of Application.

When Applied for. — Generally, the writ of certiorari, as a substitute for an appeal, must be applied for at the term of the Supreme Court to which the appeal ought to have been taken, or if no appeal lay, then before or to the term of court next after the judgment complained of was entered in the superior court. If the writ shall be applied for after that term, sufficient cause for the delay must be shown. State v. Johnson, 93 N. C. 559; State v. Sloan, 97 N. C. 499, 2 S. E. 666.

Application Must Be Timely. — An application for certiorari to supply omissions in the appellate record must be presented to the appellate court with proper diligence, and the result of any laches by the applicant will fall upon him. Todd v. Mackie, 160 N. C. 352, 76 S. E. 245.

Agreement to Waive Time. — To the rule that appeal will be dismissed on motion of the appellee if not perfected according to law, there are the following exceptions: First, where the record shows a written agreement of counsel waiving the lapse of time; and secondly, where the alleged agreement is oral and disputed, and such waiver can be shown by the affidavit of the appellee, rejecting that of the appellant. In either case certiorari is the proper substitute. Walton v. Pearson, 82 N. C. 464.

Tacit Agreement to Waive Delay. — Where there is an undenied tacit agreement to waive delay certiorari will issue. Holmes v. Holmes, 84 N. C. 833; Willis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 119 N. C. 718, 25 S. E. 790.

Denial of Oral Agreement. — A certiorari will not be granted, where an alleged oral agreement between counsel to await the decision of a certain other case is denied. Hutchinson v. Rumfelt, 83 N. C. 441; Graves v. Hines, 106 N. C. 323, 324, 11 S. E. 362; Short v. Sparrow, 96 N. C. 348, 349, 2 S. E. 233.

Time for Requesting Certiorari. — An appellant who has ground for a certiorari as a substitute for appeal must move for it before the cause is reached for argument. State v. Harris, 114 N. C. 830, 19 S. E. 154; State v. Marsh, 134 N. C. 184, 187, 47 S. E. 6. As to when allowed after argument, see Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 571, 11 S. E. 330.

F. Issuance of Writ from Superior Court.

Review of Hearing on Lunacy Writ. — Where a writ of lunacy was issued by a county court, and the party found non compos, and a guardian appointed, in the absence of the said party, and without notice, it was held, that the petitioner was entitled to a certiorari, to have the case taken into a superior court. Dowell v. Jacks, 53 N. C. 387.

Action on Bond. — Where the principal obligor in a bond was called, and, failing to appear, judgment was rendered against his surety, it was held that the fact that the principal was sick, and unable to attend at the term for which he was bound, did not entitle the surety to a certiorari to have the case removed into the superior court. Buis v. Arnold, 53 N. C. 233.

Failure to Plead and Appeal.—Where a defendant fails to enter a plea and to take an appeal, he is not entitled to a certiorari to bring the case into the superior court. Rule v. Council, 48 N. C. 33.

Deprived of Defense by Fraud of Opposite Party. — Where a party is deprived, by the fraud of his opponent, of the opportunity of making a defense in the county court, which can be made in the superior court as well as in the county court, his proper remedy is by a writ of certiorari. Lunceford v. McPherson, 48 N. C. 174.

But a mere suggestion of fraud is insufficient. McLaughlin v. McLaughlin, 47 N. C. 319. See also Haddock v. Stocks, 167 N. C. 70, 83 S. E. 9.

III. RECORDARI.

For further treatment see 8 Enc. Dig. 485 et seq; 14 Enc. Dig. 618 et seq.

A. Editor's Note.

"The writ of recordari under the former practice, and retained in the new, is used for two purposes; the one in order to have a new trial of the case upon its merits, and this is a substitute for an appeal from a judgment rendered before a justice; the other, for a reversal of an erroneous judgment, performing in this respect the office of a writ of false judgment." King v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 318, 320, 16 S. E. 929.

The adoption of this section of the Code (Acts 1874-75 C. 109) seems to retain this practice. King v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., Ibid, cites many cases in which the writ of recordari has been used as a writ of false judgment since the adoption of this section by the legislature. It has been said that the writ of recordari is used only in North Carolina, writs of error and certiorari being substituted for it elsewhere. State v. Griffis, 117 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164.

B. General Consideration.

Scope of Recordari. — If a party has merits and desires a new trial in the superior court, upon a matter heard before a justice of the peace, he must, by a proper application, obtain a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal. Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379. It is in the nature of an extension of the power of appeal. Webb v. Durham, 29 N. C. 130.

But though this is the ordinary and most common, it is not the only use of the writ. It may be employed as a writ of false judgment, to correct in law, and then it is the means whereby the superior court, the highest court of original jurisdiction in this state, can control inferior tribunals, in matters for which no writ of error lies, by bringing up their judicial proceedings to be reviewed in the matter of law. In such case the certiorari is in effect a writ of error, as all that can be discussed and determined in the superior court are the power and sufficiency of the proceedings as they appear upon the face of them. Commissioners v. Kane, 47 N. C. 288, 291.

Writ of False Judgment or Substitute for Appeal. — The writ of recordari may be used, either as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's judgment to have a new trial on the merits, or as a writ of false judgment. Marler-Dalton-Gilmer Co. v. Wadesboro Clothing, etc., Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366; Morton v. Rippy, 84 N. C. 611; Caldwell v. Beatty, 69 N. C. 365.

The writ of recordari is authorized by this section and recognized by the decisions of this court, both as a substitute for an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace, in order to have a new trial on the merits, and as a writ of "false judgment," to obtain a reversal of an erroneous judgment. King v. Wilmington & Weldon R. Co., 112 N. C. 318, 16 S. E. 929.

The writ of recordari may be used as a writ of false judgment. Parker v. Gilreath, 28 N. C. 221; Kearney v. Jeffreys, 30 N. C. 96. Bailey v. Bryan, 48 N. C. 357, 358.

Lies to Inferior Tribunal Whose Proceedings Are Not Recorded. — The writ of recordari lies to an inferior tribunal, whose proceedings are not recorded. Hartsfield v. Jones, 49 N. C. 309, 310.

Jurisdiction of Superior Courts. — The writs of certiorari and recordari are to be applied for in orderly procedure to the superior courts of general jurisdiction vested by the state constitution and statutes with appellate and supervisory powers over the judicial action of all the inferior courts of the state. Taylor v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 84, 87 S. E. 981.

Failure to Docket Appeal. — When an appeal from a justice's court has not been docketed within the time prescribed by section 870, the appellant should move for a recordari, at the first ensuing term of the superior court, that the appeal should be docketed. Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 166, 72 S. E. 978; Abell v. Thornton Light, etc., Co., 159 N. C. 348, 349, 74 S. E. 881; Powell & Co. v. Rogers, 180 N. C. 657, 104 S. E. 70.

Right to Object to Petition for Recordari Not Waived.— An appellee who does not docket an appeal from justice court not docketed in time by appellant and move for affirmance, does not waive the right to object to appellant's petition to bring up the appeal by recordari. Pickens v. Whitton, 182 N. C. 779, 109 S. E. 836.

Dismissal for Failure to Docket. — A recordari granted defendant by the superior court as substitute for an appeal from a justice not being docketed at that or the succeeding term, plaintiff may at a subsequent term docket the case, and have it dismissed. Johnson v. Reformers, 135 N. C. 385, 47 S. E. 463.

Review of Judge's Decision. — The decision of the judge upon a petition for recordari as a substitute for an appeal, after proper notice to the adverse party, is final and can only be reviewed by appeal, or upon an application to vacate it for mistake, surprise or excusable negligence. Barnes v. Easton, 98 N. C. 116, 3 S. E. 744. See also Stewart v. Craven, 205 N. C. 439, 171 S. E. 609.

Where, upon application to the superior court for a writ of recordari, the judge finds as facts, upon evidence, that the appellant has been guilty of laches in not giving the legal notice of appeal and refuses to grant the writ, his judgment will not be disturbed in the Supreme Court; praying for the appeal and the payment of the fees in the justice's court by the appellant are not sufficient to entitle him to the order as a matter of right. Tedder v. Deaton, 167 N. C. 479, 83 S. E. 616.

No appeal lies from the refusal of the court below to grant a motion to dismiss a petition for a writ of recordari. An appeal lies from the order of the court either granting or refusing to grant such writ. Perry v. Whitaker, 77 N. C. 102.

C. Requirements for Writ.

Issued at Term Following Trial. — The writ of certiorari or recordari to review the judgment of a lower court will be issued only at the next term of the supervising court following trial in the lower court. Taylor v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 84, 87 S. E. 981; Boing v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.

At Earliest Possible Time. — The writ of recordari or of certiorari, as a substitute for an appeal, should be applied for without any unreasonable delay, and any delay, after the earliest moment in the party's power to make the application must be satisfactorily accounted for. Todd v. Mackie, 160 N. C. 352, 359, 76 S. E. 245.

See Koonce v. Pelletier, 82 N. C. 237, in which it was held that, under the circumstances, a delay of three months in applying for the writ was not unreasonable.

Necessity of Affidavit or Petition. — A recordari, granted upon the application of the plaintiff, without notice to the defendant, and without any petition or affidavit setting forth the grounds upon which it should be issued, is irregular, and will be dismissed upon the hearing. Wilcox v. Stephenson, 71 N. C. 409.

Averment as to Payment of Costs. — Before an application for a writ of recordari can be entertained, the petitioner must aver that he has paid or offered to pay the justice's fees. Steadman v. Jones, 65 N. C. 388.

Excuse for Laches and Meritorious Grounds. — Recordari will not be issued unless party applying shows (1) excuse for laches and (2) meritorious grounds. Pritchard v. Sanderson, 92 N. C. 41.

Application Must Negative Laches. — An applicant for recordari must show that he has not been guilty of laches. Marler-Dalton-Gilmer Co. v. Wadesboro Clothing, etc., Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366. See also, Pritchard v. Sanderson, 92 N. C. 41; March v. Thomas, 63 N. C. 249; In re Brittain, 93 N. C. 587.

Sufficient Ground for Recordari Must Be Shown. — It was incumbent on one failing to docket his appeal from justice court in the time required by law to show sufficient ground for a recordari in lieu of the appeal. Baltimore Bargain House v. Jefferson, 180 N. C. 32, 103 S. E. 922.

Applicant Must Show Merits. — An applicant for a writ of recordari must show merit. Marler-Dalton-Gilmer Co. v. Wadesboro Clothing, etc., Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366.

Failure to Show Meritorious Defense. — It is error to issue a writ of recordari to a justice's court, requiring him to send up the cause for trial de novo after entry of default judgment against defendant, and loss of right to appeal, where there is no showing of a meritorious defense. Hunter v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 161 N. C. 503, 77 S. E. 678.

Effect of Failure to Assign Errors. — Where no error is assigned, or none appears, the proper course is to dismiss the recordari, and award a procedendo. Leatherwood v. Moody, 25 N. C. 129; Sossamer v. Hinson, 72 N. C. 578.

Supersedeas Should Accompany. — An order for a recordari should be accompanied with an order for a supersedeas, and suspension of execution until the hearing. Steadman v. Jones, 65 N. C. 388.

D. When Granted.

Loss of Appeal without Fault of Applicant. — A recordari is a substitute for an appeal, where the party has lost his right to appeal otherwise than by his own default. Marsh v. Cohen, 68 N. C. 283; Pickens v. Whitton, 182 N. C. 779, 109 S. E. 836.

Party Denied Right of Appeal. — If a party has been aggrieved in a trial before a justice of the peace and has been denied the right of appeal, he may obtain relief by a writ of recordari. Birdsey v. Harris, 68 N. C. 92; Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379.

Refusal of Appeal on Frivolous Ground. — If an appeal be refused by a magistrate on frivolous ground, the remedy is by a writ of recordari. Bailey v. Bryan, 48 N. C. 357, 67 Am. Dec. 246.

Appeal Lost by Excusable Neglect. — Where a party has lost his appeal by excusable neglect he may have relief by a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal. Navassa Guano Co. v. Bridgers, 93 N. C. 439.

Loss by Technical Default. — Where a party has lost his appeal by a technical default the superior court judge can have it brought up by recordari. Suttle v. Green, 78 N. C. 76, 77.

Loss of Appeal by Misfortune. — The writ of recordari is not resorted to as a rule except in cases in which the party aggrieved has by his misfortune lost the opportunity of taking the ordinary statutory appeal. State v. Griffis, 117 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164. See also, Boing v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62; Davenport v. Grissom, 113 N. C. 38, 41, 18 S. E. 78.

Erroneous Supposition as to Agreement. — A writ of recordari is properly granted, where the defendant had merits, and lost his right to appeal without fault, having erroneously supposed that relief had been arranged with the plaintiff's attorney. Carmer v. Evers, 80 N. C. 56.

Notice of Appeal Not Returned. — On appeal from a justice of the peace to the superior court, where justice did not make a return of the notice of appeal during the next term, it was appellant's duty, where superior court judge was absent from such next term, to file motion for a recordari during such next term to preserve his right to have the case tried at the next succeeding term of the superior court. Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708.

E. When Denied.

When Appeal Available. — Where a party has a remedy by appeal which he willfully or negligently fails to exercise he is not entitled to a writ of recordari. State v. Griffis, 117 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164; Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 166, 72 S. E. 978.

Duty to See That Appeal Is Filed in Time. — It is not enough that parties to a suit should engage counsel and leave the matter of taking an appeal entirely in his charge, as they should, in addition to this, give to the matter that amount of attention which a man of ordinary prudence usually gives to his important business, and should to that extent see that the appeal was filed in time. Baltimore Bargain House v. Jefferson, 180 N. C. 32, 103 S. E. 922.

Not Deprived of Appeal by Fraud, Accident or Mistake.— Where a party is not deprived of his appeal by any fraud, accident, surprise, or denial by the court, he is not entitled to the aid of a writ of recordari. Satchwell v. Rispess, 32 N. C. 365; Hare v. Parham, 49 N. C. 412, 413.

When Appellant Has Not Perfected Appeal. — A motion for recordari made in the superior court several terms after the judgment has been entered in the justice's court for failure to send up the transcript, should be denied when the appellant has not paid the fees required or taken proper steps to perfect the appeal. Helsabec v. Grubbs, 171 N. C. 337, 88 S. E. 473.

Appeal Lost through Negligence of Applicant's Attorney. —A party is not entitled to a writ of recordari as a substitute for an appeal from a justice's court which was lost by delay through the negligence of his attorney. Boing v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 88 N. C. 62.

Illness of One Member of Law Firm. — As every member of a law firm is charged with knowledge of all the business of the firm, the illness of one member of a new firm which prevented him from attending a trial in justice court, and thus caused defendant to suffer a default judgment and lose its right of appeal, is not a showing of excusable neglect which will warrant the issuance of a writ of recordari. Hunter v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 163 N. C. 281, 79 S. E. 610.

IV. SUPERSEDEAS.

Editor's Note. — See Supreme Court Rule 34 as to requirements of application for this writ.

An appeal duly taken and regularly prosecuted of itself operates as a stay of all proceedings in the trial court. sec. 655. Sykes v. Everett, 167 N. C. 600, 83 S. E. 585.

For supersedeas bond see sec. 650 et seq., and annotations thereunder.

Definition and Scope of Writ. — "Supersedeas" is a writ issuing from an appellate court to preserve the status quo pending exercise of that court's jurisdiction, and issues only to hold the matter in abeyance pending review, and is granted only by court ordering removal of cause, and is regulated by statute. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Horton, 176 N. C. 115, 96 S. E. 954.

A writ of supersedeas may issue to vacate the order of the lower court. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824; In re Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 114 S. E. 294; Page v. Page, 166 N. C. 90, 80 S. E. 1060; McArthur v. Timber Co., 164 N. C. 383, 80 S. E. 403; Arey v. Williams, 154 N. C. 610, 70 S. E. 931, 5 N. C. L. R. 26.

Section 226—Authority of Court or Judge. — The superior court can not supersede the process of an inferior court, unless the writ of supersedeas be auxiliary to the appellate jurisdiction of the former. Bank v. Stanley, 13 N. C. 476.

A supersedeas is ancillary to a writ of error, and the former may be granted by the same judge who has granted the latter. Seaboard Air Line Railway v. Horton, 176 N. C. 115, 96 S. E. 954.

The Supreme Court of North Carolina has no power to grant a supersedeas pending a petition to the United States Supreme Court for certiorari. Seaboard Air-Line R. Co. v. Horton, 176 N. C. 115, 96 S. E. 954.

When Granted—Case of Necessity. — A writ of supersedeas is only granted in case of necessity. McArthur v. Commonwealth Land, etc., Co., 164 N. C. 383, 80 S. E. 403.

Where the rights of a party can be fully protected in other proceedings which he seeks to restrain, a writ of supersedeas will not be granted. McArthur v. Commonwealth Land, etc., Co., 164 N. C. 383, 80 S. E. 403.

Appeal from Nonappealable Order. — Where an appeal is taken in a matter wherein no appeal lies, the court below need not stay proceedings, but may disregard the attempted appeal. Dunn v. Marks, 141 N. C. 232, 53 S. E. 845.

Review of Clerk's Decision. — A supersedeas, is the proper remedy to stay proceedings in a cause, pending the review of a decision of the clerk in regard to the sufficiency or insufficiency of an undertaking for an appeal. Saulsbury v. Cohen, 68 N. C. 289.

Injunction. — An appeal from an order granting an injunction does not stay the operation of the injunction pending the appeal. Green v. Griffin, 95 N. C. 50; Fleming v. Patterson, 99 N. C. 404, 6 S. E. 396.

An appeal from an order dismissing a temporary injunction could not have the effect of continuing the injunction. Reyburn v. Sawyer, 128 N. C. 8, 37 S. E. 954.

It is not proper to allow a supersedeas for the purpose of continuing an injunction pending an appeal from an order dissolving it. James v. Markham, 125 N. C. 145, 34 S. E. 241.

Supersedeas upon Judgment. — An appeal from an order granting a supersedeas upon a judgment leaves the judgment creditor at liberty to enforce his judgment. Bank v. Jones, 17 N. C. 284.

Custody of Child. — Where, in divorce proceedings, the trial court granted custody of a child to a mother and the husband appealed, and the mother sued out habeas corpus for the custody of the child pending the appeal, the Supreme Court might supersede the order as to custody pending the appeal, by virtue of Const. art. 4, § 8, authorizing it to issue remedial writs. Page v. Page, 166 N. C. 90, 81 S. E. 1060.

§ 631. Appeal to supreme court; security on appeal; stay.—Cases shall be taken to the supreme court by appeal, as provided by law. All provisions in this article as to the security to be given upon appeals and as to the stay of proceedings apply to appeals taken to the supreme court. (Rev., ss. 595, 1540; Code, ss. 561, 946; C. C. P., s. 312.)

Cross Reference. — For cases in which an appeal lies, see annotations under section 638. As to designation and description of parties, see 1 Enc. Dig. 481 et seq.

Interest in Subject-Matter. — A commissioner appointed to make a deed is not a "party to the action," and, having no personal interest in the subject of it can not appeal from an order of the court requiring him to correct his deed, and his attempted appeal will be dismissed. Summerlin v. Morrisey, 168 N. C. 409, 84 S. E. 689.

A creditor on rejection of his claim by the referee was such a "party aggrieved" as had a right of appeal under this section. Irvin v. Harris, 182 N. C. 647, 109 S. E. 867.

Parties Whose Only Interest Is Payment of Moneys Secured by Trust Deed. — In an action to restrain a trustee from selling lands under a trust deed, till the determination of plaintiff's interest in the premises, parties whose only interest in the suit is the payment of the moneys secured to them by the trust deed can not appeal from a judgment declaring a parol trust in the equity of redemption in favor of plaintiff. Faison v. Hardy, 118 N. C. 142, 23 S. E. 959.

Receivers of a corporation can not appeal from a judgment of instructions because the instructions are, as between two classes of stockholders, prejudicial to one of such classes. Strauss v. Carolina Interstate, etc., Loan Ass'n, 117 N. C. 308, 23 S. E. 450, affirmed in 118 N. C. 556, 24 S. E. 116.

Parties of Record. — One not a party or privy to the record can not appeal. Siler v. Blake, 20 N. C. 90, 93.

Administrators. — Where in proceedings by the administrator to sell lands of the estate to pay debts, the judge has ordered claimants to file original evidence of their indebtedness and then referred the matter, the proceedings assume the character of a creditor's bill in which a creditor whose claim has been disallowed, may appeal to the Supreme Court as a party aggrieved. Irvin v. Harris, 182 N. C. 647, 109 S. E. 867.

Propounders in Caveat Proceeding.—In a caveat proceeding where the jury found against propounder, and the trial court set aside the verdict as being against the weight of the evidence and ordered a new trial, it was held that the propounders were not the "parties aggrieved" by the order setting aside the verdict and could not appeal. In re Hargrove, 207 N. C. 280, 176 S. E. 752.

A defendant, who asks for no affirmative relief, is not the "party aggrieved" by a judgment of nonsuit within the meaning of this section and cannot appeal. Guy v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 118, 120, 172 S. E. 885.

But if defendants are not appealing from a nonsuit in their favor, but from a judgment upon the verdict which adversely affects their interest, they have the right to appeal under this section. Hargett v. Lee, 206 N. C. 536, 174 S. E. 498.

Application to Be Made a Party Denied.—If an application to be made a party defendant is denied, the applicant is a "party aggrieved" for all the purposes of an appeal, under this section. Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Person Denied Right to Intervene. — One whose claim to intervene in a suit has been rejected by the court can not appeal from the judgment rendered in the suit. Phelps v. Long, 31 N. C. 226; Evans v. Governor's, etc., Min. Co., 50 N. C. 332; Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Interveners for Purpose of Appeal. — Where a judgment for costs is rendered in a claim and delivery proceeding against a person who is not a party thereto, and who does not appear on the record as a party, such person may appeal on a special appearance made for that purpose. Loven v. Parson, 127 N. C. 301, 37 S. E. 271.

Party Not Served with Process. — One not a party can not appeal and the entry of a special appearance for one not served with process, though named as a defendant, does not authorize counsel so appearing to appeal from a default judgment against his client. Houston v. Lumber Co., 136 N. C. 328, 48 S. E. 738.

Submission of Controversy. — Parties to an equity suit, who agree that the judge should find the facts, are precluded from asking the Supreme Court, on appeal, to review the finding. Runnion v. Ramsay, 93 N. C. 410.

Joinder. — All parties against whom a joint judgment or decree is rendered must join in an appeal. Mastin v. Porter, 32 N. C. 1; Kelly v. Muse, 33 N. C. 182.

Appeal from Joint Verdict and Judgment. — One defendant can not sustain an appeal from a joint judgment against two or more, when all had joined in the pleadings, and the trial was joint. Hicks v. Gilliam, 15 N. C. 217.

Where there is a joint judgment against two defendants in the court below, and one only appeals, the appeal will be dismissed on motion, no matter what steps have been taken in the cause after the filing of the appeal. Smith v. Cunningham, 30 N. C. 460.

Judgment against One of Two Parties. — Where an action is brought in the county court against two defendants, who plead severally, and a verdict and judgment are rendered in favor of one and against the other, the latter may alone appeal from the judgment rendered against him. Stephens v. Batchelor, 23 N. C. 60.

In assumpsit against two, if the jury find against one and in favor of the other, the former may appeal alone to the Supreme Court. Sharpe v. Jones, 7 N. C. 306.

Appeal by Justices of County. — Where, in a proceeding against the justices of a county, in their official capacity as justices of the county court, a judgment is rendered against them, they may appeal, although a minority of the justices refuse to join in the appeal. Kelly v. Justices, 24 N. C. 430.

Appeal by Statutory Receiver.—Objection that the statutory receiver has no right of appeal without the approval of the court is untenable when it appears that the Superior Court judge gave at least implied authority for appeal by approving the agreement of the parties as to what should constitute the case on appeal after notice of appeal by the receiver. In re Central Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 251, 173 S. E. 340.

Cited in Simmons v. Andrews, 106 N. C. 201, 204, 10 S. E. 1052.

§ 633. Appeal from clerk to judge.—Appeals lie to the judge of the superior court having jurisdiction, either in term time or vacation, from judgments of the clerk of the superior court in all matters of law or legal inference. In case of such transfer or appeal neither party need give an undertaking for costs; and the clerk shall transmit, on the transfer or appeal, to the superior court, or to the judge thereof, the pleadings, or other papers, on which the issues of fact or of law arise. An appeal must be taken within ten days after the entry of the order or judgment of the clerk upon due notice in writing to be served upon the appellee and a copy of which shall be filed with the clerk of the superior court. But an appeal can only be taken by a party aggrieved, who appeared and moved for, or opposed, the order or judgment appealed from, or who, being entitled to be heard thereon, had no opportunity of being heard, which fact may be shown by affidavit or other proof. (Rev., ss. 586, 610-11; Code, ss. 116, 252-3; C. C. P., ss. 109, 492; 1927, c. 15.)

Cross Reference.—As to powers of clerks, see section 938 and annotations thereunder. As to powers of the judge on appeal, see section 637 and annotations.

Editor's Note.—No notice was required by this section prior to 1927. At that time by Public Laws 1927, ch. 15 the portion relating to "due notice in writing" was added.

By this section any party may appeal from any decision of the clerk of the superior court, on an issue of law or legal inference, to the judge, without undertaking; but an appeal can only be taken by a party aggrieved, who appeared and moved for or opposed the order or judgment appealed from. National Bank v. Burns, 107 N. C. 465, 12 S. E. 252.

This section and sections 635 and 636, regulating appeals from the clerk to the judge, are applicable to appeals from orders and judgments made or rendered by the clerk in the exercise of jurisdiction conferred upon him by statute prior to chapter 92, Public Laws 1921, E. S. These sections of the Code do not apply to orders and judgments made or entered by the clerk as authorized by the latter statute. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329.

Clerk Acts for Court.—The exercise of judicial powers by the "clerk of the court" is the exercise of them by the "court" through the clerk; and the action of the clerk stands as that of the court, if not excepted to and reversed or modified on appeal. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498.

The clerk is not a "lower court" to the superior court with respect to appeals. While he has original jurisdiction in some matters and in the decision thereof may be considered a separate tribunal, nevertheless, all his power is delegated by virtue of his office as clerk of the superior court. Windsor v. McVay, 206 N. C. 730, 175 S. E. 83.

Action of Clerk Not Conclusive.—The action of the clerk is not final and conclusive. In a proper case, on appeal it is the duty of the court to review the findings of fact by the clerk and correct his errors of law. He is no more than the servant of the court, and subject to its supervision. Turner v. Holden, 109 N. C. 182, 186, 13 S. E. 731.

Applies to Special Proceedings.—This section applies in special proceedings as well as in civil actions generally. Welfare v. Welfare, 108 N. C. 272, 276, 12 S. E. 1025.

Order to Sell Land for Debt.—This section applies to an appeal from an order of the clerk to sell lands of decedent to pay debts. Perry v. Perry, 179 N. C. 445, 448, 102 S. E. 772.

Docketing Tax Not Applicable.—Where an appeal is taken from an order of the clerk of the superior court to the judge thereof under this section, the judge has jurisdiction by mandate of section 637, and no "docketing" in a technical sense is involved, and section 7880(88) requiring a tax of two dollars for "docketing" an apepal from a lower court in the superior court does not apply. Windsor v. McVay, 206 N. C. 730, 175 S. E. 83.

Sufficiency of Bonds.—The power to revise and control the action of a clerk of the superior court in passing upon the sufficiency or insufficiency of bonds to be taken by him, necessarily exists with the judge, whose minister and agent he is; and the proper mode of bringing the question before the judge is by an appeal from the ruling of the clerk. Marsh & Co. v. Cohen, 68 N. C. 283.

Setting Aside Commissioner's Report.—An order of the clerk, setting aside the report of commissioners making partition of land, and directing a redivision, is appealable to the judge, and if no error in law is committed, the decision of the judge cannot be reversed. McMillan v. McMillan, 123 N. C. 577, 31 S. E. 729.

Removal of Executors.—An appeal will lie to the judge in proceedings for the removal of executors and administrators. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 5.

Order Concerning Judgment Debtor.—An appeal lies from an order of the clerk requiring a judgment debtor to appear and answer concerning his property, where the affidavit for the order is objected to on the ground of its insufficiency. Farmers Nat. Bank v. Burns, 107 N. C. 465, 12 S. E. 252.

Refusal to Issue Execution.—Where a clerk of the Superior Court refuses to issue an execution against the person of a judgment debtor, an appeal therefrom may properly be taken to the resident judge of the district. Huntley v. Hasty, 132 N. C. 279, 43 S. E. 844.

Proceedings Supplemental to Execution.—Where in proceedings supplemental to execution had before the clerk, he held that the affidavit was sufficient and made the order demanded, an appeal lay at once to the judge as a matter of right, and the clerk could not allow or disallow it. Nat. Bank v. Burns, 107 N. C. 465, 12 S. E. 252.

On appeal from the assessment of damages for lands taken by the State Highway Commission the clerk is required by this section to transmit the entire record to the court upon notice of appeal duly given, leaving nothing for the appellant to do in respect thereto, and there is no analogy therein to an appeal from the justice of the peace. Where the clerk has failed to transmit the record the trial judge within his supervisory power may order that this be done. Sneed v. State Highway Commission, 194 N. C. 46, 138 S. E. 350.

Jurisdiction of Clerk.—Where an equitable proceedings, brought before the clerk, who has no equity powers, is pending on appeal in a court having equity jurisdiction, the supreme court will permit the latter to retain control of the case, and make all necessary orders as though the case were regularly pending. Smith v. Gudger, 133 N. C. 627, 45 S. E. 955.

Laches.—An appeal from the clerk to the judge should be dismissed on the ground of inexcusable laches. Hicks v. Wooten, 175 N. C. 597, 96 S. E. 107.

Cited in Daniel v. Bellamy, 91 N. C. 78, 82; Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 5, 8; Chowan & Southern Ry. Co. v. Parker, 105 N. C. 246, 249, 11 S. E. 328; Adams v. Guy, 106 N. C. 275, 278, 11 S. E. 535; Holly Shelter Ry. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 136, 45 S. E. 549.

§ 634. Clerk to transfer issues of fact to civil issue docket.—If issues of law and of fact, or of fact only, are raised before the clerk, he shall transfer the case to the civil issue docket for trial of the issues at the next ensuing term of the superior court. (Rev., s. 588; Code, s. 256; C. C. P., s. 115).

Cross References.—As to issues of fact see secs. 557, 558. As to definitions of issues see secs. 580, 581, 582. As to form and preparation of issues see sec. 584.

Rule Stated.—Where issues of fact are joined before the clerk in the exercise of his special jurisdictional powers as a distinct tribunal, the issues must be transferred to the superior court—another jurisdiction—to be tried. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498.

Special Proceedings.—When an issue of fact is joined in a special proceeding, or issues of both fact and law, it is the duty of the Clerk to place the proceeding on the docket of the trial term, for trial. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32.

Partition Proceedings.—In an ex parte proceeding for partition, an appeal by some of the parties from the decision of the clerk, upon the report of commissioners, alleging inequality and unfairness in the allotment—involves questions of fact, properly determinable by the judge, under this section. Beckwith v. ex parte, 124 N. C. 111, 32 S. E. 393.

Right May Be Waived.—In special proceedings, pending before Clerks, the parties have the right to insist that any issue of fact raised by the pleadings shall be framed by the clerk and transmitted to the superior court in term for trial by jury, and where they fail, before an order appointing commissioners is made, to insist upon a verdict upon the controverted facts they waive the right of trial by jury, even if it be conceded that the statute gives them the right to demand it. Chowan & Southern R. Co. v. Parker, 105 N. C. 246, 11 S. E. 328.

Cited in Vance v. Vance, 118 N. C. 864, 867, 24 S. E. 768; Sneed v. State Highway Commission, 194 N. C. 46, 138 S. E. 350.

§ 635. Duty of clerk on appeal.—On such appeal the clerk, within three days thereafter, shall prepare and sign a statement of the case, of his decision and of the appeal, and exhibit such statement to the parties or their attorneys on request. If the statement is satisfactory, the parties or their attorneys must sign it. If either party objects to the statement as partial or erroneous, he may put his objections in writing, and the clerk shall attach the writing to his statement, and within two days thereafter he shall send such statement, together with the objections, and copies of all necessary papers, by mail or otherwise, to the judge residing in the district, or in his absence to the judge holding the courts of the district, for his decision. (Rev., s. 612; Code, s. 254; C. C. P., s. 110.)

See annotations to section 633.

As to powers and duties of clerks see 3 Enc. Dig. 116 et seq., 13 Enc. Dig. 384.

Absolute Duty of Clerk.—The clerk is required by this section to transmit the entire record to the court upon notice of appeal duly given, leaving nothing for the appellant to do in respect thereto, and there is no analogy therein to an appeal from the justice of the peace. Sneed v. State Highway Commission, 194 N. C. 46, 138 S. E. 350.

But see Hicks v. Wooten, 175 N. C. 597, 96 S. E. 107, where it was held that the neglect of the clerk in sending up the appeal would not excuse gross laches of the appellant.

What Statement Should Contain.—This statement should embrace the material facts, copies of necessary paper writings, or such papers themselves so that the judge may review the decision of the clerk appealed from upon its full merits. Brooks v. Austin, 94 N. C. 222..

Partition Proceedings.—Under proceedings for the partition of lands, when an appeal is taken from the decision of the clerk, upon issues of law or legal inference, it is his duty to prepare and make a statement of the case and send it to the judge. Little v. Duncan, 149 N. C. 84, 62 S. E. 770.

When Clerk Does Not Act for Court.—In appeals from the clerk, in that class of cases of which he has jurisdiction, not as and for the court as in special proceedings, but in his capacity as clerk, such as the auditing the accounts of executors and administrators, it is not necessary that he should prepare and transmit to the judge any statement of the case on appeal. Ex parte Spencer, 95 N. C. 271.

Court May Order Statement.—The clerk has no authority to allow or disallow an appeal; and on his refusal to prepare a statement of the case as required by this section, the court in term, or a judge at chambers, may direct him to do so by simple order. Nat. Bank v. Burns, 107 N. C. 465, 12 S. E. 252.

Where the clerk has failed to transmit the record to the court on appeal, upon notice of appeal given in proceedings under the provisions of this section, the trial judge within his supervisory power may order that this be done. Sneed v. State Highway Com., 194 N. C. 46, 138 S. E. 350.

No Appeal From Order to Send up Transcript.—No appeal lies to the Supreme Court from an order of the superior court directing the clerk, to send up to the next term a transcript of proceedings supplemental to execution had before him. National Bank v. Burns, 107 N. C. 465, 12 S. E. 252.

When Statement Not Required.—It is not necessary to make out a statement of the case on appeal when the record proper shows the grounds of appeal. Cape Fear etc. R. Co. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248, 43 S. E. 638.

Clerk Should Give Reasons.—Where the clerk refuses to allow an amendment affecting the substance of an affidavit in attachment proceedings he may, and should, state his reason for such refusal, even after appeal to the court in term. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 10 S. E. 258.

After Retirement of Clerk.—Where a clerk has gone out of office, it is not proper to order him to file with the court, in writing, the evidence offered and admissions made in a proceeding pending before him while he was clerk. Ex parte Spencer, 95 N. C. 271.

Rendering Decision Out of District.—In Byrd v. Nivens, 189 N. C. 621, 127 S. E. 673, 674. The court said. "We do not think that the judge residing in the district or, in his absence, the judge holding the courts for the district, can hear the questions and render a decision out of the district."

Irregular for Judge to Order Docket of Issues.—It is irregular for the judge in making his decision to order the clerk to place the proceeding on the docket of the regular term for trial—it being the duty of the clerk to do this without such order when an issue of fact is joined. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 32.

Cited in Lovinier v. Pearce, 70 N. C. 168, 172.

§ 636. Duty of judge on appeal.—It is the duty of the judge on receiving a statement of appeal from the clerk, or the copy of the record of an issue of law, to decide the questions presented within ten days. But if he has been informed in writing, by the attorney of either party, that he desires to be heard on the questions, the judge shall fix a time and place for the hearing, and give the attorneys of both parties reasonable notice. He must transmit his decision in writing, endorsed on or attached to the record, to the clerk of the court, who shall immediately acknowledge its receipt, and within three days after notify the attorneys of the parties of the decision and, on request and the payment of his legal fees, give them a copy thereof, and the parties receiving such notice may proceed thereafter according to law. (Rev., s. 613; Code, s. 255; C. C. P., s. 113.)

See section 657 and annotations thereunder.

Full Jurisdiction of Case.—Under this section an appeal in partition action from order of the clerk overruling demurrer carried the entire case into the superior court, and vested it with full jurisdiction of the cause. Thompson v. Rospigliosi, 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113.

When Issues of Fact Tried.—When issues of fact are tried the court remands the same and the pleadings or papers with the findings of the jury upon them, and the clerk will then proceed with the matter according to law. This provision has reference to issues of fact. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498, 500.

Appeal May Be Heard Outside County.—Appeals from the clerk of the superior court and special proceedings to the judge residing or presiding in the district may be heard and judgment rendered outside of the county where the proceeding is pending, and within the district. Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 27 S. E. 123.

Appeals from the clerk may be heard at chambers at any place in the district. Monroe v. Lewald, 107 N. C. 655, 12 S. E. 287.

When Notice Not Reasonable.—Where notice of appeal from action by the clerk is served on the day before the hearing, the notice is not reasonable within this section. Byrd v. Nivens, 189 N. C. 621, 127 S. E. 673.

Pending Appeal from Clerk.—A motion for a receiver to take possession of a debtor's property, in supplemental proceedings, may be made before a judge, pending an appeal to him from the ruling of the clerk upon other questions. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Presumption as to Proceedings.—Where nothing in the record indicates that a judge, who rendered a judgment on an appeal from the clerk of the superior court, was requested in writing to fix a time for the hearing and to give the parties notice, it will be presumed that the proceeding was rightly and regularly conducted. Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 27 S. E. 123.

May Hear Any Evidence.—Upon an appeal from an order of the clerk to the judge, the latter may hear any evidence that would have been competent before the former, although in fact not introduced. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Special Proceedings for Partition.—The controversy involved in a special proceeding for the partition of land, as to whether there shall be an actual partition or a sale for the purpose, is not an issue of fact which should be sent to a jury, but a question of fact to be decided by the clerk, or by the judge on appeal. Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 27 S. E. 123.

Proceedings to Sell Lands.—A proceeding to sell lands to make assets to pay of the deceased is appealable from the clerk of the superior court, and open to revision and such further orders or decrees on the part of the judge as justice and the rights of the parties may require, and to be heard and decided by him on the same or such additional evidence as may aid him to a correct conclusion of the matter. Perry v. Perry, 179 N. C. 445, 102 S. E. 772.

Appeal from Clerk's Decision upon Commissioners' Report.—In an ex parte proceeding for partition, an appeal by some of the parties from the decision of the clerk upon the report of commissioners, alleging inequality and unfairness in the allotment—involves questions of fact, properly determinable by the judge, under this section. Ex parte Beckwith, 124 N. C. 111, 32 S. E. 393.

Proceedings Dismissed by Clerk.—Where clerk of superior court, for want of jurisdiction, dismisses a proceeding for the appointment of a trustee, on appeal the judge of the superior court may make such appointment. Roseman v. Roseman, 127 N. C. 494, 37 S. E. 518.

Issue of Law Joined in Special Proceedings.—When an issue of law is joined in a special proceeding it is the duty of the judge to decide the question thus presented, and to transmit his decision in writing to the clerk, who will then proceed with the special proceeding according to law. Jones v. Desern, 94 N. C. 3[illegible].

When Clerk Does Not Act for Court.—In appeals in cases in which the clerk does not act for the court, it is the duty of the judges to determine the questions of fact and law raised, and, for this purpose, if the evidence accompanying the papers is not satisfactory, he can require the production of other evidence. The judge can decide the questions of fact in such cases himself, or if he see fit, he can submit issues for his better information to the jury. Ex parte Spencer, 95 N. C. 271.

§ 637. Judge determines entire controversy; may recommit. — Whenever a civil action or special proceeding begun before the clerk of a superior court is for any ground whatever sent to the superior court before the judge, the judge has jurisdiction; and it is his duty, upon the request of either party, to proceed to hear and determine all matters in controversy in such action, unless it appears to him that justice would be more cheaply and speedily administered by sending the action back to be proceeded in before the clerk, in which case he may do so. (Rev., s. 614; 1887, c. 276.)

Cross References.—As to power of judges in general see 7 Enc. Dig. 1001 et seq., 14 Enc. Dig. 527. See also note under sec. 536.

Editor's Note.—By passing this section in 1887, Acts 1887, ch 276, the legislature considerably widened the power of judges on appeal. This section was enacted to remedy the inconvenience caused by the decision in Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498. In that case it was held that when the appeal was taken from the clerk the judge should hear the appeal and decide the questions of law present, and then remand the matter, including his decision, to the clerk.

Because of its beneficial results this section has always received a liberal interpretation. Williams v. Dunn, 158 N. C. 399, 74 S. E. 99.

It was not contemplated by the legislature that by the provisions of this section a party who should be coram non judice before the clerk could take advantage of his own mistake or purposely make it in order to obviate a well grounded objection to the jurisdiction, and secure by indirection what he could not obtain directly. Nash v. Sutton, 109 N. C. 550, 14 S. E. 77.

Judge May Determine Entire Controversy.—Under this section, the judge now has final jurisdiction to determine the whole matter in controversy. Lictie v. Chappell, 111 N. C. 347, 353, 16 S. E. 171. Faison v. Williams, 121 N. C. 152, 28 S. E. 188; Oldham v. Rieger, 145 N. C. 254, 58 S. E. 1091; Hall v. Artis, 186 N. C. 105, 118 S. E. 901.

Court May Remand.—The court has the right in its discretion to remand the cause to the clerk for further proceedings. York v. McCall, 160 N. C. 276, 280, 76 S. E. 84.

Appointment of Administrator.—On appeal from the order of a clerk appointing an administrator the Superior Court may reverse the order but the case should then be remanded. In re Styers, 202 N. C. 715, 164 S. E. 123.

Upon appeal from an order of the clerk removing certain executors and administrators, c. t. a., and appointing others in their place, by virtue of this section, the Superior Court judge may, in the exercise of his discretional powers, retain the cause, reverse the order of the clerk and appoint other administrators or a receiver to administrate the estate subject to the orders of the court, the entire matter being before the Superior Court on appeal. Wright v. Ball, 200 N. E. 620, 621, 158 S. E. 192.

When Judge Cannot Merely Remand.—Where special partition proceedings were begun before the clerk, and he transferred the case to the judge in term, the judge was required to dispose of it on the merits, and had no power to merely reverse the clerk's action and remand the case to him, though there may have been irregularities in the proceedings before the clerk. Little v. Duncan, 149 N. C. 84, 62 S. E. 770.

Judge May Make Amendments. — The judge has power to make amendments to give jurisdiction. Ewbank v. Turner, 134 N. C. 77, 46 S. E. 508; Elliott v. Tyson, 117 N. C. 114, 23 S. E. 102. He may strike out an answer that is irrelevant. Commissioners v. Piercy, 72 N. C. 181.

Judge May Add Issues. — The number and form of issues is in the discretion of the court, and if every phase of the contention could have been and was presented under the issues submitted they will be sustained on appeal; and when the judge accordingly adds other issues tending to elucidate the case after it has been submitted, in addition to the usual issue, it is not error, but in the line of his duty. In re Herring, 152 N. C. 258, 76, 67 S. E. 570.

Judge May Set Aside Judgment. — The judge has power to set aside a judgment for newly discovered testimony and to permit an amendment in the complaint. Faison v. Williams, 121 N. C. 152, 28 S. E. 188.

Clerk without Equity Jurisdiction. — The clerk of the superior court, having no equity jurisdiction, cannot issue a writ of assistance to enforce its order in proceedings to partition lands among tenants in common, nor can jurisdiction be conferred on the superior court on appeal, the latter having no concurrent or original jurisdiction. Southern State Bank v. Leverette, 187 N. C. 743, 123 S. E. 68.

Proceedings Improperly Brought Before Clerk. — When a case properly cognizable in the superior court, but which is erroneously brought before a clerk, gets in the superior court on any ground the judge has jurisdiction to retain and hear the cause as if originally instituted in the superior court. Hall v. Artis, 186 N. C. 105, 118 S. E. 901; Robeson v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 49, 11 S. E. 263. See also Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508; Spence v. Granger, 207 N. C. 19, 175 S. E. 824.

Agreement That Judge Shall Hear Appeal. — Where the parties agree that the judge shall hear an appeal in term, he acquires jurisdiction of the whole case, and should finally dispose of it on its merits, without remanding it to the clerk. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 10 S. E. 258.

Such agreement cures all irregularities. Foreman v. Hough, 98 N. C. 386, 3 S. E. 912.

Judge Must Hear Controversy Although Clerk without Jurisdiction. — Where a motion to quash an execution and sale of real estate was submitted to the clerk of the superior court who granted the relief, and an appeal was taken to the judge of the court, it was improper for the judge to refuse to hear the controversy on the ground that the clerk was without jurisdiction to entertain the motion. Williams v. Dunn, 158 N. C. 399, 74 S. E. 99.

Clerk Erroneously Transfers Issues. — Where the clerk of the superior court has erroneously at once transferred the proceedings in condemnation to the superior court on issue joined between the parties, and an appeal therefrom has been taken to the superior court, the judge thereof acquires jurisdiction for the hearing and determination of the controversy under the provisions of this section, and may order other proper or necessary parties to be made for the further determination of the cause. Selma v. Nobles, 183 N. C. 322, 111 S. E. 543.

Question of Price of Land. — The discretion vested in the superior court judge on appeal from the clerk, by this section, cannot confer jurisdiction on the judge to pass upon the reasonableness of the price of land sold under the power of sale in a mortgage, wherein the clerk has no authority under C. S., 2591, to further pass thereon in the absence of an increased bill. In re Mortgage Sale of Ware Property, 187 N. C. 693, 122 S. E. 660.

Proceedings to Sell Land. — A proceeding to sell lands to make assets to pay the debts of the deceased is appealable from the clerk of the superior court, and open to revision and such further orders or decrees on the part of the judge as justice and the rights of the parties may require, and to be heard and decided by him on the same or such additional evidence as may aid him to a correct conclusion of the matter. Perry v. Perry, 179 N. C. 445, 102 S. E. 772; Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 27 S. E. 123. See Harrington v. Hatton, 129 N. C. 146, 39 S. E. 780.

In a suit for partition of land the jurisdiction acquired by appeal includes the right of the court to accept a private bid through its commissioner. When the bid is accepted, whether it was made at public or private sale, the court has jurisdiction over the purchaser for the purpose of enforcing compliance with it. Wooten v. Cunningham, 171 N. C. 123 126, 88 S. E. 1.

Proceedings to Subject Lands to Dower.—An ex parte proceeding by a widow to subject land in the hands of heirs to the payment of dower charges thereon cannot be had before the clerk and on appeal may be dismissed by the judge for want of jurisdiction. In re Hybart's Estate, 129 N. C. 130, 39 S. E. 779.

Drainage Assessment Proceedings. — Under this section giving the superior court jurisdiction to hear and determine all matters in controversy upon appeal from the clerk in special proceedings, and section 5287, providing that appeals from the clerk in drainage assessment proceedings should be the same as in special proceedings, an appeal may be taken from an order of the clerk to the superior court. Spence v. Granger, 207 N. C. 19, 175 S. E. 824.

Motion to Retax Bill of Costs. — When a motion, to retax a bill of costs in a case which originated before the clerk but was appealed to the superior court is made at the next term after judgment is entered, it is error for the judge to hold that he has no power to entertain it. In re Smith, 105 N. C. 167, 10 S. E. 982.

§ 638. Appeal from superior court judge.—An appeal may be taken from every judicial order or determination of a judge of a superior court, upon or involving a matter of law or legal inference, whether made in or out of term, which affects a substantial right claimed in any action or proceeding; or which in effect determines the action, and prevents a judgment from which an appeal might be taken; or discontinues the action, or grants or refuses a new trial. I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

Editor's Note. — The appellant should be very careful to conform with the rules of the Supreme Court regarding appeals. The penalty for failure to comply with these rules is the dismissal of the appeal. Exceptions which are not brought forth among the assignments of error, are deemed abandoned under Supreme Court Rule 21.

At common law there was no appeal from the decision of any court, and a decision could only be reviewed by a writ of error or writ of false judgment. By our law appeals are used as a substitute for those writs. Previous to the adoption of the Code of Civil Procedure an appeal was allowed by the court and the preparation and perfection of it was the act of the court. But the Code of Civil Procedure made a notable change in that particular. Appeals were no longer prayed for but were taken. As said in Campbell v. Allison, 63 N. C. 568, "The judge below has nothing to do with the granting of an appeal; it is the act of the appellant alone."

Under the provisions of our state constitution, Article IV, section 8, the Supreme Court is confined on appeal to alleged errors of law or legal inference arising in the conduct of the trial in the superior court. See Robinson v. Ivy, 193 N. C. 805, — S. E. —

Although under this section the right of appeal is very broad, the Supreme Court is inclined to think that much inconvenience and delay is occasioned by the practice of appealing from orders, at every stage of the case, on objections which the party aggrieved could avail himself of after issue, as well as at the first steps in the proceedings.

Certiorari is the proper substitute for an appeal where the appellant has failed to perfect his appeal through no fault or negligence of his own. See section 630 and notes thereunder.

II. APPEAL IN GENERAL.

A. General Considerations.

Purpose of Appeal. — "The purpose of an appeal is to submit to the decision of a superior court a cause which has been tried in an inferior tribunal. Its object is to review the whole case and secure a just judgment upon the merits." Rush v. Halcyon Steamboat Co., 67 N. C. 47, 49.

Method of Correcting Errors. — Where an adjudication is based on the erroneous application of legal principles the proper remedy to correct the error is by a proceeding in appeal. Stafford v. Gallops, 123 N. C. 19, 21, 31 S. E. 265; McLeod v. Graham, 132 N. C. 473, 475, 43 S. E. 935; Rawls v. Mayo, 163 N. C. 177, 180, 79 S. E. 298.

Jurisdiction Properly Acquired.—As appellate jurisdiction is derived from that previously acquired in the court from which the cause is removed, the record must show the possession of that jurisdiction, and that the cause was then properly constituted. Gordon v. Sanderson, 83 N. C. 1.

Jurisdiction Not Conferred by Consent.—Jurisdiction of an appeal can not be given by consent of parties. Cary Co. v. Allegood, 121 N. C. 54, 28 S. E. 61; Rodman v. Davis, 53 N. C. 134, 135.

Appeal as a Matter of Right.—An appeal is not a matter of absolute right; but appellant must comply with the statutes and rules of court as to the time and manner of taking and perfecting it. Caudle v. Morris, 158 N. C. 594, 74 S. E. 98; Byrd v. Southerland, 186 N. C. 384, 119 S. E. 2.

An appellant's right of appeal to the Supreme Court is dependent upon his observance of the rules regulating appeals. State v. Butner, 185 N. C. 731, 117 S. E. 163; Kerr v. Drake, 182 N. C. 764, 108 S. E. 393; Lindsey v. Knights of Honor, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013.

Neither the parties in litigation nor their attorneys have authority, by agreement among themselves, to disregard the rules regulating appeals and where the appellant has failed to comply with these rules the appeal will be dismissed. Rose v. Rocky Mount, 184 N. C. 609, 113 S. E. 506.

Failure to Transmit Record.—An appellant who merely prays an appeal in open court, and files a bond with the clerk, without settling and transmitting the record, does not "take" an appeal, within the meaning of this section. Wilson v. Seagle, 84 N. C. 110.

Both Parties Interested on Same Side of Case. — The Supreme Court will dismiss an appeal from a judgment in an action brought to obtain a construction of such act where it is apparent that both parties are interested on the same side of the case. Kistler v. Southern R. Co., 170 N. C. 666, 79 S. E. 676.

Party Not Appealing.—A party not appealing or assigning any errors is not in position to complain of a ruling. Hannah v. Hyatt, 170 N. C. 634, 87 S. E. 517.

Separate Appeals in Related Causes. — Where causes of action which could not be merged were tried together merely for convenience, and were not united or consolidated by order of the court into one action, there should be separate appeals. Williams v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 144 N. C. 498, 57 S. E. 216.

B. From What Decisions, Orders, etc., Appeal Lies.

For particular orders, decisions, etc., see post this note, "Appeal as to Particular Subjects," III.

Cause Directly Affected.—An appeal lies from an order or determination in an action which affects the right litigated —the cause of action in controversy therein—in respects and ways specified; but it does not lie from an order or determination that is merely incidental, and not affecting directly the cause of action litigated. Bynum v. Comm'rs 101 N. C. 412, 418, 8 S. E. 136.

An order directing reference to ascertain certain alleged expenditures by guardian is not appealable, it not affecting any substantial rights. Sutton v. Schonwald, 80 N. C. 20.

It was formerly held that every order of a court of equity by which the rights of the parties may be affected may be reviewed in the Supreme Court. Graham v. Skinner, 57 N. C. 94.

Final Judgment. — Except where statute otherwise expressly provides, appeal to Supreme Court lies only from final judgment or one in its nature final. McIntosh Grocery Co. v. Newman, 184 N. C. 370, 114 S. E. 535; Gilbert v. Waccamaw Shingle Co., 167 N. C. 286, 83 S. E. 337, 338. See Thomas v. Carteret, 180 N. C. 109, 104 S. E. 75, 76.

As a general rule, an appeal will not lie until there is a final disposition of the whole case. Moore v. Hinnant, 87 N. C. 505; State v. Keeter, 80 N. C. 472, 473; Norfolk, etc., R. Co. v. Warren, 92 N. C. 620; Hailey v. Gray, 93 N. C. 195.

All issues should be determined, and a final judgment rendered, before an appeal to the Supreme Court should be permitted. Yates v. Dixie Fire Ins. Co., 176 N. C. 401, 97 S. E. 209.

Any decision, order, or decree of the circuit court, which puts an end to the proceedings, between the parties to a cause in that court, is final, and may be reviewed upon appeal. Ex parte Spencer, 95 N. C. 271; Bain v. Bain, 106 N. C. 239, 11 S. E. 327. For further consideration of what constitutes a final judgment, see § 592 and the notes thereto.

Same—Premature Appeal.—See post, this note, "What Supreme Court Will Consider," II, C.

Interlocutory Orders.—In order to present the subject of appeals in a logical manner as a whole, interlocutory orders are discussed here. It must be noted, however, that these orders are specifically provided for, in appeals after judgment, by section 640. As to what constitutes an interlocutory order, see section 592 and the notes thereto. Ed. Note.

An appeal lies from an interlocutory order when it puts an end to the action, or where it may destroy or impair a substantial right of the complaining party to delay his appeal. Skinner v. Carter, 108 N. C. 106, 12 S. E. 908; Warren v. Stancill, 117 N. C. 112, 23 S. E. 216.

Appeals to the Supreme Court will be entertained from interlocutory orders or decrees that put an end to the action or seriously imperil some substantial right of the appellant. Martin v. Flippin, 101 N. C. 452, 8 S. E. 345.

By special act the legislature may provide that no appeal lies from an interlocutory order in a specific proceedings. Norfolk & Southern R. Co. v. Warren, 92 N. C. 620.

An appeal from an interlocutory order brings up only such order, and no order in the main case can be made. Perry v. Tupper, 71 N. C. 380.

Where a party appeals from an interlocutory order, and proceeds to trial, without waiting for a decision upon the matter appealed from, the appeal will be dismissed with costs. Love v. Johnston, 34 N. C. 367.

Appeal from Order Allowing Amendment to Pleadingss.—Where an order of court allowing amendments to pleadings does not affect a substantial right, an appeal therefrom is fragmentary and premature, and the appeal will be dismissed. Nissen Company v. Nissen, 198 N. C. 808, 153 S. E. 450.

Judicial Nature of Decision.—An appeal lies in all cases from the judgment applying the law to the facts found. Norton v. McLaurin, 125 N. C. 185, 34 S. E. 269; Ladd v. Teague, 126 N. C. 544, 36 S. E. 45; Stokes v. Cogdell, 153 N. C. 181, 69 S. E. 65.

Where there is legal evidence submitted to the jury, under correct instructions from the trial judge, no appeal lies from the verdict and judgment to review the findings of fact. Pender v. North State Life Ins. Co., 163 N. C. 98, 79 S. E. 293.

Refusal to Dismiss Action.—An appeal does not lie from the refusal to dismiss an action. Goldsboro v. Holmes, 183 N. C. 203, 111 S. E. 1; Capps v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 182 N. C. 7, 58, 108 S. E. 300; Winder v. Penniman, 181 N. C. 7, 105 S. E. 884, 886.

Appeal taken from an order denying a motion to dismiss a special proceeding is premature. After denying such motion, the judge should proceed with the hearing, and the appeal should be from the final decision. Mitchell v. Kilburn, 74 N. C. 483; Mitchell v. Hubbs, 74 N. C. 484; Mitchell v. West, 74 N. C. 485.

Dismissal of Appeal.—A party who loses on appeal to the Supreme Court can not review its decision by second appeal, but the only way is by petition to rehear. Holland v. Railroad, 143 N. C. 435, 55 S. E. 835; Carter v. White, 134 N. C. 466, 46 S. E. 983.

Refusal of Motion for Judgment upon Special Verdict.—An order by the trial court, denying defendants' motions for judgment on the special verdict, setting aside the verdict on one issue, and continuing the cause for the trial of such further issue as may be necessary to determine the rights of the parties, with leave to file amended pleadings, is not a final judgment. Thomas v. Carteret, 180 N. C. 109, 104 S. E. 75.

Application for Citizenship.—Under this section an alien may appeal from decree of superior court denying application for citizenship. United States v. Ovens, 13 Fed. 376. 2d Series.

Judgment Confessed. — One who confesses judgment has no right of appeal from such judgment; but where an appeal was allowed, and the plaintiff failed to move to dismiss, the Supreme Court may pass by the irregularities and consider the errors. Rush v. Halcyon Steamboat Co., 67 N. C. 47.

Decisions of Intermediate Courts.—An appeal lies from the dismissal of an action, or of an appeal from justice court; but it does not lie from a refusal to dismiss, for an exception should be noted, and an appeal lies from the final judgment. Bargain House v. Jefferson, 180 N. C. 32, 103 S. E. 922.

Decisions and Orders Favorable to Appellant.—See post, this note, "Estoppel to Allege Error," II, D.

Matters in Discretion of the Trial Court.—The discretion of the trial court will not be reviewed, unless it appears that such discretion was abused or that the ruling was based upon a matter of law. Fayetteville Light, etc., Co. v. Lessem Co., 174 N. C. 358, 93 S. E. 836; Gordon v. Pintsch Gas Co., 178 N. C. 435, 100 S. E. 878. See 5 N. C. Law Rev. 14.

This section applies only to "matters of law or legal inferences," and not to an order involving a mere discretion. Jenkins v. N. C. Ore Dressing Co., 65 N. C. 563.

If, in the trial court, the verdict of the jury is, in the opinion of the presiding Judge, contrary to the weight of the evidence, he has a discretion to set such verdict aside, which discretion cannot be reviewed in an appellate court. Watts v. Bell, 71 N. C. 405.

Appeals from Subsidiary Proceedings.—Where, after the issuing of an injunction from which an appeal is taken, it appears that the case has been tried, and the issues found, and judgment rendered against appellant, the appeal will be dismissed. Pritchard v. Baxter, 108 N. C. 129, 12 S. E. 906.

Detached Rulings.—The Supreme Court will not entertain appeals from detached rulings upon some of the matters in dispute; but all matters necessary to a disposition of the case should be passed on and settled in a single trial, and the whole case brought up on appeal. Arrington v. Arrington, 91 N. C. 301.

Removal of Public Officer.— An appeal from proceedings in superior court to remove a public officer for willful misconduct or maladministration in office, is allowed by this section. State v. Hamme, 180 N. C. 684, 104 S. E. 174.

C. What Supreme Court Will Consider.

See post, this note, "Presumption on Appeal—Burden of Proof," II, E.

Record Discloses no Error.—Where the record discloses no error of law or legal inference made upon the trial, the Supreme Court on appeal cannot consider whether a miscarriage of justice has resulted in the case appealed. Rawls v. Lupton, 193 N. C. 428, 137 S. E. 175.

Exception Not Considered by Trial Court.—An exception which the trial court, through inadvertence, did not consider, can not be reviewed on appeal, but the case will be remanded that such exception may be passed on. Scroggs v. Stevenson, 100 N. C. 354, 6 S. E. 11.

Points Reviewed Must Have Been Passed on.—In case of an appeal, from the probate court to the judge, if there be a further appeal from the judge to the Supreme Court, the latter tribunal can review no point before the probate court that was not passed upon by the judge. Rowland v. Thompson, 64 N. C. 714.

Error Not Based on Exceptions.—An assignment of error not based on any exception in the record can not be considered. Morse v. Freeman, 157 N. C. 385, 72 S. E. 1056; Thompson v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 147 N. C. 412, 61 S. E. 286.

Will Not Go Behind Judge's Finding of Fact.—A finding by the trial judge as a fact that plaintiff moved to set aside a judgment only upon ground of excusable neglect prevents supreme court from considering any other ground. Shepherd v. Shepherd, 180 N. C. 494, 105 S. E. 4.

Questions Decisive of Appeal.—The supreme court will pass only on the questions decisive of the appeal. Richardson v. Southern Exp. Co., 151 N. C. 60, 65 S. E. 616.

Where there is not enough evidence to take case to the jury, it will not be decided whether defendant would be liable to plaintiff if allegations of complaint had been established. Pegram v. Canton, 179 N. C. 700, 103 S. E. 371.

Questions Which May Not Arise on New Trial.—Where a new trial must be granted for certain reasons, questions in controversy, which may not arise again in the case, need not be decided. Supervisor & Comm'rs v. Jennings, 181 N. C. 393, 107 S. E. 312; Moore v. Chicago Bridge, etc., Works, 183 N. C. 438, 111 S. E. 776.

Appellant Not Entitled to Favorable Decision in Any Event.—Plaintiff can not complain of technical error of the court in the exclusion of evidence offered, where the whole case shows that he could not recover in any event. Wilcox v. McLeod, 182 N. C. 637, 109 S. E. 875; Rankin v. Oates, 183 N. C. 517, 112 S. E. 32.

Defendant's Appeal.—Where, on plaintiff's appeal, it was decided that plaintiff could not maintain his action, defendants' appeal need not be considered. Beard v. Sovereign Lodge, W. O. W., 184 N. C. 154, 113 S. E. 661.

Verdict Bars Right of Action.—Where jury's answer to one issue is a complete bar to plaintiff's right of action, and no error is alleged in determination of that issue, it is unnecessary to consider exceptions relating to other issues. Lamm v. Holloman, 176 N. C. 686, 97 S. E. 161.

Error Must Be Prejudicial. — Error to warrant reversal must be prejudicial. McKeel v. Holloman, 163 N. C. 132, 79 S. E. 445; Steeley v. Dare Lumber Co., 165 N. C. 27, 80 S. E. 963; Brogden v. Gibson, 165 N. C. 16, 80 S. E. 966.

"Error alone is not sufficient to reverse, but there must be harm to the party who excepts, by reason thereof; not that he must affirmatively show injury, but if it appears that there is none, his exception fails." Carter v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 244, 249, 81 S. E. 321.

Errors Not Affecting Result.—The finding for defendant upon one issue renders harmless any error in regard to that issue, and judgment for plaintiff is not reversible therefor. Vickers v. Leigh, 104 N. C. 248, 10 S. E. 308; Perry v. Insurance Co., 137 N. C. 402, 49 S. E. 889.

Error Must Be Material.—Mere error in the trial of a cause is not sufficient grounds for reversal but it should be made to appear that the ruling was material and prejudicial to appellant's rights. Shaw Cotton Mills v. Acme Hosiery Mills, 181 N. C. 33, 106 S. E. 24; Schas v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 170 N. C. 420, 87 S. E. 222.

Trivial Errors.—Courts do not lightly grant reversals or set aside verdicts, and a motion for such to be meritorious should not be based on any merely trivial errors committed manifestly without errors committed manifestly without prejudice. Rierson v. Carolina Steel, etc., Co., 184 N. C. 363, 114 S. E. 467.

Technical Errors.—Verdicts and judgments will not be set aside and new trial granted for a technical or formal error, but to accomplish this result it must appear not only that the ruling was erroneous, but that it amounted to a denial of some substantial right, and this rule applies especially where the trial was a long drawn out and vigorous contest. In re Will of Ross, 182 N. C. 477, 109 S. E. 365.

Error Cured by Verdict or Judgment.—Exceptions to a portion of a charge on an issue which was immaterial under the special verdict, can not be sustained. Fourth Nat. Bank v. Wilson, 168 N. C. 557, 84 S. E. 866. Gambier v. Kimball, 168 N. C. 642, 85 S. E. 3.

Error Cured by Withdrawal.—An exception has no point on appeal, where the testimony objected to was stricken on the appellant's motion. In re Will of Staub, 172 N. C. 138, 90 S. E. 119; Raulf v. Elizabeth City Light, etc., Co., 176 N. C. 691, 97 S. E. 236.

Error Not Involved on Appeal.—Any error in instructions, which were expressly confined to other issues than the one involved on appeal, is harmless. In re Rawlings' Will, 170 N. C. 58, 86 S. E. 794.

Opinion in Case Not Properly Before Court.—The supreme court will sometimes express its opinion on a question involved in an appeal not properly before it where the matter is of moment and the decision may serve to save the parties cost and harassment of further litigation. Taylor v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 84, 87 S. E. 981; Bargain House v. Jefferson, 180 N. C. 32, 103 S. E. 922.

On dismissal of a fragmentary appeal, the supreme court may in its discretion express its opinion upon the merits so far as it may be a guide in further proceedings in the court below. Penn-Allen Cement Co. v. Phillips, 182 N. C. 437, 109 S. E. 257.

Where supreme court, on premature appeal, rendered opinion on the merits, though dismissing the appeal, its opinion is authoritative on subsequent appeal. Yates v. Dixie Fire Ins. Co., 176 N. C. 401, 97 S. E. 209; North Carolina Public Service Co. v. Southern Power Co., 181 N. C. 356, 107 S. E. 226.

When Court Gave Wrong Reason for Judgment.—A correct judgment will not be disturbed on writ of error because the trial court gave a wrong reason therefor. Burns v. McFarland, 146 N. C. 382, 59 S. E. 1011; Brown v. Elm City Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 9, 82 S. E. 961; King v. McRacken, 171 N. C. 752, 88 S. E. 226.

Errors in Case of Decisions Correct on Merits. — A judgment will be affirmed, though irregularly rendered, where the correct result was accomplished. Rankin v. Oates 183 N. C. 517, 112 S. E. 32.

Moot Question.—Where the record on appeal presents only a moot question, the court will not express an opinion concerning it. Greenleaf Johnson Lumber Co., v. Valentine, 179 N. C. 423, 102 S. E. 774; Waters v. Boyd, 179 N. C. 180, 102 S. E. 196; Kistler v. Southern R. R. 170 N. C. 666, 79 S. E. 676.

Proceedings Frivolous or for Delay. — Where it appears upon record that no serious assignment of error is made and that appeal is frivolous and taken solely for delay, appeal will be dismissed. Blount v. Jones, 175 N. C. 708, 95 S. E. 541; Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708.

An appeal by defendant from an order denying a change of venue made at a term subsequent to denial of a motion for change of venue on another ground will be dismissed as made for delay. Ludwick v. Uwarra Min. Co., 171 N. C. 60, 87 S. E. 949.

Premature Appeal.—The supreme court will not entertain premature or fragmentary appeals. Thomas v. Carteret, 180 N. C. 109, 104 S. E. 75, 76. See Farr v. Babcock Lumber Co., 182 N. C. 725, 109 S. E. 833; Joyner v. Reflector Co., 176 N. C. 274, 97 S. E. 44, 45.

A premature or fragmentary appeal will not be considered. Railway v. King, 125 N. C. 454, 34 S. E. 541; Farr v. Babcock Lumber Co., 182 N. C. 725, 109 S. E. 383.

Fragmentary appeals will not be entertained when no substantial right is put in jeopardy by such refusal. Brown v. Nimocks, 126 N. C. 808, 36 S. E. 278.

Where no final judgment was given, nor was there any interlocutory order or determination that put an end to the proceeding, or that could destroy or seriously impair some substantial right of the appellants, if the appeal should be delayed until the final judgment, an appeal will not lie. Fragmentary appeals are not allowed. Leak v. Covington, 95 N. C. 193, and cases there cited; Martin v. Flippin, 101 N. C. 452, 8 S. E. 345.

When Appeal Is Premature.—Where the pleadings present issues of fact that have not been tried below, an appeal is premature. Goode v. Rogers, 126 N. C. 62, 35 S. E. 185.

Though exceptions are noted, an appeal before a final judgment is rendered is premature, and will be dismissed. Graded School Trustees v. Hinton, 156 N. C. 586, 71 S. E. 1087.

Same—Effect of Dismissal. — Though an appeal is dismissed as premature, its entry is equivalent to "noting an exception." Gray v. James, 147 N. C. 139, 60 S. E. 906; Alexander v. Alexander, 120 N. C. 472, 27 S. E. 121; Kerr v. Hicks, 154 N. C. 265, 70 S. E. 468; Bernard v. Shemwell, 139 N. C. 446, 52 S. E. 64.

Fictitious Action.—The supreme court will not hear an appeal in a fictitious action. Blake v. Askew, 76 N. C. 325.

Abstract Propositions.—The supreme court will not entertain a cause to settle abstract propositions no longer at issue. Reid v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 162 N. C. 355, 78 S. E. 306; Davis v. Pierce, 167 N. C. 135, 83 S. E. 182.

Admission Rendering Question Academic.—That in referendum election, to amend city charter pursuant to a legislative enactment, no booth was provided, etc., becomes academic upon express admission that no person was interfered with or prevented from casting free ballot. Taylor v. Greensboro, 175 N. C. 423, 95 S. E. 771.

Where Appeal Becomes Irrelevant.—Where an appeal becomes irrelevant and improvident through a decision of the material questions in another appeal taken in the same case, it will be dismissed. Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 350, 83 S. E. 627; Cannon v. Commissioners, 170 N. C. 677, 87 S. E. 31.

Case Not before Appellate Court. — An agreement that other pending causes shall abide the determination in the one in question is a matter between the parties, and does not authorize the supreme court to assume jurisdiction in cases not before it, or warrant the expression of an opinion speculative. Belden v. Snead, 84 N. C. 243.

D. Estoppel to Allege Error.

In General.—A defendant can not ask that a party be brought in, and when it is so ordered object because he is an improper party. Armfield Co. v. Saleeby, 178 N. C. 298, 100 S. E. 611.

A party to an action can not except to an instruction which was given by the trial court at his request. Washington Horse Exch. Co. v. Bonner, 180 N. C. 20, 103 S. E. 907; Bell v. Harrison, 179 N. C. 190, 102 S. E. 200.

The defendant can not object on appeal to evidence to the same effect as that elected by his cross-examination of the witness. Jenkins v. Long, 170 N. C. 269, 87 S. E. 47.

Prevailing Parties.—A plaintiff has no right to appeal or bring error from a judgment in his own favor, particularly if he is not injured by it. Hoke v. Carter, 34 N. C. 327; Lenoir v. South, 32 N. C. 237.

If a judgment is only partly in favor of a party, or is less favorable than he thinks it should be, he may appeal to correct the judgment or to obtain a more favorable verdict and judgment on a new trial; but where the judgment is entirely in his favor, so that he does not desire a new trial his appeal must be dismissed. McCullock v. North Carolina R. Co., 146 N. C. 316, 59 S. E. 882.

Errors Favorable to Party Complaining.—A party can not complain of error in his favor. Shaw v. North Carolina Public Service Corp., 168 N. C. 611, 84 S. E. 1010; Gaston Farmers Warehouse Co. v. American Agr. etc., Co., 176 N. C. 509, 97 S. E. 472; Nance v. King, 178 N. C. 574, 101 S. E. 212.

A ruling in appellant's favor is not reviewable, where appellee does not complain of it. Miller v. Curl, 162 N. C. 1, 77 S. E. 952; Hendon v. North Carolina R. Co., 127 N. C. 110, 37 S. E. 155.

Favorable Instructions. — A party can not complain of charges favorable to himself. Lupton v. Southern Exp. Co., 169 N. C. 671, 86 S. E. 614; Belk v. Belk, 175 N. C. 69, 94 S. E. 726; Borden v. Carolina Power, etc., Co., 174 N. C. 72, 93 S. E. 442.

Acceptance of Benefits.—Where plaintiff recovered judgment on two of the causes of action alleged in the complaint, and no exception was taken to the ruling of the court, the plaintiff by the payment of the judgment was not estopped from complaining on appeal of exclusion of evidence as to other causes of action pleaded in the complaint. Garland v. Linville Improv. Co., 184 N. C. 551, 115 S. E. 164.

Party Who Acquiesces in Judgment.—Where, after judgment sustaining a demurrer to the complaint, plaintiff did not except, but amended his complaint in accordance with the views of the trial court, he acquiesced in the judgment, and can not assign it as error. Rice v. McAdams, 149 N. C. 29, 62 S. E. 774.

Consent Judgment.—No appeal lies from a consent judgment. Overman v. Lanier, 156 N. C. 537, 72 S. E. 575; Union Bank v. Commissioners, 119 N. C. 214, 226, 25 S. E. 966; Hartsoe v. Southern R. Co., 161 N. C. 215, 76 S. E. 684.

Order in Furtherance of Parties' Own Demand.—A party has no right of appeal from an order which does not affect a substantial right claimed in the action and which is in furtherance of his own demand. Leak v. Covington, 87 N. C. 501; Hocutt v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 214, 32 S. E. 681.

E. Presumptions on Appeal—Burden of Proof.

Presumption against Error. — On appeal there is a presumption against error. Mason v. Town of Andrews, —— N. C. —— 138 S. E. 341; Carstarphen v. Carstarphen, 193 N. C. 541, 137 S. E. 658; In re Will of Ross, 182 N. C. 477, 109 S. E. 365; Fellows v. Dowd, 182 N. C. 776, 109 S. E. 69.

The presumptions are in favor of the correctness of the rulings of law of the superior court, with the burden upon appellant to show error. Rawls v. Lupton, 193 N. C. 428, 137 N. C. 175.

Prejudicial error will not be presumed. Blevins v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 184 N. C. 324, 114 S. E. 298.

Burden on Appellant to Show Error.—The burden is on the party alleging error to show it affirmatively by the record. Rawls v. Lupton, 193 N. C. 428, 137 S. E. 175; Baggett v. Lanier, 178 N. C. 129, 100 S. E. 254; Quelch v. Futch, 175 N. C. 694, 94 S. E. 713.

Facts Not Shown by Record.—Where the testimony on which the trial court based its findings is not in the record, the findings must be accepted on appeal as final, as it is presumed that they are supported by the evidence. Caldwell v. Robinson, 179 N. C. 518, 103 S. E. 75.

In the absence of a statement of facts, it will be presumed that the trial court found such facts as would support its judgment. Bowers v. Bryan Lumber Co., 152 N. C. 604, 68 S. E. 19.

Where the charge is not in the record, it will be presumed that it correctly stated the law. Ellison v. Western Union Tel. Co., 163 N. C. 5, 79 S. E. 277; Harrison v. Western Union Tel. Co., 163 N. C. 18, 79 S.. E. 281.

Burden to Show Prejudice from Error.—The burden is on the appellant to show clearly that error was prejudicial. Quelch v. Futch, 175 N. C. 694, 94 S. E. 713; Mercer v. Hitch Lumber Co., 173 N. C. 49, 91 S. E. 588; Universal Oil, etc., Co. v. Burney, 174 N. C. 382, 93 S. E. 912.

But the immateriality of an error must clearly appear to warrant the court to treat it as surplusage. McLenan v. Chisholm, 64 N. C. 323.

Admission of Evidence. — Evidence improperly admitted will be presumed to be prejudicial. Johnson v. Railroad Co., 140 N. C. 574, 581, 53 S. E. 362; Patton v. Porter, 48 N. C. 539.

F. Effect of Appeal on Proceedings in Lower Court.

See section 655 and annotations thereunder. For undertaking to stay execution on appeal see section 650.

III. APPEAL AS TO PARTICULAR SUBJECTS.

A. Costs.

As to costs on appeal, see §§ 1246 et seq., and the notes thereto.

Costs Alone Involved.—An appeal will be dismissed where it satisfactorily appears that the question of costs is the only matter involved. Hasty v. Funderburk, 89 N. C. 93; Martin v. Sloan, 69 N. C. 128; State v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 74 N. C. 287; Russell v. Campbell, 112 N. C. 404, 17 S. E. 149.

Where, pending an appeal, the subject-matter of an action, or the cause of action, is destroyed, in any matter whatever, the supreme court will not go into a consideration of the abstract question which party should rightly have won, merely in order to adjudicate the costs, but the judgment below as to the costs will stand. Wikel v. Board, 120 N. C. 451, 27 S. E. 117; Herring v. Pugh, 125 N. C. 437, 34 S. E. 538.

When Appeal Lies for Costs.—The exceptions to the general rule that the supreme court will not decide upon a mere question of costs are: (1) Where the very question at issue is the legality of a particular item of costs (Elliott v. Tyson, 117 N. C. 114, 23 S. E. 102; Blount v. Simmons, 120 N. C. 19, 26 S. E. 649); or (2) the liability of a prosecutor for costs in a criminal action (State v. Byrd, 93 N. C. 624); or, (3) taking the case below as properly decided, whether the costs of that court were adjudicated against the proper party (State v. Horne, 119 N. C. 853, 26 S. E. 36). Herring v. Pugh, 125 N. C. 437, 34 S. E. 538.

If some important substantial right be involved an exception will be made and an opinion given. Martin v. Sloan, 69 N. C. 128.

An order taxing defendant with the entire cost of copying the transcript on plaintiffs' appeal, it having been adjudged that unnecessary matter was sent up at the instance of plaintiff, is appealable. Waldo v. Wilson, 177 N. C. 461, 100 S. E. 182.

Fiduciaries.—Although the general rule is that no appeal lies from a judgment for costs only, yet there is an exception in favor of fiduciaries from the statutes which makes the decision in those cases "one affecting substantial rights." May v. Darden, 83 N. C. 237.

Denial of Motion to Retax Costs.—Denial of party's motion to retax costs is reviewable on questions as to what are the costs, how much is due from party taxed, or whether one or more items have been erroneously inserted in bills of costs. Vandyke v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 174 N. C. 78, 93 S. E. 444.

Rulings Founded upon Lack of Power.—A ruling of the court below on a motion to allow and apportion costs founded upon a lack of power is reviewable. Horner v. Oxford Water, etc., Co., 156 N. C. 494, 72 S. E. 624; Martin v. Bank, 131 N. C. 121, 42 S. E. 558.

B. Demurrer.

Demurrer to Whole Cause.—An appeal lies fron an order sustaining or overruling a demurrer to a whole cause of action or defense. Shelby v. Charlotte Elect. R., etc., Co., 147 N. C. 537, 61 S. E. 377; Pender v. Maliett, 122 N. C. 163, 30 S. E. 324; Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 89, 31 S. E. 271.

Demurrer Sustained but No Verdict Rendered.—The supreme court will not entertain an appeal from an order sustaining a demurrer to a counterclaim where no verdict or judgment was rendered. Teal v. Liles, 183 N. C. 678, 111 S. E. 617; Bazemore v. Bridges, 105 N. C. 191, 10 S. E. 888.

Overruling Demurrer.—On an overruling of its demurrer a party made a defendant is entitled to appeal, unless the demurrer has been held frivolous. Joyner v. Champion Fibre Co., 178 N. C. 634, 101 S. E. 373.

An appeal lies to the Supreme Court from an order of the court below overruling a demurrer, Commissioners v. Magnin, 78 N. C. 181.

An order overruling demurrer to part of answer with leave to reply is not a final order and an appeal therefrom will be dismissed. Chambers v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 172 N. C. 555, 90 S. E. 590.

Court, on appeal having considered those grounds of demurrer to complaint which may finally dispose of action, will not review the overruling of demurrer to allegation embracing only part of cause of action, and which, if sustained, will not dismiss it. Headman v. Board, 177 N. C. 261, 98 S. E. 776.

Refusal to Hold Demurrer or Answer Frivolous.—The refusal to hold a demurrer or answer frivolous, and to render judgment thereon is not appealable. Walters v. Starness, 118 N. C. 842, 24 S. E. 713; Morgan v. Harris, 141 N. C. 358, 54 S. E. 381.

Withdrawal of Matter Demurred to.—An appeal cannot be taken from a refusal of the court to proceed to try the action on the demurrer, after the withdrawal of the subject-matter to which it relates and the consequent order of continuance. Gay v. Brookshire, 82 N. C. 409, 411.

C. Granting or Denying New Trial.

In General.—An appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial, only lies from some order or judgment involving a matter of law or legal inference; that is, the order or judgment must be one that involves the question, whether or not a party to the action is entitled to a new trial as of right, and as a matter of law. Braid v. Lukins, 95 N. C. 123.

An application for a new trial, except for error of law in its conduct, is addressed solely to the discretion of the presiding judge, whose decision is not reviewable on appeal. Carson v. Dellinger, 90 N. C. 226; Thomas v. Myers, 87 N. C. 31.

The Supreme Court has jurisdiction to review, upon appeal, the decision of the court below, granting, or refusing to grant, a new trial, where a matter of law or legal inference is involved. Johnson v. Bell, 74 N. C. 355.

Setting Aside Verdict and Granting New Trial.—The determination of a motion to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial is a matter within the sound discretion of the trial judge, and is not reviewable, except where there has been an abuse of discretion. Coats v. Norris, 180 N. C. 77, 104 S. E. 71; Harrill v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 181 N. C. 315, 107 S. E. 136.

An appeal from an order setting aside the award of damages as excessive is premature. Billings v. Observer, 150 N. C. 540, 64 S. E. 435. Rogerson v. Lumber Co., 136 N. C. 266, 48 S. E. 647.

Order setting aside verdict, as matter of law is appealable. Tuthill v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 174 N. C. 77, 93 S. E. 446.

Grant of Partial New Trial.—An appeal from refusal of motion for judgment upon verdict and a grant of partial new trial, which has been granted as matter of law and not of discretion is not fragmentary and premature. Grove v. Baker, 174 N. C. 745, 94 S. E. 528.

Contents of Record when New Trial Granted or Refused.—To give parties the benefit of the provision of this section allowing an appeal from an order granting or refusing a new trial, the presiding judge should put upon the record the matters inducing the order, so that the appellate court can see whether the order presents a matter of law which is a subject of review, or matter of discretion which is not. Carson v. Dellinger, 90 N. C. 226.

D. Injunction.

Order Refusing Injunction.—A plaintiff can appeal from a decision of a judge at chambers refusing an injunction. First National Bank v. Jenkins, 64 N. C. 719.

Interlocutory Injunction. — An appeal from an injunction pendente lite against counting and certifying the result of a special election granted on the ground that women, infants, and nonresidents, though freeholders, were not counted in determining the necessary number of the signers, is not subject to dismissal as fragmentary and premature. Gill v. Board, 160 N. C. 176, 76 S. E. 203.

Order Continuing Injunction.—Overruling a motion to dismiss is not ordinarily an appealable order, as no substantial right of the litigant is thereby affected; but, when an injunction has been issued, an order continuing the same affects a substantial right, and an appeal may be taken from an order entered on a motion to dismiss. Warlick v. Reynolds & Co., 151 N. C. 606, 66 S. E. 657.

Finding of Fact Reviewable in Injunction Cases.—While the Supreme Court may review findings of fact in an action for injunction, it will not, where no special findings are set out in the case, reverse what were apparently the judge's findings necessary to sustain his judgment unless such findings are clearly wrong. Davenport v. Board, 183 N. C. 570, 112 S. E. 246.

Overruling Demurrer to Complaint for Injunction. — An appeal taken from a judgment overruling demurrers to the complaint and allowing defendants to answer for the purposes of a motion to restrain one of defendants from suing plaintiff in the federal court, remains in the court below, and he must obtain relief there and not by appeal. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 152 N. C. 242, 67 S. E. 590.

Seeking to Restrain Act Already Committed.—The correctness of a ruling dissolving a restraining order will not be considered on appeal, when it is made to appear that the act sought to be restrained has been committed. Kilpatrick v. Harvey, 170 N. C. 668, 86 S. E. 596; Moore v. Cooper Monument Co., 166 N. C. 211, 81 S. E. 170; Wallace v. North Wilkesboro, 151 N. C. 614, 66 S. E. 657; Galloway v. Board, 184 N. C. 245, 114 S. E. 165.

E. Nonsuit.

In General.—If, as a matter of law, plaintiff was not entitled to a verdict, he could not take a voluntary nonsuit, and have the decision reviewed, as the setting aside of a verdict for such reason is not reviewable; being controlled by the sound discretion of the court. McKinney v. Patterson, 174 N. C. 483, 93 S. E. 967.

No appeal lies to set aside a voluntary nonsuit. White v. Harris, 166 N. C. 227, 81 S. E. 687; Gilbert v. Waccamaw Shingle Co., 167 N. C. 286, 83 S. E. 337.

An order sustaining a motion for nonsuit as to one cause of action and overruling it as to other causes of action is not appealable by defendant. Farr v. Babcock Lumber Co., 182 N. C. 725, 109 S. E. 833.

An appeal will lie from the judgment of the superior court reversing the clerk's order permitting the plaintiff to take a voluntary nonsuit. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 189 N. C. 805, 128 S. E. 329; Goldsboro v. Holmes, 183 N. C. 203, 111 S. E. 1.

An appeal can not be taken from a nonsuit to test an adverse ruling of the judge, leaving issuable matter presented and undetermined. Gilbert v. Waccamaw Shingle Co., 167 N. C. 286, 83 S. E. 337.

Where Court Intimates Opinion.—Where the court on the trial intimates an opinion that plaintiff can not maintain his action, he may take a judgment of nonsuit and appeal; and the appeal will not be dismissed on the ground that plaintiff voluntarily took a nonsuit. Morton v. Blades Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 31, 56 S. E. 551; Wharton v. Commissioners, 82 N. C. 12; Hedrick v. Pratt, 94 N. C. 101, 103; Midgett v. Manufacturing Co., 140 N. C. 361, 364, 53 S. E. 178.

A plaintiff may, in deference to an intimation from the court that he can not maintain his action, submit to a nonsuit and have the questions of law reviewed upon appeal. Hedrick v. Pratt, 94 N. C. 101; Warner v. Western, etc., R. Co., 94 N. C. 250.

Where court intimated that he would charge jury that certain deed did not convey land described in complaint, which was vital to plaintiff's recovery, plaintiff had the right to submit to a nonsuit and appeal. Quelch v. Futch, 172 N. C. 316, 90 S. E. 259.

But where the court intimated that the complaint stated a cause of action for rescission of a contract, but not for reformation; whereupon plaintiff suffered nonsuit, and appealed. Held that, as the intimation by the court was open to reconsideration, an appeal was error. Davis v. Ely, 100 N. C. 283, 5 S. E. 239. See also, Hayes v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 131, 52 S. E. 416; Tiddy v. Harris, 101 N. C. 589, 8 S. E. 227.

Construction of Evidence in Nonsuit Cases. — Where the Supreme Court passes on a motion to nonsuit, the plaintiff is entitled to have the evidence considered as true and construed most favorably for him, and he must also have the benefit of every inference that may reasonably be drawn therefrom. Munick v. Durham, 181 N. C. 188, 106 S. E. 665; Allen v. Gardner, 182 N. C. 425, 109 S. E. 260.

The court is not limited to a consideration of the evidence of defendant, but must examine all the evidence. Ridge v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 167 N. C. 510, 83 S. E. 762.

F. Order of Reference and Referee's Report.

As to reference generally, see §§ 572 et seq. and the notes thereto.

Motion to Refer.—Where the answer in a proceeding to compel an accounting did not constitute a valid plea in bar, the denial of a motion to refer on the ground that such answer did not set up a valid plea in bar affected a substantial right, and was appealable. Jones v. Sugg, 136 N. C. 143, 48 S. E. 575.

Appointing Referee.—An appeal from a judgment adjudging that plaintiff recover nothing on account of certain items, and referring all matters in controversy as to other items to a referee to take and state an account, is premature. International Waste Co. v. Bloomfield Mfg. Co., 168 N. C. 92, 83 S. E. 609.

An appeal will not lie from an interlocutory judgment adjudging plaintiff entitled to recover damages and appointing a referee to hear evidence as to the amount. Richardson v. Southern Exp. Co., 151 N. C. 60, 65 S. E. 616.

Relating to Reference of Cause.—Where the court ordered a reference to take an account of partnership receipts and expenses, an appeal from such order before judgment on the report thereon is premature. Leroy v. Saliba, 182 N. C. 757, 108 S. E. 303.

Plea in Bar.—When there is a plea in bar, a party to the action may except to an order of reference made by the trial judge and appeal at once, or wait until there is a final judgment and then appeal. Pritchett v. Greensboro Supply Co., 153 N. C. 344, 69 S. E. 249.

An appeal lies from a judgment sustaining or overruling a plea in bar, and no reference should be ordered until the plea is finally determined. Royster v. Wright, 118 N. C. 152, 24 S. E. 746; Jones v. Beaman, 117 N. C. 259, 23 S. E. 248. Where a matter pleaded in bar is an estoppel was discussed in Rogers v. Ratcliffe, 48 N. C. 225.

Order of Reference Made before Disposition of Plea in Bar.—An order of reference made before disposition of a plea in bar of an action is one from which an appeal can be immediately taken. Jones v. Wooten, 137 N. C. 421, 49 S. E. 915; Austin v. Stewart, 126 N. C. 525, 36 S. E. 37; Duckworth v. Duckworth, 144 N. C. 620, 57 S. E. 396.

Submitting Issue on Plea in Bar.—An action on the part of the court submitting to the jury an issue on a plea in bar before ordering a reference decides no substantial right, and is not the subject of an appeal. Sloan v. McMahon, 85 N. C. 296.

Setting Aside Judgment.—The supreme court can review the ruling of the judge below on a motion to set aside a judgment. Clegg v. New York White Soapstone Co., 67 N. C. 302.

Order to Show Cause.—An order of a judge for the defendant to appear at a subsequent time and show cause why a receiver should not be appointed is not such an order as can be appealed from. Gray v. Gaither, 71 N. C. 55.

Exceptions Must Be Passed on by Judge.—The Supreme Court will not review exceptions of law to a referee's report, unless they are passed upon by the judge. John Church Co. v. Dawson, 157 N. C. 566, 72 S. E. 1009.

Exceptions Overruled.—Where some of the exceptions to a referee's report were overruled, and the case retained by the court to try the other issues raised by the pleadings, it was held that this was an interlocutory order and not appealable. Leak v. Covington, 95 N. C. 193.

Exception to Partial Report of Referee.—A judgment passing on exceptions to a referee's report, distributing part of the fund, and sending the case back for further report as to certain claims, is not final so as to support an appeal. Pritchard v. Panacea Spring Co., 151 N. C. 249, 65 S. E. 968; Smith v. Miller, 155 N. C. 242, 71 S. E. 353.

Sustaining Exceptions.—An appeal from an order sustaining an exception to a referee's report, and recommitting the case to the referee to take further evidence, is premature. Wallace Bros. v. Douglas, 105 N. C. 42, 10 S. E. 1043; Grant v. Reese, 90 N. C. 3.

Where the rulings on exceptions to a referee's report and an order of recommittal do not affect the substantial rights of either party, no appeal will lie. Lutz v. Cline, 89 N. C. 186; Jones v. Call, 89 N. C. 188.

Approval of Findings Supported by Evidence.—Where a referee's finding of fact is supported by evidence and approved by the judge on exception to the report, it will not be reviewed by the Supreme Court. Marler-Dalton-Gilmer Co. v. Golden, 172 N. C. 823, 90 S. E. 909; Lewis v. May, 173 N. C. 100, 91 S. E. 691.

Necessity for Further Action.—Where an order based on the report of a receiver as to claims establishes the priority of a claim, but continues the proceeding for further consideration of the report except as to matters "adjudicated herein," an appeal from such order as to the claim mentioned is premature. Corporation Comm. v. Farmers Bank, etc., Co., 183 N. C. 170, 110 S. E. 839. See Beck & Co. v. Bank, 157 N. C. 105, 72 S. E. 632.

Setting Aside Referee's Report and Ordering a Trial by Jury.—An order setting aside a report of a referee, and ordering a jury trial, is appealable, as it affects the substantial rights of the parties. Stevenson v. Felton, 99 N. C. 58, 5 S. E. 399.

Report Set Aside for Newly Discovered Evidence.—The discretion of a Superior Court Judge to set aside a report of a referee, on the ground of newly discovered testimony, can not be reviewed in the Supreme Court. Vest v. Cooper, 68 N. C. 131, Braid v. Lukins, 95 N. C. 123.

G. Appeals as to Miscellaneous Subject.

Editor's Note.—In the foregoing note most of the salient rules controlling the subject of appeals have been discussed. The cases illustrating these principles are legion in number and in a work of this nature it is impossible to give all the citations. They constitute nearly a volume of the digest, in which they appear in an orderly analytical treatment. See 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 376 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 70 et seq. Many of the subjects are also treated under the particular sections of this Code relating to them; for example under section 560 the appealability of a decision as to continuances is treated.

§ 639. Appeal from judge in special proceedings.—Any party, within ten days after notice of such judgment, may appeal to the supreme court of the state, upon any matter of law or legal inference therein, under the regulations provided for appeals in other cases. (Rev., s. 588; Code, s. 256; C. C. P., s. 115.)

See annotations under section 638.

§ 640. Interlocutory orders reviewed on appeal from judgment.—Upon an appeal from a judgment, the court may review any intermediate order involving the merits and necessarily affecting the judgment. (Rev., s. 589; Code, s. 562; C. C. P., s. 313.)

As to appeals from interlocutory orders see section 638. As to effect of appeal from interlocutory orders on proceeding in lower court, see section 638—analysis line "Effect of Appeal on Proceedings in Lower Court."

§ 641. When appeal taken.—The appeal must be taken from a judgment rendered out of term within ten days after notice thereof, and from a judgment rendered in term within ten days after its rendition, unless the record shows an appeal taken at the trial, which is sufficient, but execution shall not be suspended until the giving by the appellant of the undertakings hereinafter required. (Rev., s. 590; Code, s. 549; 1889, c. 161; C. C. P., s. 300.)

See 1 Enc. Dig. 482 et seq., 13 Enc. Dig. 98 et seq.

Intimation of Intent to Appeal.—Under this section it is not necessary that there should be at the time of the trial an intimation by the dissatisfied party that he desires to appeal, it being a sufficient indication of his desire at the time of the trial if he fulfills the requirements of the statute within the time prescribed by law. Russell v. Hearne, 113 N. C. 361, 18 S. E. 711.

Appeal by Serving Notice.—A party to an action may appeal by serving notice thereof within ten days after the adjournment of court. Houston v. Lumber Co., 136 N. C. 328, 48 S. E. 738.

Computation of Time. — Within ten days notice thereof, means ten days after notice of the rendition thereof. Fisher v. Fisher, 164 N. C. 105, 109, 80 S. E. 395. See Delafield v. Lewis Mercer Constr. Co., 115 N. C. 21, 20 S. E. 167.

Cited in Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25; Jones v. Asheville, 114 N. C. 620, 19 S. E. 631; Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Brunswick County, 198 N. C. 549, 152 S. E. 627.

See 1 Enc. Dig. 506 et seq.

Former Rule.—Under the statute in force before the adoption of the Code, a notice of appeal filed in the clerk's office was sufficient to charge the appellee with notice, he having failed to designate a person to receive notices in the case. Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25.

Appellee Entitled to Notice.—In all cases the appellee is entitled to notice of an appeal as provided by statute. Marion v. Tilley, 119 N. C. 473, 474, 26 S. E. 26.

Effect of Failure to Give Notice.—Where the notice of appeal is not given in the prescribed time, the appeal will be dismissed. Campbell v. Allison, 63 N. C. 568; Bryan v. Hubbs, 69 N. C. 423; Applewhite v. Fort, 85 N. C. 596; Brantley v. Jordan, 90 N. C. 25, 26.

No Presumption of Notice.—Notice must be given in case of appeal; it will not be presumed, merely because the appeal was taken during a term of the court from which it was taken. Campbell v. Allison, 63 N. C. 568.

Record Must Show Notice.—The appeal will be dismissed, where the record does not show service of notice of appeal. Howell v. Jones, 109 N. C. 102, 13 S. E. 889.

When Record Need Not Show Notice.—The record need not show service of notice of appeal, where the findings of fact and the judgment thereon, constituting the case on appeal, state that appeal was taken. Delozier v. Bird, 123 N. C. 689, 31 S. E. 834.

Filing of Bond as Notice.—The filing of an appeal bond and its approval in open court afford notice to the appellee of the appeal. Capehart v. Biggs & Co., 90 N. C. 373.

Codefendant.—Where one appeals from so much of a judgment as is in favor of his codefendant, he must give such codefendant notice of his appeal. Rose v. Baker, 99 N. C. 323, 5 S. E. 919.

When Party Resides Out of State.—A writ of error may be granted upon notice to the attorney at law who obtained the judgment when the party resides out of the state. Leake v. Murchie, 1 N. C. 258.

Notice Held to Be in Proper Time.—Where appellant's counsel, five days after the adjournment of court, mails notice of appeal to the sheriff at the county seat, so as to leave ample time for the latter to serve it on appellee's counsel, laches is not imputable to appellant because the sheriff does not take it from the post office till after the ten days allowed for service. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 113, 19 S. E. 105.

Notice to a Co-party.—Notice must be given to the real party in interest, notice to a co-party, not a real party in interest, is insufficient. Barden v. Pugh, 129 N. C. 60, 39 S. E. 724.

Waiver of Notice.—Agreements of counsel, to waive notice of appeal, to be recognized in the appellate court, must appear upon the record. Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 498.

Disagreement as to Waiver of Notice.—Notice of appeal will not be considered when filed after the statutory time, where one counsel swears that consent to an extension was given, and the other denies such statement. Pipkin v. McArtan, 122 N. C. 194, 29 S. E. 334.

A statement in the case on appeal, that notice of appeal was waived, can not be contradicted for the first time on argument in the appellate court. Atkinson v. Asheville St. R. Co., 113 N. C. 581, 18 S. E. 254.

Notice as a Waiver of Objection.—The fact that a notice of appeal served after the expiration of the term at which judgment was rendered, stated only that the appeal was "on account of the erroneous rulings of the judge on motion for a new trial," did not constitute a waiver of an exception to the judgment. Ferrell v. Thompson, 107 N. C. 420, 12 S. E. 109.

Entry of Appeal Not Absolutely Necessary.—That an appeal was not entered of record as required was not material, where the fact of the appeal having been taken was not denied, and notice had been served. Barden v. Stickney, 130 N. C. 62, 40 S. E. 842.

The record need not show that an appeal was duly entered, when it affirmatively appears from the case on appeal, which bears date within the time within which an appeal could be taken, that the appeal was taken, and notice thereof waived. Atkinson v. Ashville St. R. Co., 113 N. C. 581, 18 S. E. 254.

Effect of Failure to Enter.—Failure of the clerk to enter the appeal is not ground for dismissal. Simmons v. Allison, 119 N. C. 556, 26 S. E. 171. Allison v. Whittier, 101 N. C. 490, 8 S. E. 338. But see Moore v. Vanderburg, 90 N. C. 10 and Bryan v. Hubbs, 69 N. C. 423.

Cited in Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Brunswick County, 198 N. C. 549, 152 S. E. 627.

§ 642(a). Appeals from judgments not in term time.—When appeals are taken from judgments of the clerk or judge not made in term time, the clerk is authorized to make any and all necessary orders for the perfecting of such appeals. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 19a.)

§ 643. Case on appeal; statement, service, and return.—The appellant shall cause to be prepared a concise statement of the case, embodying the instructions of the judge as signed by him, if there be an exception thereto, and the request of the counsel of the parties for instructions if there be any exception on account of the granting or withholding thereof, and stating separately, in articles numbered, the errors alleged. A copy of this statement shall be served on the respondent within fifteen days from the entry of the appeal taken; within ten days after such service the respondent shall return the copy with his approval or specific amendments indorsed or attached; if the case be approved by the respondent, it shall be filed with the clerk as a part of the record; if not returned with objections within the time prescribed, it shall be deemed approved: Provided, that the judge trying the case shall have the power, in the exercise of his discretion, to enlarge the time in which to serve statement of case on appeal and exceptions thereto or counter statement of case. (Rev., s. 591; Code, s. 550; C. C. P., s. 301; 1905, c. 448; 1921, c. 97.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

Prior to the adoption of the Reformed Procedure in 1868, all cases on appeal were settled by the judges, whose practice was to perform this duty before leaving the court at which the case was tried. It was thought that their duty in this respect might be lightened by changing the statute, so as to permit counsel to agree upon settlement of the case on appeal and to call in the aid of the judge only where counsel failed to agree. The time originally allowed for this purpose was five days for the appellant to serve case on appeal and three days for the appellee to serve a counter case. This was lengthened from time to time until by this section it is now fifteen days to serve case on appeal and ten days to serve counter case, except where the parties by consent to extend the time. The result has not been beneficial. There has been an increasing tendency to postpone and put off the settlement of cases on appeal by lengthening the time, and the legislature in 1921, Act 1921, ch. 97 added the portion of the section which permitted the judges to extend the time even when counsel do not agree. But the Supreme Court has never changed its rule, of which it is sole judge, that in every instance when the case on appeal is not docketed in the time required, at the term, the appellant must docket the record proper and ask for a certiorari. Whenever this is not done the case not docketed until the next succeeding term will be dismissed. See State v. Johnson, 183 N. C. 730, 110 S. E. 782.

This section and Supreme Court Rule 19(3) require the assignment of errors relied on to be tabulated and inserted in the case on appeal or record, preferably at the end.

Formerly when two or more appeals were taken in the same case separate transcripts were required but the Supreme Court Rules adopted in 1926 changed this. Now only one transcript is required but it shall contain separate statements of the cases on appeal. See Supreme Court Rule 19 (2).

II. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS—COUNTER CASE.

Strict Observance Required.—The statutory requirements as to making up cases on appeal to the Supreme Court and docketing them are conditions precedent which must be complied with, or the appeal will be dismissed. Lindsey v. Knights of Honor, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013.

Record Imports Verity.—The record on appeal imports verity and the Supreme Court is bound thereby. State v. Brown, 207 N. C. 156, 176 S. E. 260.

Distinction between Record and Case on Appeal. — The record on appeal consists of the "record proper," i. e., the summons, pleadings, and judgment and the case on appeal which is the exceptions taken and such of the evidence, charge, prayers, and other matters occurring at the trial as are necessary to present the matters excepted to. Cressler v. Ashville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

No Presumption of Regularity.—An appeal being now the act of the appellant alone, no presumption of regularity arises because of its having been taken during a term of the Court from which it comes. Campbell v. Allison, 63 N. C. 568.

Necessity for Taking Appeal.—An appeal will be dismissed if the record fails to show affirmatively that an appeal was taken. Randleman Mfg. Co. v. Simmons, 97 N. C. 89, 1 S. E. 923; Howell v. Jones, 109 N. C. 102, 13 S. E. 889.

When Grouping of Exceptions Unnecessary.—Where the exceptions are separately stated and numbered, but are not brought together at the end of the case, a motion by the appellee to affirm will be denied, if the error intended to be assigned is plainly apparent. Hicks v. Kenan, 139 N. C. 337, 51 S. E. 941.

Duty When Case on Appeal not Settled.—Where an appeal is taken, the record should be transmitted to the supreme court and the appeal docketed, whether the case is settled or not, so that all proper action can at once be taken to perfect it for hearing. Owens v. Phelps, 91 N. C. 253.

When Case on Appeal Dispensed with.—A "case on appeal" can be dispensed with only when the errors are presented by the record proper. Errors occurring during the trial can be presented only by case on appeal. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

Same—Order Entered at Chambers.—On appeal from an order of court entered by the judge at chambers no case is necessary. North Carolina Bessemer Co. v. Piedmont Hdw. Co., 171 N. C. 728, 88 S. E. 867.

Same—Appeal from Judgment. — An appeal from a judgment alone is maintainable without any case on appeal. American Soda Fountain Co. v. Schell, 160 N. C. 529, 76 S. E. 631.

Same—Case Tried on Agreed Statement of Facts.—On appeal from the judgment in a case tried on an agreed statement of facts, no separate "case" is necessary. Chamblee v. Baker, 95 N. C. 98; Davenport v. Leary, 95 N. C. 203.

Same—Granting or Refusing Injunction.—On appeal from an order granting or refusing an injunction, no case on appeal is necessary, as the pleadings and affidavits constitute the record proper. Wallace v. Salisbury, 147 N. C. 58, 60 S. E. 713; Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519.

Same—Order of Reference.—It is not necessary to make a statement of the case on appeal from an order of reference, where the appeal itself and the exception noted in the record sufficiently raises the question of the validity of the order. Duckworth v. Duckworth, 144 N. C. 620, 57 S. E. 396; Cape Fear, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248, 43 S. E. 638.

On appeal to the Supreme Court from the action of the superior court judge in passing upon the report of a referee, the facts found and the conclusions of law by the lower court must be regularly stated with the exceptions thereto in the record of the case on appeal. Wilson v. Beasley, 192 N. C. 231, 134 S. E. 485.

Appeal from Construction of Will.—On an appeal involving the construction of a will in which it is essential, for a determination, to know whether or not a certain person died without issue, a statement in the case made up by counsel, that "plaintiffs claim that he died without issue," is not sufficient. Arnold v. Hardy, 131 N. C. 113, 42 S. E. 553.

Appellee May Prepare Counter Case.—It is no objection to the objections filed by the appellee to the appellant's case that it is in the form of a counter-case, and not of specific objections. State v. Gooch, 94 N. C. 982.

Where the exceptions to appellant's case on appeal are served within the required time, appellant can not complain that the statement of his case on appeal was not returned to him, but must have the case on appeal settled. Stevens v. Smathers, 123 N. C. 497, 31 S. E. 721.

Appellee May Make Specific Objections.—Upon the appellant's serving of his case on appeal, the appellee may file specific objections. Holloman v. Holloman, 172 N. C. 835, 90 S. E. 10.

Request for Substitution.—Where the appellee makes his objections to the appellant's statement of the case on appeal by asking that a statement prepared by him be substituted, it is a sufficient compliance with the section. Horne v. Smith, 105 N. C. 322, 11 S. E. 373.

Counter-Case May Become Case on Appeal. — Where appellee returned a counter case as a statement of his exceptions to appellant's case, and such counter case was adopted by the court, it constitutes the "case on appeal." Harris v. Carrington, 115 N. C. 187, 20 S. E. 452; McDaniel v. Scurlock, 115 N. C. 295, 20 S. E. 451.

Effect of Failure to Serve Counter Case.—Where the appellant's case on appeal is served in time, and no exceptions are taken thereto, nor any counter case served, it stands as the case on appeal. State v. Carlton, 107 N. C. 956, 12 S. E. 44.

Counter-Case Not Considered.—When counter case of the state has not been served or service acknowledged thereon or filed for more than a month after the state has accepted service of case of defendants, in an appeal by the defendant the counter case will not be considered. State v. Freeman, 127 N. C. 544, 37 S. E. 206.

Clerk Authorized to Complete Case.—A mere outline of the case incorporating instructions to the clerk to fill in certain portions of the evidence stenographically taken and transcribed, the charge of the court, etc., is not sufficient compliance with this section, it being the duty of the appellant to make out his case and fully perfect it before serving it upon the appellee, and no part of the duty of the clerk to do so. Sloan v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 169 N. C. 257, 85 S. E. 216.

No Return of Appellant's Case.—If the appellant's case on appeal is not returned by appellee in ten days with objections, it shall be deemed approved. Barber v. Justice, 138 N. C. 20, 50 S. E. 445.

Conflict between Statements of Judge and Counsel. — Where the case on appeal prepared by counsel conflicts with a statement of a fact found by the judge, the latter must control. Blair v. Coakley, 136 N. C. 405, 48 S. E. 804.

Service of Counter-Case.—See post, this note "Service of Case and Counter-Case," V.

Cited in Carter v. Bryant, 199 N. C. 704, 155 S. E. 602; McMahan v. Southern R. Co., 203 N. C. 805, 167 S. E. 225.

III. REQUISITES OF CASE ON APPEAL—EXCEPTIONS.

See Supreme Court Rule 19(1) and (3), 21.

Concise Statement of Case.—One of the essential requisites of an appeal to the Supreme Court is that a "concise statement of the case" shall be made and filed with the Clerk, to be transmitted to this Court as part of the record, for the want of which the judgment will be affirmed unless there is error apparent in the record, in which case it would be the duty of the Judge to arrest the judgment or award a venire de novo. State v. Thompson, 83 N. C. 595, 597.

The appellant is required, in stating his case on appeal, to make a concise statement of the entire case necessary to present the assignments of error relied upon, and set out the necessary and pertinent evidence in narrative form, together with the charge of the court necessary to be considered; and when this is not done the appellee may move before the trial judge to dismiss the appeal. Thompson v. Williams, 175 N. C. 696, 95 S. E. 100.

Only enough of the record should be included to show that the case is properly constituted; and this, with the summons, pleadings, verdict and judgment and the case on appeal, setting out so much of the proceedings at the trial as will throw light upon the exceptions taken, is all that is necessary. Sigman v. Southern R. Co., 135 N. C. 181, 47 S. E. 420.

And the statement should only contain matter explanatory of exceptions taken. Surratt v. Crawford, 87 N. C. 372.

Narrowed to Substance and Amount.—When counsel come to prepare the statement of case on appeal, both record and briefs should be narrowed to matters of substance and moment. State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 13, 34, 164 S. E. 737.

Testimony Should Be in Narrative Form.—Testimony reported by the stenographer should be sent up on appeal in narrative form, instead of in questions and answers. Overman v. Lanier, 157 N. C. 544, 73 S. E. 192. The sending up of the stenographer's notes is a failure to prepare "a concise statement of the case." Skipper v. Kingsdale Lbr. Co., 158 N. C. 322, 74 S. E. 342.

This rule must be observed, though the case on appeal is settled by agreement of counsel. Boggs v. Cullowhee Min., etc., Co., (N. C.) 76 S. E. 717.

When the stenographer's full notes of the evidence taken on the trial of a case on appeal are transcribed in the record, immediately followed by an unsigned entry, repudiated by appellee's counsel, that "the record, stenographer's notes, the judgment, and the exception to the nonsuit shall constitute the case on appeal to the Supreme Court," the case on appeal is not properly constituted. Brewer v. Mineola Mfg., Co., 161 N. C. 211, 76 S. E. 237.

This requirement can not be waived by the parties. First Nat. Bank v. Fries, 162 N. C. 516, 77 S. E. 678.

Appellant must make concise statement necessary to present assignments of error, and should set out all pertinent evidence in narrative form, with the charge, and the judge must correct the narrative. Thompson v. Williams, 175 N. C. 696, 95 S. E. 100.

For penalty for violation of this rule see Fisher v. Montvale Lumber Co., 162 N. C. 531, 78 S. E. 286.

Evidence to Present Questions of Law. — The appeal should only state so much of the evidence as raised a question of law at the trial, and then the opinion prayed and given thereon, with simplicity and precision. Green v. Collins, 28 N. C. 139; Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1.

Sufficiency of Evidence Brought up.—Only so much of the evidence as is needed to show the questions raised by the exceptions should be made a part of the case on appeal. Durham v. Richmond etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1; Surratt v. Crawford, 87 N. C. 372.

Evidence Unnecessary.—Where the findings of the court below are admitted by both parties to be true, it is unnecessary that the case contain the evidence. Tayloe v. Tayloe, 108 N. C. 69, 12 S. E. 836.

Necessity of Setting Forth Evidence Excluded.—A judgment will not be reversed because of the exclusion of evidence, where such evidence is not set out in the record. Elm City Lumber Co. v. Childerhose, 167 N. C. 34, 83 S. E. 22.

The exclusion of evidence can not be reviewed where the record does not disclose what the witness would have testified to, or what was proposed to be proven. In re Will of Smith, 163 N. C. 464, 79 S. E. 977.

Omission of Matter Not Pertinent to Issue.—Matter not pertinent to the points raised should be omitted. Hilton v. McDowell, 87 N. C. 364; Sampson v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 70 N. C. 404; Surratt v. Crawford, 87 N. C. 372.

Exhibits Should Accompany Case.—Where deeds, records etc., are referred to, and make a necessary part of the case transmitted to the supreme court, it is the duty of the appellant to see that they accompany the case. Waugh v. Andrews, 24 N. C. 75.

Surveys.—In an action for the diversion of surface water by the construction of a railway, surveys of the locality, made under order of the court, must accompany the record on appeal, or showing be made by appellant that he was prevented by the court or the opposite party from so doing. Whichard v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 117 N. C. 614, 23 S. E. 437.

Exceptions—Case Must Show Exceptions.—If the case on appeal does not show that exceptions were taken to the ruling of the court below, the appellate court will not review the same on appeal. Power v. Wilmington, 177 N. C. 361, 99 S. E. 102. See § 590 and the notes thereto.

Questions can not be considered on appeal which are not presented by motion or exception in the case on appeal. Trimmer v. Gorman, 129 N. C. 161, 39 S. E. 804.

The presentation of matters for the first time in the assignments of error on appeal is too late. Bloxham v. Stave, etc., Corp., 172 N. C. 37, 89 S. E. 1013.

Same—Broadside Exceptions.—As a general rule a broadside exception to the judge's charge is inadmissible. In favorem vitae, in a capital case, the attorney-general will readily assent to the assertion of proper exceptions, nunc pro tunc. State v. Kinsauls, 126 N. C. 1095, 36 S. E. 31.

An "unpointed broadside" exception to the court's instructions to the jury will not be considered. Exception to the charge of the court in general terms, not sufficiently specific to call the attention of the court to the particular point claimed to be erroneous, cannot be considered by an appellate court. Lambert v. Caronna, 206 N. C. 616, 621, 175 S. E. 303.

What Need Not Be Set Out.—The Court will not consider any exceptions not set out in the "case on appeal," other than exception to the jurisdiction or because complaint does not state a cause of action, or to the sufficiency of an indictment. Walker v. Scott, 106 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 364; Taylor v. Plummer, 105 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 266.

The object of the "case on appeal" is to set forth the alleged errors appealed from, and, if it sufficiently discloses these, the appeal will not be dismissed, though the record does not show formal exceptions. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Barrett, 95 N. C. 36.

Same—Must Point out Error.—The Supreme Court will not consider exceptions, unless they point out in terms, or by reasonable implication, the error intended to be reviewed. So where the record showed that the appellant excepted generally to the entire charge, the exception was not considered. Clements v. Rogers, 95 N. C. 247.

Same—Judge May Pass on Exceptions.—When exceptions are filed the recitals contained therein are not conclusive, but it is open to the appellee to controvert them, and to have the Judge pass upon their correctness in "settling the case on appeal." Walker v. Scott, 106, N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 364.

The object of an assignment of error is not to create a new exception, which was not taken at the hearing, but to select from those which were taken such as the appellant then relies on after he has given more deliberate consideration to them than may have been possible during the progress of the trial or hearing. State v. Bittings, 206 N. C. 798, 801, 175 S. E. 299.

What Assignments of Error Considered.—The Supreme Court will not consider any assignments of error except those appearing in the record proper and in the case settled on appeal. Rodman v. Harvey, 102 N. C. 1, 8 S. E. 888; State v. Campbell, 184 N. C. 765, 114 S. E. 927.

The assignment of error must be based upon the exception duly taken at the time it was due in the orderly course of procedure, and should coincide with and not be more extensive than the exception itself. In other words, no assignment of error will be entertained which has not for its basis an exception taken in apt time. State v. Bittings, 206 N. C. 798, 801, 175 S. E. 299.

Requirements Mandatory.—The requirements that assignments of error must be based upon exceptions duly taken during the trial to be considered on appeal are statutory, as well as mandatory under numerous decisions of the court. The supreme court on appeal exercises only appellate jurisdiction, and it is necessary that the errors alleged should be presented as the law directs. State v. Bittings, 206 N. C. 798, 801, 175 S. E. 299.

When Assignment of Error Unnecessary.—No assignment of error is necessary where there is but a single exception and this is presented by the record, nor where the case is heard below on an agreed statement of facts, nor when the exception to the judgment is the only one taken and the appeal itself is an exception thereto. North Carolina Bessemer Co. v. Piedmont Hdw. Co., 171 N. C. 728, 88 S. E. 867; Wallace v. Salisbury, 147 N. C. 58, 60 S. E. 713.

No Error Assigned.—Where no errors were assigned in the case, and none appeared in the record proper, but it appeared that counsel for both sides had agreed that all the papers in the cause should constitute the case on appeal, the case was remanded, in order that error might be properly assigned. Holly v. Holly, 94 N. C. 639.

IV. APPEALS FROM INSTRUCTIONS.

Exception to Instruction.—If there is an error in the instruction given, an exception thereto is valid if entered within ten days after adjournment for the term. Williams v. Harris, 137 N. C. 460, 49 S. E. 954. And the appellant is entitled to have his exceptions to the charge included in his statement of the case on appeal. Paul v. Burton, 180 N. C. 45, 104 S. E. 37.

The requests to charge being "separately stated and numbered" an exception for giving them is equally specific and not 'broadside' since it gives the judge and the appellee specific information of each instruction excepted to, what evidence should be sent up to throw light thereon, and what propositions of law the appellee should be prepared to discuss on appeal. Coley v. Statesville, 121 N. C. 301, 316, 28 S. E. 482.

Exception Taken after Trial.—Exceptions to the judge's charge taken for the first time after the trial, but set out in the appellant's case on appeal duly tendered or served, are aptly taken under the provisions of our statute, this section and § 590(2). Cherry v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 186 N. C. 263, 119 S. E. 361.

Error in Instructions Must Be Assigned.—The refusal to give instructions, if asked in writing and in apt time, like the change as given, is deemed excepted to but none the less it is the duty of the appellant to assign such as error in making up his statement of case on appeal and if this is not done, the exception is deemed waived. Taylor v. Plummer, 105 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 266.

Assignment of Error Must Be Fully Presented.—Exceptions to the charge of the court must specifically relate to the complete portions upon which the appellant bases his exceptions, with each separately numbered in relation to the distinct principle upon which exception is taken, and it must be made to appear in some appropriate and recognized way that the point is fully presented by the exception, or it will be ineffectual as being a broadside exception. Rawls v. Lupton, 193 N. C. 428, 137 S. E. 175.

Necessity of Case on Appeal.—The instructions cannot be reviewed in the absence of a case on appeal. Oak Hall Clothing Co. v. Bagley, 147 N. C. 37, 60 S. E. 648.

Where the case settled does not state that the judge charged as recited in the exceptions, the matter is not before the court on appeal. Hart v. Cannon, 133 N. C. 10, 45 S. E. 351.

Instruction Not in Record. — Where the instructions are not in the record, the supreme court cannot judicially determine whether they were as stated in exceptions thereto. Todd v. Mackie, 160 N. C. 352, 76 S. E. 245; Jenkins v. Carson, 173 N. C. 725, 92 S. E. 328.

Where the settled "case" does not show the giving of instructions requested by a party, exceptions to the giving of such instructions will not be considered. McCord v. Southern R. Co., 130 N. C. 491, 41 S. E. 886.

A statement in the case on appeal that appellant's requests to charge were given "in substance" is insufficient to show what was given, and hence, where the requests are in conflict with the general charge, a new trial will be granted. Wilson v. Winston-Salem R., etc., Co., 120 N. C. 531, 27 S. E. 46.

Requests for Instructions.—Where the record contains no prayers for instructions, assignments of error in refusing to give defendant's prayers furnishing for consideration. Davis v. Seaboard, etc., Railway, 132 N. C. 291, 43 S. E. 840.

As to requests for instructions generally, see section 565 and notes thereto.

Setting Out of Instructions. — Appellant is entitled to have the judge set out what he charged in lieu of the prayer, that the appellate court might see that it "fully" covered the prayer asked. Bennett v. Telegraph Co., 128 N. C. 103, 38 S. E. 294.

Application of Instruction to Evidence.—An objection to a certain instruction on the ground that there was no evidence to sustain it cannot be reviewed unless all of the evidence is contained in the record. Atwell v. Shook, 133 N. C. 387, 45 S. E. 777.

V. SERVICE OF CASE AND COUNTER-CASE.

As to counter-case in general, see ante, this note "General Considerations—Counter-Case" II.

A. Necessity and Mode of Service.

Necessity for Serving.—A case on appeal signed only by appellant's counsel, and not showing that it had been served on appellee or his counsel, cannot be considered. Walker v. Scott, 102 N. C. 487, 9 S. E. 488; Peebles v. Braswell, 107 N. C. 68, 12 S. E. 44; Howell v. Jones, 109 N. C. 102, 13 S. E. 889.

Necessity for Serving Codefendant.—Where one appeals from so much of the judgment as is in favor of his codefendant, he must serve on such codefendant his statement of the case. Rose v. Baker, 99 N. C. 323, 5 S. E. 919.

Each Appellee Must Be Served.—Where the interests of different appellees are not identical, and they are represented by different counsel, only as to such appellees as have been served with the appellant's "case" in due time, will the appeal be considered. Shober v. Wheeler, 119 N. C. 471, 26 S. E. 26.

Service of Original Instead of Copy.—This section is complied with by a service of the original instead of a copy. McDaniel v. Scurlock, 115 N. C. 295, 20 S. E. 451.

Necessity for Service by Officer.—A case on appeal must be served by an officer, unless appellee's attorneys accept service otherwise. Cummings v. Hoffman, 113 N. C. 267, 18 S. E. 170.

Service by Counsel.—A service of the case on appeal by counsel is a nullity unless accepted by appellee. Roberts v. Partridge, 118 N. C. 355, 24 S. E. 15.

Service by Improper Officer.—The case on appeal cannot be considered when it was served by an improper officer during, and by a proper officer after the time limited for service thereof. McNeill v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 117 N. C. 642, 23 S. E. 268, and cases there cited.

Service by Constable.—A constable is not such an officer as can serve on appellee appellant's case on appeal. Forte v. Boone, 114 N. C. 176, 19 S. E. 632.

Service by Mail.—Where service of case on appeal is made by mail, on the last day on which service could have been made, instead of by officer, the failure to promptly return the case does not estop respondent to deny the legality of the service, as, if the case had been promptly returned, it would have been too late for legal service. Smith v. Smith, 119 N. C. 311, 25 S. E. 877.

Service Where Parties Make Common Cause.—When it appears of record that several cases on appeal to the supreme court were consolidated by consent and duly served in that form, and the parties made common cause in its prosecution, a motion to dismiss made by one of the appellees on the ground that appellant had not served the case on him individually will be denied. Roper v. National Fire Ins. Co., 161 N. C. 151, 76 S. E. 869.

Service by Officer May Be Waived.—The improper service of a case on appeal is cured by the appellee's acceptance of the case and filing exceptions thereto, without objection to the mode of service, Ashville Woodworking Co. v. Southwick, 119 N. C. 611, 26 S. E. 253. See also Willis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 119 N. C. 718, 25 S. E. 790.

Effect of Failure to Serve Countercase or Exceptions.—Where the appellant prepares his statement of case on appeal and service thereof is accepted by the appellee within the time allowed by the judge, and is certified by the clerk as a part of the record, in the absence of service of exceptions or countercase it is deemed approved by the appellee, and will stand in the Supreme Court as the case on appeal. Texas Co. v. Beaufort Oil & Fuel Co., 199 N. C. 492, 154 S. E. 829.

Settlement as Curing Failure to Serve Legally.—Failure to serve appellant's case on appeal legally on appellee cannot be cured by the judge's subsequent settlement of the case. Forte v. Boone, 114 N. C. 176, 19 S. E. 632.

B. Time of Service.

1. In General.

Strict Compliance Required.—The statutory requirements as to making up cases on appeal must be strictly complied with except when there is an agreement to extend the time, in which case the proceeding must be taken within the time so extended. Kerr v. Drake, 128 N. C. 764, 108 S. E. 393.

Waiver of Time.—A motion to dismiss an appeal, because case was not served within time, was fully met by statements in supplemental transcript that appellees accepted service of notice of appeal, and agreed to extend time for serving case, and accepted service of case within extended time. Sanford v. Junior Order of United American Mechanics, 176 N. C. 443, 97 S. E. 384.

Where the appellant in apt time submitted the case on appeal to the appellee's counsel, who declined to sign it, but suggested that he would prepare another and get the judge to settle the case, and agreed that no advantage would be taken of the delay, but failed to prepare a case, the appellee waived the code-time and cannot take advantage of his own negligence. Mott v. Ramsay, 91 N. C. 249.

Where there is a controversy as to whether the exceptions were served within the time fixed or allowed, or service within such time waived, it is the duty of the trial court to find the facts, hear motions and enter appropriate orders thereon. State v. Ray, 206 N. C. 736, 737, 175 S. E. 109.

Same—Promise to Accept Service. — Where appellant's counsel telegraphs, within the time appellee is required to serve his counter case, that he will, on his return home, accept service, he is estopped to claim that the counter case was not served in time. Watkins v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 116 N. C. 961, 21 S. E. 409.

Same—Acceptance of Service Conditionally.—In accepting service of a case on appeal, after time limited by statute, it was competent for counsel to add to the indorsement the date, and that he did not waive the objection that the case was not presented in time. Barrus v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 121 N. C. 504, 28 S. E. 187.

Same—Necessity for Waiver Appearing of Record.—Within certain limits the parties may by consent waive the time of complying with the rules for perfecting an appeal, and the supreme court will respect such agreements between counsel if they appear upon the record. If such agreement does not so appear, the supreme court will adhere to and enforce the rules prescribed in the Code. Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 498.

Failure of Sheriff to Take Copy from Post Office.—Where appellee mailed his counter case, with fees, to the sheriff of the county in which appellant's counsel resided, and the sheriff, in due course of mail, should have received it in time to serve, but did not take it from the post office till too late, there was no laches on appellee's part. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 115, 19 S. E. 145. See also Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 113, 19 S. E. 105.

Agreement Misunderstood. — When counsel misunderstand terms of written agreement as to time of settling case on appeal, and there is reasonable ground for being misled thereby, and the case, as served by appellant, is lost, the case will be remanded with leave to parties to serve case and counter-case de novo. Mitchell v. Haggard, 105 N. C. 173, 10 S. E. 856.

Illness of Counsel.—Illness of counsel is no excuse for failing to settle the case on appeal in time, where such counsel is not the only counsel for appellant, and, even if he is, it is the duty of the party to obtain other counsel. Tripp v. Somersett, 182 N. C. 767, 108 S. E. 633.

Negligence of Counsel.—That appellant's failure to serve his case in time was the result of negligence of his counsel was no excuse; his remedy being an action against the counsel for damages sustained. Cozart v. Assurance Co., 142 N. C. 522, 55 S. E. 411.

Stenographer Too Busy to Transcribe Note.—When counsel for appellee consented to an extension of time in which to serve case on appeal, the Supreme Court will not relieve appellant, on an excuse that stenographer was busy and could not transcribe her notes within that time, since the stenographer's notes are not the supreme authority as to what occurred at the trial. Rogers v. Asheville, 182 N. C. 596, 109 S. E. 865.

Transcript of Evidence Not Obtained in Time.—It was negligence on part of defendant appellants, not to have had any arrangement with clerk of court to let them have copy of transcript of testimony when filed, and not to have requested him to notify them when transcript was filed, and to have failed to inquire of him thereafter. Murphy v. Carolina Elect. Co., 174 N. C. 782, 93 S. E. 456.

No Certiorari Until Time is Up.—Where the parties to an action have agreed to an extension of time for service of case and countercase, that will prevent its being docketed in the time prescribed by Supreme Court Rule 5, and consequently no case has been yet settled by the trial judge, appellant's motion in the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari will be denied. Waller v. Dudley, 193 N. C. 354, 137 S. E. 149.

When Appellant Guilty of Laches.—A motion for a certiorari will not be considered in the Supreme Court when it appears that appellant has been guilty of laches in respect to serving his case. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Parks, 191 N. C. 263, 131 S. E. 637.

2. Computation of Time.

The term ends when the judge leaves, and the time within which a case on appeal can be served must be computed from the day he leaves. Delafield v. Lewis Mercer Constr. Co., 115 N. C. 21, 20 S. E. 167.

The time for service of a case on appeal must be computed from the day of the actual adjournment of the court, and not from the last day to which a term of court could be extended. Rosenthal v. Roberson, 114 N. C. 594, 19 S. E. 667.

An agreement "plaintiff may have thirty days to file his case on appeal from adjournment of court, and defendant thirty days thereafter," entitled defendant to thirty days after service of appellant's case. Mitchell v. Haggard, 105 N. C. 173, 10 S. E. 856.

When Appeal Taken after Adjournment.—When an appeal is taken at the trial, the case on appeal must be served within ten days from adjournment of the court, but the appellant has the right to reserve taking his appeal and enter it within ten days after adjournment of the court, in which case he has ten days after entry of the appeal to serve the case on appeal. The same applies to appeals from judgment taken out of term. Mecke v. Valleytown Mineral Co., 122 N. C. 790, 29 S. E. 781.

When Judgment Becomes Final.—Until the term expires there is no final determination of the cause, so that the case on appeal need only be filed within fifteen days after the end of the term at which judgment is rendered. Turrentine v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 642.

Time Computed from Judgment.—Where, on judgment rendered during the term, it was agreed that entry should be made thereafter, the appellant being allowed 90 days to complete the appeal, he was entitled to 90 days from the judgment, and not from the judgment entry. Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Chester, 170 N. C. 399, 87 S. E. 111.

Judgment Rendered during Vacation.—Where judgment is rendered during vacation by a consent of parties, the time in which to appeal is counted from the filing of the judgment in the clerk's office. Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Chester, 170 N. C. 399, 87 S. E. 111; Fisher v. Fisher, 164 N. C. 105, 80 S. E. 395.

First and Last Day Counted.—Under an agreement extending the time as to the service of the case or countercase, in computing the time, the first day allowed in the time extended is counted as well as the last, allowing the full number of days agreed upon. Board v. Orr, 161 N. C. 218, 76 S. E. 693.

3. Effect of Failure to Serve in Time.

Appeal Dismissed.—Where the statement was not made or served in time, the appeal will be dismissed. Twitty v. Logan, 85 N. C. 592.

Service a Nullity.—Service after the expiration of the time granted is a nullity. Hardee v. Timberlake, 159 N. C. 552, 75 S. E. 799; Rosenthal v. Roberson, 114 N. C. 594, 19 S. E. 667. See Barber v. Justice, 138 N. C. 20, 50 S. E. 445.

Service by the solicitor of exceptions and objections after the expiration of ten days renders the service of such exceptions and objections nugatory in the absence of an extension of time or waiver, and defendant's statement becomes the statement of case on appeal. State v. Ray, 206 N. C. 736, 715 S. E. 109.

Same—Trial Court May Strike Case.—Where a dispute arises in a trial court as to whether there has been service on appellee of appellant's case on appeal within the statutory time, and the court finds that there has not, it may direct appellant's case to be stricken from the files. Hicks v. Westbrook, 121 N. C. 131, 28 S. E. 188.

Agreement to Waive Time.—Where appellant fails to prepare a statement of the case in time, the judgment should be affirmed, unless the record shows a written agreement of counsel waiving the lapse of time, or it appears that the alleged agreement is oral and disputed, and such waiver shown by the affidavit of the appellee. Twitty v. Logan, 85 N. C. 592.

The statute has fixed the time for the settlement of cases on appeal, and this should be strictly observed, unless there is a mutual agreement which is either in writing or admitted. Tripp v. Somersett, 182 N. C. 767, 108 S. E. 633. As to sufficiency of waiver, see Graham v. Edwards, 114 N. C. 228, 19 S. E. 150.

Oral Agreement to Extend Time.—A parol agreement to waive an oral agreement made between the parties as to the time of serving a counter case to an appeal will not be considered by the Supreme Court if denied. Board v. Orr, 161 N. C. 218, 76 S. E. 693.

Where the appellant alleges in an affidavit, or duly verified statement, that there was an agreement for an extension of time and this affidavit is not disputed by the oath of the appellee, a certiorari, upon proper application, will issue if the court deems it proper. Justice v. Boone Fork Lumber Co., 181 N. C. 390, 107 S. E. 232.

When Exceptions Returned Alone.—An appellant cannot complain that his original statement of case on appeal was not returned to him within ten days, when in fact the appellee's exceptions thereto were duly filed with him within the ten days. McDaniel v. Scurlock, 115 N. C. 295, 20 S. E. 451.

Failure to Serve Objections in Time.—An appellant has a right to disregard an objection to the case on appeal, not served on him within ten days. Cummings v. Hoffman, 113 N. C. 267, 18 S. E. 170.

VI. RELIEF GRANTED.

When no Case on Appeal.—An appeal will not be dismissed simply because there is no case on appeal before the Supreme Court, but the judgment will be affirmed, unless error appears on the face of the record proper. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519; Cummings v. Hoffman, 113 N. C. 267, 18 S. E. 170.

When Judgment Affirmed.—Where there is no case on appeal, and no error on the face of the record proper, the judgment will be affirmed. Table Rock Lumber Co. v. Branch, 150 N. C. 110, 63 S. E. 171; State v. Foster, 110 N. C. 510, 14 S. E. 966.

Where there is no "case agreed" on appeal and none "settled" by the judge, and no error upon the face of the record proper, the judgment must be affirmed. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

The absence of a case on appeal does not entitle appellee to a dismissal. Hicks v. Westbrook, 121 N. C. 131, 28 S. E. 188. Rosenthal v. Roberson, 114 N. C. 594, 19 S. E. 667.

See Royster v. Burwell, 90 N. C. 24, where it was held that an appeal will be dismissed where there is no statement of the case and no bond with proper justification filed within the time allowed by law.

Case Affirmed in Absence of Exception.—In the absence of exceptions in the record as a basis for the assignments of error, appellee's motion to affirm must be allowed. Boyer v. Jarrell, 180 N. C. 479, 105 S. E. 9.

In Absence of Motion to Affirm.—Where a case on appeal is required, but none is filed, respondents' remedy is by motion to affirm, and not to dismiss the appeal, since, if the motion to affirm is not made, it is the duty of the court of its own motion to inspect the record proper for errors appearing on the face thereof. Wallace v. Salisbury, 147 N. C. 58, 60 S. E. 713; Hicks v. Westbrook, 121 N. C. 131, 28 S. E. 188; Barrus v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 121 N. C. 504, 28 S. E. 187.

Appeal Not Dismissed for Absence of Statement of Facts.—An appeal will not be dismissed for failure to furnish a statement of facts signed by the judge or by both counsel, as required by rule, where everything necessary to a consideration of the case appears from the record. Clark v. Peebles, 120 N. C. 31, 26 S. E. 924.

Oath of Counsel.—A motion to dismiss an appeal because it does not appear that a case had been made and served as prescribed by the code will not be granted when an opposing counsel states on oath, in this court, that all the requirements of the code were complied with in the court below. Kirk v. Barnhart, 74 N. C. 653.

Appeal a Nullity.—Where a case on appeal is signed only by appellant's counsel, and it does not appear that it was served on appellee, it must be treated as a nullity; but the appeal will not be dismissed on that ground, since there may be errors on the face of the record proper. Walker v. Scott, 102 N. C. 487, 9 S. E. 488; Howell v. Jones, 109 N. C. 102, 13 S. E. 889.

When New Trial Granted.—Where appellant has been guilty of no laches or fraud and the trial judge certifies, after an appeal, that his notes of the trial have been lost, that he is unwilling to trust to memory to set forth the evidence in detail, as should be done in fairness to both parties, and requests that a new trial be ordered, a new trial will be granted. McGowan v. Harris, 120 N. C. 139, 26 S. E. 690. Ritter v. Grimm, 114 N. C. 373, 19 S. E. 239.

A new trial will be granted, when, from no default of the appellant, no assignment of errors accompanies the record, and the omission can not be supplied by reason of the retirement from office of the presiding judge. Nichols v. Dunning, 91 N. C. 4, 6.

But a new trial will not be granted where it appears that the papers constituting the record of a case in the court below were carried off by the judge and mislaid, and the judge has gone out of office. The appellant should first make an effort to have the papers returned to the court below, for until the filing of a transcript of the record here, the application for a new trial cannot be entertained. Nichols v. Dunning, 91 N. C. 4.

Certiorari to Bring up Case for Review Denied.—State v. Angel, 194 N. C. 715, 140 S. E. 727; Womble v. Moncure Mill, etc., Co., 194 N. C. 577, 140 S. E. 230.

§ 644. Settlement of case on appeal. — If the case on appeal is returned by the respondent with objections as prescribed, the appellant shall immediately request the judge to fix a time and place for settling the case before him. If the appellant delays longer than fifteen days after the respondent serves his countercase, or exceptions, to request the judge to settle the case on appeal, and delays for such period to mail the case and countercase or exceptions to the judge, then the exceptions filed by the respondent shall be allowed, or the countercase served by him shall constitute the case on appeal; but the time may be extended by agreement.

The judge shall forthwith notify the attorneys of the parties to appear before him for that purpose at a certain time and place, within the judicial district, which time shall not be more than twenty days from the receipt of the request. At the time and place stated, the judge shall settle and sign the case, and deliver a copy to the attorney of each party, or, if the attorneys are not present, file a copy in the office of the clerk of the court. If the judge has left the district before the notice of disagreement, he may settle the case without returning to the district.

In settling the case, the written instructions signed by the judge, and the written request for instructions signed by the counsel, and the written exceptions, are deemed conclusive as to what these instructions, requests, and exceptions were. If a copy of the case settled was delivered to the appellant, he shall within five days thereafter file it with the clerk, and if he fails to do so, the respondent may file his copy.

The judge shall settle the case on appeal within sixty days after the termination of a special term or after the courts of the districts have ended, and if the judge in the meantime has gone out of office, he shall settle the case as if he were still in office. Any judge failing to comply with this section is liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, for the use of any person who sues for it. (Rev., s. 591; Code, s. 550; C. C. P., s. 301; 1889, c. 161; 1907, c. 312.)

Cross References.—As to settlement of case on appeal generally see 1 Enc. Dig. 535 et seq., 13 Enc. Dig. 101 et seq. As to contents of case on appeal see section 643 and annotations thereunder.

Intent of Section.—Appellants are too often prone to forget that appellees have rights. The intent of this section is to safeguard them. Board v. Chapman, 151 N. C. 327, 66 S. E. 221.

When Settlement Necessary.—It is necesssary that the trial judge settle the case on appeal when the parties do not agree. Queen v. Snowbird Valley R. Co., 161 N. C. 217, 76 S. E. 682.

Appellant Must Request Notice.—An appellant cannot complain that he was not notified of the time and place of settlement of the case when he did not request to be so notified. State v. Williams, 109 N. C. 846, 13 S. E. 880; Walker v. Scott, 106 N. C. 56, 11 S. E. 364.

When Appellant Fails to Request Settlement.—Upon the service of a counter-case on appeal it is the duty of the appellant to immediately request the judge to appoint a time and place to settle the case, and upon his failure to do so the case of the appellee becomes the case on appeal. Burlingham v. Canady, 156 N. C. 177, 72 S. E. 324; Booth v. Ratcliffe, 107 N. C. 6, 12 S. E. 112.

Same—Case May Be Remanded.—Where an appellant, after exceptions filed to his "case on appeal," fails to apply to the judge to settle the case, this court may consider the appellant's "statement" and the appellee's exceptions as the case on appeal, or in case of any complications, the case will be remanded in order that the judge may settle the case. McDaniel v. Scurlock, 115 N. C. 295, 20 S. E. 451.

Same—Judgment Affirmed.—A judgment will be affirmed, on error being assigned on the record, where the statement has been returned with objections, and appellant has failed to apply to the court below to settle the case. Kirkman v. Dixon, 66 N. C. 406.

Where appellant, after a failure to agree on the case on appeal, does not "immediately" request the trial judge to settle the same, but delays for several weeks, and in the meantime the judge dies, and no excuse is shown for the appellant's laches, the judgment below will be affirmed. Heath v. Lancaster, 116 N. C. 69, 20 S. E. 962.

Same—Excuse Shown.—Where appellant's failure to send appellee's counter case to the judge to settle was caused by his bona fide contention that it was served too late, the case will be remanded for settlement. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 115, 19 S. E. 145.

When Statements Not Submitted to Judge.—When counsel disagree as to the statement of the case on appeal, and instead of submitting the two variant statements to the judge, they are both sent to the Supreme Court, that court will not dismiss the appeal, but will presume that the appellant agrees to the amendments contained in the case of the appellee, which will be taken as the case on appeal. Owens v. Phelps, 92 N. C. 231.

Appellant's Duty When Case Settled.—It is required of the appellant to redraft the case on appeal when the judge in settling it has modified his case by adopting portions of the exceptions or countercase of the appellee, etc., and have the judge to sign the case so redrafted and incorporate it in the record. Waller v. Dudley, 193 N. C. 749, 138 S. E. 128.

Same—When Appellant Fails in This Regard.—Where, after the court had adopted "appellant's case as amended by appellee's exceptions," appellant submitted the record in that shape without redrafting and incorporating the amendments and having the same signed by the trial judge there was no "case settled." Gaither v. Carpenter, 143 N. C. 240, 55 S. E. 625; State v. King, 119 N. C. 910, 26 S. E. 261.

Duty of Judge.—If counsel agree, the judge has nothing to do with making up the "case on appeal"; but when they differ, he sets a time and place for settling the case, after notice that counsel of both parties may appear before him. He then "settles" the case. In so doing he does not merely adjust the differences between the two cases, but may disregard both cases, and should do so, if he finds that the facts of the trial were different. Slocumb v. Construction Co., 142 N. C. 349, 55 S. E. 196; State v. Gooch, 94 N. C. 982.

Upon exception, when the appellant has set out the evidence in narrative form, it is the duty of the trial judge to supervise and correct it, where correction is required. Thompson v. Williams, 175 N. C. 696, 95 S. E. 100.

Judge's Action Conclusive.—The action of the Judge in settling the case on appeal, when the parties cannot agree, is final, and cannot be reviewed by the Supreme Court. State v. Gooch, 94 N. C. 982.

Where the trial judge has certified that the parties have been unable to agree upon the case on appeal, and that he has settled the case on appeal, it is binding upon the Supreme Court and it will not be dismissed on the ground that no case on appeal had been stated and settled. Thompson v. Williams, 175 N. C. 696, 95 S. E. 100.

Statement in Record Considered True.—Any statement in the record is taken as true, and the Supreme Court will act on it, until it shall be modified in some proper way by the judge who made it. McCoy v. Lassiter, 94 N. C. 131.

Conflict between Record and Case.—Where the "case" on appeal prepared by counsel conflicts with a record statement of a fact found by the judge, the latter must control. Blair v. Coakley, 136 N. C. 405, 48 S. E. 804.

Making and Filing Agreed Case.—The case stated by the judge, having been filed with the transcript of the record, and treated by the parties and the court as a part of it, though not so certified, can not be displaced by another paper, purporting to be a case agreed on, signed by the counsel. Walton v. McKesson, 101 N. C. 428, 7 S. E. 566.

Supplemental Statement.—The appellate court will not consider assignments of error filed as a "supplemental statement,' which the court below declined to make a part of the case settled for appeal. Rodman v. Harvey, 102 N. C. 1, 8 S. E. 888.

Case Not Signed by Judge.—Where the case as settled by the trial judge is not signed by him, and there is no agreed statement of the case, the record contains no proper statement of the case on appeal. Ingram v. Yadkin River Power Co., 181 N. C. 359, 107 S. E. 209.

Right of Judge to Make Stenographer's Notes Part of Record.—While a stenographer's notes are material for the consultation of the trial judge in making up the case, he may not send them up as a part of the record of his own motion. Green v. Dunn, 162 N. C. 340, 78 S. E. 211.

Failure of Judge to Settle Case.—Where appellant's timely request, for settlement of his case on appeal is denied, he is entitled to certiorari to procure settlement. Chauncey v. Chauncey, 153 N. C. 12, 68 S. E. 906.

The remedy for a refusal to settle a case on appeal, when judgment has been entered by consent, is a motion to set aside the judgment. King v. Taylor, 188 N. C. 450, 124 S. E. 751.

Failure to Send up Correct Statement.—The failure of a judge to send up a correct statement is not sufficient ground for mandamus, but the mistake may be corrected by certiorari. McDaniel v. King, 89 N. C. 29.

Prerequisites for Application for Certiorari.—If for any reason the judge fails to settle the case on appeal, in time for the appeal to be docketed in the supreme court, the appellant must bring up the record in its imperfect state and have it docketed, and then move for the proper orders to get the case on appeal before the Supreme Court. Waynesville Transp. Co. v. Waynesville Lbr. Co., 168 N. C. 60, 84 S. E. 54.

Laches of Appellant.—An application for a certiorari to a judge to settle a case on appeal, made seven months after the appeal was taken, will be denied in the absence of an affidavit to negative laches. Peebles v. Braswell, 107 N. C. 68, 12 S. E. 44. A delay of two months, without excuse, is too long. Stroud v. Western, U. Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 253, 45 S. E. 592.

Delay of Appellee's Counsel.—Where appellant in apt time submitted the case on appeal to appellee, who declined to sign it, but suggested that he would prepare another, and get the judge to settle the case, and promised that no advantage should be taken, it was held, that he was bound by his promise. Mott v. Ramsay, 91 N. C. 249.

Authority of Judge after Settling Case.—Having "settled" the case, at the time and place of which counsel had notice, the judge is functus officio unless, by agreement of parties, or by certiorari from this court upon proof of his readiness to make correction, opportunity is given him of correcting such errors as have occurred by inadvertence, mistake, misapprehension and the like. Slocumb v. Construction Co., 142 N. C. 349, 55 S. E. 196.

Authority of Supreme Court Over Settled Case.—The supreme court has no power to amend a settled case. Walker v. Scott, 102 N. C. 487, 9 S. E. 488.

Authority of Clerk.—The clerk has no authority to find the fact of such delay as provided by this section, nor to settle the case on appeal upon the admission of such fact, it being required that the case on appeal in such instance be settled in an approved manner by agreement of counsel or by the judge. Weaver v. Hampton, 206 N. C. 741, 175 S. E. 110.

Modification of Settled Case.—Where it is made to appear to the supreme court by proper evidence, that the Judge has made an omission or mistake in the settlement of the case on appeal, the Supreme Court will give him an opportunity to correct it, or to modify an inaccurate statement. State v. Gooch, 94 N. C. 982.

It is only when the trial judge has settled the case on appeal, in the exercise of his proper jurisdiction, that the Supreme Court, upon affidavit of error therein, and a letter from the judge that he wishes to make the correction, will give him such opportunity. Barber v. Justice, 138 N. C. 20, 50 S. E. 445.

A judge can not resettle a case on appeal; he can only correct such errors as have resulted from inadvertence, mistake, misapprehension, or the like. Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 571, 11 S. E. 330.

Judge's Duty in Modifying Case.—Where a certiorari is ordered to correct a case on appeal, the trial judge should be given an opportunity to consider the case with reference to the corrections, and counsel should be present at the settlement thereof. Cameron v. Power Co., 137 N. C. 99, 49 S. E. 76.

Place of Settlement.—The requirement that the place appointed for the settlement of the case on appeal shall be within the district, if the judge has not left, is mandatory. Cameron v. Power Co., 137 N. C. 99, 49 S. E. 76.

An appeal will not be dismissed because the statement of the Judge below was made out of the district in which the suit was tried, unless the record shows that the appellee demanded to be present and that by reason of his absence he was prejudiced, especially when the error consists in the rejection of material and competent evidence. Whitesides v. Williams, 66 N. C. 141.

The trial judge has no absolute authority to settle a case on appeal outside of the county or district in which it was tried, except by agreement of the parties, or when the countercase or exception had been served, respectively, within the time prescribed by the statute. State v. Humphrey, 186 N. C. 533, 120 S. E. 85.

Effect of Absence of Judge from District.—The absence of the judge from the district does not dispense with the requirements that he should settle the case on appeal upon disagreement of counsel. Owens v. Phelps, 92 N. C. 231. When he has so left he may settle case upon notice without returning to the district. Cameron v. Power Co., 137 N. C. 99, 49 S. E. 76.

Case May Be Settled After Expiration of Sixty Days.—Although the failure of the Judge to settle a case on appeal within sixty days after the courts of the district closed, might subject him to a civil action for the penalty prescribed in the statute, he may, after that time, make up the case. State v. Williams, 109 N. C. 846, 13 S. E. 880.

Retirement of Judge.—The mere fact that a judge who tried a cause has gone out of office will not prevent his settling the case on appeal. Ritter v. Grimm, 114 N. C. 373, 19 S. E. 239.

Where the Judge who presided at a trial goes out of the office without making up a case of appeal, and the appellant is in no default, a new trial will be awarded. Simonton v. Simonton, 80 N. C. 7.

Illness of Judge.—Where the judge is unable to settle the case on appeal on account of sickness and appellee, to expedite matters, agrees to a new trial, and it appears that the judge will not be able to settle the case within a reasonable time, a new trial will be granted even though appellant opposes one. Turner v. Southern Gas Improv. Co., 171 N. C. 750, 87 S. E. 970.

Impossible to Settle Case an Appeal.—Where it appeared by affidavits that the statement of a case upon appeal had been lost by no fault of the attorneys for appellant, and that, by reason of lapse of time, the judge had forgotten the exceptions, and a new case could not be prepared, a new trial will be granted. Board v. Old Dominion Steamship Co., 98 N. C. 163, 3 S. E. 505; Isler v. Haddock, 72 N. C. 119; Adams v. Reeves, 74 N. C. 106.

§ 645. Clerk to prepare transcript.—The clerk on receiving a copy of the case settled, as required in the preceding sections, shall make a copy of the judgment roll and of the case, and within twenty days transmit the same, duly certified, to the clerk of the supreme court. The clerk, except in cases where parties are allowed to appeal without giving an undertaking on appeal, shall not be required to make the copy of the record in the case for the supreme court until the appellant has given the undertaking on appeal or made the deposit required. (Rev., s. 592; Code, s. 551; 1889, c. 135; C. C. P., s. 202.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

The transcript of record is necessary to give the Supreme Court jurisdiction of the case. The transcript is prepared by the clerk of the court, but it is the appellant's duty to see that this is properly done. The appellant should comply with the rules of the Supreme Court in regard to the transcript. The penalty for a failure to so comply is the dismissal of the appeal. For regulations as to the arrangement of matter in the transcript see Supreme Court Rule 19, as to printing, see Supreme Court Rule 22, 23 and 24. See also Supreme Court Rule 5 in regard to docketing the transcript.

II. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Section is Directory.—This section is directory merely, and where a party has duly perfected his appeal, and tendered the necessary fees, the clerk must forthwith transmit a transcript of the record, notwithstanding the attorneys have not settled a case. Russell v. Davis, 99 N. C. 115, 5 S. E. 895.

Matter Not Contained in Transcript.—The Supreme Court will not consider matters not contained in the transcript of the record on appeal. Presnell v. Garrison, 122 N. C. 595, 29 S. E. 839.

How Transcript Drawn.—The transcript of record on appeal should be drawn in accordance with Eaton's Forms. State v. Butts, 91 N. C. 524.

Original Papers.—The requirement that appellant file a transcript on appeal is not complied with by filing the original papers from the court below. Lindsey v. Knights of Honor, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013. Emmons v. McKesson, 58 N. C. 92.

Duty to Transmit.—On the taking of an appeal, the record should be transmitted to the appellate court, and the appeal docketed, whether the statement of the case on appeal is settled or not. Owens v. Phelps, 91 N. C. 253.

When Appeal Not Properly Constituted.—Where an appeal is not prosecuted according to law, the appellee has the right to have a transcript of the record sent up, or a certificate of the clerk that an appeal was taken, and the case docketed and the appeal dismissed. Cross v. Williams, 91 N. C. 496.

Costs of Irrelevant Matter.—The costs of unnecessary and irrelevant matter, accompanying a transcript, in regard to which no exception is taken below, will be taxed against the appellant, whether he succeeds or not. Clayton v. Johnson, 82 N. C. 423.

Commission of Evidence and Charge.—The evidence and the charge of the court are properly omitted from the appeal record where there is no exception involving the same. Parker v. Southern Exp. Co., 132 N. C. 128, 43 S. E. 603.

Contradictory Records.—Where two transcripts are sent, contradictory to each other, and the parties do not agree which is correct, the court will direct the proper officer to attend with the original record. State v. Reid, 18 N. C. 377.

Failure to Tender Required Fees.—Failure of the clerk of the court below to send up a transcript after the case on appeal had been filed by appellant in his office does not excuse appellant's failure to file the transcript or the case on appeal where he does not show that he has tendered the required fees and is otherwise free from laches. Critz v. Sparger, 121 N. C. 283, 28 S. E. 365.

Stenographer's Notes.—A statute authorizing the employment of an official stenographer and providing that the stenographer's notes shall be typewritten, and filed with the clerk of said court, and become a part of the records, does not make those notes a part of the record proper on appeal, or of the case on appeal. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

Bill of Exceptions Unnecessary.—Errors apparent on the record may be reviewed though there is no bill of exceptions. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248, 43 S. E. 638.

Demurrer.—A demurrer and the action of the court thereon are part of the record, and no bill of exceptions or case is necessary. Chamblee v. Baker, 95 N. C. 98.

Refusal to Sign Judgment.—The fact that a form of judgment offered by plaintiff, and which the court declined to sign, recited that plaintiff was refused leave to take a nonsuit as to certain defendants, did not make such recital a part of the record; it not being stated in the case by the judge, and nowhere appearing in the record proper. Tennessee River Land, etc., Co. v. Butler, 134 N. C. 50, 45 S. E. 956.

Binding Effect of Record.—The Supreme Court is bound by the record, even though it seems improbable that it can be true. Davidson v. Southern R. Co., 156 N. C. 578, 72 S. E. 622; McDaniel v. King, 89 N. C. 29, 30.

Amendment of Record.—The appellate court has no authority to allow an amendment of the record. Neal v. Cowles, 71 N. C. 266.

Showing Additional Facts.—Where the findings of fact made the basis of a judgment denying a motion for vacation of a judgment are not in the record, the record can not be amended so as to show the facts on the request of a single party. Smith v. Whitten, 117 N. C. 389, 390, 23 S. E. 320.

How Errors in Record Corrected.—Errors in the record should be corrected by means of certiorari, and not by having the amendment made by the clerk below while the transcript is on file in the appellate court. State v. Jackson, 112 N. C. 849, 16 S. E. 906.

Response to Issue.—An appeal will not be dismissed because the response to the issue was omitted in printing the record, where the omission was palpably a printer's error; the response being recited and printed in the judgment. Baker v. Hobgood, 126 N. C. 149, 35 S. E. 253.

Failure of Judge to Return Papers.—Where the trial judge takes the papers and does not return them in time for the seasonable preparation of appellant's transcript, a dismissal for failure to file will be vacated, and a certiorari issued to bring up the appeal. Seay v. Yarborough, 94 N. C. 291; Roulhac v. Miller, 89 N. C. 190.

Proper Transcript Obtainable.—An appeal will not be dismissed because the clerk of the lower court fails to transmit a proper transcript, especially when a proper transcript is obtainable before the case will stand for argument. Bryan v. Moring, 99 N. C. 16, 5 S. E. 739.

Cited in Carter v. Bryant, 199 N. C. 704, 706, 155 S. E. 602.

III. CONTENTS OF TRANSCRIPT.

Transcript Essential.—Before the Supreme Court will entertain an appeal the appellant must cause to be properly filed and docketed therein a duly certified transcript of the record of the action in the court where the judgment sought to be reviewed was rendered. State v. Preston, 104 N. C. 733, 734, 10 S. E. 84.

In General.—It must appear in the record, with reasonable certainty, that a court was held by a judge authorized by law to hold it, and at the place and time prescribed by law. In all cases, it must appear that the court had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter; and so much not more, of the record in every case, ought to be sent up as will properly present the exceptions taken, that is as will show that they were taken, the rulings of the court to which they apply, and how they bear upon the action. The Supreme Court must be able to see that a court was held and that the action was properly constituted before it. This requirement is not a mere matter of form that may be dispensed with. It is an essential part of procedure in every action. And however informal a record may be, these essential requisites must appear in it, else the court cannot proceed to examine the alleged errors, and decide the questions of law sought to be presented. State v. Butts, 91 N. C. 524.

In order for the Supreme Court to acquire jurisdiction, it must appear in the transcript of the record that an action was instituted, that proceedings were had and a judgment rendered from which an appeal could be taken, and that an appeal was taken from such judgment. Spence v. Tapscott, 92 N. C. 576, 577.

And that the action was properly constituted in the court below. Markham v. Hicks & Co., 90 N. C. 1.

Only enough of the record should be included to show that the case is properly constituted; and this, with the summons, pleadings, verdict, and judgment, and the case on appeal setting out so much of the proceedings at the trial as will throw light upon the exceptions taken, is all that is necessary. Sigman v. Railroad Co., 135 N. C. 181, 47 S. E. 420.

Jurisdiction of Action.—It is the appeal that puts the Supreme Court in relation with the case in the court below, and that court in respect to the judgment appealed from; and the Supreme Court must be able to see, from the record, the relation thus established. Moore v. Vanderburg, 90 N. C. 10.

Essential Part of Record.—The transcript or record on appeal consists of the record proper (that is, summons, pleadings, and judgment) and the case on appeal, which is the exceptions taken, and such of the evidence, charge, prayers and other matters occurring at the trial as are necessary to present the matters excepted to for review. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

Taking of Appeal.—Where the record on appeal does not show that any appeal was taken, the appellate court has no jurisdiction. Randleman Mfg. Co. v. Simmons, 97 N. C. 89, 1 S. E. 923; Howell v. Jones, 109 N. C. 102, 13 S. E. 889.

Authority of Court or Judge.—Every transcript or record, to be authoritative must set forth before what person or persons the proceedings were had, or by whose authority the record was made, so that it may appear that such proceedings were not coram non judice. Howell v. Ray, 83 N. C. 558.

A transcript on appeal, which contains a copy of a commission to a judge other than the one regularly designated by statute, to hold a term in the county whence it comes, and of a judgment certified to have been signed by him, does not show, "with reasonable certainty, that a court was held by a judge authorized by law to hold it, and at the time and place prescribed by law," and hence it is insufficient. Jones v. Hoggard, 107 N. C. 349, 12 S. E. 286.

Opening of Court.—The record on appeal from the superior court of a county is fatally defective if it does not show that a superior court was opened and held for such county at all. High v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 112 N. C. 385, 17 S. E. 79.

When the transcript does not show that any court was held, or that any judge was present or gave judgment, it is so defective that the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to act upon it. Broadfoot v. McKeithan, 92 N. C. 561.

Jurisdiction of Parties.—The transcript is imperfect if it does not appear therefrom, with reasonable certainty, that the court was duly held, and that it had obtained jurisdiction of the parties by service or waiver of process. Daniel v. Rogers, 95 N. C. 134; Jones v. Hoggard, 107 N. C. 349, 12 S. E. 286.

Agreed Case.—Where a matter is before the Supreme Court on a case agreed, the whole of that paper is an essential part of the record. Upper Appomattox Co. v. Buffaloe, 121 N. C. 37, 27 S. E. 999.

Incidental Matters.—Entries of continuances, and other docket entries, interlocutory judgments, and incidental matters, such as judgments nisi against witnesses, as well as the evidence, prayers for instructions, and charge of the court, are not part of the record on appeal unless there is some exception presenting them for review. Cressler v. Asheville, 138 N. C. 482, 51 S. E. 53.

Second Appeal.—On second appeal, the formal recitals and the proceedings subsequent to the filing of the opinion on reversal and the exceptions only need appear in the record. Simmons v. Allison, 119 N. C. 556, 26 S. E. 171. Smith v. Miller, 155 N. C. 247, 71 S. E. 355.

Special Orders as to Contents.—The clerk of the superior court, in sending up the transcript to the Supreme Court, should be guided solely by the order of the superior judge, and should send no other papers than those directed. Clark v. Saco-Pettee Mach. Works, 150 N. C. 88, 63 S. E. 153.

Appeals from Interlocutory Judgments.—Upon appeals from interlocutory judgments nothing should be certified except so much of the case below as is necessary to present the point to be reviewed. Smith v. Collier, 20 N. C. 60.

IV. EFFECT ON APPEAL OF IMPROPER TRANSCRIPT.

A. When Appeal Remanded.

Imperfect Transcript.—Where the transcript of the record sent to the supreme court is imperfect, the appeal will not be dismissed, but the papers will be remanded, in order that a proper transcript may be sent up. Spence v. Tapscott, 92 N. C. 576.

Fragmentary Record.—Where the transcript did not contain the record, and it was ordered sent up on certiorari, to which the clerk returned fragmentary parts of the record, certifying that these were all he could by diligent search find, it was held, that the case must be remanded to the court below to supply the necessary record, and to make all necessary amendments thereto to perfect the appeal. Cox v. Jones, 110 N. C. 909, 14 S. E. 782.

Remand for Proper Transcript.—A transcript which fails to show any process, or waiver thereof, or any pleading, by which defendant was brought into court, or any agreement for the submission of the controversy without action, is insufficient, and the cause will be remanded for a proper transcript. Jones v. Hoggard, 107 N. C. 349, 12 S. E. 286.

Proper Proceedings below.—An appeal will be remanded where the transcript does not show that the action was properly constituted in the court below. Markham v. Hicks & Co., 90 N. C. 1.

Failure to Show Process and Pleading.—Where the transcript on appeal contains only the judgment of the court below, and shows no process or pleading, the cause will be remanded. Rowland Bros. v. Mitchell, & Son, 90 N. C. 649; Bethea v. Byrd, 93 N. C. 141.

Failure to Show Contention of Parties.—Where the transcript on appeal merely shows process, a reference to arbitration, an award, exception thereto, the action of the court below thereon, and an appeal, but there are no pleadings, nor an agreed statement of facts, so that the Supreme Court can see the contention of the parties, and that the court below had jurisdiction, and where both parties are not able to file the pleadings nunc pro tunc in the Supreme Court, the cause will be remanded. Wyatt v. Lynchburg, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 306, 13 S. E. 779.

Failure to Show Entry of Judgment.—Where the record on appeal contains no judgment entry, the appeal or writ of error cannot be considered. Logan v. Harris, 90 N. C. 7; Harvey v. Rich (N. C.), 1 S. E. 647. See Vann v. Winders, 184 N. C. 629, 113 S. E. 927.

B. When Appeal Dismissed.

Absence of All Essential Matters.—An appeal will be dismissed on motion when, in the transcript sent up, there is no record of any trial, verdict or judgment, no errors assigned or statement of the case for appeal, and no appeal bond or order dispensing with one. State v. Gaylord, 85 N. C. 551.

Where there is no case on appeal settled by the judge or by counsel, the evidence is in the record by question and answer, there is no leave to appeal as a pauper, although the action was brought as a pauper, and no appeal bond, printed record, or printed brief for plaintiff, the appeal will be dismissed. Queen v. Snowbird Valley R. Co., 161 N. C. 217, 76 S. E. 682.

Failure to Make Transcript.—Where appellant failed to file a transcript, but filed a certificate by the clerk that such a case had been tried, the appellee could docket and dismiss without filing additional certificate of his own. Lindsey v. Knights of Honor, 172 N. C. 818, 90 S. E. 1013.

Incomplete Transcript.—Where the transcript is incomplete, and not such as will enable the appellate court to examine the case on its merits, the appeal will be dismissed. Mitchell v. Moore, 62 N. C. 281.

Omission of Affidavits.—Where, in settling the case on appeal, the judge directed the clerk to include certain affidavits in the transcript, after which the appellant directed the clerk to omit them, the appeal will be dismissed. Finch v. Strickland, 130 N. C. 44, 40 S. E. 841.

Omission of Complaint.—Appeal will be dismissed when the consideration of the complaint is essential to determination of the question involved, it not being in the record, and appellant having made no motion for certiorari to perfect the record. Allen v. Hammond, 122 N. C. 754, 30 S. E. 16.

Record Consists Only of Case on Appeal.—Where the record consists only of the case on appeal, without the summons or pleadings, and no excuse is offered for the defective record, nor application for a certiorari, nor that the case be remanded, the appeal will be dismissed. Rice v. Guthrie, 114 N. C. 589, 19 S. E. 636.

Failure to Pay Fees.—Where a certiorari has been granted to an appellant to complete the record by supplying material evidence that had been omitted from the case as settled, but the clerk of the superior court returns that defendant failed to perfect his appeal, or to pay fees for a transcript of the record, though demanded, the appeal will be dismissed. Broadwell v. Ray, 112 N. C. 191, 16 S. E. 1009.

§ 646. Undertaking on appeal; filing; waiver.—To render an appeal effectual for any purpose in a civil cause or special proceeding, a written undertaking must be executed on the part of the appellant, with good and sufficient surety, in such sum as may be ordered by the court, not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, to the effect that the appellant will pay all costs awarded against him on the appeal, and this undertaking must be filed with the clerk by whom the judgment or order was entered; or such sum as is ordered by the court must be deposited with the clerk by whom the judgment or order was entered, to abide the event of the appeal. The undertaking or deposit may be waived by a written consent on the part of the respondent. No appeal shall be dismissed in the supreme court on the ground that the undertaking on appeal was not filed, or deposit made, earlier, if the undertaking is filed or the deposit made before the record of the case is transmitted by the clerk of the superior court to the supreme court. When no undertaking on appeal has been filed, or deposit made before the record of the case is transmitted to the supreme court, the supreme court shall, upon good cause shown, on such terms as may be just, allow the appellant to file an undertaking or make the deposit. (Rev., ss.

593, 595; Code, ss. 552, 561; C. C. P., ss. 303, 312; 1889, c. 135, s. 2; 1871-2, c. 31.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Compliance with This Section or Section 649.—As to the necessity, for those desiring an appeal, of complying with either the provisions of this section or those of § 649, see annotations under the latter section.

Necessity of Security to Perfect Appeal.—An appeal bond or undertaking is necessary to the perfection of an appeal. Ex parte Berry, 107 N. C. 326, 12 S. E. 125; Hinton v. Pritchard, 107 N. C. 128, 12 S. E. 242.

The Supreme Court has no power to order a certiorari without requiring bond and security thereon. Weber v. Taylor, 66 N. C. 412.

See also, Walsh v. Burleson, 154 N. C. 174, 69 S. E. 680.

Duty to Provide Bond.—Providing an appeal bond is the duty of the appellant and not of his attorney, and when the latter is authorized to act therein, he does so as the agent of the party appealing, who is, in the relation of principal, responsible for his laches. Lunsford v. Alexander, 162 N. C. 528, 78 S. E. 275.

After Perfecting of Appeal.—When an appeal is perfected, the trial court has no longer any jurisdiction of the cause, and can not require an additional bond. McRae v. Board, 74 N. C. 415.

New Security on Second Appeal.—After a cause has been remanded because the record is imperfect, the trial court may order that an appeal bond be filed to perfect the appeal, an undertaking previously filed having been defective. Spence v. Tapscott, 93 N. C. 250.

Deposit as Security.—Under this section the clerk may accept a deposit of such sum of money as may be ordered by the court in lieu of an undertaking on appeal. Graves v. Hines, 106 N. C. 323, 11 S. E. 362; State v. Parish, 151 N. C. 659, 65 S. E. 762.

No Substitute for Undertaking or Deposit.—The clerk has no authority to accept any substitute for the undertaking on appeal, or deposit of money in lieu thereof, provided by the statute. Eshon v. Board, 95 N. C. 75.

Surety Misinformed Concerning Legal Effect of Bond.—One who has signed a bond given to stay execution pending an appeal can not defend on the ground that he was misinformed concerning the legal effect of the bond. McMinn v. Patton, 92 N. C. 371.

See Oakley v. Van Noppen, 100 N. C. 287, 5 S. E. 1.

Extent of Liability.—An appeal bond given under this section to secure "all" costs, means the appellee's costs. Morris v. Morris, 92 N. C. 142.

When there is judgment in the Supreme Court in favor of the appellant, his sureties are not liable on their undertaking for his costs, when such costs cannot be made out of the appellee, or their principal. Clerk's Office v. Huffsteller, 67 N. C. 449.

See also, Kenney v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 166 N. C. 566, 82 S. E. 849.

Attempt to Cure Defects in Bond.—An uncompleted undertaking on appeal, filed on the last day on which by statute it could be filed, and then immediately withdrawn to be completed by obtaining the signatures of other parties, is ineffectual. Smith v. Reeves, 85 N. C. 594.

Misrecital of Judgment.—A misrecital in the appeal bond of the date of the judgment or order appealed from is not fatal error, if the judgment or order is otherwise correctly and sufficiently described. Lackey v. Pearson, 101 N. C. 651, 8 S. E. 121.

Effect of Failure to Give Undertaking.—In the absence of an affidavit for leave to appeal without bond, an appeal must be dismissed where a party neither gives the appeal bond nor makes a deposit in lieu thereof. Lunsford v. Alexander, 162 N. C. 528, 78 S. E. 275.

Giving bond on appeal or the granting leave to appeal without bond are jurisdictional, and, unless the statute is complied with, the appeal will be dismissed. Honeycutt v. Watkins, 151 N. C. 652, 65 S. E. 762; Smith v. Reeves, 85 N. C. 594. See also Brown v. Kress & Co., 207 N. C. 722, 178 S. E. 248.

Effect of Failure to File Bond within Statutory Time.—Appeals will be dismissed if the bond on appeal is not given within the time required by law. McCanless v. Reynolds, 90 N. C. 648; Applewhite v. Fort, 85 N. C. 596.

II. TIME OF FILING.

Presumption of Timely Filing.—Where an appeal bond has no date it will be presumed to have been filed on the day it is justified. Boyden v.. Williams, 92 N. C. 546.

Computation of Time.—The ten days within which the undertaking on appeal must be filed are not counted from the day on which the judgment is rendered, but from that on which the court adjourned. Chamblee v. Baker, 95 N. C. 98.

Ten Days after Rendition of Judgment.—The undertaking on appeal must be filed within ten days after the rendition of the judgment. Boyden v. Williams, 92 N. C. 546; Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 498; Sever v. McLaughlin, 82 N. C. 332.

Ten Days after Trial.—Where an undertaking on appeal recited that the judgment appealed from was rendered on the first day of the term (following the fiction that all the business of a term is done on its first day), but it appeared that the trial took place during the second week, and the justification was dated within ten days after the trial, it was held that the bond was filed in time. Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265.

Day Facts Were Found.—Where the record does not show on what day the judgment appealed from was rendered, it having been rendered out of term by consent, an appeal bond filed on the same day that the facts were found, the case on appeal filed, and the amount of the bond fixed, is given in time. Gwathney v. Savage, 101 N. C. 103, 7 S. E. 661.

Delay in Filing Caused by Clerk.—An undertaking filed within a few days after the time agreed on will be treated as valid where it appears that the appeal was in good faith, that appellant made diligent effort from time to time to give the undertaking, but was prevented by the absence of the clerk, and that the delay was without prejudice to appellee. Harrison v. Hoff, 102 N. C. 25, 8 S. E. 887; Jones v. Wilson, 103 N. C. 13, 9 S. E. 580.

Before Transmission of Record to Appellate Court.—An appeal bond, filed and sent up with the record, is in time, provided it should be given before the record of the case is transmitted to the Supreme Court. In re Snow's Will, 128 N. C. 100, 38 S. E. 295; Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 75, 10 S. E. 148.

Reasonable Excuse Must Be Shown.—While the Supreme Court may allow an undertaking on appeal to be filed in that Court, the power thus conferred will not be exercised unless the appellant shows a reasonable excuse for his failure to give the undertaking within the time prescribed by this section. Harrison v. Hoff, 102 N. C. 25, 8 S. E. 887; Jones v. Asheville, 114 N. C. 620, 19 S. E. 631.

The same cause that excused failure to perfect the appeal excuses the failure to file appeal bond. Graves v. Hines, 106 N. C. 323, 11 S. E. 362.

Before or after Motion to Dismiss.—The Supreme Court may allow an appellant to substitute a sufficient for an insufficient appeal bond, after a motion by the appellant to dismiss the appeal for such defect. Robeson v. Lewis, 64 N. C. 734.

III. WAIVER.

Waiver as to Costs.—Parties to a suit have no right to waive an appeal bond so far as costs are concerned. Cape Fear, etc., Nav. Co. v. Costen, 63 N. C. 264.

Waiver of Timely Filing.—The necessity of filing the appeal bond within the prescribed time may be waived by agreement. Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 498.

Same—Must Appear of Record.—No agreement of parties waiving the necessity of timely filing of appeal bond will be respected by the appellate court unless it appears on the record. Wade v. New Bern, 72 N. C. 498.

Same—Verbal Agreements Disregarded.—Verbal agreements to waive the statutory requirements will not be regarded. McCanless v. Reynolds, 91 N. C. 244. See also Skinner v. Bland, 91 N. C. 1.

Same—Delay in Making Objection.—Where the absence of a bond on appeal is not objected to for two years, and in the meantime the cause has been continued, and witnesses summoned, respondent will be deemed to have waived objection to the defect. Arrington v. Smith, 26 N. C. 59.

Same—By Failure to Object.—Where the appellant is in court and the bond is offered and accepted without objection, and this is noted in the record, this is construed to be a sufficient waiver in writing under the statute. Harshaw v. McDowell, 89 N. C. 181, 183; Howerton v. Henderson, 86 N. C. 718.

Same—By Proceeding with Trial.—If the appellee let the cause go to the jury in the appellate court, he thereby waives objections to defects in the appeal bond, but the court, in its discretion, may require further security. Ferguson v. M'Carter, 4 N. C. 544.

IV. PARTIES.

Obligee.—An undertaking on appeal, though not so expressed, is, by implication, taken to be made with the appellee. Clerk's Office v. Huffsteller, 67 N. C. 449.

Omission of Obligor's Name.—The omission of the name of an obligor in the body of an appeal bond or undertaking is no substantial objection to it. Chamblee v. Baker, 95 N. C. 98.

Operates Favorably to Respondent.—The undertaking for costs and damages on appeal, operates in favor of the respondent, although he is not required to be named in it as a party. Clerk's Office v. Huffsteller, 67 N. C. 449.

Made Payable to State.—An appeal bond made payable to the state is void. The state will not become a trustee for a citizen in the pursuit of his personal rights, except in cases specially provided by law—as guardian bonds, etc. Dorsey v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 91 N. C. 201.

Necessity for Obligor's Signature.—The signature of the appellant is not essential to a bond or undertaking on appeal or error. Cohoon v. Morton, 49 N. C. 256; Walker v. Williams, 88 N. C. 7.

Party Acting as Surety.—An undertaking on appeal may be good although signed by one of the parties defendant as surety, if the record shows that he is not affected by the appeal. Syme v. Badger, 91 N. C. 272.

Opposite Party.—A plaintiff can not be principal obligor on a bond where an appeal is taken by defendant. Speed v. Harris, 4 N. C. 317.

Signature by Mark.—An appeal bond may be executed by the surety making his mark. State v. Byrd, 93 N. C. 624.

Name Signed by Magistrate.—A magistrate, who has rendered a judgment on a warrant, is not a fit person to sign the name of another as obligor on the appeal bond. Weaver v. Parish, 8 N. C. 319.

§ 647. Justification of sureties.—The undertaking on appeal must be accompanied by the affidavit of one of the sureties that he is worth double the amount specified therein. The respondent may except to the sufficiency of the sureties within ten days after the notice of appeal; and unless they or other sureties justify within ten days thereafter, the appeal shall be regarded as if no undertaking had been given. The justification must be upon a notice of not less than five days. (Rev., s. 594; Code, s. 560; C. C. P., s. 310; 1887, c. 121.)

Editor's Note.—The purpose of this section is to protect the appellee in respect to costs. He has a substantial interest in the undertaking, upon appeal, and it cannot be dispensed with without his consent in writing, unless a sum of money be deposited with the clerk by order of the court in lieu of the undertaking. The statute is careful to provide, in strong, peremptory and exacting terms, that the appeal shall be ineffectual for any purpose unless perfected in the way prescribed in it. The language is plain and mandatory, and very little is left to construction. The appellee has the substantial right under the statute to insist upon a substantial compliance with it in all respects.

Necessity of Justification.—An appeal bond is of no effect unless it be accompanied by the affidavit of one of the sureties that he is worth double the amount specified therein. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Barrett, 94 N. C. 219; Greenlee v. McCelvey, 92 N. C. 530.

Dismissal of Appeal.—An appeal will be dismissed when the surety on the undertaking does not justify in double the amount thereof. McCanless v. Reynolds, 91 N. C. 244; State v. Roper, 94 N. C. 859.

Justification Must Be by Surety.—The justification of a surety to an undertaking on appeal, must be made by the surety himself. The affidavit of another as to the pecuniary reputation of the surety will not answer the demands of the law. . Morphew v. Tatem, 89 N. C. 183.

Failure to Show Proper Amount.—A justification of two sureties that each is worth the amount of the bond, is not a sufficient compliance with this section. Anthony v. Carter, 91 N. C. 229.

Need Not Mention Liabilities.—The justification of a surety on an appeal bond is sufficient under this section where it states that the surety is worth double the amount therein specified, without stating that it is above his liabilities and homestead and exemption allowed by law. Witt v. Long, 93 N. C. 388.

Justification Held Insufficient.—Where the approval of an unjustified bond in the act of the clerk, there is no waiver, unless the appellee is present, or afterwards assents. Gruber v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 1.

Indorsement of Clerk Not a Substitute for Justification.—An indorsement on the back of an appeal bond by the clerk, "The within bond is good," is not a sufficient compliance within the statutory requirement that the bond must be accompanied by an affidavit of the sureties showing their justification. Bryson v. Lucas, 85 N. C. 397.

Justification May Be Waived.—While this section seems to require that bond shall be justified in the first instance by at least one of the sureties swearing that he is worth double the amount therein specified, a failure to do this does not necessarily avoid the bond. It is a defect which may be cured by waiver. Becton v. Dunn, 137 N. C. 559, 563, 50 S. E. 289. McMillan v. Baker, 92 N. C. 111.

Necessity of Written Waiver.—Where the record fails to show that appellee in writing waived an appeal bond, the appeal will be dismissed if such bond is not justified. Lytle v. Lytle, 90 N. C. 647.

When Waiver Sufficient.—Where the record stated, "Plaintiff appealed. Notice waived. Bond filed," which was signed by the judge, it is a sufficient waiver in writing of a formal justification of the bond, and the appeal will not be dismissed because the sureties do not justify in double the amount. Singer Mfg. Co. v. Barrett, 94 N. C. 219.

An acceptance by the appellee of the surety tendered on an appeal bond, constitutes a waiver of the justification required by statute. Greenlee v. McCelvey, 92 N. C. 530.

Same—Appellee Present When Bond Taken.—When it appears by the case settled that the appellees were present when the appeal bond was taken, and made no objection to the sufficiency of the sureties, such objection will be deemed waived. Gruber v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 1; Moring v. Little, 95 N. C. 87.

Same—Acceptance in Open Court.—The acceptance in court of an appeal bond not justified is a waiver of justification, and a subsequent motion to dismiss the appeal on the ground that the bond is not justified can not be sustained. Jones v. Potter, 89 N. C. 220.

Same—Signing Case on Appeal.—An objection to an appeal bond on the ground that the sureties failed to justify is not waived when the counsel for the adverse party agrees to and signs the statement of the case on appeal. McMillan v. Nye, 90 N. C. 11, distinguishing Howerton v. Henderson, 86 N. C. 718, distinguished in Gruber v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 1.

Same—Entry on Record.—On entry on the record, "bond fixed at $25; filed and approved," was held a sufficient waiver in writing. Hancock v. Bramlett, 85 N. C. 393. See also State v. Wagner, 91 N. C. 521.

§ 648. Notice of motion to dismiss; new bond or deposit.—Before the appellee is permitted to move to dismiss an appeal, either for any irregularity in the undertaking on appeal or for failure of sureties to justify, he must give written notice to the appellant of such motion at least twenty days before the district from which the cause is sent up is called, and this notice must state the grounds upon which the motion is based. At least five days before the district from which the cause is sent up is called, the appellant may file with the clerk of the supreme court a new bond justified according to law and containing a penalty the same in amount as the penalty in the original bond, or he may deposit with the said clerk a sum of money equal to the penalty in the original bond. When a new bond has been thus filed or deposit made the cause stands as if the bond had been duly given or deposit duly made in the court below. (Rev., s. 596; 1887, c. 121.)

As to the time of the motion to dismiss, see Supreme Court Rule 16.

Section is Mandatory.—A motion to dismiss because of imperfections in the undertaking on appeal, will not be entertained, unless the provisions of this section are complied with. Jones v. Slaughter, 96 N. C. 541, 2 S. E. 681.

Section Does Not Apply When no Bond Filed. — No

notice is required to be given of a motion to dismiss an appeal when no appeal bond has been filed; the twenty days required for a motion to dismiss by the section applies only when there is an irregularity in the bond or in the justification of sureties. Jones v. Asheville, 114 N. C. 620, 19 S. E. 631.

Nor When Not Filed in Time.—A failure to execute and file an undertaking on appeal within the time prescribed by law is not a mere "irregularity," and hence a motion to dismiss the appeal for such failure does not require the twenty days notice, as provided by this section. Bowen v. Fox, 98 N. C. 396, 4 S. E. 200.

Necessity of Written Notice.—A motion to dismiss appeal for insufficient bond will not be entertained, unless after written notice, as required by this section. McGee v. Fox, 107 N. C. 766, 12 S. E. 369.

At Hearing of Motion.—Though a void bond has been given on appeal from the county to the Superior Court, the appeal should not be dismissed where the appellant offers to file a good bond at the hearing of the motion to dismiss. March v. Griffith, 53 N. C. 264.

Failure to File New Bond.—Where, in response to appellee's motion to dismiss for failure to file the bond at least five days before the call of the district, the appellant fails to file a new bond according to law, or make a deposit, etc., appellee's motion to dismiss will be allowed. Goodman v. Call, 185 N. C. 607, 116 S. E. 724.

Effect of Appearance.—The failure to state, from inadvertence, that counsel appeared specially in the court above to move to dismiss the appeal for failure to docket it in time, should not be deemed a waiver of the grounds of the motion. Suiter v. Brittle, 90 N. C. 19.

§ 649. Appeals in forma pauperis; clerk's fees.—When any party to a civil action tried and determined in the superior court at the time of trial desires an appeal from the judgment rendered in the action to the supreme court, and is unable, by reason of his poverty, to make the deposit or to give the security required by law for said appeal, it shall be the duty of the judge or clerk of said superior court to make an order allowing said party to appeal from the judgment to the supreme court as in other cases of appeal, without giving security therefor. The party desiring to appeal from said judgment shall within five days make affidavit that he is unable by reason of his poverty to give the security required by law, and that he is advised by counsel learned in the law that there is error in matter of law in the decision of the superior court in said action. The affidavit must be accompanied by a written statement from a practicing attorney of said superior court that he has examined the affiant's case, and is of opinion that the decision of the superior court, in said action, is contrary to law. The appeal when passed upon and granted by the clerk shall be within ten days from the expiration by law of said term of court. The clerk of the superior court cannot demand his fees for the transcript of the record for the supreme court of a party appealing in forma pauperis, in case such appellant furnishes to the clerk two true and correctly typewritten copies of such records on appeal. Nothing contained in this section deprives the clerk of the superior court of his right to demand his fees for his certificate and seal as now allowed by law in such cases. (Rev., s. 597; Code, s. 553; 1889, c. 161; 1873-4, c. 60; 1907, c. 878.)

See, for a general consideration of this subject, 1 Enc. Dig. 498 et seq.

Editor's Note.—Appeals in forma pauperis was not originally allowed in civil cases at all, but were first provided for in ch. 60, Laws 1873-74, under which they could only be allowed, as in criminal cases, by the judge, and during the term. But in 1889, Laws 1889, ch. 161, this section was amended and appeals in forma pauperis were allowed by the judge either at term or on affidavit filed within five days after court, or the clerk might pass upon and allow such application during term, or within ten days after its expiration.

Formerly the clerk of the Superior Court was not bound to render his services gratuitously but in 1907, Acts 1907, ch. 878, this section was again amended and the clerk of the Superior Court is not now allowed to demand his fees for making the transcript in appeals in forma pauperis.

Supreme Court Rule 22 offers appellants in forma pauperis the option of filing seven typewritten copies of the record, rather than having the same printed.

Section Mandatory.—Where a party to a civil action which has been tried in the Superior Court, desires to appeal from a judgment rendered at such trial to this court, without giving security as required by this section, he must comply strictly with the provisions of this section, which are mandatory. McIntire v. McIntire, 203 N. C. 631, 632, 166 S. E. 732.

Necessity of Affidavit.—In pauper appeals it is required by this section that appellant file the statutory affidavit in order to confer jurisdiction on the supreme court, and a provision in the judgment allowing plaintiff to appeal in forma pauperis does not relieve plaintiff of the necessity of filing the jurisdictional affidavit required by section 646, or the twenty-five printed or mimeographed copies of the brief required by rule 22 of the supreme court. Brown v. Kress & Co., 207 N. C. 722, 178 S. E. 248.

Statement of Attorney.—On an appeal in forma pauperis, an affidavit not containing the averment that appellant "is advised by counsel learned in the law that there is error in matter of law in the decision of the superior court," is fatally defective. Honeycutt v. Watkins, 151 N. C. 652, 65 S. E. 762; Russell v. Hearne, 113 N. C. 361, 18 S. E. 711. See also Hanna v. Timberlake, 203 N. C. 556, 166 S. E. 733.

Order Allowing Appeal.—To appeal as a pauper, the statutory leave must be obtained, and the mere leave to sue as a pauper is not sufficient. Queen v. Snowbird Valley R. Co., 161 N. C. 217, 76 S. E. 682.

Order Must Be Obtained within Statutory Time.—An order allowing an appeal in forma pauperis entered by the clerk after the expiration of the statutory time is beyond the clerk's authority and the Supreme Court is without jurisdiction to entertain the appeal and it will be dismissed, the provisions of this section being mandatory and not directory. Powell v. Moore, 204 N. C. 654, 169 S. E. 281.

Applies to Administrators, etc.—Administrators and all other parties to the record, prosecuting or defending, are permitted to appeal to the Supreme Court without giving security therefor. Mason v. Osgood, 71 N. C. 212.

Intention to Appeal Need Not Be Intimated at Trial.—The appellant in such case need not intimate his desire to appeal at the time of trial, his timely compliance with the statute being sufficient indication of his desire at the time of trial. Russell v. Hearne, 113 N. C. 361, 18 S. E. 711.

Other Proceedings Not Stayed.—An order allowing a party to appeal in forma pauperis dispenses with the security for costs, but does not operate to stay further proceedings upon the judgment appealed from. Leach v. Jones, 86 N. C. 404.

Stenographer's Note.—In view of section 643, requiring appellant to prepare a concise statement of the case on appeal, it is improper to submit as a prepared case the stenographer's notes in the form of question and answer, though plaintiff sued in forma pauperis. Skipper v. Kingsdale Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 322, 74 S. E. 342.

Appellant Must Pay for Transcript.—An order granted under this section permitting an appeal without giving bond or making a deposit, does not relieve the appellant in civil actions from the payment of cost of transcript in advance. Speller v. Speller, 119 N. C. 356, 26 S. E. 160; Martin v. Chasteen, 75 N. C. 96.

§ 650. Undertaking to stay execution on money judgment.—If the appeal is from a judgment directing the payment of money, it does not stay the execution of the judgment unless a written undertaking is executed on the part of the appellant, by one or more sureties, to the effect that if the judgment appealed from, or any part thereof, is affirmed, or the appeal is dismissed, the appellant will pay the amount directed to be paid by the judgment, or the part of such amount as to which the judgment shall be affirmed, if affirmed only in part, and all damages which shall be awarded against the appellant upon the appeal. Whenever it is satisfactorily made to appear to the court that since the execution of the undertaking the sureties have become insolvent, the court may, by rule or order, require the appellant to execute, file and serve a new undertaking, as above. In case of neglect to execute such undertaking within twenty days after the service of a copy of the rule or order requiring it, the appeal may, on motion to the court, be dismissed with costs. Whenever it is necessary for a party to an action or proceeding to give a bond or an undertaking with surety or sureties, he may, in lieu thereof, deposit with the officer into court money to the amount of the bond or undertaking to be given. The court in which the action or proceeding is pending may direct what disposition shall be made of such money pending the action or proceeding. In a case where, by this section, the money is to be deposited with an officer, a judge of the court, upon the application of either party, may, at any time before the deposit is made, order the money deposited in court instead of with the officer; and a deposit made pursuant to such order is of the same effect as if made with the officer. The perfecting of an appeal by giving the undertaking mentioned in this section stays proceedings in the court below upon the judgment appealed from; except when the sale of perishable property is directed, the court below may order the property to be sold and the proceeds thereof to be deposited or invested, to abide the judgment of the appellate court. (Rev., s. 598; Code, s. 554; C. C. P., ss. 304, 311.)

Undertaking Not Necessary to Appeal.—But security for payment of the judgment, in addition to the security for costs, is not necessary to bring up the appeal if a stay of execution is not desired. Bledsoe v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 82.

No Particular Form Required.—No particular form is required for an undertaking to stay execution upon appeal; and if words are inserted in such undertaking repugnant to its intent, they will be rejected as surplusage. Oakley v. Van Noppen, 100 N. C. 287, 5 S. E. 1.

Bond Given to Mortgagee.—This section does not apply to a bond by a mortgagor to the mortgagee stipulating that the mortgagor will not commit waste on the premises, and, if the judgment shall be affirmed, that he will pay for the use and occupation. Alderman v. Rivenbark, 96 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. 644.

Security Operates as Stay.—Upon compliance with this section there will be a stay of execution as to parties appealing from a final judgment. Smith v. Miller, 155 N. C. 247, 71 S. E. 355; Bryan v. Hubbs, 69 N. C. 423, 432.

Where First Bond Insufficient.—The trial court's order that appellant file supersedeas bond with another surety upon its finding that the surety upon the first bond was not sufficient is not error, as such matter rests within the sound discretion of the court. Love v. Queen City Lines, 206 N. C. 575, 174 S. E. 514.

When Surety Bound.—Where the trial judge, upon sufficient findings, has properly adjudged that the defendant has abandoned his appeal to the Supreme Court, it is not required that the appeal should have been docketed and dismissed in the Supreme Court in order to bind the surety on his bond given to stay execution in accordance with the terms of this section. Murray v. Bass, 184 N. C. 318, 114 S. E. 303.

Judgment against Surety.—Where an undertaking to stay execution on appeal has been given by the defendant against whom judgment has been rendered, and pending appeal he has been adjudicated a bankrupt in the Federal Court, an order properly entered dismissing the appeal with judgment against the surety on the undertaking rendered in the State court before the bankrupt's discharge, without suggestion of the pendency of the bankrupt proceedings, the judgment against the surety becomes fixed and absolute. Laffoon v. Kerner, 138 N. C. 281, 50 S. E. 654, cited and distinguished. Murray v. Bass. 184 N. C. 318, 114 S. E. 303.

Applied in Hamilton v. Southern R. Co., 203 N. E. 136, 164 S. E. 834; Hamilton v. Southern R. Co., 203 N. E. 468, 166 S. E. 392.

§ 651. How judgment for personal property stayed.—If the judgment appealed from directs the assignment or delivery of documents or personal property, the execution of the judgment is not stayed by appeal, unless the things required to be assigned or delivered are brought into court, or placed in the custody of such officer or receiver as the court appoints, or unless an undertaking be entered into on the part of the appellant, by at least two sureties, and in such amount as the court or a judge thereof directs, to the effect that the appellant will obey the order of the appellate court upon the appeal. (Rev., s. 599; Code, s. 555; C. C. P., s. 305.)

Cited in Adams v. Guy, 106 N. C. 275, 278, 11 S. E. 535; State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 652. How judgment directing conveyance stayed.—If the judgment appealed from directs the execution of a conveyance or other instrument, the execution of the judgment is not stayed by the appeal until the instrument has been executed and deposited with the clerk with whom the judgment is entered, to abide the judgment of the appellate court. (Rev., s. 600; Code, s. 556; C. C. P., s. 306.)

Duty of Clerk.—After the undertaking has been given it is the duty of the clerk to give notice thereof to the sheriff, in order that any execution which may have issued may be superseded. Bryan v. Hubbs, 69 N. C. 423.

Cited in Hancock v. Bramlett, 85 N. C. 393, 394; Hannon v. Commissioners, 89 N. C. 123, 124; State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 653. How judgment for real property stayed.—If the judgment appealed from directs the sale or delivery of possession of real property, the execution is not stayed, unless a bond is executed on the part of the appellant, with one or more sureties, to the effect that, during his possession of such property, he will not commit, or suffer to be committed, any waste thereon, and that if the judgment is affrmed he will pay the value of the use and occupation of the property, from the time of the appeal until the delivery of possession thereof pursuant to the judgment, not exceeding a sum to be fixed by a judge of the court by which judgment was rendered and which must be specified in the undertaking. When the judgment is for the sale of mortgaged premises, and the payment of a deficiency arising upon the sale, the undertaking must also provide for the payment of this deficiency. (Rev., s. 601; Code, s. 557; C. C. P., s. 307.)

Effect on Purchaser at Sale.—Where an appeal is taken from the order of confirmation of a sale under decree of a foreclosure of a deed of trust and an appeal bond is filed to stay execution, under this section and sections 654, 655, and the judgment of the lower court is reversed on appeal, the purchaser at the sale may be held liable to the mortgagor for the former's taking of immediate possession of the property after the confirmation appealed from. Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 683.

Cited in Hancock v. Bramlett, 85 N. C. 393, 394; Cox v. Hamilton, 69 N. C. 30; State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 654. Docket entry of stay.—When an appeal from a judgment is pending, and the undertaking requisite to stay execution on the judgment has been given, and the appeal perfected, the court in which the judgment was recovered may, on special motion, after notice to the person owning the judgment, on such terms as it sees fit, direct an entry to be made by the clerk on the docket of such judgment, that the same is secured on appeal, and no execution can issue upon such judgment during the pendency of the appeal. (Rev., s. 621; Code, s. 435; 1887, c. 192; C. C. P., s. 254.)

Purpose of Section.—The purpose of this section is to have a summary judgment in the Supreme Court for any sum there directed to be paid. Alderman v. Rivenbank, 96 N. C. 134, 138, 1 S. E. 644.

Cited in State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 655. Scope of stay; security limited for fiduciaries.—When an appeal is perfected as provided by this article it stays all further proceedings in the court below upon the judgment appealed from, or upon the matter embraced therein; but the court below may proceed upon any other matter included in the action and not affected by the judgment appealed from. The court below may, in its discretion, dispense with or limit the security required, when the appellant is an executor, administrator, trustee, or other person acting in a fiduciary capacity. It may also limit such security to an amount not more than fifty thousand dollars, where it would otherwise exceed that sum. (Rev., s. 602; Code, s. 558; C. C. P., s. 308.)

See section 657 for effect of stay on judgment.

Entire Cause Transferred to Appellate Court.—Under the North Carolina practice, an appeal carries the whole cause up to the Supreme Court, equally whether security is given to stay proceedings, or for costs only. Bledsoe v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 82; Isler v. Brown, 69 N. C. 125.

Appeal Must Be Perfected.—An appeal does not take the case beyond the control of the superior court, until it is perfected. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 94 N. C. 174.

Authority of Lower Court Terminated.—The perfection of an appeal terminates the authority of the inferior court. State Bank v. Twitty, 13 N. C. 386.

An appeal duly taken and regularly prosecuted operates as a stay of all proceedings in the trial court, relating to the issues included therein, until the matters are determined in the Supreme Court. Pruett v. Charlotte Power Co., 167 N. C. 598, 83 S. E. 830.

Upon appeal from an interlocutory order the lower court has no power to proceed further with the case, and a motion to set aside a restraining order because of newly-discovered evidence cannot be entertained. Combes v. Adams, 150 N. C. 64, 63 S. E. 186.

An appeal, docketed within the time and regularly prosecuted, relates back to the time of trial; that is, it operates as a stay of proceedings within the meaning of the statute, and brings the cause within the principle of the cases which hold that the court below is without power to hear and determine questions involved in an appeal pending in the Supreme Court. Combes v. Adams, 150 N. C. 64, 70, 63 S. E. 186; Sykes v. Everett, 167 N. C. 600, 83 S. E. 585.

Where after appeal from a formal judgment overruling a demurrer the trial court proceeds to hear exceptions to the report of the referee, the supreme court, upon affirming the judgment overruling the demurrer, will order the judgment confirming the report of the referee stricken out because the parties were entitled to have the appeal from the judgment overruling the demurrer heard and determined before the exceptions to the referee's report were passed upon. Griffin v. Bank of Coleridge, 205 N. C. 253, 171 S. E. 71.

When Proceedings not Stayed by Interlocutory Appeal.—When an appeal is taken from an interlocutory order from which no appeal is allowed by the Code, not upon any matter of law and which affects no substantial right of the parties, it is the duty of the judge to proceed as if no such appeal had been taken. All the inconveniences of unnecessary delay and expense attend the course of suspending proceedings and none attend the other course. Such an appeal is evidently frivolous and dilatory, and can have but one end, to increase the expense and procrastinate a final judgment. Carleton v. Byers, 71 N. C. 331, 334.

Subsequent Proceedings in Lower Court.—Where a cause has been ordered to the Supreme Court, no subsequent action of the court below can affect it. Murry v. Smith, 8 N. C. 41.

Allowing Proceedings by Lower Court.—Ordinarily an appeal stops all proceedings in the lower court, including proceedings under an order from which, if considered alone, an appeal would be premature. But the Supreme Court may direct that certain matters should not be suspended. Pender v. Mallett, 123 N. C. 57, 31 S. E. 351.

Orders Not Affected by Judgment.—During the pendency of an appeal, the court below still retains jurisdiction to hear motions and grant orders, not affected by the judgment appealed from. Herring v. Pugh, 126 N. C. 852, 36 S. E. 287.

Disposition of Collateral Matter.—Pending an appeal, the lower court, in its discretion, may refuse to dispose of a collateral matter which the decision on the appeal may render unimportant. Penniman v. Daniel, 91 N. C. 431.

Motion for New Trial.—The fact that an appeal is pending does not prevent a motion in the trial court for a new trial on the ground of newly-discovered evidence. Bledsoe v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 82; but see Skinner v. Bland, 87 N. C. 168, where it was held that a judge of the superior court has no power to entertain a motion in a cause, which by appeal is in the superior court. See also, Isler v. Brown, 69 N. C. 125.

On appeal to the Supreme Court the case remains alive in the superior court until the case is certified back and final judgment entered in accordance with the certificate, and the superior court may entertain motion for a new trial for newly discovered evidence at the next term prior to such final judgment. Allen v. Gooding, 174 N. C. 271, 93 S. E. 740.

Second Trial Pending Appeal Unlawful.—Where the cause has been tried at a previous term of the court, and the judge has set aside the verdict under the appellants' exception, and, pending his due prosecution of his appeal, without laches on his part, the judge has forced him into another trial under his exception that the case was pending on appeal, resulting adversely to him, the action of the judge in overruling the exception and proceeding with the second trial is contrary to this section and a new trial will be ordered on appeal. Likas v. Lackey, 186 N. C. 398, 119 S. E. 763.

Motion to Set Aside Verdict.—An appeal, perfected pending a motion to set aside a verdict, the time for the hearing of which has been extended by consent, does not divest the trial court of jurisdiction to determine the motion. Myers v. Stafford, 114 N. C. 231, 19 S. E. 232.

Order Refusing to Discharge Attachment. — An appeal from an order refusing to discharge an attachment takes the case out of the jurisdiction of the court whose order is appealed from, and an order can not subsequently be made by that court discharging the attachment. Pasour v. Lineberger, 90 N. C. 159.

Appeal Does Not Carry up Fund.—An appeal from a decree of distribution does not bring up the fund, the court below retaining charge of its safe-keeping and investment pending the appeal. Hinson v. Adrian, 91 N. C. 372.

Cited in Bohannon v. Virginia Trust Co., 198 N. C. 702, 153 S. E. 263.

§ 656. Undertaking in one or more instruments; served on appellee.—The undertakings may be in one instrument or several, at the option of the appellant; and a copy, including the names and residences of the sureties, must be served on the adverse party, with the notice of appeal, unless the required deposit is made and notice thereof given. (Rev., s. 603; Code, s. 559; C. C. P., s. 309.)

As to undertaking for costs, see section 646. As to undertaking to stay execution, see section 650 et seq.

Surety Insolvent.—Where the undertaking on appeal for the costs and the undertaking to stay execution are in one instrument, the appellee, upon filing the proper proofs of the insolvency of the surety, is entitled to have the appeal dismissed, but where the two undertakings are separate and distinct, the appellant has a right to have his appeal heard, although the surety to the undertaking to stay execution is insolvent. Alderman v. Rivenbark, 96 N. C. 134, 1 S. E. 644.

Cited in State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 657. Judgment not vacated by stay.—The stay of proceedings provided for in this article shall not be construed to vacate the judgment appealed from, but in all cases such judgment remains in full force and effect, and its lien remains unimpaired, notwithstanding the giving of the undertaking or making the deposit required in this chapter, until such judgment is reversed or modified by the supreme court. (Rev., s. 604; 1887, c. 192.)

As to effect of appeal on proceedings in lower court generally, see section 655 and annotations thereunder.

Editor's Note.—This section was added to the code in 1887, Laws 1887, c. 192.

In Black v. Black, 111 N. C. 300, 16 S. E. 412, it was held that this section required that a motion for a new trial upon newly discovered evidence, made after appeal and final decree in Supreme Court, should be made in the superior court. Pending the appeal the practice remains the same as it was before this act.

Does Not Annul Judgment.—A judgment is not annulled by an appeal therefrom. State v. Mizell, 32 N. C. 279.

An appeal from an order to vacate a judgment, leaves such judgment, and any execution issued under it, in full force. Murphy v. Merritt, 63 N. C. 502.

Cited in Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 683; State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 658. Judgment on appeal and on undertakings; restitution.—Upon an appeal from a judgment or order, the appellate court may reverse, affirm or modify the judgment or order appealed from, in the respect mentioned in the notice of appeal, and as to any or all of the parties, and may, if necessary or proper, order a new trial. When the judgment is reversed or modified, the appellate court may make complete restitution of all property and rights lost by the erroneous judgment. Undertakings for the prosecution of appeals and on writs of certiorari shall make a part of the record sent up to the supreme court on which judgment may be entered against the appellant or person prosecuting the writ of certiorari and his sureties, in all cases where judgment is rendered against the appellant or person prosecuting the writ. (Rev., s. 605; Code, s. 563; C. C. P., s. 314; R. C., c. 4, s. 10; 1785, c. 233, s. 2; 1810, c. 793; 1831, c. 46, s. 2.)

Cross References.—See section 1412, especially as to the power of the Supreme Court to review issues of fact. As to the disposition of causes generally, see 1 Enc. Dig. 786 et seq.; 13 Enc. Dig. 156 et seq. As to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court on appeal, see the Constitution Art. IV, section 8 and section 1411 of this code

Whole Case Taken Up.—Under the provisions of this section of the Code an appeal on the trial and determination of the cause in the inferior court carries the whole case to the Supreme Court for review, and such court has plenary jurisdiction to reverse, affirm, or modify the judgment. Hudson v. Charleston, etc., R. Co., 55 Fed. 252.

Power to Direct Judgment in Lower Court.—A party litigant has a substantial right in a verdict obtained in his favor, and where one has been rendered on issues which are determinative, and is set aside as matter of law, and such ruling is held to be erroneous on appeal, the Supreme Court will direct that judgment be entered on the verdict as rendered. Ferrall v. Ferrall, 153 N. C. 174, 69 S. E. 60; Wilson v. Rankin, 129 N. C. 447, 40 S. E. 310.

Judgment on Compromise.—As the Supreme Court may enter final judgment if proper, a judgment so entered on a compromise by parties pending appeal will be treated as a final judgment by consent. Chavis v. Brown, 174 N. C. 122, 93 S. E. 471.

Where the parties' respective counsel on appeal agreed to modification and amendment of the judgment, the cause will be remanded to the trial court, with directions to carry out the agreement. Stokes-Grimes Grocery Co. v. Hill, 176 N. C. 697, 97 S. E. 468.

Any Relief Consistent with Pleadings.—On appeal a case is heard on the facts alleged in the pleadings, and where the plaintiffs have set forth such facts as entitled them to relief they will not be restricted to that demanded in their prayer for judgment, but may have any additional relief not inconsistent with the pleadings and the facts proved. Voorhees v. Porter, 134 N. C. 591, 47 S. E. 31.

Separate Judgments for Separate Parties.—Where two parties have been joined as parties defendant in an action, and issues have been submitted as to each, and adverse verdict rendered as to each, under this section the action may be dismissed as to one party and affirmed as to the other. Kimbrough v. Hines, 182 N. C. 234, 109 S. E. 11.

Setting Aside of Erroneous Part Only.—Where a judgment appealed from consists of independent matters, so that the erroneous part thereof can be segregated, the court will only set aside the erroneous part. Newberry v. Seaboard, etc., R. Co., 160 N. C. 156, 76 S. E. 238.

Parties Not Appealing.—Where but one of a number of judgment defendants appeal from the judgment of the superior court, the Supreme Court, in affirming the judgment, will remand the case, that the judgment of affirmance may be enforced against all such defendants. Baxter v. Wilson, 95 N. C. 137.

But the Supreme Court will not determine the rights of persons represented in the trial but who do not appeal. Van Dyke v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 173 N. C. 700, 91 S. E. 600.

Same—Determining Interest in Land.—In this action the verdict of the jury established certain interests in defendant's favor in the lands in controversy which were not adjudicated in the judgment rendered; and, as the plaintiff did not appeal, the judgment is accordingly modified and affirmed. Johnson v. Whilden, 166 N. C. 104, 81 S. E. 1057.

When Judgment Reversed.—When, upon the inspection of the whole record, it appears that the judgment was unwarranted upon the facts, the Supreme Court will, ex mero motu, reverse it. Everett v. Raby, 104 N. C. 479, 10 S. E. 526.

Reversal as to Certain Issues.—Ordinarily, for error in the charge, or the reception or rejection of evidence, the verdict is set aside entirely, but it may be set aside in part, and as to certain issues only, when it plainly appears that the erroneous ruling would not and did not affect the findings upon the other issues. Burton v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 84 N. C. 193.

Judgment Reversed for Substantial Cause Only.—Courts will not order reversals upon grounds which do not affect real merits and where no substantial prejudice will result. Ball-Thrash Co. v. McCormack, 172 N. C. 677, 90 S. E. 916.

Where appellant has had a fair submission of the real issues, the substantial benefit of all prayers for instructions, and determinative facts have been found against him, a reversal will not be granted for technical errors. Smith v. Hancock, 172 N. C. 150, 90 S. E. 127.

Modifying Provisions of Judgment. — Where defendants were joint tortfeasors, error in submitting to the jury the issue as to which was primarily liable, and rendering a judgment based on a finding of primary liability by one, does not require a reversal, but the judgment can be modified to impose a joint and several liability. Hodgin v. North Carolina Public Service Corp., 179 N. C. 449, 102 S. E. 748.

Same—Omission of Parties.—In suit to foreclose deed of trust, executed by husband and wife, securing note executed by husband, against trustee and wife, where there was doubt whether personal representative of deceased husband was necessary party, Supreme Court will modify judgment dismissing action for failure to join him, and direct that plaintiff executors may bring him in. Geitner v. Jones, 173 N. C. 591, 92 S. E. 493.

Modification as to Amount of Recovery.—Although on appeal an issue involving several items can not be amended where one item is erroneous, and appeal is on that item, the court can allow appellee to deduct that much, or stand a new trial. Ragland v. Lassiter-Ragland, 174 N. C. 579, 94 S. E. 100.

Where judgment has been rendered, in an action upon the note and mortgage, subjecting the collateral in part to the payment for the supplies for the preceding year, and error has been committed as shown by the facts and figures ascertained, the judgment appealed from will be reformed accordingly. Planters Stores Co. v. Bullock, 180 N. C. 656, 104 S. E. 65.

Judgment Affirmed.—The Supreme Court may affirm the judgment of the trial court. Selwyn Hotel Co. v. Griffin, 182 N. C. 539, 109 S. E. 371; Wilson v. Jones, 176 N. C. 205, 97 S. E. 18.

New Trial May Be Granted.—The Supreme Court has power to grant a new trial. Hall v. Hall, 131 N. C. 185, 42 S. E. 562; Hawk v. Pine Lumber Co., 149 N. C. 10, 62 S. E. 752.

The Supreme Court may order a new trial and direct further proceedings in lower court. Williams v. Kearney, 177 N. C. 531, 98 S. E. 705.

Same—For Newly Discovered Evidence.—The Supreme Court may, in its discretion order a new trial for newly-discovered evidence, on motion in that court. Clark v. Riddle, 118 N. C. 692, 24 S. E. 492.

The Supreme Court, in its discretion, may refuse to grant a new trial for newly discovered evidence. Brown v. Mitchell, 102 N. C. 347, 9 S. E. 702; Sledge v. Elliott, 116 N. C. 712, 21 S. E. 797.

Same—To Introduce New Evidence.—After appeal, the cause may be remanded to the court below, upon petition of the plaintiff, to enable him to take further proofs, upon terms. Springs v. Wilson, 17 N. C. 385.

Same—When Necessary Party Absent.—Where it appears that a necessary party is missing from the case, or that the issues are not determinative of the cause of action, the court, on its own motion, may remand the cause, with orders for a new trial. Vaughan v. Davenport, 159 N. C. 369, 74 S. E. 967, modifying opinion on rehearing S. C., 157 N. C. 156, 72 S. E. 842.

When New Trial Granted.—When the judgment is not supported by the record (as where the record shows that there was no verdict), or is rendered upon an inconsistent or unsatisfactory verdict, a new trial must be awarded. McCanless v. Flinchum, 98 N. C. 358, 362, 4 S. E. 359.

Ordering New Trial of Certain Issues Only.—The court on appeal, upon ordering a new trial, may confine the issues to those which it deems necessary to a proper determination of the cause. Davis v. Southern R. Co., 176 N. C. 186, 96 S. E. 945, denying motion to recall mandate, 175 N. C. 648, 96 S. E. 41.

On appeal, it is in the discretion of the court whether to restrict a new trial to the issues affected by the error; wherever the error is confined to one or more issues separable from others, and it appears to the court that no prejudice will result from such course, a new trial as restricted to such issues is usually granted. Huffman v. Ingold, 181 N. C. 426, 107 S. E. 453.

All Issues.—When the Supreme Court grants a new trial generally without further disposition, the new trial is upon all of the issues, though it has power to grant either a general or partial new trial. Table Rock Lumber Co. v. Branch, 158 N. C. 251, 73 S. E. 164.

Technical, Formal, or Trivial Defects.—The Supreme Court will not grant a new trial except to subserve the real ends of substantial justice, and unless there is a prospect of ultimate benefit to the appellant. Cauble v. Southern Exp. Co., 182 N. C. 448, 109 S. E. 267.

To Amend Verdict, Findings or Judgment.—The Supreme Court has power to remand a cause, so that there may be fuller finding of facts by the trial judge, in order that the appeal may be more intelligently considered. Gulf Refin. Co. v. McKernan, 178 N. C. 82, 100 S. E. 121.

Findings as to Costs.—On appeal, a cause may be remanded for a special finding as to the right to costs. Smith v. Smith, 108 N. C. 365, 12 S. E. 1045, 13 S. E. 113.

To Find Additional Facts.—Where the pleadings and affidavits in an injunction suit are conflicting, and there is no finding of facts, the case will be remanded, that the facts may be found by the trial court or by a jury upon proper issues submitted to it. Kitchen v. Troy, 72 N. C. 50.

In a proceeding before a township board of supervisors to lay out a cartway, where an appeal was taken to the county board of commissioners and from there to the superior court, and the superior court exceeded its jurisdiction and amended the petition to one for the laying out of a public road, the Supreme Court on appeal will not dismiss the case, but will direct the superior court to strike out the void order and proceedings thereunder and to proceed according to law. Holmes v. Bullock, 178 N. C. 376, 100 S. E. 530.

A necessary finding in an action to recover money from an express company, alleged to have been lost from a valise which had been intrusted to the defendant for shipment, in that the money was taken while the valise was in the defendant's care or control, and such finding being omitted from an agreed case submitted to the superior court, it is remanded so that the omission may be supplied. Sedbury v. Southern Exp. Co., 164 N. C. 363, 79 S. E. 286.

Plaintiff Entitled to Judgment against Sureties on Undertaking.—Upon the affirmance by the Supreme Court of a judgment of the superior court, in favor of the plaintiff, he is entitled, upon motion, to judgment against the sureties upon an undertaking to stay execution pending appeal, and such affirmance is conclusive of the liability of the sureties. Oakley v. Van Noppen, 100 N. C. 287, 5 S. E. 1.

As to general considerations of this subject, see 1 Enc. Dig. 822 et seq.

Jurisdiction of Appellate Court after Remand.—The Supreme Court, having certified its opinion and remanded the case to the court below, is without jurisdiction to make any orders therein. Seaboard Air-Line R. Co. v. Horton, 176 N. C. 115, 96 S. E. 954; Davis v. Southern R. Co., 176 N. C. 186, 96 S. E. 945.

Jurisdiction of Lower Court after Affirmation.—After a judgment of a subordinate court imposing a punishment for contempt for disobedience of its order has been affirmed by the Supreme Court it becomes final, and the court below has no power to remit or modify it. In re Griffin, 98 N. C. 225, 3 S. E. 515.

Final Assessment Invalid before Opinion Certified. — In Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Sanford, 188 N. C. 218, 219, 124 S. E. 308, the Court said: "The defendants seem to have proceeded upon the assumption that it was not necessary to await the certification of the opinion rendered on appeal, but in this respect they were in error. They had no legal right to make a final assessment against the plaintiff's property before the opinion had been certified to the superior court and while the questions presented on the appeal were yet in fieri."

Proceedings in Trial Court, after Affirmation, Simply Formal.—When a judgment of the superior court was affirmed on appeal, an entry on the docket of the superior court, "Judgment as per transcript filed from the Supreme Court," was sufficient and a termination of the action. The former judgment having been merely suspended, and not vacated by the appeal, the affirmation by the Supreme Court ended the suspension, and the office of the last judgment was simply formal, to direct the execution to proceed and to carry the costs subsequently accrued. Bond v. Wool, 113 N. C. 20, 18 S. E. 77.

Effect in Lower Court of Decision of Appellate Court.—Where a judgment has been affirmed or reversed, but no final judgment entered by the Supreme Court, the case is a live one until judgment has been entered in the court below in conformity with the certificate from the Supreme Court. Lancaster v. Bland, 168 N. C. 377, 84 S. E. 529.

Procedure When Lower Court Contravenes Judgment of Supreme Court.—A judgment in appellant's favor taxing the costs of action at variance with the decision of the Supreme Court rendered on appeal, signed upon appellant's motion in the superior court, after examination had been afforded to the appellee's attorney, is not irregular, and when not thus taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect, the procedure is by exception and appeal, and not by motion in the cause at a subsequent term of the trial court. Phillips v. Ray, 190 N. C. 152, 129 S. E. 177.

Pro Forma Order.—An order "that execution of said judgment do proceed" was pro forma under this section. North Carolina R. Co. v. Story, 193 N. C. 362, 366, 137 S. E. 166.

Applied in Hamilton v. Southern R. Co., 203 N. C. 136, 164 S. E. 834.

§ 660. Appeal from justice heard de novo; judgment by default; appeal dismissed.—When an appeal is taken from the judgment of a justice of the peace to a superior court, it shall be therein reheard, on the original papers, and no copy thereof need be furnished for the use of the appellate court. An issue shall be made up and tried by a jury at the first term to which the case is returned, unless continued, and judgment shall be given against the party cast and his sureties. When the defendant defaults, the plaintiff in actions instituted on a single bond, a covenant for the payment of money, bill of exchange, promissory note, or a signed account, shall have judgment, and in other cases may have his inquiry of damages executed forthwith by a jury. If the appellant fails to have his appeal docketed as required by law, the appellee may, at the term of court next succeeding the term to which the appeal is taken, have the case placed upon the docket, and upon motion the judgment of the justice shall be affirmed and judgment rendered against the appellant, and for the costs of appeal and against his sureties upon the undertaking, if there are any, according to the conditions thereof. Nothing herein prevents the granting the writ of recordari in cases now allowed by law. (Rev., ss. 607, 609; Code, ss. 565, 881; C. C. P., s. 540; 1889, c. 443; R. C., c. 31, s. 105; 1777, c. 115, s. 63; 1794, c. 414.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

The plain purpose of the legislature, as manifested in this section, was to expedite the disposition of appeals from the courts of justices of the peace, by providing that they should stand for trial de novo on the dockets of the superior courts at the first term after the appeal should be taken; that if both parties should appear, judgment should be tendered against the party cast, and that where the defendants should make default; the judgment in certain classes of cases should be final, and in other actions by default and inquiry "to be executed forwith by a jury." This section was subsequently amended (Laws of 1889, ch. 443) so that where the party appealing should fail to cause his appeal to be docketed before the next term of the superior court, the opposing party should have the right to procure a transcript of the justice's record, docket it and move to dismiss the appeal at said term. The amendment seems to have been enacted in furtherance of the same purpose to prevent unnecessary delay in disposing of those causes involving small amounts.

A justice's court is an inferior court of limited jurisdiction, not proceeding according to the course of common law, and although a justice is required to keep a docket and enter his proceedings, this does not constitute his court a court of record. Accordingly, when an appeal is taken from his judgment he does not send up a duly certified transcript of record as the foundation of the action of the appellate court, but he is required to file the original papers in the cause.

Public Laws 1935, c. 32, applying only to Transylvania county and not affecting pending litigation, amended this section by adding immediately after the first sentence a sentenec reading as follows: "Such appeal shall be docketed ten days prior to the next succeeding term of the superior court if the judgment appealed from shall have been entered more than twenty days prior to such term of the superior court."

II. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Jurisdiction Dependent on Jurisdiction of Lower Court.—The jurisdiction of the superior court on appeal from justice court is entirely derivative, and, if the justice had no jurisdiction of the action, the superior court acquires none by the appeal. Lower Creek Drainage Com'rs v. Sparks, 179 N. C. 581, 103 S. E. 142.

Derivative Jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction of the superior court on appeals from a justice of the peace is entirely derivative, so that, if the justice had no jurisdiction in an action as it was before him, the superior court can derive none by amendment. Stacey Cheese Co. v. Pipkin, 155 N. C. 394, 71 S. E. 442; McLaurin v. McIntyre, 167 N. C. 350, 83 S. E. 627.

Where the justice did not have jurisdiction of a party, the superior court can not obtain it on appeal from the justice court, by ordering a summons to issue to bring the party before it. Durham v. Fertilizer Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 29 S. E. 411, 65 Am. St. Rep. 408.

Jurisdiction Can Not Be Conferred by Consent.—Where the superior court acquired no jurisdiction of a case on appeal from justice's court was without jurisdiction, the parties can not by consent waive the want of jurisdiction. Love v. Huffines, 151 N. C. 378, 66 S. E. 304.

Plaintiff Must Prove Case.—As on appeal from a justice the whole case must be tried de nevo in the superior court, the mere absence of the defendant, who has answered, and raised a material issue, does not relieve plaintiff from the necessity of establishing his cause of action, and it is error, because of such absence, to dismiss the appeal. Barnes v. Southern R. Co., 133 N. C. 130, 45 S. E. 531.

Appeal Waives Objections to Proceedings before Justice.—Where a party appealed from the judgment of a magistrate to the county court, and a trial was had by jury, the matter being gone through with de novo, the defects in the proceedings before the magistrate are not material, as they are vacated by the appeal. Kearney v. Jeffreys, 30 N. C. 96.

Where it did not appear in the summons, and there was no complaint, that the amount sued for was over the jurisdictional amount limited to justice courts, the objection as to the court's jurisdiction can not be raised for the first time on appeal to the superior court. Cromer Bros. v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836.

Trial De Novo.—On appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace to the superior court, the judgment appealed from is vacated, and a trial de novo had in the superior court. Carolina Bagging Co. v. United States Railroad Administration, 184 N. C. 73, 113 S. E. 595. See also State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

New Trial of All Litigated Matters.—On appeal to the superior court from the judgment of a justice, all litigated matters in the action are to be tried de novo. Falkner v. Pilcher, 137 N. C. 449, 49 S. E. 945.

Trial upon Original Papers.—The appeal takes the whole action into the Superior Court, where it is to be tried de novo, not upon a transcript of the record in the justice's court, but upon the original papers, which must be sent up with the appeal. Phelps v. Worthington, 92 N. C. 270, 271.

Can Not Change Nature of Action.—Defendant, on appeal from a justice of the peace in an action for rent, can not amend so as to change the nature of the action, and make it one of which a justice's court has no jurisdiction. Shell v. West, 130 N. C. 171, 41 S. E. 65.

Right to Remit Claim.—Where plaintiff brought suit in the court of a justice of the peace claiming a debt, and also possession of a horse and wagon, under mortgage, on appeal from the justice's judgment to the Superior Court, he had a right to remit his claim for the personal property and declare only for the debt. Jones v. Palmer, 83 N. C. 303.

Party Cannot Answer and Demur.—In an action in justice's court where defendant pleaded to the merits and went to trial, and was cast and appealed, his answer, not withdrawn, waived his demurrer, subsequently filed in the Superior Court. Rosenbacher & Bros. v. Martin, 170 N. C. 236, 86 S. E. 785.

Cited in Sneed v. State Highway Commission, 194 N. C. 46, 47, 138 S. E. 350; Drafts v. Summey, 198 N. C. 69, 150 S. E. 631.

III. WHEN APPEAL LIES.

Judgment Must Put an End to Action.—This section implies a final judgment—that is, one that in some way puts an end to the action. Phelps v. Worthington, 92 N. C. 270, 271.

No Appeal from Interlocutory Judgment.—Appeals cannot be taken from justices of the peace to the Superior Courts from interlocutory judgments; therefore, where a justice dismissed a warrant of attachment, the judgment of the Superior Court on appeal dismissing the plaintiff's action on the ground that no service of process had ever been made was erroneous, as no appeal lay from the order of the justice and the Superior Court should only have dismissed the appeal. Phelps v. Worthington, 92 N. C. 270.

Appeal from County Commissioner.—An appeal from the board of county commissioners in establishing a public road should be taken in accordance with this section. Blair v. Coakley, 136 N. C. 405, 48 S. E. 804.

Taxing Prosecutor with Costs of Criminal Prosecution.—An appeal lies from the judgment of a justice of the peace taxing the prosecutor with costs, such taxing being in the nature of a civil judgment. State v. Morgan, 120 N. C. 563, 26 S. E. 634; State v. Cole, 180 N. C. 682, 104 S. E. 136.

Motion To Set Aside Judgment.—If a motion to set aside a judgment in the court of a justice of the peace should be allowed or denied improperly, the complaining party may appeal to the superior court. Whitehurst v. Merchants, etc., Transp. Co., 109 N. C. 342, 13 S. E. 937.

Waiver of Right of Appeal.—A defendant by voluntarily paying a judgment taken against him before a justice of the peace waives his right of appeal. Cowell v. Gregory, 130 N. C. 80, 40 S. E. 849.

Appeal and Not Motion to Set Aside Judgment Proper Remedy.—Where a defendant relied on the assurance of a justice of the peace, that his cause would not be tried, after which the justice rendered a judgment against him in his absence, the remedy is by an appeal or a recordari as a substitute therefor, and not by a motion to set aside the judgment. Navassa Guano Co. v. Bridgers, 93 N. C. 439.

IV. POWER OF SUPERIOR COURT ON APPEAL.

Limiting Trial to Particular Issues.—The Superior Court may limit the trial on appeal to particular issues, where there is no evidence to support those excluded. Smith v. Newberry, 140 N. C. 385, 53 S. E. 234.

Incidental Questions.—An appeal from a court of a justice of the peace comprehends in its scope a new trial of the whole subject matter of the action, and any determination by the magistrate of an incidental question involved therein, though not directly appealed from, is, when relevant and necesssary, to be conidered and determined by the appellate court. White v. American Peanut Co., 165 N. C. 132, 81 S. E. 134.

Amount Claimed Limited to Jurisdictional Amount of Justice's Court.—Where the Superior Court acquires jurisdiction on appeal from justice's court upon law and fact, the trial proceeds de novo, the appellate court can not allow an amendment of the complaint increasing the amount of plaintiff's claim beyond that to which the jurisdiction of the justice is limited. Meneely & Co. v. Craven, 86 N. C. 364. See, as to applicability of section, Cowles v. Hayes, 67 N. C. 128.

May Disregard Finding of Facts.—On appeal to the Superior Court from an order of a justice denying a motion to open a default judgment the court may disregard the justice's finding of fact, and proceed to hear the matter anew. Turner v. Threshing Mach. Co., 133 N. C. 381, 45 S. E. 781. Finlayson v. American Acci. Co., 109 N. C. 196, 13 S. E. 739.

Same—But Not in Summary Proceedings.—Where on a trial in summary proceedings before a justice, there is evidence to establish equitable title in defendant, and the court finds from such evidence in favor of defendant, and dismisses the action, his judgment can not be reviewed; but, where there is no evidence, his decision becomes a question of law, and reviewable. McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 32 S. E. 677.

Power to Allow New or Amended Pleadings.—Upon an appeal in a civil action from the court of a justice of the peace to the Superior Court, the latter has power to amend the pleadings and allow new pleas or matters of defense to be set up. Moore v. Garner, 109 N. C. 157, 13 S. E. 768.

Same—Discretion of Court.—The trial on appeal in the superior court from a justice's judgment is de novo, and the judge may, in his discretion, allow pleadings to be filed. Teal v. Templeton, 149 N. C. 32, 62 S. E. 737.

Same—Plea of Statute of Limitations. — The plea of the statute of limitations, not relied on before a justice, can not be set up on appeal in the superior court without leave. Amendment of pleadings in such case is matter of discretion. Poston v. Rose, 87 N. C. 279.

Same—Error in Amount of Summons.—Where a summons issued by a justice failed to show the amount claimed, the insertion of such amount was properly permitted upon appeal to the superior court, and such amendment was retroactive. McPhail Bros. v. Johnson, 115 N. C. 298, 20 S. E. 373.

Same—Error in Initials of Party.—Error in one of the initials of defendant's name in a justice's summons, if the right man is served, and is not misled, does not vitiate judgment by default, and may be amended on an appeal. Clawson v. Wolfe, 77 N. C. 100.

May Allow Counterclaim.—The superior court may on appeal from justice court allow the defendant to set up a counterclaim not urged in justice court. Norfolk, etc., R. Co. v. Dill, 171 N. C. 176, 88 S. E. 144. See, also, Thomas v. Simpson, 80 N. C. 4.

Same—Refusal to Allow Counterclaim.—Where it appeared that a defendant made no defense to the action, but suffered judgment to be entered against him in a justice's court and appealed to the superior court, but failed to answer or ask for leave to do so until the trial three years later, the court properly refused to allow a plea of counterclaim then to be set up. Johnson v. Rowland, 80 N. C. 1.

Court Cannot Set Aside Judgment and Docket Case.—Where a judgment was obtained before a justice of the peace and docketed in the office of the Superior Court Clerk, the court has no power upon motion to set aside said judgment and enter the cause upon the civil issue docket. Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379.

May Make Additional Parties.—Under this section the superior court, on appeal from justice's judgment is authorized to bring in an additional defendant, though less than $200 might be recoverable against such defendant. Sellars Hosiery Mills v. Southern R. Co., 174 N. C. 449, 93 S. E. 952. But not where the presence of the co-defendant is unnecessary. Morgan v. Royal Ben. Soc., 167 N. C. 262, 83 S. E. 479.

V. DISMISSAL FOR FAILURE TO DOCKET—RECORDARI.

Effect of Failure to Docket in Time.—An appeal from justice court not docketed at the first term to which it was returnable is properly dismissed. Tedder v. Deaton, 167 N. C. 479, 83 S. E. 616; Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 166, 72 S. E. 978.

If appellant fails to docket his appeal by the next succeeding term of the superior court, the appellee may have the case placed on docket, and have the judgment affirmed. Simonds v. Carson, 182 N. C. 82, 108 S. E. 353.

Under this section the judgment of affirmance is, in substance, equivalent to a judgment dismissing the action, and the appellate court is not required to look into the record for the purpose of passing upon the merits of the exceptions. Blair v. Coakley, 136 N. C. 405, 48 S. E. 804.

Failure to Pay Clerk's Fees.—When the justice of the peace was paid for transcript of appeal, made it out the day of the trial and handed it to the clerk of the superior court, but the appellant neither tendered nor paid the clerk his fees nor requested that it be docketed, a motion to dismiss the appeal will be granted. Lentz v. Hinson, 146 N. C. 31, 59 S. E. 144; Ballard v. Gay, 108 N. C. 544, 13 S. E. 207.

Dismissal for Failure to Docket Not Reviewable.—The action of the lower Court is not reviewable in allowing the motion of the appellee, from a judgment rendered in a court of the Justice of the Peace, to docket and dismiss an appeal when the appellant had neither paid the Clerk's fees nor requested him to docket the appeal. McClintock v. Life Ins. Co., 149 N. C. 35, 62 S. E. 775.

When Appeal Not Dismissed.—Where an appellant pays the fees for the return and docketing of an appeal from a justice of the peace, the appeal will not be dismissed for the failure of the clerk of the superior court to docket the same. Johnson v. Andrews, 132 N. C. 376, 43 S. E. 926.

Where, on appeal from a justice of the peace, the case was not docketed, because the fees for this service were not tendered or paid to the clerk, but the clerk did not demand his fees or notify the appellant that the appeal would not be docketed unless they were paid, it was no error for the judge to allow the appeal to be docketed two terms after the regular time, and as soon as the appellant was notified that this had not been done. West v. Reynolds, 94 N. C. 333.

Waiver of Right to Object to Failure to Docket in Time.—Where defendant failed to see that his appeal from judgment of a justice of the peace was docketed at next term of superior court, but appeal was on docket 1½ years without notice from plaintiff that he intended to take advantage of irregularity, it was held that plaintiff waived his right to object. Rawls, etc., Co. v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 172 N. C. 211, 90 S. E. 116.

Same—Agreement of Attorneys as Waiving Requirement.—Where the opposing attorneys agree that plaintiff's attorney shall make up the transcript of appeal with the justice of the peace, and submit it to defendant's attorney, and plaintiff's attorney failed to conform to the agreement, the appeal will not be dismissed at his instance on the ground that the case was not docketed at the term next ensuing after the appeal was taken. Jerman v. Gulledge, 129 N. C. 242, 39 S. E. 835.

Same—Agreement That Defendant Should Hold the Property.—An agreement made after judgment by a justice for plaintiff that defendant should hold the property until the cases should be determined by the higher court did not waive plaintiff's right to have the appeal dismissed because not docketed in time. Jones v. Fowler, 161 N. C. 354, 77 S. E. 415.

Effect of Not Moving to Dismiss for Failure to Docket in Time.—Upon appellant's failure to docket appeal from justice of the peace to superior court at the next term, appellee can move to dismiss at such term, but his failure to do so does not estop him from asserting appellant's failure to docket appeal at the next term as a bar to the trial of the case in the superior court. Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708. See, also, Love v. Huffines, 151 N. C. 378, 66 S. E. 304.

Privilege of Appellee Only.—The power given by this section to the appellee to docket a case at the first term of the superior court, if the appellant does not, and to have the judgment affirmed, is a privilege granted to the appellee only, and the appellant can draw no argument against appellee from his failure to use it. Davenport v. Grissom, 113 N. C. 38, 39, 18 S. E. 78.

Laches in Applying for Recordari.—When an appeal from a justice's court has not been docketed within the time prescribed by section 661, the appellant should move for a recordari, at the first ensuing term of the superior court, that the appeal should be docketed; and though appeal had been prayed in open court and the fee of the justice paid, the failure to move for a recordari and to make proper inquiry of the clerk of the superior court as to whether the case has been docketed is such laches as will, in the absence of agreement of the parties, entitle the appellee to have the case dismissed upon his motion; and the fact that appellant has employed an attorney to look after the appeal will not excuse him. Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 166, 72 S. E. 978.

Appeal Lost through Default of Appellant.—The provisions of this section, as to the writ of recordari, have no application where an appeal from the justice's court has been lost through the default of the appellant, and the failure of the appellee to docket and dismiss is no waiver of the appellee's rights upon appellant's motion for a refordari. Pickens v. Whitton, 182 N. C. 779, 109 S. E. 836; See, also, Helsabeck v. Grubbs, 171 N. C. 337, 88 S. E. 473.

No Recordari after Removal.—A plaintiff who appealed from the judgment of a justice for less than $25, in his favor, he claiming more, and the judge having affirmed the judgment on the papers sent up to him, under this sec., is not entitled to a recordari to the justice, as the case has already been removed from his court. Cowles v. Hayes, 67 N. C. 128.

Liability of Justice for Negligent Failure to Docket Appeal.—A justice who is paid the appeal fee and the fee for docketing the appeal, and yet who negligently fails to docket the appeal, so that the right of appeal is thereby lost, is not liable therefor in a civil suit. Simonds v. Carson, 182 N. C. 82, 108 S. E. 353. See 1 N. C. L. Rev. 55.

As to docketing of appeals from justice's courts, generally, see 8 Enc. Dig. 863 et seq. As to notice of appeal, see sections 1530, 1531 and annotations thereunder.

Docketed at Next Ensuing Term.—An appeal from the court of a justice of the peace should be docketed at the next ensuing term of the superior court if the judgment appealed from has been rendered more than ten days before that term, without the discretion of the trial judge to grant indulgence or extension of time. Peltz v. Bailey, 157 N. C. 166, 72 S. E. 978; Southern Pants Co. v. Smith, 125 N. C. 588, 34 S. E. 552.

Term to Which Appeal Is Taken.—An appeal must be taken to the next term of the appellate court; and it is therefore error to proceed in a case on appeal from a justice's court taken after that time, in the absence of notice to the appellee, that he may show cause against it. Hahn v. Guilford, 87 N. C. 172.

See State v. Edwards, 110 N. C. 511, 14 S. E. 741.

The "next term" of the court means that term which shall begin next after the expiration of the ten days allowed for service of notice of appeal. Sondley v. Asheville, 110 N. C. 84, 14 S. E. 514.

Same—Whether Civil or Criminal.—The phrase "next term," within rule requiring appeals from justice's judgments to be docketed at the next term, means any term, whether civil or criminal, that begins next after the expiration of the ten days allowed for service of notice of appeal. Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708; Johnson v. Andrews, 132 N. C. 376, 43 S. E. 926; Jerman v. Gulledge, 129 N. C. 242, 39 S. E. 835.

An appeal from the action of the county commissioners in altering a public road should be taken to the next term of the superior court, though it was a criminal term. Blair v. Coakley, 136 N. C. 405, 48 S. E. 804.

Same—Judge Cannot Allow Docketing Later.—Under this section an appeal from justice court must be tried at that term of the superior court which begins more than ten days after judgment in justice court, and the superior court has no right to dispense with such requirement. Helsabeck v. Grubbs, 171 N. C. 37, 88 S. E. 473; Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708. Formerly the rule was different. See West v. Reynolds, 94 N. C. 333.

Subsequent Term.—When the term of the appellate court begins within the ten days allowed by section 1530 to perfect an appeal, the appeal is taken to the next term. Gregory v. Hobbs, 92 N. C. 39; Sondley v. Asheville, 110 N. C. 84, 14 S. E. 514.

When Judge Does Not Attend Next Term.—When the judge does not attend the next term of court at which an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace should have been docketed, the appellant should see that the appeal is docketed in time, all matters then pending being carried over in the same plight and condition, to the subsequent term. Rev., Sec. 1510. Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708.

Duty of Appellant to See Case Properly Docketed.—One appealing to the superior court from a judgment of a justice of the peace must see that the case is properly docketed, or he loses his appeal. Abell v. Thornton Light, etc., Co., 159 N. C. 348, 74 S. E. 881.

Failure of Appellant to Docket Appeal in Apt Time.—Under this section it is appellant's duty to docket his appeal in the superior court in time, and his failure to have done so by the next succeeding term of the superior court, wherein the motion of appellee to dismiss has been properly allowed, or to apply for a recordari, in apt time, is his own laches, which will prevent his recovering damages of the justice of the peace for his failure to send up the case according to his promise, after having accepted his fee therefor, in the absence of a fraudulent intent. Simonds v. Carson, 182 N. C. 82, 108 S. E. 353.

Docketing at Subsequent Term as Entitling Appellant to Nonsuit.—Under this section a docketing at a subsequent term is a nullity, and does not entitle the plaintiff appellant to take a nonsuit. Davenport v. Grissom, 113 N. C. 38, 18 S. E. 78.

Finality of Judgment.—Where a justice of the peace has taken a case under advisement and later renders judgment against the defendant without notice to him, and the defendant does all that the law requires of him, after he had notice of the judgment, to perfect his appeal to the Superior Court within the time required by statute, and later has recordari issued from the latter court, the judgment appealed from will not be held as final. Blacker v. Bullard, 196 N. C. 696, 146 S. E. 807.

Plea of Limitations.—An appeal from a court of a justice of the peace is tried de novo in the Superior Court, under this section, and when the account sued on is admitted in the former court, it is discretionary with the trial judge to permit the plea of the statute of limitations which is necessary to defendant's right to set it up. Fochtman v. Greer, 194 N. C. 674, 140 S. E. 442.

Effect of Dismissal.— The dismissal of an appeal from a court of a justice of the peace, when not docketed by the appellant at the term of the superior court prescribed by this section, has the same effect as an affirmation of a judgment thereof under section 660. McClintock v. Life Ins. Co., 149 N. C. 35, 62 S. E. 775.

§ 662. Plaintiff's cost bond on appeal from justice.—When a defendant appeals from the judgment of a justice of the peace to the superior court, or when the judgment of the justice is removed by the defendant, by recordari or otherwise, to a superior court, the court having cognizance of the appeal or recordari may, upon sufficient cause shown by affidavit, compel the plaintiff to give an undertaking, with sufficient surety, for payment of the costs of the suit, in the event of his failing to prosecute the same with effect. (Rev., s. 606; Code, s. 564; R. C., c. 31, s. 104; 1831, c. 29.)

As to the bonds on appeal from justice's courts, see 8 Enc. Dig. 459 et seq. As to costs on appeal, see section 1256 and annotations thereunder. As to undertaking to stay execution, see section 1526.

Necessity for Surety.—The Code requires no surety on an appeal from a justice's judgment. Steadman v. Jones, 65 N. C. 388.

Discretion of Judge as to Requiring of Security.—In an appeal by a defendant to the superior court from a judgment of a justice of the peace, it lies within the discretion of the presiding judge to require the plaintiff to give security for the further prosecution of the suit, or not. Smith v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 72 N. C. 62.

SUBCHAPTER X. EXECUTION.

Art. 27. Execution

§ 663. Judgment enforced by execution.—Where a judgment requires the payment of money or the delivery of real or personal property it may be enforced in those respects by execution, as provided in this article. Where it requires the performance of any other act a certified copy of the judgment may be served upon the party against whom it is given, or upon the person or officer who is required thereby or by law to obey the same, and his obedience thereto enforced. If he refuses, he may be punished by the court as for contempt. (Rev., s. 615; Code, s. 441; C. C. P., s. 257.)

References.—As to provisions for punishment for contempt, see sections 978-986. As to the nature and essentials of execution in general, see 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 883 et seq.

In General.—An execution is a writ, issuing from a court, and is an authority to the sheriff or other officer to do what it commands. Wayman v. Southard, 10 Wheat. 1, 32 L. Ed. 253.

Every execution presupposes a judgment, and the right to issue the one implies the existence of the other. Sheppard v. Bland, 87 N. C. 163. The general rule is that the power to issue an execution is a necessary consequence to the power to render judgment. Bank v. Halstead, 10 Wheat. 51, 64, 6 L. Ed. 264.

A judgment creditor is entitled to have his judgment satisfied, if need be, by a sale of his debtor's property, except such parts thereof as may be exempt from execution. The ordinary process to enforce such a judgment is that of execution against the property of the debtor, and this process the creditor may have from time to time while the judgment continues in force, until it shall be discharged. Vegelahn v. Smith, 95 N. C. 254, 255.

Where the land of a judgment debtor is subjected to a specific lien for its payment, the judgment creditor may proceed against the debtor in personam, may compel payment by proceeding in rem, or pursue both remedies at the same time. Boseman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10.

Purpose of Execution.—An execution is the end and life of the law, and is indispensably necessary to the beneficial exercise of the jurisdiction of a court. Bank v. Halstead, 10 Wheat. 51, 55, 6 L. Ed. 264. The purpose of an execution is to give effect to the judgment on which issued. Harshman v. Knox County, 122 U. S. 306, 319, 30 L. Ed. 1152.

Property Subject to Execution.—An execution may ordinarily be levied upon all property that has a visible, tangible existence, within the jurisdiction of the courts and the precinct of the officer; and all rents, profits and rights, arising from or appurtenant or appendant thereto. Ager v. Murray, 105 U. S. 126, 130, 26 L. Ed. 942; Stevens v. Gladding, 17 How. 447, 453, 15 L. Ed. 155.

The property need not be the subject of sale. It is the title of the defendant, and not the property itself, which is subject to execution. Turner v. Fendall, 1 Cranch 117, 134, 2 L. Ed. 53; The Moses Taylor, 4 Wall. 411, 427, 18 L. Ed. 397.

What Law Governs.—Liability of property to be subjected to execution is in the case of real estate, to be determined by the law of the jurisdiction of the situs. Spindle v. Shreve, 111 U. S. 542, 28 L. Ed. 512.

Liability in the case of personal property is determined by the law of the state where the property actually is, regardless of the domicile of the owner. Hervey v. R. I. Locomotive Works, 93 U. S. 664, 23 L. Ed. 1003.

And in the case of choses in action and trusts, liability is determined by the place where created or found. Spindle v. Shreve, 111 U. S. 542, 547, 28 L. Ed. 512.

Debtor's Funds in Hands of Third Person.—Where it appears, in proceedings supplementary to execution, that a third person has funds of the defendant available for the judgment debt, etc., an order may be made by the court forbidding such third persons to dispose of the fund. Boseman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10. As to garnishment, see §§ 711 et seq., and the notes thereto.

An order taxing the cost of action against a party, is in effect a judgment, upon which an execution may be issued under the provisions of this section. Sheppard v. Bland, 87 N. C. 163.

After Death of Defendant.—But an execution issued on a judgment after the death of the defendant is void. Williams v. Weaver, 94 N. C. 34; Sawyers v. Sawyers, 93 N. C. 321. For new execution against the property after defendant dying in execution, see section 674.

Execution against Counties Not Authorized.—A plaintiff who has obtained a judgment against a county is not entitled to an execution against it. His remedy is by a writ of mandamus against the board of commissioners of the county to compel them to levy a tax for the satisfaction of the judgment. Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142.

Remedy for Refusal of Clerk to Issue Execution.—Should the clerk refuse to issue the execution to which the plaintiff is entitled on his judgment, he has two remedies for enforcing his rights: (1) he may obtain a rule on the clerk as an officer of the court to compel him to perform his duty, or be subject to an attachment for a contempt; or (2) he may sue the clerk on his official bond. He is not entitled to a writ of mandamus against the clerk. Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142; Electric Co. v. Engineering Co., 128 N. C. 199, 201, 38 S. E. 831.

Justice's Judgments Enforceable by Execution.—For the purposes of its enforcement by execution the judgments of a justice's court is given the same effect and force as the judgments of the superior courts. Broyles v. Young, 81 N. C. 315.

§ 664. Kinds of; signed by clerk; when sealed.—There are three kinds of execution: one against the property of the judgment debtor, another against his person, and the third for the delivery of the possession of real or personal property, or such delivery with damages for withholding the same. They shall be deemed the process of the court, and shall be subscribed by the clerk, and when to run out of his county, must be sealed with the seal of his court. (Rev., s. 616; Code, s. 442; C. C. P., s. 258.)

Cross References.—As to forms of executions, see section 675; for execution against the person, see section 673 and 675.

Sealing Execution Issued to Another County.—Sealing is necessary to the validity of all executions issuing to another county; and a sheriff, by acting under an unsealed writ, does not render it valid. Seawell v. Bank, 14 N. C. 279; Finley v. Smith, 15 N. C. 95; Shackelford v. M'Rea, 10 N. C. 226; Freeman v. Lewis, 27 N. C. 91; Taylor v. Taylor, 83 N. C. 116.

Without a seal it confers no power on the sheriff, and his acting under it can not give it validity. Shackelford v. M'Rea, 10 N. C. 226; Shepherd v. Lane, 13 N. C. 148, 154.

§ 665. Against married woman.—An execution may issue against a married woman, and it must direct the levy and collection of the amount of the judgment against her from her separate property, and not otherwise. (Rev., s. 617; Code, s. 443; C. C. P., s. 259.)

Effect of the Restriction.—The provision of this section that the execution shall be levied only upon her separate property can give no effect other than to exempt what she holds ex jure mariti, i. e., her contingent right of dower. There is nothing else to which the restricton could possibly apply. Harvey v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 352, 366, 45 S. E. 644. See McLeod v. Williams, 122 N. C. 451, 30 S. E. 129, infra.

Execution on All Separate Property Except Exemptions.—Under this section execution can be levied on all the separate property owned by a married woman, with the same exceptions allowed to men or a feme sole. Harvey v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 352, 367, 45 S. E. 644.

Claiming Exemptions.—In an action on a note to charge the separate estate of a married woman, she cannot set up her personal property exemptions against the action, but may claim the same upon issuance of execution. Harvey v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 352, 45 S. E. 644.

Application of Restriction as to Property Charged with Debt.—This section does not restrict the issue of execution against "the property she had charged with the debt." The words, "her separate property," evidently mean that an execution against her cannot be collected, as formerly, out of the husband, though he is still a necessary party defendant with her. McLeod v. Williams, 122 N. C. 451, 462, 30 S. E. 129. Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820; Thrash v. Ould, 172 N. C. 730, 90 S. E. 915.

Requisites Should Appear on Record.—The mandate of this section that whenever an execution may issue against a married woman it shall direct the levy and collection of the amount of the judgment against her from her separate property, and not otherwise, presupposes that all these requisites appear of record, and that the existence of such separate property is fixed by the judgment. Dougherty v. Sprinkle, 88 N. C. 300, 304.

§ 666. Clerk to issue, in six weeks; penalty.—The clerks of the superior court shall issue executions on all judgments rendered in their respective courts, unless otherwise directed by the plaintiff, within six weeks of the rendition of the judgment, and must endorse upon the record the date of such issue. If the executions issued are not returned satisfied to the courts to which they are made returnable, the clerks must issue alias executions, within six weeks thereafter, unless otherwise instructed as aforesaid. Every clerk who fails to comply with the requirements of this section is liable to be amerced in the sum of one hundred dollars for the benefit of the party aggrieved, under the same rules that are provided by law for amercing sheriffs, and is further liable to the party injured by suit upon his bond. (Rev., s. 618; Code, s. 470; R. C., c. 45, s. 29; 1850, c. 17, ss. 1, 2, 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to issuance of execution in garnishment proceedings, see section 819.

Clerk to Issue.—The clerk of the superior court, not the judge, is the proper officer to issue execution. McKethan v. McNeill, 74 N. C. 663.

It is the duty of a clerk, as a ministerial officer of the court, to issue execution. Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142. See also, Spencer v. Hawkins, 39 N. C. 288.

A deputy clerk has power to issue execution in the name of the clerk. Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 402.

Suspension of Section by Ordinance of 1866.—In 1866 a temporary ordinance entitled "an ordinance to change the jurisdiction of the courts" forbade any execution to be issued from the spring term of 1867 without the permission of the court. This for the time being repealed the requirement making it a duty of the clerk to issue execution of his own motion within six weeks. And consequently under this ordinance the clerk was held not liable for the penalty imposed upon him in the event of his default to issue execution. Ed. Note. See Badham v. Jones, 64 N. C. 655; Richardson v. Wicken, 80 N. C. 172, 176.

But this ordinance did not relieve clerks whose liability under this section had accrued prior to the passage of the ordinance. McIntyre v. Merritt, 65 N. C. 558; nor did it apply, by its express terms, to "any debts or demands contracted or penalties incurred since the first day of May 1865." Williamson v. Kerr, 88 N. C. 11, 12.

What Constitutes "Issuing" of Execution. — When the execution is made out but not delivered to the sheriff or sent out of or issued out of the clerk's office, though the memorandum of "execution" is entered on the docket, it is not "issued" within the meaning of this section. McKeithen v. Blue, 149 N. C. 95, 62 S. E. 769.

It is settled by the decisions of the Supreme Court that a writ of execution is not issued, within the meaning of this section, until the clerk hands it to the sheriff, or to the party or his agent. The mere filing and retaining it, where it does not leave the office of the clerk is not sufficient. State v. McLeod, 50 N. C. 318, 321.

It is necessary for the issuance of an execution that it be actually or constructively delivered to the sheriff, and when it is made out, but not sent out of or issued from the clerk's office, and memorandum of "execution" is entered on the docket, it is not sufficient, under this section, and does not prevent the judgment from becoming dormant. McKeithen v. Blue, 149 N. C. 95, 62 S. E. 769.

The signature of the clerk is an absolute necessity to the validity of the writ and this is all the more so since the Legislature dispensed with the other indicium of the writ's authenticity, that is, a seal when the writ was to be executed within the county in which it issued. Shepherd v. Lane, 13 N. C. 148.

The signature of a justice is absolutely necessary to an alias, as well as to an original execution on a justice's judgment. Hence an entry of "execution renewed" without the signature of a justice, at the foot of a dormant justice's execution, gives no authority to the acts of an officer under it. Huggins v. Ketchum, 20 N. C. 550.

A writ signed by an attorney under a verbal deputation of the clerk to all the members of the bar is a nullity, and the sheriff is not liable for not acting under it Shepherd v. Lane, 13 N. C. 148.

Endorsement on Execution Docket.—The requirement to "endorse on the record the date of the issuing" means that the entry should be made on an "execution docket," and is not complied with by an entry on the execution. Bank v. Stafford, 47 N. C. 98, 100.

Option to Issue to One of Two Counties—Amercement.—An allegation that the clerk failed to issue an execution to one county when he had an option to issue to one of two counties will not justify an amercement under this section. Bank v. Stafford, 47 N. C. 98.

Liability in Damages of Clerk for Failure to Issue.—Under this section a clerk and master, who failed to issue an execution based upon a decree obtained when the defendant had become insolvent, were held liable in damages for whatever sum the plaintiff can show he has sustained by such non-feasance. McIntyre v. Merritt, 65 N. C. 558.

Payment of Fees Condition to Clerk's Liability.—This section and section 3849, providing that the clerk shall not be compelled to perform any services unless his fees be paid or tendered, must be construed together. It follows that clerks of the superior court will not incur the penalty prescribed by this section for failure to issue execution within six weeks, unless the plaintiff pays or tenders him his fees for that service. Williamson v. Kerr, 88 N. C. 11, distinguished. Bank v. Robbitt, 111 N. C. 194, 16 S. E. 169.

Penalty to Whose Benefit.—This section gives the penalty to the party aggrieved; hence the plaintiff must show himself to be the party aggrieved by the default of the clerk. Simpson v. Simpson, 63 N. C. 534, 535.

Remedy for Refusal of Clerk to Issue.—See Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142, in annotations to section 663.

Applied in Newberry v. Meadows Fertilizer Co., 206 N. C. 182, 173 S. E. 67.

§ 667. Enforcement as of course. — The party in whose favor judgment is given, and in case of his death, his personal representatives duly appointed, may at any time after the entry of judgment proceed to enforce it by execution, as provided in this article; Provided, however, that no execution upon any judgment which requires the payment of money or the recovery of personal property may be issued at any time after ten years from the date of the rendition thereof; but this proviso shall not apply to any execution issued solely for the purpose of enforcing the lien of a judgment upon any homestead, which has or shall hereafter be allotted within the ten years from the date of rendition of judgment, or any judgment directing the payment of alimony." (Rev., s. 619; Code, s. 437; C. C. P., s. 255; 1927, c. 24; 1935, c. 98.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the proviso relating to time for issuing execution on judgments. Section two of the amendatory section provides that it shall not affect the validity or force of any execution issued prior to ratification of act.

Preserving Vitality of Judgment by Successive Executions.—Where under this section the vitality of the judgment has been preserved by the issuance of executions within each successive period of three years (that being the limitation prior to 1927 amendment) after its rendition, the statutory bar of ten years which is the time prescribed for bringing actions on judgments, does not prevent an execution from being issued, and the seizure and sale of personal property thereunder, after the expiration of the limited period. Williams v. Mullis, 87 N. C. 159, 160.

§ 669. Issued from and returned to court of rendition.—Executions and other process for the enforcement of judgments can issue only from the court in which the judgment for the enforcement of the execution or other final process was rendered; and the returns of executions or other final process shall be made to the court of the county from which it issued. (Rev., s. 623; Code, s. 444; 1871-2, c. 74; 1881, c. 75.)

As to penalty for false return by sheriff, see section 3936.

Return to Another County not Authorized.—Since the passage of the act of 1870-'71, ch. 42, the clerk of the superior court of one county cannot issue a summons returnable in the superior court of another. State v. Tate, 66 N. C. 431.

May Isssue Only from Court Rendering Judgment. —Under the original code, executions might be issued from any county where the judgments had been docketed, and were returnable to the court from which they issued; but since the act of 1871-'72, Chap. 74, Sec. 1, executions shall issue only from the court in which the judgment was rendered. Hasty v. Simpson, 77 N. C. 69, 71.

§ 670. To what counties issued.—When the execution is against the property of the judgment debtor it may be issued to the sheriff of any county where the judgment is docketed. No execution may issue from the superior court of any county upon a judgment until it is docketed in that county. When it requires the delivery of real or personal property it must be issued to the sheriff of the county where the property, or some part thereof, is situated. Executions may be issued at the same time to different counties. (Rev., s. 622; Code, s. 443; C. C. P., s. 259; 1871-2, c. 74; 1881, c. 75; 1905, c. 412.)

Editor's Note.—Formerly this section did not require as a condition precedent to the issuance of the execution that the judgment be already docketed in such other county at the time the execution was issued. The execution and the transcript of judgment for docketing were allowed to be sent to such other county at the same time, and the execution was nonetheless valid. Bernhardt v. Brown, 122 N. C. 587, 592, 29 S. E. 884. This rule was changed by the insertion, in 1905, of the second sentence of the section. It was held in Cox v. Boyden, 153 N. C. 522, 69 S. E. 504, that this amendment was not retroactive and did not apply to executions issued prior to its passage.

Necessity of Docketing Judgment in Other County.—It seems that the requirement that the judgment be docketed in the other county for an execution to issue from one county to such other county is merely directory, and that where execution is issued and levied without the judgment being docketed a sale of property thereunder is valid. Lytle v. Lytle, 94 N. C. 683; Evans v. Aldridge, 133 N. C. 378, 379, 45 S. E. 772. But as between the purchaser at the execution sale, and a subsequent purchaser of the property from the defendant in execution, the latter will prevail unless the judgment upon which the execution has issued was docketed in the county where the property was situated. Rollins v. Henry, 78 N. C. 342.

Several Defendants.—A writ was issued against three defendants, two of whom were in one county and the other in another county, in which the judgment was rendered. Held, that in the absence of special instructions, the clerk might issue an execution to either county. Bank v. Stafford, 47 N. C. 98.

§ 671. Sale of land under execution.—Real property adjudged to be sold must be sold in the county where it lies, by the sheriff of the county or by a referee appointed by the court for that purpose; and thereupon the sheriff or referee must execute a conveyance to the purchaser, which conveyance shall be effectual to pass the rights and interests of the parties adjudged to be sold. (Rev., s. 622; Code, s. 443; C. C. P., s. 259.)

Cross References.—For an exhaustive treatment of the various aspects of execution sales, see 5 Enc. Dig. 942. As to provisions requiring the sheriff to execute a deed, see section 698.

Foreclosure Sales Not Affected.—The provisions of this section relative to judicial sales are intended to apply to proceedings in the nature of execution sales of property in the lands of others charged with the payment of the judgment, and have no application to foreclosure proceedings, which are left to be governed by the old equity practice. Kidder v. McIlhenny, 81 N. C. 123.

Sale by Successor in Office.—Where a fi. fa. was levied by one sheriff before his death, his successor had no authority to sell the property under a venditioni exponas, since an execution is an entire thing, and must be completed by the hand which commenced it. Sanderson v. Rogers, 14 N. C. 38.

A writ directed to the sheriff for the sale of land levied on by a sheriff who had gone out of office will not authorize a sale of land by the late sheriff. Tarkinton v. Alexander, 19 N. C. 87.

Where a sheriff has levied on lands and goods, and gone out of office, a general venditioni may issue to the new sheriff, where the goods have been delivered over to him. Tarkinton v. Alexander, 19 N. C. 87, explaining and reconciling the cases of Holliday v. Eastwood, 12 N. C. 157, and Sanderson v. Rogers, 14 N. C. 38, with those of Barden v. M'Kinne, 11 N. C. 279, and Seawell v. Bank, 14 N. C. 279, and offending them all.

Upset Bid—Setting Aside Sale.—An execution sale, when closed, is not subject to an upset bid—§§ 688, 2591 and 3243 not being applicable—and, when regularly made, such sale is not to be set aside, except for some trick, artifice, fraud, oppression or undue advantage, which must be alleged and proved, with each case to be judged by its own facts. Weir v. Weir, 196 N. C. 268, 269, 145 S. E. 281.

§ 672. When dated and returnable.—Executions shall be dated as of the day on which they were issued, and shall be returnable to the court from which they were issued not less than forty nor more than ninety days from said date, and no executions against property shall issue until the end of the term during which the judgment was rendered. (Rev., s. 624; Code, s. 449; 1903, c. 544; 1870-1, c. 42, s. 7; 1873-4, c. 7; 1927, c. 110; 1931, c. 172.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1927, (Pub. Laws, ch. 110) materially changed the provisions of this section. Formerly, in lieu of the present provision relative to the dating of the execution, the section had provided for the attestation thereof as of the term next before the day on which it was issued. Then the execution was returnable to the next term of the court beginning not less than forty days after the issuance thereof.

The amendment of 1931 substituted ninety days for sixty days in this section as formerly amended, and inserted the words "to the court from which they were issued" in the third and fourth lines.

Computation of First and Last Day.—In computing the number of days within which the writ of execution must be returned, the day of the issuance of execution must be included and the day of its return must be excluded. This is by analogy to the rule applied to the return of a process. Taylor v. Harris, 82 N. C. 25.

Attestation and Dating Directory.—This section which formerly required the attestation of the execution is merely directory, and the omission of such attestation does not vitiate the process. Bryan v. Hubbs, 69 N. C. 423; Williams v. Weaver, 94 N. C. 134, 135. This rule would now be equally applicable to the provision requiring the dating of the execution. Ed. Note.

The Return Day Formerly.—Formerly, when the section required that the execution be returned to the next term of the court, it was held that the sheriff was not compelled to make his return of an execution on the first day of the term, though it was more regular, and for many reasons desirable that he should do so, and that it was sufficient if he makes the return during the term, unless ruled to make it on an earlier day of the term. Boyd v. Teague, 111 N. C. 246, 247, 16 S. E. 338.

§ 673. Against the person.—If the action is one in which the defendant might have been arrested, an execution against the person of the judgment debtor may be issued to any county within the state, after the return of an execution against his property wholly or partly unsatisfied. But no execution shall issue against the person of a judgment debtor, unless an order of arrest has been served, as provided in the article Arrest and Bail, or unless the complaint contains a statement of facts showing one or more of the causes of arrest required by law, whether such statement of facts is necessary to the cause of action or not. (Rev., s. 625; Code, s. 447; 1891, c. 541, s. 2; C. C. P., s. 260.)

Cross References.—As to provisional remedies by arrest and bail, see section 767 et seq. For Digest treatment of this subject, see 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 1005.

General Doctrine.—Where the complaint alleges a cause of arrest, whether the same be necessary to the cause of action or not, an execution against the person of the debtor may issue upon a finding of the cause, after an unsatisfied execution under a judgment against his property has been returned. Ledford v. Emerson, 143 N. C. 527, 55 S. E. 969, cited and applied. Turlington v. Aman, 163 N. C. 555, 79 S. E. 1102.

Three Classes of Cases Contemplated.—This section providing for execution against the person of the defendant, taken in connection with section 769, contemplates three classes of cases: (1) Where the cause of arrest is not set forth in the complaint; (2) where the cause is set forth in the complaint, but only collateral and extrinsic to the plaintiff's cause of action; (3) where the cause set forth in the complaint is essential to the plaintiff's claim. State v. Foote, 83 N. C. 102.

Same—The First Class.—In cases within the first class, the defendant can only be arrested by an order founded upon a sufficient affidavit setting forth the sources of information, when it is based upon information and belief. And in such cases no execution can be issued against the person without such order previously had and served. State v. Foote, 83 N. C. 102.

Same—The Second Class.—In cases of the second class, the statement of the cause of arrest in the complaint will answer in place of an affidavit, but the statement must be as explicit as if set forth in an affidavit and properly verified. In such cases there must be an order of arrest before execution against the person of the debtor. State v. Foote, 83 N. C. 102.

Same—The Third Class.—In the last class of cases, where the facts stated in the complaint as causes of arrest are essential to or constitute plaintiff's cause of action, no affidavit for the order of arrest is needed, and no such order is required before execution may be issued against the person of the defendant, provided the complaint has been duly verified. But a verification on information and belief will not answer, unless it gives the sources of information, etc. State v. Foote, 83 N. C. 102.

Upon Docketed Judgment of Justice. — An execution against the person can only issue upon a docketed judgment of a justice of the peace when it is authorized by this section, or when it appears to the clerk that the defendant had been arrested before judgment. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479, 481.

Necessity of Recovery of Judgment.—No execution can issue against the person of the defendant, even though the complaint alleges facts to justify an arrest, unless the plaintiff has recovered a judgment against the defendant. Thus in Stewart v. Bryan, 121 N. C. 46, 50, the court expounding this doctrine, said: It will not do to carry the doctrine of Peebles v. Foote, under this section, to the extent contended for in the argument for plaintiff—that, because there is an allegation in the complaint, this fact entitles the plaintiff to an execution against the body of the defendant, whether the plaintiff recovered a judgment against the defendant or not. To sustain this position would be in effect to nullify the constitution.

Two Alternative Conditions Prerequisite.—There are two alternative essential conditions upon which depends the issuance of an execution against the person of the defendant. They are: (a) a lawful arrest before judgment, or (b) a complaint averring such facts as would have justified an order for an arrest. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 36, 39.

Facts Must Enter into Judgment.—An execution against the person can issue only when the facts alleged entitling the plaintiff thereto have been passed upon and entered into the judgment. Doyle v. Bush, 171 N. C. 10, 86 S. E. 165.

Facts Pleaded and Proved and Issue Determined.—In order to issue an execution against the person of the defendant in cases where it is permissible, the cause of arrest must be pleaded and proved, the issue affirmatively determined by the jury and judgment rendered. Turlington v. Aman, 163 N. C. 555, 79 S. E. 1102.

In the Absence of Order for Arrest, or Complaint.—Where there is no order of arrest before judgment nor any complaint filed averring such facts as would have justified such order, a defendant cannot be arrested after judgment under an execution against the person under this section. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 36.

It is the duty of the clerk of the court, upon the application of the plaintiff, to issue, in proper cases, the execution against the person of the defendant. Kinney v. Laughenour, 97 N. C. 325, 2 S. E. 43.

Motion before the Clerk—Appeal to Superior Court.—Where a personal execution against a debtor is allowed by the statute, it must be by motion before the clerk after an unsatisfied return of the execution against his property, and from any adverse ruling his decision is subject to review on appeal to the superior court; and if a judgment in the superior court may permit an execution against the person of the debtor, should the execution against his property thereafter be returned unsatisfied, the court is not required to order in the judgment that execution issue against the person of the debtor in anticipation of such a return on the execution. Turlington v. Aman, 163 N. C. 555, 79 S. E. 1102.

Execution for Conversion.—Under this section and section 727, subsec. 1, providing that a defendant may be arrested when the action is for wrongfully taking, detaining or converting personal property, where the defendant, cotenant of a race horse, converted it by selling the horse while in his (defendant's) possession, such defendant was subject to execution against the person. Doyle v. Bush, 171 N. C. 10, 86 S. E. 165.

For Injury Committed to Plaintiff's Person—Stay of Execution.—Where judgment was rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction against the defendant in a certain sum for an injury committed to the person of the plaintiff who appealed without giving bond to stay execution, it was held, (1) upon the return of execution against defendant's property unsatisfied an execution upon the person may issue; (2) filing an inventory of his property, etc., will not exempt the defendant from arrest; (3) the execution can only be stayed by giving a bond securing the judgment. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 72 S. E. 207.

Injury Wilfully Inflicted.—Where the pleadings, evidence, and verdict are that an injury was wilfully inflicted, an order for execution against the person of the defendant upon the return of execution against his property unsatisfied is proper under this section and § 768. Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

Allegations and evidence tending to show that the defendant, while drunk, drove his automobile on the wrong side of a street of a city where traffic was heavy at a rate of forty-five or fifty miles an hour, under circumstances which should have convinced him, as a man of ordinary prudence, that he incurred the risk of imminent peril to human life, and that the plaintiff was injured thereby: Held, sufficient to sustain the jury's verdict that the injury was inflicted wilfully and wantonly, and an order for execution against the person of defendant upon return of execution against his property unsatisfied was proper under such sections. Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

Liability in Damages for Malicious Prosecution.—Where a trial court of competent jurisdiction has regularly determined that the plaintiff in the action had the right to arrest the defendant on personal execution, and accordingly the defendant has been taken into custody under this section the plaintiff in said action is not liable in damages in defendant's subsequent action for malicious prosecution, though the verdict and finding of the jury or finding for plaintiff in the former suit is thereafter set aside or reversed on appeal or other ruling in the orderly progress of the cause. Overton v. Combs, 182 N. C. 4, 108 S. E.. 357.

Discharge of Person Under Execution.—The person arrested may be discharged, after judgment and without payment, only by surrendering all of his property in excess of $50. Fertilizer Co. v. Grubbs, 114 N. C. 470. The effect of an execution against the person of the judgment debtor, therefore, is to deprive the defendant in the execution of his homestead exemption and of any personal property exemption over and above $50.

Allegation and Proof.—Where plaintiff suggests fraud in defendant's affidavit of insolvency he must sufficiently allege and prove fraud or proceeding will be dismissed. Hayes v. Lancaster, 202 N. C. 515, 163 S. E. 602.

Cited in Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 148 S. E. 36.

§ 674. Defendant dying in execution; new execution against property.—Parties at whose suit the body of a person is taken in execution for a judgment recovered, their executors or administrators, may, after the death of the person so taken and dying in execution, have new execution, against the property of the person deceased, as they might have had if that person had never been in execution. (Rev., s. 626;

Code, s. 469; R. C., c. 45, s. 28; 21 James I, s. 24.)

Editor's Note.—The last phrase of this section which reads "they might have had if that person had never been in execution" seems to conflict with the well established rule that after the death of a person no execution can be issued againt his property upon a judgment recovered in the lifetime of the deceased and that the creditor must collect his judgment in the due course of administration.

§ 675. Form of execution.—The execution must be directed to the sheriff, or coroner when the sheriff is a party or interested, subscribed by the clerk of the court, and must intelligibly refer to the judgment, stating the county where the judgment roll or transcript is filed, the names of the parties, the amount of the judgment, if it is for money, the amount actually due thereon, and the time of docketing in the county to which the execution is issued, and shall require the officer substantially as follows:

Reference.—As to subscribing and sealing the execution by the clerk, see section 664 and annotations thereto.

1. Against property—no lien on personal property until levy.—If it is against the property of the judgment debtor, it shall require the officer to satisfy the judgment out of his personal property; and if sufficient personal property cannot be found, out of the real property belonging to him on the day when the judgment was docketed in the county, or at any time thereafter; but no execution against the property of a judgment debtor is a lien on his personal property, as against any bona fide purchaser from him for value, or as against any other execution, except from the levy thereof.

Refusal to Produce Personalty Warrants Sale of Realty.—The provision requiring that the officer satisfy the judgment first out of the personalty, is solely for the debtor's benefit, and if he refuses to produce his personalty his lands may be sold. McCoy v. Beard, 9 N. C. 377, 379.

Lien as of What Time against Purchasers.—Under this section the lien of execution against the personal property of the defendant, as against bona fide purchasers, does not date from the date of such execution, but from the time of levy thereunder. Weinsenfield v. McLean, 96 N. C. 248, 2 S. E. 56.

The lien of an execution against the realty dates from the time of the rendition of judgment, provided it is docketed. See section 614.

Sale of Realty Without Levy.—A sale of real estate under an execution issued on a judgment, which is a lien thereon, is valid without a levy. All that is essential to a valid sale of real estate under execution is that the requirements of the law be observed and that it be fully made known at the sale what property is being sold. Farrior v. Houston, 100 N. C. 369, 6 S. E. 72.

2. Against property in hands of personal representative.—If it is against real or personal property in the hands of personal representatives, heirs, devisees, legatees, tenants of real property or trustees it shall require the officer to satisfy the judgment out of such property.

3. Against the person.—If it is against the person of the judgment debtor, it shall require the officer to arrest him, and commit him to the jail of the county until he pays the judgment or is discharged according to law.

See the preceding two sections.

When Irregular.—An execution is irregular if it does not run in the name of the state and convey its authority to the officers to arrest the defendant. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 36.

Should Command the Sheriff.—Executions issued under this section should command the sheriff to arrest the defendant and commit him to the jail of the county from which it issued, until he shall pay the judgment or be discharged according to law. Kinney v. Laughenour, 97 N. C. 325, 2 S. E. 43.

4. For delivery of specific property.—If it is for the delivery of the possession of real or personal property, it shall require the officer to deliver the possession of the same, particularly describing it, to the party entitled thereto, and may at the same time require the officer to satisfy any costs, damages, rents, or profits recovered by the same judgment, out of the personal property of the party against whom it was rendered, and the value of the property for which the judgment was recovered, to be specified therein, if a delivery cannot be had; and if sufficient personal property cannot be found, then out of the real property belonging to him on the day when the judgment was docketed, or at any time thereafter, and in that respect is deemed an execution against property.

5. For purchase money of land.—If the answer in an action for recovery of a debt contracted for the purchase of land does not deny, or if the jury finds, that the debt was so contracted, it is the duty of the court to have embodied in the judgment that the debt sued on was contracted for the purchase money of the land, describing it briefly; and it is also the duty of the clerk to set forth in the execution that the said debt was contracted for the purchase of the land, the description of which must be set out briefly as in the complaint. (Rev., s. 627; Code, ss. 234-236, 448; C. C. P., s. 261; 1868-9, c. 148; 1879, c. 217.)

Recital in Judgment Conclusive.—If the judgment of the court recites the fact that the debt was contracted for the purchase of land, as prescribed by this clause of this section, such recital is conclusive as between the parties to the record. Durham v. Wilson, 104 N. C. 595, 10 S. E. 683.

Reason of Recital as to Homestead Interest.—The homestead interest of a defendant is subject to execution issued upon a judgment recovered for the purchase money of the land sold. Toms v. Fite, 93 N. C. 274. Hence the requirement that it shall be set forth in the judgment and execution that the debt sued on was contracted for the purchase money of land, so that the sheriff may sell the land without regard to the homestead. Id.

Same—Sale Not Void.—Land purchased but not yet paid for is not exempt from execution as a homestead under a judgment for the purchase money of such land. And the execution sale under which it is sold is valid even though there was no evidence of record that the judgment was for the purchase money of the land. Durham v. Bostick, 72 N. C. 353.

§ 676. Variance between judgment and execution.—When property has been sold by an officer by virtue of an execution or other process commanding sale, no variance between the execution and the judgment whereon it was issued, in the sum due, in the manner in which it is due, or in the time when it is due, invalidates or affects the title of the purchaser of such property. (Rev., s. 628; Code, s. 1347; R. C., c. 44, s. 13; 1848, c. 53.)

Liberal Construction.—This section is to be liberally construed. Wilson v. Taylor, 98 N. C. 275, 280, 3 S. E. 492.

Execution for Less Amount than Judgment.—The fact that the execution varied from the judgment in being for a less amount is expressly cured by this section. Maynard v. Moore, 76 N. C. 158, 161.

Execution for Larger Amount than Judgment.—In the case of Hinton v. Roach, 95 N. C. 106, 110, the docket showed a judgment in favor of Hinton against Roach for $28; while the execution recited also other judgments and called for a larger sum than $28. It was held that the irregularity was cured by this section.

Technical Variance Immaterial.—Where a judgment was rendered against H for $182.20 and against other defendants, separately mentioned, for various amounts and an execution was issued reciting only the judgment against H for $182.20, and commanding the sheriff to satisfy it out of H's property, it was held, that the execution sufficiently conformed to the judgment and the variance was technical and immaterial. Marshburn v. Lashlie, 122 N. C. 237, 29 S. E. 371.

§ 677. Property liable to sale under execution.—The property of the judgment debtor, not exempted from sale under the constitution and laws of this state, may be levied on and sold under execution as hereinafter prescribed:

Common Law, and Historical Legislation.—For an excellent exposition of the historical development of legislation by which the lands of debtors became subject to execution, thus changing the common law rule, see Jones v. Edmonds, 7 N. C. 43, 45.

Public Property and Institutions.—Property held for necessary public uses and purposes, such as court-houses, jails, schoolhouses, etc., can not be sold under execution. Morganton Hardware Co. v. Morganton Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 66 S. E. 583; Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. C. 142; Vaughan v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 636, 24 S. E. 425.

Life Estate.—Where a life estate is devised to the testator's son and changed by codicil to appoint a trustee to hold the title and to give him the full rights of enjoyment of a life tenant in the event a creditor should bring action against him for a debt: Held, the condition upon which the title is to be held in trust is void and his title as tenant for life will continue for the duration of his life, and under this section may be sold under execution on a judgment against him. Mizell v. Bazemore, 194 N. C. 324, 139 S. E. 453.

Vested Remainders.—The vested remainder of a devisee in lands is subject to sale under execution during the term of the life tenant. Ellwood v. Plummer, 78 N. C. 392; Bristol v. Hallyburton, 93 N. C. 384.

Contingent remainders are not subject to execution while they remain contingent. Watson v. Dodd, 68 N. C. 528, affirmed in S. C., 72 N. C. 240. See also, Watson v. Watson, 86 N. C. 400; Bristol v. Hallyburton, 93 N. C. 384.

Reversions.—A reversion in fee is liable to be taken and sold under execution. Murrell v. Roberts, 33 N. C. 424.

Standing matured crops are subject to execution. Shannon v. Jones, 34 N. C. 206. See last paragraph of this section.

2. All leasehold estates of three years duration or more, owned by him.

3. Equitable and legal rights of redemption in personal and real property pledged or mortgaged by him. But when the equity of redemption in personal property is sold under execution, notice of the time and place of said sale shall be given the mortgagee.

At common law an equity of redemption in land was not subject to levy and sale under execution, and was first made so in this State by Acts of 1812, ch. 4, section 2, and this was true also as to the trusts mentioned in Acts of 1812, ch. 4, sec. 1, which changed the law in this respect (see subsection 4). Rowland Hardware, etc., Co. v. Lewis, 173 N. C. 290, 296, 92 S. E. 13.

General Doctrine. — An equity of redemption whether created by a mortgage deed made to the creditor or to the third person, with or without power of sale, may be sold under execution according to this subsection. Mayo v. Staton, 137 N. C. 670, 50 S. E. 331. Whiteside v. Wlliams, 22 N. C. 153.

Mortgagee Subjecting Mortgagor's Equity of Redemption.—A sale of the equity of redemption under an execution at law, at the instance of the mortgagee, for his mortgage debt, is not sanctioned by this section. The words of the section are general, but this exception arises necessarily out of the subject and the spirit of the act. Camp v. Coxe, 18 N. C. 52, in which Ruffin, C. J. points out with great clearness the reasons upon which this exception to this section is based. McPeters v. English, 141 N. C. 491, 494, 54 S. E. 417.

The interest of a vendee, who holds a bond for the title to land, cannot be subjected to sale under execution upon a judgment rendered for the purchase money. McPeters v. English, 141 N. C. 491, 54 S. E. 417.

Interest of Cestui Que Trust.—Under this subsection and the one immediately following an execution will not lie against the interest of a cestui que trust in real property held by trustee in active trust. Patrick v. Beatty, 202 N. C. 454, 163 S. E. 572.

Rule Prior to Statute.—In Allison v. Gregory & Sons, 5 N. C. 333 the court held that an equity of redemption in real property was not liable to be sold on execution. This was prior to the act of 1812.

4. Real property or goods and chattels of which any person is seized or possessed in trust for him.

But no execution shall be levied on growing crops until they are matured. (Rev., ss. 629, 632; Code, ss. 450, 453; R. C., c. 45, ss. 1-5, 11; 5 Geo. II, c. 7, s. 4; 1777, c. 115, s. 29; 1812, c. 830, ss. 1, 2; 1822, c. 1172; 1844, c. 35; 1919, c. 30.)

At Common Law.—An equitable right in land can not be levied upon and sold under an execution at common law. Payne v. Hubbard, 4 N. C. 195.

Must Be Equitable Estate and Not Mere Right.—By this section an equitable estate but not a mere right is subject to execution. Nelson v. Hughes, 55 N. C. 33. But see Deaton v. Gaines, 4 N. C. 424.

"A right" to have one declared a trustee is not subject to execution. Nelson v. Hughes, 55 N. C. 33.

Purpose of Subsection—Did not Change Nature of Trusts.—This subsection did not mean to change the nature of trusts, the relation between the trustee and cestui que trust, or the rights of the latter against the former. The sole purpose of it was to render the interest of the cestui que trust liable at law, as it was before in equity, for the debts of the cestui que trust in certain cases by transferring by a sale on execution against the cestui que trust the legal estate of the trustee, as well as the trust estate of the debtor. Rowland Hardware, etc., Co. v. Lewis, 173 N. C. 290, 297, 92 S. E. 13.

Nature of Trustees Interest as Affecting Salability under Execution.—When land is conveyed to a trustee upon a declaration of trust (and there is no clause of defeasance in the deed) to sell for the payment of a debt or to discharge any other duty, in which persons other than the judgment debtor have an interest, or when for any other reason the judgment debtor may not call for an immediate transfer of the legal title, the interest, estate, or right of the judgment debtor, although subject to the lien of the docketed judgment, cannot be sold under execution. The lien can be enforced only by judgment rendered in a civil action. Mayo v. Staton, 137 N. C. 670, 50 S. E. 331. In other words the subsection does not apply when the trustee holds under a mixed trust, as where the instrument is existent and the debt it secures remains unpaid; but only where the naked title is outstanding with the right of the cestui que trust to demand it as a matter of right under the Statute of Uses. Rowland Hardware, etc., Co. v. Lewis, 173 N. C. 290, 92 S. E. 13. It is a passive instead of an active trust, in which the trustee has nothing to do, or no duty to perform except to hold the legal title as already stated. It, therefore, excludes an equity of redemption, and a contract to convey land, where anything remains due upon the debt, because the trust is a mixed one in these cases, as the mortgagee in the one case and the vendor in the other holds in trust for the purpose of securing the money due, but when this is paid he holds nothing but the naked legal title. Rowland Hardware, etc., Co. v. Lewis, 173 N. C. 290, 296, 92 S. E. 13.

Residue of Property Conveyed in Trust for Payment of Debt.—Where real estate is conveyed in trust for the payment of certain debts of the grantor, the interest of the grantor, after the payment of such debts, is subject to sale under execution against him. Harrison v. Battle, 16 N. C. 537. Pool v. Glover, 24 N. C. 129, Harrison v. Battle, 16 N. C. 537.

Prior to 1884 and at Common Law, growing crops were the subject of levy and sale under execution as personal property, but now under this section, they are not subject to levy till matured. Kesler v. Cornelison, 98 N. C. 383, 385, 3 S. E. 839. Shannon v. Jones, 34 N. C. 206.

§ 678. Sale of trust estates; purchaser's title.—Upon the sale under execution of trust estates whereof the judgment debtor is beneficiary the sheriff shall execute a deed to the purchaser, and the purchaser thereof shall hold and enjoy the same freed and discharged from all encum-brances of the trustee. (Rev., s. 630; Code, s. 452; R. C., c. 45, s. 4; 1812, c. 830.)

Application to Certain Trusts Only.—This section, as has been repeatedly decided, comprehends those cases only where the whole beneficial estate is in the debtor, and nothing remains in the trustee but a naked legal estate. Deaver v. Parker, 37 N. C. 40, 45. See also, Mayo v. Staton, 137 N. C. 670, 50 S. E. 331.

§ 679. Sheriff's deed on sale of equity of redemption.—The sheriff selling equitable and legal rights of redemption shall set forth in the deed to the purchaser thereof that the said estates were under mortgage at the time of judgment, or levy in the case of personal property and sale. (Rev., s. 631; Code, s. 451; R. C., c. 45, s. 5; 1812, c. 830, s. 2; 1822, c. 1172.)

Provisions Not Mandatory.—The provisions of this section are not mandatory. Mayo v. Staton, 137 N. C. 670, 50 S. E. 331.

§ 680. Forthcoming bond for personal property.—If a sheriff or other officer who has levied an execution or other process upon personal property permits it to remain with the possessor, the officer may take a bond, attested by a credible witness, for the forthcoming thereof to answer the execution or process; but the officer remains, nevertheless, in all respects liable as heretofore to the plaintiff's claim. (Rev., 633; Code, 463; R. C., c. 45, s. 21; 1807, c. 731, s. 3; 1828, c. 12, s. 2.)

Definition.—A forthcoming and delivery bond is a bond given for the security of an officer, conditioned to produce the property levied on when required. Bovier's Law Dict., Vol. 1, P. 834.

Jurisdiction.— It has been held, that a motion upon a forthcoming bond given to secure possession of property taken under an execution, will not be allowed other than in the same court from which the execution issued. Stuart v. Laird, 1 Cranch 299, 302, 2 L. Ed. 115.

Nature and Purpose.—The forthcoming bond is regarded as part of the process of execution; but it cannot be considered as a substitute for the property, as a condition requires its return to the sheriff. Amis v. Smith, 16 Pet. 303, 313, 10 L. Ed. 973; Hagan v. Lucas, 10 Pet. 400, 404, 9 L. Ed. 314.

On the giving of a forthcoming bond, the property is placed in the possession of the claimant; his custody is substituted for the custody of the sheriff, but the property is not withdrawn from the custody of the law. Hagan v. Lucas, 10 Pet. 400, 404, 9 L. Ed. 470.

So the giving of the bond does not release the lien upon the property; the property, in contemplation of law, remains in possession of the officer, and the property in the hands of the claimant, under the bond for its delivery, is as free from the reach of other process as it would be in the hands of the sheriff. Kirppendorf v. Hyde, 110 U. S. 276, 279, 25 L. Ed. 145.

The debtor is at liberty to deal with the property as his own. Brown v. Clark, 4 How. 4, 14, 11 L. Ed. 850. So a second judgment is a lien thereon, and the lien thus acquired by the second judgment is not destroyed by subsequently quashing the forthcoming bond. Id.

Failure to Deliver Property.—On failure to deliver property held under a forthcoming bond, the bond, on being returned into the clerk's office, will have the effect of a judgment. Gwin v. Breedlove, 2 How. 29, 36, 11 L. Ed. 167.

Estopped to Deny.—A person by executing a forthcoming bond thereby recognizes and is estopped to deny a claim and the validity of a judgment against him rendered upon such claim; the execution of the bond is tantamount to a confession of judgment for the demand. Sample v. Barnes, 14 How. 70, 75, 14 L. Ed. 330.

Judgment Reversed.—If the original judgment be reversed the reversal of the dependent judgment on the forthcoming bond follows of course. Bartow v. Petit, 7 Cranch 288, 3 L. Ed. 348.

The obligation of a bond for the forthcoming of property is only that the property shall be delivered to the officer at the time designated, and not that the execution shall be satisfied. Gray v. Bowls, 18 N. C. 437.

Peaceable Production, etc., of the Property.—Where a forthcoming bond is given for the delivery of property levied on by a constable, it is the duty of the obligors to put the officer in the quiet and peaceable possession of the property at the time and place specified—otherwise their bond will be forfeited. Poteet v. Bryson, 29 N. C. 337.

§ 681. Summary remedy on forthcoming bond.—If the condition of such bond be broken, the sheriff or other officer, on giving ten days previous notice in writing to any obligor therein, may on motion have judgment against him in a summary manner, before the superior court or before a justice of the peace, as the case may be, of the county in which the officer resides, for all damages which the officer has sustained, or may be adjudged liable to sustain, not exceeding the penalty of the bond, to be ascertained by a jury, under the direction of the court or justice. (Rev., 635; Code, s. 465; R. C., c. 45, s. 23; 1822, c. 1141.)

§ 682. Requirement of bond; possession and sale of property.—When the forthcoming bond is taken the officer must specify therein the property levied upon and furnish to the surety a list of the property in writing under his hand, attested by at least one credible witness, and stating therein the day of sale. The property levied upon is deemed in the custody of the surety, as the bailee of the officer. All other executions thereafter levied on this property create a lien on the same from and after the respective levies, and shall be satisfied accordingly out of the proceeds of the sale of the property; but the officer thereafter levying shall not take the property out of the custody of the surety. But in all such cases sales of chattels shall take place within thirty days after the first levy; and if sale is not made within that time any other officer who has levied upon the property may seize and sell it. (Rev., 634; Code, s. 464; R. C., c. 45, s. 22; 1844, c. 34; 1846, c. 50.)

§ 683. Entry of returns on judgment docket; penalty.—When an execution is returned, the return of the sheriff or other officer must be noted by the clerk on the judgment docket; and when it is returned wholly or partially satisfied, it is the duty of the clerk of the court to which it is returned to send a copy of such last mentioned return, under his hand, to the clerk of the superior court of each county in which such judgment is docketed, who must note such copy in his judgment docket, opposite the judgment, and file the copy with the transcript of the docket of the judgment in his office. A clerk failing to send a copy of the payments on the execution or judgment to the clerks of the superior court of the counties wherein a transcript of the judgment has been docketed, and a clerk failing to note said payment on the judgment docket of his court, shall on motion, be fined one hundred dollars nisi, and the judgment shall be made absolute upon notice to show cause at the succeeding term of the superior court of his county. (Rev., s. 636; Code, s. 445; 1871-2, c. 74, s. 2; 1881, c. 75.)

Execution Returned Becomes Part of Record.—An execution returned into court with an entry of satisfaction endorsed, in whole or in part, extinguishes so much of the debt and becomes a part of the record in the case. Walters v. Moore, 90 N. C. 41.

§ 684. Cost of keeping livestock; officer's account.—The court or justice shall make a reasonable allowance to officers for keeping and maintaining horses, cattle, hogs, or sheep, and all other property taken into their custody under legal process, the keeping of which is chargeable to them; and this allowance may be retained by the officers out of the sales of the property, in preference to the satisfaction of the process under which the property was seized or sold. The officer must make out his account and, if required, give the debtor or his agent a copy of it, signed by his own hand, and must return the account with the execution or other process, under which the property has been seized or sold, to the justice or court to whom the excution or process is returnable, and shall swear to the correctness of the several items set forth; otherwise he shall not be permitted to retain the allowance. (Rev., ss. 637-8; Code, ss. 466-7; R. C., c. 45, ss. 25-6; 1807, c. 731.)

§ 685. Purchaser of defective title; remedy against defendant.—Where real or personal property is sold on any execution or decree, by any officer authorized to make the sale, and the sale is made legally and in good faith, and the property did not belong to the person against whose estate the execution or decree was issued, by reason of which the purchaser has been deprived of the property, or been compelled to pay damages in lieu thereof to the owner, the purchaser, his executors or administrators, may sue the person against whom such execution or decree was issued, or the person legally representing him, in a civil action, and recover such sum as he may have paid for the property, with interest from the time of payment; but the property, if personal, must be present at the sale and actually delivered to the purchaser. (Rev., s. 639; Code, s. 468; R. C., c. 45, s. 27; 1807, c. 723.)

Editor's Note.—The remedy provided by this section is available only in cases where the judgment debtor, whose property is sold under the execution, has no title at all to the property sold. If the judgment debtor has any title at all, though it be a bare legal title, the equitable title being in some other person, or a defective title, the purchaser at the execution sale acquires the title of the judgment debtor, and has no relief against such debtor in case he suffers loss by reason of a defect in the title. See Lewis v. McDowell, 88 N. C. 261, 265.

Judgment Satisfied — Purchaser's Remedy against Execution Debtor.—The judgment of an execution creditor, purchasing at the execution sale property which did not belong to the judgment debtor and which is recovered from him by its own real owner, is nonetheless satisfied, and the remedy of the creditor is under this section not upon the judgment, but against the judgment debtor for reimbursement. Halcombe v. Loudermilk, 48 N. C. 491, 493; Wall v. Fairley, 77 N. C. 105.

Tantamount to Implied Warranty of Title.—This section authorizes a remedy upon an implied warranty of title to property sold under execution as belonging to a debtor, and whose debt has been thereby discharged or reduced against such debtor, and authorizes a recovery of an equal amount from him for the reimbursement of the purchaser for such sums as he may have paid. Holliday v. McMillan, 83 N. C. 270, 271.

Nature of Claim.—The claim which a purchaser at a sheriff's sale has against the defendant in an execution, on account of lack of title, is but a simple contract debt. Laws v. Thompson, 49 N. C. 104.

Substitution or Subrogation to the Rights of Execution Creditor.—Under this section a purchaser at an execution sale will be substituted to the rights of the execution creditor, as upon a failure of title in the defendant to the thing sold, to the extent that the execution creditor has been benefited. Pemberton v. McRae, 75 N. C. 497, 504.

The substitution spoken of in this case, however, is not a technical subrogation, as to place the purchaser upon the same dignity as a lien or judgment creditor, for as soon as the execution sale takes place and the proceeds are applied to the payment of the judgment, it is satisfied and its lien subsides thereby. All that this substitution means is that the purchaser can collect from the execution debtor an amount which the execution debtor would have to pay out of his own assets to the execution creditor for the satisfaction of the judgment.—Ed. Note.

To this effect, see earlier case, Laws v. Thompson, 49 N. C. 104, 106.

§ 686. Costs on execution paid to clerk; penalty.—The sheriff or other officer must pay the costs on all executions which are satisfied in whole or in part, to the clerk of the court from which the execution issued, and to no other person, on the second day of the term of the court; and any such officer making default herein shall forfeit and pay forty dollars for the benefit of the party aggrieved, under the same rules that are provided by law for amercing sheriffs. (Rev., s. 640; Code, s. 472; R. S., c. 76, s. 5; 1822, c. 1149.)

Art. 28. Execution and Judicial Sales

§ 687. How advertised.—No real property shall be sold under execution, deed of trust, mortgage or other contracts, except as provided in the following section until notice of sale has been posted at the court-house door in the county for thirty days immediately preceding the sale, and also published once a week for four successive weeks in some newspaper published in the county, if a paper is published in the county, provided that if there be no newspaper published in said county the notice of such sale must be posted at the court-house door and three other public places in the county for thirty days immediately preceding the sale. (Rev., s. 641; Code, s. 456; 1885, cc. 38; 1905, c. 147; 1868-9, c. 237; s. 10; R. C., c. 45, s. 16; 1881, c. 278; 1909, c. 705; 1927, c. 255, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to advertisement of a sale of personal property, see section 695. As to notice and place of sale of personalty sold under mortgage or other contract, see section 2585. See also generally, 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 948.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1927 (Pub. Laws, ch. 255) introduced some changes into this section. Prior to this amendment the notice of sale was to be posted at three public places, in addition to the courthouse door, regardless of the existence in the county of a newspaper published, whereas under the section as amended the notice is to be posted at three public places in addition to the court-house door only in the event there is no newspaper published in the county.

The section as amended also provides for publication for "successive" weeks, formerly there being no requirement that the publication be successive.

Application to Mortgages, etc., under Power of Sale.—This section, which prescribes the notice of sale under mortgages and deeds of trust, has an operative force only in cases where the parties have made no provisions of their own prescribing the giving of notice of sale. But it is the accepted rule that the notice be given in strict compliance with express provisions contained in the instrument, or, in the absence of such provisions, in compliance with the terms of the statute; and, in either case, the sale must be effected in strict conformity with the notice given. Ed. Note. See Ricks v. Brooks, 179 N. C. 204, 208, 102 S. E. 207; Hogan v. Utter, 175 N. C. 332, 333, 95 S. E. 565; Eubanks v. Becton, 158 N. C. 230, 234, 73 S. E. 1009; Ferebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17; though the law prima facie presumes the regularity of mortgage sales under power of sale. Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 95 S. E. 166.

It is usual to advertise under the terms of the deed of trust or mortgage and also as required by this section. This course is commended, but is not a legal requirement. Frequently the requirements in the deed of trust or mortgage are the same as the law provides for sales of real estate under execution or judicial sale. Douglas v. Rhodes, 188 N. C. 580, 585, 125 S. E. 261. And where there is doubt as to the meaning of any terms of the instrument, it shall be given that construction which is to effectuate the provisions of this section. Ed. Note. Thus where a mortgage of lands provided that notice of the sale under the power thereof given in the conveyance shall be published in a newspaper, etc., "for a time not less than thirty days prior to the date of sale," and the language employed closely followed the provision of this section it was held, that the advertisement should be inserted in the newspaper once a week for four successive weeks, as provided by this section, and not consecutively for thirty days. Raleigh Sav. Bank, etc., Co. v. Leach, 169 N. C. 706, 86 S. E. 701.

Same—Requirements Directory Only as to Execution Sales.—The statement in Palmer v. Latham, 173 N. C. 60, 91 S. E. 525, that requirements as to advertising are directory only, was not necessary to the decision of the case as the question involved was as to the place of sale, and is in conflict with the decision in Eubanks v. Becton, 158 N. C. 230, 73 S. E. 1009, and therefore is overruled except so for as applicable to execution sales (Shaffer v. Bledsoe, 118 N. C. 279, 23 S. E. 1000). Hogan v. Utter, 175 N. C. 332, 336, 95 S. E. 565.

Same—Place of Sale.—The same considerations, with regard to the necessity, nature and method of giving notice of sale where the instrument itself prescribes that course, are applicable to the place of sale; that is, the place of sale designated in the instrument controls. Palmer v. Latham, 175 N. C. 60, 91 S. E. 525.

Application to Execution Sales—Requirements Directory.—The requirements of this section are held to be only directory. It is well settled, as a general rule, that a purchaser at an execution sale is not bound to look further than to see that he is an officer who sells, and that he is empowered to do so by an execution issued from a court of competent jurisdiction, and he is not affected by any irregularities in the conduct of the sheriff. Mordecai v. Speight, 14 N. C. 428; McEntire v. Durham, 29 N. C. 151. It follows from this, that a purchaser may as a general rule get a good title at a sheriff's sale when there has been no advertisement of the sale. Burton v. Spiers, 92 N. C. 503, 505.

But when at such sale the plaintiff in the execution, or his attorney or agent, or any other person affected with notice of such irregularity, purchases, the sale may be set aside at the instance of the defendant in the execution by a direct proceeding for that purpose. Burton v. Spiers, 92 N. C. 503.

Same—Purchaser Must be a Bona Fide Purchaser.—The general principle, that a purchaser at a judicial sale is not bound to look further than to see that the one selling is an officer and employed to do so by a valid execution, etc., does not obtain when the purchaser is one with personal knowledge of defects in the service of the summons, as appearing upon the face of the execution, and of other facts and circumstances rendering the sale irregular, if not void, for such purchaser can not be considered an innocent purchaser for value, etc. Phillips v. Hyatt, 167 N. C. 570, 83 S. E. 804.

§ 687(a). Immediate advertisement; notice of sale and resale.—When any mortgage or deed of trust on real property shall be foreclosed by judicial proceedings it may be provided in the decree of foreclosure that the advertisement of the sale shall be begun at any time after the date of the decree of foreclosure, and such real property shall then be sold under judicial foreclosure proceedings only after notice of sale has been duly posted at the courthouse door in the county for thirty days immediately preceding the sale and also published at any time during such thirty day period once a week for four successive weeks of not less than twenty-one days in some newspaper published in the county if a newspaper is published in the county, but if there is no newspaper published in said county, the notice of such sale must be posted at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county for thirty days immediately preceding the sale: Provided, however, that in case a resale of such real property shall become necessary under such judicial foreclosure proceedings, that such real property shall then be resold only after notice of resale has been duly posted at the courthouse door in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the resale and also published at any time during such fifteen day period once a week for two successive weeks of not less than seven days in some newspaper published in the county if a newspaper is published in the county, but if there be no newspaper published in said county, the notice of resale must be posted at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the resale. (1929, c. 44, s. 1; 1933, c. 96, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws 1933, c. 96, "twenty-two" was changed to "twenty-one" as it now appears in the thirteenth line of the section, and "eight" was changed to "seven" as it now appears in the seventh from the last line of the section.

§ 687(b). Minimum notice required in all sales.—In any sale of real property under execution, deed of trust, mortgage or other contracts, wherever any statute calls for publication of notice in a newspaper for four successive weeks or for two successive weeks, the duration of said period shall be not less than twenty-one days for the one period of publication and not less than seven days for the period of the other publication. (1929, c. 44, s. 2; 1933, c. 96, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 96, this section required publication for "twenty-one" days for one period and "eight" days for the other.

§ 687(c). Validation of certain sales.—All sales of real property under execution, deed of trust, mortgage or other contracts made since February 21, 1929, where the original sale was published for four successive weeks, and any re-sale published for two successive weeks shall be and the same are in all respects validated as to publication of notice: Provided, nothing in this validating section shall affect pending litigation. (1933, c. 96, s. 3.)

§ 688. Advertisement of Resale.—No real property shall be sold under execution, deed of trust mortgage or other contracts, except as provided in the following section until notice of sale has been posted at the court-house door in the county for at least fifteen days and published at least once a week for two successive weeks in some newspaper, if a paper is published in the county where the resale is made. (1913, c. 19; 1927, c. 255, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1927 radically changed the phraseology of this section, the former section being more specific in its provisions as to persons making the resale and the causes for the resale. Formerly the notice was required to recite the cause of resale, and to be posted on at least three other public places than the courthouse door, and the publication in the newspaper was not required to be successive.

Not Applicable to Execution Sale.—This section is not applicable to execution sales. Weir v. Weir, 196 N. C. 268, 269, 145 S. E. 281.

§ 689. Notice served on defendant; when on governor.—In addition to the advertisement above required, the sheriff shall in every case, at least ten days before a sale of real property under execution, serve a copy of so much of the advertisement as relates to the real property of any defendant on him personally if he is found in the county, or on his agent if he has a known agent therein, or if he cannot be found within the county and has no known agent therein, but his address is known, by mail to such address; and the date of service shall be ascertained by the usual course of the mail from the place where sent to the place of its address. In case of the sale under execution, or under the order of any court, of any real or personal property in which the state is interested as a stockholder or otherwise, notice in writing must be served upon the governor and attorney general, at least thirty days before the sale, of the time and place of sale, and under what process it is made, otherwise the sale is invalid. (Rev., s. 642; Code, s. 457; 1868-9, c. 237, s. 11; 1876-7, c. 224.)

Requirements Directory.—The requirements of section 687, that a sheriff advertise a sale under execution, and of this section, that he serve a copy upon the defendant ten days before the sale, are directory, and when not followed will not render the sale void as against a stranger without notice of the irregularity. Williams v. Dunn, 163 N. C. 206, 79 S. E. 512.

Procedure to Set Aside Sale.—The procedure to set aside a sale of lands under an execution which has not been advertised, and where notice has not been given the defendant in compliance with this section, is, as against a purchaser with notice of the irregularity, by motion in the cause, for the sale cannot be collaterally attacked. Williams v. Dunn, 163 N. C. 206, 79 S. E. 512.

Liability of Sheriff for Failure to Give Notice.—If the sheriff fails to give the notice provided by this section, he is liable in damages for any loss the defendant may have suffered through his failure to notify. Williams v. Johnson, 112 N. C. 424, 432, 17 S. E. 496.

Cited in Corporation Comm. v. Murphey, 197 N. C. 42, 47, 147 S. E. 667.

§ 690. Sale days; place of sale; ratification of prior sales.—All real property sold under execution shall be sold at the court house door of the county in which all or a part of the property is situated on the first Monday in any month or during the first three days of any term of the superior court of said county. All sales of real property sold under order of court shall be sold at the court house door in the county in which all or any part of the property is situated on any Monday in any month or during the first three days of any term of the superior court of said county, unless in the order directing such sale some other place and time are designated and then it shall be sold as directed in such order on any day except Sunday after advertising as required by law. All sales heretofore made under execution or by order of court on any day other than the first Monday in any month are hereby validated, ratified and confirmed, provided this act shall not affect pending litigation. (Rev., s. 643; Code, s. 454; 1876-7, c. 216, ss. 2, 3; 1883, c. 94, ss. 1, 2; 1931, c. 23.)

See 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 948.

Editor's Note.—Under the amendment to this section, which became effective February 11, 1931, sales under execution are to be made, as heretofore. Sales under order of court may be made on any Monday, instead of the first Monday as formerly provided. The former provision as to sales on days designated in orders of court excepted holidays as well as Sunday. The amendment also validates sales heretofore made on a day other than the first Monday except as to pending litigation. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 355.

The question whether a sale, not effected in strict compliance with the time and place at which this section requires that it should be effected, is void, so as to render the title of the purchaser invalid, has at various times given great difficulty to the court, which has resulted in conflicting decisions. Thus in Mayers v. Carter, 87 N. C. 146, it was held that an execution sale made at an improper time and place is void. For the same effect, see State v. Rivers, 27 N. C. 297. The abstract principle of law announced by these cases is that the non-observance, by the officer making the sale, of those provisions of law which are directory merely and relate to matters in pais, in the absence of notice on the part of the purchaser, will not affect the title acquired under an execution sale. Thus it is stated in the last cited case that third persons need not show affirmatively the observance on the part of the sheriff of all legal prerequisites for the sale, nor are they charged to take notice of all the irregularities. That this is the rule is plainly shown by the annotations to section 687. But we can find no case which dares to answer in definite terms the specific question whether the requirement of time and place of the sale under this section is mandatory with the necessary result of avoiding the purchasers title, or merely directory, the disregard of which will merely subject the sheriff to an action for damages. The decision reached in Mayers v. Carter, supra, tends to indicate that it is mandatory and yet the case cites with approval Brooks v. Ratcliff, 33 N. C. 321, Mordecai v. Speight, 14 N. C. 428, in which it was held that a sale made on Tuesday and Wednesday of the week will pass title, and the case of Wade v. Saunders, 70 N. C. 270, to the same effect.

If we regard Mayers v. Carter, supra, as not overruling the expressions in the early cases in favor of the view that the disregard of the sheriff of his duty under this section does not invalidate the title of the purchaser, we find at least one early case, Mordecai v. Speight, supra, whose reason appears to us to be more sound, and whose principle more just. It declares that in as much as it is a common knowledge, and the purchaser knows that the usual place for a sheriff to sell is at the court house door, if he purchases at any other place than the court-house door, the sale is void and his title invalid. But since the day designated by this section is not necessarily the only day at which sales may be made to the exclusion of other days, as for example section 692 authorizing postponement of the sale to other days for causes, if he purchases on a day other than the one designated by this section, as to him, the sale is valid and he acquires a good title, provided he has no notice of the irregularity.

Assent of Debtor Validates Sale.—The debtor may waive the benefit of the law which requires that the sale be made at a certain place and time, and assent to the sale at a place and time other than that prescribed by law, in which case the sale will be valid. Biggs & Co. v. Brickell, 68 N. C. 239; Mayers v. Carter, 87 N. C. 146, 148.

§ 690(a). Sales on other days validated. — All sales of real or personal property heretofore made by a sheriff of any county in North Carolina, in the manner provided by law for sale of real or personal property under execution, on any day other than the day now provided by law, be, and the same are hereby validated. (1933, c. 79, s. 1.)

§ 691. Sale hours.—No sale under an execution or decree shall commence before ten o'clock in the morning, or continue after four o'clock in the afternoon, of the day on which the sale is to be made, except that in towns or cities of more than five thousand inhabitants public sales of goods, wares and merchandise may be continued until ten o'clock p. m. Provided, a certain hour for such sales shall be named and the sale shall begin within one hour after the time fixed, unless postponed as provided by law, or delayed by other sales. (Rev., s. 644; Code, s. 459; R. C., c. 45, s. 17; 1794, c. 41; 1927, c. 19.)

Editor's Note.—The proviso appearing at the end of this section was added by the amendment of 1927, Pub. Laws, ch. 19.

§ 692. Postponement.—The sheriff or other person making the sale, for the absence of bidders or any other just cause, may postpone the sale from day to day, but not for more than six days in all, and upon postponement he must post a notice thereof on the courthouse door of his county. (Rev., s. 645; Code, s. 455; 1868-9, c. 237, s. 9.)

Sale on Friday upon Postponement.—A sheriff, who advertises a sale of land levied upon execution to take place on Monday, the first day of the term, as prescribed by law, which sale is postponed from day to day, has a right to sell the same on the Friday succeeding. Wade v. Saunders, 70 N. C. 270.

Strict Provisions of Law not Applicable in Case of Postponement.—The strict compliance with the terms of the mortgage and statutory provisions required to make a valid sale upon foreclosure does not apply when a postponement is had by reason of the sale being enjoined or for other reasonable purposes, for in the absence of statutory or contract provisions to the contrary, as in this State, a notice of postponement made in good faith, and reasonably calculated to give proper publicity of the time and place, is held sufficient. Ferebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17.

Application to Court Sales and Mortgage Sales.—This section, authorizing the postponement of the sale from day to day for not more than six days, is held to apply to sales by the sheriff or person acting under court decrees, and not to apply to sales under power contained in a mortgage. Ferebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17.

Sufficiency of Notice.—Under the facts of the case where a sale under a power contained in a mortgage was adjourned not less than four times, the notice of the postponement consisting of a mere memorandum at the bottom of one of the original notices was held insufficient. Ferebee v. Sawyer, 167 N. C. 199, 83 S. E. 17.

§ 693. Certain sales validated.—All sales of realty made under executions issued prior to March the fifteenth, one thousand nine hundred and one, on judgments regularly obtained in courts of competent jurisdiction, are hereby validated, whether such sales were continued from day to day or for a longer period, not exceeding ten days: Provided, that such executions and sales are in all other respects regular: Provided further, that purchasers and their assigns shall have held continuous and adverse possession under a sheriff's deed for three years: Provided further, that the rights of minors and married women shall in nowise be prejudiced hereby. (Rev., s. 646; 1901, c. 742.)

§ 694. Certain private acts repealed.—All private acts, by which lands in particular counties are required or allowed to be sold at places, or at times, other than those hereinbefore prescribed, are hereby repealed. (Rev., s. 647; Code, s. 458; 1868-9, c. 237, s. 12.)

§ 695. Advertisement as to personal property.—No sale of personal property under execution may be made until it has been advertised for ten days at the door of the courthouse of the county in which it is to be sold, and at three other public places in the county, and the advertisement must designate the place and the time of sale. (Rev., s. 648; Code, s. 460; R. C., c. 45, s. 16; 1808, c. 753; 1820, c. 1066.)

As to advertisement of sale of real property, see section 687.

Purchaser with Notice of Lack of Advertisement.—A purchaser at an execution sale of personalty, who has full knowledge of such irregularities as absence of advertisement, etc., required by this section, is not an innocent purchaser, and the rule that a purchaser at a sheriff's sale is not bound to look further than to see that he is an officer who sells, empowered to do so by a valid execution, is not applicable to his case, for the rule presupposes that the purchaser is a bona fide purchaser. Phillips v. Hyatt, 167 N. C. 570, 573, 83 S. E. 804.

§ 696. Penalty for selling contrary to law.—A sheriff or other officer who makes any sale contrary to the true intent and meaning of this article shall forfeit two hundred dollars to any person suing for it, one-half for his own use and the other half to the use of the county where the offense is committed. (Rev., s. 649; Code, s. 461; R. C., c. 45, s. 18; 1820, c. 1066, s. 2; 1822, c. 1153, s. 3.)

As to liability of sheriff's bond, see section 3930, 3940.

§ 697. Officer's return of no sale for want of bidders; penalty.—When a sheriff or other officer returns upon an execution that he has made no sale for want of bidders, he must state in his return the several places he has advertised and offered for sale the property levied on; and an officer failing to make such statement is on motion subject to a fine of forty dollars; and every constable, for a like omission of duty, is subject to a fine of ten dollars, for the use and benefit of the plaintiff in the execution; for which, on motion of the plaintiff, judgment shall be granted by the court to which, or by justice to whom, the execution shall be returned. Nothing in, nor any recovery under, this section is a bar to any action for a false return against the sheriff or other officer. (Rev., s. 650; Code, s. 462; R. C., c. 45, s. 19; 1815, c. 887.)

As to penalty for false return, see section 3936.

§ 698. Officer to prepare deed for property sold.—Sheriffs or other officers selling lands by authority of any execution or process shall, upon payment of the price, prepare, execute and deliver to the purchaser a deed for the property purchased. The purchaser of land must furnish the officer with a description of it. (Rev., s. 651; Code, s. 471; R. C., c. 45, s. 30; 1848, c. 39.)

As to execution of a deed of trust estate sold, see section 678.

A deputy clerk has power to issue executions in the name of the clerk. Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 402.

Means to Compel Sheriff.—A motion in the cause, and not a distinct action, is also the proper means of compelling the sheriff to make title to the purchaser at the execution sale. Fox v. Kline, 85 N. C. 174.

Where the purchaser is implicated in the sheriff's derelictions, he is not entitled to call for a conveyance. Skinner v. Warren, 81 N. C. 373.

Failure to Pay Purchase Money—Resale by Sheriff.—If a purchaser at sheriff's sale fails to pay his bid the sheriff may resell immediately, or he may apply for a rule of court to compel payment, or he may at his own peril as to the plaintiff indulge the purchaser. Maynard v. Moore, 76 N. C. 158, 161, citing McKee v. Lineberger, 69 N. C. 217.

But a sheriff is not obliged to resell immediately, but may give the purchaser time in which to pay the purchase money, if neither party to the execution objects or complains. Id.

Recital in Deed Prima Facie Evidence.—The recital of execution and sale in a sheriff's deed is prima facie evidence thereof. Wainwright v. Bobbitt, 127 N. C. 274, 37 S. E. 336.

Recitals in a sheriff's deed are prima facie evidence of an execution sale, notwithstanding the return upon the execution may be imperfect. The fact that there was a sale may also be proved by parol. Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 402.

Necessity of Seal.—A deed of a sheriff without a seal attached is not competent evidence in ejectment to show title, and a sheriff will not be allowed to affix his seal to a deed, having omitted it by mistake, unless such equity is set up in the complaint. Fisher v. Owens, 132 N. C. 686, 44 S. E. 369.

Art. 29. Betterments

§ 699. Petition by claimant; execution suspended; issues found.—A defendant against whom a judgment is rendered for land may, at any time before execution, present a petition to the court rendering the judgment, stating that he, or those under whom he claims, while holding the premises under a color of title believed to be good, have made permanent improvements thereon, and praying that he may be allowed for the improvements, over and above the value of the use and occupation of the land. The court may, if satisfied of the probable truth of the allegation, suspend the execution of the judgment and impanel a jury to assess the damages of the plaintiff and the allowance to the defendant for the improvements. In any such action this inquiry and assessment may be made upon the trial of the cause. (Rev., s. 652; Code, s. 473; 1871-2, c. 147.)

Cross References.—As to registration of conveyances, contracts to convey, and leases of land, see Sec. 3309; As to judgment for betterments having priority over homestead right, see annotation "Judgment for Betterments," division III, under section 728.

Editor's Note.—In Scott v. Battle, 85 N. C. 185, 192, it was held that the purchaser of lands from a feme covert, who was not privily examined, and whose husband did not join in the conveyance, was charged by implication of law with the invalidity of his title, and could not maintain a claim for betterments. This decision was based on Battle's Revisal (1873), ch. 17, sec. 262, which provides that "Where any person or those under whom he claims, while holding the premises under a title believed by him or them to be good, have made permanent improvements thereon, they may be allowed for the same over and above the value of the use and occupation of the land."

In 1883, after the decision in Scott v. Battle was published, the legislature changed the wording of the law, by the Code, sec. 473, so as to render nugatory the future effects of this decision by removing this objectionable construction of the law, with the rank injustice necessarily flowing therefrom. The Code provided, and it was carried forward as sec. 652 of the Revisal of 1905, that it would be sufficient to support the claims of such a person for betterments, if he had "held the premises under color of title believed by him to be good." Such is a provision of this section.

From the earliest period in the judicial history of North Carolina, a married woman's deed defectively executed, while a nullity as to her, has nevertheless been held to constitute good color of title. Pearse v. Owens, 3 N. C. 234; Perry v. Perry, 99 N. C. 270, 273, 6 S. E. 86; Ellington v. Ellington, 103 N. C. 54, 58, 9 S. E. 208; Smith v. Allen, 112 N. C. 223, 226, 16 S. E. 932; Greenleaf v. Bartlett, 146 N. C. 495, 60 S. E. 419. And it was expressly decided that such a deed, while not binding on the feme, is nevertheless valid as color of title, and sufficient for a claim for betterments under this section. Gann v. Spencer, 167 N. C. 429, 432, 83 S. E. 620.

Historical Observations.—The right to betterments is a doctrine that gradually grew up in the courts of equity. It was recognized that the owner of land, who recovers it, had no just and equitable claim to anything but the land itself, and a fair compensation for being kept out of possession. If it was inhanced in value by improvements, made under the belief that one was the owner, he ought not to take the increased value. It is now an established equitable principle that whenever a plaintiff seeks aid in a court of equity, against such a person, aid will be given him, only upon the terms that he shall make due compensation to such innocent person, being based upon the principle that he who seeks equity must do equity. As there are now no separate courts in which the rule can be enforced, all relief must be sought in one tribunal. The Legislature has embodied the principle in the form of law, and made it operative when land is sought to be recovered by action without regard to former distinction. Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 203; Wharton v. Moore, 84 N. C. 479; Merritt v. Scott, 81 N. C. 385; Story Eq. Jurisp., sec. 799; 2 Greenleaf Ev. sec. 549.

The civil law recognized the principle of reimbursing to the bona fide possessor the expense of his improvements if he was removed from his possession by the legal owner, by allowing him the increase in the value of the land created thereby. The betterment laws of the several states proceed upon that equitable view. Searl v. School District, No. 2, 133 U. S. 553, 561, 33 L. Ed. 740.

Constitutionality.—This section contravenes no part of the organic law, Federal or State. Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 203.

The right of recovery, where the occupant in good faith believes himself to be the owner, is declared to stand upon a principle of natural justice and equity and such laws are held not to be unconstitutional as impairing vested rights, since they adjust the equities of the parties as nearly as possible according to natural justice. Searl v. School District, No. 2, 133 U. S. 553, 561, 33 L. Ed. 740.

Claim Can Be Made Only after Judgment.—A claim for betterments, under this section, cannot be set up on the trial to resist the plaintiff's recovery, but by petition filed after a judgment declaring the plaintiff the owner of the land. Wood v. Tinsley, 138 N. C. 507, 515, 51 S. E. 59. See also Rumbough v. Young, 119 N. C. 567, 26 S. E. 143.

Sheriff's Return of Writ as Execution.—The sheriff's return of a writ of possession with the endorsement thereon is an execution of the judgment as contemplated by the section, notwithstanding the fact that the judgment is not satisfied. Boyer v. Garner, 116 N. C. 125, 130, 21 S. E. 180.

Color of Title.—Under this section one making permanent improvements on lands he holds under color of title, reasonably believed by him, in good faith, to be good, though with knowledge of an adverse claim, is entitled to recover for betterments in an action by the true owner to recover the lands. Pritchard v. Williams, 176 N. C. 108, 96 S. E. 733. See the discussion under the Editor's note, supra.

Same—Parol Contract to Convey.—A vendor in possession, who repudiates a parol contract to convey land, is liable to the vendee for the value of the improvements. Baker v. Carson, 16 N. C. 381; Albea v. Griffin, 22 N. C. 9; Hedgepeth v. Rose, 95 N. C. 41; Luton v. Badham, 127 N. C. 96, 37 S. E. 143.

The vendor, in a parol contract to convey land, will not be permitted to evict a vendee who has entered and made improvements, until the latter has been repaid the purchase money and compensated for betterments. Vann v. Newsom, 110 N. C. 122, 14 S. E. 519.

One who was induced to enter on and improve land by a parol promise that it shall be settled on him as an advancement or gratuity will not be evicted until compensation has been made for improvements which he has erected on the property. Hedgepeth v. Rose, 95 N. C. 41.

Same—Fraudulent Misrepresentations.—Where, a fraudulent misrepresentations as to area by the vendor, a vendee is induced to purchase land, on a rescission of the contract he is entitled to reimbursements for improvements put on the land. Hill v. Brower, 76 N. C. 124.

Same—Unregistered Deed.—One who has improved land held by him under an unregistered deed is not entitled to the value of the betterments as against judgment creditors of his grantor. Eaton v. Dorib, 190 N. C. 14, 23, 128 S. E. 494, 499.

Same—Notice Required.—Notice sufficient to bar the right to compensation is not a constructive notice, or such a notice as the petitioner might have acquired by a diligent scrutiny of the title, but such facts and circumstances as might reasonably suggest to the ordinary citizen serious defects in his own title. Carolina Cent. R. Co. v. McCaskill, 98 N. C. 526, 4 S. E. 468.

Where the title to the land was in a feme covert who married in 1846, when under age, and she and her husband executed a bond to convey the land after she became of age to a party from whom the defendant derived title by mesne conveyances, which bond was never registered, and the defendant had no actual notice of any defect in his title, which he believed to be good, the doctrine of constructive notice from registration did not apply to such party, and he is entitled to compensation under the section for permanent improvements made by him on the land. Justice v. Baxter, 93 N. C. 405.

Same—Reasonable Belief.—The petitioner must show not only an honest and bona fide belief in his title, but he must satisfy the jury, also, that he had good reason for such belief. Pritchard v. Williams, 176 N. C. 108, 109, 96 S. E. 733.

One holding under a tenant for life, making substantial and permanent improvements on the lands, under facts and circumstances affording him a well grounded and reasonable belief that he had by his deed acquired the fee, is entitled to recover for the betterments he has thus made. Harriett v. Harriett, 181 N. C. 75, 106 S. E. 221.

Court Must Be Satisfied of Probable Truth.—The trial court must be satisfied of the probable truth of the allegations in a petition for betterments before it is required that the courts impanel a jury to ascertain the value of the betterments. Hallyburton v. Slagle, 132 N. C. 957, 44 S. E. 659.

One purchasing land at a sale by his own assignee in bankruptcy, with the fraudulent purpose of defeating the rights of his wife and children under a prior deed which he had made to them with intent to defraud his creditors, is not a bona fide holder of the premises under a color of title believed by him to be good, and is therefore not entitled to the value of improvements placed thereon by him. Hallyburton v. Slagle, 132 N. C. 957, 44 S. E. 659.

Same—Evidence.—A defendant in possession of land under the belief that he has a good title, has the right to show in evidence in an action to recover the land, that he has in good faith made permanent improvements after his estate had expired and their value to the extent of the rents and profits claimed by the plaintiff. Merritt v. Scott, 81 N. C. 385, 389.

Either Party Entitled to Jury Assessment.—Either party is entitled to have the issue as to the value of betterments assessed by the jury, if they so desire. Fortesque v. Crawford, 105 N. C. 29, 10 S. E. 910.

Not Applicable to Tenants in Common.—The section does not apply to tenants in common. Pope v. Whitehead, 68 N. C. 191, 198.

But while this and the following sections of this article do not apply to tenants in common or mortgagors and mortgagees, yet upon equitable principles a tenant in common placing improvements upon the property is entitled to have the part so improved alloted to him in partition and its value assessed as if no improvements had been made if this can be done without prejudice to the interests of his cotenants, but this equitable principle does not apply as between mortgagor and mortgagee. Layton v. Byrd, 198 N. C. 466, 152 S. E. 161.

§ 700. Annual value of land and waste charged against defendant.—The jury, in assessing the damages, shall estimate against the defendant the clear annual value of the premises during the time he was in possession, exclusive of the use of the improvements thereon made by himself or those under whom he claims, and also the damages for waste or other injury to the premises committed by the defendant. The defendant is not liable for the annual value or for damages for waste or other injury for any longer time than three years before the suit, unless he claims for improvements. (Rev., ss. 653-4; Code, ss. 474-5; 1871-2, c. 147, ss. 2-3.)

Three Year Limitation Inapplicable.—Where one in possession of lands is entitled to recover, against the true owner, for betterments he has placed thereon, he will be charged with the use and occupation of the land, without regard to the three-year statute of limitation. Pritchard v. Williams, 176 N. C. 108, 109, 96 S. E. 733; Whitfield v. Boyd, 158 N. C. 451, 453, 74 S. E. 452.

But this is because generally the owner of the land at the time of its recovery also owns the rents, and the law gives to each what belongs to him, it awards to the owner the land and his rents, and to the occupant the value of his improvements. Harriett v. Harriett, 181 N. C. 75, 78, 106 S. E. 221.

When Remaindermen May Not Recover.—When one holding under a tenant for life by deed apparently conveying the lands in fee after her death, is entitled to betterments, and he or the life tenant has received the rents and profits until that time, the remaindermen, after the death of the tenant for life, are not entitled to and may not recover such rents and profits, or have them credited on the value of the betterments, the ordinary rule to the contrary being inapplicable. Harriett v. Harriett, 181 N. C. 75, 106 S. E. 221.

§ 701. Value of improvements estimated.—If the jury is satisfied that the defendant, or those under whom he claims, made on the premises, at a time when there was reason to believe the title good under which he or they were holding the premises, permanent and valuable improvements, they shall estimate in his favor the value of the improvements made before notice, in writing, of the title under which the plaintiff claims, not exceeding the amount actually expended in making them and not exceeding the amount to which the value of the premises is actually increased thereby at the time of the assessment. (Rev., s. 655; Code, s. 476; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 4.)

Cross References.—As to bona fide belief as to title, see sec. 699, and annotations thereto. As to color of title, see Editor's Note under sec. 699; As to color of title, see Editor's Note under sec. 699; As to notice which bars right, see annotations under 699.

Value of Property Permanently Enhanced.—The sole matter for consideration is embraced in one proposition, and that is, "how much was the value of the property permanently enhanced, estimated as of the time of the recovery of the same, by the betterments put thereon by the labor and expenditure of the bona fide holder of the same?" Pritchard v. Williams, 181 N. C. 46, 50, 106 S. E. 144.

Same—Fact for the Jury to Find.—It is a matter of fact for the jury, rather than one of law, to estimate upon the evidence whether improvements have added permanent enhanced value to the realty. Pritchard v. Williams, 181 N. C. 46, 49, 106 S. E. 144.

If unsuitable improvements are put upon the premises, no matter what the cost, the jury can find that it was no enhancement to the property thereby, so if the improvements were unnecessary or injudiciously made, the jury would consider the same. But it is not essential that they be useful to the plaintiff. Pritchard v. Williams, 181 N. C. 46, 50, 106 S. E. 144.

Same—"Permanent" Defined.—The statute does not permit a recovery except for improvements that are permanent and valuable. The word "permanent" is defined in the Century Dictionary as "lasting, or intended to last indefinitely," "fixed or enduring," "abiding," and the like, and it was held in Simpson v. Robinson, 37 Ark., 132, that an improvement does not mean a general enhancement in value from the occupant's operations. Pritchard v. Williams, 181 N. C. 46, 49, 106 S. E. 144.

How Value of Improvements Estimated.—The rule for estimating the value of improvements is not what they have cost the defendant, but how much they have added to the value of the premises. Daniel v. Crumpler, 75 N. C. 184, 186; Wetherell v. German, 74 N. C. 603.

The trustee of one who has been adjudged a bankrupt and has theretofore paid money for improvements put upon the lands of another by his consent, in fraud of the rights of his creditors, may recover as for betterments, the value of the improvements to the land, but not a greater amount so expended. Garland v. Arrowood, 179 N. C. 697, 103 S. E. 2.

§ 702. Improvements to balance rents.—If the sum estimated for the improvements exceeds the damages estimated against the defendant as aforesaid, the jury shall then estimate against him for any time before the said three years the rents and profits accrued against or damages for waste or other injury done by him, or those under whom he claims, so far as is necessary to balance his claim for improvements; but the defendant in such case shall not be liable for the excess, if any, of such rents, profits, or damages beyond the value of improvements. (Rev., s. 656; Code, s. 477; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 5.)

If the betterments exceed in value the rental and damages for waste, the rents and profits accruing prior to the three years may be assessed so far as to balance the improvements, but no further. Whitfield v. Boyd, 158 N. C. 451, 74 S. E. 452; Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 202.

§ 703. Verdict, judgment, and lien.—After offsetting the damages assessed for the plaintiff, and the allowances to the defendant for any improvements, the jury shall find a verdict for the balance for the plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, and judgment shall be entered therefor according to the verdict. Any such balance due to the defendant is a lien upon the land recovered by the plaintiff until it is paid. (Rev., ss. 657-8; Code, ss. 478-9; 1871-2, c. 147, ss. 67.)

If the plaintiff does not exercise his right of election, the sum adjudged the defendant constitutes a lien upon the land, and this can only be made effectual and enforced, if not paid, by a sale of the premises. Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 202.

§ 704. Life tenant recovers from remainderman.—If the plaintiff claims only an estate for life in the land recovered and pays any sum allowed to the defendant for improvements, he or his personal representative may recover at the determination of his estate from the remainderman or reversioner, the value of the said improvements as they then exist, not exceeding the amount as paid by him, and he has a lien therefor on the premises as if they had been mortgaged for the payment thereof, and may keep possession of said premises until it is paid. (Rev., s. 659; Code, s. 480; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 8.)

General Rule.—It is the general rule that a life tenant is not entitled to compensation from the remainderman for the enhancement of the property by reason of his improvements. Harriett v. Harriett, 181 N. C. 75, 77, 106 S. E. 221.

A devise of lands for life with limitation over, does not entitle the life tenant to compensation for betterments he has placed on the land during his tenancy. Northcott v. Northcott, 175 N. C. 148, 149, 95 S. E. 104.

Same—Mistake of Contract.—The section does not apply to a situation where the tenant makes improvements upon land during his occupation, as lessee, where he believed he was entitled to the possession for the lessor's life, when under the contract he was not; nor does the fact that the lessor silently acquiesced in the putting up the improvements change the situation. Dunn v. Bagby, 88 N. C. 91.

§ 705. Value of premises without improvements.—When the defendant claims allowance for improvements, the plaintiff may by entry on the record require that the value of his estate in the premises without the improvements shall also be ascertained. The value of the premises in such cases shall be estimated as it would have been at the time of the inquiry, if no such improvements had been made by the tenant or any person under whom he claims, and shall be ascertained in the manner hereinbefore provided for estimating the value of improvements. (Rev., ss. 661-2; Code, ss. 482-3; 1871-2, c. 147, ss. 10-11.)

The rents should be assessed upon the basis of the property without the betterments. Whitfield v. Boyd, 158 N. C. 451, 453, 74 S. E. 452; Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198.

§ 706. Plaintiff's election that defendant take premises.—The plaintiff in such case, if judgment is rendered for him, may, at any time during the same term, or before judgment is rendered on the assessment of the value of the improvements, in person or by his attorney in the cause, enter on the record his election to relinquish his estate in the premises to the defendant at the value as ascertained, and the defendant shall thenceforth hold all the estate that the plaintiff had therein at the commencement of the suit, if he pays therefor the said value with interest in the manner ordered by the court. (Rev. s. 663; Code, s. 484; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 12.)

If the enhanced value is greatly disproportionate to the value of the land unimproved, so that it might almost be said that the owner is "improved out of his property," he has an election to let the land go, relinquishing his estate, upon payment by the defendant of its value as unimproved. Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 202.

§ 707. Payment made to court; land sold on default.—The payment must be made to the plaintiff, or into court for his use, and the land is bound therefor, and if the defendant fails to make the payment within or at the times limited therefor, the court may order the land sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said value and interest, and any surplus to be paid to the defendant, but if the net proceeds are insufficient to satisfy the said value and interest, the defendant is not bound for the deficiency. (Rev., s. 664; Code, s. 485; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 13.)

If the payment is not made to the plaintiff or into court for his use within a time to be fixed by the court, a sale may be ordered, and therefrom the sum due the plaintiff taken, and the residue, if any, paid to defendant. Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 202.

§ 708. If plaintiff is a married woman, minor or insane.—If the party by or for whom the land is claimed in the suit is a married woman, minor, or insane person, such value is deemed to be real estate, and shall be disposed of as the court considers proper for the benefit of the persons interested therein. (Rev., s. 665; Code, s. 486; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 14.)

§ 709. Defendant evicted, may recover from plaintiff.—If the defendant, his heirs or assigns, after the premises are so relinquished to him, is evicted by force of a better title than that of the original plaintiff, the person so evicted may recover from the plaintiff or his representatives the amount paid for the premises, as so much money had and received by the plaintiff in his lifetime for the use of such person, with lawful interest thereon from the time of the payment. (Rev., s. 666; Code, s. 487; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 15.)

In ejectment a writ of ouster should not issue until a judgment for betterments has been paid. Bond v. Wilson, 129 N. C. 325, 332, 40 S. E. 179.

§ 710. Not applicable to suit by mortgagee.—Nothing in this article applies to any suit brought by a mortgagee or his heirs or assigns against a mortgagor or his heirs or assigns for the recovery of the mortgaged premises. (Rev., s. 660; Code, s. 481; 1871-2, c. 147, s. 9.)

When Section Inapplicable.—Where relationship of mortgagor and mortgagee is terminated by foreclosure prior to claimant's possession under mesne conveyances from mortgagor, this section, does not apply. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Allen, 208 N. C. 13, 179 S. E. 15.

In Wharton v. Moore, 84 N. C. 479, 483, it was said: "It is very probable the Legislature in making the exception had in view the generally admitted principle that the right to betterments is not conceded to mortgagors, for the current of authorities is to the effect that it has no application to them." In 2 Washburn Real Prop., it is laid down that, "if the mortgagor or any one standing in his place enhances the value of the premises by improvements, they become additional security for the debt, and he can only claim the surplus, if any, upon such sale being made after satisfying the debt."

Art. 30. Supplemental Proceedings.

§ 711. Execution unsatisfied, debtor ordered to answer.—When an execution against property of a judgment debtor, or any one of several debtors in the same judgment, issued to the sheriff of the county where he resides or has a place of business, or if he does not reside in the state, to the sheriff of the county where a judgment roll or a transcript of a justice's judgment is filed, is returned wholly or partially unsatisfied, the judgment creditor at any time after the return, and within three years from the time of issuing the execution, is entitled to an order from the court to which the execution is returned or from the judge thereof, requiring such debtor to appear and answer concerning his property before such court or judge, at a time and place specified in the order, within the county to which the execution was issued. (Rev., s. 667; Code, s. 488, subsec. 1; C. C. P., s. 264; 1868-9, 95, s. 2.)

Purpose of Proceedings Supplemental.—The purpose is to give supplemental proceedings only in case the debtor has no property liable to execution, or to what is in the nature of execution, viz: proceedings to enforce its sale. Hutchison v. Symons, 67 N. C. 156, 159; McKeithan & Sons v. Walker, 66 N. C. 95; Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 15.

The proceeding is intended to perfect the creditors' remedy in the same action and to supersede that which in a divided jurisdiction was attainable before by a bill of equity. Bronson v. Wilmington N. C. Life Ins. Co., 85 N. C. 411, 413.

Supplemental proceedings are based upon an execution and may not be instituted against a defendant when there has been no execution issued within three years from the institution of such supplemental proceedings. International Harvester Co. v. Brockwell, 202 N. C. 805, 164 S. E. 322.

Same—Substitute for Creditor's Bill.—In Carson v. Oates, 64 N. C. 115, it was said: "Supplemental proceedings were intended to supply the place of proceedings in equity, where relief was given after a creditor had ascertained his debt by a judgment at law, and was unable to obtain satisfaction by process of law." Such proceedings are held to be a substitute for the former creditors' bill, and are governed by the principles established under the former practice in administering this species of relief in behalf of judgment creditors. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 14. See Dillard v. Walker, 204 N. C. 67, 167 S. E. 632.

Such proceedings differ from the old creditor's bill, however, in that the latter operated for the benefit of all creditors who chose to come in, while the former are only beneficial to the particular creditors who institute them. Righton v. Pruden, 73 N. C. 61.

Same—Complete Determination of Action. — Proceedings supplementary to execution are but a prolongation of the action necessary to the final discharge of the judgment, the purpose being that all matters affecting the complete satisfaction and determination of the action shall be settled in the same action, instead of by a multiplicity of suits. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 15.

Nature of Proceedings—Final Process.—They are in the nature of a final process, when viewed either as a substitute for a creditor's bill to enforce the payment of a judgment at law or as a proceeding having the essential qualities of an equitable fi. fa. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 236, 49 S. E. 173.

Same—Equitable Execution.—Such proceedings are in the nature of an equitable execution, and are intended to discover and reach the property of the debtor, of every nature and kind, and apply the same according to law, to the payment of the judgment. Vegelahn v. Smith, 95 N. C. 254, 256; Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Judgment Conclusive.—A judgment, whether just or unjust, if regularly taken in a court of competent jurisdiction, may be enforced by proceedings supplementary thereto, and the judgment cannot be attacked by any member of the defendant corporation, or its creditors, except for fraud or collusion. Heggie v. People's Bldg. & L., etc., Ass'n., 107 N. C. 581, 590, 12 S. E. 275.

Lunatic Liable.—Supplemental proceedings lie against a lunatic in aid of execution. Blake v. Respass, 77 N. C. 193, 197.

Proceedings Lie against Private Corporations.—Proceedings supplemental to execution lie against a private corporation created by a special act of the Legislature, and organized for the purposes of the private gain for its shareholders. LaFountain v. Southern Underwriters Ass'n., 79 N. C. 514.

Not Applicable to Supreme Court.—The provisions respecting supplemental proceedings are not applicable to the supreme court, and no power has been given it to issue an attachment in such case. Phillips v. Trezevant, 70 N. C. 176, 177.

Manner of Instituting Proceedings—Demand Unnecessary.—A personal demand on the debtor that he apply his property to the satisfaction of the creditor's claim, is not necessary to authorize supplemental proceedings. The prosecution of the suit to judgment and execution is a sufficient demand. Weller & Co., v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 65.

Same—What Must Be Made to Appear.—To authorize the grant of an order of examination, these three facts must be made to appear, by affidavit or otherwise, to-wit: the want of known property liable to execution, which is provided by the sheriff's return of "unsatisfied," the nonexistence of any equitable estates in land within the lien of the judgment, and the existence of property, choses in action and things of value unaffected by any lien and incapable of levy. Hinsdale v. Sinclair, 83 N. C. 339, 343; Hutchison v. Symons, 67 N. C. 156; McKeithan & Sons v. Walker, 66 N. C. 95.

Same—Who Entitled to Benefits.—Those creditors only are entitled to the benefit of supplementary proceedings who bring themselves within the provisions of the statute by instituting such proceedings. Righton v. Pruden, 73 N. C. 61.

The owner of orders for the payment of shares of stock in a corporation cannot be allowed to interplead in supplementary proceedings by a plaintiff judgment creditor who has obtained his judgment. Heggie v. People's Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 107 N. C. 581, 12 S. E. 275.

A judgment creditor of a corporation caused an execution to issue, which was returned unsatisfied, and he then brought a suit for himself and all other creditors against the corporation and its stockholders, demanding an account to ascertain the amount due upon unpaid stock, to pay debts of the corporation. Such suit was a new and independent action, and not demurrable on the ground that his remedy was by proceeding supplementary to execution. Bronson v. Wilmington N. C. Life Ins., Co., 85 N. C. 411.

Action against an Administrator.—A judgment creditor whose execution has been returned unsatisfied cannot maintain an action against an administrator or to subject a distributive share of the judgment debtor in the estate to the satisfaction of the debt. He must proceed by supplemental proceedings. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12.

Three Year Limitation.—When the ordinary execution is returned unsatisfied in whole or part, the judgment creditor, at any time after such return, within three years from the time the execution is issued, is entitled to an order of the court, requiring the debtor to appear and answer respecting his property. Vegelahn v. Smith, 95 N. C. 254, 256.

Authority of Clerk.—This section confers upon the clerk of the superior court, acting for and in the place of the court, authority to hear and allow or disallow the motion of the plaintiffs for an order requiring the defendants to "appear and answer" concerning their property as therein allowed. Bank v. Burns, 107 N. C. 465, 466, 12 S. E. 252.

Where the defendant was ordered to appear before the clerk to be examined in a supplementary proceeding, when the clerk was properly informed that a similar proceeding was then pending before the judge, he should have refused to proceed, and failing to do so, the judge had the power to order that he desist from further action. Ledford v. Emerson, 143 N. C. 527, 55 S. E. 969.

Same—Appeal.—From an order requiring the debtor to appear, made by the clerk, an appeal lay at once to the judge as a matter of right, and the clerk cannot allow or disallow it. Bank v. Burns, 107 N. C. 465, 466, 12 S. E. 252.

Choses in Action.—In proceedings supplemental to execution, notes owned and held by the judgment debtor, or hypothecated as collateral to his own notes made to a bank, are choses in action, and the bank may apply them to the payment of its own claims against the judgment debtor, in accordance with the terms of hypothecation, when the same have matured, and when not matured it has an equitable right of set-off when the debtor is insolvent, to the extent necessary to protect its own interest, and, also, the right of application according to any contract it may hold, which specifically affects the property. McIntosh Grocery Co v. Newman, 184 N. C. 370, 114 S. E. 535.

A bank may apply the deposits of its customer to the payment of his note after maturity, by way of set-off, unless some other creditor has in the meantime acquired a superior right thereto in some way recognized by the law; and a mere notice to the bank in proceedings supplemental to execution is insufficient to deprive the bank of this right. McIntosh Grocery Co. v. Newman, 184 N. C. 370, 371, 114 S. E. 535.

Choses in action cannot be reached by execution. They are subjected to the satisfaction of a judgment under the practice prevailing in this state by supplemental proceedings under this section which are in the nature of an equitable fi. fa. or creditor's bill. Newberry v. Davidson Chemical Co., 65 F. (2d) 724, 727.

Notice Required.—"If jurisdiction has never been acquired over the principal defendant, so that a personal judgment can be rendered against him, notice, either actual or constructive, must be given him of any proceedings to reach his property, or by which his rights are to be determined, whether the suit be by garnishment or otherwise, for the reason that the rights of no person can be concluded by any proceeding till he has had his day in court. But in all cases in which he has been personally served with process, or has appeared, so that jurisdiction is acquired by the court to render a personal judgment against him, no notice need be given him of any proceedings by garnishment, instituted in aid of such action, or to collect the judgment rendered therein, unless such notice is required by some provision of the statute under which the garnishment suit is conducted." Rood on Garnishment, sec. 280, quoted in Wright v. Southern R. Co., 141 N. C. 164, 168, 53 S. E. 831.

Ten Days' Notice Not Required.—The requirement of ten days' notice of motions generally, has no reference to the examination of judgment debtors under supplementary proceedings, but are governed by this section, which refers the time and place of examination to the discretion of the court or judge. Weiller & Co. v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 65, 67.

§ 712. Property withheld from execution; proceedings.—After the issuing of an execution against property, and upon proof by affidavit of a party, his agent or attorney, to the satisfaction of the court or a judge thereof, that any judgment debtor residing in the judicial district where such judge or sheriff resides has property which he unjustly refuses to apply toward the satisfaction of the judgment, such court or judge may, by order, require the judgment debtor to appear at a specified time and place, to answer concerning the same; and proceedings may thereupon be had for the application of the property of the judgment debtor towards the satisfaction of the judgment as provided upon the return of an execution, and the judgment creditor is entitled to the order of examination under this and the preceding section, although the judgment debtor has an equitable estate in land subject to the lien of the judgment, or choses in action, or other things of value unaffected by the lien of the judgment and incapable of levy. (Rev., s. 668; Code s. 488, subsec. 2; C. C. P., s. 264; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 2.)

See sec. 711, and annotations thereto.

Sufficiency of Affidavit.—Such extraordinary proceedings will not be ordered, unless a necessity for it is made to appear by an affidavit that the debtor has no property which can be reached by the execution, and that he has property or choses in action, or things of value, "which he unjustly refuses to apply to the satisfaction of the judgment." Hutchison v. Symons, 67 N. C. 156, 158.

An affidavit by a judgment creditor, his agent or attorney, that an execution has been issued upon his judgment—though it has not been returned—and that the defendant has not sufficient property "subject to execution" to satisfy the judgment, but has property "not exempted from execution," which he unjustly refuses to apply to its satisfaction, is sufficient to support an order from the examination of the debtor, and persons alleged to be indebted to him. Farmers etc., Bank v. Burns, 109 N. C. 105, 13 S. E. 871.

Same—Must Negative Existence of Property Liable to Execution.—An affidavit is insufficient to warrant the examination of the judgment debtor, if it does not negative property in the defendant liable to execution and the existence of equitable interests which may be subjected by sale in the nature of an execution; but the omission of such negative averments may be remedied by amendment at the hearing. Weiller & Co. v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 65; Hackney v. Arrington, 99 N. C. 110, 5 S. E. 747.

Same—Objection as to Property of Defendant.—Objection that the plaintiff, in proceedings supplementary to execution, has not shown, in support of the order to examine the defendant and others, that the defendant has other property, etc., cannot be sustained when this averment is made in the plaintiff's affidavit without denial. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Burns, 109 N. C. 105, 13 S. E. 817, cited and approved. Boseman v.. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10.

Clerk's Finding of Fact Sufficient.—Where, upon the plaintiff's affidavit, the clerk finds as a fact that execution under the judgment had been issued, in proceedings supplmentary to execution, it is sufficient to sustain his order in that respect for the examination of the defendant and others, etc., which the lack of the return of execution does not affect. Boseman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10.

Alias Execution Unreturned.—The fact that the sheriff has an alias execution in his hands unreturned, which was issued on the same judgment on which supplemental proceedings have been taken, is no bar to such proceedings, and no ground on which they can be dismissed. Vegelahn v. Smith, 95 N. C. 254.

Sufficient Service of Order to Appear.—Leaving a copy of an order on a judgment debtor, to appear and answer in supplemental proceedings, with the debtor's wife, is a sufficient notice. Turner v. Holden, 109 N. C. 182, 13 S. E. 731.

Court to Apply Property to Judgment.—The section intends that when the debtor refuses to apply such property to the satisfaction of the judgment, he must, when duly required, answer concerning the same, to the end that the court, in a proper way, may so apply the property to which the debtor may direct attention. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Burns, 109 N. C. 105, 108, 13 S. E. 871.

§ 713. Proceedings against joint debtors.—Proceedings supplemental to execution may be taken upon the return of an execution unsatisfied, issued upon a judgment recovered in an action against joint debtors, in which some of the defendants have not been served with the summons by which the action was commenced, so far as relates to the joint property of such debtors; and all actions by creditors to obtain satisfaction of judgments out of the property of joint debtors are maintainable in like manner and to the like effect. These provisions apply to all proceedings and actions pending and to those terminated by final decree or judgment. (Rev., s. 669; Code, s. 490; C. C. P., s. 266; 1869-70, c. 79, s. 2; 1870-1, c. 245.)

As to procedure under this section, see sec. 711, and annotations thereto.

Joint, as well as single debtors, may be examined after the issuance of an execution, and before its return. Weiller & Co. v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 65.

§ 714. Debtor leaving state, or concealing himself, arrested; bond.—Instead of the order requiring the attendance of the judgment debtor, the court or judge may, upon proof by affidavit or otherwise to his satisfaction that there is danger of the debtor leaving the state or concealing himself, and that there is reason to believe that he has property which he unjustly refuses to apply to the judgment, issue a warrant requiring the sheriff of any county where such debtor is to arrest him and bring him before the court or judge. Upon being brought before the court or judge, the debtor may be examined on oath, and, if it appears that there is danger of his leaving the state, and that he has property which he has unjustly refused to apply to the judgment, he shall be ordered to enter into an undertaking, with one or more sureties, that he will, from time to time, attend before the court or judge as directed, and that he will not, during the pendency of the proceedings, dispose of any property not exempt from execution. In default of entering into such undertaking, he may be committed to prison by warrant of the court or judge, as for contempt. (Rev., s. 671; Code, s. 488, subsec. 4; 1868-9, c. 148, s. 4; 1868-9, c. 277, s. 8.)

§ 715. Examination of parties and witnesses.—On examination under this article either party may examine witnesses in his behalf, and the judgment debtor may be examined in the same manner as a witness; and the party or witnesses may be required to appear before the court or judge, or a referee appointed by either, and testify on any proceedings under this article in the same manner as upon the trial of an issue. If before a referee, the examination shall be taken by the referee, and certified to the court or judge. All examinations and answers before a court or judge or referee under this article must be on oath, except that when a corporation answers, the answer shall be on the oath of an officer thereof. (Rev., ss. 670, 676; Code, s. 488 [subsec. 2], 491, 492; C. C. P., ss. 264, 267, 268; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 2; 1871-2, c. 245.)

Cross-Examination.—Where the judgment debtor is examined the creditor does not make him his witness, but may cross-examine and contradict him. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Evidence Taken Down in Writing.—In supplemental proceedings the evidence should be taken down in writing. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377, 383.

Production of Documents.—Where, on examination of a debtor, it appears that his account books are material to the investigation, the court may require him to produce them. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

§ 716. Incriminating answers not privileged; not used in criminal proceedings.—No person, on examination pursuant to this article, is excused from answering any question on the ground that it will tend to convict him of the commission of a crime or that he has, before the examination, executed any conveyance, assignment or transfer of his property for any purpose, but his answer shall not be used as evidence against him in any criminal proceeding or prosecution. (Rev., s. 672; Code, s. 488, subsec. 5; C. C. P., s. 264; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 2.)

Witness Must Answer Questions.—A witness cannot shield himself behind his declaration questions that they involve self-crimination, but must answer them. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriter's Ass'n., 83 N. C. 133, 144.

So when called to testify as to his dealings in behalf of a defunct corporation, of which he was an officer, he cannot excuse himself on the ground the evidence thus elicited might be used on the trial indictments pending against him and others for conspiring to cheat and defraud divers persons in the management of the affairs of such corporation. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters Association, 83 N. C. 133.

Not Available for Criminal Proceedings.—Facts developed on the examination of the defendants in supplemental proceedings are forbidden to be used in evidence against them in any criminal proceeding or prosecution. State v. Mallett, 125 N. C. 718, 34 S. E. 651.

§ 717. Disposition of property forbidden.—The court or judge may, by order, forbid a transfer or other disposition of, or any interference with, the property of the judgment debtor not exempt from execution. (Rev., s. 673; Code, ss. 488 [subsec. 6], 494; C. C. P., s. 264; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 2.)

Only Parties May Be Restrained.—In supplemental proceedings, the court cannot restrain the transfer of property owned by one not a party to the action. Banks v. Burns, 109 N. C. 105, 13 S. E. 871.

Where it is alleged that a third person has property of the judgment debtor, it is error to restrain such third person from disposing of such property until the receiver can bring an action for its recovery, unless such person has been made a party in some way to the proceeding. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 94 N. C. 174.

§ 718. Debtors of judgment debtor may satisfy execution.—After the issuing of an execution against property, all persons indebted to the judgment debtor, or to any one of several debtors in the same judgment, may pay to the sheriff the amount of their debt, or as much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the execution; and the sheriff's receipt is a sufficient discharge for the amount paid. (Rev., s. 647; Code, s. 489; C. C. P., s. 265.)

Protection to Debtors of Judgment Debtor.—The section furnishes an easily secured and safe protection to the debtors of the judgment debtor, who are called upon to satisfy the execution. Parks v. Adams, 113 N. C. 473, 477, 18 S. E. 665.

Authority of Sheriff.—A sheriff is authorized by this section to receive from debtors of the defendant in the execution in his hands the debts due him, but he is not thereby invested with the power to apply the proceeds of one execution in satisfaction of another. Smith v. McMillan, 84 N. C. 593.

§ 719. Debtors of judgment debtor, summoned.—After the issuing or return of an execution against property of the judgment debtor, or of any one of several debtors in the same judgment, and upon affidavit that any person or corporation has property of said judgment debtor, or is indebted to him in an amount exceeding ten dollars, the court or judge may, by order, require such person or corporation, or any officer or members thereof, to appear at a specified time and place, and answer concerning the same. The court or judge may also, in its or his discretion, require notice of the proceeding to be given to any party to the action, in such manner as seems proper. (Rev., s. 675; Code, s. 490; C. C. P., s. 266; 1869-70, c. 79, s. 2; 1870-1, c. 245.)

When Proceedings May Commence.—The proceedings given by the section may be commenced before the sale of the property levied on, at the presentation of an affidavit or other proof of its insufficient value. McKeithan & Sons v. Walker, 66 N. C. 95, 99.

Purpose of Appearance and Answer.—The purpose of the appearance and answer required by the section is to determine whether the sum alleged, or any part thereof is due the judgment debtor. Rice v. Jones, 103 N. C. 226, 231, 95 S. E. 571.

Assignee May Be Examined.—An order for examination may issue against the defendant's assignee. Bruce v. Crabtree, 116 N. C. 528, 21 S. E. 194.

Procedure.—The section expressly prescribes that persons having property of the judgment debtor may be examined in respect to the same, and mere notice is sufficient to bring them before the courts and make them subject to its jurisdiction for the purpose of securing the debtor's property, not for the purpose of contesting any right of such persons having the same. If they claim an interest in the property, or that the same belongs to them, they may properly suggest so. Banks v. Burns, 109 N. C. 105, 109, 13 S. E. 871; Boseman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10.

Where one, who is charged in supplemental proceedings as holding property belonging to a judgment debtor, claims such property as his own, the question cannot be decided in the course of such proceedings, but must be settled by an independent action. Carson v. Oates, 64 N. C. 115.

Same—Notice to Defendant.—Notice to the defendant is not required, though the court may, in its discretion, order notice to be given. Wright v. Southern R. Co., 141 N. C. 164, 168, 53 S. E. 831. Wilmington v. Sprunt, 114 N. C. 310, 19 S. E. 348.

§ 720. Where proceedings instituted and defendant examined. — Proceedings supplemental to execution must be instituted in the county in which the judgment was rendered; but the place designated where the defendant must appear and answer must be within the county where he resides. (Rev., s. 677.)

Editor's Note.—This section is a substantial enactment of the rule laid down in Hasty v. Simpson, 77 N. C. 69, 70. In Huchison v. Symons, 67 N. C. 156, it was held that proceedings supplementary should be instituted in the county in which the action was pending; that is, where the judgment was rendered. Hasty v. Simpson, supra, quoted, and approved this holding, but, in addition, held that the place designated for the appearance and answer of the defendant should be in the county of his residence. Thus a beneficial rule was formulated which was, apparently, followed by the legislature in enacting this section.

§ 721. Debtor's property ordered sold.—The court or judge may order any property, whether subject or not to be sold under execution (except the homestead and personal property exemptions of the judgment debtor), in the hands of the judgment debtor or of any other person, or due to the judgment debtor, to be applied towards the satisfaction of the judgment; except that the earnings of the debtor for his personal services, at any time within sixty days next preceding the order, cannot be so applied when it appears, by the debtor's affidavit or otherwise, that these earnings are necessary for the use of a family supported wholly or partly by his labor. (Rev., s. 678; Code, s. 493; C. C. P., s. 269; 1870-1, c. 245.)

Order for Condemnation of Debtor's Property.—In proceedings supplemental to execution, an order for the condemnation made by the clerk against land was within the scope of this section. Boseman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10.

Property Subject to Sale.—The court may order any property of the judgment debtor not exempt from execution in the hands either of himself or any other person, or due to the judgment debtor, to be applied to the satisfaction of the judgment. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 16.

If it appears that a third person is indebted to the judgment debtor, the court may order such indebtedness, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be applied to the satisfaction of the judgment against the judgment debtor. Rice v. Jones, 103 N. C. 226, 231, 95 S. E. 571.

Sale Required.—Where it appears from an examination under supplementary proceedings that the judgment debtor holds a claim against a third party, to be discharged by the delivery of corn at a stipulated price per bushel, it is error for the court to order such third person to deliver to the creditor a sufficient quantity of the corn, at the agreed price, to satisfy the debt. The proper order is to sell the corn and apply the proceeds to the debt. In re Davis, 81 N. C. 72.

When Final Order Made.—No final order can be made appropriating to the creditor any property discovered under section 719 until the property previously levied on is exhausted, for until that is done it cannot be known whether anything is still owing. McKeithan & Sons v. Walker, 66 N. C. 95, 99.

Earnings for Sixty Days.—The exemption of earnings for sixty days allowed to a judgment debtor under the section applies only as to proceedings on judgments for private debts and for taxes due. Wilmington v. Sprunt, 14 N. C. 310, 314, 19 S. E. 348.

The earnings of a nonresident for personal services for the sixty days next preceding are exempt from seizure in garnishment by this section. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 237, 49 S. E. 173 cited in Wierse v. Thomas, 145 N. C. 261, 268, 59 S. E. 58.

Salaries of Public Officers and Employees.—For reasons of public policy, the salaries of officers and the pay of employees of the state can not be reached by creditors by proceedings supplementary to execution. Swepson v. Turner, 76 N. C. 115.

Gratuitous Services.—While creditors may subject, in a supplementary proceeding, the debtor's choses in action, including a claim for compensation due for service rendered under an express or implied contract, they have no lien on his skill or attainments, and cannot compel him to exact compensation for managing his wife's property, or for services rendered to any person with the understanding that it was gratuitous. Osborne v. Wilkes, 108 N. C. 651, 13 S. E. 285.

Where supplemental proceedings are instituted upon return of execution unsatisfied on a judgment against a husband and wife, and it appears that the husband is totally and permanently disabled and has no property upon which execution could be levied, but is receiving the sum of three hundred dollars a month under disability insurance, the judgment debtor is entitled, under his personal property exemption, to the three hundred dollars each month if such amount is necessary for the support of himself and wife. Commissioner of Banks v. Yelverton, 204 N. C. 441, 168 S. E. 505.

§ 722. Receiver appointed.—The court or judge having jurisdiction over the appointment of receivers may also by order in like manner, and with like authority, appoint a receiver in proceedings under this article of the property of the judgment debtor, whether subject or not to be sold under execution, except the homestead and personal property exemptions. But before the appointment of the receiver, the court or judge shall ascertain if practicable, by the oath of the party or otherwise, whether any other supplementary proceedings are pending against the judgment debtor, and if so, the plaintiff therein shall have notice to appear before him, and shall likewise have notice of all subsequent proceedings in relation to the receivership. No more than one receiver of the property of a judgment debtor shall be appointed. The title of the receiver relates back to the service of the restraining order, herein provided for. (Rev., s. 679; Code, s. 494; C. C. P., s. 270; 1870-1, c. 245; 1876-7, c. 223; 1879, c. 63; 1881, c. 51.)

As to duty of receiver generally, see secs. 859 to 862.

Appointed by Clerk. — The receiver must be appointed by the judge, and not by the clerk. Parks v. Sprinkle, 64 N. C. 637, 639. This case was decided prior to the amendment inserting the word "Court" at the beginning of the section. Ed. Note.

In a race of diligence between creditors under the supplementary proceedings, the earliest applicant is presumed to be entitled to the earliest appointment. Parks v. Sprinkle, 64 N. C. 637.

Action as a Prerequisite to Appointment.—Where supplemental proceedings had discovered that the defendant held a specific fund which had been adjudged to belong to the plaintiff, and the clerk directed the defendant to pay over the same to the plaintiff, it was error in the judge on appeal to appoint a receiver to take charge of the fund until the plaintiff should institute an action to recover the specific fund. Ross v. Ross, 119 N. C. 109, 25 S. E. 792.

Evidence with Application.—The application for a receiver shall be made as in other cases, that is, the motion shall be supported by affidavits and other written or documentary evidence. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377, 383.

Motion Pending Appeal.—The motion for appointment of a receiver may be made before the judge, pending an appeal to him from the ruling of the clerk upon other questions. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Subject to Review.—The appointment of a receiver in these proceedings does not rest solely in the discretion of the judge, and his action in appointing or refusing to appoint is subject to review by the Supreme Court. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Reasonable Ground.—It is sufficient for the appointment of a receiver if there is reasonable grounds to believe that the judgment debtor has property which ought to be applied to the payment of the judgment. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

Judge to Ascertain if Other Proceedings Pending.—While it is the duty of a judge appointing a receiver under this section to ascertain if other supplemental proceedings are pending against the judgment debtor, and if so, to notify the plaintiffs therein of all proceedings before him, yet a failure to do so does not require the reversal of an order appointing a receiver, where some of the creditors actually appear and make themselves parties, and all have an opportunity to interpose before the final distribution of the fund. Corbin v. Berry, 83 N. C. 28.

There Shall Be but One Receiver.—This section prescribes that there shall be but one receiver of the property of a judgment debtor, to prevent a conflict of authority between the courts having a concurrent jurisdiction over the subject. Corbin v. Berry, 83 N. C. 28, 31.

Consolidation of Several Proceedings.—Where several supplemental proceedings are pending, and the same property is sought to be subjected, or where, in either of such proceedings, a receiver is appointed of property which is the subject of the other proceedings, the court should, in proper cases, order that the same be consolidated, preserving the priorities acquired by the superior diligence of the various litigants. Monroe Bros. & Co. v. Lewald, 107 N. C. 655, 12 S. E. 287.

§ 723. Filing and record of appointment; property vests in receiver.—When the court or a judge grants an order for the appointment of a receiver of the property of the judgment debtor, it shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the judgment roll in the action or transcript from justice's judgment, upon which the proceedings are taken, is filed; and the clerk shall record the order in a book to be kept for that purpose in his office, to be called Book of Orders Appointing Receivers of Judgment Debtors, and shall note the time of its filing therein. A certified copy of the order shall be delivered to the receiver named therein, and he is vested with the property and effects of the judgment debtor from the time of the service of the restraining order, if such restraining order has been made, and if not, from the time of the filing and recording of the order for the appointment of a receiver. The receiver of the judgment debtor is subject to the direction and control of the court in which the judgment was obtained upon which the proceedings are found. (Rev., s. 680; Code, s. 495; C. C. P., s. 270; 1870-1, c. 245.)

When Property Vests in Receiver.—The receiver, by virtue of his appointment, becomes the legal assignee of the judgment, and is vested with the property therein. Turner v. Holden, 94 N. C. 70, 71.

The general principles of law applicable to receivers apply to those appointed in supplemental proceedings. It is the duty of such receivers to take possession of the property of the debtor at once, and to bring actions to recover any property belonging to him which may be in the hands of third persons. Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

In proceedings supplementary to execution if the debtor dies before the appointment of a receiver, or before the order of such appointment is filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court, the property and effects of such judgment debtor do not vest in the receiver. Rankin v. Minor, 72 N. C. 424.

Remedy of Debtor When Receiver Is Negligent.—If the receiver is negligent in the performance of his duty, the remedy of the judgment debtor might be in the removal of the receiver and appointment of a successor, or in seeking compensation in damages for the losses due to such negligence, and, if necessary, upon his bond to secure a faithful discharge of duty, he cannot interfere with the receiver's collection and control of the property. Turner v. Holden, 94 N. C. 70, 72.

Receiver Is under Direction of Court.—A receiver may be appointed who is invested with all the property and effects of the debtor, and may collect, preserve, and pay out the property and estate of the debtor, or their proceeds, under the direction of the court. Rand v. Rand, 78 N. C. 12, 16.

While the court may exercise very great control over the receiver, and may direct, in appropriate cases, that he shall or shall not do particular things, yet, ordinarily, when he is invested with full power as a receiver, he will have authority to bring appropriate, necessary actions without special leave or direction of the court. Weill v. First Nat. Bank, 106 N. C. 1, 5, 10, 11 S. E. 277.

A receiver, in supplemental proceedings, may bring actions to recover the judgment debtor's property without special leave or direction of the court. Weill v. First Nat. Bank, 106 N. C. 1, 11 S. E. 277. See also Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377.

§ 724. Where order of appointment recorded.—Before the receiver is vested with any real property of the judgment debtor, a certified copy of the order of appointment must be filed and recorded on the execution docket, in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which any real estate of the judgment debtor is situated, and also in the office of the clerks of the superior court of the county in which the debtor resides. (Rev., s. 681; Code, s. 496; C. C. P., s. 270.)

Death of Judgment Debtor before Order Filed.—When the judgment debtor dies before the filing in the clerk's office of an order appointing a receiver, the judgment creditor has no lien on his property as against the administrator of the debtor. Rankin v. Minor, 72 N. C. 424, cited in note in 3 L. R. A., N. S. 133.

§ 725. Receiver to sue debtors of judgment debtor.—If it appears that a person or corporation alleged to have property of the judgment debtor, or indebted to him, claims an interest in the property adverse to him, or denies the debt, such interest or debt is recoverable only in an action against such person or corporation by the receiver; but the court or judge may, by order, forbid a transfer or other disposition of such property or interest till a sufficient opportunity is given to the receiver to commence and prosecute the action to judgment and execution, but such order may at any time be modified or dissolved by the court or judge having jurisdictions on such security as he directs. (Rev., s. 682; Code, s. 497; C. C. P., s. 271; 1870-1, c. 245.)

Court May Restrain Transfer of Property.—Under this section when it is found that a third person, not a party to the action, claims an interest in the property, or denies the debt, which is sought by the plaintiff to be applied to his judgment as belonging to the judgment debtor, the court may, by an order in the cause, restrain the transfer of such property till the receiver can bring an action to recover it, but such is brought by the receiver as the agent of the court. Ross v. Ross, 119 N. C. 109, 112, 25 S. E. 792.

Same—Notice Required.—In Coates Bros. v. Wilkes, 94 N. C. 174, 180, it was said that very clearly this section cannot be construed as implying that the order forbidding "the transfer or other disposition of such property or interest," may be made without notice to the party to be affected by it. Such an interpretation would produce an effect that would contravene natural justice, as well as fundamental right. In some way, the person to be affected adversely by an order or judgment of the court, must have notice of the proceedings against him, so that he can appear, and be heard in his own behalf. This section must be taken and construed in connection with section 710, which provides that "the court or judge, may by an order, require such person or corporation, or any officer or member, thereof, to appear at a time and place, and answer concerning" the property or debt alleged to belong to the judgment debtor. It moreover gives to the court or judge, authority in its or his discretion, to require the notice of such order to be given in "such manner as may seem to him or it to be proper." Notice must be given, not necessarily by summons, but as the court or judge may direct, and when the party is before the court to answer as required, the order forbidding "a transfer or other disposition of such property or interest," may be made Thus two sections of the same statute may operate consistently and without working injustice.

Third Parties May Interplead.—In supplemental proceedings it was adjudged that the fund in question belonged to the judgment debtor, and an order made that the fund be paid into court. Afterwards, upon claim made by another, the clerk refused to pay the money to him, and appointed a receiver, who brought action against the judgment debtor to try the question of title to the fund. Held, that defendants, claimants to the fund, should have been allowed to interplead in the supplementary proceedings. Wilson v. Chichester, 107 N. C. 386, 12 S. E. 139.

Fraudulent Transactions of Debtor Set Aside.—A receiver is not the representative of the debtor alone, and can maintain an action to set aside fraudulent transactions of such debtor. Pender v. Mallett, 123 N. C. 57, 31 S. E. 351.

§ 726. Reference.—The court or judge may, in his discretion, order a reference to a referee agreed upon by the parties, or appointed by him, to report the evidence or the facts. The appointment of the referee may be made in the first order or at any time. (Rev., s. 683; Code, s. 498; C. C. P., s. 272.)

Cross References.—As to examination before referee, see sec. 715; as to referees generally, see secs. 574 to 579; as to disobedience of orders of referee see sec. 727, and annotations thereto.

Definition.—A reference has been defined as the act of sending any matter by a court of chancery, or one exercising equitable powers, to a master or other officer, in order that he may ascertain facts and report to the court. 2 Bouv. Law Dict., title Reference.

What Law Governs.—The general rule that whatever constitutes part of the procedure is determined by the law of the forum, applies to references, and the validity of a reference, and the proceedings and judgment upon it must be tested by the laws of the forum. Alexandria v. Swann, 5 How. 83, 12 L. Ed. 60.

The practice of referring pending actions under a rule of court, by consent of parties was well known at common law, and the report of the referees appointed, when regularly made to the court pursuant to the rule of reference, and duly accepted, is now universally regarded in the state courts as the proper foundation of judgment. Such references are proper in federal as well as state courts. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Clark, 178 U. S. 363, 44 L. Ed. 1099.

The evidence taken before a referee must accompany his report if there are any exceptions to which it is applicable, or perhaps any adverse rulings made in the progress of the injury which the evidence whould tend to elucidate or explain. Vestal v. Sloan, 83 N. C. 555, 556.

§ 727. Disobedience of orders punished as for contempt.—Any person, party or witness, who disobeys an order of the court or judge or referee, duly served, may be punished by the judge as for a contempt. In all cases of commitment under this article the person committed may, in case of inability to perform the act required, or to endure the imprisonment, be discharged from imprisonment by the judge committing him, or the judge having jurisdiction, on such terms as are just. (Rev., s. 684; Code, s. 500; C. C. P., s. 274; 1869-70, s. 3.)

As to contempt generally, see §§ 978 to 985. As to whether the violation of a void order of a court constitutes contempt, see note in 12 N. C. Law Rev., 260.

Court May Enforce Its Lawful Orders.—It is an essential attribute of a court to enforce by proper process its lawful orders, and without this its essential functions would be paralyzed or destroyed. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 132, 133, 137; Pain v. Pain, 80 N. C. 322.

Contempt of Referee Punished by Court.—When, in the course of proceedings supplementary to the execution, a witness is examined by a referee, a contempt, in refusing to answer the questions, must be punished by the court making the reference. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 132, 133.

Judge Passes on Inability to Comply.—Where a party to an action, having been directed to perform an order of the court, otherwise to be in contempt, applied, after notice, to have the order discharged, and offered to produce affidavits showing his inability to comply with the order, it was the duty of the judge to hear and pass on the affidavits. Childs v. Wiseman, 119 N. C. 497, 26 S. E. 126.

SUBCHAPTER XI. HOMESTEAD AND EXEMPTIONS

Art. 31. Property Exempt from Execution

§ 728. Property exempted.—The homestead and personal property exemptions as defined and declared by the article of the state constitution entitled Homesteads and Exemptions are exempt from sale under execution and other final process, as provided in the state constitution: Provided, the allotment of the homestead shall, as to all property therein embraced, suspend the running of the statute of limitations on all judgments against the homesteader during the continuance of the homestead: Provided, further, the owners of judgments docketed since March eleventh, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, have two years from the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred and one, within which to assign and set apart their homesteads under such judgments. (Rev., s. 685; Code, s. 501; 1885, c. 359; 1887, c. 17; 1895, c. 397; 1901, c. 612; 1879, c. 256; R. C., c. 45, s. 7; 1848, c. 38; R. I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—In Poe v. Hardie, 65 N. C. 447, the homestead has been called a "determinable fee," and in Littlejohn v. Egerton, 77 N. C. 379, it is spoken of as "a quality annexed to land whereby the estate is exempted from sale under execution". These inadvertent expressions, as to the effect produced upon the debtor's estate in the exempt land, have led to serious difficulties in interpreting the beneficent provisions of the constitution and subsidiary statutes in securing a home to the debtor and his family, without trenching needlessly upon the rights of creditors.

The correct view is expressed by Bynum, J., in Bank v. Green, 78 N. C. 247, 252: "Their legal effect is simply to protect the occupant in the enjoyment of the land, set apart as a homestead, unmolested by his creditors". No new estate is conferred upon the owner, and no limitation is imposed upon his old estate. It is obvious that it would be more correct to say that there is conferred upon him a determinable exemption from the payment of his debts in respect to the particular property allotted to him. It cannot be contended that the assignment is in any sense a conveyance of land, nor does it profess to pass title. It only serves to indicate where the homestead is and whether there is any excess subject to levy and sale to pay judgment creditors. See Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 273; Mebane v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396; Markham v. Hicks, 90 N. C. 204.

Favored by Law.—The law favors the homestead. Every safeguard is given the homesteader and the courts have carefully protected his rights as guaranteed by the Constitution. Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

Estoppel to Claim.—Under certain circumstances the homesteader is estopped from claiming the homestead exemption. Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 755, 143 S. E. 465, citing Caudle v. Morris, 160 N. C. 168, 76 S. E. 17; Simmons v. McCullin, 163 N. C. 409, 412, 79 S. E. 625; Duplin County v. Harrell, 195 N. C. 445, 142 S. E. 481.

Equity of Redemption.—It is well settled that the homestead may be allotted in an equity of redemption. Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465. Citing Cheatham v. Jones, 68 N. Mebane v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396; Cumming v. Bloodworth, 87 N. C. 83, 85.

Definition of a Homestead.—In Hager v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 108, 110, it is said: "No precise definition of a homestead is given in the constitution, and it would only mislead us if we should look into dictionaries or the laws of other states and take the definitions there given as fixing the meaning of the word as given in our laws. We must look to our own legislation alone to ascertain what it is."

Same—Not an Estate.—A homestead is not an estate at all, but merely an exemption. Candle v. Morris, 160 N. C. 168, 76 S. E. 17; Chadbourn Sash, etc., Co. v. Parker, 153 N. C. 130, 69 S. E. 1; Thomas v. Fulford, 117 N. C. 667, 23 S. E. 635; Jones v. Britton, 102 N. C. 166, 9 S. E. 554. See also, Hicks v. Wooten, 175 N. C. 597, 96 S. E. 107.

In Thomas v. Fulford, 117 N. C. 667, 671, 23 S. E. 635, it was said: "In some of the earlier decisions it is treated as an estate and called a determinable fee, but this doctrine has long since been abandoned and we have numerous decisions that hold the homestead is not an estate, but an exemption only.

Same—Not Color of Title.—The assignment of a homestead does not constitute color of title. Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 273, 277.

Time of Application.—The "poor debtor" is in time if he makes his application and procures the assignment to be made at any time before the property is changed and converted by a sale. State v. Floyd, 33 N. C. 496, 498.

Assignment by Sheriff Not Needed to Vest Right.—The action of a sheriff in assigning a homestead by metes and bounds is not needed to any extent to vest the right, but merely to find the quantum so as to enable him to ascertain the excess, if any. Gheen v. Summey, 80 N. C. 188. See also, Littlejohn v. Egerton, 77 N. C. 379, 380.

Sale by Homesteader of Estate in Reversion.—A sale by the owner of a homestead of his estate in reversion stands as at common law, and the owner has full power to sell it, or to mortgage it if he desires to raise money on the credit of it. Jenkins v. Bobbitt, 77 N. C. 385, 387.

When Applicable to Old Debts.—The provisions of the law, securing a homestead and personal property exemption, are not necessarily void as against "old debts," but only so, in case they should defeat their payment in whole or in part. Even against such claims, the debtor has a right to have his allotments made and the excess sold and applied in payment thereof. Albright v. Albright, 88 N. C. 238.

B. Nature and Duration of Exemptions.

Effect of Exemption Laws.—Exemption laws have no extraterritorial force or effect. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 225, 49 S. E. 173; Sexton v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 1, 43 S. E. 479; Balk v. Harris, 122 N. C. 64, 30 S. E. 318.

The exemption laws of this state protect the property of a debtor in this state from exemptions issuing from the courts of this state, and (by congressional action) from the courts of the United States. Balk v. Harris, supra.

Exemptions relate only to the remedy, and the right to an exemption is subject to the law of the forum. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 225, 49 S. E. 173; Sexton v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 1, 3, 43 S. E. 479.

Same—Remedial in Nature.—Exemption laws are remedial in their nature and should always receive a liberal construction. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 225, 236, 49 S. E. 173.

Same—Exchange of Exempt Goods.—If an article of property, which has been exempt from execution, is exchanged for another article, the one received in exchange is not exempt. Lloyd v. Durham, 60 N. C. 282, 283.

Presumption in Favor of Exemption. — There is a presumption of fact in favor of the exemption, and the creditor who seeks to subject the homestead to the payment of his debt, must bring himself within one of the exceptions by proper averment and proof. Mebane v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396.

Duration of Exemption.—The personal property exemption exists only during the life of the homesteader. Smith v. McDonald, 95 N. C. 163; Johnson v. Cross, 66 N. C. 167.

How Choses in Action Made Available.—Except in case of attachment proceedings wherein provision is made for exceptional and urgent cases, choses in action can only be made available to the creditor by civil action in the nature of an equitable fi. fa. or by the statutory method of supplemental proceedings, both of which remedies in proper instances are here still open to claimants. McIntosh Grocery Co. v. Newman, 184 N. C. 370, 373, 114 S. E. 535; Boseman v. McGill, 184 N. C. 215, 114 S. E. 10.

II. CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS AND PURPOSE.

A. In General.

Favored by Constitution.—The homestead interest is favored by the Constitution. Leak v. Gay, 107 N. C. 468, 12 S. E. 312.

Purpose of Homestead Provisions.—The framers of the Constitution meant exactly what they said and ordained, that a certain part of the real property of the debtor should be set apart for his use and occupation, where he might dwell with his family in peace and contentment without any creditors to molest or make him afraid, so long as he might live, and to extend the benefit of the exemption to the wife during her life, if there should be no children of the marriage, and if there were children then during the minority of the children or any one of them. The leading idea, if not the only one, was to create an exemption and not an estate, and an exemption for a limited period only, leaving the estate which the debtor already had in the land unimpaired. Joyner v. Sugg, 132 N. C. 580, 583, 44 S. E. 122.

The homestead law is a beneficent provision for the protection of a wife and children against the neglect and improvidence of the father and husband. Hughes v. Hodges, 102 N. C. 236, 9 S. E. 437.

Pre-existing Debt.—The second section of Article X of the Constitution of 1868, which exempts from execution real property of a resident debtor not exceeding in value one thousand dollars, was declared void as to pre-existing debts, being in contravention of Article I. Sec. 10 of the Federal Constitution. Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U. S. 595, decided in Edwards v. Kearsey, 74 N. C. 241. For the law governing cases which arose subsequent to this one concerning pre-existing debts, see Earle v. Hardie, 80 N. C. 177; Richardson v. Wicker, 80 N. C. 172, 173; Gamble v. Rhyne, 80 N. C. 183.

Where a homestead is sold to satisfy a debt created before the ratification of the Constitution of 1868, one thousand dollars of the proceeds of sale, if that sum is left after paying the old debt, will be treated as the homestead. Leak v. Gay, 107 N. C. 468, 12 S. E. 312.

Homestead is Vested Right.—The homestead right is a right vested by the Constitution, and cannot be destroyed by any irregularity in the proceedings for its allotment. Formeyduval v. Rockwell, 117 N. C. 320, 23 S. E. 488.

B. Who Entitled to Homestead and Exemptions.

Only Residents Entitled to Homestead and Exemptions.—The homestead and personal property exemptions can be claimed only by residents of this state. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 225, 49 S. E. 173; Jones v. Alsbrook, 115 N. C. 46, 20 S. E. 170.

Same—Constitutional Purpose.—The right of homestead provided and secured by the Constitution (Art. X, sections 2, 5, 8), is incident to residence in this state. Only residents have and are entitled to such right. A non-resident has no such right, although he may be the owner of real property situated in the state. The terms of the Constitution do not embrace him, and moreover, the plain purpose is to exempt the homes of those who have or can acquire them "from sale under execution or other final process obtained on any debt." He has no home within the state for himself or his family, and the reason for the exemption as to him does not exist. Baker v. Legget, 98 N. C. 304, 305, 4 S. E. 37.

Residents Defined.—The leading purpose of the Constitution, Article X, secs. 1, 2, 3, 8, is to secure the homestead to the debtor and his family and the term "resident" therein should be so construed as to accomplish that purpose, unless there should be found some positive or necessary and reasonable rule of law to the contrary. Chitty v. Chitty, 118 N. C. 647, 649, 24 S. E. 517.

The words "a resident of this state," employed in the Constitution, Art. X, Sec. 2, in respect to homesteads, have a more restricted meaning than that usually given to domicile. Lee v. Mosely, 101 N. C. 311, 7 S. E. 874.

The residence must be actual, and not constructive. Munds v. Cassidy, 98 N. C. 558, 4 S. E. 353, 355.

Same—Forfeiture of Right. — If the person claiming a homestead voluntarily removes from the state, with a purpose to make his home elsewhere, he forfeits his right in this respect. Finley v. Saunders, 98 N. C. 462, 4 S. E. 516.

Where a debtor ceased to be a resident of the state before his property became applicable to a creditor's claim, the general exemption laws of the state do not operate in his favor. Wierse v. Thomas, 145 N. C. 261, 59 S. E. 261, 59 S. E. 58, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1008.

A resident, after executing a deed of trust of his property, with a recital reserving his personal property exemptions, and after assigning his exemptions so reserved, became a nonresident without having his exemptions allotted to him. Neither the assignee nor the attaching creditors could get the benefit of the exemptions. Latta v. Bell, 122 N. C. 639, 30 S. E. 15. See also, Norman v. Craft, 90 N. C. 211.

Right Not Destroyed by Fraud.—When the owner of lands has had his deed thereto to his wife set aside by his creditors as fraud upon them, and has continued in the occupation of the lands, he is still entitled to his homestead interest therein. Rose v. Bryan, 157 N. C. 173, 72 S. E. 960; Rankin v. Shaw, 94 N. C. 405, 407.

When Wife and Children Succeed to Homestead.—The wife and children only succeed to the homestead in the event of the death of the father or husband. They are not entitled to it after his removal from the state, though they may remain. Finley v. Saunders, 98 N. C. 462, 4 S. E. 516.

A widow is not entitled to a homestead in the lands of her husband if he die leaving children—minors or adults. Wharton v. Leggett, 80 N. C. 169, 171. See also Hager v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 108, 113. But see later case under "Purpose of Homestead Provisions," supra.

When Dower Right Paramount to Homestead Right.—In Watts v. Leggett, 66 N. C. 197 Pearson, C. J., speaking for the court, said: "If the homestead had been laid off in the lifetime of the husband, at his death the dower of the wife would have been assigned so as to include the dwelling house in which the husband had usually resided and buildings used therewith. Thus the dower would be assigned so as to include the homestead or a part thereof, and the right of dower having attached at the time of marriage, would have been paramount, and the right of the children to enjoy the homestead during the minority of any one of them must have been taken subject to this paramount right of dower, the effect being to postpone the enjoyment of the children as to so much of the homestead as is covered by the dower, until the death of the widow, leaving them, of course, to the present enjoyment of such part of the homestead and land appertaining thereto as is not covered by the dower." See also, Gregory v. Ellis, 86 N. C. 579, 583.

Reversionary Interest.—The reversionary interest in a homestead cannot be sold by an administrator in a petition to make real estate assets during the minority of one of the children of the intestate. Hinsdale v. Williams 75 N. C. 430. See also, Mebane v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396, 400; Maynard v. Moore, 76 N. C. 158, 162; Barnes v. Cherry, 190 N. C. 772, 130 S. E. 611.

Collateral Attack—When Void.—The allotment of a homestead to one having no right thereto is void, and may be attacked collaterally. Williams v. Whitaker, 110 N. C. 393, 14 S. E. 924.

Mortgage or Deed of Trust Paramount.—As against a mortgage or deed of trust, the grantor has no right of homestead. Roper v. National Fire Ins. Co., 161 N. C. 151, 76 S. E. 869.

Adverse Possession under Sheriff's Deed.—Where there is an actual adverse possession under a sheriff's deed, the Supreme Court, in order to give full effect to the constitutional provision, will remand the case to the end that the superior court may have the homestead laid off. Littlejohn v. Egerton, 77 N. C. 379.

C. Homestead in Land Only.

Not Applicable to Proceeds of Sale.—The law confers a homestead right only in land, and not in the proceeds of the sale of land. Utley v. Jones, 92 N. C. 261.

Where a homestead is sold, the proceeds lose the quality of homestead exemptions, and become subject to the personal property exemption. Lane v. Richardson, 104 N. C. 642, 10 S. E. 189.

Lands Subject to Homestead Right.—To claim a homestead in land it must be owned and occupied by and allotted to the claimant at the time of the issuance of the execution; and the vendee of a judgment debtor cannot claim and have laid off a homestead in the lands conveyed as against a levy by the sheriff thereon under a judgment had against the vendor prior to his deed. Chadbourn Sash etc., Co. v. Parker, 153 N. C. 130, 131, 69 S. E. 1.

The owner of land is not restricted to the tract of land on which he resides. Mayho v. Cotton, 69 N. C. 289.

Reservation of Right.—A reservation of an indefinite right of homestead in land from a conveyance thereof is valid. Kirkwood v. Peden, 173 N. C. 460, 92 S. E. 264.

III. JUDGMENTS AND LIENS—SUSPENSION OF LIMITATIONS.

Limitations.—The running of the statute of limitations on a judgment is not suspended until there has been an actual allotment of a homestead. Farrar v. Harper, 133 N. C. 71, 45 S. E. 510.

Same—As to Judgments.—When the judgment debtor's homestead is allotted, the allotment, as to all property therein embraced, suspends the running of the statute of limitations on all judgments against the homesteader during the continuance of the homestead. Barnes v. Cherry, 190 N. C. 772, 774, 130 S. E. 611; Formeyduval v. Rockwell, 117 N. C. 320, 325, 23 S. E. 488.

Same—Judgments Docketed.—The statute of limitations does not run against a debt of a homesteader during the existence of his interest in the homestead, provided it has been actually laid off; and then only as to debts affected by the allotment, that is, judgments docketed in the county where the land is situated and solely with reference to the lien of such judgments upon the reversionary interest. Morton v. Barber, 90 N. C. 399; McDonald v. Dickson, 85 N. C. 248.

In Cotten v. McClenahan, 85 N. C. 254, 258, it was said: "There is no stay to the statute until there has been an allotment of the homestead, and then only to the enforcement of the liens of docketed judgments upon the interest in reversion. As to all other debts and for all other purposes the statute runs." Quoted in Kirkwood v. Peden, 173 N. C. 460, 465, 92 S. E. 264.

The laying off of a homestead under a docketed judgment suspends the statute of limitations during the continuance of the homestead, and when it has been laid off since the enactment of the statute it is taken by the homesteader subject to its provisions, and upon conveyance thereof is subject to execution under the judgment. Watters v. Hedgpeth, 172 N. C. 310, 90 S. E. 314.

In Davenport v. Fleming, 154 N. C. 291, 294, 70 S. E. 472, it was said: "It follows that when the ownership of a tract of land and any and all interests therein, except the homestead interest, has been passed from the debtor by valid conveyance, and such homestead interest determines by the death of the parties entitled, or by any of the recognized methods of abandonment, it does so in favor of the grantee in such conveyance, and where such conveyance has become effective before a judgment is docketed, there is no estate in the debtor to which a judgment lien could attach and no interest of the judgment creditor in the property that would call for or permit the interference of a court in his behalf by injunction or otherwise." Quoted, approved, and followed in Kirkwood v. Peden, 173 N. C. 460, 463, 92 S. E. 264.

Same—Ten Year Limitation.—The lien of a judgment on land in which a homestead has been duly alloted does not cease upon the expiration of ten years from the date of the judgment but continues during the continuance of the homestead estate, notwithstanding a sale and conveyance of the land by the homesteader. Bevan v. Ellis, 121 N. C. 224, 28 S. E. 471.

Under a statute limiting the life of the docketed judgment to ten years, a lien of such judgment is not prolonged by the allotment and recording of the homestead to the debtor after the expiration of ten years, though the judgment was kept revived. Wilson v. Beufort County Lumber Co., 131 N. C. 163, 42 S. E. 565.

The Judgment Lien.—The Acts of 1885, ch. 359 restored the lien of a docketed judgment upon land set apart as a homestead. Rankin v. Shaw, 94 N. C. 405, 408.

In Jones v. Britton, 102 N. C. 166, 168, 9 S. E. 554, it was said: "The condition and measure of the state of the owner of the homestead in the land is not changed by, or because of, the homestead—the estate, unchanged, continues—and the restriction, the limitation that distinguishes the homestead, is upon the right of the judgment creditor to have the land sold by execution or other proper final process to satisfy his docketed judgment, which constitutes his lien upon the land."

This lien is not meaningless and nugatory; it implies that the creditor shall have the property devoted to the satisfaction of his judgment debt, as far as may be necessary, when and as soon as the exemption of it from sale shall be over. The law is true and sincere; it does not thus create and allow a lien in favor of the creditor, and leave the owner of the homestead at liberty to destroy the property, and thus render such lien worthless. He is allowed to live upon and use it, but not destroy or impair the substance of it, as against the creditor having a lien. Jones v. Britton, 102 N. C. 166, 170, 9 S. E. 554.

Lien by Attachment.—The lien of an attachment levied upon land of a non-resident debtor is paramount to the right of a homestead therein acquired by the debtor by becoming a citizen of the State prior to the rendition of judgment in the action. Watkins v. Overby, 83 N. C. 165.

Vendor's Lien.—A vendor's lien for the purchase money "does not attach to personalty" (39 Cyc., 1804), and in this State we have gone further and have refused to follow the English doctrine, giving such a lien in sales of land. Befarrah v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 233, 100 S. E. 321.

Judgment for Improvements.—A defendant has the equitable right to improvements he has put on the land, and the plaintiff is not entitled to a homestead in the improved lands as against a judgment for the improvements. Barker v. Owen, 93 N. C. 198, 204.

Merger of Judgments.—Where a judgment creditor sues on his judgment constituting a lien on the homestead of the debtor and obtains a new judgment, the first judgment is not merged in the second. Springs v. Pharr, 131 N. C. 191, 42 S. E. 590, 92 Am. St. Rep. 775.

Judgments Obtained Prior to 1868.—A judgment obtained on an obligation incurred prior to the Constitution of 1868, could have been enforced on the lands of the judgment debtor, notwithstanding the allotment thereof as a homestead under another judgment, and is barred by the ten-year statute of limitations. Blow v. Harding, 161 N. C. 375, 77 S. E. 340.

As against the liens of judgment creditors, a mortgagor of lands is entitled to his homestead exemption in his equity of redemption and an injunction will lie against the sale of the property under execution when his homestead has not been allotted. Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 143 S. E. 465.

§ 729. Conveyed homestead not exempt.—The allotted homestead is exempt from levy so long as owned and occupied by the homesteader or by any one for him, but when conveyed by him in the mode authorized by the constitution, article ten, section eight, the exemption ceases as to liens attaching prior to the conveyance. The homesteader who has conveyed his allotted homestead may have another allotted, and as often as is necessary. This section shall not have any retroactive effect. (Rev., s. 686; 1905, c. 111.)

Construction of Constitution.—This section is in accordance with the views of the court, and expresses the proper construction of the Constitution, Article X, sec. 2. Chadbourn v. Sash, etc., Co. v. Parker, 153 N. C. 130, 69 S. E. 1.

Conveyance of Homestead.—The homestead exemption ceases upon its conveyance by the homesteader. Crouch v. Crouch, 160 N. C. 447, 449, 76 S. E. 482; Candle v. Morris, 160 N. C. 168, 173, 76 S. E. 17.

Title to exempt property does not pass to the trustee in bankruptcy, and where the debtor's homestead has been laid off and the lien of a judgment has attached thereto after the discharge of the bankrupt, the judgment creditor, under whose judgment the homestead was first laid off, may issue execution against the lands after the same has been conveyed by the homesteader. Watters v. Hedgpeth, 172 N. C. 310, 90 S. E. 314.

Same—Examination of Wife.—Where a homesteader seeks to convey his homestead, joinder and privy examination of the wife is necessary only when the homestead has been allotted. Dalrymple v. Cole, 170 N. C. 102, 104, 86 S. E. 988; Mayho v. Cotton, 69 N. C. 289, 292; Hager v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 108.

Section Not Retroactive.—By its express terms this section does not have a retroactive effect, and has no application to homesteads allotted prior to 1905. Watters v. Hedgpeth, 172 N. C. 310, 90 S. E. 314.

Under the section a vendee cannot acquire title under color until seven years adverse possession since 1905. Crouch v. Crouch, 160 N. C. 447, 449, 76 S. E. 482.

Cited in Farris v. Hendricks, 196 N. C. 439, 442, 146 S. E. 77; Duplin County v. Harrell, 195 N. C. 445, 142 S. E. 481; Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

§ 730. Sheriff to summon and swear appraisers.—Before levying upon the real estate of any resident of this state who is entitled to a homestead under this article, and the constitution of this state, the sheriff [a deputy sheriff designated by the sheriff, and who shall be twenty-one years of age or over], or other officer charged with the levy shall summon three discreet persons qualified to act as jurors, to whom he shall administer the following oath: "I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have no interest in the homestead exemption of C. D., and that I will faithfully perform the duties of appraiser (or assessor, as the case may be), in valuing and laying off the same. So help me, God." In cases where he deems it necessary he may summon the county surveyor or some other competent surveyor to assist in laying off the homestead by metes and bounds. (Rev., s. 687; Code, s. 502; 1893, c. 58; 1868-9, 137, s. 2; 1931, c. 58.)

Cross References.—As to the form of a certificate to be endorsed on return, see sec. 751 no. 4; as to resident within the meaning of this section, see annotations under sec. 728.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 inserted the words in brackets in this section, and provided that the amendment should apply only to the counties of Guilford, Mecklenburg, Ashe, Jackson, Alamance, Martin, Brunswick, Davidson, Sampson, Davie, Randolph, Lenoir, Durham, Wilson, Cumberland, Scotland, New Hanover, Vance, Rowan, Henderson, Cabarrus, Pitt, Rockingham, Chowan, Gates, Perquimans, Pasquotank, Camden, Currituck, Hertford, Edgecombe, Harnett, Forsyth, Iredell, Lincoln, Bertie, Caldwell, Wayne, Halifax, Buncombe, Johnston, and Moore.

Public Laws 1933, c. 37, makes the amendment of 1931 applicable also in Duplin, Graham and Martin counties. Public Laws 1933, c. 147, made the amendment of 1931 applicable in Onslow county.

Duty of Officer Mandatory.—This section enjoins upon the sheriff the mandatory duty of summoning three discreet persons to appraise and allot a homestead to any judgment debtor who is entitled to such exemption, before levying an execution in his hands upon the land. Neither his ignorance of the rights of a debtor nor his obstinate refusal to recognize them will be allowed to defeat the latter's claim to the benefit of a homestead for which the Constitution provides, though the presumption of law prevails in favor of the legality of his action in selling until a party attacking it shows its invalidity because made in disregard of a statute enacted to carry into effect the organic law. Dickens v. Long, 112 N. C. 311, 316, 17 S. E. 150.

Costs on Creditor.—A sheriff who has an execution against a debtor entitled to a homestead should have such homestead laid off at the expense of the execution creditor. Lute v. Reilly, 65 N. C. 20; Taylor v. Rhyne, 65 N. C. 530.

Appraisers—Qualifications.—There is no requirement that appraisers in order to allot the homestead shall have the qualification of being freeholders, as is the case with extraordinary or tales jurors, but simply that they shall be "qualified to act as jurors," i. e., as ordinary or regular jurors. Hale Bros. v. Whitehead, 115 N. C. 28, 20 S. E. 166.

Same—Exception.—An exception on the ground of the disqualification of an appraiser of a homestead exemption should be taken before the appraisers enter upon the discharge of their official duties. Burton v. Spiers, 87 N. C. 87.

Same—May Be Appointed by Clerk.—For the allotment of a homestead, the court may direct the clerk to appoint three commissioners for that purpose. Benton v. Collins, 125 N. C. 83, 95, 34 S. E. 242.

Same—Constable May Summons.—A constable, to whom an execution from the court of a justice of the peace has been delivered, may summons appraisers and administer to them the prescribed oaths. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 373, 7 S. E. 883.

Necessity That Appraisers Be Sworn.—Appraisers appointed to lay off a homestead must be sworn; and unless it appears that they were sworn the proceedings may be treated as a nullity. Smith v. Hunt, 68 N. C. 482.

Same—Oath Administered by Deputy Sheriff.—That appraisers laying off a homestead were sworn by a deputy sheriff is, at most, an irregularity, and can not be taken advantage of in a collateral proceeding if exceptions were not taken in apt time. Oates v. Munday, 127 N. C. 439, 37 S. E. 457.

Cited in Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

§ 731. Duty of appraisers; proceedings on return.—The appraisers shall value the homestead with its dwelling and buildings thereon, and lay off to the owner or to any agent or attorney, in his behalf, such portion as he selects not exceeding in value one thousand dollars, and must fix and describe the same by metes and bounds. They must then make and sign in the presence of the officer a return of their proceedings, setting forth the property exempted, which shall be returned by the officer to the clerk of the court for the county in which the homestead is situated and filed with the judgment roll in the action, and a minute of the same entered on the judgment docket, and a certified copy thereof under the hand of the clerk shall be registered in the office of the register of deeds for the county. The officer must likewise make a transcript of the return over his hand and return it without delay to the clerk of the court of the county from whence the execution issued, and said clerk must likewise file and make minute of the same as above directed. In all judicial proceedings the original return or a certified copy may be read in evidence. (Rev., ss. 688, 689; Code, ss. 503-4; 1868-9, c. 137, ss. 3-4; 1877, c. 272.)

Cross References.—As to appeal as to reallotment, see sec. 733. As to reallotment for increase of value, see sec. 732; As to form of appraisers return, see sec. 751. As to costs of laying of and appraising homestead, see sec. 1251.

Interpretation of Section.—The section, prescribing how the homestead shall be valued and laid off, is as broad and comprehensive in its terms and effect as it can be; properly interpreted, there is no exceptive provision in it, by implication or otherwise, as to any debt or class of debts; it allows, and in legal effect requires, that the homestead shall be valued and laid off in every case where it may be done. Long v. Walker, 105 N. C. 90, 118, 10 S. E. 858.

Valuation of Land and Buildings.—The section provides that "the appraisers shall thereupon proceed to value the homestead with its dwellings and buildings thereon, and lay off," etc. This evidently means that the land and buildings there shall be valued together in making up the estimate of a thousand dollars. Ray v. Thornton, 95 N. C. 571, 577.

Same—Must Not Exceed $1,000.—Where lands belonging to a judgment creditor are indivisible, he is not entitled to have the whole of it allotted to him as a homestead, if it exceeds one thousand dollars in value. Campbell v. White, 95 N. C. 491, 494.

Where the jury value the tract at $2,000, the land should be divided into two parts of equal value, and the homesteader will take his choice. Shoaf v. Frost, 123 N. C. 343, 344, 31 S. E. 653.

Same—When Less than $1,000.—An allotment of a homestead to the value of $800, laid off under execution, does not render the allotment void, especially when the plaintiff in an independent action contesting its validity has introduced the former record containing the proceedings for laying off the homestead, and contends on appeal that it was erroneously admitted in the trial court. Carstarphen v. Carstarphen, 193 N. C. 541, 137 S. E. 658.

Same—Conclusive.—The valuation placed on the tract of land by the jury is conclusive. Shoaf & Co. v. Frost, 123 N. C. 343, 344, 31 S. E. 653.

Same—May Take Present Value.—Judgment creditors cannot complain of the homesteader's election to take the present value of his homestead. Leak v. Gay, 107 N. C. 482, 12 S. E. 315.

Same—Duty of Appraisers.—The duty of the appraisers extends no further than the valuation and allotment by bounds of the homestead. Aiken v. Gardner, 107 N. C. 236, 239, 12 S. E. 250.

In the allotment of a homestead the appraisers should estimate the value of the interest of the homesteader in the land, taking into consideration any encumbrances thereon, and assign to him his interest in the land, and not the corpus itself. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 125 N. C. 179, 34 S. E. 273.

Manner of Allotment.—The law does not intend that the defendant shall have the empty form of a homestead, but the substance as well, when he has land that may be laid off to him for that purpose, and this without reference to whether it embraces the dwelling house or not. Generally the dwelling house and buildings used therewith, must be embraced, but there may be reasons why this cannot be done, as when the land on which they are situated is encumbered for all or more than its value. Flora v. Robbins, 93 N. C. 38, 40.

Where a judgment debtor owned several town lots, some of which, including the one on which his dwelling was situated, in which he resided—were encumbered by prior liens (mortgages) to the extent of their full value, and the others were unencumbered, it was held, that he had the right to have his homestead allotted from the unencumbered lands without reference to whether they embraced his dwelling and other buildings. Flora v. Robbins, 93 N. C. 38.

Same—Must Be in Severalty.—There must be a specific allotment of the homestead in severalty without any community of interest between the homesteader and the purchaser of the excess. Campbell v. White, 95 N. C. 491, 494.

Debtor's Right to Select.—A judgment debtor is entitled to an opportunity to be present and exercise his constitutional right to select his homestead; and where it appears upon the face of the return that he was not present, by no fault of his own, the appraisal and allotment of a homestead under an execution is void. McKeithen v. Blue, 142 N. C. 360, 55 S. E. 285; McGowan v. McGowan, 122 N. C. 164, 29 S. E. 372.

Same—What Constitutes.—Where a mortgagor conveyed his personal property, more than $500 in value, with a clause in the deed reserving his "personal property exemption and to be selected by him" the title to the whole of it passed to the mortgagee and remained in him, until the exempted articles were legally set apart; and the act of executing a second mortgage conveying a part of said property is not a selection of such part, nor a separation of the same from the bulk. Norman v. Craft, 90 N. C. 211.

Description of Allotment.—When the land is sufficiently identified the allotment is not open to the objection that the homestead should have been fixed and described by metes and bounds. Kelly v. McLeod, 165 N. C. 382, 384, 81 S. E. 455; Ray v. Thornton, 95 N. C. 571.

Report of Appraisers.—The omission of appraisers to insert in their report the date of the allotment is not a sufficient ground for vacating it. Bevans v. Goodrich, 98 N. C. 217, 223, 3 S. E. 516.

It is allowable for appraisers of a homestead to amend their return before it has been filed. Gudger v. Penland, 118 N. C. 832, 834, 23 S. E. 921.

Same—When Registration Not Necessary.—It is not necessary to have the appraisers' return of the allotment of the homestead registered in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county in which the homestead is situated, (provided it is filed in the judgment roll of the action in which the judgment was rendered) in order to make the judgment lien valid and binding on the homestead until the homestead estate shall expire. The filing of the return in the judgment roll, is constructive notice to all who have dealings with the homesteader concerning the homestead. Bevan v. Ellis, 121 N. C. 224, 28 S. E. 471. See also, Carstarphen v. Carstarphen, 193 N. C. 451, 546, 137 S. E. 558; Crouch v. Crouch, 160 N. C. 447, 76 S. E. 482.

The unregistered allotment of a homestead is competent evidence, unless objected to in apt time. Gudger v. Penland, 118 N. C. 832, 833, 23 S. E. 921.

Same—As Notice of Extent.—The direction contained in the section as to the disposition to be made of the report of the exemption, is not to give notice of its extent only, but to subject it to a motion made in a reasonable time to set it aside. Burton v. Spiers, 87 N. C. 87, 90.

Cited in Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

§ 732. Reallotment for increase of value.—A judgment creditor of a debtor whose homestead has been allotted may apply in writing to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the homestead lies for an order for its reallotment, if there is in the hands of the sheriff of that county an execution issued from the proper court against said debtor. The application must be accompanied by the affidavits of three disinterested freeholders of the county in which the homestead lies, setting forth that, in their opinion, it has increased in value fifty per centum or more since the last allotment. Upon the filing of the application and affidavits the clerk shall issue notice to the judgment debtor to appear before him on a day not more than five days from the day of its service and show cause why his homestead should not be reallotted. The notice must state upon whose application it is issued. Upon the return day of the notice the clerk shall consider the affidavits filed, as heretofore required, and any additional affidavits filed by either party, and if he is of opinion that the homestead has probably appreciated in value fifty per centum or more since the last allotment, he shall command the sheriff to reallot to the judgment debtor his homestead, in the same manner as if no homestead had been allotted. If upon the reallotment any excess is found, it shall be disposed of by the sheriff as in ordinary cases of execution and levy. This section does not prevent the judgment creditor from resorting to the equity jurisdiction of the courts for a reallotment of the homestead of his judgment debtor in any case. (Rev., s. 691; 1893, c. 149.)

As to costs, see sec. 1244.

Procedure for Reallotment.—If the increase is 50 per cent or more, the creditor may have a reallotment in a proceeding before the clerk, in aid of an execution in the sheriff's hands. If the increase is less than 50 per cent, the judgment creditor can proceed by suit in the nature of an equitable action to subject the excess to his debt. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 125 N. C. 179, 34 S. E. 273; Vanstory v. Thornton, 110 N. C. 10, 14 S. E. 637.

Where a portion of the land included in the allotment was subject to a mortgage prior thereto, and has since been sold thereunder, in making the reallotment it must clearly appear that this portion was not included in the revaluation. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 125 N. C. 179, 34 S. E. 273.

Same—Intrinsic and Market Value.—If it appears, upon a reallotment of the homestead, that the value thereof has increased, it is immaterial in point of law whether the increase had come in the market value or in the intrinsic value, the effect is the same—the homestead is not to exceed in value the sum of $1,000. McCaskill v. McKinnon, 125 N. C. 179, 34 S. E. 273.

§ 733. Appeal as to reallotment.—From the order of the clerk commanding or refusing a reallotment, either party may appeal to the judge resident in or holding the courts of the district, who shall hear the matter in chambers in any county of the judicial district to which, belongs the county in which the proceedings were instituted. In other respects the proceedings upon such appeal are as now provided for appeals from the clerk on issues of law. (Rev., s. 691; 1893, c. 149.)

Cited in Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

§ 734. Levy on excess; return of officer.—The levy may be made upon the excess of the homestead, not laid off according to this chapter, and the officer shall make substantially the following return upon the execution: "A. B., C. D., and E. F., summoned and qualified as appraisers or assessors (as the case may be), who set off to X. Y. the homestead exempt by law. Levy made upon the excess." (Rev., s. 692; Code, s. 505; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 5.)

Cross Reference.—As to sale of the excess, see annotations to sections under Execution, Article 27, and Execution and Judicial Sales, Article 28.

The levy must be only upon the excess. Gardner v. McConnaughey, 157 N. C. 481, 483, 73 S. E. 125.

Cited in Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

§ 735. When appraisers select.— If no selection is made by the owner, or any one acting in his behalf, of the homestead to be laid off as exempt, the appraisers shall make selection for him, including always the dwelling and buildings used therewith. (Rev., s. 693; Code, s. 506; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 6.)

When No Buildings on the Land.—If the land proposed to be sold is all that the execution debtor has, he is entitled to have his homestead therein laid off to him, although there is no dwelling house or other habitable building thereon, because he may build a house and other buildings on the land, and thus have the beneficent provisions of the Constitution. McCracken v. Adler, 98 N. C. 400, 403, 4 S. E. 138; Flora v. Robbins, 93 N. C. 38; Murchison v. Plyer, 87 N. C. 79; Spoon v. Reid, 78 N C. 244.

§ 736. Homestead in tracts not contiguous.— Different tracts of land not contiguous may be included in the same homestead, when a homestead of contiguous land is not of the value of one thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 694; Code, s. 509; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 15.)

Application of Section.—While it may have been supposed by the framers of the organic law that a debtor would usually elect to have his homestead allotted in his dwelling-place and the surrounding land, his choice is not positively restricted to that, nor to contiguous land. Fulton v. Roberts, 113 N. C. 421, 425, 18 S. E. 510. Hughes v. Hodges, 102 N. C. 236, 9 S. E. 437; Flora v. Robbins, 93 N. C. 38

A homestead may be laid off in two tracts of land not contiguous, the two not exceeding $1,000 in value. Martin v. Hughes, 67 N. C. 293.

§ 737. Personal property appraised on demand. —When the personal property of any resident of this state is levied upon by virtue of an execution or other final process issued for the collection of a debt, and the owner or an agent, or attorney in his behalf, demands that the same, or any part thereof, be exempt from sale under such execution, the sheriff or other officer making the levy shall summon three appraisers, as heretofore provided, who, having been first duly sworn, shall appraise and lay off to the judgment debtor such articles of personal property as he or another in his behalf selects and to which he is entitled under this article and the constitution of the state, in no case to exceed in value five hundred dollars, which articles are exempt from said levy, and return thereof shall be made by the appraisers, as upon the laying off of a homestead exemption. (Rev., s. 695; Code, s. 507; 1868-9, c. 137, ss. 12, 13.)

Cross References.—As to summons, oath, and qualification of appraisers, see sec. 730, and annotations thereto. As to return made by appraisers, see sec. 731. As to oath and fees, see sec. 738. As to right to claim income from life insurance policies as exempt, see note in 12 N. C. Law Rev., 67.

Section Subsidiary to Constitution.—This section was enacted to carry out the provisions of Art. X section 1. Jones v. Allsbrook, 115 N. C. 46, 49, 20 S. E. 170.

Continuation of Levy.—In Shepherd v. Murrill, 90 N. C. 208, 210, the language of the section, "whenever the personal property of any resident of this state shall be levied upon," etc., is held to mean, at any time, while it is levied upon, and the levy continues to the day of sale.

Same—Time of Allotment.—The complete capacity to make the allotment would always remain until the day of sale, and we can see no reason, certainly no substantial reason, why it might not be done on the day of the levy, or on any day before the sale, or on that day. Shepherd v. Murrill, 90 N. C. 208, 210.

Unlike the homestead exemption, which must be allotted before levying upon the land, the right to personal property exemption may be insisted on at any time before sale, or appropriation of the property by the court. Befarrah v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 233, 100 S. E. 321; Chemical Co. v. Sloan, 136 N. C. 122, 48 S. E. 577.

So long as an execution is in the officer's hands and in force, the preliminary action of the appraisers is in fieri and capable of correction and amendment, and it is a right both of the debtor and the creditor that the exemption shall be ascertained up to and just before the process is executed by a sale, so that, in behalf of the debtor, the exemption may be enlarged if any property to which he is entitled has been omitted, and so that, in behalf of the creditor, no exemption shall be allowed to the debtor if it appears at the sale that he is not entitled to the same. Jones v. Allsbrook, 115 N. C. 46, 20 S. E. 170.

Order of Court as Final Process.—The order of the court directing the payment of money is "final process," within the meaning of the Constitution and this section. Befarrah v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 233, 100 S. E. 321.

Debtor's Right of Selection.—It is immaterial how much, or what other personal estates, the debtor possessed, the statute gives him the right, when his property is seized under execution, to select such, not exceeding the limits in value, as he may prefer to retain as exempt. Scott v. Kenan, 94 N. C. 298, 303.

Property from Which Exemption is Made.—In laying off the personal property exemption of a debtor, the property upon which there is no lien must be first exempted. Cowan v. Phillips, 122 N. C. 72, 28 S. E. 961.

Same—Choses in Action.—A chose in action may be chosen by a debtor as a part of his exemption. Frost v. Naylor, 68 N. C. 325, cited in note in L. R. A. 1915 D. 382.

A judgment is personal property, and, if it was required to make up the amount to which the person, in whose favor it was rendered, is entitled to exemption, it is the duty of the officer having the execution to so allot it. Curlee v. Thomas, 74 N. C. 51, 54.

Property Not Subject to Exemption.—A tenant cannot claim his personal property exemption out of the crops, as against his landlord, until the rents are paid. Hamer v McCall, 121 N. C. 196, 197, 28 S. E. 297.

Fines and Costs in Criminal Action.—The personal property exemption cannot be claimed as against a fine and costs in a criminal action. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 414, 415, 23 S. E. 370.

Value of Exemption.—The section merely follows the language of the Constitution, Art. X, Sec. 1, in giving each resident of the state a personal property exemption of $500, against execution as any other final process. Befarrah v. Spell, 178 N. C. 231, 233, 100 S. E. 321.

A debtor is entitled to $500 of personal property as a personal property exemption, and when this amount has been once allotted, and has been diminished by use, loss or other cause, the debtor has a right to have any other personal property he may have exempted, up to the prescribed limit. Campbell v. White, 95 N. C. 344.

Right Personal to Debtor.—As far as personal property is concerned, the right of exemption is personal to the debtor, and it loses its quality of exemption as soon as it is transferred. Lane v. Richardson, 104 N. C. 642, 10 S. E. 189.

Appraiser's Report.—When there has been a failure to levy under an execution on the property of a judgment debtor, a report of the jury of appraisers to set aside his personal property exemption will be void which does not set aside to him specifically the articles his exemption gives him, or allow him an opportunity to select the articles. Gardner v. McConnaughey, 157 N. C. 481, 73 S. E. 125.

Same—Made to Clerk.—The return of the appraisers of personal property exemptions should be made to the clerk of the superior court, but an allotment is not vitiated by making it returnable to another place. The court has power to direct the return to be made to the proper office, and it should exercise that power instead of dismissing the proceedings for defect in the return. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 7 S. E. 883.

When Exception Not Regular.—Where a defendant's exceptions to an allotment did not comply with the requirements of the section and while the proceeding was not, in some respects, regular, but when it appears that the defendant's constitutional right has not been preserved, the matter of form becomes immaterial, and the facts having been found by the judge and all the parties are before the court, the proceeding may be treated as a motion in the cause and relief administered. McKeithen v. Blue, 142 N. C. 360, 55 S. E. 285.

§ 738. Appraiser's oath and fees.—The persons summoned to appraise the personal property exemption must take the same oath and are entitled to the same fees as the appraisers of the homestead, and when both exemptions are claimed by the judgment debtor, at the same time, one board of appraisers must lay off both, and are entitled to but one fee. (Rev., s. 696; Code, s. 508; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 14.)

As to oaths required of homestead appraisers, see sec. 730.

Necessity of Oath.—Freeholders appointed to allot personal property exemptions must be sworn, and it must appear that they were sworn. Smith v. Hunt, 68 N. C. 482, 484.

§ 739. Returns registered.—It is the duty of the register of deeds to indorse on each of said returns the date when received for registration, and to cause the same to be registered without unnecessary delay. He shall receive for registering the returns the same fees allowed him by law for other similar or equivalent services, which fees shall be paid by said resident applicant, his agent or attorney, upon the reception of the returns by the register. (Rev., s. 698; Code, s. 513; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 9.)

§ 740. Exceptions to valuation and allotment; procedure.—If the judgment creditor for whom levy is made, or judgment debtor or other person entitled to homestead and personal property exemption, is dissatisfied with the valuation and allotment of the appraisers or assessors, he, within ten days thereafter, or any other creditor within six months and before sale under execution of the excess, may notify the adverse party and the sheriff having the execution in hand, and file with the clerk of the superior court of the county where the allotment is made a transcript of the return of the appraisers or assessors which they or the sheriff shall allow to made upon demand, together with his objections in writing to said return. Thereupon the said clerk shall put the same on the civil issue docket of the superior court for trial at the next term thereof as other civil actions, and such issue joined has precedence over all other issues of that term. The sheriff shall not sell the excess until after the determination of said action. The ten days and six months respectively begin to run from the date of the filing of the return of the valuation and allotment of the appraisers or assessors by the officer with the clerk of the superior court of the county from whence the execution issued. (Rev., s. 699; Code, s. 519; 1887, c. 272, s. 2; 1883, c. 357.)

As to proof of service, see section 489. As to costs of reassessment, see sec. 1252.

Editor's Note.—By the Act of 1868-69, ch. 137 it was provided that if a judgment creditor, or debtor entitled to a homestead, should be dissatisfied with the allotment of the appraisers, it should be the duty of the township trustees to examine the action of the appraisers, and make a report of their findings.

The township board of trustees was a quasi corporation, organized under the Constitution of 1868, with limited governmental functions. The duty of reassessing the allotments of homesteads, etc., was not one of its corporate powers, but was a duty imposed upon its individual members by the Legislature.

The Act of 1876-'77, ch. 141 abrogated several sections of Art. VII of the Constitution of 1868, including the one creating the Board of Township Trustees. The Board of County Commissioners was created to exercise the jurisdiction vested in and exercised by the boards of trustees of the several counties. But it would seem that the county commissioners were given only the corporate duties and powers of the boards of trustees, and not those duties and obligations imposed by legislative enactment. Hence, there was a failure to deposit elsewhere an appellate jurisdiction for revising the action of the appraisers. The remedy for a party, creditor or debtor aggrieved, seemed to be in a direct application to the court to which the execution and allotment were returnable, yet there was no basis for such procedure. The Legislature came to the relief of the situation by passing the Act of 1883, ch. 357; the the first section of which constitutes this section. See Hartman v. Spiers, 94 N. C. 150; Jones v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 278; Burton v. Spiers, 87 N. C. 87, 90; Hartman v. Spiers, 87 N. C. 28, 31.

Estopped from Claiming Additional Allotment.—An allotment of a homestead to the debtor of lands less in value than one thousand dollars, regular in form and unobjected to within the time allowed by law, was an estoppel of the debtor from claiming any additional allotment in other lands which he had at the time of the allotment. Whitehead v. Spivey, 103 N. C. 66, 9 S. E. 319.

Time of Application.—The application for a re-assessment of a homestead by the township board of trustees (now the superior court) must be made before the sale of the excess by the sheriff. Heptinstall v. Perry, 76 N. C. 190.

Service of Notice.—Notices of dissatisfaction with allotment of personal property exemption under the section cannot be served by mail or given orally. Allen v. Strickland, 100 N. C. 225, 6 S. E. 780.

Where Exception Filed.—Exceptions to the allotment of a homestead or personal property exemptions, in all cases, must be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the allotment is made, together with a transcript of the allotment or appraisement. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 7 S. E. 883.

The section does not require that the exception be filed in the court of a justice of the peace if the judgment shall be in or the execution shall issue thereupon from that court. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 371, 7 S. E. 883.

Appraiser's Return.—The return of the appraisers of the personal property exemption in question should regularly have been made by the constable to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the appraisal was made, and filed there as directed in the statute; but that the return was inadvertently or improperly made to the court of the justice of the peace did not render the appraisal and allotment void. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 372, 7 S. E. 883.

Collateral Attack of Allotment.—An allotment of a homestead cannot be collaterally attacked by the judgment debtor or anyone claiming under him. Formeyduval v. Rockwell, 117 N. C. 320, 325, 23 S. E. 488; Welch v. Welch, 101 N. C. 565, 570, 8 S. E. 156.

If he is dissatisfied therewith, he must present his objections in the manner prescribed by this section. Welch v. Welch, 101 N. C. 565, 8 S. E. 156.

Where a homesteader acquiesces in allotment of his homestead for many years, a grantee of the homesteader will not be permitted to defeat judgment creditors by proof of purchase in good faith for a full price. Oates v. Munday, 127 N. C. 439, 37 S. E. 457.

§ 741. Increase demanded; jury verdict; commissioners; report.—When an increase of the exemption or an allotment in property other than that set apart is demanded, the party demanding must in his exceptions specify the property from which the increase or reallotment is to be had. If the appraisal or assessment is reduced, the jury shall assess the value of the property embraced therein; if increased, the value of the property specified in the objections from which the increase is demanded shall also be assessed; but if the allotment is made in property other than that first set apart, the jury shall assess the value of the property so allotted. The court shall appoint three disinterested commissioners to lay off and set apart the homestead and personal property exemption in accordance with the verdict of the jury and the judgment of the court, and in the manner prescribed by law. The commissioners, who shall be summoned by the sheriff, must meet upon the premises and, after being sworn by the sheriff or a justice of the peace to faithfully perform the duties of appraisers or assessors in allotting and laying off the homestead or personal property exemption, or both, in accordance with the verdict and judgment aforesaid, must allot and lay off the same and file their report to the next term of the court, when it shall be heard by the court upon exceptions thereto. (Rev., s. 700; 1885, c. 347.)

When Valuation by Jury Unnecessary.—Where the debtor designated the particular land which he desires to have allotted him as "an increase of exemption" and the creditors assent thereto, neither party can demand that the property shall be valued by a jury. Bevans, etc. & Co. v. Goodrich, 98 N. C. 217, 220, 3 S. E. 516.

Appointment and Summons of Commissioners.—Upon an appeal from the appraisal of a homestead and personal property exemptions and the assessment of the value thereof by a jury, the commissioners to set apart the exemptions in accordance with the verdict must be appointed by the court and summoned by the sheriff. Shoaf & Co. v. Frost, 116 N. C. 675, 21 S. E. 409.

Valuation by Jury Is Final.—Upon an appeal from an appraiser the valuation as determined by the verdict of the jury is final and the commissioners appointed by the court to set apart the exemptions in accordance with the verdict must be guided by that valuation. Shoaf & Co. v, Frost, 116 N. C. 675, 21 S. E. 409; Shoaf & Co. v. Frost, 121 N. C. 256, 28 S. E. 412.

§ 742. Undertaking of objector.—The creditor, debtor, or claimant objecting to the allotment made by the appraisers or assessors under execution or petition must file with the clerk of the superior court an undertaking in the sum of one hundred dollars for the payment to the adverse party of such costs as are adjudged against him. (Rev., s. 701; Code, s. 522.)

§ 743. Set aside for fraud, or irregularity.—An appraisal or allotment by appraisers or assessors may be set aside for fraud, complicity, or other irregularity; but after an allotment or assessment is made or confirmed by the superior court at term time, as hereinbefore provided, the homestead shall not thereafter be set aside or again laid off by any other creditor except for increase in value. (Rev., s. 702; Code, s. 523.)

Cross References.—As to reallotment for increase of value, see sec. 732; as to appeal as to re-allotment, see sec. 733.

When Reason Not Sufficient.—An allotment of a homestead will not be set aside, because it might have been assigned in a manner more convenient to the homesteader. Ray v. Thornton, 95 N. C. 571.

Where the homestead has once been regularly allotted and set apart, it cannot be re-allotted at the instance of a judgment creditor whose debt was in existence when the allotment was made, except for fraud or other irregularity. Gully v. Cole, 96 N. C. 447, 1 S. E. 520. This case was decided before the enactment of Secs. 732, 733.

§ 744. Return registered; original or copy evidence.—When the homestead and personal property exemption is decided by the court at term time the clerk of the superior court shall immediately file with the register of deeds of the county a copy of the same, which shall be registered as deeds are registered; and in all judicial proceedings the original or a certified copy of the return may be introduced in evidence. (Rev., s. 703; Code, s. 524.)

Object of Section.—The object of the section is to give notice to all persons dealing with the owner of the homestead, that it is his homestead, not subject to be sold "under execution" or other final process obtained on any debt against him. Gully v. Cole, 96 N. C. 447, 449, 1 S. E. 520.

§ 745. Allotted on petition of owner.—When any resident of this state desires to take the benefit of the homestead and personal property exemption as guaranteed by article ten of the state constitution, or by this article, such resident, his agent or attorney, must apply to a justice of the peace of the county in which he resides, who shall appoint as assessors three disinterested persons, qualified to act as jurors, residing in said county. The jurors, on notice by the order of the justice, shall meet at the applicant's residence, and, after taking the oath prescribed for appraisers before some officer authorized to administer an oath, lay off and allot to the applicant a homestead with metes and bounds, according to the applicant's direction, not to exceed one thousand dollars in value, and make and sign a descriptive account of the same and return it to the office of the register of deeds.

Said assessors shall set apart of the personal property of said applicant, to be by him selected, articles of personalty to which he is entitled under this chapter, not exceeding in value the sum of five hundred dollars, and make, sign and return a descriptive list thereof to the register of deeds. (Rev., s. 697, 704; Code, ss. 511, 512; 1868-9, c. 137, ss. 7, 8.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of petition, see section 751, no. 2; as to form for return, see sec. 751 no. 3; As to who is a resident within the meaning of the section, see annotations under sec. 728; as to qualifications of assessors, see annotations under sec. 730; as to precedure generally see annotations under secs. 728-731.

Who May Petition.—In Hughes v. Hodges, 102 N. C. 236, 254, Merrimon, J., dissenting, said as follows:

"It is not true that the homestead right is operative and beneficial only when the owner is in debt, or pressed by 'final process, obtained on any debt.' It is ever operative; the owner has the right, though he might owe nothing, and be possessed of great wealth, his wife and children have the benefit of it, and he could divest himself of it only with the assent of his wife. He might have it valued and laid off to him at any time, though ordinarily he would not do so."

Nature of Proceedings.—The allotment of a homestead is a quasi in rem proceeding. Williams v. Whitaker, 110 N. C. 393, 395, 14 S. E. 924.

Return of Appraisers.—A return of the appraisers of the personal property set apart, which designates it with sufficient certainty, is all that the section requires. Ray v. Thornton, 95 N. C. 571.

Same—Descriptive List.—Appraisers of personal property for exemption, must make such a descriptive list of the property as will enable creditors to ascertain what property is exempt. Smith v. Hunt, 68 N. C. 482, 484.

Cited in Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

§ 746. Advertisement of petition; time of hearing.—When a person entitled to a homestead and personal property exemption files the petition before a justice of the peace to have the same laid off and set apart under the preceding sections, the justice shall make advertisement in some newspaper published in the county, for six successive weeks, and if there is no newspaper in the county, then at the courthouse door of the county in which the petition is filed, notifying all creditors of the applicant of the time and place for hearing the petition. The petition shall not be heard nor any decree made in the cause in less than six nor more than twelve months from the day of making advertisement as above required. (Rev., s. 705; Code, s. 515; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 11.)

Who Are Bound.—Only those persons having actual or constructive notice are bound thereby. Williams v. Whitaker, 110 N. C. 393, 14 S. E. 924.

§ 747. Exceptions, when allotted on petition.—When the homestead or personal property exemption is allotted on the petition of the person entitled thereto, any creditor may, within six months from the time of the assessment or appraisal, and upon ten days notice to the petitioner, file his objections with the register of deeds of the county in which the premises are situated, and the register of deeds shall return the same to the clerk of the superior court of that county, who shall place them on the civil issue docket, and they shall be tried as provided for homestead and exemptions set off under execution. (Rev., s. 706; Code, s. 520.)

§ 748. Allotted after death of homesteader.—If a person entitled to a homestead exemption dies without the homestead having been set apart, his widow, if he leaves no children, or his child or children under the age of twenty-one years, if he leaves such, may proceed to have the homestead exemption laid off by petition. If the widow or children have failed to have the exemption set apart in the manner provided, then in an action brought by his personal representatives to subject the realty of the decedent to the payment of debts and charges of administration, it is the duty of the court to appoint three disinterested freeholders to set apart to such widow, child or children a homestead exemption under metes and bounds in the lands of the decedent. The freeholders shall under their hands and seals make return of the same to the court, which shall be registered in the same manner as homestead exemptions. (Rev., s. 707; Code, s. 514; 1893, c. 332; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 10.)

As to widows and minor children entitled to homestead, see annotations under Sec. 728.

Purpose and Constitutionality.—The manifest purpose of the section is to prevent the widow and minor children from being prejudiced by the failure of one entitled to a homestead to cause it to be laid off in his lifetime. It cannot be supposed that the effect of the statute is to go beyond the Constitution when its professed object is to carry into effect its provisions. Watts v. Leggett, 66 N. C. 197.

Widow Entitled to Homestead.—A widow who has no homestead of her own, is entitled to have one allotted to her out of the lands of her deceased husband, even though no homestead was allotted to him during his life. Smith v. McDonald, 95 N. C. 163.

But a widow cannot, under this section, have a homestead laid off for herself and minor children after the death of her husband when he died without leaving debts. Hager v. Nixon, 69 N. C. 108.

Unborn Child Entitled to Allotment.—A child in ventre sa mere at the time of its father's death is entitled to have a homestead allotted from the homestead of its father. In Re Seabolt, 113 Fed. 766, 771.

When to "Widow and Minor Children".—The fact that an assignment of a homestead was made to "the widow and minor children" of decedent does not make it void, since it will be considered surplusage as to the widow. Formeyduval v. Rockwell, 117 N. C. 320, 23 S. E. 488.

When Homestead Can Not Be Divested.—A homestead, whether laid off to a husband in his lifetime, or to his widow (there being no children), after his death, can not be divested in favor of the heir by the release or extinguishment of the deceased husband's debts. Tucker v. Tucker, 103 N. C. 170, 9 S. E. 299.

Widow Not Entitled to Exemption of Personalty.—The personal property exemption exists only during the life of the homesteader, and after his death his widow has no right to have it allotted to her. Smith v. McDonald, 95 N. C. 163.

§ 749. Liability of officer as to allotment, return and levy.—Any officer making a levy, who refuses or neglects to summon and qualify appraisers as heretofore provided, or fails to make due return of his proceedings, or levies upon the homestead set off by appraisers or assessors except as herein provided, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and he and his sureties are liable to the owner of the homestead for all costs and damages in a civil action. (Rev., ss. 708, 3584; Code, s. 516; 1868-9, c. 137, s. 17.)

Officer's Breach of Duty.—The section subjects the sheriff to indictment and to liability on his official bond for disregard or non-performance of his duty under the provisions of the law relating to homestead and personal property exemptions. Welch v. Welch, 101 N. C. 565, 569, 8 S. E. 176; Mebane v. Layton, 89 N. C. 396, 400. Richardson v. Wicker, 80 N. C. 172, 174; State v. Barefoot, 104 N. C. 224, 228, 10 S. E. 170.

And for such a breach of duty, an action on the officer's official bond lies in favor of the debtor. Scott v. Kenan, 94 N. C. 298, 302.

Where a complaint alleges that a judgment debtor demanded his personal property exemptions in apt time, but that the sheriff failed and refused to allot it to him, and afterwards sold the property and applied the money to executions in his hands, it sufficiently alleges a breach of the bond. Scott & Burton v. Kenan, 94 N. C. 298.

Same—Measure of Damages.—The measure of damages is the actual loss sustained, and not the value of the property at the time of the levy. Jones v. Allsbrook, 115 N. C. 46, 53, 20 S. E. 170.

Cited in Cheek v. Walden, 195 N. C. 752, 754, 143 S. E. 465.

§ 750. Liability of officer, appraiser, or assessor, for conspiracy or fraud.—Any officer, appraiser, or assessor who willfully or corruptly conspires with a judgment debtor, judgment creditor, or other person, to undervalue or to overvalue the homestead or personal property exemption of a debtor, or applicant, or assigns false metes and bounds, or makes or procures to be made a false and fraudulent return thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor and is liable to the party injured thereby for all costs and damages in a civil action. (Rev., ss. 690, 3585, 3586; Code, ss. 517, 518; 1868-9, c. 137, ss. 18, 19.)

Duty of Sheriff.—It is the duty of a sheriff to lay off the homestead of the defendant in the execution, and to sell the excess in a prudent and just manner so as to realize a fair price. Andrews v. Pritchett, 72 N. C. 135, 137.

§ 751. Forms.—The following forms must be substantially followed in proceedings under this article:

[No. 1]

Appraiser's Return.

When the homestead is valued at less than one thousand dollars, and personal property also appraised.

The undersigned having been duly summoned and sworn to act as appraisers of the homestead and personal property exemption of A. B., of ..... Township, ... County, by C. SUBCHAPTER XII. SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS

Art. 32. Special Proceedings

§ 752. Chapter applicable to special proceedings.—The provisions of this chapter on civil procedure are applicable to special proceedings, except as otherwise provided. (Rev., s. 710; Code, s. 278.)

Statutory Provisions.—The provision that "any person may be made a defendant who has or claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff, etc.," contained in section 456 is applicable in special proceedings. Welfare v. Welfare, 108 N. C. 272, 12 S. E. 1025; but in an action by the heirs at law for partition of an intestate's lands, the administrator cannot be made a party defendant, upon his opposition to the partition, as he does not come within the foregoing provision. Garrison v. Cox, 99 N. C. 478, 6 S. E. 124.

§ 753. Contested special proceedings; commencement; summons. — Special proceedings against adverse parties shall be commenced as is prescribed for civil actions. The summons shall command the officer to summons the defendant or defendants to appear and answer the complaint of the plaintiff within thirty days after its service upon the defendant or defendants, and must contain a notice stating in substance that if the defendant or defendants fail to answer the complaint within the time specified, plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint. The return date of the summons, the manner of service, whether by the sheriff or by publication shall be as is prescribed for summons in civil actions by section four hundred and seventy-six (476) of the Consolidated Statutes; provided, however, the clerk shall indicate on the summons by appropriate words that the summons is issued in a special proceeding and not in a civil action. Provided, however, that in special proceedings before the Clerk, the plaintiff or petitioner shall not be required to serve a copy of the petition upon each of the defendants, as required in civil actions, but in lieu thereof such petitioner or petitioners may deliver to the Clerk at the time of the issuance of the summons copies (not to exceed three) of the petition for the use of the defendants; and provided, further that the summons in special proceedings shall command the sheriff or other proper officer to summons the defendant, or defendants, to appear and answer the complaint of the plaintiff within ten (10) days after its service upon defendant or defendants in lieu of thirty (30) days as required in civil actions. (Rev., ss. 711, 712; Code, ss. 279, 287; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 4; 1927, c. 66, s. 753; 1929, cc. 50, 237, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended twice by Public Laws of 1929. Ch. 50 changed the second sentence which formerly read: "The summons shall command the officer to summons the defendant to appear at the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court on a day named in the summons, to answer the complaint or petition of the plaintiff." Ch. 237, also amended the second sentence and added the proviso.

Condemnation Proceedings.—A special proceeding for the purpose of condemning land for railroad purposes must be begun by the issuance of a summons. Carolina R. R. Pennearden Lumber Co., 132 N. C. 644, 650, 44 S. E. 358.

No Sessions of Court in Proceedings Before Clerk.—There are no terms or sessions of court for proceedings pending before the clerk, each case having its own return day; and a demurrer to a petition or written motion made and entitled in the original cause in proceedings for partition before the clerk to set aside a judgment therein, on the ground that it fails to state the term at which it was rendered, is bad. Hartsfield v. Bryan, 177 N. C. 166, 98 S. E. 379.

Duty of Clerk to Issue Execution.—It is the duty of the clerk of the court, upon the application of the plaintiff, to issue, in proper cases, the execution against the person of the defendant. Kinney v. Laughenour, 97 N. C. 325, 329, 2 S. E. 43.

Some form of action or special proceeding is essential to the rendition of a judgment and in this state it must always be commenced by summons or attachment. Morris v. House, 125 N. C. 550, 560, 34 S. E. 712.

Less Than Ten Days Notice Given.—When the time between service and the return day of the summons is less than the time allowed by this section the clerk is not bound to dismiss the action, but should allow further time to the defendant for an appearance. Stafford v. Gallops, 123 N. C. 19, 23, 31 S. E. 265, and a judgment so rendered is not void but merely irregular. Id.

Where Service Made Returnable to Court in Term.—Where a summons in a special proceeding was improperly made returnable to the superior court in term, it was proper for the judge to remand the proceeding, with directions that the summons be amended so as to make it returnable before the clerk on a day certain. Simmons v. Norfolk, etc., Steamboat Co., 113 N. C. 147, 18 S. E. 117.

§ 754. Return of summons.—The officer to whom the summons is addressed shall note on it the day of its delivery to him, and, if required by the plaintiff, shall execute it immediately. When executed, he shall immediately return the summons with the date and manner of its execution, by mail or otherwise, to the clerk of the court issuing it. (Rev., s. 713; Code, s. 280; C. C. P., s. 75.)

Cross Reference.—See section 475 et seq. and notes thereto.

The failure of the clerk to note on the summons the day it was received is irregular but does not render the summons void. Strayhorn v. Blaloch, 92 N. C. 292, 294.

Before Whom Returnable.—The summons in special proceedings is returnable before the clerk. Tate v. Powe, 64 N. C. 644

"Service" Prima Facie Sufficient.—When the sheriff returns that he has "served" the summons, this is prima facie sufficient and implies that he has served it as the statute directs, until the contrary is made to appear in some proper way. Strayhorn v. Blaloch, 92 N. C. 292, 294.

Fees—Under the practice of the Code of Civil Procedure a sheriff is not required to execute process until his fees are paid or tendered by the person at whose instance the service is to be rendered; but this does not excuse him for a failure to make a return of the process. A writ of summons is a mandate of the court, and must be obeyed by its officer, and if he has any valid excuse for not executing the writ, he must state it in his return. Jones v. Gupton, 65 N. C. 48; Johnson v. Kenneday, 70 N. C. 436.

§ 755. When complaint filed.—The plaintiff must file his complaint or petition with the clerk of the court to which the summons is returnable, at the time of issuing the summons or within ten days thereafter. (Rev., s. 714; Code, s. 281; C. C. P., s. 76; 1876-7, c. 241, s. 4.)

Regular Action Bars Right to Special Proceedings.—Where an action in the nature of a creditor's bill was brought by the plaintiff (a creditor of defendant's testatrix) to the superior court at term time, and after the institution of the action the defendant commenced a special proceeding in the probate court for a sale of the land of his testatrix for assets, it was held, that the superior court had acquired jurisdiction of the matter, and that the defendant should be restrained from further proceedings in the probate court. Haywood v. Haywood, 79 N. C. 42.

§ 756. Nonsuit for failure to file.—If the plaintiff fails to file his complaint or petition within the time limited by the summons for the appearance and answer of the defendant, the defendant may demand judgment of nonsuit against the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 715; Code, s. 282; C. C. P., s. 78.)

§ 757. Filing time enlarged.—The time for filing the complaint, petition, or any pleading may be enlarged by the court for good cause shown by affidavit, but may not be enlarged by more than ten additional days, nor more than once, unless the default was occasioned by accident over which the party applving had no control, or by the fraud of the opposing party. (Rev., s. 716; Code, s. 283; C. C. P., s. 79.)

Power of Clerk Extinguished.—Where the power of the clerk to enlarge the time allowed for the filing of an answer no longer exists where he refused the motion for the removal of an administrator from office and on appeal the order is reversed and the case remanded. Patterson v. Wadsworth, 94 N. C. 538, 540.

§ 758. Defenses pleaded; transferred to civil issue docket; amendments.—In special proceedings a defendant or other party thereto may plead any equitable or other defense, or ask any equitable or other relief in the pleadings which it would be competent to ask in a civil action; and when such pleas are filed the clerk shall transfer the cause to the civil issue docket for trial during term upon all issues raised by the pleadings. The trial judge may, with a view to substantial justice between the parties, allow amendments to the pleadings and interpleas in behalf of any person claiming an interest in the property. (Rev., s. 717; 1903, c. 566.)

Clerk Must Transfer Case Where Equitable Defense Pleaded.—"When a party shall plead any equitable or other defence, or ask for any equitable or other relief in the pleadings, it is required that the clerk shall transfer the cause to the civil issue docket, for trial during term, upon all issues raised by the pleadings, and the Judge may allow amendments to the pleadings for the purpose of a hearing of the case upon its merits." Little v. Duncan, 149 N. C. 84, 85, 62 S. E. 770.

Questions of Fact Decided by Clerk.—Questions of fact are first determined by the clerk and on appeal they are subject to review by the judge. Vanderbilt v. Roberts, 162 N. C. 273, 78 S. E. 156.

Clerk May Not Grant Affirmative Equitable Relief.—The clerk, in special proceedings, has no power to make any order granting affirmative equitable relief. Equitable defenses may be set up in the answer in such proceedings by way of avoidance, and when such equitable defenses exist they should be so pleaded; but when pleaded they amount to no more than defenses, and cannot be affirmatively administered. Vance v. Vance, 118 N. C. 864, 24 S. E. 768.

Right to Jury Trial.—In special proceedings, pending before clerks, the parties have the right to insist that any issue of fact raised by the pleadings shall be framed by the clerk and transmitted to the superior court in term for trial by jury. Southern R. Co. v. Porter, 105 N. C. 246, 247, 11 S. E. 328.

Same—Alimony without Divorce.—When in special proceedings for alimony without divorce, the right of trial by jury arises and the case should be transferred by the judge to the civil issue docket for the purpose. Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149.

Same—Waiver.—Where they fail, before an order appointing commissioners is made, to insist upon a verdict upon the controverted facts, they waive the right of trial by jury. Southern R. Co. v. Porter, 105 N. C. 246, 248, 11 S. E. 328.

Boundary Disputes.—For full treatment of partitioning of land and settlement of boundary disputes, see section 361 et seq. and the notes thereto.

Amendments on Appeal.—In cases of appeal from the probate court (now the clerk of the superior court) to the superior court the judge has the same right to allow amendments as if the case had been constituted in his court. Sudderth v. McCombs, 67 N. C. 353.

Evidence Considered Upon Appeal.—If there be issues of law or material questions of fact decided by the clerk, they may be reviewed by the judge at term or in chambers, on appeal properly taken; and in passing upon these questions of fact, the court may act on the evidence already received, or if this is not satisfactory, it may ordinarily require the production of other evidence as an aid in the proper disposition of the question presented. Mills v. McDaniel, 161 N. C. 112, 76 S. E. 551.

§ 759. Ex parte; commenced by petition.—If all the parties in interest join in the proceeding and ask the same relief, the commencement of the proceedings shall be by petition, setting forth the facts entitling the petitioners to relief, and the nature of the relief demanded. (Rev., s. 718; Code, s. 284; 1868-9, c. 93.)

Judgment Creditors May Become Parties.—Where the executor has filed a proper petition for the sale of realty to pay debts, the judgment creditors interested in the surplus, if not made parties, and desiring to contest one of the debts set out in the partition for fraud, may make themselves parties and proceed therein accordingly, the procedure being ex parte on the part of the executor and an independent action by them will not lie for fraud until after final judgment in the proceedings. Wadford v. Davis, 192 N. C. 484, 135 S. E. 353.

§ 760. Clerk acts summarily; authority from nonresident.—In cases under the preceding section, if all persons to be affected by the decree, or their attorney, have signed the petition and are of full age, the clerk of the superior court has power to hear and decide the petition summarily. If any of the petioners reside out of the state, an authority from them, to the attorney, in writing, must be filed with the clerk before he may make any order or decree to prejudice their rights. (Rev., s. 719; Code, s. 285; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 2.)

All Parties Interested Must be Joined.—When in special proceeding, under which certain timber interests were sold by a commissioner, it does appear upon the face of the record that certain persons of age were not made parties, or that they have not appeared as such in person or by attorney, or have waived their rights, they are not bound by a judgment rendered therein, and as to them the entire proceeding is void upon its face. Moore v. Rowland Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 261, 63 S. E. 953.

§ 761. Judge approves when petitioner is infant.—If any petitioner is an infant, or the guardian of an infant, acting for him, no final order or judgment of the clerk, affecting the merits of the case and capable of being prejudicial to the infant, is valid, unless submitted to and approved by the judge resident or holding court in the district. (Rev., s. 720; Code, s. 286; 1887, c. 61; C. C. P., s. 420; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 3.)

Infants Represented by Guardian.—In an ex parte proceeding to sell land for assets infant heirs are represented by a guardian or next friend, and the order must be approved by the judge. Harris v. Brown, 123 N. C. 419, 424, 31 S. E. 877.

Same—Where Represented by Administrator.—While it is irregular for the administrator in such case to represent a minor heir as guardian, yet, where there is no suggestion of any unfair advantage having been taken in the sale, confirmation or elsewhere in the proceeding, such irregularity will not vitiate the title of purchaser. Harris v. Brown, 123 N. C. 419, 420, 31 S. E. 877.

Who May Approve.—An emergency judge has the same jurisdiction for making approvals under this section as has the regular judge of the superior court. See discussion in 1 N. C. L. Rev. 284.

One who joins as infant in a petition is bound by the judgment, though it is not approved by the judge of the court. Lindsay v. Beaman, 128 N. C. 189, 190, 38 S. E. 811.

Court Presumed to Have Protected Interests of Infants.—Where the lands of infants are sold under an order of the superior court upon an ex parte petition, in which the infants are represented by next friends, it is presumed that the court protected their interests, and was careful to see that they suffered no prejudice. Tyson v. Belcher, 102 N. C. 112, 9 S. E. 634.

Cited in Ward v. Agrillo, 194 N. C. 321, 323, 139 S. E. 451.

§ 762. Orders signed by judge.—Every order or judgment in a special proceeding required to be made by a judge of the superior court, in or out of term, must be authenticated by his signature. (Rev., s. 722; Code, s. 288; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 5; 1872-3, c. 100.)

Section, While Directory, Should Always Be Observed.—"We have a plain provision in our statute law requiring every judgment granted by a judge to be signed by him. And this Court has held that this statute, apparently mandatory, should always be observed; still it is held to be only directory, and a judgment passed in open court and filed with the papers as a part of the judgment roll is a valid judgment, though not signed by the judge." Range Co. v. Carver, 118 N. C. 328, 338, 24 S. E. 352. Matthews v. Joyce, 85 N. C. 258; Rollins v. Henry, 78 N. C. 342; Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 273; Spencer v. Credle, 102 N. C. 68, 8 S. E. 901; Bond v. Wool, 113 N. C. 20, 18 S. E. 77.

§ 763. Reports of commissioners and jurors.—Every order or judgment in a special proceeding imposing a duty on commissioners or jurors must prescribe the time within which the duty must be performed, except in cases where the time is prescribed by statute. The commissioners or jurors shall within twenty days after the performance of the duty file their report with the clerk of the superior court, and if no exception is filed to it within twenty days, the court may proceed to confirm the same on motion of any party and without special notice to the other parties. (Rev., s. 723; 1893, c. 209.)

Confirmation Discretionary with the Court.—The confirmation by the court, if no exception is filed to the report within the twenty days after it is filed with the clerk, lies within the discretion of the court. Ex parte Garrett, 174 N. C. 343, 93 S. E. 838; but in partition proceedings it is obligatory for the court to confirm the same. Id.

Proceedings to Sell Land Appealable.—A proceeding to sell lands to make assets to pay the debts of the deceased, under this section, is appealed from the clerk of the Superior Court, and open to revision and such further orders or decrees on the part of the judge as justice and the rights of the parties may require, and to be heard and decided by him on the same or such additional evidence as may aid him to a correct conclusion of the matter. Perry v. Perry, 179 N. C. 445, 102 S. E. 772.

Same—Jurisdiction of Judge.—The fact that the commissioner appointed to sell lands to make assets to pay the debts of a deceased person has sold them several times under resales ordered by the clerk of the Superior Court, and that the clerk has granted the purchaser's motion to confirm the sale after the lapse of more than twenty days from the last sale, without an advanced bid until after the expiration of that time, does not affect the jurisdiction of the judge on appeal to examine into the matter and order resale upon being satisfied that justice and the rights of the parties require it. Perry v. Perry, 179 N. C. 445, 102 S. E. 772.

Power of Clerk.—The clerk has no power to confirm a sale reported by a commissioner until the expiration of twenty days from the date on which the report was filed. Vance v. Vance, 203 N. C. 667, 668, 166 S. E. 901.

Applied in Buncombe County v. Arbogast, 205 N. C. 745, 172 S. E. 364.

§ 764. No report set aside for trivial defect.—No report or return made by any commissoners may be set aside and sent back to them or others for a new report because of any defect or omission not affecting the substantial rights of the parties, but the defect or omission may be amended by the court, or by the commissioners with permission of the court. (Rev., s. 724; Code, s. 289; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 7.)

Report Conclusive until Set Aside.—The report of commissioners appointed to condemn lands and assess damages for the purpose of drainage is, like the verdict of a jury, conclusive of the facts therein ascertained, until set aside. Norfolk Southern R. Co. v. Ely, 101 N. C. 8, 7 S. E. 476.

Substantial Rights Affected.—The omission in a report of commissioners to make partition of lands to state affirmatively that the allotments in their opinion were equal in value, affects the substantial rights of the parties, and the clerk or judge may set it aside with directions, either that the commissioners shall make a reallotment, or that others shall be appointed to do so. Skinner v. Carter, 108 N. C. 106, 12 S. E. 908.

Description of Land Unnecessary. — A report of the commissioners is not invalid because it does not contain a description. Hanes v. R. R., 109 N. C. 490, 491, 13 S. E. 896; nor is it mandatory that such report be under seal. Id.

§ 765. Commissioner of sale to account in sixty days.—In all actions or special proceedings when a person is appointed commissioner to sell real or personal property, he shall, within sixty days after the maturity of the note or bond for the balance of the purchase money of said property, or the payment of the amount of the bid when the sale is for cash, file with the clerk of the superior court a final account of his receipts and disbursements on account of the sale; and the clerk must audit the account and record it in the book in which the final settlements of executors and administrators are recorded. If any commissioner appointed in any action or special proceeding before the clerk fails, refuses or omits to file a final account as prescribed in this section, or renders an insufficient or unsatisfactory account, the clerk of the superior court shall forthwith order such commissioner to render a full and true account, as required by law, within twenty days after service of the order. Upon return of the order, duly served, if such commissioner shall fail to appear or refuse to exhibit such account, the clerk of the superior court may issue an attachment against said commissioner for a contempt and commit him till he exhibits such account, or files a bond for the amount held or unaccounted for as is prescribed by law for administrators, the premium for which is to be deducted from the commissioner's fee, earned by said commissioner in said action or special proceeding. (Rev., s. 725; 1901, c. 614, ss. 1, 2; 1933, c. 98.)

Editor's Note.—The last two sentences of this section, giving the clerk power to force a final settlement, were added by Public Laws 1933, c. 98.

Applied in Peal v. Martin, 207 N. C. 106, 176 S. E. 282.

§ 766. Commissioners selling land for reinvestment, etc., to give bond.—Whenever in any cause or special proceeding there is a sale of real estate for the purpose of a reinvestment of the money arising from such sale or for any other purpose, and the proceeds from such sale are held by a commissioner or other officer designated by the court to receive such money, for purposes of reinvestment or otherwise, the commissioner or officer so receiving same shall execute a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by the court, in an amount at least equal to the corpus of the fund, and payable to the state of North Carolina for the protection of the fund and the parties interested therein, and conditioned that such custodian of the money shall faithfully comply with all the orders of the court made or to be thereafter made concerning the handling of reinvestment of said funds and for the faithful and final accounting of the same to the parties interested; but the court in its discretion may waive the requirement of such bond in those cases where the court requires the funds or proceeds from such sale to be paid by the purchaser or purchasers direct to the court. The premium for any such bond shall be paid from the corpus of the fund intended to be thereby protected. (1919, c. 259; 1935, c. 45.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 the clause at the end of the first sentence provided that the court could dispense with the bond where it was not contemplated that the money would be ultimately reinvested under the direction of the court. Section two of the amendatory act provides that within sixty days of ratification the secretary of state shall send certified copies of the act to various judges and clerks. It also specifies that the act does not apply in Duplin county.

Bond.—Where an order has been made for the sale of timber growing upon lands affected with contingent interests, the court should also require its commissioner appointed for the sale to give bond for the preservation and proper application of the proceeds of sale, etc.; but this provision does not affect the title of the purchaser, who is not required to see to the application of the funds, and the proper order in this respect may be supplied by amendment or supplementary decree. Midyette v. Lycoming Timber & Lumber Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 836. See also, Pools v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323.

§ 766(a). Action in which clerk may allow fees of commissioners; fees taxed as costs.—In all civil actions and special proceedings instituted in the superior court in which a commissioner, or commissioners, are appointed under a judgment by the clerk of said court, said clerk shall have full power and authority and he is hereby authorized and empowered to fix and determine and allow to such commissioner or commissioners a reasonable fee for their services performed under such order, decree or judgment, which fee shall be taxed as a part of the costs in such action or proceeding, and any dissatisfied party shall have the right of appeal to the judge, who shall hear the same de novo. (1923, c. 66, s. 1.)

§ 766(b). Jurisdiction and authority of emergency judges.—In all special proceedings where it is now required by law that the orders, judgments and decrees of the clerk shall be approved or heard by the judge of the superior court, the emergency judges shall have full power and authority and jurisdiction to hear and determine such matters under the course and practice of the court. (1923, c. 66, s. 2.)

This section is limited by Art. IV, § 11 of the Constitution, which provides that special and emergency judges shall have the power and authority of regular judges in the courts which they are appointed to hold. Hence an emergency judge has no power to approve and confirm an order of the clerk for the sale or mortgage of lands by a guardian when such emergency judge is not holding court in the county. Ipock v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 206 N. C. 791, 175 S. E. 127.

SUBCHAPTER XIII. PROVISIONAL REMEDIES

Art. 33. Arrest and Bail

§ 767. Arrest only as herein prescribed.—No person may be arrested in civil action except as prescribed by this article, but this provision shall not apply to proceedings for contempt. (Rev., s. 726; Code, s. 290; C. C. P., s. 148.)

Cross References.—As to execution against the person, see section 673. On the general subject of arrest in civil actions, see 1 Enc. Dig. 922-950 and 13 Enc. Dig. 175-176. As to arrest in criminal actions, see Art. 5, ch. 83 on Criminal Procedure. As to bail in criminal action, see Art. 8, ch. 83 on Criminal Procedure.

Editor's Note.—Statutes authorizing arrest in civil cases are in derogation of personal liberty and should be strictly construed; the conditions are jurisdictional and not directory.

Article I, section 16 of the state Constitution provides that "There shall be no imprisonment for debt in this state except for fraud." This provision of the Constitution has no application to actions of tort but is confined to actions arising ex contractu. Long v. McLean, 88 N. C. 3.

The words except in cases of fraud are very broad, and they comprehend not only fraud in attempting to delay and defeat the collection of a debt by concealing property or other fraudulent devices, but embraces also fraud in making the contract, false representations, for instance, and fraud in increasing the liabilities, as when an administrator, by applying the funds of the estate to his own use, paying his own debts, and the like. Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 293, 7 S. E. 747; Melvin v. Melvin, 72 N. C. 384.

Now, in order to avoid a violation of this article of the Constitution and at the same time protect honest creditors against dishonest debtors, it devolved upon the legislature, in cases of fraud, to enact such laws as were necessary, in its discretion, for arrest and imprisonment in proper cases, and to provide for all necessary proceedings in relation thereto. This is done in this and the following sections. Preiss v. Cohen, 117 N. C. 54, 59, 23 S. E. 162.

Section 1621 Applies.—Parties arrested and in custody, in pursuance of the provisions contained in this and the following sections, if the order of arrest is not vacated "on motion," must seek their discharge in the mode prescribed in sec. 1621. Wingo v. Watson, 98 N. C. 482, 485, 4 S. E. 463; Preiss v. Cohen, 117 N. C. 54, 60, 23 S. E. 162.

Application to Partnership.—Where a partnership has terminated and all debts have been paid and the partnership affairs otherwise adjusted, or where the partnership was for a single venture or special purpose which has been closed, and nothing remains but to pay over the amount due, in either case an action will lie in favor of one against the other, and if the facts bring the claim within the provisions of this article on arrest and bail, the plaintiff is entitled to this ancillary remedy. Ledford v. Emerson, 140 N. C. 288, 52 S. E. 641.

Where Judgment of Nonsuit Reversed.—Where there has been a motion for an order of arrest and bail under this section, and a judgment of non-suit is reversed, the motion may be reviewed. Hensley v. Helvenston, 189 N. C. 636, 127 S. E. 625.

For definition of arrest see State v. Buxton, 102 N. C. 129, 8 S. E. 774; Journey v. Sharpe, 49 N. C. 165, 167; Hadley v. Tinnin, 170 N. C. 84, 86 S. E. 1017.

§ 768. In what cases arrest allowed.—The defendant may be arrested, as hereinafter prescribed, in the following cases;

1. In an action for the recovery of damages on a cause of action not arising out of contract, where the defendant is not a resident of the state or is about to remove therefrom, or where the action is for injury to person or character, or for injuring, or for wrongfully taking, detaining or converting real or personal property.

See note under § 673.

In General.—In Hoover v. Palmer, 80 N. C. 313, 315, the court said: It is fair to conclude that the legislature in providing for arrest and bail in an action for injury to person used those words—injury to person—according to their established legal signification in the classification of rights and injuries thereto as taught in the elementary writers, and, thus considered, the language employed in legal effect authorized, as we think, an arrest for all those injuries (seduction included) which may be suffered in respect of any rights of person, absolute or relative. This, we hold, was intended to be and is the proper construction of the section.

A nonresident of the state may be arrested here in a civil action in like manner with a resident for sufficient cause under this section, but he may not be arrested and held to bail in a civil action instituted in this state for no cause other than that of nonresidence; to subject a nonresident to liability on the sole ground of his nonresidence would transgress his right of free ingress and egress and would abrogate his constitutional guaranty of immunity. Little v. Miles, 204 N. C. 646, 650, 169 S. E. 220.

Mere Negligence Insufficient.—A judgment that execution issue against the person of the defendant cannot be sustained upon the mere finding that the defendant negligently injured the plaintiff's property; in order to justify such execution under this section and section 673, the injury must have been intentionally or maliciously inflicted, i. e., with some element of violence, fraud, or criminality. Oakey v. Lasater, 172 N. C. 96, 89 S. E. 1063.

Wrongful Conversion. — Where a cotenant wrongfully converted a race horse, by selling it while in his possession, he was liable to arrest under this section. Doyle v. Bush, 171 N. C. 10, 86 S. E. 165.

In Action for Libel.—An arrest in an action for libel is not within the provisions of the Constitution (Art. I, § 16) prohibiting imprisonment for debt. Moore v. Green, 73 N. C. 394.

Slander of Title.—Although it was not necessary in the case to decide the precise point, the court stated in Sneeden v. Harris, 109 N. C. 349, 354, 13 S. E. 920 that it was questionable whether an action for slander of title was embraced by this article on arrest and bail.

Seduction.—The seduction of a daughter, being an infringement of the father's relative rights of persons, is an injury to his person within the meaning of this section, and a sufficient ground for the arrest of the defendant in an action for such tort. Hoover v. Palmer, 80 N. C. 313. It involves also fraud and deceit ex vi termini. Hood v. Sudderth, 111 N. C. 215, 16 S. E. 397. See also the next subsection as to seduction.

This section was mentioned as applying to injury to character in Michael v. Leach, 166 N. C. 223, 225, 81 S. E. 760. As applying to injury to person in Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 181, 72 S. E. 207.

Cited in Foster v. Hyman, 197 N. C. 189, 190, 148 S. E. 36; Braxton v. Matthews, 199 N. C. 484, 154 S. E. 735. E. 215.

2. In an action for a fine or penalty, for seduction, for money received, for property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied by a public officer, attorney, solicitor, or officer or agent of a corporation or banking association in the course of his employment, or by any factor, agent, broker or other person in a fiduciary capacity, or for any misconduct or neglect in office, or in a professional employment.

Editor's Note. — Originally, this section contained the words "in an action on a promise to marry." In Moore v. Mullen, 77 N. C. 327, the court held this provision to be in conflict with Art. I, section 16 of the Constitution. Soon thereafter this provision was stricken out of the section by the legislature and the word "seduction" substituted. This seems to be a legislative construction that where a woman should sue for the seduction, instead of a mere breach of promise, an arrest would lie. Hood v. Sudderth, 111 N. C. 215, 221, 16 S. E. 397.

In General.—This section is plain and very comprehensive in its terms and purpose. It intends, certainly, to embrace all cases where the relation of trust and confidence, in respect to money received by, or personal property in the possession of one party for the benefit of another, is raised and exists between such parties by reason of their mutual contract, express or implied. The purpose is to give the more efficient remedy where the cause of action involves a breach of trust on the part of the defendant sustaining a fiduciary relation to the plaintiff. Travers v. Deaton, 107 N. C. 500, 503, 12 S. E. 373; Boykin v. Maddrey, 114 N. C. 89, 98, 19 S. E. 106; Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 98 N. C. 123; 3 S. E. 723; Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

The section gives to a plaintiff, whose money or property has been put beyond his reach by his agent or trustee by an act in violation of his duty, the remedy of arrest and bail, that he may the better compel his unfaithful agent or trustee to make amends for his unfaithfulness, and it "turns a deaf ear" to one who would excuse himself by asserting that he did not mean to do wrong when consciously doing that which was a breach of the trust reposed in him, or by alleging that he honestly believed that he would be able to replace the misapplied funds, so that no loss would eventually come to the plaintiff. Boykin, etc. Co. v. Maddrey, 114 N. C. 89, 100, 19 S. E. 106.

Applications of the Section.—Where a firm of merchants gave to manufacturers of fertilizers its note for a consignment of goods, agreeing to hold such goods or the proceeds of the sale thereof, or the notes of farmers given therefor, in trust for the manufacturers, a fiduciary relation was established and a violation of the contract was a breach of trust for which, upon proper affidavits and the required undertaking, an order of arrest could be obtained. Boykin, etc. Co. v. Maddrey, 114 N. C. 89, 19 S. E. 106.

One who fraudulently conveys property held by him as trustee can be legally arrested under this section. Durham Fertilizer Co. v. Little, 118 N. C. 808, 24 S. E. 664.

An action for seduction may be brought under this section by the woman seduced, and an order for the arrest of the defendant may be granted in such action. Hood v. Sudderth, 111 N. C. 215, 16 S. E. 397. As to parent bringing action, see Kinney v. Laughenour, 97 N. C. 325, 2 S. E. 43.

A defendant, in an action for money received or property fraudulently misapplied by him as agent, may be arrested under the provisions of this section. Gossler v. Wood, 120 N. C. 69, 27 S. E. 33.

This section applies to arrest for alienating the affections of a wife. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

Fraud Committed in Another State.—The fact that the fraud for which the defendant was arrested was committed in another state is no ground for immunity from arrest, under this section, authorizing arrests for frauds in fiduciary transactions. Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

When Partner Liable.—Where members of a firm assume a fiduciary relation as to property committed to them, and a misappropriation is made by one partner with the knowledge, connivance, or assent of the other, the intent of the latter to commit a breach of trust is conclusively presumed, from such knowledge and acts, for all the purposes of arrest and bail. Boykin, etc. Co. v. Maddrey, 114 N. C. 90, 19 S. E. 106.

Insolvent May Be Arrested.—An insolvent defendant may be arrested in a civil action for money received and fraudulently misapplied. Carroll v. Montgomery, 128 N. C. 278, 38 S. E. 874.

Non-resident Liable.—A non-resident of this State may be arrested and held to bail for fraud under this section. Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

3. In an action to recover the possession of personal property, unjustly detained, where all or any part of the property has been concealed, removed, or disposed of, so that it cannot be found or taken by the sheriff and with the intent that it should not be so found or taken, or with the intent to deprive the plaintiff of the benefit thereof.

4. When the defendant has been guilty of a fraud in contracting the debt or incurring the obligation for which the action is brought, in concealing or disposing of the property for the taking, detention or conversion of which the action is brought, or when the action is brought to recover damages for fraud or deceit.

No Arrest Unlesss Action Pending.—Where plaintiff brought an action against defendant, setting out two causes of action, one on a note and the other for embezzlement, and judgment was rendered on the note by default but no judgment was entered upon the other cause and it was removed from the docket, no order of arrest was permissible under this section since there is no action pending wherein the allegations of fraud in the complaint, used as an affidavit, could authorize a warrant of arrest. Stewart v. Bryan, 121 N. C. 46, 28 S. E. 18.

Contract Action Not Affected.—Where, in an action on contract, the plaintiff alleges fraud and deceit on the part of the defendant and sues out the ancillary process of arrest and bail, this does not change the nature of the contract action. Copeland v. Fowler, 151 N. C. 353, 355, 66 S. E. 215.

Fraud Necessary for Arrest under Section.—A defendant cannot be arrested under this section, unless he has been guilty of fraud in contracting the debt for which the action is brought. McNeely v. Haynes, 76 N. C. 122.

A debt is fraudulently contracted where a purchase of property is made with an intent on the part of the purchaser not to pay for the same. See 69 Ohio State Reports, 311, construing the similar provision of the Ohio Code.

Section Applies to Subsequent Fraud.—A person may be arrested and held to bail for a fraud committed after the contracting of the debt—e. g.—by concealing property, or other devices for the purpose of defeating his creditor. Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

Partner Must Have Knowledge.—One partner can not be arrested for the fraud of his copartner of which he had no knowledge, and in which he in nowise connived. McNeedy v. Haynes, 76 N. C. 122; Boykin, etc. Co. v. Maddrey, 114 N. C. 89, 101, 19 S. E. 106.

5. When the defendant has removed, or disposed of his property, or is about to do so, with intent to defraud his creditors.

No woman shall be arrested in any action except for a willful injury to person, character or property, and no person shall be arrest on Sunday. (Rev., s. 727; Code, s. 291; C. C. P., s. 149; 1869-70, c. 79; R. C., c. 31, s. 54; 1777, c. 118, s. 6; 1891, c. 541.)

In General.—The words "removed, or disposed of" used in this section are of different and broader meaning than the words in subsection 2, supra, and are broad enough to comprehend real estate. Durham Fertilizer Co. v. Little, 118 N. C. 808, 818, 24 S. E. 664.

That there can be no arrest on Sunday, see White v. Morris, 107 N. C. 93, 99, 12 S. E. 80.

Fraudulent Conveyance.—One who fraudulently conveys his real estate with intent to defeat his creditors can be legally arrested under this section. Durham Fertilizer Co. v. Little, 118 N. C. 808, 24 S. E. 664.

A nonresident debtor is not subject to imprisonment for debt, since the only exceptions to the general rule of non-imprisonment, are debtors who are about to remove beyond the limits of the state, which manifestly have no reference to nonresidents. McKay v. Ray, 63 N. C. 46.

Arrest for "Willful Injury."—For the arrest of a woman under the provisions of this section, for "willful injury," etc., an actual intent is not necessary if the defendant's negligence is so gross as to manifest a reckless indifference to the rights of others. Weathers v. Baldwin, 183 N. C. 276, 111 S. E. 183.

§ 769. Order and affidavit.—An order for the arrest of the defendant must be obtained from the court in which the action is brought or a judge thereof, and may be made where it appears to the court or judge, by affidavit of the plaintiff or of any other person, that a sufficient cause of action exists and that the case is one of those provided for in this article. (Rev., ss. 728, 729; Code, ss. 292, 293; C. C. P., ss. 150, 151.)

The Order.—The order of arrest must proceed from the court in which the action is brought or from a judge thereof. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 36, 38.

Same—Jurisdiction.—An order of arrest, under this section is a judicial and not a ministerial proceeding, in the issuance of which the judge and the clerk have concurrent jurisdiction. Bryan v. Stewart, 123 N. C. 93, 31 S. E. 286.

Same—Voidable Only.—An order of arrest granted by a court having jurisdiction is not void. It may be erroneous if issued upon an insufficient affidavit. Tucker v. Davis, 77 N. C. 330.

Grounds May Be Stated in Complaint.—The grounds for the arrest may be, and most usually are, set forth in an affidavit by the plaintiff, or any other person, that a sufficient cause of action exists, and that the case is one of those mentioned in section 768. Roulhac v. Brown, 87 N. C. 1, 3. The cause of arrest may be stated in the complaint but the statement must be as explicit as if set forth in an affidavit and properly verified. Peebles v. Foote, 83 N. C. 102.

Positive Statement of Facts Desirable. — The affidavit should state the facts positively, when this can be done. Harriss v. Sneeden, 101 N. C. 273, 278, 7 S. E. 801; Peebles v. Foote, 83 N. C. 102.

Grounds of Belief Should Be Stated.—If the affidavit states certain things which the party believes are about to be done, then the grounds of belief must be stated in order that the court may judge of the reasonableness thereof. Peebles v. Foote, 83 N. C. 102, 104 and cases cited.

Examples—Sufficient Statement.—In an action for arrest and bail, the affidavit of the plaintiff alleged the existence of a cause of action and the fraud committed by defendants in contracting the debt, and that upon information and belief they had fraudulently removed and disposed of their property: Held, sufficient to justify the order of arrest. Paige v. Price, 78 N. C. 10.

Where the affidavit upon which an order of arrest and attachment was obtained was as follows: "That the said P. has disposed of and secreted his property with intent to defraud his creditors—it was held to be sufficient." Hughes v. Person, 63 N. C. 548.

Same—Insufficient Statement.—An affidavit for arrest of an administrator who has been charged with assets to a certain amount is not sufficient if it does not show fraud in the misapplication of the funds by an administrator. Melvin v. Melvin, 72 N. C. 384.

General Rumor.—Mere general rumor that a person indebted has removed to another state is not sufficient to justify his creditor in suing out a warrant for his arrest. There should be such evidence as would induce a reasonable man to believe that the facts existed upon which he based his application. Tucker v. Wilkins, 105 N. C. 272, 11 S. E. 575.

Court Must Be Convinced.—It is not sufficient that the cause of action may exist—this must not be left to conjecture or bare probability—the court must be satisfied from the evidence before it that a cause does exist. Harriss v. Sneeden, 101 N. C. 273, 278, 7 S. E. 801.

Allowing Second Affidavit.—The refusal to allow a second affidavit to be filed, is an exercise of discretion, which can not be reviewed upon appeal; the plaintiff might have filed a second sufficient affidavit immediately, and obtained a second warrant of arrest. Wilson v. Barnhill, 64 N. C. 121.

Question of Law.—The question of the sufficiency of the affidavit is one of law, addressed to the court alone. Wood v. Harrell, 74 N. C. 338, 340.

§ 770. Undertaking before order.—Before making the order the court or judge shall require a written undertaking on the part of the plaintiff of at least one hundred dollars, with sufficient surety, payable to the defendant, to the effect that if the defendant recovers judgment the plaintiff will pay all damages which he sustains by reason of the arrest, not exceeding the sum specified in the undertaking. (Rev., s. 730; Code, s. 294; C. C. P., s. 152; 1868-9, c. 277, s. 7.)

As to giving the bond of a surety company as surety, see Art. 2, ch. 8 on Bonds.

Applies to Suits in Forma Pauperis.—A plaintiff who is allowed to sue, in forma pauperis, has no right to an order of arrest, without first filing the undertaking required by this section. Rowark v. Homesley, 68 N. C. 91.

Judge Can Increase Bond.—The trial court has power to increase or diminish the bond, and an order increasing the bond can not be questioned unless abuse of discretion is shown. Fayetteville Light, etc., Co. v. Lessem Co., 174 N. C. 358, 93 S. E. 836.

Amount of Bond Not Subject to Review.—The discretion of the court in fixing the amount of the bond is not subject to review. Fayetteville Light, etc., Co. v. Lessem Co., 174 N. C. 358, 93 S. E. 836.

§ 771. Issuance and form of order.—The order may be made to accompany the summons, or to issue at any time afterwards, before judgment. It shall require the sheriff of the county where the defendant may be found forthwith to arrest him and hold him to bail in a specified sum, and to return the order at a place and time therein mentioned to the clerk of the court in which the action is brought. Notice of the return must be served on the plaintiff or his attorney as prescribed by law for the service of other notices. (Rev., s. 731; Code, s. 295; C. C. P., s. 153.)

As to execution against the person of a debtor after judgment, see section 673.

In General.—The words "before judgment," as used in this section mean "final judgment" upon the matters put in issue by the pleadings, and hence the judgment rendered for the debt simply, in an action in which there are allegations of fraud, does not interfere with the rights of the parties in the matters in dispute on the question of fraud, if properly prosecuted. Preiss v. Cohen, 117 N. C. 54, 23 S. E. 162. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 35.

Process Can Be Served on Prisoner in Jail.—The sheriff can serve process anywhere in his county—the jail possesses no "privilege of sanctuary" and service of process upon a prisoner there is valid. White v. Underwood, 125 N. C. 25, 34 S. E. 104.

This section is mentioned in Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 291, 7 S. E. 747.

Written Warrant Necessary.—For the benefit of the citizen therefore, that he may at all times be able to call upon the officers to produce his authority, and to see precisely what it was, the law established the necessity of a written warrant. Lutterloh v. Powell, 2 N. C. 395, 396.

Defendant under Criminal Process.—A defendant, who has been brought into court on criminal process, and discharged from arrest under the same on bail, is not privileged from being arrested on civil process immediately afterwards, during the sitting of the court and before he leaves the court room. Moore v. Green, 73 N. C. 394.

The exemption of witnesses and jurors from civil arrest accorded by §§ 1808 and 2328, and of nonresident parties and witnesses voluntarily attending court here, on grounds of public policy does not apply to parties arrested in criminal proceeding. White v. Underwood, 125 N. C. 25, 34 S. E. 104.

Witnesses Attending Court.—The principle of the common law, that a suitor, while going to, remaining at, and returning home from court, is exempted from arrest, is in force in this state. Hammerskold v. Rose, 52 N. C. 629.

Nonresident Attending as Witness.—A citizen of another state, while voluntarily attending court as a witness, is privileged from arrest in a civil case. Ballinger v. Elliott, 72 N. C. 596.

§ 772. Copies of affidavit and order to defendant.—The affidavit and order of arrest shall be delivered to the sheriff, who, upon arresting the defendant, shall deliver him a copy thereof. (Rev., s. 732; Code, s. 296; C. C. P., s. 154.)

§ 773. Execution of order.—The sheriff shall execute the order by arresting the defendant and keeping him in custody until discharged by law. The sheriff may call the power of the county to his aid in the execution of the arrest. (Rev., s. 733; Code, s. 297; C. C. P., s. 155.)

§ 774. Vacation of order for failure to serve.—The order of arrest is of no avail, and shall be vacated or set aside on motion, unless it is served upon the defendant, as provided by law, before the docketing of any judgment in the action. (Rev., s. 734; Code, s. 295; C. C. P., s. 153.)

Twenty Days Necessary.—Unless the order of arrest is served twenty days before it is docketed, it is unavailing and on motion may be vacated or set aside. Houston v. Walsh, 79 N. C. 36, 38.

§ 775. Motion to vacate order; jury trial.—A defendant arrested may at any time before judgment apply on motion to vacate the order of arrest or to reduce the amount of bail. He may deny upon oath the facts alleged in the affidavit of the plaintiff on which the order of arrest was granted, and demand that the issue so raised by the plaintiff's affidavit and the defendant's denial be submitted to the jury and tried in the same manner as other issues. If the issues are found by the jury in favor of the defendant, judgment shall be rendered discharging him from arrest and vacating the order of arrest, and he shall recover of the plaintiff all costs of the proceeding in such arrest incurred by him in defending the action. (Rev., s. 735; Code, s. 316; 1889, c. 497; C. C. P., s. 174.)

In General.—This section and sections 777 and 1637 et seq., prescribing the methods by which a prisoner may be discharged in certain instances before final judgment, should be construed together; and, when so construed, the remedies given in section 1637 et seq. are in addition to those given in sections 775 and 777. Edwards v. Sorrell, 150 N. C. 712, 64 S. E. 898.

Motion Must Be Made before Judgment.—A motion to vacate the order of arrest can only be made before judgment. Roulhac v. Brown, 87 N. C. 1, 3. And where such a motion has been once refused, and no appeal taken, the matter is res adjudicata and a similar motion will not be entertained. Id.

Motion Heard Anywhere in District.—A motion to vacate an order of arrest may be heard by a judge out of court anywhere within the district that his duties require him to be during the time in which he is assigned to the district. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 16 S. E. 848. See also Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 457, 27 S. E. 123.

Clerk Can Hear Motion.—It would be perfectly regular to move to vacate before the clerk and appeal from his ruling to the judge, as was done in Roulhac v. Brown, 87 N. C. 1. But the clerk might be dilatory in acting, and the party has his election to proceed more summarily by applying in the first instance to the judge. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 504, 16 S. E. 848.

New Matter Not to Be Considered.—The validity of an order of arrest and warrant of attachment is determined upon facts alleged in the original affidavit, and existing at the time when the proceeding is institufed, not upon new matter which may have afterwards transpired. Devries & Co. v. Summit, 86 N. C. 126.

Where Jury Trial Demanded.—If the defendant demanded the jury trial permitted by this section the judge would have been compelled to remand the motion to vacate to the county where the action was pending, that the issues so arising might be tried at the first term of court. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 16 S. E. 848.

Lower Court's Finding of Fact Conclusive. — In arrest and bail proceedings, where a motion was made by the defendant to vacate the order of arrest and the court found that the facts were sufficient to sustain the order, the findings of fact by the court below are final, and will not be reviewed unless it be objected properly that there was no evidence to support them. Travers v. Deaton, 107 N. C. 500, 12 S. E. 373; Harriss v. Sweeden, 101 N. C. 273, 7 S. E. 801; Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 16 S. E. 848.

A party under arrest in a civil action, moving to vacate the order upon affidavits submitted to the court, is not entitled to a trial by jury upon the questions of fact raised. Wingo v. Watson, 98 N. C. 482, 4 S. E. 463.

Irregular or False Order Will Be Vacated.—An order of arrest will be vacated by a judge without any undertaking by the defendant, if on its face it appears to have been issued irregularly, or for a cause insufficient in law, or false in fact. Bear v. Cohen, 65 N. C. 511.

Supplemental Affidavit Sufficient.—Where an order of arrest was made upon an invalid affidavit, and a counter affidavit was filed by the defendant, and a supplemental one by the plaintiff which was duly verified, it was held, that the judge below erred in vacating the order. Benedict, etc., Co. v. Hall, 76 N. C. 113.

Rendition of judgment prior to hearing is not reversible error. Allison v. Maddrey. 114 N. C. 421, 19 S. E. 646.

Prior Acquittal in Another State.—It is no ground for vacating an order of arrest that the defendant had been indicted, tried and acquitted by the courts of another state upon the same charge. Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

Appeal.—An order vacating an order of arrest "affects a substantial right claimed" and hence an appeal from such order lies. Fertilizer Co. v. Grubbs, 114 N. C. 470, 474, 19 S. E. 597.

But where, in the hearing of a motion to vacate an order of arrest, the judge finds as a fact that the act upon which it was based was not committed, the finding is final and can not be reviewed. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 16 S. E. 848.

An appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace discharging one who has been arrested in a civil action vacates the judgment, and the order of arrest continues in force pending the appeal. Patton v. Gash, 99 N. C. 280, 6 S. E. 193.

§ 776. Counter affidavits by plaintiff. — If the motion is made upon affidavits on the part of the defendant, but not otherwise, the plaintiff may oppose the same by affidavits, or other proof, in addition to those on which the order of arrest was made. (Rev., s. 736; Code, s. 317; C. C. P., s. 175.)

Simple Denial Insufficient.—If the order was properly granted it ought not to be vacated upon the simple denial of the alleged cause of action; but where the answer or counter affidavits meet the allegations of the plaintiff fully and in detail, and furnish convincing evidence of their truth, the order should be vacated. Harriss v. Sneeden, 101 N. C. 273, 7 S. E. 801.

Facts Must Be Fully Controverted.—When one who has been arrested moves to vacate the order of arrest upon counter affidavits, purporting to meet the facts alleged against him, he should do so fully and clearly, otherwise the order of arrest will be continued. Powers v. Davenport, 101 N. C. 286, 7 S. E. 747.

Additional Evidence.—Where the defendant moves to vacate the order upon the ground that it was irregularly or improvidently granted, the plaintiff will not be allowed to offer additional evidence in support of his application; but if the defendant moves to vacate upon counter proofs the plaintiff may produce further evidence. Harriss v. Sneeden, 101 N. C. 273, 7 S. E. 801.

§ 777. How defendant discharged.—The defendant, at any time before execution, shall be discharged from the arrest, either upon giving bail or upon depositing the amount mentioned in the order of arrest, as provided in this article. (Rev., s. 737; Code, s. 298; C. C. P., s. 156.)

Rights of Nonresidents.—Where nonresidents are arrested under the provisions of this article they are entitled to the benefit of sections 1637-1650, relating to insolvent debtors, in securing their discharge. Burgwyn v. Hall, 108 N. C. 489, 13 S. E. 222.

§ 778. Defendant's undertaking.—The defendant may give bail by causing a written undertaking, payable to the plaintiff, to be executed by sufficient surety to the effect that the defendant shall at all times render himself amenable to the process of the court, during the pendency of the action, and to such as may be issued to enforce the judgment therein, or if he is arrested in an action to recover the possession of personal property unjustly claimed, an undertaking to the same effect as that provided by law to be given by defendant for the retention of property, under the article entitled Claim and Delivery. (Rev., s. 738; Code, s. 299; C. C. P., s. 157.)

The word "amenable" as used in this section means "answerable" or "responsive" to the process of the court having jurisdiction; and when execution is issued against the person of the debtor it is his duty to surrender himself, or of the obligors on the bond to do so, and a failure constitutes a breach of the obligation. Pickelsimer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

Voluntary Appearance.—The condition of the undertaking that the defendant shall, at all times during the pendency of the action, render himself amenable to the process of the court is met when the defendant voluntarily appears in court upon the hearing of the motion against his surety. Stepp v. Robinson, 203 N. C. 803, 805, 167 S. E. 147.

§ 779. Defendant's undertaking delivered to clerk; exception.—Within the time limited for that purpose, the sheriff shall deliver the order of arrest to the clerk of the court in which the suit is brought, with his return endorsed, and a certified copy of the undertaking of the bail, and notify the plaintiff or his attorney thereof. The plaintiff, within ten days thereafter, may serve upon the sheriff a notice that he does not accept the bail, or he is deemed to have accepted it and the sheriff is exonerated from the liability. (Rev., s. 739; Code, s. 304; C. C. P., s. 162.)

§ 780. Notice of justification; new bail.—On the receipt of notice of exception to the bail, the sheriff or defendant may, within ten days thereafter, give to the plaintiff or his attorney notice of the justification of the same or other bondsmen (specifying the places of residence and occupation of the latter) before the court, justice of the peace, or judge, at a specified time and place; the time to be not less than five nor more than ten days thereafter. In case other bondsmen given, there must be a new bond, in the form hereinbefore prescribed. (Rev., s. 741; Code, s. 305; C. C. P., s. 163.)

§ 781. Qualifications of bail.—The qualifications of bail must be as follows:

1. Each of them must be a resident and freeholder within the state.

2. They must each be worth the amount specified in the order of arrest, exclusive of property exempt from execution; but the judge, on justification, may allow more than two bail to justify severally in amounts less than that expressed in the order, if the whole justification is equivalent to that of two sufficient bail. (Rev., s. 740; Code, s. 306; C. C. P., s. 164.)

Definition.—Bail are those persons who become sureties for the appearance of a defendant in court. Bouvier's Law Dict., Vol. 4, p. 209.

Bond Should Show Facts.—A bail bond should show on its face that the surety is a resident and freeholder within the state, or his justification should establish these facts. Howell v. Jones, 113 N. C. 429, 18 S. E. 672.

§ 782. Justification of bail.—For the purpose of justification, each of the bail shall attend before the court or judge, or a justice of the peace, at the time and place mentioned in the notice, and may be examined on oath, on the part of the plaintiff, touching his sufficiency, in such manner as the court, judge or justice of the peace, in his discretion, may think proper. The examination must be reduced to writing and subscribed by the bail, if required by the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 742; Code, s. 307; C. C. P., s. 165.)

§ 783. Allowance of bail.—If the court, judge or justice of the peace finds the bail sufficient, he shall annex the examination to the undertaking, endorse his allowance thereon, and cause them to be filed with the clerk. The sheriff is then exonerated from liability. (Rev., s. 743; Code, s. 308; C. C. P., s. 166.)

Purpose of Bail.—The main object of a bail bond taken to release the prisoner from custody in arrest and bail is to secure his presence to answer the process of the court and, for this purpose, to keep him within its jurisdiction, and not merely to obtain money upon his default. Pickelsimer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

§ 784. Deposit in lieu of bail.—The defendant may, at the time of his arrest, instead of giving bail, deposit with the sheriff the amount mentioned in the order. The sheriff shall then give a certificate of the deposit to the defendant, who shall be discharged from custody. (Rev., s. 744; Code, s. 309; C. C. P., s. 167.)

§ 785. Deposit paid into court; liability on sheriff's bond.—Within four days after the deposit the sheriff must pay it into court, and take from the officer receiving it two certificates of such payment, one of which he must deliver to the plaintiff, and the other to the defendant. For any default in making such payment, the same proceedings may be had on the official bond of the sheriff, to collect the sum deposited, as in other cases of delinquency. (Rev., s. 745; Code, s. 310; C. C. P., s. 168.)

As to payment by sheriff of money collected on execution, see section 3940.

§ 786. Bail substituted for deposit.—If money is deposited, as provided in the two preceding sections, bail may be given and justified upon notice according to law at any time before judgment. Thereupon the judge, court or justice of the peace shall direct, in the order of allowance, that the money deposited be refunded by the sheriff or other officer to the defendant, and it shall be refunded accordingly. (Rev., s. 746; Code, s. 311; C. C. P., s. 169.)

§ 787. Deposit applied to plaintiff's judgment.—When money has been deposited, and remains on deposit at the time of an order or judgment for the payment of money to the plaintiff, the clerk or other officer shall, under the direction of the court, apply the same in satisfaction thereof, and after satisfying the judgment shall refund any surplus to the defendant. If the judgment is in favor of the defendant the clerk or other officer shall refund to him the whole sum deposited and remaining unapplied. (Rev., s. 747; Code, s. 312; C. C. P., s. 170.)

§ 788. Defendant in jail, sheriff may take bail.—If a person for want of bail is lawfully committed to jail, at any time before final judgment, the sheriff, or other officer having him in custody, may take bail and discharge him; and the bail bond shall be regarded in every respect as other bail bonds, and shall be returned and sued on in like manner; and the officer taking it shall make special return thereof, with the bond, at the first court which is held after it is taken. (Rev., s. 748; Code, s. 318; R. C., c. 11, s. 8.)

§ 789. When sheriff liable as bail.—If, after arrest, the defendant escapes, or is rescued, or bail is not given or justified, or a deposit is not made instead thereof, the sheriff is himself liable as bail. But he may discharge himself from such liability by the giving and justification of bail at any time before process against the person of the defendant to enforce an order or judgment in the action. (Rev., s. 749; Code, s. 313; C. C. P., s. 171.)

In General.—A sheriff who accepts an insufficient undertaking in arrest and bail proceedings, or who, after exceptions filed thereto by the plaintiff, fails to give notice of the time when and the place where the bail will justify, is liable as special bail to the plaintiff, and he will not be exonerated from liability by the fact that he acted in good faith in taking the insufficient bond, or by the fact that the plaintiff was nearby and knew what was going on when an alleged justification was being made by the surety. Howell v. Jones, 113 N. C. 429, 18 S. E. 672.

In State v. Brittain, 25 N. C. 17, it is said that after once taking the bail the sheriff, on finding the bail to be insufficient, has no right to rearrest the defendant, and that the defendant in such a case is justified in resisting the arrest. State v. Queen, 66 N. C. 615, 617.

Escape of Prisoner.—A sheriff having permitted one arrested by him upon mesne process in a civil action to go into an adjoining room, from which he escaped, was guilty of an escape and subjected himself to the liability as bail. Winborne & Bro. v. Mitchell, 111 N. C. 13, 15 S. E. 882.

Same—Defendants Insolvency Immaterial. — When the sheriff is sued as bail he cannot give in evidence, in mitigation of damages, the defendant's insolvency. Winborne & Bro. v. Mitchell, 111 N. C. 13, 14, 15 S. E. 882.

Notice and Exceptions Unnecessary.—If the sheriff fails to take bail, the plaintiff need not file exceptions nor give notice to fix him as bail. Adams v. Jones, 60 N. C. 198.

Defective Bond Does Not Satisfy Section. — A paper, though intended as a bail bond, which is so defective and imperfect as to be adjudged not to be such, cannot be regarded as the taking of bail. Adams v. Jones, 60 N. C. 198, 199.

§ 790. Action on sheriff's bond.—If a judgment is recovered against the sheriff, upon his liability as bail, and an execution thereon is returned wholly or partly unsatisfied, the same proceedings may be had on the official bond of the sheriff, to collect the deficiency, as in other cases of delinquency. (Rev., s. 750; Code, s. 314; C. C. P., s. 172.)

§ 791. Bail exonerated.—At any time before final judgment against them, the bail may be exonerated, either by the death of the defendant or his imprisonment in a state prison, or by his legal discharge from the obligation to render himself amenable to the process, or by his surrender to the sheriff of the county where he was arrested, in execution of the judgment. (Rev., s. 751; Code, s. 303; C. C. P., s. 161.)

Meaning of "State Prison".—The term "State prison," as used in this section, applies to either the penitentiary or the county jail. Sedberry v. Carver, 77 N. C. 319.

When Imprisonment Does Not Exonerate.—Where the imprisonment of a defendant under this section, expired before judgment was obtained, either against the principal in the original action or against the bail upon his undertaking: Held, that such imprisonment does not exonerate the bail. Sedberry v. Carver, 77 N. C. 319; Adrian v. Scanlin, 77 N. C. 317.

Exoneration by Surrender of Principal.—The obligors on the bond may, at any time before final judgment against them, be released by the defendant's voluntary surrender of his person, or his production by the obligors in accordance with the terms of the bond, etc., whereupon the liability of the latter ceases. Pickelsimer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

When Absolute Judgment Error.—Where a defendant and the sureties on his appearance bond appear in answer to a scire facias and show that defendant's failure to appear at a prior term of court in accordance with the terms of the bond was due to the fact that defendant had been turned over to a federal court by a prior bondsman and that defendant was then serving a sentence imposed by that court, it is error for the court to enter absolute judgment on the bond, the cases against defendant as well as the hearing on the scire facias being subject to continuance. State v. Welborn, 205 N. C. 601, 172 S. E. 174.

§ 792. Surrender of defendant.—At any time before final judgment against them, the bail may surrender the defendant in their exoneration, or he may surrender himself to the sheriff of the county where he was arrested, in the following manner:

1. A certified copy of the undertaking of the bail shall be delivered to the sheriff, who shall detain the defendant in his custody thereon, as upon an order of arrest, and acknowledge the surrender by a certificate in writing.

2. Upon the production of a copy of the undertaking and sheriff's certificate, the court or judge may, upon a notice to the plaintiff of ten days, with a copy of the certificate, order that the bail be exonerated, and on filing the order and papers used on said application they shall be exonerated accordingly. But this section does not apply to an arrest in an action to recover the possession of personal property unjustly detained, so as to discharge the bail from an undertaking given to the effect provided by law to be given by defendant for the retention of property, under the article entitled Claim and Delivery. (Rev., s. 752; Code, s. 300; C. C. P., s. 158.)

Cross References.—As to surrender of defendant when he appears upon motion against the surety, see § 794 and annotations thereunder.

As to claim and delivery, see sections 830-842.

Where Prisoner Again Arrested.—Where in arrest and bail the prisoner under bail bond has been again arrested to await a warrant in extradition proceedings, and imprisoned in the jail of the county by the same sheriff, semble, upon the refusal of the sheriff to receive the prisoner from the obligors on the bail bond, that the trial judge upon hearing the obligors' motion should order the prisoner retained in custody pending the action of the Governor, who, upon notification, may consider the rights of our own courts as being prior to those of other jurisdiction, and hold the prisoner to answer in our courts. Pickelsimer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

§ 793. Bail may arrest defendant.—For the purpose of surrendering the defendant, the bail, at any time or place, before they are finally charged, may themselves arrest him, or by a written authority endorsed on a certified copy of the undertaking may empower any person over twenty-one years of age to do so. (Rev., s. 753; Code, s. 301; C. C. P., s. 159.)

In General.—Where a prisoner in arrest and bail is released from custody of the law upon bail, the principal is regarded as delivered to the custody of his sureties under the original process, who may thereafter seize and deliver him in discharge of their liability, or imprison him temporarily when necessary until this can be done, exercising this right in person or by agent in this or another State, upon the Sabbath or otherwise, and, if necessary, break and enter his house for that purpose. Pickelsimer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

§ 794. Proceedings against bail by motion.—In case of failure to comply with the undertaking the bail may be proceeded against by motion in the cause on ten days' notice to them. (Rev., s. 754; Code, s. 302; C. C. P., s. 160.)

As to when the statute of limitations runs against an action under this section, see section 441, par. 7.

Motion Must Be Brought Within Three Years.—Proceedings against bail, in civil actions, are barred, unless commenced within three years after judgment against the principal, notwithstanding the principal may have left the state in the meantime. Albemarle Steam etc., Co. v. Williams, 111 N. C. 35, 15 S. E. 877.

Principal's Insolvency No Defense.—Insolvency of the principal is no defense to an action against the bail. Winborne & Bro. v. Mitchell, 111 N. C. 13, 15 S. E. 882.

When Action Against Bail Lies.—Where the debtor is released upon bail, the creditor may proceed to judgment, and issue execution against the debtor's property, and afterwards against his person, if returned "nulla bona"; and should the latter writ be returned "non est inventus," the plaintiff may move on ten days' notice for judgment against the bail, making available to the latter all defenses he may have as to the surrender of his principal; and a judgment rendered against him at an intermediate stage of the proceedings is reversible error. Pickelsimer v. Glazener, 173 N. C. 630, 92 S. E. 700.

Where the defendant, appeared in open court, in response to notice served upon his surety or bail, he was then "amenable to the process of the court," notwithstanding his refusal thus to surrender himself, and the court should have ordered execution against the person of the defendant, rather than hold the surety or bail, for failure to surrender him. Stepp v. Robinson, 203 N. C. 803, 804, 167 S. E. 147.

§ 795. Liability of bail to sheriff.—The bail taken upon the arrest are, unless they justify, or other bail are given or justified, liable to the sheriff by action for damages which he may sustain by reason of such omission. (Rev., s. 755; Code, s. 315; C. C. P., s. 173.)

§ 796. When bail to pay costs.—When a notice issues against a person, as the bail of another, and the bail, at or before the term of the court at which he is bound to appear, or ought to plead, is not discharged from his liability by the death or surrender of his principal or otherwise, he is liable for all costs which accrue on said notice, notwithstanding he may be afterwards discharged, by the death or surrender of the principal, or otherwise. (Rev., s. 756; Code, s. 319; R. C., c. 11, s. 10.)

Certain Costs Not Allowed.—The costs allowed against bail, notwithstanding a surrender, &c., do not include such as are incurred on account of an improper and ineffectual appeal. Clark v. Latham, 53 N. C. 1.

§ 797. Bail not discharged by amendment.—No amendment of process or pleading discharges the bail of the party arrested thereon, unless it enlarges the sum demanded beyond the sum expressed in the bail bond. (Rev., s. 757; Code, s. 320; R. C., c. 11, s. 11.)

Art. 34. Attachment

§ 798. In what actions attachment granted.—A warrant of attachment against the property of one or more defendants in an action may be granted upon the application of the plaintiff, as specified in this article, when the action is to recover a sum of money only, or damages for one or more of the following causes:

1. Breach of contract, express or implied.
2. Wrongful conversion of personal property.
3. Any other injury to real or personal property, in consequence of negligence, fraud, or other wrongful act.
4. Any injury to the person, caused by negligence or wrongful act. (Rev., s. 758; Code, s. 347; 1893, c. 77; 1901, c. 740; C. C. P., s. 197.)

Cross References.—For full treatment of attachment, see 2 N. C. Enc. Dig. 111-189; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 198-205.

Editor's Note.—In chapter 7 section 16 of the Rev. Code it was provided that an attachment would lie against the property of one who injured the person or property of another, and within three months thereafter absconded from the State. The attachment had to be issued within three months from the time of the injury. For cases under this old provision, see Blankinship v. McMahon, 63 N. C. 180; Webb v. Bowler, 50 N. C. 362.

Definitions and Object.—An order of attachment is an execution by anticipation. It empowers the officer to seize and hold the estate of the alleged debtor for the satisfaction of a claim or demand to be established in the future and for which a judgment may never be obtained. See Green v. Van Buskirk, 7 Wall. 139, 149, 19 L. Ed. 109.

Attachment is a mesne process, merely an incident to a suit. Ex parte Des Moines, etc., R. Co., 103 U. S. 794, 796, 26 L. Ed. 46.

The object of the writ is to enable the plaintiff to obtain a lien upon the property which may be subsequently enforced by a sale upon execution, if judgment be obtained. Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 406, 44 L. Ed. 520, 523.

Origin of the Writ.—Attachment, other than the common-law writ which issued out of the common pleas upon the non-appearance of the defendant at the return of the original writ, had its origin in the civil law, and afterwards was adopted in England in the form of a custom of the London merchants, and out of this, as modified and extended by statute, has grown the modern law in respect to this remedy. It was resorted to in order to compel the attendance of the debtor as well as to afford a security to the creditor. Grocery Co. v. Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 177, 55 S. E. 90.

History of the Section.—Under the Code of 1868, as originally enacted, this provisional remedy was allowed in actions on a contract for the recovery of money only, or in actions for wrongful conversion of personal property; and several decisions of the court, construing the first clause of the statute, held that an attachment was only permissible for breaches of contract involving the recovery of liquidated damages, or damages which could be limited and defined by some standard or data contained in the contract itself. See Price v. Cox, 83 N. C. 261; Wilson v. St. Louis Cook Mfg. Co., 88 N. C. 5. Shortly after these decisions were announced, the statute was amended so as to provide the remedy for breach of contract (express or implied), wrongful conversion of personal property, any other injury to personal property in consequence of negligence, fraud or other wrongful act. Code 1883, section 347. The legislature of 1893 (chapter 77) added "injuries to real property" to the section, and in 1901 there was another amendment adding, "or any injury to the person, caused by negligence or other wrongful act," making the law on the subject as it now appears. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 151 N. C. 191, 194, 65 S. E. 918.

The amendment of 1901 showed the intent of the Legislature to broaden the right to this writ, and make the same almost coextensive with any well grounded demand for a judgment in personam. And there is no valid reason for the distinction between actions for slander and libel, and any other demand for unascertained and unliquidated damages for injuries to the person. Tisdale v. Eubanks, 180 N. C. 153, 156, 104 S. E. 339.

Nature and Function.—An attachment is not the foundation of an independent action, but is an ancillary and auxiliary remedy collateral to the action. Marsh v. Williams, 63 N. C. 371; Toms v. Warson, 66 N. C. 417. Its function is to seize the property of a defendant and hold it within the grasp of the law until the trial can be had and the rights of the parties determined, or it may be released pending the action if seized without proper cause. In no sense is it a process to bring the defendant into court. It may be issued to accompany the summons, or at any time thereafter. Ditmore v. Goins, 128 N. C. 325, 328, 39 S. E. 61.

Created by Statute.—Attachment is the creature of local law; that is, unless there is a law of the state providing for and permitting the attachment, it cannot be levied there. Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 222, 49 L. Ed. 1023.

Conflict between State and Federal Jurisdiction.—In case of conflict of authority under a state and federal process, in order to avoid unseemly collision between them, the question as to which authority should for the time prevail does not depend upon the rights of the respective parties to the property seized, whether the one is paramount to the other, but upon the question as to which jurisdiction has first attached by the seizure and custody of the property under its process. Covell v. Heyman, 111 U. S. 176, 177, 28 L. Ed. 390.

And this rule applies notwithstanding the fact that the property has been brought into custody by illegal means. Gumbel v. Pitkin, 124 U. S. 131, 155, 31 L. Ed. 374.

Defects or Irregularities.—The court will not be deprived of the jurisdiction which it has acquired by the levy of a writ of attachment, by the fact that the affidavit may have been defective, or that the officer whose duty it is to issue the writ may have failed in some manner to observe all the requisite formalities. Copper v. Reynolds, 10 Wall. 308, 19 L. Ed. 931.

Custody of the Law.—Property in custodia legis is not subject to levy under process which would have the effect of taking it out of his possession and control. Gumbel v. Pitkin, 124 U. S. 131, 156, 31 L. Ed. 374.

Possession of Goods.—As a general rule it matters not in whose possession the property is found, if the taking be otherwise rightful. Livingston v. Smith, 5 Pet. 90, 98, 8 L. Ed. 57.

A defendant's property or choses in action in the hands of third persons may be attached under this section. Newberry v. Meadows Fertilizer Co., 206 N. C. 182, 173 S. E. 67.

An Unusual Writ.—There is a marked distinction between the ordinary writ and an attachment. In this latter the plaintiff is allowed to get a judgment against the defendant without personal service of process, which is contrary to the course of the common law, and as a protection to the absent defendant, the statute requires all the material facts to be set out in an affidavit, which is made the ground work of this proceeding. Webb v. Bowler, 50 N. C. 362, 364.

A Proceeding Quasi in Rem.—Attachment of the property of nonresident defendants in this state is a proceeding quasi in rem, for the purpose of bringing him under the jurisdiction of the state court for the purpose of determining the controversy in the action brought against him, when properly constituted. Mohn v. Cressey, 193 N. C. 568, 137 S. E. 718.

Strict Construction.—In 2 Lewis's Sutherland on Statutory Construction (2 Ed.), sec. 566, p. 1049, it is stated: "A party seeking the benefit of such a statute must bring himself strictly, not within the spirit, but within the letter; he can take nothing by intendment ..... The remedy by attachment is special and extraordinary, and the statutory provisions for it must be strictly construed, and cannot have force in cases not plainly within their terms." And the decisions of this state are in full approval of this position. Skinner v. Moore, 19 N. C. 138-146; State Bank v.

Hinton, 12 N. C. 397, 398-399; Carson v. Woodrow, 160 N. C. 143, 146, 75 S. E. 996.

In State Bank v. Hinton, 12 N. C. 397, it was said by the court, in speaking of the attachment law, that "there is no law in the statute book which more imperiously demands a strict construction; for the property of an absentee may be sold upon an attachment wrongfully sued out before he is appraised of the proceeding, and, if he then should discover that no bond and affidavit were taken and returned, his remedy must at best be very imperfect." Leak v. Moorman, 61 N. C. 168.

But where, in a proceeding of attachment, it appears from the whole record that the provisions of the statute have been substantially complied with, the action will not be dismissed nor the attachment dissolved. Grant v. Burgwyn, 79 N. C. 513; Best v. British, etc., Mortg. Co., 128 N. C. 351, 38 S. E. 923; Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 41, 74 S. E. 642.

Unliquidated Damages.—Previous to 1893, in a number of cases arising under the section, it was held that the remedy of attachment was confined to actions upon contracts in which the amount of damages could be specified in the affidavit, and that the remedy would not apply if the action be one for unliquidated damages. See Price v. Cox, 83 N. C. 261; Wilson v. St. Louis Cook Mfg. Co., 88 N. C. 5; Mullen v. Norfolk, etc., Canal Co., 114 N. C. 8, 19 S. E. 106.

But since the amendment of 1893 the issuance of the writ has been upheld in actions for money, and for unliquidated damages in the cause specified, and for none other. Judd v. Crawford Gold Min. Co., 120 N. C. 397, 27 S. E. 81; Long v. Home Ins. Co., 114 N. C. 465, 19 S. E. 347; Winfree v. Bagley, 192 N. C. 515, 9 S. E. 198; Tisdale v. Eubanks, 180 N. C. 153, 156, 104 S. E. 339.

An attachment can be granted under this section, in an action for unliquidated damages before judgment. Newberry v. Meadows Fertilizers Co., 206 N. C. 182, 188, 173 S. E. 67.

Meaning of "Property".—Webb v. Bowler, 50 N. C. 362 was an action where the validity of an attachment was in question, and it was held that the term "property" should be confined to tangible property, and that a false warranty or deceit in the sale of personal property was not an injury to the property of another, within the meaning of the statute. Since these decisions were rendered, however, and probably in consequence of them, this restricted significance of the word "property," when used in statutes or the rule of interpretation on the question presented, has been altered by express enactment, section 3949. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 151 N. C. 191, 195, 65 S. E. 918.

When Attachment Lies.—An action is clearly one in which the writ of attachment is allowed where the wrong alleged is an injury by which the plaintiff's interest and investment in a power company has been wrongfully destroyed or very greatly impaired. Worth v. Knickerbocker Trust Co., 151 N. C. 191, 196, 65 S. E. 918.

An attachment in equity will lie against the principal, even though the remedy at law against his surety has not been exhausted. Alexander v. Taylor, 62 N. C. 36.

Same—Slander.—The security of a person's good name and reputation is within his personal rights as a citizen, and slander thereof is an injury to his person, and will sustain a proceeding for an attachment within the intent and meaning of this section, as an "injury to the person by ..... wrongful act." Tisdale v. Eubanks, 180 N. C. 153, 104 S. E. 339.

Same—Death by Wrongful Act.—The history of legislation as to attachments culminating in this section, shows a legislative intent to broaden the right of this writ to make the same almost coextensive with any well-grounded demand for judgment in personam, and is sufficiently comprehensive to include the action for "causing the death of another by wrongful act, neglect, or default of another." Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

Tax Books of Sheriff Not Liable.—Though a sheriff, who has settled for the taxes due on a tax list which have not been paid to him, may collect the same within the time allowed by law, yet the tax books, showing the debts thus due him, cannot be attached by a creditor to whom he is indebted. Davie v. Blackburn, 117 N. C. 383, 23 S. E. 321.

Bill Can Name Several Persons.—A bill seeking an attachment, on account of a single claim, is not multifarious because it prays that such attachment issue against property in the hands of various persons, or because it seeks from such persons an account of their respective dealings with the debtor. Alexander v. Taylor, 62 N. C. 36.

An intervener in an action wherein attachment on the defendant's property has been issued, and who claims a prior lien by reason of a former order of court in another and independent proceeding, becomes party to the present action and may not successfully attack the validity of the proceedings in attachment, and the question of priority is left to be determined in the present action. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

Cited in Farmers Federation v. Lockman, 198 N. C. 77, 150 S. E. 673.

§ 799. Affidavit must show what.—To entitle the plaintiff to a warrant of attachment he must show by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court as follows:

1. That one of the causes of action specified in the preceding section exists against the defendant. If the action is to recover damages for breach of contract, the affidavit must show that the plaintiff is entitled to recover a sum stated therein, over and above all counterclaims known to him. (See Witz v. Gray, 116-48; Knight v. Hatfield, 129-191.)

2. That the defendant is either a foreign corporation or a nonresident of the state, or a domestic corporation none of whose officers can be found in the state after due diligence; or, if he is a natural person and a resident of the state that he has departed therefrom, or keeps himself concealed therein, with intent to defraud his creditors or to avoid service of summons; or, if the defendant is a natural person or a domestic corporation, that he or it has removed, or is about to remove, property from the state, with intent to defraud his or its creditors; or has assigned, disposed of, or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of, or secrete, property with like intent. (Rev., s. 759; Code, s. 349; 1897, c. 476; C. C. P., s. 201.)

III. Pleading and Practice.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—In Abrams v. Pender, 44 N. C. 260, it was decided that, under the section as it then read, it was required that the removal of the defendant should have been fraudulent or with intent to evade the process before an attachment lay. But an attachment is now made a provisional remedy in the progress of a cause and can be sued out whenever the defendant is a non-resident regardless of intent. Wheeler v. Cobb, 75 N. C. 21, 26.

Strict Construction.—The provisions of this section must be strictly followed. Spiers v. Halstead, etc. Co., 71 N. C. 209, 210; Wheeler v. Cobb, 75 N. C. 21, 24; Leak v. Moorman, 61 N. C. 168.

By Whom Made.—An affidavit in attachment may be made generally by the plaintiff, his agent or attorney. Henrietta Min. etc., Co. v. Gardner, 173 U. S. 123, 43 L. Ed. 640.

When One a Non-Resident.—Where one voluntarily removes from this to another state, for the purpose of discharging the duties of an office of indefinite duration, which requires his continued presence there for an unlimited time, such a one is a nonresident of this state for the purpose of an attachment, and that notwithstanding he may occasionally visit this state, and that he may have the intent to return at some uncertain future time. Wheeler v. Cobb, 75 N. C. 21, 26.

But the fact that a person leaves the state to seek work, for the purpose of prospecting with a view to change his residence if desirable, does not sustain an attachment on the ground that the defendant was a nonresident. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 48 S. E. 549.

One who has left the State for an indefinite time, his return depending upon a doubtful contingency, is a nonresident under subsection 2 of this section notwithstanding he may intend to return at some time in the future, and his motion made by special appearance to vacate the attachment on the ground of residence will be denied. Brann v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 571, 140 S. E. 292.

Domicile is not determinative of the question whether one is a nonresident within the meaning of such subsection. Nor is the cause of the absence, such as severe illness, material if such absence prevents prsonal service of summons upon him during an indefinite period of time. Brann v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 571, 140 S. E. 292.

Intent.—This section, authorizing a warrant of attachment where a fraudulent disposition of property is made as against creditors, relates to the intent with which it is disposed of, and not to the manner in which the property is acquired. Howland v. Marshall, 127 N. C. 427, 37 S. E. 462.

Affidavit Necessary in Attachment.—In order for the valid issuance of an attachment from the superior court, it is necessary that the requisite facts be shown to the court by an affidavit of prescribed form and substance under this section. Carson v. Woodrow, 160 N. C. 143, 75 S. E. 996.

Submission to Jurisdiction as Relieving from Attachment.—Where the service by publication and attachment on a defendant absent from the State comes within the provisions of § 484 and subsection 2 of this section, and thereunder his property here has been attached as required to give validity to the publication of service, he may submit himself to the jurisdiction of the court and releive his property of the levy in attachment. Brann v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 571, 140 S. E. 292.

Cited in Bizzelll v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706; Farmers Federation v. Lockman, 198 N. C. 77, 150 S. E. 673.

II. THE AFFIDAVIT.

A. Necessary Allegations.

Specific.—The affidavit to procure an attachment must be specific. Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 14 S. E. 508, and must set forth one of the grounds recited in this section. Mullen v. Norfolk, etc., Canal Co., 114 N. C. 8, 10, 19 S. E. 106.

Grounds of Belief Must Be Stated.—Where the plaintiff makes oath that he believes or apprehends the property will be removed, he must also state the grounds of apprehension. Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154.

When the affidavit is that the defendants are "about to assign or dispose of their property with intent to defraud the plaintiffs," which is not the assertion of a fact, but necessarily of a belief merely, the grounds upon which such belief is founded must be set out so that the court may adjudge if they are sufficient. Hughes v. Person, 63 N. C. 548; Gashine, etc., Co. v. Baer, 64 N. C. 108; Clark v. Clark, 64 N. C. 150; Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154. Judd v. Crawford Gold Min. Co., 120 N. C. 397, 399, 27 S. E. 81. And if not set out the affidavit is fatally defective. First Nat. Bank v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 179 N. C. 203, 102 S. E. 195.

Examples of Sufficient Statement.—Affidavits for publication of the summons and notice of attachment are sufficient when they show that the defendant cannot, after due and diligent search, be found in this state, that he is a nonresident and has property here of which the court has jurisdiction, and that the plaintiff has a cause of action against the defendant, arising out of a contract by which he expressly promises to pay a specific sum to the plaintiff for services rendered at his request, which sum is still due and owing. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

An affidavit for an attachment is sufficient which states that the defendant is a nonresident and has property in this state, or has removed, or is about to remove some of his property from this state with intent to defraud his creditors. The statute puts the modes in the alternative, and the plaintiff succeeds if he establishes either. Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154.

In proceedings for attachment an affidavit is sufficient which sets out: 1st., that the defendant is indebted, etc.; 2d., that the defendant has departed from this state with intent, as the affiant is informed and believes, to avoid the service of summons. Hess, etc., Co. v. Brower, 76 N. C. 428.

B. What Can Be Omitted.

Absence of Defendant.—It is not requisite, and therefore need not be averred, that the defendant can not be found in the state in order to procure a warrant of attachment. Luttrell v. Martin, 112 N. C. 593, 605, 17 S. E. 573.

Defendant's Property.—It is not necessary that the affidavit upon which an attachment is sought should state that the defendant has property in this state. Branch v. Frank, 81 N. C. 180. Foushee v. Owen, 122 N. C. 360, 363, 29 S. E. 770; Parks v. Adams, 113 N. C. 473, 476, 18 S. E. 665 overruling Windley v. Bradway, 77 N. C. 333 and Spiers v. Halstead, etc., Co., 71 N. C. 209.

Jurisdiction of Court.—Where, in proceedings for attachment, it sufficiently appears of record that the court had jurisdiction of the subject-matter, it is unnecessary that the affidavit of the attaching creditors specifically allege its jurisdiction. County Sav. Bank v.. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 133 S. E. 558. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 43, 74 S. E. 642; Bacon v. Johnson, 110 N. C. 114, 14 S. E. 508; Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 185, 102 S. E. 270.

When Made by Agent.—An affidavit made by an agent under this section need not state why it is not made by the principal. Bruff, etc., Co. v. Stern, & Bro., 81 N. C. 183; Sheldon v. Kivett, 110 N. C. 408, 14 S. E. 970.

Examples of Defective Statement.—An affidavit in attachment against a non-resident, which fails to set out how the debt was due, and that the defendant could not, after due diligence, be found in North Carolina, is defective. Sheldon v. Kivett, 110 N. C. 408, 14 S. E. 970.

An affidavit for a warrant of attachment, under this section, which states "that the defendant is absent so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him," without an averment that the absence "was with intent to defraud his creditors and to avoid the service of summons," is fatally defective. Love & Co. v. Young, 69 N. C. 65.

Allegations in affidavits for attachment against an insolvent corporation's property, that executions had been issued against it, and that it had failed to make use of a small piece of its land, and had not paid the taxes thereon; or that its president claimed this land, or its proceeds are insufficient upon the question of fraud of the corporation, for the granting of the warrant. First Nat. Bank v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 180 N. C. 128 104 S. E. 129.

C. Amendment.

Court Can Allow Amendment.—It is settled that an affidavit can be amended by leave of the court, granted in its discretion, even though the first affidavit was wholly insufficient. Brown, etc., Co. v. Hawkins, 65 N. C. 645; Branch v. Frank, 81 N. C. 180; Bank v. Blossom, 92 N. C. 695; Penniman v. Daniel, 93 N. C. 332; Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 10 S. E. 258. Sheldon v. Kivett, 110 N. C. 408, 410, 14 S. E. 970.

Same—Effect of Findings.—An affidavit on attachment defective in failing to set forth the facts as to defendant's being about to leave the State, etc., may be amended by permission of court, and where the court has found with plaintiff upon conflicting oral evidence, his findings has the effect of an amendment allowed by him. Thornburg v. Burton, 197 N. C. 193, 148 S. E. 28.

Relates Back to Beginning.—An amendment of an insufficient affidavit in attachment relates back to the beginning of the proceedings, and no rights based on such irregularity can be acquired by third parties by subsequent attachments intervening between the original affidavit and the amendment. Cook v. New York Corundum Min. Co., 114 N. C. 617, 19 S. E. 664.

Error for Clerk to Refuse.—A plaintiff has a right to amend his affidavit as to mere matters of form, and if he is ready to swear to the amended affidavit it is error in the clerk to refuse it. Palmer v. Bosher, 71 N. C. 291.

No Appeal from Courts Order.—From the leave to amend the affidavit no appeal lies. Lippard v. Roseman, 72 N. C. 427; Henry v. Cannon, 86 N. C. 24; Wiggins v. McCoy, 87 N. C. 499; Jarrett v. Gibbs, 107 N. C. 303, 12 S. E. 272. Sheldon v. Kivett, 110 N. C. 408, 411, 14 S. E. 970; Cook v. New York Corundum Min. Co., 114 N. C. 617, 19 S. E. 664.

III. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Court Finds Facts.—In attachment and other ancillary proceeding it is competent for the court to find the facts from the affidavits and other evidence; and a party consenting to this mode of trial cannot afterwards demand a jury trial. Pasour v. Lineberger, 90 N. C. 159.

Determination of Validity.—The validity of a warrant of attachment is determined upon facts alleged in the original affidavit and existing at the time when the proceeding is instituted, not upon new matter which may have afterwards transpired. Devries & Co. v. Summit, 86 N. C. 126.

Remedy When Affidavit Defective.—A plea in abatement is the proper mode of taking advantage of a defect in the affidavit for an attachment. Leak v. Moorman, 61 N. C. 168.

Collateral Attack.—The validity of the affidavit cannot be collaterally attacked. Wehrmant v. Conklin, 155 U. S. 314, 29 L. Ed. 167.

Appeal.—Where an appeal is taken from a refusal to discharge an attachment, the court below cannot in the meantime allow a motion "to dismiss" the same to be entered, for the apeal takes the case out of its jurisdiction. Pasour v. Lineberger, 90 N. C. 159.

The findings of fact of the clerk of the Superior Court, on a motion to vacate an atttachment, supported by the evidence and approved by the judge, are not subject to review on appeal to the Supreme Court. Brann v. Hanes, 194 N. C. 571, 140 S. E. 292.

§ 800. Affidavit to be filed.—It is the duty of the plaintiff procuring a warrant of attachment, within ten days from its issuance, to file the affidavit on which it was granted in the office of the clerk of the superior court to which, or with the justice of the peace before whom, the process is returnable. (Rev., s. 760; Code, s. 355; C. C. P., s. 201.)

§ 801. By whom granted.—If the action is not founded on a contract, or if founded on a contract and the sum demanded exceeds two hundred dollars, a warrant of attachment may be obtained from the judges of the district embracing the county in which the action was begun, or from the clerk of the superior court from which the summons in the action issued; and it may be issued to any county in the state where the defendant has property, money, effects, choses in action or debts due him, and shall be made returnable before the clerk at the same time and place to which the summons is returnable. (Rev., s. 761; Code, s. 351; C. C. P., s. 199; 1869-70, c. 147; 1870-1, c. 166, ss. 1, 3; 1874-5, c. 111; 1876-7, c. 251; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 17.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to 1921 the last clause in this section read "and shall be made returnable in term time to the court from which the summons issued." By Law Ex. Sess. 1921 Ch. 92, Sec. 17 this clause was changed to read "and shall be made returnable before the clerk at the same time and place to which the summons is returnable." As to the summons, see section 476 and the notes thereto.

Clerk Can Grant Attachment Out of Term Time. — The clerk of the court, acting as and for the court, has authority out of term time to grant the warrant of attachment, and likewise to allow all proper amendments in that respect and connection.. Howland v. Marshall, 127 N. C. 427, 429, 37 S. E. 462. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 10 S. E. 258.

A Ministerial Act.—The clerk only acts ministerially in issuing the process for attachment. Evans v. Etheridge, 96 N. C. 42, 1 S. E. 633.

Clerk May Grant When He is Plaintiff.—A clerk of the superior court, upon making the necessary affidavit before some person authorized by law, may issue a warrant of attachment in an action in which he is plaintiff. Evans v. Etheridge, 96 N. C. 42, 1 S. E. 633.

Issuance of Blank Forms Not Permitted.—When an attachment form in blank, including a form for the affidavit, has been signed by the clerk and delivered to the attorney of the party seeking the attachment, upon condition that he properly fill out the papers and give sufficient bond, the writ and the levy thereunder are both void, though subsequently approved by the clerk. Carson v. Woodrow, 160 N. C. 143, 75 S. E. 996.

When Clerk Denies Amendment.—Where the clerk refuses to allow an amendment he may, and should, state his reason for such refusal, even after appeal to the court in term. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 10 S. E. 258.

Appeal from Clerk's Decision.—From the decision of the clerk in granting a warrant of attachment an appeal lies to the judge. Howland v. Marshall, 127 N. C. 427, 429, 37 S. E. 462. Cushing v. Styron, 104 N. C. 338, 10 S. E. 258.

§ 802. Time of Issuance; service of summons.—The warrant of attachment may be granted to accompany the summons, or at any time thereafter. Personal service of the summons must be made upon the defendant against whose property the attachment is granted, within thirty days after its granting, or else upon the expiration of the same time service of summons by publication must be commenced pursuant to an order obtained therefor, and if publication has been or is thereafter commenced, the service must be made complete by the continuance thereof. (Rev., s. 762; Code, s. 348; C. C. P., s. 197.)

Editor's Note.—Service of summons by publication is mentioned in this section and in section 806. As to when service by publication can be resorted to, and for the meaning of "due diligence" in such cases, see section 484 and annotations thereunder.

Service by Publication.—The provisions of the Code, authorizing the attachment of the property of a non-resident defendant upon constructive service of a summons by publication, have many of the features of the foreign attachment. Such proceeding is an extraordinary and summary remedy, and is in derogation of the common law and statute law of the United States, and cannot be recognized in a case commenced in a Federal court. Even in a State court the plaintiff must strictly and technically perform all the conditions required by the statute entitling him to such remedy. Jurisdiction in such cases cannot be acquired or enlarged by implication and liberal construction. Lackett v. Rumbaugh, 45 Fed. 23, 29.

"Within Thirty Days" Not Applicable to Publication.—Under this section publication is not required to be made, like personal service of summons, "within thirty days after the attachment granted," but upon expiration of the thirty days; that means "after" the expiration of the thirty days, and where publication was begun on the day after the expiration of the thirty days, that strictly conforms to the statute. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 652, 85 S. E. 17.

Time Can Be Extended.—In Finch v. Slater, 152 N. C. 155, 156, 67 S. E. 264, it is held that where the court has acquired jurisdiction by attachment of property, the time for serving summons by publication, when it has not been properly made, can be extended in the discretion of the court. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 653, 85 S. E. 17.

Main Action Commenced By Summons.—The warrant of attachment is only a provisional or ancillary remedy in and dependent upon a main action commenced by the issuing of a summons. Lackett v. Rumbaugh, 45 Fed. 23, 29.

When Summons Unnecessary.—In proper instances, where civil actions are commenced and service is obtained by attachment of the defendant's property, and publication of a notice based upon the jurisdiction thus acquired, the issuance of a summons at the commencement of the action is unnecessary. Jenette v. Hovey & Co., 182 N. C. 30, 108 S. E. 301.

Same—Section 1487 Not Applicable.—In attachment and publication on a nonresident defendant before a justice of the peace, where the defendant's property within the jurisdiction of the court has been levied on, a summons is not required; and therefore the requirements of sec. 1487, that the summons must be made returnable not more than thirty days after its issuance, are inapplicable. Best British, etc., Mortg. Co., 128 N. C. 351, 352, 38 S. E. 923, cited and affirmed by Walker, J.; Grocer Co. v. Collins Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 55 S. E. 90, and by Allen, J., Currie Golconda Min., Co., 157 N. C. 209, 217, 72 S. E. 980. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 85 S. E. 17.

Where Nonresident Has No Actual Notice.—A nonresident defendant in attachment proceedings, against whom judgment has been rendered under service of summons by publication, and who has not had actual notice of the action until after the judgment had been rendered, may, as a matter of right upon showing that he has a good and meritorious defense, have the judgment vacated by motion within the statutory period, and he can avail himself of any defense he originally had. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

Proceedings When Notice Not Duly Served.—If the notice was not duly served by the publication, it was error to discharge an attachment granted as ancillary to an action because of the insufficiency of the affidavit to obtain service of the summons by publication, for it is possible that the defect may be cured by amendments. Branch v. Frank, 81 N. C. 180. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 652, 85 S. E. 17.

The remedy is not to dismiss the attachment, but by ordering a republication, for, as the defendant is a nonresident, to dismiss the attachment may deprive the plaintiff of all remedy by the removal of the property before a new proceeding and attachment can be had. Price v. Cox, 83 N. C. 261; Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154, 159; Penniman v. Daniel, 93 N. C. 332. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 652, 85 S. E. 17.

Cited in Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 487, 142 S. E. 706.

§ 803. Undertaking.—The officer, before issuing the warrant, must require a written undertaking on the part of the plaintiff, with sufficient surety, to the effect that if the defendant recovers judgment, or the attachment is set aside by order of the court, the plaintiff will pay all costs that are awarded to the defendant, and all damages which he sustains by reason of the attachment, not exceeding the sum specified in the undertaking, which must be at least two hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 763; Code, 356; C. C. P., s. 202.)

Separate Action By Successful Defendant.—This section clearly implies that the successful defendant in attachment must seek relief in a separate action on the undertaking. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 43, 48 S. E. 549.

Mistake in Signing Undertaking.—Where, by mistake, the surety on the undertaking of the plaintiff signs his name to the justification of the undertaking instead of to the undertaking itself, this is held to be a valid and binding undertaking. Boger v. Cedar Cove Lumber Co., 165 N. C. 557, 559, 81 S. E. 784.

Misjoinder of Principal and Surety.—An action will not be dismissed for a misjoinder of parties where the plaintiff is suing, in the same action, the principal and surety on an attachment bond. The remedy is by motion to have the causes divided. Smith v. American Bonding Co., 160 N. C. 574, 76 S. E. 481.

When Action Lies Against Creditor.—In an action to recover on the bond given by the creditor and his surety in attachment proceedings for a wrongful levy therein, the statute of limitations begins to run from the rendition of the judgment and not from the time the property was replevied, the recovery of the judgment in the former action is the condition authorizing the present suit, and a vacation of the attachment. Smith v. American Bonding Co., 160 N. C. 574, 76 S. E. 481.

Creditor Not Liable For Sheriff's Failure.—An attaching creditor is not liable on his bond for the failure of the sheriff to perform his duty relative to the attached property. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 48 S. E. 549.

When Bond Sufficient.—Where an attachment was sued out against the owner of a vessel, it was held that a prosecution bond, made payable to the "owner" of the vessel by that description, was sufficient. Bryan v. Steamer Enterprise, 53 N. C. 260.

§ 804. Validity of undertaking.—It is not a defense to an action upon an undertaking, given upon granting a warrant of attachment, that the warrant was granted improperly, for want of jurisdiction, or for any other cause. (Rev., s. 764; Code, s. 358.)

§ 805. To whom warrant directed; duty of officer.—The warrant shall be directed to the sheriff of any county in which the property of the defendant is located, or, in case it is issued by a justice of the peace, to the sheriff or any constable of such county, and shall require the sheriff or constable to attach and safely keep all the property of the defendant within his county, or so much thereof as is sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's demand, the amount of which must be stated in conformity with the complaint, together with costs and expenses; it must also state when and where it shall be returned. Several warrants may be issued at the same time to the sheriffs of different counties, but where the warrant is issued by a justice of the peace to another county than his own, the clerk of the superior court of his county must certify that he is a justice of the peace and that the signature to the warrant is in the handwriting of the justice. (Rev., s. 765; Code, s. 357; 1895, c. 435, s. 1; C. C. P., s. 203.)

Editor's Note.—The former statute, of which section 805 is a modification, contained the clause, "Provided such county be that of the justice issuing the warrant" (Battle's Revisal, 186 sec. 203; the Code, sec. 357); but the proviso was subsequently struck from the statute. Public Laws 1895, ch. 435. The amendment apparently indicates the legislative intent to extend the reach of the warrant of attachment, as distinguished from original process, beyond the boundaries of the county in which the justice resides. See Mohn v. Cressey, 193 N. C. 568, 572, 137 S. E. 718.

Superior Court Writ Should Be Directed to Sheriff.—By reason of the same rule of strict construction mentioned in the annotations under sec. 798 it must be held that a writ of attachment issuing out of the superior court on causes within that jurisdiction shall be addressed to the sheriff of the county. Carson v. Woodrow, 160 N. C. 143, 147, 75 S. E. 996.

This section makes a clear distinction between writs issuing from the superior court and the court of a justice of the peace, and in express terms requires that writs of attachment from the superior courts shall be addressed to the sheriff of the county. Carson v. Woodrow, 160 N. C. 143, 147, 75 S. E. 996.

Warrant Issued to Constable Instead of Sheriff.—An irregularity in issuing a warrant of attachment to the constable or other lawful officer of the county, when the statute requires it to be issued to the sheriff, may be afterwards cured by an amendment of the court when it appears that the warrant was served by a deputy sheriff. Temple v. Eades Hay Co., 184 N. C. 239, 114 S. E. 162.

An attachment issued by the clerk of a court for a sum within the jurisdiction of the court, and made returnable to the proper term of the court, will not be dismissed for want of form because directed "to any constable or other lawful officer to execute and return within thirty days (Sundays excepted)," when it appears that it was executed by the sheriff. Askew v. Stevenson, 61 N. C. 288.

Clerical Error in Warrant.—A warrant in attachment, in substantial conformity with this section, and, in fact executed by the deputy sheriff of the proper county, is valid, and will not be held otherwise when verified by a proper agent, though by apparent clerical error it was stated in its beginning to have been made by a member of the firm, the power of the trial judge to allow amendments is plenary under the provisions of C. S., sec. 549. May Co. v. Menzies Shoe Co, 186 N. C. 144, 119 S. E. 227.

When Sheriff is Defendant.—The words of this section "all the property of the defendant" do not, when the sheriff is the defendant, include his tax books showing debts due to him for taxes. Davie v. Blackburn, 117 N. C. 383, 23 S. E. 321.

§ 806. Notice; service and content.—When the warrant of attachment is taken out at the time of issuing the summons, and the summons is to be served by publication, the order shall direct that notice be given in the publication to the defendant of the issuing of the attachment. When the warrant of attachment is obtained after the issuing of the summons, the defendant must be notified by publication of the fact for four successive weeks in some newspaper published in the county to which it is returnable, or if none, then in one published in the judicial district including said county. The publication shall state the names of the parties, the amount of the claims, and in a brief way the nature of the demand and the time and place to which the warrant is returnable. In proceedings by attachment begun before justices of the peace, advertisement in a newspaper is not necessary, but advertisement at the courthouse door and four other public places in the county for four successive weeks is sufficient publication, both as to the summons and warrant of attachment. (Rev., s. 766; Code, s. 352; 1893, c. 363; 1870-1, c. 166, s. 3; 1874-5, c. 111, s. 2.)

Cross References.—As to service by publication, see annotations under section 802 and under section 484.

Editor's Note.—Under former statutes, when the defendant was a nonresident, attachment issued either in the form of an original or a judicial attachment, and without any notice until there had been a levy or caption of the goods of the debtor, when advertisement was required if the defendant resided without the jurisdiction. Rev. Code, ch. 7, secs. 12 and 13. By sec. 12 it was provided that "No judicial process shall be issued against the estate of any person residing without the limits of the state, unless the same be grounded on an original attachment, or unless the leading process of the suit has been executed on the person of the defendant when within the state." This was the method of proceeding against nonresidents until the adoption of the Code system. The remedy then became ancillary to the principal suit for the recovery of the debt. But there was no essential change in the procedure by which the defendant was brought before the court and compelled to appear and submit his person to its jurisdiction, or lose his property as the penalty for his default, or so much thereof as was necessary to satisfy the plaintiff's demand. See Grocery Co. v. Collins Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 177, 55 S. E. 90.

Summons Necessary.—The issuance and service of a summons in an action are indispensable to a valid judgment. Ditmore v. Goins, 128 N. C. 325, 327, 39 S. E. 61.

When Publication of Summons Sufficient.—In order that the cardinal principle of our judicial system should not be even seemingly violated, it was required that in the original action, instead of the idle and unless ceremony of issuing a summons for a man whom it was well known could not be found, publication in such manner as would be likely to give notice of the action should be made; and such is the meaning and clear intent of this section as plainly manifested by its words. It is true that civil actions are commenced by issuing a summons, but this refers to cases where the defendant, being within the jurisdiction of the court, can be served personally. Best v. British, etc., Mortg. Co., 128 N. C. 351, 38 S. E. 923, cited and approved. McClure v. Fellows, 131 N. C. 509, 42 S. E. 951 overruled. Grocery Co. v. Collins Bag Co., 142 N. C. 174, 178, 55 S. E. 90.

Omission of Notice in the Order.—Where notice of the attachment is omitted from the order of publication, but in the published notice the defendant is informed that an attachment has been issued against his property, to what court it is returnable, etc., the court has power to amend the order of publication, so as to insert a requirement that notice be given of the attachment. Bank v. Blosssom, 92 N. C. 695.

Affidavit after Order.—It seems that the affidavit to obtain an order for the publication of a summons may be made after the order, provided the order remains in abeyance until the affidavit is filed. Bank v. Blossom, 92 N. C. 695.

Publication for Five Weeks.—Where notice of an attachment and the summons were published in one notice for five weeks, it was held, a sufficient publication of the notice of the attachment, but not of the summons. Bank v. Blossom, 92 N. C. 695.

Where a publication of a summons was only made for five weeks, the court has power to retain the action and order a sufficient publication. Bank v. Blossom, 92 N. C. 695.

Warrant and Summons Distinguished.—This section provides that in attachment proceedings in a justice's court, advertisement in a newspaper shall not be necessary, but advertisement at the courthouse door and four other public places in the county for four successive weeks shall be sufficient publication, both as to the summons and warrant of attachment. This modification permits the incorporation of the warrant of attachment to be made in the summons, not the summons in the warrant. The summons is an official process, and must be signed and issued by the justice of the peace, whether its service is to be made personally or by publication, while the warrant, if not incorporated in the summons as above provided, is not official and may be signed by the plaintiff himself, and if not taken out at the time of issuing the summons, has to be served separately. Ditmore v. Goins, 128 N. C. 325, 327, 39 S. E. 61.

Failure to Order or Make Service.—Where an affidavit, filed in an action wherein attachment is sought against the property of a nonresident within the jurisdiction of the court, is sufficient for the clerk to order service of the summons by publication, but service has not been ordered or made, and the cause has come up on the defendant's special appearance and motion to dismiss on that ground, and pending the motion the plaintiff, upon an additional affidavit, without the knowledge of the judge, has obtained an order of publication from the clerk, it is within the sound discretion of the judge to permit the publication of the summons to be proceeded with, and deny the defendant's motion. Jenette v. Hovey & Co., 182 N. C. 30, 108 S. E. 301.

Defendant's Bond Constitutes Waiver.—Where property has been levied on under the writ, a bond given by the defendants in discharge of the attachment as provided by section 815 will be considered equivalent to a personal appearance in the action and a waiver of the requirement for further service of the summons. It amounts to a voluntary submission of the defendant's cause to the jurisdiction of the court. Mitchell v. Elizabeth City Lumber Co., 169 N. C. 397, 398, 86 S. E. 343.

Statement of Amount.—Under this section which provides that when the summons in an attachment suit is to be served by publication, the publication shall state the fact of the attachment, "the amount of the claims," and in a brief way the nature of the demand, an order and a publication based thereon which fail to state the amount of the plaintiff's claims are fatally defective. Flint v. Coffin, 176 Fed. 872, 873.

In attachment the plaintiff can not recover an amount in excess of that stated in the summons. Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452, 40 S. E. 218.

§ 807. Execution, levy, and lien.—The officer to whom the warrant of attachment is directed and delivered shall seize and take into his possession the tangible personal property of the defendant or so much as is necessary, and he is liable for the care and custody of such property, as if it had been seized under execution. He shall levy on the real estate of the defendant as prescribed for executions; he shall make and return with the warrant an inventory of the property seized or levied on, and, subject to the direction of the court, shall collect all debts owing to the defendant, and take such legal proceedings in his own name or that of the defendant as are necessary for that purpose. Where the sheriff or other officer levies an attachment upon real estate, he must certify the levy to the clerk of the superior court of the county where the land lies, with the names of the parties, and the clerk must note the same on his judgment docket and index it on the index to judgments, and the levy is a lien only from the date of entry by the clerk, except that if it is so docketed and indexed within five days after being made it is a lien from the time it was made. (Rev., s. 767; Code, s. 359; 1895, c. 435, s. 2; C. C. P., s. 204.)

Section 500 and This Section Construed in Pari Materia.—See note to § 500.

A levy on land under an attachment is sufficient, if it gives such a description as will distinguish and identify the land. Grier v. Rhyne, 67 N. C. 338.

Homestead.—The lien of an attachment levied upon land of a nonresident debtor is paramount to the right of a homestead therein acquired by the debtor by becoming a citizen of the state prior to the rendition of judgment in the action. Watkins v. Overby, 83 N. C. 165.

Effect of Levy.—Property seized under attachment is only a legal deposit in the hands of the sheriff to abide the event of the action, and after judgment against the defendant, he is entitled to the same exemptions in the property attached as he would have been had there been no attachment. State v. Rhyne, 80 N. C. 183.

Enforceable against Subsequent Purchasers.—When the officer has complied with the provisions of this section, the plaintiffs have a lien on such property, which is enforceable against all subsequent purchasers from the defendant. Newberry v. Meadows Fert. Co., 203 N. C. 330, 338, 166 S. E. 79.

Levy in a Different County.—A levy on land located in another county than that in which the judgment was obtained may be made without docketing a transcript of the judgment in the county where the land lies. Evans v. Aldridge, 133 N. C. 378, 45 S. E. 772.

Failure to Certify Does Not Invalidate Levy.—The failure to certify a levy therein to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land lies, in an attachment proceeding, does not invalidate such levy. Evans v. Aldridge, 133 N. C. 378, 45 S. E. 772.

§ 808. Return of warrant by Sheriff.—The sheriff shall return the warrant of attachment, and the undertakings provided for in this article, with a statement of his proceedings thereon, at the time and place at which it is on its face returnable, and upon, or at any time after, the return, he may obtain from the court to which the warrant was returnable a certified copy thereof, which, for the purpose of giving him authority, is the same as the original, and when the warrant has been fully executed or discharged, the sheriff shall return it, with his proceedings, to said court. (Rev., s. 768; Code, s. 376; C. C. P., s. 214.)

§ 809. When granted by justice of peace.—If the action is not founded on contract and the value of the property in controversy does not exceed the sum of fifty dollars, the warrant of attachment may, or if the action is founded on contract and the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, the warrant of attachment must be obtained from and made returnable before a justice of the peace of a county to the superior court of which it would have been returnable had the sum demanded exceeded two hundred dollars, or had the action not been founded on contract. (Rev., s. 769; Code, s. 353; C. C. P., s. 200; 1876-7, c. 251.)

Wrongful Issue by Justice.—An attachment wrongfully issued from the justice's court against a citizen of the State, transiently absent, is remedied by recordari. Merrell v. McHone, 126 N. C. 528, 36 S. E. 35.

§ 810. Publication in justice's court.—The plaintiff, within thirty days after obtaining a warrant of attachment from a justice of the peace, must cause publication thereof to be made for four successive weeks at the courthouse door and four other public places in the county where the warrant is returnable. (Rev., s. 770; Code, s. 350; C. C. P., s. 198; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 3; 1870-1, c. 166, s. 4; 1874-5, c. 111.)

Failure to Serve Summons.—Where a justice issued a summons and warrant of attachment, and publication of the warrant was made, but the summons was not served, a judgment rendered thereon is void for insufficiency of service of the summons. Ditmore v. Goins, 128 N. C. 325, 39 S. E. 61.

§ 811. Justice's attachment against land.—If the attachment is levied on real property, the justice shall proceed to try the action, but may not issue an execution to sell the real property, and shall return the papers in the case to the office of the clerk of the superior court of his county, where the judgment shall be docketed. The levy of the attachment, however, is a lien on the real estate, when the provisions of the section as to execution and levy of attachment are complied with. (Rev., s. 771; Code, s. 354; 1868-9, c. 95, s. 4.)

Lien Created from Levy of Attachment. — Attachment issued by a justice creates a lien from its levy, and not merely from docketing of the judgment in the superior court. Morefield v. Harris, 126 N. C. 626, 36 S. E. 125.

§ 812. Sale of attached property pending litigation.—If any property seized under attachment is perishable, or of a character to materially deteriorate in value pending litigation, or of such character that the expense of keeping it until the determination of the suit would be likely to exceed one-fifth of its value, or if any part of it consists of a vessel, or of any share or interest therein, and the person to whom it belongs, or his agent, does not within ten days after the serving of the attachment reclaim the same, the sheriff or other officer having possession shall apply to the court for authority to sell the property, stating the circumstances. The property shall then be sold, under the order and direction of the court, and the proceeds are liable to the judgment obtained upon the attachment, and shall be retained by the sheriff or other officer to await the judgment. (Rev., 772; Code, s. 360; R. C., c. 7, s. 6; 1777, c. 115, s. 28; C. C. P., s. 205.)

Sale of Third Party's Goods. — Where an attachment is levied upon the goods of a third party which, being perishable, are sold by the sheriff, and the third party interpleads in the action and recovers judgment, the costs and expenses of the attachment, sale, etc., are not properly chargeable against the fund arising from such sale. Haywood v. Hardie, 76 N. C. 384.

An intervener obtaining the possession of property attached by giving a replevy bond may not sell part of the property, such sale not being made as provided by this section, and claim the right to pay for the part sold and return the balance thereof. Bulluck v. Haley, 198 N. C. 355, 151 S. E. 731.

§ 813. Replevy by defendant; undertaking.—The person owning the property advertised to be sold according to the provisions of this article, or his agent or attorney, may, at any time before the sale, replevy the same, by giving an undertaking in double the amount of the value of the property, with sufficient surety, to the effect that he will return the property to the sheriff or other officer, if its return is adjudged by the court, and pay all costs that are awarded against him; and if return of the property cannot be had, then that he will pay plaintiff its value, and all costs and damages that are awarded against him. Upon the execution of this undertaking, the sheriff, or other officer, shall deliver the property to the person owning it. (Rev., s. 773; Code, s. 361; R. C., c. 7, s, 5; 1777, c. 115, s. 28.)

Recovery of Expenses Incurred under This Section.—In an action to recover on an attachment bond for the wrongful levy therein, damages may be awarded for the reasonable expense the plaintiff has incurred in procuring the undertaking he had given to obtain the release of the property attached. Smith v. American Bonding Co., 160 N. C. 574, 76 S. E. 481.

But damages may not be recovered in an action for a wrongful levy in attachment for railroad and traveling expenses, and the value of the plaintiff's time in procuring the release of his property. Smith v. American Bonding Co., 160 N. C. 574, 76 S. E. 481.

Cited in Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 487, 142 S. E. 706.

§ 814. Defendant may apply for discharge and delivery of property.—When the defendant has appeared in such action, he may apply to the court in which it is pending, or to the judge thereof, for an order to discharge the attachment; and if the order is granted, all the proceeds of sale, and moneys collected in the action, and all property attached remaining in the hands of any officer of the court, under any process or order in the action, shall be delivered or paid to the defendant or his agent, and released from the attachment. Where there is more than one defendant, and the several property of one of them has been seized by virtue of the order of attachment, the defendant whose several property was seized may apply in like manner for relief. (Rev., s. 774; Code, s. 373; C. C. P., s. 212.)

Clerk Has Jurisdiction. — The clerk of the superior court has jurisdiction to vacate an attachment. Palmer v. Bosher, 71 N. C. 291.

By giving the undertaking in the manner provided by § 815 the debtor may procure the release of the attachment. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706. See note under § 815.

Vacation without Undertaking. — An attachment will be vacated by the Judge without any undertaking on the part of the defendant, if on its face it appears to have been issued irregularly, or for a cause insufficient in law, or false in fact. Bear v. Cohen, 65 N. C. 511.

Motion out of Term. — It would be a great hardship upon a defendant whose property had been seized under an irregular attachment if he were prohibited from having it set aside until the regular term of the court, which might be nearly six months after the seizure, hence he may move to vacate before the return term. Palmer v. Bosher. 71 N. C. 291, 293.

When Motion Lies.—Where in an action against a foreign fraternal insurance society, the funds in the hands of a collector were attached and the society claimed that such funds were held upon an express trust for the benefit of the widows and orphans of the deceased members, and were not subject to attachment, the society was entitled to raise such a question by motion to vacate the attachment. Brenizer v. Royal Arcanum, 141 N. C. 409, 53 S. E. 835.

When Defendant Bankrupt. — Where the defendant was adjudged a bankrupt, that was held to be sufficient ground for vacating an attachment levied upon his property. Mixer v. Oil etc., Co., 65 N. C. 552; Ward v. Hargett, 151 N. C. 365, 66 S. E. 340.

When Discharge Not Granted. — A warrant of attachment cannot be discharged upon the special appearance of the defendant when the grounds for his motion involved the finding of facts, and such as he has no interest in. Foushee v. Owen, 122 N. C. 360, 29 S. E. 770.

Same—Insufficient Affidavit. — It is error to discharge an attachment, granted as ancillary to an action, because of the insufficiency of the affidavit to obtain service of the summons by publication, for it is possible that the defect may be cured by amendment. Branch v. Frank, 81 N. C. 180; Price v. Cox, 83 N. C. 261.

Hence, where the application to vacate an attachment is to the clerk before the sitting of the court to which the summons is made returnable, a further order of publication to cure a defective service may be obtained upon an affidavit to the court without discharging the attachment. Penniman v. Daniel, 90 N. C. 154.

Failure of Defendant to Move to Vacate. — The proper publication of summons for a nonresident defendant whose property has been attached gives the defendant notice that he can vacate the warrant if insufficient, and upon his failing to move to vacate the process he will not be held to be prejudiced by a subsequent judgment. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 74 S. E. 642.

No Sale after Vacation. — The sales of property mentioned in this section and sec. 826 have reference to those made before the attachment is vacated, as, for instance, sales made under the order of the court in accordance with section 812 when the property is perishable. The sheriff has no right, after the attachment has been vacated, to sell any property seized by him, as it then becomes his duty to deliver at once to the defendant all property in his hands. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 44, 48 S. E. 549.

Does Not Apply to Subsequent Sale. — This section, providing for the restitution of property upon an order dissolving the attachment, does not apply to cases where there has been a sale or transfer of the property by the defendant to the plaintiff after the levy of the attachment. Jackson, etc., Co. v. Burnett, 119 N. C. 195, 25 S. E. 868.

Same—Jury Trial. — Notwithstanding the dissolution of an attachment, the plaintiff, who claims that the property has been transferred to him by the defendant after the levy of the warrant, is entitled to have submitted to the jury an issue as to the ownership of the property. Jackson, etc., Co. v. Burnett, 119 N. C. 195, 25 S. E. 868.

Court Retains Attached Property. — The property attached will remain in the custody of the court to await the determination of the action unless replevied. Page v. McDonald, 159 N. C. 38, 40, 74 S. E. 642.

Refusal of Sheriff to Deliver Property. — If the sheriff fails or refuses to deliver the property, the defendant could perhaps apply to the court and obtain an order requiring him to do so, or could sue the sheriff and his sureties for the default, but the plaintiff would not be liable. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 44, 48 S. E. 549.

Proceedings upon Vacating Attachment. — When the court vacates the attachment and taxes the plaintiffs with the costs of the attachment proceedings, and then gives judgment in favor of the plaintiffs for the debt and the costs of the action other than the costs awarded to the defendant, its jurisdiction and power are exhausted. Nothing else can be done except, perhaps, to make an order for the return of the property seized under the attachment to the plaintiffs, if the provision in this section is not self-executing, (Devries v. Summit, 86 N. C. 126) and such an order is necessary. The general practice has been to insert such a direction to the sheriff in the order vacating the attachment. Jackson etc., Co. v. Burnett, 119 N. C. 195, 25 S. E. 868; Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 45, 48 S. E. 549.

Decision is Res Judicata. — A decision on a motion to vacate an attachment is res judicata until reversed. Roulhac v. Brown, 87 N. C. 1; Pasour v. Lineberger, 90 N. C. 159; Morganton Manufacturing, etc., Co. v. Lumber Co., 177 N. C. 404, 99 S. E. 104.

Appeal. — An appeal lies from the refusal to dismiss an attachment. Sheldon v. Kivett, 110 N. C. 408, 14 S. E. 970, Fertilizer Co. v. Grubbs, 114 N. C. 470, 19 S. E. 597; Judd v. Crawford Gold Mining Co., 120 N. C. 397, 399, 27 S. E. 81.

Same—When Facts Must Be Set Out. — The superior court judge is not required to set out the facts upon which he has vacated an attachment levied on the defendant's property, unless the party, appealing and complaining of the ruling of law, requests him to find the facts necessary to give him the benefit of his exceptions. Coharie Lumber Co. v. Buhmann, 160 N. C. 385, 75 S. E. 1008.

Same—Same—Not Reviewable. — On appeal it will be presumed that the superior court judge found facts sufficient to support his order vacating an attachment on the debtor's property, when they do not appear of record; and any facts found by him, so appearing, are not reviewable. Coharie Lumber Co. v. Buhmann, 160 N. C. 385, 75 S. E. 1008.

Bond in Lieu of Attachment Lien. — Where attachment has been levied on the defendant's property necessary for the prosecution of his business, and upon his giving bond, he or his receiver is permitted by the court to continue operations, the giving of the bond is in lieu of the lien acquired in attachment, and analogous to the proceedings in discharge authorized by this and the following section; and he may not take advantage of the bond by continuing to ship his property thereunder beyond the jurisdiction of the court, and thereby repudiate it. Martin v. McBryde, 182 N. C. 175, 108 S. E. 739.

§ 815. Defendant's undertaking.—Upon the application provided for in the preceding section the defendant must deliver to the court an undertaking in at least double the amount claimed by the plaintiff in his complaint, executed by two sureties residing in this state, approved by the court, to the effect that the surety will, on demand, pay to the plaintiff the amount of judgment that may be recovered against the defendant in the action, not exceeding the sum specified in the undertaking. If it appears by affidavit that the property attached is of less value than the amount claimed by the plaintiff, the court or judge may order it to be appraised, and the amount of the undertaking shall then be double the amount so appraised. Where there is more than one defendant, and the several property of one of them has been seized by virtue of the order of attachment, the defendant whose several property was seized may deliver to the court an undertaking, in accordance with this section, to the effect that he will, on demand, pay to the plaintiff the amount of judgment that may be recovered against him, and all of this section, applicable to such an undertaking, shall be applied thereto. (Rev., s. 775; Code, s. 374; C. C. P., s. 213.)

When Undertaking Unnecessary. — The undertaking required in this section is not necessary when the warrant "on its face appears to have been issued irregularly, or for a cause insufficient in law or false in fact." Bear v. Cohen, 65 N. C. 511; Devries & Co. v. Summit, 86 N. C. 126, 131.

When an attachment on the debtor's property has been vacated by the superior court judge, the defendant should not be required to give the undertaking under this section to regain possession of the property. Coharie Lumber Co. v. Buhmann, 160 N. C. 385, 75 S. E. 1008.

Effect of Undertaking as Waiver or Estoppel.—Giving the undertaking by defendant under this section is equivalent to a general appearance in the action, and waives certain irregularities. It estops the defendant from denying ownership of the property levied on, but not from traversing the truth of the allegation on which the attachment is based. Giving the undertaking does not waive the validity of the statutory ground of attachment. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

Hearing as to Validity of Ground of Attachment.—When defendant gives the undertaking under this section the matter of the validity of statutory ground on which attachment was procured may be heard on affidavits before the trial of the main issue, but, if demand is made, it may be heard on affidavits before the trial of the merits or it may be tried with the main issue. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

Necessity for Separate Action on Undertaking.—By consent a surety on an undertaking on attachment can come in and the matter of the validity of the grounds of attachment be determined in one action; otherwise a separate action must be brought on the undertaking. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

The judgment contemplated in this section is not only a judgment establishing the debt, but a judgment establishing the validity of the ground on which the attachment is procured, the validity is traversed. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

No summary judgment against the surety on the undertaking under this section can be rendered. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

Discharge of Surety.—When defendant in attachment enters a general appearance and traverses the allegations of fraudulent concealment of his property upon which the attachment was based, and gives bond to retain possession of the property attached, and upon the trial the issue as to fraud is found in his favor, the surety on the bond is discharged from liability, and it is not necessary that a motion to vacate the attachment be previously made. Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 142 S. E. 706.

Surety Concluded from Asserting Insufficiency of Bond.—Where judgment by default final has been rendered against the principal debtor and the surety on an attachment bond given in the action, in the form required by this section, to secure whatever judgment may be rendered, and the property attached has accordingly been retained by the debtor, the surety is concluded from asserting the insufficiency of the bond in not having another surety thereon, as the statute required, when the bond was given and accepted as he had intended, and he had not excepted thereto. Thompson v. Dillingham, 183 N. C. 566, 112 S. E. 321.

§ 816. All property liable to attachment.—The rights or shares of the defendant in the stock of any association or corporation, with the interest and profits thereon, and all other property in this state of the defendant, are liable to be attached, levied on, and sold to satisfy the judgment and execution. (Rev., s. 776; Code, s. 362; C. C. P., s. 206.)

In General. — The intention of the Legislature, as clearly expressed, in section 799, was to authorize the attachment of stock in foreign corporations, and also in the case of individuals or domestic corporations which are removing their property from the State with the intent to defraud creditors, or doing any other act for which attachment would lie, and to authorize the attachment of stock in domestic corporations also. It seems to us that this section means that, as it clearly says: "The rights or shares of the defendant's stock in any corporation or association are liable to be attached." Parks-Cramer Co. v. Southern Express Co., 185 N. C. 428, 430, 117 S. E. 505. As to attachment of stock in a foreign corporation, see 3 N. C. Law Rev. 103.

Under this section, all property in this state, whether real or personal, tangible or intangible, owned by a nonresident defendant in an action to recover on any of the causes of action included within the provisions of § 798, is liable to attachment. Newberry v. Meadows Fert. Co., 203 N. C. 330, 337, 166 S. E. 79.

Unpaid Balances Due to Corporation. — Under this section of the Code, the unpaid balances due a foreign corporation on subscriptions to its stock by subscribers residing in this State are property of such a corporation, and subject to attachment for the payment of its debts. Cooper v. Adel Security Co., 122 N. C. 463, 30 S. E. 348.

Property Absorbed by Nonresident Corporation. — Where a nonresident express company doing business in this State, and having property herein, incurred a liability to its shipper for breach of its contract for the transportation and delivery of a shipment, and afterwards became absorbed in another nonresident corporation carrying on the same business with the same property and stock of the selling (debtor) company in the one continuing to do business here is subject to attachment under the provisions of sections, 816, 817, 819 et seq., where the cause of action arose here; and the fact that the certificates of stock are not physically in the jurisdiction of the courts of this State is immaterial. Parks-Cramer Co. v. Southern Exp. Co., 185 N. C. 428, 117 S. E. 505.

A distributive share in the hands of an administrator, due the wife of a non-resident debtor, can not be subjected to the payment of the husband's debts in this State by means of an attachment in equity. McLean v. McPhaul, 59 N. C. 15.

§ 817. Levy on intangible property.—The execution of the attachment upon any such rights, shares, or any debts or other property incapable of manual delivery to the sheriff, shall be made by leaving a certified copy of the warrant of attachment with the president or other head of the association or corporation, or with the debtor or individual holding such property, with a notice showing the property levied on. This certified copy must be furnished to the sheriff by the plaintiff, and the certification must be by the clerk of the court from which the warrant was issued, or by the justice of the peace who issued it. A person receiving or collecting moneys within this state on behalf of any corporation of this or any other state or government is deemed a local agent for the purpose of this section. Such service can be made in respect to a foreign corporation only when it has property within this state, or the cause of action arose or the plaintiff resides in the state, or when the service can be made within the state personally upon the president, treasurer or secretary thereof. Whenever a writ of attachment may be sued out against a nonresident debtor owning shares of stock in a resident corporation, and no officer of said resident corporation may be found in the county of its principal office upon whom service of said attachment may be made, said writ may be served by leaving a certified copy of the warrant of attachment with the person in charge of the property of said corporation in said county, together with a notice showing the stock levied upon. (Rev., s. 777; Code, s. 363; C. C. P., s. 207; 1905, c. 294; 1921, c. 94.)

Editor's Note. — By Laws 1921 ch. 94 this section was amended by the addition of the last sentence. The effect of this amendment is discussed by the court in a recent case as follows: The defendant relies upon Laws 1921, ch. 94, which amends sec. 817, by expressly providing that shares of stock held by a nonresident debtor in a resident corporation of this state may be attached, as an implied authority that if the stock is held in a foreign corporation doing business here it cannot be attached; but we do not think that that was the purpose or the effect of the Act of 1921, which was intended simply to make it plainer that the stock of a nonresident in a North Carolina corporation could be attached under sec. 817. Parks-Cramer Co. v. Southern Express Co., 185 N. C. 428, 432, 117 S. E. 505.

If it were true that stock owned by a nonresident is not attachable here, the Amendment of 1921 is ineffectual, for whether the stock attached is that of a domestic corporation of this state or a foreign corporation, in either event, if the owner is a nonresident the certificates of stock would not be physically liable in this state. Parks-Cramer Co. v. Southern Express Co., 185 N. C. 428, 432, 117 S. E. 505.

This section is commented upon in 2 N. C. Law Review 119 and 3 N. C. Law Review 103, 106.

Corporation a Party to Proceedings. — A corporation is a necessary party to an attachment proceeding to subject the amounts due it from unpaid subscriptions to its stock to the payment of its debts. Cooper v. Adel Security Co., 122 N. C. 463, 30 S. E. 348.

§ 818. Certificate of defendant's interest to be furnished to sheriff.—When the sheriff or other officer, with a warrant of attachment or execution, applies to a president or other head or director, secretary, cashier or managing agent of any association or corporation, or to any debtor or individual, for the purpose of attaching or levying on property of the defendant in such warrant, such officer, debtor or individual must furnish him with a certificate under his hand, designating the number of rights or shares of the defendant in the association or corporation, with any dividend or any incumbrance thereon, or the amount and description of the property held by such association, corporation, or individual, for the benefit of, or debt owing to, the defendant. If the officer, debtor or individual refuses to do so, he may be required by the court or judge to appear before him, and be examined on oath concerning the matter, and obedience to this order may be enforced by attachment. (Rev., s. 778; Code, s. 369; C. C. P., s. 208.)

Examination Operates as Lien. — An exmaination of the city officials operates a lien on anything owing by the city to the defendants in the suit, as of the day when the copy of the warrant of attachment was delivered; and thereby prevents any alterations of the state of accounts between the defendants and the city. Carmer v. Evers, 80 N. C. 56, 59.

§ 819. Proceedings against garnishee.—When the sheriff or other officer serves an attachment on any person supposed to be indebted to, or to have any property of the defendant in the attachment, he shall at the same time summon in writing such person as a garnishee. The summons and notice shall be issued by the clerk of the superior court, or justice of the peace, at the request of the plaintiff, to appear at the court to which the attachment is returnable, or if issued by a justice of the peace, at a place and time named in the notice, not exceeding twenty days from date of notice, to answer upon oath what he owes to the defendant and what property of the defendant he has in his hand and had at the time of serving the attachment, and to his knowledge and belief what effects or debts of the defendant there are in the hands of any other, and what person. When an attachment is served on a garnishee in the above manner, upon his appearance and examination, judgment may be entered up and execution awarded for the plaintiff against the garnishee, for all sums of money due the defendant from him, and for all property of any kind belonging to the defendant, in his possession or custody, for the use of the plaintiff, or so much thereof as will satisfy the debt and costs and all charges incident to levying the same. All property whatsoever in the hands of any garnishee belonging to the defendant is liable to satisfy the plaintiff's judgment, and must be delivered to the sheriff or other officer serving attachment. (Rev., s. 779; Code, s. 364; R. C., c. 7, s. 7; 1777, c. 115, s. 28.)

Cross References.—As to garnishment in general, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 818-834; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 265-266, as to exemption of earnings, see section 721.

In General. — A garnishment is in effect a suit by this principal debtor, the defendant in the action, in the name of the plaintiff, and for his use and benefit, against the garnishee to recover the debt due to the plaintiff's debtor and apply it to the satisfaction of the plaintiff's demand. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 231, 49 S. E. 173.

This section applies alike to residents and nonresidents, persons and corporations, and it will not be declared unconstitutional in an action instituted long subsequent to its enactment. Newberry v. Meadows Fertilizer Co., 206 N. C. 182, 173 S. E. 67.

Nature of Garnishment. — It arrests the property in the hands of the garnishee, interferes with the owner's or creditor's control over it, subjects it to the judgment of the court, and therefore has the effect of a seizure. Miller v. United States, 11 Wall. 268, 297, 20 L. Ed. 135.

The proceeding by garnishment is designed to subject a debt due to the defendant, to the payment of the demand of his creditor, by investing the creditor with a judicial power to collect and apply the amount due. Wanzer v. Truly, 17 How. 584, 586, 15 L. Ed. 216.

The essential service of foreign attachment laws is to reach and arrest the payment of what is due and might be paid to a non-resident to defeat his creditors. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Sturm, 174 U. S. 710, 715, 43 L. Ed. 1144.

Proceeding in Rem. — In garnishment proceedings, whatever of substance there is must be with the debtor, he holding the res in his hands, giving character to the action as one in the nature of a proceeding in rem. Chicago, etc., R. R. Co. v. Sturm, 174 U. S. 710, 715, 43 L. Ed. 1144.

Intention of the Section. — The language employed in this section clearly indicates the intention that any money due by the garnishee, or goods in his hands belonging to the debtor at the time of appearance and answer, shall be applied in satisfaction of the debt. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 230, 49 S. E. 173.

Jurisdiction Necessary. — The court entertaining a garnishment must have some jurisdiction over the thing garnished. Balk v. Harris, 124 N. C. 467, 32 S. E. 799.

Personal Service Necessary. — This section in relation to garnishments evidently contemplated personal service, as no provision is made for a constructive service of the summons; and this statute has always been strictly construed. Parker v. Scott, 64 N. C. 118, 120.

Purpose of Warrant. — The issuance of a warrant of attachment by a justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the action is only for the purpose of acquiring jurisdiction over a defendant who is a nonresident of the state, and is only incidental to the relief sought in the original action under this section, and the warrant in garnishment may run beyond the limit of the county wherein the action was brought. Mohn v. Cressey, 193 N. C. 568, 137 S. E. 718.

Warrant Incidental to Original Action. — Want of authority in the justice to issue an original process to any county other than his own did not inhibit the running of the warrant of attachment to another county, or the service of a notice upon the garnishee to appear before the court to which the attachment was returnable to answer upon oath as the statute provides; for issuing the warrant was only incidental to the original action. Baker etc., Co. v. Belvin, 122 N. C. 190, 30 S. E. 337; Mohn v. Cressey, 193 N. C. 568, 572, 137 S. E. 718.

Judgment against Garnishee. — A judgment may be taken against a garnishee, who is found to be indebted to the debtor, in the action to which the garnishment proceeding is ancillary, and is not necessary to bring a separate action against such garnishee. Baker, etc., Co. v. Belvin, 122 N. C. 190, 30 S. E. 337. Carmer v. Evers, 80 N. C. 56, a case which held the opposite of this, discussed and overruled since it was decided under former law.

Same—Rights Acquired. — A plaintiff in garnishment is, in his relation to the garnishee, substituted merely to the rights of his own debtor, and cannot enforce any greater claim against the garnishee than the debtor himself, if suing, would have been entitled to recover. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 49 S. E. 173.

Same—Order. — Where judgment is given against a garnishee in an action against the debtor, it is proper to make an order applying the collections made on such judgment to the judgment obtained, or to be obtained, against the debtor. Baker, etc., Co. v. Belvin, 122 N. C. 190, 30 S. E. 337.

Judgment against Both. — Where service of summons was had by publication on a nonresident of the state, and a debt due the defendant was garnisheed, the plaintiff did not lose any lien on the debt by taking a judgment against the defendants and the garnishee. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 49 S. E. 173.

No Personal Judgment. — In garnishment proceedings against a nonresident defendant, service being had by publication, no jurisdiction is acquired to support a personal judgment against the defendant. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 49 S. E. 173.

Moneys Not Yet Due. — Under this section, moneys due by a garnishee, or goods in his hands at the time of appearance and answer, are applicable to the debt, though not earned and due when he was summoned to answer. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 49 S. E. 173.

Exemption of Earnings. — Section 721 provides that earnings of a debtor for his personal services for the 60 days next preceding shall be exempt from execution. It was held that the exemption protects such earnings from seizure in garnishment. Goodwin v. Claytor, 137 N. C. 224, 225, 49 S. E. 173.

Same—Claim Must Be Made. — When a man has earned wages they can be garnished as his property, if no personal exemption is claimed. Pocomoke Guano Co. v. Colwell, 177 N. C. 218, 98 S. E. 535.

Bank May Be Garnishee. — A national bank may be proceeded against by garnishment to impound the proceeds of a draft in its hands. Markham-Stephens Co v. Richmond Co., 177 N. C. 364, 99 S. E. 17.

What Law Governs. — To enable the judgment creditor to arrest the payment of what is due the judgment debtor, which might be paid so as to defeat the rights of the creditor, he must go to the domicil of his debtor, and can only do it under the laws and procedure in force there. It is a legal necessity and considerations of situs are somewhat artificial. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Sturm, 174 U. S. 710, 716, 43 L. Ed. 1144.

The obligation of the garnishee can be enforced by the courts of the foreign state after personal service of process therein, just as well as by courts of the domicil of the debtor. Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 223, 49 L. Ed. 1023.

Execution and Proceedings to Enforce.—Under this section no lien attaches to any specific property of the garnishee until the issuance of execution on the judgment and proceedings to enforce such execution. Newberry v. Meadows Fert. Co., 203 N. C. 330, 166 S. E. 79.

Execution may be issued against garnishees prior to final judgment against defendant, and the property held subject to the orders of the court pending final judgment. Newberry v. Meadows Fertilizers Co., 206 N. C. 182, 173 S. E. 67.

There is no distinction between an execution on an ordinary judgment issued under § 666, and an execution on a judgment against a garnishee issued under this section. They are both judgments and sections to be construed in pari materia. Id.

Where judgment has been regularly entered against certain garnishees in proceedings under § 798, the clerk of the Superior Court may issue execution on the judgment against the garnishees without notice or a hearing under this section and § 666. Id.

§ 820. Failure of garnishee to appear. — When a garnishee is summoned and fails to appear and discover on oath as directed the court, after solemnly calling the garnishee, shall enter a conditional judgment against him, and thereupon a notice shall issue against him returnable to the court having jurisdiction, to show cause why final judgment should not be entered against him. Upon due execution of the notice, if the garnishee fails to appear at the time and place named, and discover on oath in the manner aforesaid, the court shall confirm the judgment and award execution for the plaintiff's whole judgment and costs. Upon examination of the garnishee, if it appears to the court that there is any of the defendant's property in the hands of a person who has not been summoned, the court, upon motion of the plaintiff, shall grant a judicial attachment, to be levied in the hands of every such person having any of the property of the defendant in his custody or possession, who must appear and answer and be liable as other garnishees. (Rev., s. 780; Code, s. 365; R. C., c. 7, s. 8; 1777, c. 115, s. 28; 1838, c. 2.)

§ 821. Garnishee denying debt; issue tried.— When a garnishee denies that he owes to, or has in his possession any property of, the defendant, and the plaintiff on oath suggests to the court the contrary, or when a garnishee makes such a statement of facts that the court cannot proceed to give judgment thereon, the court shall order an issue to be made up, which must be tried by a jury, and on their verdict judgement shall be rendered. In a court of a justice of the peace, he may try such issue, unless a jury is demanded, and then proceedings are to be conducted, in all respects, as in jury trials before justices of the peace. (Rev., s. 781; Code, s. 366; R. C., 7, s. 9; 1793, c 389, s. 2.)

Jury Trial. — Under this section the plaintiff in garnishment proceedings, upon the suggestion that he wishes to traverse the return of the garnishee, is entitled, without any formal or verified statement, to have the issue tried by a jury. Brenizer v. Royal Arcanum, 141 N. C. 409, 53 S. E. 835.

Where Defendant Denies Ownership. — The judgment against a nonresident debtor being exhausted by a sale of the property attached, a nonresident defendant in attachment proceedings, who denies ownership of the attached property, cannot be injured by the judgment, and hence, is not entitled to have an issue submitted as to the title to the property. Foushee v. Owen, 122 N. C. 360, 29 S. E. 770.

Garnishee a Mere Stakeholder. — The requirement of this section that an issue shall be made up and determined by the jury where the garnishee in attachment denies owing the principal defendant, should be construed with section 460, requiring the making of all necessary parties to a full determination of the controversy; and it does not apply when the garnishee takes the position of a mere stakeholder and sets up in his answer that another, not a party to the action, is the owner of the funds attached, and asks that such other person be brought in so as to protect it, the garnishee, in the payment of the funds under an order of the court. Temple v. Eades Hay Co., 184 N. C. 239, 114 S. E. 162.

§ 822. Property with garnishee valued; garnishee exonerated.—When a garnishee on oath confesses that he has in his hands any property of the defendant of a specific nature, or is indebted to him by any security or promise for the delivery of any specific article, except as hereinafter excepted, the court shall immediately order a jury to be impaneled and sworn to inquire into the value of such specific property, and the verdict of the jury subjects the garnishee to the payment of the valuation, or as much of it as is sufficient to satisfy the debt or damages and costs of the plaintiff. In a court of a justice of the peace, he may try such issue, unless a jury is demanded, and then proceedings are to be conducted in all respects as in jury trials before justices of the peace. If the garnishee states in his answer that the specific property was left with him by the defendant as a bailment, or that he has tendered said specific articles according to contract, and that they were refused by the defendant, and that he then was and always had been ready to deliver the same; or that he had such specific articles at the time and place specified in such covenant or agreement ready to be delivered, and is still ready to deliver them; and such statement is admitted by the plaintiff or found by a jury or the court, then in any such case the garnishee shall be exonerated by the delivery of such specific articles to the sheriff, who shall proceed as if the attachment had been orginally levied on the property. (Rev., s. 782; Code, s. 367; R. C., c. 7, s. 11; 1793, c. 389; 1794, c. 424.)

Where one contracted with a dentist for a set of artificial teeth for his wife, and paid him full consideration, and the husband afterwards absconded before the teeth were furnished, the dentist was not liable as garnishee to a creditor for the value of the teeth. Cherry v. Hooper, 52 N. C. 82.

§ 823. Conditional judgement against garnishee.—When a garnishee declares in his answer that the money or specific article due by him will become payable or deliverable at a future day, and this is admitted by the plaintiff or found by a jury or the court, a conditional judgement shall be entered against the garnishee, and the plaintiff may obtain judgment against the defendant for his demand, but may not take final judgment against the garnishee without notice to show cause. (Rev., s. 783; Code, s. 368; R. C., c. 7, s. 12; 1794, c. 424, s. 2.)

§ 824. Satisfaction of judgement.—If judgment is entered for the plaintiff in the action, the sheriff shall satisfy the same out of the property attached by him, if it is sufficient for that purpose—

1. By paying over to the plaintiff the proceeds of all property sold and debts or credits collected by him, or so much as is necessary to satisfy the judgment.

2. If any balance remains due, and an execution has been issued on the judgment, he shall sell under the execution as much of the attached real or personal property, except as provided in subdivision four of this section, as is necessary to satisfy the balance, if enough for that purpose remains in his hands. In case of the sale of any rights or shares in the stock of a corporation or association, the sheriff shall execute to the purchaser a certificate of sale, and the purchaser has all the rights and privileges in respect thereto which were had by the defendant.

3. If any of the attached property belonging to the defendant has passed out of the hands of the sheriff without having been sold or converted into money, he shall repossess himself of the same, and for that purpose has all the authority which he had to seize it under the attachment. A person who willfully conceals or withholds such property from the sheriff is liable to double damages at the suit of the party injured.

4. Until the judgment against the defendant is paid, the sheriff may collect the notes and other evidences of debt, and the debts that were seized or attached, under the warrant of attachment, and prosecute any bond he has taken in the course of such proceedings, and apply the proceeds to the payment of the judgment.

At the expiration of six months from the docketing of the judgment the court has power, upon petition of the plaintiff, accompanied by an affidavit setting forth fully all the proceedings which have been had by the sheriff since the service of the attachment, the property attached, and the disposition thereof, also the affidavit of the sheriff that he has used due diligence, and endeavored to collect the evidences of debt in his hands so attached, and that there remains uncollected of the same any part or portion thereof, to order the sheriff to sell the same upon such terms and in such manner as is deemed proper. Notice of this application must be given to the defendant or to his attorney, if the defendant has appeared in the action. If the summons has not been personally served on the defendant, the court shall make such rule or order, as to service of notice and time of service, as is deemed just. When the judgment and all costs of the proceedings have been paid, the sheriff, upon reasonable demand, shall deliver over to the defendant the residue of the attached property of the proceeds thereof. (Rev., s. 784; Code, s. 370; C. C. P., s. 209.

Section Grants Power. — This section gives an express direction to the sheriff to sell the property previously levied on by him under the attachment, and invests him with as much power and authority to act in the premises as if an execution, in the form of a venditioni exponas, had been issued to him, specially commanding him to sell the particular property. Electric Co. v. Engineering Co., 128 N. C. 199, 38 S. E. 831; Chemical Co. v. Sloan, 136 N. C. 122, 48 S. E. 577; May v. Getty, 140 N. C. 310, 318, 53 S. E. 75; Morganton Mfg. etc., Co. v. Lumber Co., 177 N. C. 404, 407, 99 S. E. 104.

Duty of Sheriff. — The attachment is simply a levy before judgment, and upon execution issuing on the judgment it is the duty of the sheriff to sell the attached property. Gamble v. Rhyne, 80 N. C. 183; Morganton Mfg., etc. Co. v. Lumber Co., 177 N. C. 404, 407, 99 S. E. 104, Farmers Manufacturing Co. v. Steinmetz, 133 N. C. 192, 194, 45 S. E. 552.

Same—Not Error to Condemn Property. — Where ancillary proceedings of attachment are brought with the main action, and the attachment is not discharged, it is not error to condemn the attached property for sale to pay the judgment, as the sheriff would be required to sell the same upon issuance of execution. Farmers Manufacturing Co. v. Steinmetz, 133 N. C. 192, 45 S. E. 552.

Sale under Execution. — A sale under an execution issuing upon a judgment on an attachment only passes the right of the defendant in attachment. Electric Co. v. Eng. Co., 128 N. C. 199, 38 S. E. 831.

Judgment Against Nonresident. — No judgment in personam may be entered or enforced against a nonresident who has not been personally served with summons. Johnson v. Whilden, 166 N. C. 104, 81 S. E. 1057.

Exemptions after Judgment. — Property seized under attachment is only a legal deposit in the sheriff to abide the event of the action, and after judgment against the defendant, he is entitled to the same exemptions in the property attached as he would have been had there been no attachment. Gamble v. Rhyne, 80 N. C. 183.

Where Property Is in Possession of Third Party.—Where a person in possession of property is not a party to the attachment suit, the plaintiff, in addition to a judgment for his debt, is not entitled to a judgment for such property, but must proceed under this section. Electric Co. v. Eng. Co., 128 N. C. 199, 38 S. E. 831.

Property Held until Final Judgment.—This section indicates that the property is held until final judgment and the sheriff can collect from the garnishee against whom judgment is entered. Newberry v. Meadows Fertilizer Co., 206 N. C. 182, 188, 173 S. E. 67.

§ 825. Plaintiff may sue on defendant's bond. —The actions herein authorized to be brought by the sheriff may be prosecuted by the plaintiff, or under his direction, upon the delivery by him to the sheriff of an undertaking executed by two sufficient sureties, to the effect that the plaintiff will indemnify the sheriff from all damages, costs and expenses on account thereof, not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars in any one action. The sureties must in all cases, when required by the sheriff, justify by making an affidavit that each is a freeholder, and worth double the amount of the penalty of the bond, over and above all demands, liabilities and exemptions. (Rev., s. 785; Code, s. 371; C. C. P., s. 210.)

§ 826. On defendant's recovery, bonds and property delivered to him.—If the foreign corporation, or the absent, absconding, or concealed defendant, recovers judgment against the plaintiff in such action, any bond taken upon the issuing of the warrant of attachment, and any bond taken by the sheriff, except such as are mentioned in the preceding section, all the proceeds of sales and moneys collected by him, and all the property attached remaining in his hands, shall be delivered by him to the defendant or to his agent, on request, and the warrant shall be discharged and the property released. (Rev., s. 786; Code, s. 372; C. C. P., s. 211.)

Sheriff Cannot Sell after Vacation. — The sales of property mentioned in this section refer to those before the attachment is vacated as for instance sales made under the order of the court in accordance with section 812 when property is perishable. The sheriff has no right, after the attachment has been vacated, to sell any property seized by him, as it then becomes his duty to deliver at once to the defendant all property in his hands. Mahoney v. Tyler, 136 N. C. 40, 44, 48 S. E. 549.

Bank a Mere Stakeholder. — Where the funds of a nonresident defendant are attached in the hands of a local bank, which is only an agency for collection, which position it alleges in its answer, and also alleges ownership of title by its forwarding bank, the position taken by the local bank is that of a mere stakeholder without interest, between two conflicting claimants, and it may successfully maintain that the forwarding bank be made a party to the action, and await the determination of this question in the action, in order to protect itself in the payment of the funds attached in its hands. Temple v. Eades Hay Co., 184 N. C. 239, 114 S. E. 162.

§ 827. Motion to vacate or increase security.—The defendant, or person who has acquired a lien upon, or interest in, his property before or after it was attached, may at any time before the actual application of the attached property, or the proceeds thereof, to the payment of a judgment recovered in the action, apply to the court having jurisdiction to vacate or modify the warrant, or to increase the security given by the plaintiff, or for one or more of those forms of relief, together or in the alternative, as in cases of other provisional remedies. (Rev., s. 787; Code, s. 377.)

As to appeal from order of clerk denying motion to increase security see notes to §§ 635, 636.

When Third Party Intervenes. — Parties who intervene in attachment proceedings can not be heard to object to the irregularity of the same, that is a matter between the parties to the main action. Cook v. N. Y. Corundum etc., Co., 114 N. C. 617, 19 S. E. 664.

Motion May Be Made by One of Several Defendants.—Any one of several defendants whose property has been attached has such an interest in the action as to maintain a motion to vacate the attachment. Luff v. Levey, 203 N. C. 783, 166 S. E. 922.

Vacation in Case Increased Bond Is Not Filed.—The judge of the Superior Court has the power to order the plaintiff to give further security or an increased bond, under this section, but he may not add a condition to the order that the attachment be vacated ipso facto if the increased bond is not filed by a certain time, and it appearing that the time set by the court for filing the increased bond has expired, the plaintiff will be given a reasonbale time for filing the bond. Luff v. Levey, 203 N. C. 783, 166 S. E. 922.

Cited in Bizzell v. Mitchell, 195 N. C. 484, 487, 142 S. E. 760.

§ 828. Exceptions to and justification of sureties.—The sureties to all undertakings in all proceedings for attachment may be excepted to, and justified as prescribed in respect to bail upon an order of arrest. (Rev., s. 788; Code, s. 378.)

§ 829. Interpleader.—When the property attached is claimed by any other person, the claimant may interplead, as provided for interpleader in claim and delivery. (Rev., s. 789; Code, s. 375; R. C., c. 7, s. 10; 1793, c. 389, s. 3.)

Cross References. — As to interpleader in claim and delivery, see section 840 and annotations thereunder.

Purpose of Bill. — The very nature of a bill of interpleader presupposes that the party by whom it is exhibited would be liable a second time, if he should either voluntarily, or otherwise, pay the money which he owes, to a wrong claimant. George v. Brailsford, 2 Dall. 415, 418, 1 L. Ed. 438.

Nature of Bill. — A bill in the nature of a bill of interpleader will not lie by a party in interest to ascertain and establish his own rights when there are other conflicting rights between third persons, unless the relief sought is equitable relief. Killian v. Ebbinghans, 110 U. S. 568, 572, 28 L. Ed. 246.

Justice Has Jurisdiction. — Attachment proceedings relating to personal property, being only ancillary to the main action, a justice of the peace may entertain and try an interplea to determine the title, although the value of the property exceeds $50. Grambling, etc., & Co. v. Dickey, 118 N. C. 986, 24 S. E. 671.

Necessary Averments. — In a bill of interpleader it is necessary to aver that the complainant has no interest in the subject matter of the suit; he must admit title in the claimants and aver that he is indifferent between them, and he cannot seek relief in the premises against either of them. Groves v. Sentill, 153 U. S. 465, 485, 38 L. Ed. 785.

Remedies of Claimant. — One whose property has been attached by a sheriff, under a warrant issued in an action to which he is not a party, may intervene or interplead in the action, and demand judgment that he is the owner of the property, and an order directing the sheriff to release the property under this section. Or he may bring an action against the sheriff and the sureties on his official bond for the property or for damages for its conversion. Stein v. Cozart, 122 N. C. 280, 30 S. E. 340. Or he may bring an action against the plaintiffs at whose instance the warrant was issued, and the property wrongfully seized, joining the sheriff as a defendant or not as he sees fit; if the sheriff has taken an indemnity bond, he may sue the obligor and the sureties on such bond. Tyler v. Mahoney, 168 N. C. 237, 84 S. E. 362; Martin v. Buffaloe, 128 N. C. 305, 38 S. E. 902; Gay v. Mitchell, 146 N. C. 509, 510, 60 S. E. 426; Tatham v. Dehart, 183 N. C. 657, 112 S. E. 430; Flowers v. Spears, 190 N. C. 747, 752, 130 S. E. 710.

Separate Trial.—In attachment a separate trial for the intervenor is discretionary with the trial judge. Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452, 40 S. E. 218.

Intervenor Cannot Interfere in Main Action. — In attachment an intervenor has no right to interfere in the action between the original parties, since he is interested only as to the title to the property. Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452, 40 S. E. 218.

Burden of Proving Title. — In attachment the burden is on the intervenor to establish title to the property. Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452, 40 S. E. 218.

Defendant Holding Property as Agent. — Where the evidence tends to show that a defendant holds property levied on as agent for another, such third person should be allowed to be made a party. Farmers' Bank, etc., Co. v. Murphy, 189 N. C. 479, 127 S. E. 527.

Art. 35. Claim and Delivery

§ 830. Claim for delivery of personal property.—The plaintiff in an action to recover the possession of personal property may, at the time of issuing the summons or at any time before answer, claim the immediate delivery of the property as provided in this article. (Rev., s. 790; Code, s. 321; C. C. P., s. 176.)

Cross References. — For a general treatment of the subject of claim and delivery, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 74-107; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 381-383.

In General. — Strictly speaking, there is no such action under the Code as "claim and delivery." The action is for the recovery of a specific chattel, and the delivery of the chattel is a provisional remedy, ancillary, but not essential to such action. If the plaintiff see fit, delivery of the chattel may be waived, and the action prosecuted to recover possession of the chattel, as in the old action of detinue, or to recover the value of the property, as in trover or trespass. Wilson v. Hughes, 94 N. C. 182. Jarman v. Ward, 67 N. C. 32; Allsbrook v. Shields, 67 N. C. 333; Hopper v. Miller, 76 N. C. 402.

Founded on Right to Possession. — Replevin (and the action of claim and delivery is but a longer name for the same thing) is founded on the right of the plaintiff to the possession of the property. If the defendant also claims the possession, the main issue is on that right, and the party establishing it will have judgment to retain or be restored to the possession, as the case may be. Holmes v. Godwin, 69 N. C. 467, 472.

A Substitute for Common Law Remedies. — Under this section the action of "claim and delivery" is a substitute for the action of replevin, if a bond is given by the plaintiff: if not, it is a substitute for the action of detinue or trover. Jarman v. Ward, 67 N. C. 32; Hopper v. Miller, 76 N. C. 402, 404.

An Ancillary Remedy. — Under the State Constitution, Art. IV. Sec. 1, there is but one form of action in civil cases. In that, many ancillary remedies may be asked, i. e., Arrest and Bail, Claim and Delivery, Injunction, Attachment, and Appointment of Receivers. These need not be asked, even if the party is entitled to them, Wilson v. Hughes, 94 N. C. 182, and if they are improperly asked they are simply denied or dismissed, but that does not affect the action itself, which goes on if the plaintiff is entitled to any other remedy. Deloatch v. Coman, 90 N. C. 186; Morris v. O'Briant, 94 N. C. 72; Hargrove v. Harris, 116 N. C. 418, 419, 21 S. E. 916.

Adopted from New York Code. — This statutory remedy is adopted from the Code of New York. Manix v. Howard, 82 N. C. 125, 129.

Statute Must Be Followed. — To entitle a party to maintain an action for claim and delivery of personal property, there must be a compliance with all the requisites specified in this and the following section. Hirsh v. Whitehead & Co., 65 N. C. 516.

Object Is to Recover Specific Property. — The recovery of the thing itself, and not damages in lieu thereof, is the primary object of the suit, and the value is given only as an alternative when delivery of the specific property can not be had. Hendley v. McIntyre, 132 N. C. 276, 277, 43 S. E. 824.

Who May Bring the Action. — One in the rightful possession of property as bailee can maintain an action of claim and delivery against a wrong-doer who is depriving him of possession. Hopper v. Miller, 76 N. C. 402.

Same—Tenant. — The crop produced by a tenant being vested in the lessor until the rents shall be paid, he can maintain an action for recovery of an undivided portion thereof, and it is not necessary that he shall specifically designate in his complaint, or affidavit in claim and delivery, such undivided part. Boone v. Darden, 109 N. C. 74, 13 S. E. 728.

But one tenant in common of personal property may not maintain claim and delivery against a third person in possession without the other owners, it being required that the claimant show sole ownership. Allen v. McMillan, 191 N. C. 517, 132 S. E. 276.

Same—Landlord. — Where, in a contract between the landlord and tenant, no time was fixed for the division of the crops, the landlord was not obliged to wait until the whole crop had been gathered, but had a right to bring his action for the possession of the crop before it was fully harvested. Rich v. Hobson, 112 N. C. 79, 16 S. E. 931. But see State v. Copeland, 86 N. C. 692, 694; Jordan v. Bryan, 103 N. C. 59, 9 S. E. 135.

Same—Mortgagee. — After default and refusal to surrender possession to the mortgagee, the mortgagee becomes, in law, the absolute owner of the mortgaged property, though the mortgagor had the right to redeem, until the property is sold; and the mortgagee is entitled to the same remedy against him for the possession that he would have against any other person who had the possession of his property. Kiser & Co. v. Blanton, 123 N. C. 400, 404, 31 S. E. 878.

Same—Assignee of Chattel Mortgage. — The assignee of a chattel mortgage may maintain proceedings in claim and delivery for the possession of the mortgaged property or for its value, etc., in his own name and right, after the note secured by the mortgage is overdue and remains unpaid. Johnson v. Bray, 174 N. C. 176, 93 S. E. 728.

Against Party in Possession. — An action for the possession of property must be brought against the party in possession. Haughton v. Newberry, 69 N. C. 456; Webb v. Taylor, 80 N. C. 305; Moore v. Brady, 125 N. C. 35, 37, 34 S. E. 72; General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Waugh, 207 N. C. 717, 178 S. E. 85.

Claim and delivery is not maintainable against one who has neither possession nor control of the property sought to be recovered, but who has sold and delivered it to another party. Webb v. Taylor, 80 N. C. 305, citing Jones v. Green, 20 N. C. 488; Charles v. Elliott, 20 N. C. 606; Foscue v. Eubank, 32 N. C. 424; Haughton v. Newberry, 69 N. C. 456; Slade v. Washburn, 24 N. C. 414.

Recovery of Title Deed. — Claim and delivery will lie for the recovery of a title deed if the controversy does not involve the determination of the title to the land conveyed by it. Pasterfield v. Sawyer, 132 N. C. 258, 43 S. E. 799.

Where Crops Removed. — The action will lie where the crops are removed from the land leased. Livingston v. Farish, 89 N. C. 140.

Crops on Wife's Land. — Claim and delivery will not lie for crops produced on wife's land, under a crop lien given by husband without her consent. Rawlings v. Neal, 126 N. C. 271, 35 S. E. 597.

Where Nature of Goods Changed. — If a person bestows his labor upon the property of another, thereby changing it into another species of article (as if corn be made into whiskey, prior to prohibition acts, etc.), the property is changed, and the owner of the original material cannot recover the article in its altered condition, but is only entitled to its value in the shape in which it was taken from him. Potter v. Mardre, 74 N. C. 36.

Statute of Limitations Applies.—The three-year statute of limitations in § 441(1) is also applicable to an action of claim and delivery. Hence where a note was given in payment for personal property and the statute of limitations had run on the note no action of claim and delivery could be maintained. Lester Piano Co. v. Loven, 207 N. C. 96, 176 S. E. 290.

Jurisdiction of Justice. — Where plaintiff, in an action before a justice of the peace to recover $75 due for rent, alleged that defendant wrongfully detained the crop on which the rent was a lien, and incidentally asked for a delivery of the crop which was not alleged to be worth "not more than fifty dollars," the justice of the peace was not deprived of jurisdiction by such allegation and prayer. Hargrove v. Harris, 116 N. C. 418, 21 S. E. 916.

Trial by Jury. — Where the evidence is conflicting as to the plaintiff's sole ownership of the personal property in claim and delivery, the question is one for the jury. Allen v. McMillan, 191 N. C. 517, 518, 132 S. E. 276.

Judgment. — Where claim and delivery is brought to get possession of property for the purpose of selling it, according to the terms of a contract, to pay an indebtedness, and all parties interested are before the court and the amount due ascertained, the plaintiff upon recovering holds as a trustee, and a judgment, directing an adjustment of all the equities involved in order that the matter may be determined, is the proper one to be rendered; and if possession of the property cannot be had, then the judgment should be in the alternative. Austin v. Secrest, 91 N. C. 214.

In claim and delivery the judgment should be for the delivery of the property or its value. Oil Co. v. Grocery Co., 136 N. C. 354, 48 S. E. 781.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 321, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 831. Affidavit and requisites.—Where a delivery is claimed, an affidavit must be made before the clerk of the court in which the action is required to be tried or before some person competent to administer oaths, by the plaintiff, or some one in his behalf, showing—

1. That the plaintiff is the owner of the property claimed (particularly describing it), or is lawfully entitled to its possession by virtue of a special property therein, the facts in respect to which must be set forth.

2. That the property is wrongfully detained by the defendant.

3. The alleged cause of the detention, according to his best knowledge, information and belief.

4. That the property has not been taken for tax, assessment or fine, pursuant to a statute; or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is, by statute, exempt from such seizure; and,

5. The actual value of the property. (Rev., s. 791; Code, s. 322; C. C. P., s. 177; 1881, c. 134.)

Broad Language. — The words of this section are as broad as can well be imagined, and include every case, with four specified exceptions, where the plaintiff makes an affidavit that he is entitled to the possession of certain personal property, and that it is wrongfully detained by the defendant, and gives the "undertaking". Jones v. Ward, 77 N. C. 337, 338.

Under this section there is no limitation or restriction put upon the plaintiff, who seeks to recover personal property and have the same immediately delivered to him, except that the same has not been taken for tax assessments or fines pursuant to a statute, or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff, or, if seized, that it is by statute exempt from such seizure. The language of the Code is immensely broader in its scope than the language of the revised statutes on the subject in hand. Mitchell v. Sims, 124 N. C. 411, 415, 32 S. E. 735.

Rights Conferred. — Under this section when the immediate delivery of the property is sought, the broad language of the statute gives the right to the claimant, upon his executing the bond required by law, to take the property from the possession of any person, even from an officer of the law. Mitchell v. Sims, 124 N. C. 411, 415, 32 S. E. 735.

When Section Applies. — It is only in cases when the plaintiff seeks to have the property delivered to him instanter, and to have the possession pending the action, as in the old action of replevin, that the affidavit and undertakings are required. Jarman v. Ward, 67 N. C. 32, 33.

Affidavit Essential. — The affidavit required by the Code is indispensable to maintain claim and delivery. Griffith v. Richmond, 126 N. C. 377, 35 S. E. 620.

Affidavit Must Comply with Section. — In making the affidavit this section must be strictly followed. Hirsh v. Whitehead, 65 N. C. 516.

Plaintiff Should State Interest. — It seems that the plaintiff should set forth his special interest in the property. Cooper v. Evans, 174 N. C. 412, 93 S. E. 897.

Affidavit Made "Per" Another. — In claim and delivery of personal property, an affidavit made by plaintiff "per" another is sufficient. Spencer v. Bell, 109 N. C. 39, 13 S. E. 704.

Deputy Can Take Affidavit. — The deputy of the clerk of the superior court is authorized to take the affidavit of the plaintiff and to order the seizure of personal property in an action of claim and delivery. Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 74.

Burden of Proof.—In claim and delivery proceedings the burden is on the plaintiff to establish a cause of action. Smith v. Cook, 196 N. C. 558, 146 S. E. 229.

Applied in General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Waugh, 207 N. C. 717, 178 S. E. 85.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 832. Order of seizure and delivery to plaintiff.—The clerk of the court shall, thereupon, and upon the giving by the plaintiff of the undertaking prescribed in the succeeding section, by an indorsement in writing upon the affidavit, require the sheriff of the county where the property claimed is located, to take it from the defendant and deliver it to the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 792; Code, s. 323; C. C. P., s. 178)

Summons Necessary. — In an action for the claim and delivery of personal property, the issuing of a summons is necessary to give the clerk jurisdiction to make the order to the sheriff, requiring him to take such property and deliver the same to the plaintiff, and an order to that effect without such summons is no justification to the sheriff or the defendant for any action in the premises. Potter v. Mardre, 74 N. C. 36.

A Ministerial Act. — In issuing the order, the clerk does not represent the court, whose officer he is, and as in numerous cases he is authorized to do under the statute, but he performs a ministerial act peremptorily enjoined, and exercises a function belonging to the office. Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 74, 76.

Same—Deputy Can Make Order. — It was held in Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 74, that the clerk of the superior court, in making the order of seizure of property in the provisional remedy of claim and delivery only does a ministerial and not a judicial act or service, and therefore a deputy clerk might make such order. Evans v. Etheridge, 96 N. C. 42, 43, 1 S. E. 633.

Plaintiff Must Continue the Action. — In an action of claim and delivery it is not competent to the plaintiff, after the property is put into his possession by process of law, to move to dismiss the action and fail to file a complaint, thereby raising no issue and depriving the defendant of an opportunity to assert his right. Manix v. Howard, 82 N. C. 125.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 833. Plaintiff's undertaking.—The plaintiff must give a written undertaking payable to the defendant, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, approved by the sheriff, to the effect that they are bound in double the value of the property, as stated in the affidavit for the prosecution of the action, for the return of the property to the defendant, with damages for its deterioration and detention if return can be had, and if for any cause return cannot be had, for the payment to him of such sum as may be recovered against the plaintiff for the value of the property at the time of the seizure, with interest thereon as damages for such seizure and detention. (Rev., s. 793; Code, s. 324; 1885, c. 50; C. C. P., s. 179.)

Cross Reference. — As to the judgment in an action for the recovery of personal property, see section 610.

Judgment Should Be in Alternative. — A judgment on the forthcoming bond in claim and delivery proceedings should be in the alternative for the return of the property, or, if that cannot be had, for its value with damages. Grubbs v. Stephenson, 117 N. C. 66, 67, 23 S. E. 97.

Value Ascertained. — For the benefit of the sureties upon the undertaking the value of the property at the time of seizure should also be ascertained, as they are liable for such value, not exceeding the indebtedness secured. Griffith v. Richmond, 126 N. C. 377, 35 S. E. 620.

Where, in claim and delivery proceedings, the vendor of the property, who had retained title until the notes for its purchase should be paid, intervened and was adjudged to be entitled to the property, the plaintiff (purchaser from the vendee), who had given bond for the return of the property to the defendant, if so adjudged, is entitled to have its value ascertained and should be adjudged to pay that amount, not exceeding, however, the balance due the vendor. Barrington v. Skinner, 117 N. C. 47, 48, 23 S. E. 90.

The plaintiff and surety are not liable where sheriff seized and retained certain property not specified or described in the affidavit. Williams v. Perkins, 192 N. C. 175, 134 S. E. 417.

Voluntary Nonsuit by Plaintiff.—Where the plaintiff has taken a voluntary nonsuit after the property had been taken in claim and delivery and therein sold, the defendant in that action may maintain an independent action for damages, against the plaintiff in the former action and the surety on his bond, given in conformity with this section, wherein nominal damages at least are recoverable, with actual damages for the value of the property at the time of the seizure under claim and delivery. Davis Bros. Co. v. Wallace, 190 N. C. 543, 130 S. E. 176.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 834. Sheriff's duties.—Upon the receipt of the order from the clerk with the plaintiff's undertaking, the sheriff shall forthwith take the property described in the affidavit, if it is in the possession of the defendant or his agent, and retain it in his custody. He shall also, without delay, serve on the defendant a copy of the affidavit, notice, and undertaking, by delivering the same to him personally, if he can be found, or to his agent, from whose possession the property is taken; or, if neither can be found, by leaving them at the usual place of abode of either, with some person of suitable age and discretion. (Rev., s. 793; Code, s. 324; C. C. P., s. 179; 1885, c. 50.)

Sheriff Acts Officially.—The sheriff or his deputy is not the agent of the party who sued out the claim and delivery, but he is an officer to carry out the mandate of the court. Williams v. Perkins, 192 N. C. 175, 178, 134 S. E. 417.

Action against Sheriff.—Where the sheriff has wrongfully seized certain personal property of the defendant in claim and delivery, not described therein as the subject of such seizure, the defendant may maintain an independent action for damages against the sheriff. Williams v. Perkins, 192 N. C. 175, 134 S. E. 417.

Quoted in General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Waugh, 207 N. C. 717, 178 S. E. 85.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 835. Exceptions to undertaking; liability of sheriff.—The defendant may, within three days after the service of a copy of the affidavit and undertaking, notify the sheriff personally, or by leaving a copy at his office in the county-seat of the county, that he excepts to the sufficiency of the sureties. If he fails to do so, he is deemed to have waived all objection to them. When the defendant excepts, the sureties must justify on notice, in like manner as upon bail on arrest. The sheriff is responsible for the sufficiency of the sureties until the objection to them is either waived as above provided, or until they justify, or until new sureties are substituted and justify. If the defendant excepts to the sureties he cannot reclaim the property as provided in the succeeding section. (Rev., s. 794; Code, s. 325; C. C. P., s. 180.)

Sheriff Liable as Surety.—In delivering property to a defendant, when seized in claim and delivery proceedings without taking a proper undertaking and requiring the same to be justified, a sheriff becomes liable as a surety thereon. Wells v. Bourne, 113 N. C. 82, 18 S. E. 106.

Same—Measure of Damages.—In such case the measure of liability is the delivery of the property to the plaintiff (if such delivery be adjudged), with damages for its deterioration, or (failing delivery) the value of the property; and to subject the sheriff as surety, it is necessary to show that execution has been returned unsatisfied. Wells v. Bourne, 113 N. C. 82, 18 S. E. 106.

Same—What Plaintiff Must Prove.—Where plaintiff, in an action against a sheriff to recover damages for his failure to take a proper undertaking for the return of property seized by him at the instance of the plaintiff and adjudged to be returned, failed to show that execution issued for the property and against the sureties on the undertaking had been returned unsatisfied, he failed to show, and can not recover, actual damage against such sheriff. Wells v. Bourne, 113 N. C. 82, 18 S. E. 106.

When Objection Must Be Made.—The objection that what purports to be the undertaking of the plaintiff, in such action, was not properly executed, comes too late when made at the trial term. Spencer v. Bell, 109 N. C. 39, 13 S. E. 704.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 836. Defendant's undertaking for replevy.—At any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the defendant may, if he does not except to the sureties of the plaintiff, require the return thereof, upon giving to the sheriff a written undertaking, payable to the plaintiff, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, to the effect that they are bound in double the value of the property, as stated in the affidavit of the plaintiff, for the delivery thereof to the plaintiff, with damages for its deterioration and detention, and the costs, if delivery can be had, and if delivery cannot be had, for the payment to him of such sum as may be recovered against the defendant for the value of the property at the time of the wrongful taking or detention, with interest thereon, as damages for such taking and detention, together with the costs of the action. If a return of the property is not so required, within three days after the taking and service of notice to the defendant, it must be delivered to the plaintiff, unless it is claimed by an interpleader.

The defendant's undertaking shall include liability for costs, as provided in this section, only where the undertaking is given in actions instituted in the superior court. (Rev., s. 795; Code, s. 326; 1885, c. 50, s. 2; C. C. P., s. 181; 1911, c. 17.)

Cross References.—As to judgment in an action for the return of personal property, see section 610.

Liability of Surety.—The principle, applying to ordinary contracts, that a surety is released from liability by an extension of time given to his principal does not apply to a surety on a replevin bond given under the provisions of this section, where the defendant retains possession of the property the subject of claim and delivery by reason of the bond, and under its conditions, and thereafter a judgment by consent of the parties is entered by the court; and where the consent judgment stays execution for sixty days, and in that time the defendant upon whom the judgment places liability has disposed of the same, the surety remains liable to the extent of his principal's obligation. Wallace & Sons v. Robinson, 185 N. C. 530, 117 S. E. 508.

Where, in claim and delivery, the defendant pleads that he became possessed of the property under a contract of sale, upon the facts being so found by the jury (the property having been sold under an order of the court pendente lite), judgment should be rendered against the sureties to the defendant's undertaking for the penalty of the bond, to be discharged upon the payment of the contract price with interest and cost, less the payments by the defendant Hall v. Tillman, 110 N. C. 220, 14 S. E. 745.

The liability of the surety on a replevy bond in claim and delivery is not required to be determined in a separate action. Federal Finance, etc., Co. v. Teeter, 196 N. C. 232, 145 S. E. 8.

Same—Debt Recovered.—The sureties to an undertaking, on behalf of the defendant, in claim and delivery are not liable for any debt which the plaintiff may recover in the action. Hall v. Tillman, 103 N. C. 276, 9 S. E. 194.

Liability Where Bond Voluntary.—Where an action of claim and delivery is instituted in a court inferior to the superior court, the defendant is not required by this section to give bond for the payment by him of the costs of the action, if a judgment adverse to him is rendered in the action. However, when, the bond is so conditioned, the bond is not for that reason void and unenforceable against either the defendant or his surety. In the absence of fraud, mistake, or other matters entitling them or either of them to equitable relief, both the defendant and his surety are bound according to the terms of the bond, which they executed voluntarily. Wright v. Nash, 205 N. C. 221, 223, 171 S. E. 48.

The recovery against the surety can in no event exceed the penalty of the bond. Boyd v. Walters, 201 N. C. 378, 160 S. E. 451.

Summary Judgment against Sureties. — Summary judgment may be rendered against the defendant's sureties on an undertaking to retain the property in an action of claim and delivery, but the judgment must be such as is authorized by this section, and sec. 610. Hall v. Tillman, 103 N. C. 276, 9 S. E. 194.

Form of Judgment against Surety.—Where the defendant in claim and delivery replevies the property, giving bond for the retention to cover loss in the action, the form of the judgment against the surety on the bond should be for the full amount of the bond, to be discharged upon return of the property and the payment of damages and costs recovered by the plaintiff. Boyd v. Walters, 201 N. C. 378, 160 S. E. 451.

Sureties' Defenses. — The surety on a replevin bond in claim and delivery, under the requirements of this section that the property shall be delivered to the plaintiff, or, if it cannot be, the value at the time it was delivered to the defendant, etc., may not, upon adjudication in plaintiff's favor, set up the defense that it had been taken by another, or prevented by the act of God, or that another than the plaintiff had a superior title to the property by mortgage or otherwise. Garner v. Quakenbush, 188 N. C. 180, 124 S. E. 154.

The remedy of a surety on a replevin bond to contest his liability as such under a consent judgment entered by the court against the defendant, his principal, is by appeal from the judgment, or by an independent action in case of fraud, and not by his motion in the case. Wallace & Sons v. Robinson, 185 N. C. 530, 117 S. E. 508.

Sheriff Retaining Possession of Goods.—When the sheriff of the county retains possession of the goods, replevied in claim and delivery under section 3403, instead of surrendering possession to the plaintiff who has given the replevin bond prescribed by this section, the status of his possession changed from that of a custodian of the law, and his liability is to be determined under the provisions of this section and those of his official bond, and he is responsible for the loss of the goods when destroyed by fire in his possession, irrespective of any question of negligence on his part in keeping it. Motor Co. v. Sands, 186 N. C. 732, 120 S. E. 459.

Recovery of Costs.—The language of this section is not so explicit as that of the original section of the Code, but it is fairly susceptible of the interpretation that the entire costs of prosecuting the action involving the title to the property should be recovered by a plaintiff who prevails against the defendant and the sureties on the bond. Hall v. Tillman, 110 N. C. 220, 229, 14 S. E. 745.

Quoted in General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Waugh, 207 N. C. 717, 178 S. E. 85.

§ 837. Qualification and justification of defendant's sureties.—The qualification of the defendant's sureties, and their justification, is as prescribed in respect to bail upon an order of arrest. The defendant's sureties, upon notice to the plaintiff of not less than two nor more than six days, shall justify before the court, a judge or justice of the peace, and upon this justification the sheriff must deliver the property to the defendant. The sheriff is responsible for the defendant's sureties until justification is completed or expressly waived and, he may retain the property until that time; but if they, or others in their place, fail to justify at the time and place appointed, he must deliver the property to the plaintiff. (Rev., ss. 796, 797; Code, ss. 327, 328; C. C. P., ss. 182, 183.)

As to qualifications of bail in arrest and bail, see section 781. As to justification, see section 782.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 838. Property concealed in buildings.—If the property, or any part of it, is concealed in a building or enclosure, the sheriff shall publicly demand its delivery. If it is not delivered he must cause the building or enclosure to be broken open, and take the property into his possession. If necessary, he may call to his aid the power of his county, and if the property is upon the person the sheriff or other officer may sieze the person, and search for and take it. (Rev., s. 798; Code, s. 329; C. C. P., s. 184.)

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 839. Care and delivery of seized property.—When the sheriff has taken property, as provided in this article, he must keep it in a secure place, and deliver it to the party entitled thereto, upon receiving his lawful fees for taking and his necessary expenses for keeping it. (Rev., s. 799; Code, s. 330; C. C. P., s. 185.)

Expenses of Seizing Included in Costs.—It is proper to allow in the bill of costs the expense of seizing and caring for the property. Hendricks v. Ireland, 162 N. C. 523, 525, 7 S. E. 1011.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621.

§ 840. Property claimed by third person; proceedings.—When the property taken by the sheriff is claimed by any person other than the plaintiff or defendant the claimant may interplead upon filing an affidavit of his title and right to the possession of the property, stating the grounds of such right and title; and upon his delivering to the sheriff an undertaking in an amount double the value of the property specified in intervenor or third person's affidavit, for the delivery of the property to the person entitled to it, and for the payment of all such costs and damages as may be awarded against him; this undertaking to be executed by one or more sufficient sureties, accompanied by their affidavits that they are each worth double the value of the property. A copy of this undertaking and accompanying affidavit shall be served by the sheriff on the plaintiff and defendant at least ten days before the return day of the summons in the action, when the court trying it shall order a jury to be impaneled to inquire in whom is the right to the property specified in plaintiff's complaint. The finding of the jury is conclusive as to the parties then in court, and the court shall adjudge accordingly, unless it is reversed upon appeal. In a court of a justice of the peace he may try such issue unless a jury is demanded, and then proceedings are to be conducted in all respects as in jury trials before justices of the peace. In a court of a justice of the peace an interpleader shall not be required to serve on the plaintiff and defendant the affidavits and bonds required by this section, ten days before return day; but if said bond and affidavit are filed by any person owning the property when such case is called for trial, he shall be allowed to interplead: Provided that this section shall not be construed to prevent any such intervener or third person from intervening and asserting his claim to the property, or any part thereof, without giving bond as herein required, where such intervener or other third person does not ask for possession of the property pending the trial of the issue. (Rev., s. 800; Code, s. 331; C. C. P., s. 186; 1793, c. 389, s. 3; R. C., c. 7, s. 10; 1913, c. 188; 1933, c. 131.)

Cross References.—As to bringing in third parties in general, see section 460. For further cases under "interpleader," see annotations under section 829, the provisions of which are identical with this section.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 131, substituted the words "intervenor or third person," now appearing in the eighth and ninth lines, for the word "plaintiff." It also added the proviso at the end of the section, declaring bond not necessary.

The original section required that the undertaking be in double the value of the property stated in the plaintiff's affidavit, while the 1933 amendment required double the value as stated in the intervenor's affidavit. This was probably intended to apply where the intervening claimant does not demand all the property involved or its value has depreciated, and not to allow his statement of the value generally to control as against the security which the plaintiff has been required to give. 11 N. C. Law Rev., 217.

Purpose.—Is it not the purpose of the section to allow the person interpleading to come into the action in its course, allege and prove his title and right of possession of the property upon their real merits, and, if he shall succeed, take it without the delay and expense incident to a separate and independent action that otherwise he might be forced to bring? This seems to us to be the just and reasonable view, and the one that harmonizes with well-settled principles of the law applicable. Claywell v. McGimpsey, 15 N. C. 89; Churchill v. Lee, 77 N. C. 341; Hudson v. Wetherington, 79 N. C. 3; Wallace Bros. v. Robeson, 100 N. C. 206, 211, 2 S. E. 650.

Right to Intervene Well Settled.—The right of an outside claimant to intervene is well settled by precedent. Sims v. Goettle Brothers, 82 N. C. 269; Toms v. Warson, 66 N. C. 417; Bruff v. Stern, 81 N. C. 183; McKesson v. Mendenhall, 64 N. C. 286; Clemmons v. Hampton, 70 N. C. 534.

Intervenor Restricted to Question of Title. — It is well settled that in an action involving the title to property an interpleader is restricted to the issue as to his title or claim to the property, and cannot raise or litigate questions or rights which do not affect such titles. McLean v. Douglas, 28 N. C. 233; Dawson v. Thigpen, 137 N. C. 462, 467, 49 S. E. 959.

In a proceeding under this section the intervenor is not called on or required, and indeed he is not permitted to question the validity of the plaintiff's claim against the defendant, nor to file any answer thereto which denies or tends to deny its validity. On the contrary, the intervenor, has himself become the actor in the suit, and, on authority, is restricted to the issue whether his claim of right and title is superior to that of the original plaintiff. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882; Maynard v. Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 711, 44 S. E. 405; Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452, 40 S. E. 218; Hill v. Patillo, 187 N. C. 531, 532, 122 S. E. 306.

Intervenor Must Prove Title.—In proceedings in attachment one who interpleads under this section is an actor upon whom rests the burden of proving his title to the property he claims. And this is so, although the property was in his possession when seized by the sheriff. Wallace Bros. v. Robeson, 100 N. C. 206, 2 S. E. 650, Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452, 40 S. E. 218.

Appearance Waives Objections.—A party to an action is deemed to have waived his right to object to the sufficiency of an affidavit of an attorney for an interpleader or intervener, as not having been made in accordance with the requirements of our statute, by appearing at the taking of depositions in his behalf and cross-examining his witness. Allen v. McMillan, 191 N. C. 517, 132 S. E. 276.

Voluntary Recognition of Jurisdiction.—Where the court has allowed a third party to interplead and ordered him to be made a party to the action, an appearance of an original party to the action must first attack the validity of the order, if he so desires, and a voluntary recognition that the court has acquired jurisdiction of a party is conclusive. Allen v. McMillan, 191 N. C. 517, 132 S. E. 276.

Separate Trial.—A separate trial for the intervenor is discretionary with the trial judge. Cotton Mills v. Weil, 129 N. C. 452, 40 S. E. 218.

Three Years Delay by Intervenor.—In an action for the possession of personal property, under this section, a third party claiming such property loses his right to be made a party to the suit after a lapse of three years from the filing of his affidavit and his motion to allow him to interplead. Clemmons v. Hampton, 70 N. C. 534.

Surety Cannot Interplead.—Where the defendant in claim and delivery proceedings consents to a judgment against himself and sureties on the replevin bond, the sureties cannot be allowed to intervene as parties and move to have the judgment vacated, when they have not offered to interplead and claim the property in the manner prescribed by this section. McDonald v. McBryde, 117 N. C. 125, 23 S. E. 103.

Nonsuit by Plaintiff.—In an action to recover possession of personal property, where the defendant has replevied the property and a third person has interpleaded, the plaintiff may take a nonsuit, but the action goes on for the interpleader. Dawson v. Thigpen, 137 N. C. 462, 49 S. E. 959.

Jurisdiction of Justice of the Peace.—A justice of the peace may entertain and try an interplea to determine the title although the value of the property exceeds $50. Grambling v. Dickey, 118 N. C. 986, 24 S. E. 671.

When Garnishee Bank a Mere Stakeholder. — Where funds of a nonresident defendant are attached in a local bank that maintains the position of a mere stakeholder, and alleges ownership of its forwarding bank, and asks that the forwarding bank be made a party to the action, the forwarding bank, when brought in, may make its own claim of title and thus cure the defect, if any, in the proceedings in this respect, it being a matter of procedure. Temple v. Eades Hay Co., 184 N. C. 239, 114 S. E. 162.

Same—No Bond Required.—The bond required of an intervenor by this section, has no application in attachment where the garnishee bank holding the funds attached does so as a stakeholder, not claiming them, but only seeks to hold the same, for the adjudication of the court between two conflicting claimants. Temple v. Eades Hay Co., 184 N. C. 239, 114 S. E. 162.

Husband and Wife.—Where the plaintiffs attach property and bring action against a husband and wife to have a deed from the husband to the wife set aside and to subject the property attached to the payment of the judgment, the wife has a right to set up her claim to the property attached, and the refusal of the trial court to require her to give an interpleader bond under this section is not error. Unaka, etc., Nat. Bank v. Lewis, 201 N. C. 148, 159 S. E. 312.

Applied in General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Waugh, 207 N. C. 717, 178 S. E. 85.

Cited in McKinney v. Sutphin, 196 N. C. 318, 145 S. E. 621; Francis v. Mortgage Security Corp., 198 N. C. 734, 153 S. E. 317.

§ 841. Delivery of property to intervener.— Upon the filing by the claimant of the undertaking set forth in the preceding section, the sheriff is not bound to keep the property, or to deliver it to the plaintiff; but may deliver it to the claimant, unless the plaintiff executes and delivers to him a similar undertaking to that required of claimant; and notwithstanding such claim, when so made, the sheriff may retain the property a reasonable time to demand such indemnity. (Rev., s. 801; Code, s. 332; R. C., c. 7, s. 10; 1793, c. 389, s. 3.)

Purpose of Section.—This section is intended only for the benefit of the sheriff, and to enable him to protect himself against the claim of the third party, by taking from the the plaintiff an indemnity against such claim before he delivers the property to him. It does not amount, on the part of the third claimant, to becoming a party to the action, it is not a necessary step in that direction, and the third claimant may become a party under section 460 without having made and served such affidavit. Clemmons v. Hampton, 70 N. C. 534.

Sheriff Must Take Security.—Under this section the property is not to be delivered to the intervenor by the sheriff until the security is given. Bear v. Cohen, 65 N. C. 511, 514.

§ 842. Sheriff to return papers in ten days.— The sheriff must return the undertaking, notice and affidavit, with his proceedings thereon, to the court in which the action is pending within ten days after taking the property mentioned therein. (Rev., s. 802; Code, s. 133; C. C. P., s. 187.)

Art. 36. Injunction

§ 843. When temporary injunction issued.—A temporary injunction may be issued by order in accordance with the provisions of this article. The order may be made by any judge of the superior court in the following cases, and shall be issued by the clerk of the court in which the action is required to be tried.

1. When it appears by the complaint that the plaintiff is entitled to the relief demanded, and this relief, or any part thereof, consists in restraining the commission or continuance of some act the commission or continuance of which, during the litigation, would produce injury to the plaintiff; or,

2. When, during the litigation, it appears by affidavit that a party thereto is doing, or threatens or is about to do, or is procuring or suffering some act to be done in violation of the rights of another party to the litigation respecting the subject of the action, and tending to render the judgment ineffectual; or,

3. When, during the pendency of an action, it appears by affidavit of any person that the defendant threatens or is about to remove or dispose of his property, with intent to defraud the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 806; Code, ss. 334, 338; C. C. P., ss. 188, 189.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Effect upon Prior Law.—This section is merely a statutory recognition of the abolition of the distinction between special and common injunctions, a distinction existing under the old practice. Under the Code all injunctions are simply ancillary proceedings and are not available to anyone the basis of whose claim for such relief does not come within at least one of the enumerated classes of this section. Person v. Person, 154 N. C. 453, 70 S. E. 752. Under the existing procedure issuance of an injunction presupposes, as an essential requisite, the pendancy of an action which is receiving or will receive a judicial determination. Armstrong v. Kinsell, 164 N. C. 125, 80 S. E. 235.

Definitions.—An injunction in its ordinary sense is a command, and this command may be either to do or refrain from doing some particular thing. See Frinck v. Hay, 22 Wall, 250, 22 L. Ed. 857.

Injunctions are also classified as interlocutory or temporary and perpetual. Kickliffe v. Owings, 17 How. 47, 49, 15 L. Ed. 44.

Restraining Order and Injunction Distinguished. — This section in no wise abolishes the distinction between restraining orders and injunctions. The distinctive features between these remedial agencies remain and are respected to the utmost extent by the courts.

A restraining order can be issued in any cause by any judge of the superior court anywhere in the state, and made returnable at any time within twenty days, at any place, before a judge residing in or assigned to or holding by exchange the courts within the district in which the county where the cause is pending is situated; but a perpetual injunction can be granted only in the county where the cause is pending, and by the judge who tries the cause at the final hearing. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519. See also Kinston v. Wooten, 150 N. C. 295, 63 S. E. 1061.

An injunction may be granted by a judge out side the county in which the main cause is pending since this is an ancillary proceeding not involving the merits of the cause. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 503, 16 S. E. 848. This principle was recognized and applied in Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 405, 27 S. E. 123, a case in which the validity of a judgment obtained in special proceedings was contested on the grounds that it was entered outside of the county in which the main action was litigated.

Mandamus and Mandatory Injunction Distinguished. — In North Carolina, where both legal and equitable jurisdiction is vested in the same court, there is very little difference in its practical results between proceedings in mandamus and mandatory injunction, the former is permissible when the action is to enforce performance of duties existent for the benefit of the public, and the latter is confined usually to causes of an equitable nature, and to the enforcement of rights which solely concerns individuals. Clinton Dunn Tel. Co. v. Carolina Tel. etc., Co., 159 N. C. 9, 74 S. E. 636.

Good Faith and Reasonable Diligence Necessary. — Before injunctive relief will be granted it is necessary that the plaintiff show his good faith and reasonable diligence in instituting his action, Jones v. Commissioners, 107 N. C. 248, 12 S. E. 69, and such facts exhibited by the plaintiff must constitute a substantial cause of action. Moore v. Silver Valley Min. Co., 104 N. C. 534, 10 S. E. 679.

Constitutional Provisions. — The constitutional prohibition of trial of "issues of fact" by the Supreme Court extends to issues of fact as heretofore understood, and does not hinder that tribunal from trying such questions of fact as may be involved in a consideration of the property of continuing or vacating an order for a provisional injunction. Heilig v. Stokes, 63 N. C. 612, 613.

Increasing Bond.—Under this section the garnishees may be restrained and enjoined from making further payments on their indebtedness to the defendant, until the final determination of the action, but the defendant and the garnishees may move that the bond required of the plaintiffs shall be increased in amount, to the end that said defendant and the garnishees shall be fully protected against loss or damage resulting from the injunction. Newberry v. Meadows Fert. Co., 203 N. C. 330, 339, 166 S. E. 79.

Cited in Collins v. North Carolina State College, 198 N. C. 337, 151 S. E. 646; Hopkins v. Swain, 206 N. C. 439, 174 S. E. 409.

II. NATURE.

Beneficial Process. — The injunction is a beneficial process for the protection of rights, and is favorably viewed by courts of chancery, as its object is to prevent rather than redress injuries. See Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. 1, 77, 8 L. Ed. 25. (Dissenting Opinion).

Extraordinary and Provisional Remedy. — Although the specific details for the granting of injunctions are set out in the section, an injunction is still regarded as an extraordinary and provisional remedy, recourse to which may only be had by a party who has exhausted all available remedies. Chambers v. Penland, 78 N. C. 53, 56; or unless it be made to appear that the party will suffer irreparable injury unless such relief is granted. Fink v. Stewart, 94 N. C. 484.

Equitable Remedy. — Injunction, being equitable in its nature and origin, must be administered upon equitable principles, except in so far as it may come within some plain statutory provision. Person v. Leary, 127 N. C. 114, 117, 37 S. E. 149.

Must Be an Adequate Remedy at Law.—The remedy at law, in order to exclude a concurrent remedy at equity, must be as complete, as practical and as efficient to the ends of justice and its prompt administration, as the remedy in equity. See Walla Walla v. Walla Walla Water Co., 172 U. S. 1, 12, 43 L. Ed. 341.

Inadequacy of Other Remedies. — The general rule is that where a complainant has unquestioned rights which are not adequately protected by legal remedies, he is entitled to the aid of equity. Union Pacific R. Co. v. Cheyenne, 113 U. S. 516, 28 L. Ed. 1098; Corleus v. Alaska Treadwell Min. Co., 187 U. S. 455, 47 L. Ed. 256.

But an injunction will not issue to protect the complainant's rights, where he has an adequate legal remedy. Allen v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 114 U. S. 311, 29 L. Ed. 200; Arkansas Building etc., Ass'n v. Madden, 175 N. C. 269, 272, 44 L. Ed. 159.

Remedy Only in Foreign Courts. — Formerly a court of equity would grant an injunction where otherwise the party seeking it would be driven to the courts of another state for the purpose of obtaining it. Richardson v. Williams, 56 N. C. 116; Hauser v. Mann, 5 N. C. 410, 411.

Power of Courts. — The section tends greatly to enlarge the power of the court to grant equitable relief, especially since the granting of the temporary injunction, herein provided, may be accompanied with the appointment of a receiver when necessary for the protection of the subject-matter of the action. Roper Lumber Co. v. Wallace, 93 N. C. 22, 23.

III. GROUNDS OF RELIEF.

A. Character of Relief in General.

An injunction can only operate in personam and unless jurisdiction of the party can be acquired, the attempted procedure is a nullity; and upon this principle proceedings to restrain the negotiation of a note in the hands of a holder, a nonresident and beyond the borders of the state, should be dismissed. Warlick v. Reynolds, 151 N. C. 606, 66 S. E. 657; Armstrong v. Kinsell, 164 N. C. 125, 80 S. E. 235.

The writ does not operate in rem but in personam, Phelps v. McDonald, 99 U. S. 298, 25 L. Ed. 473. An injunction issues only to the parties before the court and not to the court. Central Nat. Bank v. Stevens, 169 U. S. 432, 463, 42 L. Ed. 807.

Must Be Some Interference. — There must be some interference, actual or threatened, with property or rights of a pecuniary nature, to give chancery jurisdiction to exercise the injunctive powers of the court. See In re Deles, 158 U. S. 564, 583, 39 L. Ed. 1092.

B. Availability of Other Relief.

In General.—It is well established that when proper relief can otherwise be had then no injunction will be issued, and where a party can obtain his relief by a motion in the original action he will not be permitted later to institute a new and independent action for the purpose of obtaining an injunction. Faison v. McIlwaine, 72 N. C. 312, 313, and cases there cited.

Irreparable Injury.—The rule in regard to the granting of an injunction on the ground that the injury complained of is irreparable in its nature is a strict one. The plaintiff must clearly show that the injury is peculiar in nature, one that cannot be repaired, put back again, or atoned for in damages. Bond v. Wool, 107 N. C. 139, 12 S. E. 281; Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 127 N. C. 130, 37 S. E. 152. See also, McKesson v. Hennessee, 66 N. C. 473. As to allegations of insolvency when injury is irreparable, see note to § 844.

Where Execution Improperly or Prematurely Issued. — Where there has been an improper or premature execution by the clerk, the injured party's remedy is the perfection of his appeal and notice thereof which will have the effect of staying the proceedings, and an injunction will not be granted in such case. Bryan v. Hubbs, 69 N. C. 423, 433.

Where it is shown that injury will result from the issuance of an irregular execution, the proper remedy is by motion to set aside and not injunction. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69, 71.

C. Application of the Section.

Criminal Law. — The courts cannot enjoin the enforcement of the criminal law, nor can the validity of an ordinance be tested by an injunction. Paul v. Washington, 134 N. C. 363, 380, 47 S. E. 793.

Act Already Committed. — An injunction will not issue to restrain an act which has already been committed. Yount v. Setzer, 155 N. C. 213, 71 S. E. 209.

Specific Instances.—It is impossible in a work of this nature to state the facts and circumstances appearing in the numerous cases pertaining to the subject. A few of the leading cases illustrative of the principles herein before set out, together with references to the particular places in the digest where other cases are collected, are given in order that the practitioner may have a key to the subject. Ed. Note.

Wasteful or Wrongful Disposition of Property of Dissolved Corporation. — The court, upon the dissolution of a corporation, has full control over the property of such corporation, and if necessary for the protection of such property, an injunction may be properly issued. State v. Roanoke Nav. Co., 84 N. C. 705.

Wasteful Destruction by Personal Representative. — A temporary injunction restraining the disposition of assets in this state of an estate administered on in another state, in which the administrator is alleged to have committed a devastavit, was properly continued in their action to the hearing of the cause. Coleman v. Howell, 131 N. C. 125, 42 S. E. 555.

Utility Companies and Municipal Corporations. — The section applies equally as well whether the parties litigants be public service or municipal corporations or individuals. See Woodley v. Carolina Tel. etc., Co., 163 N. C. 284, 79 S. E. 598; Griffin v. Goldsboro Water Co., 122 N. C. 206, 30 S. E. 319; Merrick v. Intramontaine R. Co., 118 N. C. 1081, 24 S. E. 667.

Other Instances. — Injoining trespass, see Injunctions, 7 N. C. Enc. 671 et seq; continuing trespass, see § 844, and the notes thereto; contracts, see Injunctions; 7 N. C. Enc.

Dig. 678 et seq; nuisances, see Injunctions, 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 685 et seq; corporate franchises, management, and dealings, see Injunctions, 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 679 et seq; public officers and boards and municipalities, see Injunctions, 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 680 et seq; public welfare, property, and rights, see Injunctions, 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 685 et seq; personal rights and duties, see Injunctions, 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 685, et seq; criminal acts, conspiracies, and prosecutions, see Injunctions, 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 686 et seq.

§ 844. When solvent defendant restrained.—In an application for an injunction to enjoin a trespass on land it is not necessary to allege the insolvency of the defendant when the trespass complained of is continuous in its nature, or is the cutting or destruction of timber trees. (Rev., s. 807; 1885, c. 401.)

Irreparable Injury. — The cases are in accord in holding that if the injury which the plaintiff is sustaining or is about to sustain is an irreparable one so that there can be no sufficient recompense in money, then the plaintiff need not, in his pleadings, allege the insolvency of the defendant, but if the injury is an ordinary one which may be atoned for in money, then the plaintiff, in order to secure a temporary injunction, must allege the defendant's insolvency, for otherwise he has an adequate remedy in an action for damages. Stewart v. Munger, 174 N. C. 402, 93 S. E. 927; Lewis v. Roper Lumber Co., 99 N. C. 11, 5 S. E. 19.

Continuing Trespass. — Where it appears that the facts of the case are in dispute and the trespass by the defendant would be continuous, and would produce injury to the plaintiff, a restraining order should issue to the hearing, Sutton v. Sutton, 161 N. C. 665, 77 S. E. 838, and, because of this section, it is unnecessary in such case to allege the insolvency of the defendant, Cobb v. Atlantic etc., R. Co., 172 N. C. 58, 89 S. E. 807. The same principle is applicable where the plaintiff shows apparent title to the lands and satisfies the court that his claim for injunctive relief is made in good faith. Lodge v. Ijames, 156 N. C. 159, 72 S. E. 204.

Effect upon Discretionary Power of the Court. — The construction placed on this section does not deprive the courts of their discretionary power to require a bond to secure the plaintiff against damages, or to appoint a receiver, where there is a bona fide contention as to the title to lands or timber trees thereon. Stewart v. Munger, 174 N. C. 402, 93 S. E. 927.

Continuance to Hearing.—When a continuous trespass is sought to be enjoined, and the rights of the parties require the determination of the jury upon convicting evidence, and irreparable injury for the continued trespass will likely follow, the courts will ordinarily continue the cause to the hearing to prevent further litigation, cost, and trouble, when no harm thereby can be done, irrespective of the solvency of the alleged trespasser. Norfolk So. R. Co. v. Rapid Transit Co., 195 N. C. 305, 141 S. E. 882.

Destruction of Trees. — Allegations that defendant is insolvent and is cutting down timber trees on plaintiff's land and hauling them off and threatens to continue to do so, to the irreparable damage of the plaintiff, is sufficient to authorize the appointment of a receiver, and since the enactment of this section, it is not necessary to allege the insolvency of the defendant. McKay v. Chapin, 120 N. C. 159, 26 S. E. 701.

Constitutional Provisions. — Although the time for cutting the timber trees was extended with the enactment of this section, it is now settled that the section does not interfere with any vested right within the meaning of the constitutional provision prohibiting such interference. Riley & Co. v. Carter, 165 N. C. 334, 81 S. E. 414.

§ 845. Timber lands, trial of title to.—In all actions to try title to timber lands and for trespass thereon for cutting timber trees, when the court finds as a fact that there is a bona fide contention on both sides based upon evidence constituting a prima facie title, no order shall be made pending such action, permitting either party to cut said timber trees, except by consent, until the title to said land or timber trees is finally determined in the action. In all cases where the title to any timber or trees, or the right to cut and remove the same during a term of years, is claimed by any party to such action, and the fee of the soil or other estate in the land by another, whether party to the action or not, the time within which such timber or trees may be cut or removed by the party claiming the same, and all other rights acquired in connection therewith, shall not be affected or abridged, but the running of the term is suspended during the pendency of the action. (Rev., s. 808; 1901, c. 666, s. 1; 1903, c. 642.)

Purpose of Section. — The primary object of this section is to throw a greater safe-guard around the rights of the litigating parties and to preserve the timber upon the lands in dispute, until the rights of the respective parties can be adjudicated. Moore v. Fowle, 139 N. C. 51, 51 S. E. 796.

Plaintiff Must Show a Bona Fide Claim. — The plaintiff, in order to prevent a dissolution of the injunction obtained against the defendant, must show (1) a bona fide claim to the lands, and (2) that such claim is based upon evidence constituting a prima facie title. Moore v. Fowle, 139 N. C. 51, 51 S. E. 796.

§ 846. When timber may be cut.—In any action specified in the preceding section, when the judge finds as a fact that the contention of either party is not in good faith and is not based upon evidence constituting a prima facie title, upon motion of the other party, who may satisfy the court of the bona fides of his contention and who may produce evidence showing a prima facie title, the court may allow such party to cut the timber trees by giving bond as required by law. Nothing in this section affects the right of appeal, and when any party to such action has been enjoined, a sufficient bond must be required to cover all damages that may accrue to the party enjoined by reason of the injunction as now required by law. (Rev., s. 809; 1901, c. 666, ss. 2, 3.)

Editor's Note. — This section shows clearly the legislative intent to preserve the power of the courts to require a bond of the party who succeeds in having the injunction dissolved, and who is then allowed to proceed to cut the timber trees: but the exercise of this procedure is greatly limited by the provisions of this section, most of which are conditions precedent to its exercise.

Essential Elements. — Under this section the plaintiff must not only show (a) that his claim is made in good faith and (b) that he has a prima facie title thereto, but the court must be able to find as a fact, (c) that the claim of the adverse party is not made in good faith. When relief is sought under this provision all these conditions must be complied with. Johnson v. Duvall, 135 N. C. 642, 47 S. E. 611.

Injunction Granted Where Contention Bona Fide. — This section was not intended to be a substitute for the preceding sections, and when the court fails to find, in the light of all the evidence, that there is not a bona fide contention, then it should grant an injunction under sections 844, 845. Kelly v. Enterprise Lumber Co., 157 N. C. 175, 72 S. E. 957.

§ 847. Time of issuing.—The injunction may be granted when or at any time after commencing the action, before judgment, upon its appearing satisfactorily to the judge, by affidavit of the plaintiff or of any other person, that sufficient grounds exist therefor. A copy of the affidavit must be served with the injunction. (Rev., s. 810; Code, s. 339; C. C. P., s. 190.)

Section Construed Strictly. — This section has received a strict construction and a compliance with the procedural steps is mandatory, and is not subject to waiver by agreement of the parties. Taylor v. Boone, 172 N. C. 93, 89 S. E. 1065.

Requisites—(a) Affidavit. — Where there is a failure to serve a copy of the affidavit with the injunction, and the judge does not allow such service to be thereafter made, the injunction will be dissolved. Taylor v. Boone, 172 N. C. 93, 89 S. E. 1065.

Same—(b) Summons. — An injunction granted before the issuing of the summons in action is premature, since by the express provision of the section an injunction can only be granted at the commencement of the action, (or sometime thereafter). Trexler v. Newsom, 88 N. C. 13, 14; Horne v. Commissioners, 122 N. C. 466, 470, 29 S. E. 581. But if the defendant goes to trial after the summons has been irregularly issued, and answers the plaintiff's complaint, he is held to have waived the irregularity. Heilig v. Stokes, 63 N. C. 612.

§ 848. Not issued for longer than twenty days without notice.—No restraining order, or order to stay proceedings, for a longer time than twenty days shall be granted by a judge out of court, except upon due notice to the adverse party; but the order shall continue and remain in force until vacated after notice, to be fixed by the court, of not less than two nor more than ten days. (Rev., s. 811; Code, s. 346; C. C. P., s. 345; 1905, c. 26.)

See note under § 4065.

Old Procedure Retained. — The Code does not change the mode of setting aside an irregular execution; it must still be done by a motion in the cause, and an injunction, where necessary, must be obtained in like manner. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69, 71.

Effect of Issuance for More than Twenty Days without Notice.—An order to stay proceedings, made, without notice, by a judge out of court for a longer time than twenty days, is irregular and a demurrer to the complaint in the action in which such order was made may be treated as a motion to vacate. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69.

§ 849. Issued after answer, only on notice.—An injunction shall not be allowed after the defendant has answered, except upon notice, or upon an order to show cause; but in such case the defendant may be restrained until the decision of the judge granting or refusing the injunction. (Rev., s. 812; Code, s. 340; C. C. P., s. 191.)

When Special Notice Required.—Special notice of motions for injunctions is only required when made or to be heard out of term; but in such cases, if the opposing party voluntarily appears, in person or by attorney, he will be ordinarily deemed to have waived notice. In cases other than these, the principle that one who has been duly made party to a pending action is bound to take notice of all motions, orders, etc., made during term time, applies with full force and no further notice is required. Hemphill v. Moore, 104 N. C. 378, 10 S. E. 313.

§ 850. Order to show cause. — If the judge deems it proper that the defendant, or any of several defendants, should be heard before granting an injunction, an order may be made requiring cause to be shown, at a specified time and place, why the injunction should not be granted; and the defendant may, in the meantime, be restrained. (Rev., s. 813; Code, s. 342; C. C. P., s. 193.)

Service upon Corporation.—Ordinarily a corporation before the grant of injunction has a right to service of an order to show cause upon some officer or agent, but if the officers or agents keep themselves out of the way for the express purpose of avoiding such a service, it cannot justly complain if the service on its attorney is made the equivalent of that which its agents by their wrongful acts have made impossible. See Eureka Lake, etc., Canal Co. v. Yuba County, 116 U. S. 410, 418, 29 L. Ed. 671.

§ 851. What judges have jurisdiction.—The judges of the superior court have jurisdiction to grant injunctions and issue restraining orders in all civil actions and proceedings. A judge holding a special term in any county may grant an injunction, or issue a restraining order, returnable before himself, in any case which he has jurisdiction to hear and determine under the commission issued to him, and the same is returnable as directed in the order. (Rev., s. 814; Code, s. 335; 1876-7, c. 223, ss. 1, 2; 1879, c. 63, ss. 1, 3.)

Restraining Orders.—The general jurisdiction of restraining orders and injunctions is vested in the judges of the superior courts. Any judge of such court may issue a restraining order in any cause and anywhere in the state. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 590, 17 S. E. 519.

Perpetual Injunction. — A perpetual injunction must be granted only in the county in which the cause is pending. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 590, 17 S. E. 519. See also, Ledbetter v. Pinner, 120 N. C. 455, 456, 27 S. E. 123.

Motions for Receiver.—Motions for the appointment of a receiver may be made before the resident judge of the district, or one assigned to the district or one holding the courts thereof by exchange, at the option of the mover. Corbin v. McGowan, 83 N. C. 28.

Cited in Hopkins v. Swain, 206 N. C. 439, 174 S. E. 409.

§ 852. Before what judge returnable.—All restraining orders and injunctions granted by any of the judges of the superior court, except one holding a special term in any county, shall be made returnable before the resident judge of the district, or the judge assigned to the district, or holding by exchange the courts of the district where the civil action or special proceeding is pending, within twenty days from date of order. If the judge before whom the matter is returned fails, for any reason, to hear the motion and application, or to continue them to some other time and place, any judge resident in, or assigned to hold the courts of, some adjoining district may hear and determine the said motion and application, after giving ten days notice to the parties interested in the application or motion, upon its being satisfactorily shown to him by affidavit or otherwise that the judge before whom the matter was returnable failed to act upon or to continue the same to some other time and place. This removal continues in force the motion and application theretofore granted, till they can be heard and determined by the judge having jurisdiction. (Rev., s. 815; Code, s. 336; 1876, c. 223, s. 2; 1879, c. 63, ss. 2, 3; 1881, c. 51.)

Restraining Order.—A restraining order for a period of twenty days can be made returnable anywhere in the state. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 590, 17 S. E. 519.

Failure of Judge to Hear Motion. — Where the judge to whom the motion is returnable fails to hear it, the judge of the adjoining district can hear it upon ten days notice to the parties. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 590, 17 S. E. 519.

Judge Holding Special Term. — A judge holding a special term cannot make a restraining order returnable before himself where the summons is returnable to a term of court beginning after the special term. Royal v. Thornton, 150 N. C. 293, 63 S. E. 1040.

Perpetual Injunctions. — See section 851.

Receivers. — See note to section 851.

Cited in Ward v. Agrillo, 194 N. C. 321, 323, 139 S. E. 451; Hopkins v. Swain, 206 N. C. 439, 174 S. E. 409.

§ 853. Stipulation as to judge to hear.—By a stipulation in writing, signed by all parties to an application for an injunction order, or their attorneys, to the effect that the matter may be heard before a judge designated in the stipulation, the judge before whom the restraining order is returnable by law, or who is by law the judge to hear the motion for an injunction order, shall, upon receipt of the stipulation forward it and all the papers to the judge designated, whose duty it then is to hear and decide the matter, and return all the papers to the court out of which they issued, the necessary postage or expressage money to be furnished to the judge. (Rev., s. 816; Code, s. 337; 1883, c. 33.)

Stipulation of Parties. — Agreement in writing by all parties concerned as to what judge of the superior court shall hear the motion is allowed under this section. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519; Crabtree v. Scheelky, 119 N. C. 56, 58, 25 S. E. 707.

Same—Duty of Judge Designated. — When the parties have thus stipulated as to what judge shall hear the motion, it is the duty of such judge, if he has before him all the facts, to hear and determine the case, and it is error to continue the injunction. Cooper v. Cooper, 127 N. C. 490, 37 S. E. 492.

Applied in Forester v. North Wilkesboro, 206 N. C. 347, 174 S. E. 112.

§ 854. Undertaking.—Upon granting a restraining order or an order for an injunction, the judge shall require as a condition precedent to the issuing thereof that the clerk shall take from the plaintiff a written undertaking, with sufficient sureties, to be justified before, and approved by, the clerk or judge, in an amount to be fixed by the judge, to the effect that the plaintiff will pay to the party enjoined such damages, not exceeding an amount to be specified, as he sustains by reason of the injunction, if the court finally decides that the plaintiff was not entitled to it. (Rev., s. 817; Code, s. 341; C. C. P., s. 192.)

Editor's Note. — The phrase "such damages as he may sustain by reason of the injunction," included in this section, has been a fruitful source of much litigation. Persons against whom injunctions have been issued and which were later dissolved, have frequently sought shelter under the broad wording of this section and have attempted to prove all imaginable types and forms of "damages." The courts, however, are inclined to construe the section quite strictly and, wherever possible, the general principles on the subject of damages have been applied rather than the loose construction of which the section is capable of being given.

Section Mandatory. — The provision in this section that the plaintiff in injunction give bond is mandatory, the amount fixed by the judge, conclusive of the extent of the liability thereon, the procedure being for the defendant to move to have the amount increased when he so desires, or thinks it necessary for his protection. McAden v. Watkins, 191 N. C. 105, 131 S. E. 375; James v. Withers, 114 N. C. 474, 478, 19 S. E. 367.

Burden of Proof as to Amount. — Before judgment can be given upon an injunction bond, the party alleging that he had been damnified by reason of said injunction must establish the quantum of damages sustained. Hyman v. Devereux, 65 N. C. 590. And this amount does not include the personal expenses in attending the hearing. Midgett v. Vann, 158 N. C. 128, 73 S. E. 801. For full discussion as to attorneys' fees, see Hyman v. Devereux, 65 N. C. 588, 590.

Effect of Failure to Require Bond. — The validity of an injunction is not affected by a failure to require an indemnity bond to accompany it; nor is a party for that reason justified in disobeying the mandate, but if aggrieved, his remedy is in a motion to dissolve. Young v. Rollins, 90 N. C. 125.

Effect of Filing Defective Bond. — Failure to give the required undertaking is merely an irregularity which will be cured by a subsequent execution thereof. McKay v. Chapin, 120 N. C. 159, 26 S. E. 701.

Failure to give the required undertaking under this section is merely an irregularity, which will be cured by the subsequent execution thereof. Standard Bonded Warehouse Co. v. Cooper, 30 Fed. (2d) 842, 845, citing McKay v. Chapin, 120 N. C. 159, 26 S. E. 701.

Where Money Deposited without Sureties. — Where an injunction is issued under an order that the plaintiff shall give an undertaking with sufficient sureties in a certain sum, it seems that a deposit in money of the sum named will be sufficient, but whether so or not the giving by the plaintiff of the required undertaking before the hearing of a motion to vacate the injunction for the want of it, will supply the alleged defect, and prevent the injunction from being vacated on that account. Richards v. Baurman, 65 N. C. 162.

Undertaking Given Prior to Injunction. — Where an undertaking has been given before the issue of a restraining order, it is not necessary for the court, on the return of the order to show cause and upon continuing the injunction to the trial, to require a new undertaking from the plaintiff unless it be shown that the bond already given is insufficient. Preiss v. Cohen, 112 N. C. 278, 17 S. E. 520.

Procedure under Section. — It is not contemplated, under this section. that a separate action shall be brought upon an injunction bond but the damages sustained by reason of an injunction shall be ascertained by proper proceedings in the same action, and may be by reference or otherwise as the judge shall direct. North Carollna Gold, etc., Co. v. North Carolina Ore, etc., Co., 79 N. C. 48. See also, Nansemond Timber Co. v. Rountree, 122 N. C. 45, 29 S. E. 61; Crawford v. Pearson, 116 N. C. 718, 21 S. E. 561.

Cited in Gruber v. Ewbanks, 199 N. C. 335, 338, 154 S. E. 318.

§ 855. Damages on dissolution.—A judgment dissolving an injunction carries with it judgment for damages against the party procuring it and the sureties on his undertaking without the requirement of malice or want of probable cause in procuring the injunction, which damages may be ascertained by a reference or otherwise, as the judge directs, and the decision of the court is conclusive as to the amount of damages upon all the persons who have an interest in the undertaking. (Rev., s. 818; Code, s. 341; 1893, c. 251.)

Want of Probable Cause. — Prior to the amendment of this section by the Acts of 1893 it was an essential element of the defendant's recovery on the plaintiff's indemnity bond that he be able to prove malice or want of probable cause in the institution of the injunction proceedings. Burnett v. Nicholson, 79 N. C. 548. Under the section as it now stands it is no longer necessary to allege want of probable cause. Crawford v. Pearson, 116 N. C. 718, 21 S. E. 561.

Injunction Sought with Malice. — The preceding section, requiring a bond in an injunction to cover the defendant's damages, and this section, providing for the recovery thereof in the same action, do not limit the remedy to that action, in the event the injunction was sought with malice and without probable cause; and defendant has the right therein to elect between this remedy and that by independent action, without limiting his recovery to an action on the bond when the damages sought are in excess of that amount. Shute v. Shute, 180 N. C. 386, 104 S. E. 764.

For procedure under the section, see notes to section 846.

Cited in Gruber v. Ewbanks, 199 N. C. 335, 338, 154 S. E. 318.

§ 856. Issued without notice; application to vacate.—If the injunction is granted without notice, the defendant, at any time before the trial, may apply, upon notice to be fixed by the court of not less than two nor more than ten days, to the judge having jurisdiction, to vacate or modify the same, if he is within the district or in an adjoining district, but if out of the district and not in an adjoining district, then before any judge who is at the time in the district, and if there is no judge in the district, before any judge in an adjoining district. The application may be made upon the complaint and the affidavits on which the injunction was granted, or upon the affidavits on the part of the defendant, with or without answer. If no such application is made, the injunction continues in force until such application is made and determined by the judge, and a verified answer has the effect only of an affidavit. (Rev., s. 819; Code, s. 344; C. C. P., s. 195; 1905, c. 26.)

Section Mandatory. — The requirement of notice to the defendant is essential to the validity of the proceedings, and where an injunction has been granted without such notice the injunction will be vacated. Armstrong v. Kinsell, 164 N. C. 125, 80 S. E. 235.

Modification of Previously Granted Injunction. — A judge may at the instance of the defendant modify an injunction previously granted without giving notice to the plaintiff, but in such case he must found his action merely upon the complaint, and cannot consider the answer or affidavits on the part of the defendant. Sledge v. Blum, 63 N. C. 374, 375.

Answer Treated in Affidavit. — The answer under the present practice, in an application to vacate an injunction, is itself but an affidavit when verified and the plaintiff may introduce other affidavits to support the allegations in his complaint; such a verified answer is not conclusive but has only the effect of an affidavit. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co. v. McElwee, 94 N. C. 429.

After the answer and all the affidavits have been filed, if it appears to the court that the plaintiff's whole equity is denied and his case is fully met, the injunction will not be continued to the final hearing. Rigsbee v. Durham, 98 N. C. 81, 3 S. E. 749. See also, Cooper v. Cooper, 127 N. C. 490, 37 S. E. 492.

However, where it appears from the affidavits that there is probable cause or it can reasonably be seen that the plaintiff will be able to make out his case at the final hearing, then the injunction will be continued. Seip v. Wright, 173 N. C. 14, 91 S. E. 359.

Time within Discretion of Judge. — The time, when the affidavits of defendants should be filed and the granting of continuance in injunction cases, is largely within the discretion of the judge. Tobacco Growers Co-op. Ass'n v. Harvey & Son Co., 189 N. C. 494, 127 S. E. 545.

§ 857. When opposing affidavits admitted.— If the application is made upon affidavits on the part of the defendant, the plaintiff may oppose the same by affidavits or other proof, in addition to those on which the injunction was granted. (Rev., s. 820; Code, s. 345; C. C. P., s. 196.)

Original Affidavits Supported by Counter Affidavits. — When the defendant, in an application for a provisional remedy, meets the plaintiff's allegations by counter affidavits, it is competent for the plaintiff to support his original affidavits by others to the same effect and in reply to those offered by the defendants. Young v. Rollins, 85 N. C. 485.

Defective Affidavit Made Sufficient by Counter Affidavit.— Where the plaintiff's first affidavit is insufficient in form, and objection is made thereto by the defendant, the replying affidavit by the plaintiff will cure the objectional consequence of the defects contained in the original affidavit. Clark v. Clark, 64 N. C. 150.

Sufficiency of Verification. — An affidavit, upon which an application for a provisional remedy is based, is sufficiently verified when made before a commissioner for this state resident in another state and authenticated by his official signature and seal. Young v. Rollins, 85 N. C. 485.

§ 858. To restrain collection of taxes.—No injunction may be granted by any court or judge to restrain the collection of any tax or any part thereof, or to restrain the sale of any property for the nonpayment of any tax, unless such tax or the part thereof enjoined is levied or assessed for an illegal or unauthorized purpose, or the tax assessment is illegal or invalid. (Rev., s. 821; 1901, c. 558, s. 30; 1899, c. 15, s. 78: 1887, c. 137, s. 84.)

Editor's Note. — The primary object of this section is to prevent, as far as possible, any unnecessary delay in the collection of revenue, so essential to the progress and development of the taxing sovereign. The inexpediency of allowing every tax payer to contest the validity (and the subsequent collection) of the tax for any and all trivial reasons can be readily seen. Hence the adoption of this section, the provisions of which set out in detail the circumstances under which the legality of the levy may be tested by injunction, and the circumstances under which the tax payer must pay the tax and then sue for its recovery. A similar section is found in the codes of practically all the states.

The Act of 1887 contained no provision for the granting of an injunction when the tax was illegal. The remedy (suit) provided for the repayment of taxes paid under protest was, by the Constitution, made to apply to illegal and invalid taxes. See Hall v. Fayetteville, 115 N. C. 281, 284, 20 S. E. 373. However, with the Act of 1889, the provision for the restraining of the collection of illegal taxes was included.

Constitutional Provisions. — This section cannot be attacked on the grounds that it is a violation of the "due process" clause of the Constitution. All the tax payer can claim under this clause is the right to be heard before a competent body capable of giving relief to which he may be entitled, and he has the opportunity, when he lists his taxes, to have the amount, if excessive, reduced. Wilmington v. Sprunt, 114 N. C. 310, 19 S. E. 348.

Applicability of the Exceptive Words. — The exception to the limitations in this section applies, not to the levy or illegal levy of the taxes, but to the illegal or unauthorized purpose of the levy. Mace v. Commos, 99 N. C. 65, 5 S. E. 740.

Illegal or Invalid Tax.—Where the tax is illegal or invalid injunctive relief may be sought. Armstrong v. Stedman, 130 N. C. 217, 41 S. E. 278; Range Co. v. Carver, 118 N. C. 328, 331, 24 S. E. 352.

No Injunction When Tax Not Illegal nor Invalid.—Where the tax is not illegal nor invalid, an injunction will not be granted. McDonald v. Teague, 119 N. C. 604, 26 S. E. 158.

The plaintiff's remedy for contesting the validity of the ruling of the State Commissioner of Revenue in erroneously classifying him for the purpose of taxation is by paying the tax under protest and suing to recover it. Where there is no question as to the legality of the tax thus imposed, and where there is no element of an equitable nature involved, the remedy by injunction is unavailable. Ragan v. Doughton, 192 N. C. 500, 135 S. E. 328.

Tax Void in Part.—Where a tax is void in part and valid in part, the whole should be enjoined. Williams v. Commissioners, 119 N. C. 520, 26 S. E. 150. See the dissenting opinion by Clark, J.

Statutory Revival of Collection of Over-due Taxes.—Where the right to collect taxes in arrears is revived by statute which contains no restriction applicable to a particular case arising thereunder, then this section does not apply. Moore v. Sugg, 112 N. C. 233, 234, 17 S. E. 72.

§ 858(a). Restraining orders and injunctions in effect pending appeal; indemnifying bond.— Whenever a plaintiff shall appeal from a judgment rendered at chambers, or in term, either vacating a restraining order theretofore granted, or denying a perpetual injunction in any case where such injunction is the principal relief sought by the plaintiff, and where it shall appear that vacating said restraining order or denying said injunction will enable the defendant to consummate the threatened act, sought to be enjoined, before such appeal can be heard, so that the plaintiff will thereby be deprived of the benefits of any judgment of the supreme court, reversing the judgment of the lower court, then in such case the original restraining order granted in the case shall in the discretion of the trial judge be and remain in full force and effect until said appeal shall be finally disposed of: Provided, the plaintiff shall forthwith execute and deposit with the clerk a written undertaking with sufficient surety, approved by the clerk or judge, in an amount to be fixed by the judge to indemnify the party enjoined against all loss, not exceeding an amount to be specified, which he may suffer on account of continuing such restraining order as aforesaid, in the event that the judgment of the lower court is affirmed by the supreme court. (1921, c. 58.)

Discretion of Court Not Reviewable.—Where an appeal has been taken from a judgment of the Superior Court judge, vacating a restraining order upon the county board of education from transferring a public school from one district to another, a supplementary order providing for the payment of the teachers pending the appeal is within the sound discretion of the trial judge, and not reviewable. Clark v. McQueen, 195 N. C. 714, 143 S. E. 528.

Cited in Boyd v. Brooks, 197 N. C. 644, 647, 150 S. E. 178.

Art. 37. Receivers

§ 859. What judge appoints.—Any judge of the superior court with authority to grant restraining orders and injunctions has like jurisdiction in appointing receivers, and all motions to show cause are returnable as is provided for injunctions. (Rev., s. 846; Code, s. 379; C. C. P., s. 215; 1876-7, c. 223; 1879, c. 63; 1881, c. 51.)

Cross References.—For full treatment of receivers, see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 839-877; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 344-349. As to corporate receivers, see sections 1208-1217. As to compensation of receivers, see annotations under section 1215. As to receiver of ward's estate, see section 2200. As to what judges have jurisdiction to grant restraining orders and injunctions, see section 851. As to receiver in supplemental proceedings, see section 722 et seq.

In General.—The provisions of this sec. and sec. 843, in express terms invest the court with very large and comprehensive powers to protect the rights and prevent the perpetration, or the continuance, of wrong in respect to the subject-matter of the action, and to take charge of and protect the property in controversy both before and after judgment, by injunctions and through receivers, pending the litigation; they facilitate and enlarge the authority of the courts in the exercise of these remedial agencies, and do not in any degree abridge the exercise of like general powers that appertain to courts of equity to grant the relief specified, or to grant perpetual injunctions in proper cases, and the like relief. Roper Lumber Co. v. Wallace, 93 N. C. 22, 27.

Definition.—A receiver is an indifferent person between parties, appointed by the court to receive the rents, issues, or profits of land, or other thing in question, pending the suit, where it does not seem reasonable to the court that either party should do it. See Booth v. Clark, 17 How. 322, 331, 15 L. Ed. 164.

Purpose.—It is perfectly manifest that this section, with a view to prevent the inconvenience of parties, intended to fix the place where, rather than the persons before whom, such orders should be made returnable, and that the judges were denominated in the order in which we find them because it was supposed that one or the other of them would at all times be within the district of the action. Galbreath v. Everett, 84 N. C. 546, 549.

An Inherent Power.—The power to appoint a receiver is necessarily inherent in a court which possesses equitable jurisdiction. Skinner v. Maxwell, 66 N. C. 45, 47.

Discretion of Judge.—The appointment of a receiver is not a matter of positive right, but rests in the sound legal discretion of the judge, who will take into consideration the nature of the property and the effect of granting or refusing such an application upon the material interests of the respective parties to the controversy. Whitehead v. Hale, 118 N. C. 601, 24 S. E. 360.

Same—Necessary Number.—The court should not appoint more receivers than are necessary. Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 36 S. E. 39.

Necessity That Judge "Find the Facts."—Upon an application for an injunction and receiver it is not necessary for the judge to "find the facts" further than to examine the affidavits and determine whether sufficient cause is shown for the ancillary relief. City Nat. Bank v. Bridgers, 114 N. C. 381, 19 S. E. 642, citing Jones v. Boyd, 80 N. C. 258.

Effect on Both Parties Considered.—It is the duty of the court, in passing upon a motion for an injunction or the appointment of a receiver, to consider the consequences of such action upon both parties. Venable v. Smith, 98 N. C. 523, 4 S. E. 514, citing Hanna v. Hanna, 89 N. C. 68. See also, Lewis v. Roper Lumber Co., 99 N. C. 11, 5 S. E. 19, 20.

Order without Prejudice.—Where it appears from verified pleadings that there is a bona fide controversy between the parties, the mortgagor's order temporarily restraining the foreclosure of the mortgage is properly continued to the final hearing, without prejudice to the right of the mortgagees to move for the appointment of a receiver. Bennett v. Mortgage Service Corp., 206 N. C. 902, 173 S. E. 22.

What Judge Appoints.—Ordinarily the motion for a receiver must be made before the resident judge of the district, or one assigned to the district or holding the courts thereof by exchange, at the option of the mover. Corbin v. Berry, 83 N. C. 28; Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 347, 28 S. E. 488.

Or, at most, in analogy to the granting of restraining orders, if the motion for a temporary receiver is granted by any other judge than one of those just named, the order must be made returnable before one of such judges. Galbreath v. Everett, 84 N. C. 546; Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519, Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 347, 28 S. E. 488.

Clerk Cannot Appoint.—The clerk cannot appoint a receiver as that power is reserved to the judge alone. Parks v. Sprinkle, 64 N. C. 637, 639.

Operation and Effect of Appointment.—The utmost effect of his appointment is to put the property from that time into his custody as an officer of the court for the benefit of the party ultimately proved to be entitled but not to change the title, or even the right of possession in the property. Quincy, etc., R. Co. v. Humphreys, 145 U. S. 82, 97, 36 L. Ed. 632, 12 S. Ct. 787.

An Officer of Court.—A rec iver is an officer of the court, and his possession of the property is the possession of the court. He holds it as a custodian until the rightful claimant is ascertained by the court, and then for such claimant. Battle v. Davis, 66 N. C. 252.

Nature of Office.—A receiver derives his authority from the act of the court appointing him, and not from the act of the parties at whose suggestion or by whose consent he is appointed. He is the right arm of the jurisdiction invoked. Union Bank v. Kansas City Bank, 136 U. S. 223, 236, 34 L. Ed. 341, 10 S. Ct. 1013.

Powers and Duties.—A receiver is an officer of the court and subject to its directions and orders. He has no powers except such as are conferred upon him by the order of his appointment and the course and practice of the court. Stuart v. Boulware, 133 U. S. 78, 81, 33 L. Ed. 568, 10 S. Ct. 242.

Title Relates Back.—"The title of the receiver dated back to the time of granting the order, even though preliminary conditions must be performed, and he remains out of possession pending such performance." Beach on Rec. Sec., 200. Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 349, 28 S. E. 488.

Place of Hearing.—The hearing as to a receiver may be held outside of the county where the main action is pending. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 504, 16 S. E. 848.

The interest of the owner is in no wise changed by the appointment of a receiver. The legal title and possession are held by him for the owner and the property is to be administered under the orders of the court. Southern Pants Co. v. Rochester German Ins. Co., 159 N. C. 78, 80, 74 S. E. 812.

Necessary Allegations.—Where the appointment of a receiver is sought as an ancillary remedy the plaintiffs must allege and show that they are entitled to the main relief, and must then show their equity entitling them to the ancillary relief in aid of their main relief. Witz, etc., Co. v. Gray, 116 N. C. 48, 20 S. E. 1019.

Security Omitted.—An order appointing a receiver is not void by reason of an omission of the court to require adequate security. Nesbitt & Bro. v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536.

Matter of Record.—The appointment of receivers is matter of record, and should be shown by the record. Person v. Leary, 126 N. C. 504, 36 S. E. 35.

Conflict of Concurrent Jurisdictions. — The court which first obtains jurisdiction is entitled to retain it without interference, and cannot be deprived of its rights to do so because it may not have first obtained physical possession of the property in dispute. Moran v. Sturges, 154 U. S. 256, 274, 38 L. Ed. 981, 14 S. Ct. 1019.

Priority Where Two Receivers Appointed.—The test of jurisdiction in a case of two receivers being appointed is not the first issuing of the summons, nor the first preparation and verification of the papers, which are the acts of the parties, nor which receiver first took possession, but which court is first "seized of jurisdiction" by making an order upon legal proceedings exhibited before it. Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 348, 28 S. E. 488.

Same—Date Determines. — Priority as between receivers is determined by reference to the date of appointment since the court will not permit both to act. High on Rec. Sec., 162. Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 349, 28 S. E. 488.

Same—Same—Fractions of a Day.—Where proper proceedings for the appointment of a receiver are begun in two different courts and a different receiver is appointed in each case, the court, in determining the priority of appointment as between the receivers, will take notice of fractions of a day. Worth v. Piedmont Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 28 S. E. 488.

Complaint Should Be Verified.—The practice of appointing a receiver upon an unverified complaint and without notice to creditors and other persons interested, is not commended. Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 91, 50 S. E. 592.

Proof of Appointment of Foreign Receivers.—Persons suing as receivers of a foreign court should, on their appointment being denied, prove the same by a certified copy of the decree dissolving the corporation and appointing them. Person v. Leary, 127 N. C. 114, 37 S. E. 149, reversing on rehearing judgment in 126 N. C. 504, 36 S. E. 35.

Cited in Hopkins v. Swain, 206 N. C. 439, 174 S. E. 409.

§ 860. In what cases appointed.—A receiver may be appointed—

1. Before judgment, on the application of either party, when he establishes an apparent right to property which is the subject of the action and in the possession of an adverse party, and the property or its rents and profits are in danger of being lost, or materially injured or impaired; except in cases where judgment upon failure to answer may be had on application to the court.

2. After judgment, to carry the judgment into effect.

3. After judgment, to dispose of the property according to the judgment, or to preserve it during the pendency of an appeal, or when an execution has been returned unsatisfied, and the judgment debtor refuses to apply his property in satisfaction of the judgment.

4. In cases provided in chapter entitled Corporations in the article Receivers; and in like cases, of the property within this state of foreign corporations.

The article Receivers, in the chapter entitled Corporations, is applicable, as near as may be, to receivers appointed hereunder. (Rev., s. 847; Code, c. 379; C. C. P., s. 215; 1876-7, c. 223; 1879, c. 63; 1881, c. 51.)

In General.—This section specifies certain cases in which a receiver may be appointed, but does not materially alter the equitable jurisdiction of our courts upon this subject. Skinner v. Maxwell, 66 N. C. 45, 48.

Where the plaintiff makes it properly to appear to the court that he is in imminent danger of loss by the defendant's insolvency, or that he reasonably apprehends that the defendant's property will be destroyed, removed or otherwise disposed of by the defendant pending the action, or that the defendant is insolvent, and it must be sold to pay his debts, or that he is attempting to defraud the plaintiff, a receiver for his property may be appointed before judgment. Other instances pointed out by Walker, J. Kelly v. McLamb, 182 N. C. 158, 108 S. E. 435.

Before Judgment.—Where a party establishes an apparent right to land, and the person in possession is insolvent, a receiver will be appointed to take charge of the rents and profits during the pendency of the action. McNair v. Pope, 96 N. C. 502, 2 S. E. 54, citing Kerchner v. Fairley, 80 N. C. 24, and cases there cited; Nesbitt & Bro. v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536, and cases cited; Oldham v. Bank, 84 N. C. 304; Horton v. White, 84 N. C. 297; Roper Lumber Co. v. Wallace, 93 N. C. 22.

Where property is the subject of an action and is liable to clear equities in a party out of possession, the court may appoint a receiver when it seems just and necessary to keep the property in dispute from the control of either party until the controversy is determined. Skinner v. Maxwell, 66 N. C. 45, 48.

Discretion of Court. — The appointment of a receiver pendente lite is not a matter of strict right, but rests in the sound discretion of the court. Hanna v. Hanna, 89 N. C. 68, 71.

Power of Court to Impose Conditions. — In appointing a receiver the court has a right, within certain recognized limits, to prescribe the terms and conditions of the appointment. See Bosworth v. St. Louis Terminal R. Ass'n, 174 U. S. 182, 187, 43 L. Ed. 941, 19 S. Ct. 625.

Contracts and Expenditures.—A receiver is not authorized, without previous direction of the court, to incur any expenses on account of property in his hands beyond what is absolutely essential to its preservation, as contemplated by his appointment. See Thompson v. Phenix Ins. Co., 136 U. S. 287, 293, 34 L. Ed. 408, 10 S. Ct. 1019.

Right to Sue.—A receiver is vested with very little discretion, and he must apply to the court for liberty to bring or defend actions. See Booth v. Clark, 17 How. 322, 331, 15 L. Ed. 164.

Exhaustion of Remedy at Law.—An objection that a judgment creditor applying for the appointment of a receiver has not exhausted his remedy at law will be disregarded where not raised in time, or where the procedure at law would have been an idle ceremony, or where the objecting party has consented to or acquiesced in the appointment. See Brown v. Lake Superior Iron Co., 134 U. S. 530, 33 L. Ed. 1021, 10 S. Ct. 604.

Danger of Loss.—Under this section apparent danger of waste or injury to the property, or loss of the rents and profits by reason of the insolvency of the adverse party in possession, is the ground for appointing a receiver thereof. Twitty v. Logan, 80 N. C. 69; Rollins v. Henry, 77 N. C. 467.

Property or funds will not be taken from one entitled to custody thereof, and transferred to a receiver, unless there is imminent danger of loss. Rheinstein v. Bixby, 92 N. C. 307, citing Thompson v. McNair, 62 N. C. 121.

Same—Examples. — Where plaintiff mortgagor obtained an injunction to restrain the sale of the mortgaged premises until certain counterclaims could be passed upon and the sum really due ascertained, the defendant mortgagee is entitled to have a receiver appointed to take charge of the property and secure the rents and profits where the same are in danger of being lost. Oldham v. First Nat. Bank, 84 N. C. 304.

Plaintiff mortgagee was administrator of one of two mortgagors, whose heirs and the other mortgagor were defendants in an action to foreclose a mortgage; the property conveyed was inadequate to pay the debt, and the mortgagor in possession was insolvent; the plaintiff denied an alleged payment of the debt and the existence of assets in his hands applicable thereto: Held, that in such case it was not error in the court on application of the plaintiff to appoint a receiver to secure the rents and profits pending the litigation. Ten Broeck v. Orchard, 74 N. C. 409; Rollins v. Henry, 77 N. C. 467, cited and approved. Kerchner v. Fairley, 80 N. C. 24.

Where lands were devised to two persons, both of whom were appointed executors, charged with the payment of certain debts, and one of the executors, claiming a part of the land under a deed subsequent in date to the execution of the will, had entered thereon and was proceeding to operate it as mining property, and it appeared there was some danger of waste of the property, and the solvency of the vendee-executors was doubtful: Held, to be a proper case for the appointment of a receiver. Stith v. Jones, 101 N. C. 360, 8 S. E. 151.

General Allegations Insufficient. — A receiver will not be appointed pendente lite, on a general allegation that loss will ensue from nonappointment, without a full statement of the facts. Hanna v. Hanna, 89 N. C. 68, citing Hughes v. Person, 63 N. C. 548; Wood v. Harrell, 74 N. C. 338. See also, Southern Flour Co. v. McIver, 109 N. C. 120, 13 S. E. 905.

Insolvency Alone Insufficient. — The mere insolvency of the party in possession of property, where there is no allegation that the defendant intends to run off with or conceal or destroy the property, is not sufficient ground for the appointment of a receiver. Whitehead v. Hale, 118 N. C. 601, 24 S. E. 360.

Property Threatened by Fraud and Insolvency. — Where equity will impress a trust upon property in the hands of one who has obtained it by fraud or covin, and the property or fund is threatened both by his fraud and insolvency, the principles of equity will justify and call for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the property and conserve it pending the litigation. Peoples Nat. Bank v. Waggoner, 185 N. C. 297, 117 S. E. 6.

Same—Question Postponed. — Where an application for a receiver is based on fraud as to creditors in a deed, the question of fraud will not be determined on hearing of the application, but must stand till the final hearing of the case. Rheinstein v. Bixby, 92 N. C. 307, citing Levenson & Co. v. Elson, 88 N. C. 182.

Fraudulent Confession of Judgment. — A receiver may be appointed under this section, in a suit against a debtor and others to restrain an execution sale, where the debtor has confessed judgment apparently with fraudulent intent, and executions have been levied on the only property of the debtor within the state in favor of nonresident creditors who seek to take the property out of the state. Stern & Co. v. Austern, 120 N. C. 107, 27 S. E. 31.

Insolvent Foreign Corporation. — An insolvent corporation, with its property or plant located in this state, is subject to the appointment by our courts of a receiver to take charge of its assets here and administer them as a trust fund for its creditors, though incorporated under the laws of another State, approving Holshouser v. Copper Co., 138 N. C. 248, 50 S. E. 650. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 70 S. E. 820.

Infant's Estate. — On the principle of protection, a receiver may be appointed of an infant's estate if it be not vested in a trustee, for he is incompetent to take charge of it himself. Skinner v. Maxwell, 66 N. C. 45, 48.

To Prevent Suspension of Business. — Where the property and franchise of a city water company were to be sold to satisfy a judgment it was held that in order to prevent all possible risk of the temporary suspension of the business of the water company, it would be proper to appoint a receiver under par. 2 of this section. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, 111 N. C. 615, 625, 16 S. E. 857.

What Property May Be Taken. — Every kind of property of such a nature that, if legal, it might be taken in execution, may, if equitable, be put into the possession of a receiver. See Davis v. Grav, 16 Wall. 203, 217, 21 L. Ed. 447.

Who May Apply for a Receiver. — Upon the insolvency of a railroad company a receiver may be appointed upon the application of the holders of the majority of the stock and of the judgment creditors, other persons interested, being made parties and given an opportunity to be heard upon the merits and upon the adjudication and allowance of claims against the property. See Union Trust Co. v. Illinois Mid. R. Co., 117 U. S. 434, 29 L. Ed. 963, 6 S. Ct. 809.

Upon Application for Injunction. — Under the broad terms of this section the court has power to appoint a receiver, upon an application for an injunction where it appears that this action will best serve the interests of both parties. Hurwitz v. Carolina Sand, etc., Co., 189 N. C. 1, 126 S. E. 171.

Notice to Owner. — Notice to the owner of property should be given before appointment of a receiver therefor. York v. McCall, 160 N. C. 276, 76 S. E. 84.

Effect of Instrument Giving Mortgagee Power of Appointment of Trustee.—The appointment of a receiver is an equitable remedy and the provisions of this and the following section enacted before the giving of a deed of trust upon lands may not be entirely supplanted by a provision in the instrument which gives the mortgagee or trustee the unequivocal right to the appointment of a receiver in the event of the happening of certain conditions so as to prevent our courts sitting in their equity jurisdiction from administering the equities to which the mortgagor is entitled under the facts. Woodall v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 201 N. C. 428, 160 S. E. 475.

Apparently Good Title Sufficient. — Where a party, in this case a defendant, in an action involving the title and possession of land, demands affirmative relief and asks for the appointment of a receiver, it is sufficient if he shows an apparently good title, either not controverted, or not unequivocably denied by his adversary. Lovett v. Slocumb, 109 N. C. 110, 13 S. E. 893.

Where Receivership Would Cause Loss. — A receiver will not be appointed, in an action to foreclose a mortgage on a newspaper, when the defendant denies owing anything on the mortgage debt, and it is apparent that, owing to the peculiar nature of the property, the appointment of a receiver would practically destroy its value. Whitehead v. Hale, 118 N. C. 601, 24 S. E. 360.

§ 861. Appointment refused on bond being given.—In all cases where there is an application for the appointment of a receiver, upon the ground that the property or its rents and profits are in danger of being lost, or materially injured or impaired, or that a corporation defendant is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency, and the subject of the action is the recovery of a money demand, the judge before whom the application is made or pending shall have the discretionary power to refuse the appointment of a receiver if the party against whom such relief is asked, whether a person, partnership or corporation, tenders to the court an undertaking payable to the adverse party in an amount double the sum demanded by the plaintiff, with at least two sufficient and duly justified sureties, conditioned for the payment of such amount as may be recovered in the action, and summary judgment may be taken upon the undertaking. In the progress of the action the court may in its discretion require additional sureties on such undertaking. (Rev., s. 848; 1885, c. 94.)

In General. — Upon application for a receiver it is proper to allow a defendant to continue in possession of property upon giving a sufficient bond to protect the other claimants. Frank v. Robinson, 96 N. C. 28, 1 S. E. 781. See also, Kron v. Smith, 96 N. C. 386, 2 S. E. 463; Godwin v. Watford, 107 N. C. 168, 11 S. E. 1051.

Where there is danger of loss of rents and profits, instead of appointing a receiver the court may allow the defendant to execute a bond to secure the rents and profits and such damages as may be adjudged the plaintiff, and require an account to be kept. Durant v. Crowell, 97 N. C. 367, 2 S. E. 541; Roper Lumber Co. v. Wallace, 93 N. C. 22; Lewis v. Roper Lumber Co., 99 N. C. 11, 5 S. E. 19, 20; Ousby v. Neal, 99 N. C. 146, 5 S. E. 901.

Opportunity to File Bond. — The court erred in directing a receiver to take possession and control of the mines, and machinery for operating the same, without giving the defendant an opportunity to file a bond to secure the payment over to the receiver of any proceeds therefrom, as the court might subsequently direct. Stith v. Jones, 101 N. C. 360, 8 S. E. 151.

Section 495 Does Not Apply. — Section 495, requiring a defendant in ejectment to give bond before putting in a detense to the action, does not abridge the power of the court to appoint a receiver to secure the rents and profits. Kron v. Dennis, 90 N. C. 327; Durant v. Crowell, 97 N. C. 367, 374, 2 S. E. 541; Arey v. Williams, 154 N. C. 610, 70 S. E. 931.

Applied in Woodall v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 201 N. C. 428, 160 S. E. 475.

§ 862. Receiver's bond.—A receiver appointed in an action or special proceeding must, before entering upon his duties, execute and file with the clerk of the court in which the action is pending an undertaking payable to the adverse party with at least two sufficient sureties in a penalty fixed by the judge making the appointment, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as receiver. And the judge having jurisdiction thereof may at any time remove the receiver, or direct him to give a new undertaking, with new sureties, and on the like condition. This section does not apply to a case where special provision is made by law for the security to be given by a receiver, or for increasing the same, or for removing a receiver. (Rev., s. 849; Code, s. 383.)

Cross References. — As to giving bond in surety company, see sections 338 and 339. As to clerk's bond liable when clerk appointed receiver, see annotations under section 2200.

Effect of Failure to Require Bond. — An order appointing a receiver is not void by reason of an omission of the court to require adequate security. Nesbitt & Bro. v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536.

Breach. — Where the receiver's delinquency is manifest, and he fails to comply with the order of the court in respect to the fund, such failure is a breach of the bond, upon which suit may be brought by leave of the court. Bank v. Creditors, 86 N. C. 323.

Same—Must Be Ascertained. — A receiver and his surety can not be sued upon the bond for an alleged breach of his trust, before a default is ascertained—the proper practice being to apply to the court for a rule on the receiver to render his account. Bank v. Creditors, 86 N. C. 323; Atkinson v. Smith, 89 N. C. 72.

Same—Burden of Proof. — The burden is upon a receiver and his sureties to show that he used due diligence in investing the money in his hands. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Judgment. — The court will not, by order in a cause in which a receiver has been appointed, direct a judgment to be entered against him and his sureties. The proper practice is upon a report finding the amount due by the receiver, and upon his failing to pay the same, for the court to grant leave to sue upon the bond. Atkinson v. Smith, 89 N. C. 72.

Action against Sureties. — The liability of sureties on a receiver's bond can only be enforced by independent action against them and not by motion in the cause. Black v. Gentery, 119 N. C. 502, 26 S. E. 43.

Same—Receiver Not a Party. — Where judgment has been recovered against the receiver, he is not a necessary party to an action against the sureties on his bond. Black v. Gentery, 119 N. C. 502, 26 S. E. 43.

§ 862(a). Sale of property in hands of receiver. —The resident judge or the judge assigned to hold any of the courts in any judicial district of North Carolina shall have power and authority to order a sale of any property, real or personal, in the hands of a receiver duly and regularly appointed by the Superior Court of North Carolina upon such terms as appear to be to the best interests of the creditors affected by said receivership. (1931, c. 123, s. 1.)

§ 862(b). Confirmation of sales outside county of action; notice to creditors.—Any sale made by a receiver may be confirmed outside of the county in which said action is pending, either by the resident judge or the judge assigned to hold any of the courts of the district in which said sale is made, upon proof of written notice to each creditor who has filed his claim with said receiver of at least ten days prior to the date of confirmation. The said notice shall specify the time and place when application for confirmation shall be made, and an affidavit of the receiver showing that notice was mailed to each creditor at his last known post office address shall be sufficient proof of notice to said creditors. (1931, c. 123, s. 2; c. 267.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 267, purported to amend this section by inserting the word "by" in the first line of this section, although the published section already contained such word.

§ 862(c). Validation of sales made outside county of action.—All receiver's sales heretofore made where orders were made and confirmation decreed or either outside the county in which said actions were pending by a resident judge or the judge assigned to hold the courts of the district are hereby validated, ratified and confirmed. (1931, c. 123, s. 3.)

Art. 38. Deposit or Delivery of Money or Other Property

§ 863. Ordered paid into court.—When it is admitted by the pleading or examination of a party that he has in his possession or under his control any money or other thing capable of delivery, which, being the subject of the litigation, is held by him as trustee for another party, or which belongs or is due to another party, the judge may order it deposited in court, or delivered to such party with or without security subject to the further direction of the judge (Rev., s. 850; Code, s. 380; C. C. P., s. 215.)

Party Entitled May Retain. — The rule is quite well settled that, unless in case of threatened irreparable damage or loss of the fund, it will be suffered to remain in the hands of the party who in law is entitled to its custody and care. Thompson v. McNair, 62 N. C. 121; Levenson & Co. v. Elson, 88 N. C. 182, 184.

When Court Will Retain. — When a disputed fund is in possession and under the control of the court, and the right of a claimant is doubtful, it will be retained until the determination of the controversy, when it can be ascertained to whom it belongs. Morris v. Willard, 84 N. C. 293, and cases there cited; Ponton v. McAdoo, 71 N. C. 101; Levenson & Co. v. Elson, 88 N. C. 182, 184.

§ 864. Ordered seized by sheriff.—When, in the exercise of his authority, a judge has ordered the deposit, delivery or conveyance of money or other property, and the order is disobeyed, the judge, besides punishing the disobedience as for contempt, may make an order requiring the sheriff to take the money or property, and deposit, deliver, or convey it, in conformity with the direction of the judge. (Rev., s. 851; Code, s. 381; C. C. P., s. 215.)

§ 865. Defendant ordered to satisfy admitted sum.—When the answer of the defendant expressly, or by not denying, admits part of the plaintiff's claim to be just, the judge, on motion, may order the defendant to satisfy that part of the claim, and may enforce the order as it enforces a judgment or provisional remedy. (Rev., s. 852; Code, s. 382; C. C. P., s. 215.)

Claim Not Denied. — Where the complaint in an action on two notes set out each note as a separate cause of action and the defendant answered as to one only, it was error to refuse judgment on the note to which no defense was interposed, and from such refusal, being a denial of a substantial right, an appeal was properly taken. In such case judgment should have been given on the one note and the cause continued as to the other. Curran v. Kerchner, 117 N. C. 264, 23 S. E. 177.

Where in an action on a note the defendants admit liability in a certain part thereof but deny liability for the balance: Held, an order directing that plaintiff recover the amount admitted to be due without prejudice to plaintiff's right to litigate the balance of the note is authorized by this section. Meadows Fert. Co. v. Farmers Trading Co., 203 N. C. 261, 165 S. E. 694.

SUBCHAPTER XIV. ACTIONS IN PARTICULAR CASES

Art. 39. Mandamus

§ 866. Begun by summons and verified complaint.—All applications for writs of mandamus must be made by summons and complaint, which must be duly verified. (Rev., s. 822; Code, s. 622; 1871-2, c. 75.)

I. HISTORICAL.

In England mandamus was a prerogative writ, when no other remedy could be had, with many refinements issuing only at the pleasure of the court. By statute 9 Anne, chap. 20, the remedy was made one of right, and the general rules of pleading and practice were made applicable to mandamus as in other personal actions. At common law the return to a writ of mandamus could not be traversed, and if the matters set forth were sufficient in law, the defendant had judgment to go without day. If the return was false, the remedy of the person aggrieved thereby was an action on the case for making a false return; and if the plaintiff proved the matters of fact false he recovered damages and costs. By 9 Anne, chap. 20 in certain cases all or any of the material facts set forth in the return may be traversed. These sections extend this provision to all cases, and upon a traverse of any of the material facts "the summons, pleading and practice shall be the same as is prescribed for civil actions," and if an issue of fact is raised by the pleadings, it must be decided by a jury. Tucker v. Justices, 46 N. C. 451, 459. Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 241, 26 S. E. 929.

As long ago as Bacon's time it was laid down as a general rule that, where a man is refused to be admitted or wrongfully turned out of any office or franchise that concerns the public on the administration of justice he may be admitted or restored by mandamus. Rhodes v. Love, 153 N. C. 468, 473, 69 S. E. 436.

The writ of mandamus was introduced to prevent disorder from a failure of justice and defect of police. See Labette County Comm'rs. v. Moulton, 112 U. S. 217, 225, 28 L. Ed. 698.

II. NATURE.

Judicial Writ.—The writ of mandamus is a judicial writ, a part of the recognized course of legal proceedings. See Thompson v. Allen County, 115 U. S. 550, 558, 29 L. Ed. 472.

A Writ of Right.—There is no further contention that the writ of mandamus is a high prerogative writ, as it was at common law. It is now a writ of right, to be used as an ordinary process, and every one is entitled to it where it is the appropriate process for asserting the right claimed. Belmont & Co. v. Reilly, 71 N. C. 260. Burton v. Furman, 115 N. C. 166, 168, 20 S. E. 443.

Mandamus is an extraordinary remedy, and the writ will not issue except in cases of necessity, where no other adequate remedy is available; and when an issue of fact is raised by the pleadings the determination of which may conclude the matter, the issuance of the writ should in the meanwhile be denied. Edgerton v. Kirby, 156 N. C. 347, 72 S. E. 365; Duke v. Turner, 204 U. S. 623, 631, 51 L. Ed. 652.

Legal Remedy.—The relief granted by mandamus is affirmative, and the remedy is essentially and exclusively a legal remedy, and is unknown to equity. See Walkley v. Muscatine, 6 Wall, 481, 18 L. Ed. 930; Smith v. Bourbon County, 127 U. S. 105, 111, 32 L. Ed. 73.

Sufficient Evidence.—Before mandamus can be issued to compel the board of commissioners, of a county to levy a tax to pay a judgment against the commissioners, the plaintiff, judgment-creditor, must show affirmatively by the record or other competent evidence that the consideration of the debt, upon which the judgment was obtained, was of such character as to fall under the head of ordinary or necessary county expenses. Bear v. Commissioners, 124 N. C. 204, 210, 32 S. E. 558.

Within Judicial Discretion.—The issuance of the writ is within the judicial and not the arbitrary discretion of the court, and where there is a right with no other adequate remedy, this writ should not be denied, if it is the proper remedy. Edgerton v. Kirby, 156 N. C. 347, 72 S. E. 365.

Resembles a Civil Action.—While mandamus is in the nature of an execution, it is also in the nature of a civil action, with summons, pleadings, and Code practice. Bear v. Commissioners, 124 N. C. 204, 32 S. E. 558.

The motion of the plaintiff in mandamus proceedings, on the pleadings and admissions of the defendant, for a mandamus, is in the nature of a demurrer ore tenus to the answer, involving the admission of the facts set out therein. Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 47 S. E. 737.

III. WHEN MANDAMUS WILL LIE.

A. General Rules.

Mandamus Will Not Control Discretion of Officers.—It may be said, generally, that if a public officer fails to perform his legal duty to the public, mandamus will lie to compel him to do so, if it is a mandatory one, but not to control the exercise of a discretion given to him, for it is the nature of a discretion in certain persons that they are to judge for themselves, and, therefore, no court can require them to decide in a particular way or review their judgment by way of appeal, or by any proceeding in the nature of an appeal, since the judgment of the persons to whom the discretion is confided by law would not then be their own, but that of the court under whose mandate or compulsion they gave it. Attorney-General v. Justices, 27 N. C. 315; Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 47 S. E. 737. Edgerton v. Kirby, 156 N. C. 347, 350, 72 S. E. 365.

In Brown v. Turner, 70 N. C. 93, we find a very clear statement by Mr. Justice Bynum: "Mandamus will lie when the fact required to be done is imposed by law, is merely ministerial, and the relator has a clear right and is without any other adequate remedy." Moses on Mandamus, 68. But it does not lie where judgment and discretion are to be exercised; nor to control the officer in the manner of conducting the general duties of his office. Burton v. Furman, 115 N. C. 166, 169, 20 S. E. 443.

"The rule is, that in all matters requiring the exercise of official judgment, or resting in the sound discretion of the person to whom a duty is confided by law, mandamus will not lie, either to control the exercise of that discretion or to determine upon the decision which shall be finally given. And whenever public officers are vested with power of a discretionary nature as the performance of any official duty, or, in reaching a given result of official action, they are required to exercise any degree of judgment, while it is proper by mandamus to set them in motion and to require their action upon all matters officially entrusted to their judgment and discretion, the courts will in no manner interfere with the exercise of their discretion nor attempt by mandamus to control or dictate the judgment to be given." High on Ex. Rem., p. 50 Sec. 42, et seq; Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 37, 47 S. E. 737.

In Tapping on Mandamus (Ed. 1853), at star pages 14 and 41, it is stated generally that mandamus will not lie to command the exercise of a discretionary or voluntary act or right, of what kind soever; so neither does it lie to influence nor control the exercise of such a discretionary act, power or right. It must, however, be clearly understood that, although there may be a discretionary power, yet if it be exercised wrongfully or with manifest injustice, the court is not precluded from commanding its due exercise. So, when one is to act according to his discretion, and he will not act nor consider the matter, the court will by mandamus command him to put himself in motion to do it, that is, to hear and determine or to inquire, so that he may exercise a considerate discretion. Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 36, 47 S. E. 737.

An Effectual Remedy.—Mandamus by the statute of Anne, chap. 20, is an effectual remedy; First, for refusal of admission where a person is entitled to an office; and Secondly, for a wrongful removal where a person is legally possessed. 3 Bl. Com. 264. Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 243, 26 S. E. 929.

To Compel the Performance of a Duty. — In Person v. Doughton, 186 N. C. 723, Justice Stacy says: "Mandamus lies only to compel a party to do that which it is his duty to do without it. It confers no new authority. The party seeking the writ must have a clear legal right to demand it, and the party to be coerced must be under a legal obligation to perform the act sought to be enforced." Lenior County v. Taylor, 190 N. C. 336, 342, 130 S. E. 25.

The purpose of this writ of mandamus is to require some superior court, officer, corporation or person to do some particular thing which appertains to their office or duty, and it will not be granted where the law affords to the party aggrieved another and complete specific remedy. Burton v. Furman, 115 N. C. 166, 168, 20 S. E. 443.

It is a proceeding to compel a defendant to perform a duty which is owing to the plaintiff, and can be maintained only on the ground that the relator has a present, clear, legal right to the thing claimed, and that it is the duty of the defendants to render it to him. Brown v. Turner, 70 N. C. 98; Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 243, 26 S. E. 929.

The writ of mandamus is a remedy to compel the performance of a duty required by law, where the one seeking relief has no other legal remedy, and the duty sought is clear and indisputable. See Bayard v. White, 127 U. S. 246, 250, 32 L. Ed. 116.

When Office Is Vacant.—When an office is vacant by reason of a motion, the remedy is mandamus. Doyle v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 133. Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 242, 26 S. E. 929.

Who Can Exercise.—A mandamus lies only for one who has a specific legal right, and who is without any other adequate legal remedy. 1 Chitty v. Gen. Pr., 790; State v. Justices, 24 N. C. 430. Edgerton v. Kirby, 156 N. C. 347, 351, 72 S. E. 365; Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 47 S. E. 737 Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 244, 26 S. E. 929; Tucker v. Justices, 46 N. C. 451.

B. Illustrations of Mandamus as Proper Remedy.

For further cases when mandamus is the proper remedy, see annotations under section 870.

When Treasurer Refuses to Pay as Lawfully Ordered. — Upon refusal of a county treasurer to pay from the public funds of a county an order made on him by a board of audit and finance for the payment of moneys authorized and prescribed by a legislative enactment, a mandamus will lie. Southern Audit Co. v. McKensie, 147 N. C. 461, 61 S. E. 283. See Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 180, 47 S. E. 397.

Same—Knowledge as to Validity.—It is not within the power of a county treasurer to refuse to pay moneys upon a proper order when he has funds sufficient and applicable, and his knowledge as to whether they were due to the one to whom payment was ordered is immaterial in proceedings for a mandamus to compel him to pay. Southern Audit Co. v. McKensie, 147 N. C. 461, 61 S. E. 283; Martin v. Clark, 135 N. C. 178, 47 S. E. 397.

To Compel Deposit of Public Funds.—A public officer may be compelled by mandamus to deposit public funds in his hands in the proper depository. Bearden v. Fullam, 129 N. C. 477, 40 S. E. 204.

To Compel Ex-Sheriff to Give up County Property. — A mandamus at the suit of the county commissioners will lie to compel a sheriff wrongfully holding over from a preceding term to turn over the county property pertaining to his office to his successor, lawfully appointed, qualified and inducted therein. Lenior County v. Taylor, 190 N. C. 336, 130 S. E. 25.

Commissioners Locating County Site.—Where discretion has been given to commissioners in selecting and locating a site for the seat of justice for a county, and it was sought by mandamus to compel them to change the location already made, the court, said: "If the defendants had neglected or refused to execute the power entrusted to them, we certainly might call upon them to show cause why they had been so negligent, and upon insufficient return might have issued a peremptory mandamus. Here all we would do would be to command them to select the site for the permanent seat of justice for the county according to law, which under their oaths, they say they have done." Hill v. Bonner, 44 N. C. 257; Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 38, 47 S. E. 737. See also Young v. Jeffreys, 20 N. C. at p. 357; State v. Moore, 46 N. S. at p. 276, 279; Taylor v. Comm'rs, 55 N. C. at p. 141, 145; 64 Am. Dec., 566; Raleigh & A. R. Co., v. Jenkins, 68 N. C. 502, 504; County Board v. State Board, 106 N. C. 81, 10 S. E. 1002.

C. Illustrations of Mandamus as Improper Remedy.

Granting Liquor License.—Since the justices have a discretion, under circumstances, to refuse a liquor license to the relator, although he be a fit person, he cannot have mandamus. For it is the nature of a discretion in certain persons that they are to judge for themselves, and therefore no power can require them to decide in a particular way, or review their decision by way of appeal, or by any proceeding in the nature of an appeal, since the judgment of the justices would not then be their own, but that of the court under whose mandate they gave it. Barnes v. Commissioners, 135 N. C. 27, 34, 47 S. E. 737.

Certificate by Board of Examiners.—The courts cannot by a mandamus compel the board of dental examiners to certify contrary to what they have declared to be the truth. Had the board refused to examine the applicant, upon his compliance with the regulations, the court could by mandamus compel them to examine him, but not to issue him a certificate, when the preliminary qualification required by law, that the applicant shall be found proficient and competent by examining board, is lacking. Burton v. Furman, 115 N. C. 166, 20 S. E. 443; Loughran v. Hickory, 129 N. C. 281, 40 S. E. 46; Ewbank v. Turner, 134 N. C. 77, 83, 46 S. E. 508.

Judgments upon School Order.—Judgments rendered upon school orders against the county commissioners will not be enforced by mandamus, when not for necessary expenses within the purview of Art. VII, section 7 of the Constitution. Bear v. Commissioners, 124 N. C. 204, 32 S. E. 558.

Determination of Title to Office.—In Dillon's work on Municipal Corporations, Vol. 2, at sec. 892, it is stated in substance that generally in this country, by adoption from the English law, where one is in the actual possession of an office under a claim by election or commission, and is performing the duties of the office, mandamus is not the proper proceeding in which to try the validity of such election or commission to admit another, but that quo warranto is the remedy. Lyon v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 250, 26 S. E. 929.

High, in his Extraordinary Legal Remedies, after discussing mandamus, concludes under this head, sec. 70: "When the writ is sought to compel the restoration of one claiming the right to an office, it is not sufficient for him to show that he is the officer de facto, but it is also incumbent upon him to show a clear legal right, and, failing in this, he is not entitled to the peremptory writ." I Chit. Gen. Pr., 791; Worthy v. Barrett, 63 N. C. 199. Lyon v. Board of Commissioners, 120 N. C. 237, 243, 26 S. E. 929.

As a Writ of Error.—Mandamus cannot be used as a writ of error to revise and reverse erroneous judgments of a subordinate tribunal (in that case a board of health), and the court "will not and cannot look into the evidence of fact upon which the judgment of the board was based for the purpose of determining whether the conclusions drawn from it were correctly or incorrectly formed," quoting from Kirchegessner v. Board of Health, 53 N. J. Law, 594. Ewbank v. Turner, 134 N. C. 77, 85, 46 S. E. 508.

Compelling Treasurer to Pay Warrants.—Where it is the duty of the county treasurer "to pay all warrants legally drawn on the treasurer by the auditor, and no moneys shall be paid out of the treasury except on the warrant of the auditor," no mandamus will lie to compel the treasurer to pay except upon his refusal to honor a warrant. Burton v. Furman, 115 N. C. 166, 171, 20 S. E. 443.

§ 867. For money demand.—In application for a writ of mandamus when the plaintiff seeks to enforce a money demand, the summons, pleadings and practice are the same as prescribed for civil actions: "Provided that in all applications seeking a writ of mandamus to enforce a money demand on actions ex contractu against any county, city, town or taxing district within the state, the applicant shall allege and show in the complaint that the claim or debt has been reduced to a final judgment establishing what part of said judgment, if any, remains unpaid, what resources, if any, are available for the satisfaction of the judgment, including the actual value of all property sought to be subjected to additional taxation and the necessity for the issuing of such writ. (Rev., s. 823; Code, s. 623; 1871-2, c. 75, s. 2; 1933, c. 349.)

Editor's Note.—The catchline of this section as it appeared in the Consolidated Statutes read: "For money demand returnable at term;" since the amendment of section 476 in 1919 and again in 1927 it is believed that this catchline no longer states the law. See section 476 and the notes thereto.

By Public Laws 1933, c. 349, the proviso, relating to mandamus against local units to enforce collection of judgments, was added.

Purpose in Action for Money Demand.—There is now in this state, Art. IV, sec. 1, Const., but one form of action, and the writ of mandamus is but a process of the court in that action, the purpose of the writ is, in actions for money demands, to give the plaintiff a more speedy and effectual recovery of his debt than could be had in the ordinary way. Belmont & Co. v. Reilly, 71 N. C. 260, 262.

Return of Summons.—It is clear from the positive language of the statute that if the action is for a money demand the summons must be made returnable to the superior court in term time only; there is no room for construction. Belmont v. Reilly, 71 N. C. 260, 261; Rogers v. Jenkins, 98 N. C. 129, 131, 3 S. E. 821; Howerton v. Tate, 66 N. C. 231. These cases were decided prior to the amendments to section 476. See Editor's note above.

Examples of a Money Demand.—An application by a holder of North Carolina bonds for a mandamus to be directed to the auditor of the state, commanding him to cause to be levied certain special taxes to pay the accrued interest on the said bonds, is an application "to enforce a money demand," and as such a judge at chambers has no jurisdiction thereof. Belmont & Co. v. Reilly, 71 N. C. 260.

When the treasurer of a town school committee seeks a writ of mandamus to compel the treasurer of the county to pay certain money which is alleged to be due by provisions of law, such action is to "enforce a money demand" and this section applies. Rogers v. Jenkins, 98 N. C. 129, 3 S. E. 821.

But an action to compel a city to pay over certain fines and penalties to the county board of education was held not an action to enforce a money demand, but an action to compel a public officer to deposit public funds in the proper place. Bearden v. Fullam, 129 N. C. 477, 40 S. E. 304.

An action to enforce the turning over of public funds by the ex-treasurer of the county to the present financial agents regularly appointed, and who have qualified to act in that capacity according to the terms of valid statutes directly applicable, §§ 1400, 3205, 3206, 4385, is not in strictness "a money demand," under this section, but comes under section 868. Tyrrell County v. Holloway, 182 N. C. 64, 108 S. E. 337.

§ 868. For other relief returnable in vacation; issues of fact.—When the plaintiff seeks relief other than the enforcement of a money demand, the summons must be made returnable before a judge of the superior court at chambers, or in term at a day specified in the summons, not less than ten days after the service of the summons and complaint upon the defendant; at which time the court, except for good cause shown, shall hear and determine the action, both as to law and fact. However, when an issue of fact is raised by the pleading, it is the duty of the court, upon the motion of either party, to continue the action until the issue of fact can be decided by a jury at the next regular term of the court. (Rev., s. 824; Code, s. 623; 1871-2, c. 75, s. 3.)

As to service of summons generally, see section 476, and notes thereto.

Demand and Refusal Necessary.—A proceeding in mandamus may be made returnable before the judge at chambers, but it cannot be sustained without demand and refusal, or what is equivalent to a refusal. Alexander v. Commissioners, 67 N. C. 330. Horne v. Commissioners, 122 N. C. 466, 471, 29 S. E. 581.

Necessity for Motion for Jury Trial.—Where neither party move for a trial jury of an issue of fact raised by the pleadings under this section, the issue may be determined by the court. Cannon v. Wiscasset Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 126, 141 S. E. 344.

Payment of Dividends—Remand for Proper Procedure.—When proceedings in mandamus have been instituted by stockholders of a private corporation to compel the distribution of a surplus ascertained in accordance with the provisions of § 1178, before the judge holding the terms of court of the district, and the judge has issued a mandamus to compel the payment of the dividends without evidence of the actual cash value of the assets or taking into his consideration a proper deduction for the depreciation of the plant, the case will be remanded to him to be proceeded with according to law. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 141 S. E. 344.

When There Are Issues of Fact.—If a case is before the judge at chambers, and there are issues of fact appearing upon the pleadings, the cause should not be dismissed, but should be transferred to term for trial before a jury, just as the clerk might so transfer it. For, it would be strange to dismiss an action already in the superior court because before the clerk or the judge at chambers, and tell the plaintiff to come back into the same court at term before the same judge, and the same clerk, by service of another summons upon the same parties. Ewbank v. Turner, 134 N. C. 77, 80, 46 S. E. 508.

Where Only Evidentiary Matters Raised.—When the answer and affidavits of a railroad company in mandamus proceedings by a city to enforce its ordinance requiring the railroad to change from a grade crossing with its street to an underpass, raises only evidentiary matters on the controlling issues, or as to the extent of the dangerous conditions requiring the change, no issues are raised requiring the intervention of the jury, and the judge before whom the proceedings are returnable will determine the matter. Durham v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 240, 117 S. E. 17.

Art. 40. Quo Warranto

§ 869. Writs of sci. fa. and quo warranto abolished.—The writs of scire facias and of quo warranto, and proceedings by information in the nature of quo warranto, are abolished; and the remedies obtainable in those forms may be obtained by civil actions under this article. (Rev., s. 826; Code, s. 603; C. C. P., s. 362; R. C., c. 26, ss. 5, 25.)

Cross References.—For a general treatment of scire facias, see 11 N. C. Enc. Dig. 148-152. For general treatment of quo warranto, see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 645-654; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 286-288.

Quo Warranto—In General.—Although the proceeding by information in the nature of the writ of quo warranto has been abolished, the remedy to be pursued whenever the controversy is as to the validity of an election or the right to hold a public office, is by an action in the nature of a writ of quo warranto. It is not merely an action to redress the grievance of a private person who claims a right to the office, but the public has an interest in the question which the Legislature seems to have considered paramount to that of the private rights of the persons aggrieved: Hence, the requirement that such actions must be brought by the Attorney-General in the name of the people of the state, and upon his own information without the relation of a private person when the person aggrieved does not see proper to assert his right; and when the claimant does seek redress, he must be joined in the action, but still it must be brought by the Attorney-General in the name of the people. Such is the construction which has been given to these sections of the Code by numerous decisions of this court. Patterson v. Hubbs, 65 N. C. 119; Hargrove v. Hunt, 73 N. C. 24; People v. Hilliard, 72 N. C. 169; People v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429; Brown v. Turner, 70 N. C. 93. Saunders v. Gatling, 81 N. C. 298, 301.

Same—Historical.—Questions as to the title and possession of offices at common law were determined by the writ of quo warranto, which was the appropriate remedy in such cases. It was originally a high prerogative writ issued out of chancery, and was used by the Crown of Great Brtain unjustly and oppressively upon its subjects, until it was modified and stripped of many of its harsher features by what were called the statutes quo warranto; and then, after the justices in eyre were displaced by the judges of the superior courts, it fell into disuse, and the information in nature of a writ of quo warranto obtained in its stead. Ex Parte Daughtry, 28 N. C. 155; State v. Hardie, 23 N. C. 42. Saunders v. Gatling, 81 N. C. 298, 300.

The writ of quo warranto was a common-law writ in the nature of a writ of right by the King against one who usurped or claimed franchises or liberties, to inquire by what right he claimed them, and the first process was summons. See Ames v. Kansas, 111 U. S. 449, 461, 28 L. Ed. 482.

The original common-law writ of quo warranto was a civil writ, at the suit of the crown, and not a criminal prosecution. Id.

Same—Action Still Called Quo Warranto.—Though for convenience the action of quo warranto is still spoken of, it must be remembered that the action has been specifically abolished, and we have in fact only a civil action in which the subject matter is a trial of the title to an office. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 561, 31 S. E. 822.

In this country the proceeding is conducted in the name of the state or of the people, according to the local form in indictments, and a departure from this form is a substantial and fatal defect. Territory v. Lockwood, 3 Wall. 236, 238, 18 L. Ed. 47.

The right of private relators to bring such actions was not restricted in England by requiring leave of the Crown officer until Statute 9 Anne, Chapter 20; ibid., Section 608. State v. Hall, 111 N. C. 369, 371, 16 S. E. 420.

Scire Facias—In General.—Writs of scire facias consisted of two classes; the object of the first class was to remedy defects in or to continue an action; that of the second class to commence some proceeding. McDowell v. Asbury, 66 N. C. 444.

Proceedings in the nature of a sci. fa. of the first class are almost indispensable in the administration of justice, and the object of this section was merely to abolish the name and form of writs of this class and simplify the process into a notice or summons to show cause why further proceedings should not be had to provide further relief in matters where parties had had a day in court, etc., and not to effect the substance of the remedy. McDowell v. Asbury, 66 N. C. 444.

On such motion the judge may allow the defendant to make any defense which he could have availed himself of under the old scire facias proceeding. Id.

Same—Continuation of Former Suit.—A scire facias on a judgment is not a new action, but is only issued as a continuation of the former suit. Binford v. Alston, 15 N. C. 351. McDowell v. Asbury, 66 N. C. 444, 447.

Cited in Bouldin v. Davis, 197 N. C. 731, 150 S. E. 507.

§ 870. Action by attorney-general.—An action may be brought by the attorney-general in the name of the state, upon his own information or upon the complaint of a private party, against the parties offending, in the following cases:

1. When a person usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises any public office, civil or military, or any franchise within this state, or any office in a corporation created by the authority of this state; or,

2. When a public officer, civil or military, has done or suffered an act which, by law, makes a forfeiture of his office.

3. When any person, natural or corporate, has or claims to have or hold any rights or franchises by reason of a grant or otherwise, in violation of the provisions of the section of article one of the chapter entitled State Lands which declares entries and grants not authorized by that chapter to be void and not to constitute color of title (Rev., s. 827; Code, s. 607; C. C. P., s. 366; 1911, cc. 195, 201.)

Cross References.—As to actions in the nature of quo warranto against corporations, by the attorney general, see section 1187. As to actions by attorney general in the name of the state to vacate land grants, see section 7596. For additional cases dealing with contested elections, see 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 97-102; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 833. For cases on office holding, see 9 N. C. Enc. Dig. 774-799; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 132-139. As to discussion of doctrine of Hoke v. Henderson as overruled by Mial v. Ellington, see Editor's Note under section 3200.

In General.—This and the subsequent sections provide for the fullest relief to the rightful claimant, against an unlawful intrusion, and thereby dispenses with the need of recourse to another process, unless those required to induct, still refuse to do so, after the motion of the intruder by the judgment of the court; and then they may be compelled to proceed in the discharge of their duties. As the statutory remedy is ample, so where it can be had and made effectual, it is the only mode of deciding the conflicting claims to office by an adjudication between the contesting parties. Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 125, 130.

In Dillon on Municipal Corporations sec. 680 it is stated that "The adjudged cases in this country agree that quo warranto, or an information or proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto, is the appropriate remedy, when not changed by charter or statute, for an usurpation of a municipal franchise, as well as for unauthorized usurpations and intrusions into municipal offices"; and the author proceeds: "If another is commissioned and in actual discharge of the duties of the office, an adverse claimant to the office is not entitled to a mandamus, but must resort to quo warranto." The wrongful occupant must, however, have entered under color of authority and not be a mere usurper, in the restricted sense of that term, to put the rightful claimant to the necessity of a resort to this remedy. Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 125, 129.

Who Can Be Complainant.—Actions of this character may be instituted in the name of the state on the relation of the Attorney-General or of any individual who is a citizen and taxpayer of the jurisdiction where the officer is to exercise his duties and powers. State v. Taylor, 122 N. C. 141, 29 S. E. 101; State v. Vann, 118 N. C. 3, 23 S. E. 932; State v. Hall, 111 N. C. 369, 371, 16 S. E. 420; Saunders v. Gatling, 81 N. C. 298. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 135, 73 S. E. 791.

Relator Need Not Allege Title.—In a quo warranto brought by a citizen, qualified voter and taxpayer of a municipal corporation, upon leave of the Attorney-General, to try the title of an officer, the chief of police of said corporation, it is not necessary to allege that the relator is entitled to the office or has any interest therein. State v. Hall, 111 N. C. 369, 16 S. E. 420.

But the action is none the less personal as to the parties claiming the office, the issue between them being the right to the same. Rhodes v. Love, 153 N. C. 468, 470, 69 S. E. 436; Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 125, 129.

Interpleader by Judgment Creditor.—Under sections 456 and 460, a court has power to allow a judgment creditor of a corporation to interplead to an action in the nature of a quo warranto brought by the Attorney-General to annul and vacate the charter of the corporation. State v. Simonton, 78 N. C. 57.

Determining Title to Public Office.—Quo Warranto is the remedy in England and this country by which the title to an office can be established by judicial determination. It is the only appropriate and efficacious remedy, sanctioned by an overwhelming current of authority both in this state and in England. High on Ex. Leg. Rem., Secs. 49, 53 and 77; Ex Parte Daughtry, 28 N. C. 155; State v. Hardie, 23 N. C. 42. Saunders v. Gatling, 81 N. C. 298, 300.

Same—Holding Two Offices.—A citizen and tax-payer of a county is entitled to bring an action in the nature of quo warranto to try the right of a person to hold two offices in such county at the same time. State v. Thompson, 122 N. C. 493, 29 S. E. 720; State v. Vann, 118 N. C. 3, 23 S. E. 932; State v. Hall, 111 N. C. 369, 16 S. E. 420.

Same—Allegation of Illegality.—Usually in such actions there is an allegation that the defendant has usurped and is illegally exercising the duties of the office, but section 876 does not require such averment. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 561, 31 S. E. 822.

Same—Mandamus and Injunction Improper—It is not permissible to try the title to an office by injunction, nor by mandamus—a civil action in the nature of quo warranto, is the appropriate remedy, to be tried before a judge and jury. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 548, 31 S. E. 822; Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 125, 131; Lyon v. Board, 120 N. C. 237, 242, 26 S. E. 929.

In High on Extraordinary Remedies, it is said that "In cases where relief has been sought to determine disputed questions of title to and possession of public offices, the courts have almost uniformly refused to lend their aid by mandamus, since the remedy by information in the nature of a quo warranto is justly regarded as the most appropriate and efficacious remedy for testing the title to the office." Lyon v. Board, 120 N. C. 237, 249, 26 S. E. 929.

The title to a public office in dispute between two rival claimants must be determined by an action in the nature of quo warranto, especially when the defendant is in possession of the office under a claim of right in him to hold it and exercise its function or perform its duties; and a mandamus to compel the surrender of the books and papers will not lie until the claimant has established the disputed title. Rogers v. Powell, 174 N. C. 388, 389, 93 S. E. 917, Burke v. Commissioners, 148 N. C. 46, 61 S. E. 609.

Same—Examples.—Where the board of county canvassers illegally determined that one who had been elected to the office of register of deeds was not so elected, and that his opponent had been, but the latter failed to qualify and enter upon the duties of the office, whereupon the board of county commissioners declared the office vacant and appointed a third party: Held, that this could not in any wise affect the right of the duly elected officer to have the action of the board of canvassers revised by the courts in an action under this section. State v. Calvert, 98 N. C. 580, 4 S. E. 127.

An action against a judge of probate to vacate his office is properly brought by the attorney general under this section. Patterson v. Hubbs, 65 N. C. 119; People v. Heaton, 77 N. C. 18.

Contested Seat in General Assembly.—The Constitution of our state withdraws from the consideration of our courts the question of title involved in a contest for a seat in the General Assembly, and an action in quo warranto will not lie under this section. State v. Pharr, 179 N. C. 699, 103 S. E. 8.

What Is a Public Officer.—An officer, such as properly to come within the legitimate scope of a quo warranto information, may be defined, says a recent author, "as a public position to which a portion of the sovereignty of the county, either legislative, executive or judicial, attaches for the time being, and which is exercised for the benefit of the public." High Ex Leg. Rem, sec. 620. Elson v. Coleman, 86 N. C. 236, 239.

It is manifest, that the act has reference to such usurping occupants as are exercising public functions or conferred franchises, wrongfully, an is confined to an office which, as is said in Nichols v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429, "is a part of the government and part of the state policy," and to an officer "who takes part in the government." Eliason v. Coleman, 86 N. C. 236, 239.

The true test of a public office is, that it is parcel of the administration of government, civil or military, or is itself created directly by the law-making power; and an information in the nature of a quo warranto only will lie to recover the same. Eliason v. Coleman, 86 N. C. 236.

Same—Examples.—It has often been a matter of controversy what shall be said to be a public office. It has, however, long since been decided that a town clerk, recorder, and clerk of the peace, a constable, and even a sexton, a parish clerk, and clerk of the city works, were officers of such a public character as to come within the rule. Rhodes v. Love, 153 N. C. 468, 473, 69 S. E. 436.

The office of chief of police is such an office that an action in the nature of a quo warranto may be brought to try the title to it. State v. Hall, 111 N. C. 369, 16 S. E. 420.

It is held in Eliason v. Coleman, 86 N. C. 236, that this section did not authorize a quo warranto as to the office of chief engineer in a quasi private corporation, namely, the Western North Carolina R. R. Co. State v. Hall, 111 N. C. 369, 372, 16 S. E. 420.

The selling of liquor is not an office so that the defendant's right to it shall be tested by an action in the nature of a quo warranto under this section. Hargett v. Bell, 134 N. C. 394, 396, 46 S. E. 749.

To Determine Validity of Election.—A civil action in the nature of a writ of quo warranto is the appropriate remedy to test the validity of an election of the right to a public office. Such action must be brought in the name of the people of the state by the attorney-general on the relation of the party aggrieved. Saunders v. Gatling, 81 N. C. 298; Davis v. Moss, 81 N. C. 303.

Same—Tabulation Prima Facie Correct.—A tabulation of the result of an election by the clerk, in the manner required by law is prima facie correct, and can only be questioned in an action in the nature of a quo warranto proceeding. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 548, 31 S. E. 822, citing Swain v. McRae, 80 N. C. 111; Gatling v. Boone, 98 N. C. 573, 3 S. E. 392.

Same—Proper Certificate Ordinarily Conclusive.—"The certificate of election of an officer, or his commission coming from the proper source, is prima facie evidence in favor of the holder, and in every proceeding except a direct one to try the title of such holder it is conclusive; but in quo warranto the court will go behind the certificate or commission, and inquire into the validity of the election or appointment and decide the legal rights of the parties upon full investigation of the facts." Dillon's Work on Municipal Corporations, Vol. 2, at sec. 892. Lyon v. Board, 120 N. C. 237, 250, 26 S. E. 929.

Same—Ballot Boxes Brought into Courts.—In Broughton v. Young, 19 N. C. 915, 27 S. E. 277, it was held that the preservation of the ballots is required that they may be kept as evidence to certify or correct the election returns when impeached, and that on a quo warranto the ballot boxes might be brought into court and the recount made in the presence of the court and jury. Cozart v. Fleming, 123 N. C. 547, 557, 31 S. E. 822.

The facts found by the referee as to the result of an election in proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto, and approved by the trial judge, are not subject to review on appeal when supported by competent evidence. State v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 695, 110 S. E. 593.

The question of fraud in the returns of the county board of canvassers as to those voting in an election, in proceedings in the nature of a quo warranto, to determine the rights of contestants for a public office, is eliminated on appeal, when the report of the referee, approved by the trial judge, finds the absence of fraud, upon competent evidence. State v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 695, 110 S. E. 593.

Applied in State v. Holmes, 207 N. C. 293, 176 S. E. 746.
Cited in Bouldin v. Davis, 197 N. C. 731, 150 S. E. 507.

§ 871. Action by private person with leave.—When application is made to the attorney-general by a private relator to bring such an action, he shall grant leave that it may be brought in the name of the state, upon the relation of such applicant, upon the applicant tendering to the attorney-general satisfactory security to indemnify the state against all costs and expenses which may accrue in consequence of the action. (Rev., s. 828; Code, s. 608; 1874-5, c. 76; 1881, c. 330.)

As to mandatory dissolution of a corporation at the instance of private persons, see section 1185.

Section Constitutional.—This section allowing the prosecution of an action in the name of the state to assert the right of a citizen to a public office is not, for that reason, unconstitutional. McCall v. Webb, 135 N. C. 356, 47 S. E. 802.

Security Must Be Given.—The section clearly provides that before an action may be instituted or maintained on the relation of a private citizen, such leave shall be obtained and that satisfactory security must be furnished, indemnifying the State against all costs and expenses which may accrue in consequence of bringing the action. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 135, 73 S. E. 791.

Interest of Public Is Paramount.—In proceedings under this and § 869 to try title to a public office the interest of the public is involved and is paramount to the rights of the relator, and the consent of the attorney-general, the filing of the bond, etc., as required by this section, is a prerequisite to the right of the relator to maintain the action. Cooper v. Crisco, 201 N. C. 739, 740, 161 S. E. 310.

Permission Essential.—The right to proceed by an action in the nature of a quo warranto information is not guaranteed to every citizen, and can only be prosecuted by leave of the Attorney-General. Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. C. 125, 132.

Same—Second Suit after Voluntary Nonsuit.—Common-law procedure by quo warranto, and proceedings by information in the nature thereof have been abolished by § 869 and the remedy in such matters is under the provisions of this section and where the relator has complied with these conditions and takes a voluntary nonsuit and within a year brings another action upon the same subject-matter against the same respondent, but fails to obtain permission to bring the second action or to file bond therefor until the day before judgment is signed, his delay is fatal and the action is properly dismissed, it being necessary that the provisions of the section be again complied with before the bringing of the second action. Cooper v. Crisco, 201 N. C. 739, 161 S. E. 310.

Same—Effect of Section 873.—This view that leave is essential is strengthened by the subsequent section, 873, which provided that even after leave is given and action commenced, the same may, under certain conditions be withdrawn and, on certificate to that effect being properly filed, the judge shall, on motion, dismiss the action. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 135, 73 S. E. 791.

May Be Given After Commencement of Suit.—The court has held in State v. Withers, 121 N. C. 376, 28 S. E. 522, that it is not absolutely essential that the leave should be had before the suit is commenced, provided it is obtained afterwards and supplied, but it must always be made to appear, pending the proceedings, that the leave of the Attorney-General has been given to prosecute the action. Midgett v. Gray, 158 N. C. 133, 135, 73 S. E. 791.

Upon Failure to Show Leave Action Dismissed.—It appearing that, by inadvertance, the record in this action of quo warranto to try the title of office did not show that permission of the Attorney-General was given according to the requirements of this section, it is held that proof of such permission given anterior to the commencement of the action may be offered upon the new trial awarded, and upon failure thereof the action may be dismissed. State v. Gray, 159 N. C. 443, 74 S. E. 1050.

Applied in State v. Holmes, 207 N. C. 293, 176 S. E. 746.
Cited in Bouldin v. Davis, 197 N. C. 731, 150 S. E. 507.

§ 872. Solvent sureties required.—The attorney-general, before granting leave to a private relator to bring a suit to try the title to an office, may require two sureties to the bond required by law to be filed to indemnify the state against costs and expenses, and require such sureties to justify, and may require such proof and evidence of the solvency of the sureties as is satisfactory to him. (Rev., s. 829; 1901, c. 595, s. 2.)

§ 873. Leave withdrawn and action dismissed for insufficient bond.—When the attorney-general has granted leave to a private relator to bring an action in the name of the state to try the title to an office, and it afterwards is shown to the satisfaction of the attorney-general that the bond filed by the private relator is insufficient, or that the sureties are insolvent, the attorney-general may recall and revoke such leave, and upon a certificate of the withdrawal and revocation by the attorney-general to the clerk of the court of the county where the action is pending, it is the duty of the presiding judge, upon motion of the defendant, to dismiss the action. (Rev., s. 830; 1891, c. 595.)

§ 874. Arrest and bail of defendant usurping office.—When action is brought against a person for usurping an office, the attorney-general, in addition to the statement of the cause of action, may set forth in the complaint the name of the person rightfully entitled to the office, with a statement of his right thereto; and in such case, upon proof by affidavit that the defendant has received fees or emoluments belonging to and by means of his usurpation of the office, an order shall be granted by a judge of the superior court for the arrest of the defendant, and holding him to bail; and thereupon he shall be arrested and held to bail in the same manner, and with the same effect, and subject to the same rights and liabilities, as in other civil actions where the defendant is subject to arrest. (Rev., s. 831; Code, s. 609; C. C. P., s. 369; 1883, c. 102.)

§ 875. Several claims tried in one action.—Where several persons claim to be entitled to the same office or franchise, one action may be brought against all of them, in order to try their respective rights to the office or franchise. (Rev. s. 832; Code, s. 614; C. C. P., s. 374.)

§ 876. Trials expedited.—All actions to try the title or right to any state, county or municipal office stand for trial at the return term of the summons, if a copy of the complaint was served with the summons at least thirty days before the return day thereof; and it is the duty of the judges to expedite the trial of these actions, and to give them precedence over all others, civil or criminal. It is unlawful to appropriate any public funds to the payment of counsel fees in any such action. (Rev., s. 833; Code, s. 616; 1901, c. 42; 1874-5, c. 173.)

§ 877. Time for bringing action.—All actions brought by a private relator, upon the leave of the attorney-general, to try the title to an office must be brought, and a copy of the complaint served on the defendant, within ninety days after his induction into the office to which the title is to be tried; and when it appears from the papers in the cause, or is otherwise shown to the satisfaction of the court, that the summons and complaint have not been served within ninety days, it is the duty of the judge upon motion of defendant to dismiss the action at any time before the trial, at the cost of the plaintiff. (Rev., s. 834; 1901, c. 519; 1903, c. 556.)

When Section Does Not Apply.—This provision requiring a private relator, upon leave of the attorney general, to bring his action within ninety days after the induction of the defendant into the contested office, does not apply where the alleged intruder has occupied the office more than ninety days before the plaintiff's cause of action accrued, or where it is impossible under the circumstances to give the required notice. Rhodes v. Love, 153 N. C. 468, 69 S. E. 436.

§ 878. Defendant's undertaking before answer.—Before the defendant may answer or demur to the complaint he must execute and file in the superior court clerk's office of the county wherein the suit is pending, an undertaking, with good and sufficient surety, in the sum of two hundred dollars, which may be increased from time to time in the discretion of the judge, to be void upon condition that the defendant pays to the plaintiff all such costs and damages, including damages for the loss of such fees and emoluments as may or ought to have come into the hands of the defendant, as the plaintiff may recover. (Rev., s. 835; 1895, c. 105.)

§ 879. Possession of office not disturbed pending trial.—In any civil action pending in any of the courts of this state in which the title to an office is involved, the defendant being in the possession of the office and discharging the duties thereof shall continue therein pending the action, and no judge shall make a restraining order interfering with or enjoining such officer in the premises. The officer shall, notwithstanding any such order, continue to exercise the duties of the office pending the litigation, and receive the emolument thereof. (Rev., s. 836; 1899, c. 33.)

Purpose of the Section.—An injunction to prevent the exercise of a public office would produce general inconvenience; for instance, an injunction against one who it is alleged has usurped the office of the clerk of a court, forbidding him to discharge the duties of the office, would stop all judicial proceedings and the public would be made to suffer by this mode of contesting the right to the office and to the fees and emoluments. Hence, in this and the like cases, the appropriate remedy is by an action in the nature of a quo warranto not an injunction. Patterson v. Hubbs, 65 N. C. 119, 121.

Title Should Be Determined First.—Individuals claiming to comprise the board of trustees of a school district de jure may not enjoin those in possession under a colorable claim of right as such board from the performance of their duties as such, and require the defendants to turn over to them the school buildings, etc., and thus determine collaterally the question of title, nor would remedy by injunction be permitted in quo warranto proceedings, where the title to office is directly involved, but the parties should first try out the question of title in an action brought directly for the purpose. Rogers v. Powell, 174 N. C. 388, 93 S. E. 917.

§ 880. Judgment by default and inquiry on failure of defendant to give bond.—At any time after a duly verified complaint is filed alleging facts sufficient to entitle plaintiff to the office, whether this complaint is filed at the beginning of the action or later, the plaintiff may, upon ten days notice to the defendant or his attorney of record, move before the judge resident in or riding the district, at chambers, to require the defendant to give the undertaking specified in second section preceding. It is the duty of the judge to require the defendant to give the undertaking within ten days, and if it is not so given, the judge shall render judgment in favor of plaintiff and against defendant for the recovery of the office and the costs, and a judgment by default and inquiry to be executed at a term for damages, including loss of fees and salary. Upon the filing of the judgment for the recovery of such office with the clerk, it is his duty to issue and the sheriff's duty to serve the necessary process to put the plaintiff into possession of the office. If the defendant shall give the undertaking, the court, if judgment is rendered for plaintiff, shall render judgment against the defendant and his sureties for costs and damages, including loss of fees and salary. Nothing herein prevents the judge's extending, for cause, the time in which to give the undertaking. (Rev., s. 837; 1899, c. 49; 1895, c. 105, s. 2.)

As to effect of this section on an independent suit for damages, see editor's note under section 885.

§ 881. Service of summons and complaint.—The service of the summons and complaint as hereinbefore provided may be made by leaving a copy at the last residence or business office of the defendant or defendants, and service so made shall be deemed a legal service. (Rev., s. 838; 1899, c. 126.)

§ 882. Judgment in such actions.—In every such case judgment shall be rendered upon the right of the defendant, and also upon the right of the party alleged to be entitled, or only upon the right of the defendant, as justice requires. When the defendant, whether a natural person or corporation, against whom the action has been brought, is adjudged guilty of usurping or intruding into, or unlawfully holding or exercising any office, franchise or privilege, judgment shall be rendered that the defendant be excluded from such office, franchise or privilege, and also that the plaintiff recover costs against him. The court may also, in its discretion, fine the defendant a sum not exceeding two thousand dollars. (Rev., ss. 839, 840; Code, ss. 610, 615; R. C., c. 95; C. C. P., ss. 370, 375; Const., Art. IX, s. 5.)

Discretion of Court as to Fine.—Where the defendant went into office under the authority of an unconstitutional appointment by the general assembly, the court presumed that there was no criminal intent and did not impose the fine. Nichols v. McKee, 68 N. C. 429, 440.

§ 883. Mandamus to aid relator.—In any civil action brought to try the title or right to hold any office, when the judgment of the court is in favor of the relator in the action, it is the duty of the court to issue a writ of mandamus or such other process as is necessary and proper to carry the judgment into effect, and to induct the party entitled into office. (Rev., s. 841; 1885, 406, s. 1.)

As to mandamus in general, see sections 866-868.

§ 884. Appeal; bonds of parties.—No appeal by the defendant to the supreme court from the judgment of the superior court in such action shall stay the execution of the judgment, unless a justified undertaking is executed on the part of the appellant by one or more sureties, in a sum to be fixed by the court, conditioned that the appellant will pay to the party entitled to the same the salary, fees, emoluments and all moneys whatsoever received by the appellant by virtue or under color of the office. In no event shall the judgment be executed pending appeal, unless a justified undertaking is executed on the part of the appellee by one or more persons in a sum to be fixed by the court, conditioned that the appellee will pay to the party entitled to the same the salary, fees, emoluments and all moneys whatsoever received by the appellee by virtue or under color of office during his occupancy thereof. (Rev., s. 842; 1885, c. 406, s. 2.)

§ 885. Relator inducted into office; duty and damages.—If the judgment is rendered in favor of the person alleged to be entitled, he shall be entitled, after taking the oath of office and executing such official bond as may be required by law, to take upon himself the execution of the office. It is his duty, immediately thereafter, to demand of the defendant in the action all the books and papers in his custody, or within his power, belonging to the office from which he has been excluded. He may then recover by action the damages which he has sustained by reason of the usurpation by the defendant of the office. (Rev., ss. 843, 844; Code, ss. 611, 613; C. C. P., ss. 371, 373.)

Editor's Note.—It was held, under this section, that compensation in damages for the loss of the fees and emoluments of the office could be recovered from the intruder who had received the same, in an action brought after the rendition of the judgment for money had and received to the relator's use. Swain v. McRae, 80 N. C. 111; State v. Jones, 80 N. C. 127; State v. Tate, 70 N. C. 161.

In McCall v. Webb, 135 N. C. 356, 47 S. E. 802, the question as to the recovery of damages in an independent action again came up and the court discussed the effect of section 880 as amended in 1895 and 1899. The court said: these amendments in regard to the method of recovering damages in such cases do not provide for a cumulative remedy, but it was intended by them to substitute the remedy by inquiry in the action brought to recover the office for the former remedy by separate action on the undertaking, which was given by section 613 of the Code; and besides, the amendments are inconsistent with the provisions of section 613, and the latter is therefore repealed by them. McCall v. Webb, 135, 356, 364, 47 S. E. 802. See also Morgantown Graded School v. McDowell, 157 N. C. 316, 72 S. E. 1083.

Person Entitled Has Property.—A person who is rightfully entitled to an office, although not in the actual possession thereof, has a property therein, and may maintain an action for money had and received against a mere intruder who may perform the duties of such office for a time and receive the fees arising therefrom; and such intruder cannot retain any part of the fees as a compensation for his labor. State v. Tate, 70 N. C. 161.

Court Can Enforce Demand for Documents.—When the relator has taken office and made the demand for the books and papers belonging to the office, the court can issue any appropriate process to enforce compliance with such demand by a refractory or contumacious defendant. Rhodes v. Love, 153 N. C. 468, 474, 69 S. E. 436.

§ 886. Refusal to surrender official papers misdemeanor.—If a person against whom a judgment has been rendered in an action brought to recover a public office shall fail or refuse to turn over, on demand, to the person adjudged to be entitled to such office, all papers, documents and books belonging to such office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3601; Code, s. 612; C. C. P., 372.)

§ 887. Action to recover property forfeited for state.—When any property, real or personal, is forfeited to the state, or to any officer for its use, an action for the recovery of such property, alleging the grounds of the forfeiture, may be brought by the proper officer in any superior court. (Rev., s. 845; Code, s. 621; C. C. P., s. 381.)

Art. 41. Waste

§ 888. Remedy and judgment.—Wrongs, remediable by the old action of waste, are subjects of action as other wrongs; and the judgment may be for damages, forfeiture of the estate of the party offending, and eviction from the premises. (Rev., s. 853; Code, s. 624; C. C. P., s. 383.)

For a full treatment of the action of waste, see 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 298-305; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 729.

Editor's Note.—In England the clearing of land by a lifetenant was waste. In Shine v. Wilcox, 21 N. C. 631 the court says "While our ancestors brought over to this country the principles of common law, these were nevertheless accommodated to their new condition. It would have been absurd to hold that the clearing of the forest, so as to fit it for the habitation and use of man, was waste." And in King v. Miller, 99 N. C. 583 the court says "While in its essential elements waste is the same in this country and in England .... yet in respect to acts which constitute waste, the rule that governs in a new and unopened land covered largely with primeval growth must be different." Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Definition.—Waste is a spoiling or destroying of the estate, with respect to buildings, wood or soil, to the lasting injury of the inheritance; but the acts done or permitted which constitute such injury differ according to the condition of the country. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Nature of Action.—An action for wrongs in the nature of waste is not necessarily an action "for penalties," or "for damages merely vindictive"; on the contrary, the action is generally used to recover actual and substantial damages. And that an action survives when such is its purpose, either to or against the personal representative, is well established. Butner v. Keelhn, 51 N. C. 60; Rippey v. Miller, 33 N. C. 247; Collier v. Arrington, 61 N. C. 356; Peebles v. N. C. R. Co., 63 N. C. 238; Shuler v. Millsaps, 71 N. C. 297. Shields v. Lawrence, 72 N. C. 43, 44.

Discretion of Jury.—It must be left, in large measure, to the discretion of the jury to say whether the destruction of timber, or giving up a cultivated field and permitting bushes to grow and take possession of it, in the light of the evidence in the case, has proved a lasting injury to the inheritance. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 633, 12 S. E. 588. King v. Miller, 99 N. C. 583, 6 S. E. 660.

To Determine Liability.—In ascertaining whether a given act or omission falls within the rule, and subjects the tenant to liability, the condition of the land when dower was assigned should be compared with its state during the period for which damage is claimed. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 634, 12 S. E. 588.

Cited in Batten v. Corporation Commission, 199 N. C. 460, 154 S. E. 748.

§ 889. For and against whom action lies.—In all cases of waste, an action lies in the superior court at the instance of him in whom the right is, against all persons committing the waste, as well tenant for term of life as tenant for term of years and guardians. (Rev., s. 854; Code, s. 625; R. C., c. 116, s. 1; 52 Hen. III, c. 23; 6 Edw. I, c. 5; 20 Edw. I, st. 2; 11 Hen. VI, c. 5.)

No Action Unless Plaintiff Has Estate.—The writ of waste is founded upon principles, peculiar to itself, and more especially dependent upon a privy between the reversioner and tenant. No one shall have the action of waste, unless he hath the immediate estate of inheritance; and between the heir of the reversioner and the tenant, who commits waste, there is no privy, the waste being committed in the lifetime of the reversioner. Browne v. Blick, 7 N. C. 511.

Contingent Remainderman Cannot Sue.—A contingent remainderman can not sue for waste, but, for the protection of his right, he must resort to equity for the protection of his interest. Richardson v. Richardson, 152 N. C. 705, 68 S. E. 217. Latham v. Lumber Co., 139 N. C. 8, 51 S. E. 780. Gordon v. Lowther, 75 N. C. 193.

No Application to Judgment Creditor. — The judgment creditor is in no sense like a remainderman or reversioner. He cannot bring "the old action of waste," as it was at common law, nor is he embraced in any one of the classes "for and against whom an action of waste lies" under this section. Jones v. Britton, 102 N. C. 166, 173, 9 S. E. 554.

Right To Restrain Included.—The right to sue for waste includes the right to restrain its commission.. Morrison v.

Morrison, 122 N. C. 598, 599, 29 S. E. 901; Hinson v. Hinson, 120 N. C. 400, 27 S. E. 80.

Holder of a Vested Estate for Life.—In the case of Gordon v. Lowther, 75 N. C. 193, the court said, in effect, that while persons holding a vested estate for life, coupled with contingent interest, are not liable in an action for waste, they and their tenants may be restrained from further despoiling and injuring the inheritance, where it appears that they have been removing from the land timber trees not cut down in the course of prudent husbandry. That case was cited with approval in the later case of Jones v. Britton, 102 N. C. 166, 9 S. E. 554; Farabow v. Green, 108 N. C. 339, 343, 12 S. E. 1003.

Conflicting Evidence as to Title.—In an action of trespass and damages for the unlawful cutting and removing of timber upon the plaintiff's lands, there was evidence of the plaintiff's and defendant's chain of title from a common source, and that one of the deeds under which the defendant claims was only of a life estate, but that through inadvertance or mutual mistake this should have conveyed the fee. The defendant was in possession and claimed title by adverse possession under color of this deed. It was held that the defendant's motion as of nonsuit under the conflicting evidence was improperly allowed upon the principle that if a life estate were outstanding, his possession, during its continuance, would not be adverse to the plaintiff; and the action should be retained under the provisions of this section. It was held further, that while the evidence in this case as to location of the land was meager it was sufficient. Howell v. Shaw, 183 N. C. 460, 112 S. E. 38.

§ 890. Tenant in possession liable.—Where a tenant for life or years grants his estate to another, and still continues in the possession of the lands, tenements, or hereditaments, an action lies against the said tenant for life or years. (Rev., s. 855; Code, s. 626; R. C., c. 116, s. 2; 11 Hen. VI, c. 5.)

§ 891. Action by tenant against cotenant.—Where a joint tenant or a tenant in common commits waste, an action lies against him at the instance of his cotenant or joint tenant. (Rev., s. 856; Code, s. 627; R. C., c. 116, s. 4; 13 Edw. I, c. 22.)

Section Changes the Common Law Rule.—One of the settled rules at common law in England, was that one tenant in common could not sue his co-tenant, except for partition, and our Legislature, feeling the practical difficulties at an early date, enacted that one tenant in common might maintain an action for waste against his co-tenant or joint tenant. Morrison v. Morrison, 122 N. C. 598, 599, 29 S. E. 901. And the tenant can also restrain his co-tenant from the commission of waste. Id.

Cutting Trees.—Under this section of the Code, one tenant in common may sue his co-tenant for waste for cutting down trees to be sold as cross ties and hauled off the land. Hinson v. Hinson, 120 N. C. 400, 27 S. E. 80.

Applied in Daniel v. Tallassee Power Co., 204 N. C. 274, 168 S. E. 217.

§ 892. Action by heirs.—Every heir may bring action for waste committed on lands, tenements, or hereditaments of his own inheritance, as well in the time of his ancestor as in his own. (Rev., s. 857; Code, s. 628; R. C., c. 116, s. 5; 6 Edw. I, c. 5; 11 Hen. VI, c. 5; 20 Edw. I, st. 2.)

Heirs Cannot Set up Damages for Waste as Counterclaim.—In a suit by a widow against the heirs to recover payments allowed to her as dower and made a charge on the land, the heirs cannot set up by way of counterclaim damages for waste committed by the widow but must proceed under the statute. Hybart v. Jones, 130 N. C. 227, 41 S. E. 293.

§ 893. Judgment for treble damages and possession.—In all cases of waste, when judgment is against the defendant, the court may give judgment for treble the amount of the damages assessed by the jury, and also that the plaintiff recover the place wasted, if the damages are not paid on or before a day to be named in the judgment. (Rev., s. 858; Code, s. 629; R. C., c. 116, s. 3; 6 Edw. I, c. 5; 20 Edw. I, st. 2.)

In General.—Under this section a tenant in dower, or other life-tenant, who, by neglect or wantonness, occasions permanent waste or injury to the inheritance, whether voluntary or permissive, thereby subjects himself to liablity to pay the actual damages, or treble damages, at the discretion of the judge, and also to forfeit the place wasted on a day to be fixed by the judge, if he should in the meantime fail to pay the damages recovered of him. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 636, 12 S. E. 588.

Section Changes Former Law.—This section is substantially the same as the law in force before the enactment of the Code except for two important changes. The word "may" has been substituted for "shall" in the old statute of Gloucester, and, by a qualification added to it, the judgment for the place wasted must be conditional, and can take effect only upon the failure of the defendant to pay the actual damages before a day certain. So that it is left within the sound discretion of the judge who tries the action to determine whether he will give treble or single damages, as well as to fix a day after which a writ of possession may issue for the place wasted, if the damage allowed shall not have been in the meantime actually paid. The old statute was, manifestly, amended when the Code was enacted, for the purpose of vesting a discretionary power in the court in reference to the amount of the judgment, and fixing the time for forfeiture of the place wasted on failure to pay the amount recovered. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Prospective Damages Not Allowed.—The jury cannot allow prospective damages, where the roof of a building has become decayed, for the value of the whole building, on the supposition that the tenant will suffer the decay to continue till the structure shall have rotted and fallen down. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 637, 12 S. E. 588.

Where Damages Insignificant.—In an action for waste, where the jury find insignificant damages, judgment will be arrested. Sheppard v. Sheppard, 3 N. C. 382.

Judgment for Damages Only.—It is not error for the judgment in an action of waste to be for the damages only, and not also for the place wasted. Bright v. Wilson, 1 N. C. 251.

New Action for Subsequent Injury. — If the life-tenant should allow the inheritance to sustain further injury after the time of trial, damage may be recovered in another action. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Appeal.—Section 893 says the court may give judgment for treble damages and the place wasted, and on appeal the court will not make such discretionary power obligatory. Sherrill v. Connor, 107 N. C. 630, 12 S. E. 588.

Art. 42. Nuisance

§ 894. Remedy for nuisance.—Injuries remediable by the old writ of nuisance are subjects of action as other injuries; and in such action there may be judgment for damages, or for the removal of the nuisance, or both. (Rev., s. 825; Code, s. 630; C. C. P., s. 387.)

Cross References.—For full treatment of nuisance, see 9 N. C. Enc. Dig. 747-763; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 126-131. As to injunction against nuisance, see sec. 843 and annotations thereunder.

Editor's Note.—Nuisances consist of two general classes, public and private. A public nuisance exists when a right or privilege, common to all the citizens of the community, is interfered with, even though no actual damage to any individual is caused. In such cases in order to maintain a civil action under this section the plaintiff must show special damages differing both in degree and in kind from that suffered by the general public.

A private nuisance exists where the right or privilege interfered with is essentially a private one. If the offense is so general to affect a number of citizens in the neighborhood the aggravation of offenses will amount to a public wrong and may be the subject of a public prosecution. But in such a case the individual can still maintain a civil action, and he need not show that his particular damage differs in kind and degree from that of the other individuals affected. See McManus v. Southern Ry. Co., 150 N. C. 655, 660, 64 S. E. 766.

When the alleged nuisance would constitute a private wrong, by injuring property or health, or creating personal inconvenience and annoyance, for which an action might be maintained in favor of a person injured, it is none the less actionable because the wrong is committed in a manner and under circumstances which would render the guilty party liable to indictment for a common nuisance. See Farmer, etc., Mfg. Co. v. R. R., 117 N. C. 579, 23 S. E. 43; Pruitt v. Bethell, 174 N. C. 454, 457, 93 S. E. 945.

That is a nuisance which annoys and disturbs one in the possession of his property, rendering its ordinary use or occupation physically uncomfortable to him. See Baltimore, etc. R. Co. v. Fifth Baptist Church, 108 U. S. 317, 329, 27 L. Ed. 739.

An Adequate Remedy.—Where a nuisance has been established, working harm to the rights of an individual citizen, the law of our state is searching and adequate to afford an injured person ample redress, both by remedial and preventive remedies, as will be readily seen by reference to numerous decisions of the court on the subject. Cherry v. Williams, 147 N. C. 452, 61 S. E. 267; Reyburn v. Sawyer, 135 N. C. 328, 47 S. E. 761; Raleigh v. Hunter, 16 N. C. 12; Bell v. Blount, 11 N. C. 384; McManus v. Southern Ry. Co., 150 N. C. 655, 661, 64 S. E. 766.

Purpose of Damages.—Damages in nuisance should be such as to lead to the abatement of the nuisance. Bradley v. Amis, 3 N. C. 399.

Appreciable Damage Must Be Suffered.—To sustain an action for a nuisance, public or private, which does not involve the physical invasion of the property of another, it is always required to be shown that some appreciable damage has been suffered, or that some serious or irreparable injury is threatened, and unless this is made to appear a right to nominal damages does not arise. McManus v. Southern R. Co., 150 N. C. 655, 64 S. E. 766.

When Special Damage Necessary.—No person can maintain an action (on a public nuisance) unless he sustains a special damage therefrom differing from that sustained by the rest of the public. McManus v. Southern Ry. Co., 150 N. C. 655, 664, 64 S. E. 766; Pedrick v. R. R., 143 N. C. 485, 55 S. E. 877.

But an action by an individual to abate a nuisance cannot be successfully resisted on the ground that no special damage to the plaintiff has been shown, when it appears that the nuisance complained of was the fact that the defendant caused water to flood adjoining lands, which bred fever carrying mosquitoes, thereby inflicting sickness on the plaintiff and his family, although others in the community suffered sickness from the same cause. Pruitt v. Bethell, 174 N. C. 454, 93 S. E. 945.

Diminution of Damage.—In an action for damages from a permanent nuisance, the suit being in the nature of a proceeding to condemn the plaintiff's property, it was held, that special benefits arising out of the establishment of the nuisance may be set off in diminution of damages. Brown v. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co., 162 N. C. 83, 77 S. E. 1102.

Injunction Lies.—One suffering peculiar damages from a public nuisance is not restricted but may sue for an injunction. Reyburn v. Sawyer, 135 N. C. 328, 47 S. E. 761.

Same—No Permanent Damage.—Permanent damages for the depreciation of property can not be recovered. The owners may enjoin commission of the acts constituting the nuisance and recover such temporary damages as their property has sustained thereby. Taylor v. Seaboard, etc., Railway, 145 N. C. 400, 59 S. E. 129.

Proximate Cause. — In order to recover damages the maintenance of a public nuisance must be the proximate cause of the injuries. McGhee v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 147 N. C. 142, 60 S. E. 912.

SUBCHAPTER XV. INCIDENTAL PROCEDURE IN CIVIL ACTIONS

Art. 43. Compromise

§ 895. By agreement receipt of less sum is discharge.—In all claims, or money demands, of whatever kind, and howsoever due, where an agreement is made and accepted for a less amount than that demanded or claimed to be due, in satisfaction thereof, the payment of the less amount according to such agreement in compromise of the whole is a full and complete discharge of the same. (Rev., s. 859; Code, s. 574; 1874-5, c. 178.)

I. Editor's Note.
II. In General.
III. Effect of Compromise.
IV. Application of Section.
V. Procedure.

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

It has been a long established doctrine of the English, and most American courts, that the payment of a portion of a specific or liquidated demand or claim in the same manner as the whole liquidated demand or claim ought to be paid, is part payment only. This is true even though there is an express agreement between the parties that the lesser sum shall extinguish the greater. The reason assigned for the rule is that the agreement to give up the residue is without consideration. One of the most famous of the cases so holding is Sibree v. Tripp, 15 M. & W. 22, in which Alderson, B., said:

"If you substitute for a sum of money a piece of paper, or a stick of sealing wax, it is different, and the bargain may be carried out in its full integrity. A man may give in satisfaction of a debt of $100, a horse of the value of five pounds, but not five pounds."

The illustrations thus put by Baron Alderson show the glaring absurdity and extreme technicality of the distinctions made by the courts. As in the English case referred to, supra, courts have come to question the good sense of such technical distinctions, nevertheless, it is a settled doctrine. Currie v. Kennedy, 78 N. C. 91; Koonce v. Russell, 103 N. C. 179, 9 S. E. 316; Bank v. Commissioners, 116 N. C. 339, 21 S. E. 410. But when we come to the case of a true compromise, the state of the law is different. In Barnawell v. Threadgill, 56 N. C. 50, 58, Battle, J., citing Leonard v. Leonard, 2 Ball. & Best, 178, and quoting the words of Lord Chancellor Manners, he says: "In the case of a compromise as distinguished from a release, both parties are ignorant of their rights, and the agreement is founded on that ignorance, and the party surrendering may, in truth, have nothing to surrender; and whether the uncertainty rests upon a doubt in point of fact or a doubt in point of law, if both parties are in the same ignorance, the fairness of the compromise cannot be affected by a subsequent investigation and result." And in Williams v. Alexander, 39 N. C. 207, 209, the court thus refers to the subject: "While the title is thus in contestation, or while he (the defendant) is claiming them as his property, and the plaintiff holding them as hers, they agree, in order to put an end to the dispute, to divide the property. The compromise of a doubtful right, fairly entered into, with due deliberation, will be sustained in a court of equity. It is reasonable and proper that it should be so; parties must be at liberty to settle their own controversies by dividing the property in controversy, and public policy upholds the right." Mayo v. Gardner, 49 N. C. 359, is also directly in point on this phase of the question.

However, the Legislature took cognizance of the situation in 1874-5 and enacted, ch. 178, this section, which is a substantial enactment and extension of the holding of the cases dealing with the compromise of doubtful claims, to "all claims or money demands, of whatever kind, and howsoever due." Thus the evils necessarily flowing from the technical distinctions pointed out in the first part of this note, are now removed by the wise enactment of this beneficial section. York v. Westall, 143 N. C. 276, 280, 55 S. E. 724; Mathis v. Bryson, 49 N. C. 508; Findly v. Ray, 50 N. C. 125; Petit v. Woodlief, 115 N. C. 120, 126, 20 S. E. 208; 1 Parson on contracts (5 Ed.) 438, 439.

II. IN GENERAL.

Cross Reference.—For a discussion of the law of contracts in relation to this section, see 13 N. C. Law Rev., 45.

Definition.—A compromise has been defined by the United States Supreme Court to be "an agreement between two or more persons, who, in order to stop or put an end to a law suit, adjust their differences by mutual consent in the manner which they agree on, and which any one of them prefers to the hope of gaining balanced by the danger of losing." See New Orleans v. Warner, 180 U. S. 199, 45 L. Ed. 493.

Essentials of Compromise.—Thus, as in the case of other contracts, mutuality is essential to a valid compromise. There must be a meeting of minds upon every feature and element of such agreement. See Horn v. Detroit, etc., Co., 150 U. S. 610, 37 L. Ed. 1199.

The agreement, in order to be binding upon the parties, must have been executed voluntarily and without duress, or undue influence, in good faith, deliberately and understandingly. Hennessy v. Bacon, 137 U. S. 78, 34 L. Ed. 605.

Conclusiveness.—It is held in the Supreme Court of the United States that it is of the very essence of the compromises or settlements entered into in adjustment of disputes that the contest should be closed, and they are held to be final and conclusive as to the interested parties. Oglesby v. Attrill, 105 U. S. 605, 26 L. Ed. 1186.

In order to be thus conclusive, however, there must have been an actual compromise or settlement, and not merely negotiations for a settlement, or facts from which such an agreement might be inferred. Swift, etc., Co. v. United States, 111 U. S. 22, 28 L. Ed. 341.

Constitutionality of Section.—The section is constitutional. Wittkowsky v. Baruch, 127 N. C. 313, 315, 37 S. E. 449; Koonce v. Russell, 103 N. C. 179, 9 S. E. 316.

What Constitutes Accord and Satisfaction.—When at a sale under a deed of trust, it was agreed between the creditor and debtor that the former would bid for the property, and if it brought less than the debt he would accept it in satisfaction of the sums due him, and the debtor was thereby induced not to bid or procure others to do so, and the property was bid off by the creditor for a less sum than his debt. Held, that there was a sufficient consideration to support the agreement and the debtor was discharged from his obligation. Jones v. Wilson, 104 N. C. 9, 10 S. E. 79.

When a debtor pays a sum supposed by him to be the balance due on his bond, and the creditor refuses to give up the bond, but says that he will credit the amount paid, it does not amount to a compromise and satisfaction of the bond, although the debtor intends it as such. King v. Phillips, 94 N. C. 555.

Where the plaintiff's damages, caused by the defendant's breach of contract, are based upon two distinctive items, the plaintiff's agreeing upon and receiving compensation for the first item does not preclude a recovery upon the second one, when it appears that the settlement had been made in contemplation of the first item alone. Garland v. Improvement Co., 184 N. C. 551, 115 S. E. 164.

Same—Tort and Contract Actions.—Accord and satisfaction is a method of discharging a contract or settling a cause of action arising either from a contract or tort, by the parties compromising the matter in dispute between them, and accepting its benefits. Walker v. Burt, 182 N. C. 325, 109 S. E. 43.

Same—Mistake as to Amount.—Where the plaintiff agreed to accept a lesser sum in discharge of a larger, which he thought was the amount of the debt, but was mistaken and later found that the debt was larger, there was no compromise as to the amount of the mistake. Holden v. Warren, 118 N. C. 326, 24 S. E. 770.

Same—Money Paid into Court.—Money tendered and deposited into court by the defendant with costs accrued, "in full tender of all indebtedness of defendant to plaintiffs," if withdrawn by the plaintiffs, pending the litigation, it amounts to a satisfaction of their claims, and subjects the plaintiffs to all subsequently accruing costs. Cline v. Rudisill, 126 N. C. 523, 36 S. E. 36.

Slight Irregularities Do Not Vitiate.—Where a plea in accord and satisfaction, has been made in bar to an action that defendant had paid an agreed amount and costs into the clerk's office, the fact that a witness ticket of a small amount, which the plaintiff had refused to receive, was not taxed in the costs, will not affect the validity of the tender. McAuley v. Sloan, 173 N. C. 80, 91 S. E. 701.

Where a creditor agrees to accept a lesser amount in satisfaction of his debt, the lesser amount to include advertising, the amount of which was to be agreed upon by the creditor, the failure of the debtor to pay the amount of the compromise, the creditor having refused to state the amount of advertising he would take, does not invalidate the compromise. Ramsey v. Browder, 136 N. C. 251, 48 S. E. 651.

Offer and Acceptance by Telegram.—Offer and acceptance by telegram to pay a sum certain in full settlement of a claim in dispute, followed by immediate payment by the debtor, constitutes a valid compromise in full satisfaction of the claim. Pruden v. R. R. Co., 121 N. C. 509, 28 S. E. 349.

III. EFFECT OF COMPROMISE.

Acts as Complete Discharge. — The receipt of a part in satisfaction of the whole is now as effective as if the whole amount of the debt had been paid. Wittkowsky v. Baruch, 127 N. C. 313, 314, 37 S. E. 449; Tiddy v. Harris, 101 N. C. 589, 593, 8 S. E. 227.

Precludes Further Action Thereon. — Where a plaintiff agreed to accept a certain sum by way of compromise in full satisfaction of his claim, and having been paid that amount by the defendant, he cannot maintain an action thereon. Pruden v. R. R. Co., 121 N. C. 509, 512, 28 S. E. 349.

Extinguishes Cause of Action.—A valid compromise and settlement extinguishes the cause of action, and where a party is willing to yield something for the sake of a settlement, he cannot afterwards maintain a suit for which he voluntarily surrendered. See Boffinger v. Tuyes, 120 U. S. 198, 205, 30 L. Ed. 699.

Checks Accepted as Settlement in Full. — Under a uniform construction of this section, as announced in a long line of decisions, it is held that where two parties are in dispute as to the correct amount of an account, and one sends the other a check, or makes a payment, clearly purporting to be in full settlement of the claim, and the other knowingly accepts it upon such condition, this will amount to a full and complete discharge of the debt. Blanchard v. Peanut Co., 182 N. C. 20, 21, 108 S. E. 332. De Loache v. DeLoache, 189 N. C. 394, 127 S. E. 419. Mercer v. Lumber Co., 173 N. C. 49, 54, 91 S. E. 588.

Where an employee was discharged and received and cashed a check for $125, on which was written, "In full for services," which amount was less than claimed, he cannot recover more, although he attempted to qualify his acceptance of the proceeds of the check by writing across the check, above his signature, the words, "Accepted for one month's services." Kerr v. Sanders, 122 N. C. 635, 29 S. E. 943.

IV. APPLICATION OF SECTION

Incorporated in Contract.—Where agreements to receive a part in lieu of the whole debt due have been made since the enactment of this section, they are deemed to have been entered into in as full contemplation of its provisions as though it had been incorporated into the contract. Bank v. Commissioners, 116 N. C. 339, 363, 21 S. E. 410; Koonce v. Russell, 103 N. C. 179, 9 S. E. 316.

Must Be Compromise.—The section is not applicable where the payment is not intended as a compromise of the whole, or any part of the debt, but as a payment in full. Smith v. Richards, 129 N. C. 267, 269, 40 S. E. 5.

When Creditor Remitted to Original Rights.—If the debtor, as in Hunt v. Wheeler, 116 N. C. 422, 425, 21 S. E. 915, repudiates the agreement or unreasonably delays to execute it, the creditor is remitted to his rights under the original contract, for payment of the sum agreed to be paid under the new contract is essential to a discharge of the old contract. Ramsey v. Browder, 136 N. C. 251, 253, 48 S. E. 651.

Right to Demand Acceptance.—When a proposal to pay a given sum, provided that the payment shall operate to relieve one of three judgment debtors, is accepted by the creditor, and the debtor within a reasonable time tenders the amount, he has the right to demand that it shall be received and applied in discharge of his obligation to make any further payment. Boykin v. Buie, 109 N. C. 501, 503, 13 S. E. 879.

When Payer is Entitled to Restitution.—Where one pays a certain sum upon a contested debt in compromise thereof in case it shall afterwards be established, a finding by the jury that it never existed will entitle the payer to a restitution for the money advanced by him. Fickey v. Merrimon, 79 N. C. 585.

Principal Bound by Acts of Agent.—A principal may not repudiate the act of his agent in compromising a debt due, and receive the benefit of the consideration therefor. Cashmar Supply Co. v. Down, 146 N. C. 191, 195, 59 S. E. 685.

When the sum paid under an indemnity insurance policy is the only sum due at the time, the language of the receipt will be restricted to the amount due, and will not be construed as a compromise of the whole claim of indemnity for future sickness. Moore v. Casualty Co., 150 N. C. 153, 154, 63 S. E. 675.

Where one of several makers of a note agree with the payee that they shall be released from their obligations by giving a new note in a smaller sum, subject to the same conditions of warranty as the old one, the giving of a new note is valid as a compromise under this section, and the warranty in the former transaction is a part of the consideration for the new one, and is enforceable. Bank v. Walser, 162 N. C. 53, 54, 77 S. E. 1006.

V. PROCEDURE.

Discretion of Court.—Where, among other defenses to an action, the defendant pleads accord and satisfaction, the discretionary power of the trial judge in submitting this issue to the jury before submitting the other issues upon the merits will not be reversed on appeal. McAuley v. Sloan, 173 N. C. 80, 91 S. E. 701.

Landlord and Cropper.—Where the cropper sues for damages arising from the breach by the landlord of his contract in several particulars, and there is evidence on the trial of full accord and satisfaction between them, the submission of the one issue as to the compromise and settlement will not be considered for error when the case has thereunder been presented to the jury, without prejudice to any of the appellant's rights. Walker v. Burt, 182 N. C. 325, 109 S. E. 43.

Compromise Pending Writ of Error.—Where there has been a decision in the lower court, a valid compromise of the matter in dispute may be made while a writ of error is pending. See Dakota County v. Glidden, 113 N. C. 222, 28 S. E. 981.

§ 896. Tender of judgment.—The defendant, at any time before the trial or verdict, may serve upon the plaintiff an offer in writing to allow judgment to be taken against him for the sum or property, or to the effect therein specified, with costs. If the plaintiff accepts the offer, and gives notice thereof in writing within ten days, he may file the summons, complaint, and offer, with an affidavit of notice of acceptance, and the clerk must thereupon enter judgment accordingly. If the notice of acceptance is not given, the offer is deemed withdrawn, and cannot be given in evidence; and if the plaintiff fails to obtain a more favorable judgment he cannot recover costs, but must pay the defendant's costs from the time of the offer. If the defendant sets up a counterclaim in his answer to an amount greater than the plaintiff's claim, or sufficient to reduce the plaintiff's recovery below fifty dollars, then the plaintiff may serve upon the defendant an offer in writing to allow judgment to be taken against him for the amount specified, or to allow the counterclaim to the amount specified, with costs. If the defendant accepts the offer, and gives notice thereof in writing within ten days, he may enter judgment as above for the amount specified, if the offer entitles him to judgment, or if the amount specified in the offer is allowed him in the trial of the action. If the notice of acceptance is not given, the offer is deemed withdrawn, and cannot be given in evidence; and if the defendant fails to recover a more favorable judgment, or to establish his counterclaim for a greater amount than is specified in the offer, he cannot recover costs, but must pay the plaintiff's costs from the time of the offer. (Rev., s. 860; Code, s. 573; C. C. P., s. 328.)

As to tender of judgment in justice's court, see Rule 15, sec. 1500.

Nature of Offer Required.—An offer of compromise to be sufficient under the statute must be in a form that will enable the plaintiff, if he accepts it, to have judgment entered by the clerk conformably to the offer. It must consequently come from all the defendants, or their common attorney at law, since otherwise the clerk would not be authorized to enter judgment against all. Williamson v. Canal Co., 84 N. C. 629, 630.

The defendant would have no right, under the provisions of the section to force the plaintiff to accept the property, when it might have been injured or rendered worthless after conversion, or pay the costs, on refusal to do so, even if the action had been brought to recover the specific property tendered, unless the offer had also included with the proposed delivery of articles tendered in kind a proposal to pay an amount as damages for detention not less than that ultimately assessed by the jury. Citing Stephens v. Koonce, 103 N. C. 266, 269, 9 S. E. 315. Wood's Mayne on Damages, secs. 520, 521.

Unaccepted Tender of Judgment.—The purpose of the section can be best subserved by holding according to its language that a tender of judgment unaccepted "cannot be given in evidence," and can only be used after verdict before the judge, to enable him to adjudge who shall pay the costs. Blanton Grocery Co. v. Taylor, 162 N. C. 307, 313, 78 S. E. 276.

In Blanton Grocery Co. v. Taylor, 162 N. C. 307, 313, 78 S. E. 276, it was said: "The statute authorizing a tender of judgment says that the tender, when not accepted, is to be deemed withdrawn, and cannot be given in evidence, and while this provision is primarily for the protection of the one making the tender, and to prevent its introduction against him, the statute is a part of the wholesome scheme devised to encourage compromises and settlements, before and after action commenced."

Tender Sufficient to Stop Costs.—A tender of payment under the section, to stop the costs and the accrual of interest on a judgment subsequently rendered, must be in writing, signed by the party making it, and contain an offer of judgment for the amount tendered. Medicine Co. v. Davenport, 163 N. C. 294, 295, 79 S. E. 602.

Costs—When Taxed on Plaintiff.—Where a plaintiff is given judgment for no more than the amount tendered by the defendant, costs from the time the tender was made should be taxed on the plaintiff. Cowles v. Assurance Society, 170 N. C. 368, 377, 87 S. E. 119.

Same—When Taxed on Defendant.—Where, in a justice's court, judgment was rendered against two defendants, and one appealed, and, pending the appeal, tendered in cash as a satisfaction of the judgment as to himself a less sum than the amount of the justice's judgment, but more than that ultimately rendered in the superior court, the plaintiff was entitled to costs. Wyatt v. Wilson, 152 N. C. 276, 67 S. E. 501.

Error to Dismiss.—Where on the admissions in the pleadings the plaintiff is entitled to recover any amount it is error for the trial court to dismiss the action as in case of nonsuit, and the fact that the defendant had tendered the amount admitted to be due with interest and cost to the time of filing answer, and had paid it into court subject to the plaintiff's order does not vary this result. Penn v. King, 202 N. C. 174, 162 S. E. 376.

§ 897. Conditional tender of judgment for damages.—In an action arising on contract, the defendant may, with his answer, serve upon the plaintiff an offer in writing, that if he fails in his defense, the damages be assessed at a specified sum; and if the plaintiff signifies his acceptance thereof in writing, ten days before the trial, and on the trial has a verdict, the damages shall be assessed accordingly. If the plaintiff does not accept the offer, he must prove his damages, as if it had not been made, and may not introduce it in evidence. If the damages assessed in his favor do not exceed the sum mentioned in the offer, the defendant shall recover his expenses incurred in consequence of any necessary preparation or defense in respect to the question of damages. This expense shall be ascertained at the trial. (Rev., ss. 861, 862; Code, ss. 575, 576; C. C. P., ss. 329, 330.)

As to costs, see sec. 896, and annotations thereto.

Tender Should Accompany Answer.—A tender may accompany an answer, and this alone is its proper placing so far as a pleading is concerned, or in reply to a counterclaim; it will not be permitted as an aid to a defective demurrer. Hall v. Telegraph Co., 139 N. C. 369, 873, 52 S. E. 50.

Agreement as Evidence Fixing Damages.—Where, pending an action to recover for damages done to a lot of tobacco which the plaintiff had bought and paid for under a guarantee of soundness by the defendants, an agreement was entered into adjusting the amount of damage per pound which the plaintiff should recover, if entitled to recover at all, said agreement to be without prejudice to either party; Held, that such an agreement was not an offer of compromise in the meaning of this section and was admissible on the trial of the action to determine the amount of the plaintiff's recovery. Garrett v. Pegram, 120 N. C. 288, 26 S. E. 778.

§ 898. Disclaimer of title in trespass; tender of judgment.—In actions of trespass upon real estate, the defendant in his answer may disclaim any title or claim to the lands on which the trespass is alleged by the complaint to be done, may allege that the trespass was by negligence or involuntary, and may make a tender or offer of sufficient amends for the trespass. If the plaintiff controverts such answer or a part thereof, and at the trial verdict is found for the defendant, or if the plaintiff is nonsuited, he is barred from the said action and all other suits concerning the same. (Rev., s. 863; Code, s. 577; Rev. Code, c. 31, s. 79; 1715, c. 2, s. 7.)

Involuntary Trespass.—Where a person occupying land adjoining another and in ignorance of the true boundaries of the tracts, trespasses upon the land of the adjacent owner, but disclaims title and tenders reasonable amends before the suit was brought, such trespasser is protected by this section. Blackburn v. Bowman, 46 N. C. 442.

Effect of Disclaimer Generally.—If a defendant is sued for the recovery of land, a part of which he does not claim or about which he does not intend to litigate with the plaintiff, he should enter a disclaimer; and when he does so, he cannot be taxed with any costs relating to that part of the land; but when, instead of doing so, he takes issue with plaintiff as to all of the land, and the plaintiff recovers any part of it, he is entitled to recover his costs, although he may have failed to recover the other tract. Swain v. Clemmons, 175 N. C. 240, 95 S. E. 498.

Art. 43A. Arbitration and Award

§ 898(a). Agreement for arbitration.—Two or more parties may agree in writing to submit to arbitration, in conformity with the provisions of this article, any controversy existing between them at the time of the agreement to submit. Such an agreement shall be valid and enforcible, and neither party shall have the power to revoke the submission without the consent of the other party or parties to the submission save upon such grounds as exist in law or equity for the rescission or revocation of any contract. (1927, c. 94, s. 1.)

As to competency of arbitrators under prior law, see 1 Enc. Dig. 879, sec. 24. As to admission of new parties to arbitration by arbitrators, see 1 Enc. Dig. 880, sec. 24.

Editor's Note.—This statute is a verbatim enactment of the uniform arbitration act proposed to the states for adoption by the American Bar Association in 1924 and 1925. North Carolina is among the first states to adopt it. This act is based upon the arbitration acts of the various states and several sections of it are restatements of the corresponding sections of various state laws.

This is North Carolina's first arbitration statute; prior to this time the common law arbitration has been in use. While the statute changes the common law in many instances, it is an enactment of it in others. A discussion of the changes wrought will be found under each section where the prior North Carolina cases which are pertinent are cited and the probable effect upon them is indicated.

The question of costs was left by the proposed act to the various states adopting it.

The reference statute, sec. 572 et seq., did not affect common law arbitration (see cases cited under sec. 572.) and it is likewise probable that this statute does not affect that statute.

Same—Distinction Between Arbitration and Reference.—There are several distinctions between arbitration and references under the code. While a reference may be by consent of the parties it may also be compelled by the judge in certain instances (see sec. 537); but an arbitration under this act is always by consent. It would seem that in a reference the referee must report the facts upon which his conclusions are based—the finding of facts may be the extent of his duty—and state them separately from the conclusions of law; but the arbitrator is not required to report the facts but only his award or conclusion which must be done in writing. Referees are required to conduct a trial according to the rules of court and have the same power generally as judges (see sec. 576) but there are no rules restricting the arbitrators to any particular mode or manner of trial, they are not even required to decide according to law and their award may be general. The proceedings for setting aside, vacating, confirming, and entering judgment are also different. For distinctions between reference and common law award, see Keener v. Goodson, 89 N. C. 273, 276.

Arbitrator Defined.—"An arbitrator is a person selected by the mutual consent of the parties, to determine matters in controversy between them, whether they be matters of law or fact. He is invested with judicial functions, limited by the terms of the submission, [and this statute since its passage] and he must be incorrupt and impartial, and not exceed or fall short of his duty, and if he acts otherwise, his award may be set aside." Crisp v. Love, 65 N. C. 126, 127.

Liberal Construction.—This statute will probably be given a liberal construction, because, looking to the purpose of arbitration, it is the policy of the law to encourage the settlement of litigation or controversy with as much speed and as little expense as the exigencies of the case will permit, not to sacrifice justice. Persuing this policy, arbitration has always been encouraged. See the Editor's Note to sec. 572.

Applicability to Agreement Respecting Future Controversies.—Attention is called to the fact that this section limits the agreement to arbitrate "to any controversy existing between the parties at the time of the agreement to submit". These terms do not expressly extend to and include agreements to submit controversies arising in the future, for it clearly appears from the debates of the committee which framed this act that it should not extend to such agreements. See "Handbook on the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and the Proceedings of the 35th. Annual Meeting of 1925, pp. 63, 754.

It seemed to be the opinion of the committee that this section does not apply to and will not affect the law respecting contracts to arbitrate future controversies since it is expressly limited to controversies existing at the time of contract and that the prior law as to future disputes remains as it was prior to the passage. If this be the proper construction then, under the law of this state as it now exists, future contracts to arbitrate which classify as conditions precedent are valid but those classifying as collateral stipulations are invalid. The test applied to the contract being whether it ousts the court of jurisdiction over the contract generally; if it does, it is invalid. See Swaim v Swaim, 14 N. C. 24.

The following North Carolina cases discuss the rule and illustrate the application of it as to future disputes.

"The original doctrine, with its modifications, is well summoned up by Justice Manning in Kelly v. Trimont Lodge, 154 N. C. 97, 100, 69 S. E. 764; 'Our court has uniformly held to the doctrine that when a cause of action has arisen, the courts cannot be ousted of their jurisdiction by agreements, previously entered into, to submit the liabilities and rights of the parties to the determination of other tribunals named in the agreement; but it has been also generally held that the agreement to submit the particular question of the amount of loss or damage of the assured under an insurance policy is not against public policy and is sustained. That is simply a method for the ascertainment of a single fact, and not the determination of the legal liability of the insurer,' citing Mfg. Co. v. Assur. Co., 106 N. C. 28, 19 S. E. 1057, and in Braddy v. Ins. Co., 115 N. C. 354, 20 S. E. 477, Justice Avery says the proposition is well settled that an agreement to submit to arbitration the single question of the amount of loss by fire is valid." Nelson v. Atlantic R. Co., 157 N. C. 194, 201, 72 S. E. 998.

"It is generally accepted that it is competent to contract that the amount of damages may be recovered, or the existence of any fact which may enter into the right to recover, shall be submitted to arbitration, provided the right of action is not embraced in the agreement." Nelson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 157 N. C. 194, 199, 72 S. E. 998.

Although an agreement to arbitrate the entire controversy is not enforcible, and prior to the award either party may revoke the agreement, if he fails to do so, and enters upon the arbitration, and an award is made, he is bound. Nelson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 157 N. C. 194, 202, 72 S. E. 998; Williams v. Mfg. Co., 154 N. C. 205, 208, 70 S. E. 290.

The law of this state is in accord with the law of the majority of the American States (See 5 C. J. pp. 43 et. seq., sections 69-72), but it may be of interest to note that a very recent school of thought has given rise to the doctrine that all contracts to arbitrate future contracts are valid and enforcible. This is made statutory in several jurisdictions including New York (passing the first of such statutes in 1920), New Jersey, Massachusetts, Oregon, California and the Federal Government. See the discussion in the Handbook, cited supra in this note.

Arbitration Pending Reference.—Where a cause has been referred, and pending the reference the parties agree to an arbitration and that the referee's conclusions of law should be based on the arbitrators' findings, the arbitration is not one submitted in accordance with this section and its provisions do not apply. Andrews v. Jordan, 205 N. C. 618, 172 S. E. 319.

Arbitration as Matter of Contract.—It will be observed that this statute makes the right of arbitration a matter of contract; and it is only by agreement of the parties that a proceeding under it may be had. This is but the adoption of the common law in this respect for it has been held uniformly in this state that a submission to arbitration was a contract resulting from the agreement to refer, and that it was governed by the general law concerning contracts. Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 159 N. C. 81, 74 S. E. 739.

Same—Claim Which May Be Arbitrated.—It is to be observed that this statute permits the submission of any controversy existing. It makes no express exception of controversies involving the right or title to real estate. It has been said by some of the standard authorities that arbitration statutes usually prohibit, either expressly or by necessary implication, such controversies. While it is a fact that the statutes of many of the states expressly prohibit the submission to arbitration of questions involving the title of freehold estates in land, it is doubtful whether statutes silent upon the subject or which use language that is broad enough to include disputes concerning the title to such estates are construed as prohibiting their submission. Nevertheless the case of Fowler v. Bigelow, 8 Mass. 1, so construed a statute using the words "disputes of what nature soever" but placed the decision upon the ground that another provision that the party found indebted may discharge himself by paying the sum awarded indicated an intention of the legislature to limit arbitration to personal demands. But there is a vigorous criticism of this holding in the footnotes to the case which submits that the statute is not so limited and that even if it were the arbitration should have been held good at common law.

It would seem that there are no words in the present statute which so limit its application.

While at old common law such cases could not be arbitrated because of the restriction upon the alienation of realty under feudal tenure, under the later common law such questions could be submitted to arbitration provided the submission was in writing. Oral submissions were invalid because they fell within the statute of frauds. This was the law of this state prior to this statute (see Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 14 S. E. 685; Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498; and it would seem that this statute, since it requires a written submission, would extend to all disputes existing, including those involving title to land.

It has been held as a general rule that claims arising out of illegal contracts or transactions cannot be submitted to arbitration, (it has so been held in Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, Mississippi, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania), although the decisions of some of the states hold otherwise (Alabama and New Hampshire). As to whether such disputes may be arbitrated under this statute, quaere.

Same—Sufficiency of Contract.—Since under this statute the submission of a dispute to arbitration is a contract, it is but reasonable to suppose that such contracts must have all the elements necessary to a binding contract. See the general discussion in 5 C. J. [15 et seq.] 23.

Thus, the parties thereto must have the legal capacity to enter into it. The general rule is that if they have the capacity to contract or release their rights generally they may agree to arbitrate, otherwise they cannot. While there are no decisions, as yet, so construing this statute, this has always been the general rule and it is but reasonable to suppose that the framers of this statute intended to leave it unchanged.

A party having this capacity can not act through an agent or attorney in the same manner as was always possible. See 2 C. J. [302] 655; 6 C. J. [158] 650 et seq.

The consideration supporting the contract of arbitration is the mutual promises and this is sufficient. See Mayo v. Gardner, 49 N. C. 359.

Who May Make Contract.—This section provides that "Two or more parties may agree." It does not specify whether the parties may do so by their general agents or by their attorneys. Prior to this act it was held under the common law practice that the attorneys might make such an agreement and this without the consent of the clients (Millsaps v. Estes, 134 N. C. 486, 46 S. E. 988, and citations); it would seem that a party could have made the contract by agent in the same manner that any other contract could have been made. It is to be presumed that the word "parties" as here used is given the meaning ordinarily ascribed to the word in legal terminology and that about the same latitude will be given the parties in making the agreement that they have always had. As has always been the case, administrators (see sec. 99, and McLeod v. Graham, 132 N. C. 473, 43 S. E. 935), trustees, guardians and other representatives may no doubt represent the estates or their wards, cestui que trusts, etc., in this capacity.

It was held prior to this section, following the ordinary rule of contracts, that an agreement made by an infant was voidable. It was also held that a guardian ad litem could not bind the infant by a submission to arbitration, even though the submission was made the rule of the court. Millsaps v. Estes, 137 N. C. 535, 536, 50 S. E. 227.

Necessity of Controversy Being Litigated.—It is not necessary, it would seem, that the controversy be pending in a court before it can be arbitrated, for any existing controversy might be arbitrated. See Parrish v. Strickland, 52 N. C. 504. A cause that is pending may be arbitrated (See Islay v. Steward, 20 N. C. 297); this was true at common law and under all the statutes, it would seem, unless the contrary is expressly provided for. See 5 C. J., p. 26, secs. 22-24; 1 Enc. Dig. p. 870 [sec. 3].

Same—Consent of Court.—It was a rule at common law that where a pending case is submitted the consent of the court is a prerequisite.

Necessity for Writing.—Prior to this act, the necessity of the agreement being in writing depended upon the law of general contracts so that some of such contracts had to be in writing and others did not, depending upon whether they fell within the statute. See Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 189, 14 S. E. 685; Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498.

Power to Revoke.—Since the word "submission" means to agree to refer the matter in dispute (See Words and Phrases, title "Submission" and see 56 C. J. [19] p. 21), this section denies the right to revoke a contract to submit an existing controversy to arbitration after it is once made. It changes the prior rule in this state which permitted a revocation by either party at any time before the rendition of the award [for prior law see Long v. Cromer, 181 N. C. 354, 107 S. E. 217; Williams v. Mfg. Co., 153 N. C. 7, 68 S. E. 902 and citations. For other cases see 1 Enc. Dig. p. 874, section 14(1)], or thereafter, even when it has been made a rule of the court, with the consent of the judge (see Tyson v. Robinson, 25 N. C. 333, 1 Enc. Dig. p. 815, section 14 (2), for the prior law).

Same—Causes for Which Contract May Be Revoked.—See the title Contracts, 3 Enc. Dig. pp. 418 et seq., sections 59 et seq., 13 Enc. Dig. pp. 447 et seq., sections 59 et seq.

Effect of Death of Party.—While prior to this act the death of one of the parties before the award automatically revoked the contract to arbitrate, (see Whitfield v. Whitfield, 30 N. C. 163; Williams v. Branning Mfg. Co., 153 N. C. 7, 68 S. E. 902) this section changes the rule so that now the effect of such death upon contract is the same as it is upon an ordinary contract.

Number of Arbitrators. — Notwithstanding that section 898(d) provides that in case the agreement fails to prescribe a method for appointment of the arbitrators the judge shall appoint three, there are no provisions prescribing the number of arbitrators the parties may appoint. If an even number should be appointed by the parties and they should divide evenly as to what the award should be, no method of determining the tie is prescribed. Under the prior law the arbitrators could appoint an umpire (See Stevens v. Brown, 82 N. C. 460; Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185. For full treatment, 1 Enc. Dig. 882, sections 30 et seq.); as to whether this would be permissible in the absence of an agreement to that effect, quaere.

Notice to Arbitrators of Appointment.—See annotations under sec. 898(d).

§ 898(b). Statement of questions in controversy.—The arbitration agreement must state the question or questions in controversy with sufficient definiteness to present one or more issues or questions upon which an award may be based. (1927, c. 94, s. 2.)

§ 898(c). "Court" defined.—The term "court" when used in this article means a court having jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter. (1927, c. 94, s. 3.)

§ 898(d) Cases where court may appoint arbitrator; number of arbitrators.—Upon the application in writing of any party to the arbitration agreement and upon notice to the other parties thereto, the court shall appoint an arbitrator or arbitrators in any of the following cases:

(a) When the arbitration agreement does not prescribe a method for the appointment of arbitrators, in which case the arbitration shall be by three arbitrators.

(b) When the arbitration agreement does prescribe a method for the appointment of arbitrators, or any of them, have not been appointed and the time within which they should have been appointed has expired.

(c) When any arbitrator fails or is otherwise unable to act, and his successor has not been appointed in the manner in which he was appointed.

Arbitrators appointed by the court shall have the same power as though their appointment had been made in accordance with the agreement to arbitrate. (1927, c. 94, s. 4.)

As to competency of arbitration under prior law, see 1 Enc. Dig. 879, sec 24.

As to number of arbitrators generally, see note to sec. 898(a).

Editor's Note.—Prior to this act the appointments must have been made by the parties in pursuance of the agreement if the controversy was not pending. But if it were pending the appointment might have been made by the court with the consent of the parties. See the note under sec. 898(a).

Notice of Appointment to Arbitrators.—There was no necessity that the arbitrators under the former law be informed of their appointment by a formal or written notice. It was sufficient if they were appointed, met and made an award. Allison v. Bryson, 65 N. C. 44. This will probably apply to appointments made under the present law whether by the parties or the courts. Ed. note.

§ 898(e). Application in writing; hearing.—That any application made under authority of this act shall be made in writing and heard in a summary way in the manner and upon the notice provided by law or rules of court for the making and hearing of motions, except as otherwise herein expressly provided. (1927, c. 94, s. 5.)

§ 898(f). Notice of time and place of hearing.—The arbitrators shall appoint a time and place for the hearing, and notify the parties thereof, and may adjourn the hearing from time to time as may be necessary, and, on application of either party, and for good cause, may postpone the hearing to a time not extending beyond the date fixed for making the award. (1927, c. 94, s. 6.)

Former Law.—It may be stated as a general rule that the parties had a right to a notice of the time and place of hearing if the judgment of the arbitrators may have been influenced or enlightened by evidence. Grimes v. Brown, 113 N. C. 154, 18 S. E. 87; Zell v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 302. This probably extended to adjourned meetings, except that no notice of a final meeting to make up and sign the award was ever necessary. Zell v. Johnston, supra; 5 C. J. [§181], 87.

§ 898(g). Hearing if party fails to appear.—If any party neglects to appear before the arbitrators after reasonable notice the arbitrators may nevertheless proceed to hear and determine the controversy upon the evidence which is produced before them. (1927, c. 94, s. 7.)

§ 898(h). Award within sixty days.—If the time within which the award shall be made is not fixed in the arbitration agreement, the award must be made within sixty days from the time of the appointment of the arbitrators, and an award made after the lapse of sixty days shall have no legal effect unless the parties extend the time in which said award may be made, which extension or ratification shall be in writing. (1927, c. 94, s. 8.)

Former Law. — Under the former law, the time given in which to submit the award was fixed either by the agreement or the order of the court submitting the question by the consent of the parties. See 5 C. J. [288], 123.

Provisions Subject to Waiver.—Where hearings are held before the arbitrators more than sixty days after the submission to arbitration, and all parties are present or represented by counsel, the unsuccessful party may not wait until after the award has been made and then set up for the first time his contention that the award was of no effect because not made within sixty days after the submission, the provisions of this section being subject to waiver, and the award as rendered is binding on the parties. Andrews v. Jordan, 205 N. C. 618, 172 S. E. 319.

§ 898(i). Representation before arbitrators.—No one other than a party to said arbitration, or a person regularly employed by such party for other purposes, or a practicing attorney-at-law, shall be permitted by the arbitrator or arbitrators to represent before him or them any party to the arbitration. (1927, c. 94, s. 9.)

§ 898(j). Requirement of attendance of witnesses.—The arbitrator or arbitrators, or a majority of them, may require any person to attend before him or them as a witness, and to bring with him any book or writing or other evidence.

The fees for such attendance shall be the same as the fees of witnesses in the Superior Court.

Subpœnas shall issue in the name of the arbitrator or arbitrators, or a majority of them, and shall be signed by the arbitrator or arbitrators, or a majority of them, and shall be directed to the person and shall be served in the same manner as subpœnas to testify before a court of record in this State; if any person so summoned to testify shall refuse or neglect to obey such subpœnas, upon petition the court may compel the attendance of such person before the said arbitrator or arbitrators, or punish said person for contempt in the same manner now provided for the attendance of witnesses or the punishment of them in the courts of this State. (1927, c. 94, s. 10.)

Editor's Note. — At common law the arbitrators could not of themselves compel the attendance of witnesses. And where they heard evidence they were not compelled to administer oaths, though they could do so. (See Pierce v. Perkins, 17 N. C. 250; McCrae v. Robeson, 6 N. C. 127). The mode of hearing testimony must have been fair and impartial to the parties. See Pierce v. Perkins, supra. Hurdle v. Stallings, 109 N. C. 6, 13 S. E. 720.

§ 898(k). Depositions.—Depositions may be taken with or without a commission in the same manner and for the same reasons as provided by law for the taking of depositions in suits pending in the courts of record in this State. (1927, c. 94, s. 11.)

Editor's Note. — There was no method of taking depositions in arbitration proceedings at common law.

§ 898(l). Orders for preservation of property.—At any time before final determination of the arbitration the court may upon application of a party to the submission make such order or decree or take such proceeding as it may deem necessary for the preservation of the property or for securing satisfaction of the award. (1927, c. 94, s. 12.)

Editor's Note. — Under this section the incidental remedies of attachment, injunction, receivership, and arrest, all occasionally vital to the protection of the plaintiff's interest, may be had; while under the New York law and the states which have passed it [see Editor's note under sec. 898(a)], the plaintiff cannot avail himself of them without having his right to compel arbitration.

§ 898(m). Powers of arbitrators.—The arbitrators may, on their own motion, and shall by request of a party to the arbitration,

(a) At any stage of the proceedings submit any question of law arising in the course of the hearing for the opinion of the court, stating the facts upon which the question arises, and such opinion when given shall bind the arbitrators in the making of their award:

(b) State their final award in the form of a conclusion of fact for the opinion of the court on the questions of law arising on the hearing. (1927, c. 94, s. 13.)

§ 898(n). Award in writing and signed by arbitrators.—The award of the arbitrators, or a majority of them, shall be drawn up in writing and signed by the arbitrators or a majority of them; the award shall definitely deal with all matters of difference in the submission requiring a settlement, but the arbitrators may, in their discretion, first make a partial award which shall be enforceable in the same manner as the final award; upon the making of an award, the arbitrators shall deliver a true copy thereof to each of the parties thereto, or their attorneys, without delay. (1927, c. 94, s. 14.)

Prior Law—Necessity for Writing. — It would seem that under the prior law the award need be in writing only when required by the agreement or come within the general statutes of fraud. See Crissman v. Crissman, 27 N. C. 498, 503; Gaylord v. Gaylord, 48 N. C. 368, 369. See also 5 C. J. [262] 114.

Same—Signature of Arbitrators. — In order for an award to have been available, as evidence under the prior law it was necessary that it be signed by the arbitrators. Morrison v. Russell, 32 N. C. 273. The signature by persons other than the arbitrators has been held not to vitiate the award when it is properly signed by a majority of the arbitrators. Carter v. Sams, 20 N. C. 321.

Same—Dealing with All Matters Submitted. — It has always been necessary for arbitrators to pass on all the points particularly referred to them Osborne v. Calvart, 83 N. C. 365; for further cases see 1 Enc. Dig. sec. [44(3)] 886); otherwise the award was entirely void. But if the submission covered all matters in difference without specifying them, the arbitrators could make an award of only such things as they had notice, and the award was good. Walker v. Walker, 60 N. C. 255.

"The award on its face ought to show that the arbitrators have acted upon all the matters submitted." Crisp v. Love, 65 N. C. 126, 127.

For cases on limited submission and conformity thereto, see 1 Enc. Dig. [sec. 44(5)] 887, 13 Enc. Dig. [44(5) 172.]

Same—Matters Not Submitted. — Matters passed on by the arbitrators not submitted to them rendered the award void in the absence of waiver as by the voluntary introduction of evidence on matters not submitted. Robertson v. Marshall, 155 N. C. 167, 71 S. E. 67. The power of the arbitrators is derived from the submission and the award must be made in strict accordance with it, and must not go beyond what is embraced in it. Cullifer v. Gilliam, 31 N. C. 126; Cutler v. Cutler, 169 N. C. 482, 86 S. E. 301.

However, if the decision of submitted questions involved the decision of other questions not submitted, the decision of the latter was not error. Zell v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 302.

Same—Copy and Delivery of Award. — Under the prior law it was not necessary, in the absence of agreement to that effect, that a copy of the award be given to the parties. All that was necessary was that the parties have notice of the award as by being present when it was agreed upon and signed. With full understanding as to its meaning a demand for a copy should have been made at the time of rendition if the parties wanted it. See Crawford v. Orr, 84 N. C. 246; Morrison v. Russell, 32 N. C. 273.

Form of Award. — There has never been any requirement in this state as to the form of the award, this having been left to the choice of the arbitrators unless the agreement specified a form. Ball Thrash Co. v. McCormack, 172 N. C. 677, 90 S. E. 916.

Award Liberally Construed. — Under the prior law it was held that the court will always intend everything in favor of an award and will give such construction to it that it may be supported if possible. Carter v. Sams, 20 N. C. 321.

§ 898(o). Time for application for confirmation. —At any time within three months after the award is made, unless the parties shall extend the time in writing, any party to the arbitration may apply to the court for an order confirming the award, and the court shall grant such an order unless the award is vacated, modified, or corrected, as provided in the next two sections. Notice in writing of the motion must be served upon the adverse party, or his attorney, five days before the hearing thereof. (1927, c. 94, s. 15.)

Effect upon Prior Law. — This section provides the method of enforcing an award after it is made.

The practice in this state regarding the enforcement of this award depended upon whether or not the matter submitted was pending in court. If it were, and the agreement was made in court, then the arbitrators reported the award to the court when it became a rule of the court if confirmed. If the controversy was pending but the agreement was made out of court, then the award had to be submitted to the court for conformation in order that it may be effective to settle the controversy and become the judgment of the court. The court had no power to make submissions to arbitration rules of court except when the subject matter was a pending suit. See Alexander v. Burton, 21 N. C. 469. If the cause were not pending then the award could be enforced in court only by a suit upon it as if it were a contract. Under this section the award operates as a verdict of the jury irrespective of whether the cause was pending, and upon application to the court as prescribed, judgment is entered thereon. For full treatment of prior law see the cases cited in 1 Enc. Dig. [secs. 58, 67, 68, 69] pp. 900, 906, 907-913.

§ 898(p). Order vacating award.—In any of the following cases the court shall after notice and hearing make an order vacating the award, upon the application of any party to the arbitration:

(a) Where the award was procured by corruption, fraud or other undue means.

(b) Where there was evident partiality or corruption in the arbitrators, or either of them.

(c) Where the arbitrators were guilty of misconduct, in refusing to postpone the hearing, upon sufficient cause shown, or in refusing to hear evidence pertinent and material to the controversy; or of any other misbehavior, by which the rights of any party have been prejudiced.

(d) Where the arbitrators exceeded their powers or so imperfectly executed them that a mutual, final, and definite award upon the subject matter submitted was not made.

Where an award is vacated and the time, within which the agreement required the award to be made, has not expired, the court may, in its discretion, direct a rehearing by the arbitrators. (1927, c. 94, s. 16.)

As to effect of exceeding or imperfectly exercising powers under prior law, see note to sec. 898(n). As to effect of fraud, misconduct, mistakes, error, partial invalidity, and impeachments or vacations under prior law, see 1 Enc. Dig. [secs. 50-52, 60-63] 893-897, 900-902. As to recommittal under prior law, see 1 Enc. Dig. [58] 900.

Editor's Note.—It was proposed to the committee which framed this act [see note to sec. 898(a)] by one of its members that the word "either" in sub-section(b) should be changed to "any"; and that the words "signing the award" should be added so that corruption or partiality on the part of a minority of the arbitrators should not oblige the court to vacate the award. The committeeman contended that as the language now stands, it would oblige the court to vacate the awards. His suggestion was not adopted because the section, when construed with the prior section of the act, would be given the interpretation which he contends should be placed upon it.

The language of this section follows the language used in the same section in the law of several of the states.

§ 898(q). Order modifying or correcting award. —In any of the following cases the court shall, after notice and hearing make an order modifying or correcting the award, upon the application of any party to the arbitration:

(a) Where there was an evident miscalculation of figures, or an evident mistake in the description of any person, thing or property, referred to in the award.

(b) Where the arbitrators have awarded upon a matter not submitted to them.

(c) Where the award is imperfect in a matter of form, not affecting the merits of the controversy.

The order must modify and correct the award, so as to effect the intent thereof. (1927, c. 94, s. 17.)

§ 898(r). Notice of motion to vacate, modify or correct award within three months.—Notice of a motion to vacate, modify or correct an award shall be served upon the adverse party, or his attorney, within three months after an award is filed or delivered, as prescribed by law for service of notice of a motion in an action. For the purposes of the motion any judge who might make an order to stay the proceedings, in an action brought in the same court, may make an order to be served with the notice of motion, staying the proceedings of the adverse party to enforce the award. (1927, c. 94, s. 18.)

As to motion to vacate under prior law, see 1 Enc. Dig. [sec. 62] 901.

§ 898(s). Judgment or decree entered.—Upon the granting of an order, confirming, modifying, correcting or vacating an award, judgment or decree shall be entered in conformity therewith. (1927, c. 94, s. 19.)

See editor's note under 898(o) as to when judgment may have been entered under prior law; see also 1 Enc. Dig. [sec. 68] 907-911 as to manner of entry, defenses thereto, and necessity of conformity to award.

§ 898(t). Papers to be filed on motion relating to award.—The party moving for an order confirming, modifying, correcting or vacating an award, shall at the time such motion is filed with the clerk, file, unless the same have theretofore been filed, the following papers with the clerk:

(a) The written contract or a verified copy thereof containing the agreement for the submission; the selection or appointment of the arbitrator or arbitrators, and each written extension of the time, if any within which to make the award.

(b) The award.

(c) Every notice, affidavit and other paper used upon an application to confirm, modify, correct or vacate the award, and each order made upon such an application.

The judgment or decree shall be entered (or docketed) as if it were rendered in an action. (1927, c. 94, s. 20.)

§ 898(u). Force and effect of judgment or decree.—The judgment or decree so entered (or docketed) shall have the same force and effect, in all respects, as, and be subject to all provisions of law relating to a judgment or decree; and it may be enforced, as if it had been rendered in the court in which it is entered. (1927, c. 94, s. 21.)

Prior Practice.—Prior to the enactment of this section the procedure depended upon whether the arbitration was of a matter pending in court, or whether it was a submission in pais and not as incident to a pending proceeding.

Under the first class judgment was entered upon the award in cases where no exceptions were filed thereto. And this was true irrespective of whether the proceeding was had by order of the court or by agreement of the parties so long as in the latter case the parties agreed to such an entry of judgment. In case exceptions were filed, and the parties always had the right to file them, there was a right to have the issues tried by a jury if demanded. For citation of authority see 1 Enc. Dig. 907 sec. 68.

In the second class mentioned in the first paragraph of this note the parties had to go into court and sue on the award thereby obtaining judgment. A thorough treatment will be found in the 1 Enc. Dig. 911 sec. 69.

Force and Effect under Prior Law.—"Ordinarily, if their award be within their powers and unaffected by fraud, mistake, surprise or irregularity, the judge has no power over it except to make it a rule of court and enforce it according to the course of the court." Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185, 188.

Same—Agreement to Become Rule of Court.—"An agreement that an award shall be a rule (or judgment) of Court is merely an agreement to confess judgment according to the award when it shall be made. If such agreement be made by persons having no suit in court respecting the matters referred, a court (in this state at least) will not compel performance of the agreement by attachment because the parties have not put themselves under its jurisdiction, but will leave them to their remedy by action on the agreement. Alexander v. Burton, 21 N. C. 469. If, however, such an agreement is made between the parties to a suit, the court having jurisdiction over the persons and the subject-matter will compel the parties by attachment to perform the agreement by confessing judgment according to the award, or, as a more direct way to the same end, will (in this state at least) enter judgment according to the award." Cunningham v. Howell, 23 N. C. 9; Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185, 188.

Effect of Arbitrators Attempting to Decide by Law.—Where it appears that the arbitrators intended to decide according to law, if they clearly mistake the law, the judge may set aside the award, and perhaps in some cases give such judgment as they ought in law to have given. Lusk v. Clayton, 70 N. C. 185, 188.

§ 898(v). Appeal.—An apppeal may be taken from the final judgment or decree entered by the court. (1927, c. 94, s. 22.)

Editor's Note.—This section was taken from the law of Illinois, which was passed by the acts of 1893, sec. 15.

This section is specific in that it is limited to the final judgment or decree entered by the court, and cannot be taken from the arbitration directly. In other words it may be taken in accordance with section 898(n) and (p).

Notwithstanding that in many states an appeal can be had only in cases of fraud or some matter that goes to the very essence of the thing, this section gives the right of appeal in all cases. See Handbook on the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and the proceedings of the 35th annual meeting of 1925, pages 63, 701.

§ 898(w). Uniformity of interpretation — Interpretation of article.—This article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1927, c. 94, s. 23.)

§ 898(x). Citation of article.—This article may be cited as the uniform arbitration act. (1927, c. 94, s. 24.)

Art. 44. Examination of Parties

§ 899. Action for discovery abolished.—No action to obtain discovery under oath, in aid of the prosecution or defense of another action, shall be allowed, nor shall any examination of a party be had on behalf of the adverse party, except in the manner prescribed by this article. (Rev., s. 864; Code, s. 579; C. C. P., s. 332.)

As to inspection of documents, see sec. 1823; as to examination of corporations, see sec. 900.

Editor's Note.—In 1851 Parliament passed what was known as Lord Denman's Act, which provided that in all actions or proceedings and at all stages, before any person having authority to hear evidence, "the parties thereto and the persons in whose behalf any such suit or action or other proceeding may be brought or defended, shall, except as hereinafter excepted, be competent and compellable to give evidence, either viva voce or by deposition, according to the practice of the court, on behalf of either or any of the parties to the said suit, action or other proceeding."

In section 6 of Lord Denman's Act it was also provided that in all actions pending in the superior courts of common law the right to compell the production of, to inspect and take copies of the papers of an adversary party should be confined to those cases where a discovery might have been obtained at the instance of the moving party by a bill or other proceeding in a court of equity. 14 and 15 Vic., 91 Stat. at Large, ch. 99, §§ 2 to 6, inclusive; 2 Taylor on Ev., sec. 1217. See Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 296, 17 S. E. 161.

At the time this Act was passed, the various courts of law and chancery were still maintained with the established procedure in each. When the courts of equity were abolished in this State, Lord Denman's Act was practically incorporated into the C. C. P. These provisions were carried forward in the Code of 1883 as sections 578 to 584, both inclusive, and section 588 in totidem verbis, except the proviso to sec. 580. With few variations, Battle's Revisal, ch. 17, sections 332 to 341 are the same as the sections of the Code referred to.

With some exceptions and additions, these provisions were carried forward in a substantial form, and now constitute sections 899 to 907 of this Code. The Code of New York, Voorhees, section 389 to 397, both inclusive, contains practically the same provisions as are found in our statutes. Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. 161; McLeod v. Bullard, 84 N. C. 516.

Substitute for Bill of Discovery. — This article abolishes and is a substitute for the old equitable bill of discovery. Dunn v. Johnson, 115 N. C. 249, 257, 20 S. E. 390; Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 261, 11 S. E. 470; Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 297, 17 S. E. 161; Hudson v. Jordan, 108 N. C. 10, 13, 12 S. E. 1029.

Same—Rules Governing.—In Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 301, 17 S. E. 161. Avery, J., quoting 1 Pomeroy, Jur., sec. 194, says: "The principles and doctrines relating to discovery, which have been settled by the courts of equity and which determine what facts parties can be compelled to disclose and what documents to produce, and under what circumstances the disclosures or productions can be obtained, will still continue to be recognized by the courts and to regulate their action in enforcing the examination of parties and the production of writings by means of the more summary statutory proceedings. The abolition or discontinuance of technical 'discovery' has not abrogated those principles and doctrines. Recurring to the language of the statutes for the purpose of giving my own construction we find that the legislature may be said to have discontinued the formal bill of discovery, but to have retained the right to compel similar disclosures in the manner prescribed."

§ 900. Adverse party examined.—A party to an action may be examined as a witness at the instance of any adverse party, and for that purpose may be compelled, in the same manner and subject to the same rules of examination as any other witness, to testify, either at the trial or conditionally or upon commission. Where a corporation is a party to the action, this examination may be made of any of its officers or agents. (Rev., s. 865; Code, s. 580; C. C. P., s. 333; 1907, c. 799.)

Cross References.—As to examination of parties and witnesses in supplemental proceedings, see sec. 715; as to examination before trial, see sec. 901 and annotations thereto.

Construction.—This section is remedial, and should be liberally construed to advance the remedy afforded. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 11, 144 S. E. 297.

Substitute for Bill of Discovery.—This section is a substitute for a bill of discovery. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 144 S. E. 297.

Order for Bill of Particulars.—The fact that a defendant might have proceeded under this section and the following section for an examination of the adverse party does not render the granting of his motion to require plaintiff to make his complaint more definite and certain as provided by § 537, or file a bill of particulars under § 534, improvident as a matter of law, and the trial court's action in striking out such order on the ground that it was improvidently entered is reviewable and will be held for error. Temple v. Western Union Tel. Co., 205 N. C. 441, 171 S. E. 630.

Leave of Court Unnecessary.—It is not necessary that a party to an action, who desires to examine an adverse party, as authorized by this section, shall first obtain leave from the court to make such examination. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 10, 144 S. E. 297.

Nonresidence.—The right to make such examination, is not affected by the nonresidence of the adverse party when he has submitted to the jurisdiction of the court by filing pleadings. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 144 S. E. 297.

Premature Appeal.—Where an order for an examination of an adverse party in order to obtain evidence is granted in an action in which the pleadings have been filed, an appeal from such order prior to the examination is premature, and will be dismissed. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 144 S. E. 297.

An appeal from an order for the examination of the agents of the defendant corporation under this section in order to obtain information upon which to base the complaint, is premature and will be dismissed. Johnson v. Mills, 196 N. C. 93, 144 S. E. 534.

Joinder with Order for Inspection of Writings.—An examination of an adverse party under this section may be joined with an order under § 1823 for an inspection of writings. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 11, 144 S. E. 297.

Manner of Examination.—Where the court has entered an order that an adverse party answer questions he had refused to answer before a commissioner appointed under the provisions of sec. 901, a further provision that the party would be deemed to have complied if he thereafter filed answer under oath, deprives the examining party of his right to be present for cross-examination, etc., and is contrary to the provisions of this section requiring that such examination must be in the same manner and subject to the same rules as applicable to other witnesses, etc. Cartwright v. Southern, etc., R. Co., 176 N. C. 36, 96 S. E. 647.

County of Examination.—An examination under this and following sections of the article may be had in any county wherein the witness resides or where he may be found within the state. Commissioners v. Lemly, 85 N. C. 342, 347.

Directors of Corporation Examined.—In an action by a stockholder of a corporation to set aside as fraudulent an assignment of a contract by the corporation, the directors may be compelled to disclose information to enable the plaintiff to frame his complaint even though their evidence may result in pecuniary injury. Holt v. Southern Finishing, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 480, 21 S. E. 919.

Same—Appeal Does Not Lie from Order.—An appeal does not lie (being premature) from an order directing the examination of directors of a corporation under the provisions of this section in an action by a stockholder against the corporation, or from a refusal to discharge such order. Holt v. Southern Finishing, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 480, 21 S. E. 919.

Answers as Evidence.—Where a defendant has been examined after the filing of the complaint in the action, but before trial in accordance with this section, his answers to the questions propounded on the examination are competent as evidence at the trial. Swainey v. Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co., 204 N. C. 713, 169 S. E. 618.

§ 901. Before trial in his own county.—The examination, instead of being had at the trial, as provided in the preceding section, may be had at any time before the trial, at the option of the party claiming it, before a judge, commissioner duly appointed to take depositions, or clerk of the court, on a previous notice to the party to be examined, and any other adverse party, of at least five days, unless for good cause shown the judge or court orders otherwise. (Rev., s. 866; Code, s. 581; 1893, c. 114; C. C. P., s. 334; 1899, c. 65, s. 1.)

See section immediately preceding and annotations thereto.

Examination at Option of Party Claiming.—The examination is treated as a right to be exercised before trial at the option of the party claiming it. Vann v. Lawrence, 111 N. C. 32, 33, 15 S. E. 1031.

Examination Must Be Necessary to Secure Order.—To obtain an order for the examination of the defendant to discover necessary information to file his complaint under this section, it is necessary for the plaintiff to show under oath that in good faith the information sought is not otherwise available to him, and its necessity in such detail as will enable the court to pass thereon, and when upon an appeal from the refusal of the order this has not been done, the decision of the lower court will not be disturbed. Chesson v. Washington County Bank, 190 N. C. 187, 129 S. E. 403.

The court is not bound to order an examination of a defendant for the purpose of preparing a complaint, unless it is made to appear under oath of the mover that such an order is necessary, that the evidence sought to be elicited is material, and that the application is made in good faith. Bailey v. Matthews, 156 N. C. 78, 72 S. E. 92.

Same—Appeal from Order.—An affidavit in support of a motion in the cause to allow the plaintiffs to examine the defendant adversely under the provisions of this section, showing that the defendant had assumed to manage the estate of a deceased person of whom the plaintiffs were the heirs at law under a paper purporting to be a will, but which had been set aside by the court upon caveat entered, and that this was the only available way in which certain information necessary in the action could be obtained, is sufficient to sustain the order of examination allowed by the clerk and approved by the judge of the superior court, and the defendant's appeal is accordingly dismissed in the Supreme Court. Jones v. Union Guano Co., 180 N. C. 319, 104 S. E. 653, cited and distinguished. Whitehurst v. Hinton, 184 N. C. 11, 113 S. E. 500.

A party cannot appeal from an order to appear before the clerk to be examined under oath concerning the matters set out in the pleadings. Pender v. Mallett, 122 N. C. 163, 30 S. E. 324.

An appeal will not lie directly to the Supreme Court from an order of the superior court judge affirming the action of the clerk in ordering the examination of the defendant to elicit certain information, alleged to be not otherwise obtainable, and material to the filing of the complaint, when it does not appear that the defendant will be prejudiced or injured thereby. Monroe v. Holder, 182 N. C. 79, 108 S. E. 359.

Defendant Examined to Aid in Framing Complaint.—Under this section the defendant may be examined before the pleadings are filed to procure information in framing the complaint. Pender v. Mallett, 123 N. C. 57, 60, 31 S. E. 351.

The plaintiff in an action for injuries by alleged neglect of a physician may, under this section providing that an examination of a defendant may be had at any time before the trial, have an examination of the defendant to aid him in filing his complaint, where he alleges that he knows the facts generally and substantially, but that the defendant has the precise knowledge necessary for proper proceedings. Smith v. Wooding, 177 N. C. 546, 94 S. E. 404.

Upon application to examine a defendant before the clerk of the superior court, prior to trial and to aid in preparing the complaint, such facts as will entitle the movant to the order must be made to appear by affidavit; but after filing a verified complaint setting out a cause of action, the plaintiff has a right to the order for examination, and the leave of the court is unnecessary. Ward v. Martin, 175 N. C. 287, 95 S. E. 621.

Examination—Before Commissioner. — The party may be examined before a commissioner appointed to take the examination, but the commission must issue out of the court in which the cause is pending. Vyne v. Fogle Bros. Co., 176 N. C. 351, 352, 97 S. E. 147.

Same—Before Clerk.—When a party elects to have the examination before the clerk it would seem that the mode of conducting it must be in all respects the same as if had before the judge. Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 303, 17 S. E. 161.

Under this section the clerk is clothed with precisely the same authority as the judge. Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 147, 17 S. E. 69.

Same—Not Part of Pleadings.—The examination of the defendant filed in the record should not be taken as part of the answer for the purpose of passing upon a demurrer. The examination is not intended by the law to be a part of the pleading, but is in its very nature simply evidence which can be used by the plaintiff in support of his allegations and which may be rebutted by the defendant. Whitaker v. Jenkins, 138 N. C. 476, 481, 51 S. E. 104.

Sufficiency of Application.—An application for an order for the examination of an adverse party under this section must contain positive averments, and must not be argumentative, and mere statements that the examination is necessary and material is not sufficient, but the statute will not be construed so as to preclude an examination of an adverse party when the affidavit shows good faith, necessity, and materiality, and where it is alleged that the necessary information cannot be had from any person except the adverse party because all other persons with such information are outside the jurisdiction, the application is sufficient, and an order based thereon will be upheld. Bell v. Murchison National Bank, 196 N. C. 233, 145 S. E. 241.

Notice.—The provision, "unless for good cause shown, the judge or court orders otherwise," applies to the length of notice which he can make less than the five days prescribed. Vann v. Lawrence, 111 N. C. 32, 33, 15 S. E. 1031.

§ 902. Compelling attendance of party for examination before trial.—The party to be examined, as provided in the preceding section, may be compelled to attend in the same manner as a witness who is to be examined conditionally; but he shall not be compelled to attend in any county other than that of his residence or where he may be served with a summons for his attendance. The examination shall be taken and filed by the judge, clerk or commissioner, as in case of witnesses examined conditionally, and may be read by either party on the trial. (Rev., ss. 866, 867; Code, ss. 581, 582; C. C. P., ss. 334, 335; 1899, c. 65, s. 2.)

Either Party May Subject Other to Examination.—Either plaintiff or defendant may subject the adversary party or person adversely interested in the action to examination before the clerk or judge, or a commissioner appointed by the court for the purpose of eliciting evidence in support of his contention in the controversy. Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 144, 17 S. E. 69.

Claim of Privilege against Self-Crimination.—An order to examine a defendant will not be denied on the ground that the answers of the defendant will tend to incriminate him, in an action wherein the complaint has been filed alleging that the defendant had misappropriated the plaintiff's money while acting as his bookkeeper and accountant, the answers of the defendant not necessarily having to show a criminal intent, etc., and the time for his refusal to answer being when such incriminating questions are asked on the examination. Ward v. Martin, 175 N. C. 287, 95 S. E. 621.

An order to examine the party to an action under this section may not be revoked on motion made on written notice of his attorney, stating that the answers sought to be elicited will tend to incriminate him. Ward v. Martin, 175 N. C. 287, 95 S. E. 621.

County of Examination.—An examination of the defendant to discover facts necessary to be obtained in preparing a complaint must be made in the county of his residence. Bailey v. Matthews, 156 N. C. 78, 72 S. E. 92.

Proceedings to examine an adverse party before the clerk or upon commission must be instituted after summons has been issued and action commenced, and on motion before the clerk of the superior court of the same county or the judge presiding over that court, or holding the courts of the district; and a clerk of another county, where the action is not pending, is without jurisdiction over the proceedings, and his order made therein will be quashed. Vyne v. Fogle Bros. Co., 176 N. C. 351, 97 S. E. 147.

Same—Appeal. — An appeal to the Supreme Court will directly lie from the refusal of the superior court judge to vacate an order of the clerk of that court to examine an adversary party to an action pending in another county; and there being no cause therein in which an exception may be noted and preserved, an objection that the appeal is fragmentary cannot be sustained. Vyne v. Fogle Bros. Co., 176 N. C. 351, 97 S. E. 147.

May Be Read by Either Party. — The examination of an adverse party, as this section provides, may be read by either party on the trial, and is, like a deposition, de bene esse, in that it becomes "the evidence of the law." So to speak, it is "canned evidence," kept in cold storage, for it cannot be altered. In both, the testimony is subject to all valid objections taken at the time, and there is stronger reason for its competency at the trial, for, besides the express authority without any exception, that such testimony can be read "by either party at the trial," in the case of evidence de bene esse the deposition is taken in favor of the party offering it, while in a bill of discovery it is taken at the instance of the adversary party. Phillips v. Interstate Land Co., 174 N. C. 542, 546, 94 S. E. 12; Beck v. Wilkins-Ricks Co., 186 N. C. 210, 119 S. E. 235.

Party Examining Not Compelled to Use Testimony.—The fact that the plaintiff examined the defendant under this section did not compel the plaintiff to use that testimony on the trial, nor did it make that defendant in any sense the plaintiff's witness. Shober v. Wheeler, 113 N. C. 370, 376, 18 S. E. 328.

Death Does Not Render Inadmissible. — In Phillips v. Interstate Land Co., 174 N. C. 542, 546, 94 S. E. 12, quoting Rowland v. Pickney, 8 Miss. 458, it is said: "The deposition of a witness, taken before the death of one of the parties, is not inadmissible on the trial."

§ 903. Party's refusal to testify; penalty.—If a party refuses to attend and testify, as provided in the preceding sections, he may be punished as for a contempt, and his pleadings may be stricken out. (Rev., s. 869; Code, s. 584; C. C. P., s. 337.)

§ 904. Rebuttal of party's testimony.—The examination of the party thus taken may be rebutted by adverse testimony. (Rev., s. 868; Code, s. 583; C. C. P., s. 336.)

Editor's Note. — It is a well settled rule of law that one who offers and examines a witness will not be heard to impeach his character and veracity; a party is not to take and use evidence and then directly impeach the source from which it comes. To give these sections, providing for the examination of adverse parties, such a meaning would certainly introduce a novel feature into the law and practice, and subvert this ancient and time honored rule in the conduct of civil suits. It is laid down, as a clear rule, in a line of cases reaching from the early days of English jurisprudence down to the present time, that a party has no right to put a witness into the box, as a witness of credit, and when he gives unfavorable evidence, to call a witness to discredit him. Such would be fraud of the rankest kind upon the jury. While a party is not permitted to produce general evidence to discredit his own witness, but, if the witness prove facts in a cause which make against the party who called him, the party may call other witnesses to prove that the facts were otherwise. This has nothing to do with the integrity of the witness, but merely shows that, as any man might be, he is mistaken as to certain facts.

This section seems to fall within the general rule, and preclude the party who takes and introduces the examination as evidence in his own behalf from discrediting or impeaching the witness himself, except as that result may be incidental to proof of a different state of facts. By calling his adversary, a party makes him so far his own witness that he cannot impeach or disparage his general credibility. In Strudwick v. Broadnax, 83 N. C. 401, 405, it was said that we should hesitate to ascribe to the rebuttal "by adverse testimony," authorized by this section, which is defined by Worcester as "a driving or beating back, a repelling or opposing by argument or evidence," an effect so sweeping as to break down a principle so long and thoroughly established and acted on in judicial practice, without some more clear and distinct manifestation of the legislative will than is furnished by the word employed to express it. Hice v. Cox, 34 N. C. 315, citing Holdsworth v. Dartmouth, 2 M. & Rob. 153; Spencer v. White, 23 N. C. 236; Shelton v. Hampton, 28 N. C. 216; Wilson v. Derr, 69 N. C. 137.

May Rebut Deposition on Trial. — A plaintiff can rebut the defendant's deposition on trial by adverse testimony. Hudson v. Jordan, 108 N. C. 10, 13, 12 S. E. 1029.

May Contradict but Can Not Impeach. — A party who puts his adversary on the stand gives him an opportunity to testify on his own behalf on cross-examination, and waives his right of impeaching him by attacking his credibility, but retains the privilege of contradicting him by testimony of other witnesses inconsistent with his. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 262, 11 S. E. 470; Coates v. Wilkes, 92 N. C. 377, 382.

§ 905. Irresponsive answers may be met by party's own testimony.—A party examined by an adverse party, as provided in this article, may be examined in his own behalf, subject to the same rules of examination as other witnesses. But if he testifies to any new matter, not responsive to the inquiries put to him by the adverse party, or necessary to explain or qualify his answers thereto or to discharge himself when his answers would charge himself, the adverse party may offer himself and must be received as a witness in his own behalf or in respect to the new matter, subject to the same rules of examination as other witnesses. (Rev., s. 870; Code, ss. 583, 585; C. C. P., ss. 336, 338.)

§ 906. Real party in interest examined.—A person for whose immediate benefit the action is prosecuted or defended, though not a party to the action, may be examined as a witness, in the same manner, and subject to the same rules of examination, as if he was named as a party. (Rev., s. 871; Code, s. 586; C. C. P., s. 339.)

As to examination of officers and agents of a corporation, see sec. 900.

The testimony sought must be that of a person immediately interested in the action. Strudwick v. Broadnax, 83 N. C. 401, 403.

§ 907. Examination of coplaintiff or codefendant.—A party may be examined on behalf of his coplaintiff or codefendant as to any matter in which he is not jointly interested or liable with such coplaintiff or codefendant, and as to which a separate and not joint verdict or judgment can be rendered. He may be compelled to attend in the same manner as at the instance of an adverse party; but the examination thus taken cannot be used in behalf of the party examined. When one of several plaintiffs or defendants who are joint contractors, or are united in interest, is examined by the adverse party, the other of such plaintiffs or defendants may offer himself, and must be received, as a witness to the same cause of action or defense. (Rev., s. 872; Code, s. 587; C. C. P., s. 340.)

As to production of writings, see sec. 1823 et seq.

A party may be compelled to attend court, and be examined in behalf of a coplaintiff, or a codefendant, "as to any matter in which he is not jointly interested or liable," etc.; and in such a case he is entitled to pay as a witness. Penny v. Brink, 75 N. C. 68.

Art. 45. Motions and Orders

§ 908. Definition of order.—Every direction of a court or judge, made or entered in writing, and not included in a judgment, is an order. (Rev., s. 873; Code, s. 594; C. C. P., ss. 344, 345.)

An appeal from an order continuing in force a former order made in the cause will be dismissed. Childs v. Martin, 68 N. C. 307.

§ 909. Motions; when and where made.—An application for an order is a motion. Motions may be made to a clerk of a superior court, or to a judge out of court, except for a new trial on the merits. Motions must be made within the district in which the action is triable. A motion to vacate or modify a provisional remedy, and an appeal from an order allowing a provisional remedy, have preference over all other motions. (Rev., s. 874; Code, s. 594; C. C. P., ss. 344, 345.)

Editor's Note. — A motion in general relates to some incidental question collateral to the main object of the action. A motion is not a remedy in the sense of the Code, but is based upon some remedy, and is always connected with the principal remedy. It is to furnish relief in the progress of the action or proceeding in which it is made, and generally relates to matters of procedure, although it may be used to secure some right in consequence of the determination of the principal remedy. See 78 N. Y. 601, 55 N. Y. 145.

Form of Motion.—A motion must be in writing. Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 99, 112 S. E. 598.

On appeal to the Supreme Court a statement of record that the defendant filed a written motion to dismiss, negatives the exception that it was an oral motion, not in conformity with the requirements of the statute. Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

While it is the better form for one making a written motion, as an attorney at law, and in fact to first state the names of those he represents and then that he is acting for them in the capacity of attorney, the error in stating that he appears as attorney at law and in fact for certain named parties, etc., is merely informal and harmless, and therefore good against a demurrer, it clearly appearing that the attorney is not claiming any interest in the lands for himself, but is acting solely in a representative capacity for the persons named. Hartsfield v. Bryan, 177 N. C. 166, 98 S. E. 379.

Where Motions Must Be Made. — Except by consent or in those cases specially permitted by statute the judge can make no orders in a cause outside of the county in which the action is pending. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 504, 16 S. E. 848; McNeill v. Hodges, 99 N. C. 248, 6 S. E. 127; Bynum v. Powe, 97 N. C. 374, 2 S. E. 170; Gatewood v. Leak, 99 N. C. 363, 6 S. E. 706.

As to injunctions, attachments, and arrest and bail, authority is granted to hear and pass on motions to vacate or modify such orders out of the county. Parker v. McPhail, 112 N. C. 502, 504, 16 S. E. 848.

When Procedure Must Be by Motion. — It is well established in this state that no party to a suit is permitted by a new and independent action praying for an injunction to seek any relief which he might obtain by a motion in the original action. Mason v. Miles, 63 N. C. 564; Jarman v. Saunders, 64 N. C. 367; Faison v. McIlwaine, 72 N. C. 312, 313.

An action is inadmissible as a mode of obtaining relief against an execution for irregularity; the proper relief is, as formerly, by motion to set it aside. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69.

A proceeding by a motion supported by affidavits after a notice to the opposite party, to have satisfaction of a judgment entered of record upon the ground that it has been paid since its rendition, is the appropriate remedy in such a case, but is neither a special proceeding nor a civil action. It is only a motion in a cause still pending. Foreman v. Bibb, 65 N. C. 128.

Power of Judge. — After leaving the bench for a term of the superior court to expire by limitation, the judge cannot hear motions or other matters outside of the courtroom except by consent, unless, they are such as are cognizable at chambers. May v. Insurance Co., 172 N. C. 795, 90 S. E. 890.

An order to stay proceedings, made without notice by a judge out of court for a longer time than twenty days, is irregular, and a demurrer to the complaint in the action in which such order was made may be treated as a motion to vacate. Foard v. Alexander, 64 N. C. 69.

Same—To Continue Motions, etc.—The judge below has no power to continue motions for judgments or to set aside verdicts to be passed upon by him at a subsequent term of court, without the consent of the parties litigant. Oak Hall Clothing Co. v. Bagley, 147 N. C. 37, 60 S. E. 648.

Such consent should certainly appear in a writing signed by the parties or their counsel, or the judge should recite the fact of consent in the order or judgment he directs to be entered of record—which is the better way; or such consent should appear by fair implication from what appears in the record. Godwin v. Monds, 101 N. C. 354, 355, 7 S. E. 793.

Same—Can Not Reverse Another. — One superior court judge cannot reverse or set aside an order of another. Henry v. Hilliard, 120 N. C. 479, 487, 27 S. E. 130.

When Refused by Judge without Jurisdiction. — The refusal of a judge to grant a motion for want of jurisdiction is no bar to an entertainment of the motion by a judge having jurisdiction. First National Bank v. Wilson, 80 N. C. 200.

Motions Which May Be Renewed. — Motions made in the progress of a cause to facilitate the trial, but which involves no substantial right, and the decision of which is not subject to an appeal to the Supreme Court, may be renewed as subsequent events require, and are not obstructed by the former action of the court. Sanderson v. Daily, 83 N. C. 68, 70; Roulhac v. Brown, 87 N. C. 1; Henry v. Hilliard, 120 N. C. 479, 487, 27 S. E. 130.

Res Adjudicata.—If a decision affects a substantial right, and may be reviewed and corrected on appeal, and the complaining party acquiesces, the doctrine of res adjudicata applies. Sanderson v. Daily, 83 N. C. 68, 69.

§ 910. Affidavit for or against, compelled.—When a party intends to make or oppose a motion in a court of record, and it is necessary for him to have the affidavit of any person who has refused to make it, the court may, by order, appoint a referee to take the affidavit or deposition of such person. The person may be subpoenaed and compelled to attend and make an affidavit before such referee, as before a referee to whom an issue is referred for trial. (Rev., s. 875; Code, s. 594; C. C. P., ss. 344, 345.)

The matter of reference, under the section, rests in the discretion of the court. In Re Brown, 168 N. C. 417, 424, 84 S. E. 690.

§ 911. Motions determined in ten days.—When a motion is made in a cause or proceeding in any of the courts to obtain an injunction order, order of arrest, or warrant of attachment, granted in any such case or proceeding, or to vacate or modify the same, it is the duty of the judge before whom the motion is made to render his decision within ten days after the day on which the motion was submitted to him for decision. (Rev., s. 876; Code, s. 594; C. C. P., ss. 344, 345.)

§ 912. Notice of motion.—When notice of a motion is necessary, it must be served ten days before the time appointed for the hearing; but the court or judge may, by an order to show cause, prescribe a shorter time. (Rev., s. 877; Code, s. 595; C. C. P., s. 346.)

As to notice in supplemental proceedings, see sec. 711 and annotations thereto.

Editor's Note. — By section 346 of the C. C. P. only eight days notice was required. However, this was changed by section 595 of the Code of 1883 to ten days, which was unchanged in the Revisal, section 877, and was brought forward by the revisers of this section. See Branch v. Walker, 92 N. C. 87, 89.

Compliance with Section Required.—Notice of a motion to set aside a judgment must ordinarily be given as required by this section, and the pleadings in an action to reform a deed of trust upon allegations of mutual mistake are insufficient as notice of a motion to set aside the decree of foreclosure for irregularity and surprise, etc., the pleadings in the suit for reformation containing no allegations of irregularities in the foreclosure or of surprise. Virginia-Carolina Joint Stock Bank v. Alexander, 201 N. C. 453, 160 S. E. 462.

When Notice Required—When Heard Out of Term. — Notice of a motion applies only when such motion is heard out of term; parties are fixed with notice of all motions or orders made during the term of court in causes pending therein. Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 283, 91 S. E. 960; Hemphill v. Moore, 104 N. C. 379, 10 S. E. 313.

Same—Proceedings before Clerk.—A party is not fixed with notice of orders before the clerk. Blue v. Blue, 79 N. C. 69; State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 852, 855, 13 S. E. 843.

Same—Appeal from Justice of the Peace.—In an appeal from a justice of the peace to the superior court, notice must be served by an officer (unless service is accepted or the appeal is taken of the trial), and within ten days both upon the justice who tried the case and upon the appellee. State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 852, 13 S. E. 843.

Same—New Trial for Newly Discovered Evidence.—When a motion for a new trial for newly discovered evidence in the Supreme Court is contemplated, notice of such motion should always be given the other side. The appellant should give notice at least ten days before the beginning of the call of the district to which the cause belongs, unless the information comes to him after that time, when the court may shorten the notice. Herndon v. R. R., 121 N. C. 498, 499, 28 S. E. 144.

Failure to Give Notice in Proceedings under § 470. — Where a judgment by default final has been entered against a defendant for the want of an answer, and it appears that the defendant lodged his motion in apt time for a change of venue, in accordance with section 470, which has not been determined, the failure or inability of the defendant to have given the plaintiff ten days notice of his motion, required of this section before time for answering has expired, will not affect his rights to have the judgment by default against him vacated. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

Orders in Fieri during Term.—Judgments and orders are in fieri during the term they are rendered, and motions may be made to set them aside without notice; but after that term such motions can only be heard after due notice. Harper v. Sugg, 111 N. C. 324, 16 S. E. 173.

Ten Days Notice Required.—Notice of all motions and orders made out of term must be given, and the time is fixed at ten days, but the judge is authorized to shorten the time. Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 284, 91 S. E. 960.

Unless a verbal or written motion to amend a complaint after time for filing answer has expired be made at the trial term of the action, previous notice of ten days must be given the defendant unless the time is shortened by the court, and an order allowing the amendment to be made, entered without such notice, is irregular. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Butler, 200 N. C. 709, 158 S. E. 249.

When No Provision Made for Notice.—When a statute confers power upon a judicial tribunal or an administration agency to render judgment or make an order affecting rights of a person or property, and no provision is made for notice, the court will require a reasonable notice. Bank v. Hotel Co., 147 N. C. 594, 601, 61 S. E. 570.

§ 913. Orders without notice, vacated.—An order made out of court, without notice to the adverse party, may be vacated or modified without notice by the judge who made it, or may be vacated or modified on notice, in the manner in which other motions are made. (Rev., s. 514; Code, s. 546; C. C. P., s. 297.)

When Judge May Vacate or Modify.—A judge of the superior court has the power to vacate or modify orders made in a cause at any time before final judgment. Welch v. Kingsland, 89 N. C. 178.

In Sledge v. Blum, 63 N. C. 374, 376, Pearson, C. J., speaking for the court, said: "Where a judge acting on the complaint without notice to the defendant grants an injunction, he may afterwards, acting on the complaint alone, without notice to the plaintiff modify or vacate the injunction as irregularly or improvidently granted. But if he goes out of the complaint and takes into consideration the answer and the affidavits filed for the defendants the plaintiff is then entitled to notice, and may meet the affidavit by counter-affidavits."

Motion for Change of Venire before Clerk.—The power to entertain a demand of the defendant to remove an action to the proper venue under the provisions of this section, is now conferred upon the clerk, subject to the right of appeal to the judge, when the motion shall be heard and passed on de novo. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

Where a defendant has made a motion before the clerk to remove the action to the proper venue, the question is then a matter of substantial right, and the clerk is without power to proceed further in essentials until the right to remove is considered and passed upon. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

§ 913(a). Orders by clerk on motion to remove; right of appeal; notice.—All motions to remove as a matter of right shall be made before the clerk, who is authorized to make all necessary orders, and an appeal shall lie from such order upon such motion to the judge at chambers or at the next term, who shall hear and pass upon such motion de novo. But no such motion shall be heard until ten days notice thereof shall first have been given to the opposing party or his attorney. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 15; 1925, c. 282, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The provision authorizing the clerk to hear all motions to remove as a matter of right and make the necessary orders therein, allowing for an appeal therefrom, was enacted by the Legislature, Acts 1921, c. 92, sec. 15. It was amended by Acts 1925, c. 282, sec. 1, by writing in the words "at chambers or" after the word "judge," and before the words "at the next term," and adding the sentence allowing ten days notice.

This act is a part of the legislation to restore to the clerk the power originally given him by the C. C. P. but taken away by the suspension acts.

During the suspension period the defendant was authorized to apply to the Court in term for a removal. By the public laws of 1919, 1920, restoring the power, the motion was filed before the clerk and after the answer was filed all the papers were transferred to the court in term time and by him heard and acted upon. Thus this section changed the law by permitting the clerk to hear the motion but giving a right of appeal. See Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

Change of Venue under Section 470 Effected by Section.—The power to entertain a demand of defendant to remove an action to the proper venue under the provisions of sec. 470, is now conferred by this section upon the clerk, subject to the right of appeal to the judge at the next term, when the motion shall be heard and passed upon de novo. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

Effect of Motion upon Further Proceedings.—Where defendant has made his motion before the clerk to remove the action to the proper venue, the question is then a matter of substantial right, and the clerk is without power to proceed further in essentials until the right to remove is considered and passed upon. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

When the defendant has proceeded by motion to have the action removed to the proper county before the time for filing the answer has expired, a judgment by default final for the want of answer is contrary to the practice of the courts, and will be set aside, and the cause remanded for the clerk to consider and pass upon defendant's motion for a change of venue. Roberts v. Moore, 185 N. C. 254, 116 S. E. 728.

Motion to Dismiss as Affecting Removal.—Where the defendant moves the clerk to dismiss the action for want of proper venue, but the clerk upon his own motion orders a removal, and upon appeal the judge at term orders the cause removed, the fact that the motion to dismiss was made is immaterial as affecting the judge's power to order a removal. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

Removal by Judge Valid.—The act of the judge in ordering a removal, where the defendant has complied with all the requirements of the law as to filing a motion in apt time, is a valid exercise of jurisdictional authority. Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Grimes, 183 N. C. 97, 112 S. E. 598.

Removal Not Matter of Right.—This section refers only to motions to remove as a matter of right. Motions for removal, which may be allowed or disallowed, in the discretion of the court, should be made before the judge, at any time during a term of the court. Howard v. Hinson, 191 N. C. 366, 131 S. E. 748. The clerk is without power, under the statute, to remove an action, upon the ground that the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice would be promoted by the removal. The motion for removal upon this ground can be made only before the judge, during a term of the superior court. Causey v. Morris, 195 N. C. 532, 534, 142 S. E. 783.

Effect of Motion on Other Proceedings.—See note under § 600.

On appeal from order of clerk transferring a cause to another county as a matter of right, on the ground that the action involves an interest in lands under § 463 the matter should be heard de novo during the term of court. Causey v. Morris, 195 N. C. 532, 142 S. E. 783.

Applied in Miller v. Miller, 205 N. C. 753, 172 S. E. 493; White v. Rankin, 206 N. C. 104, 173 S. E. 282.

§ 913(b). Motions to remove to federal court; notice.—Motions to remove to the federal court shall be made before the clerk, and an appeal shall lie from his order to the judge at chambers at the next term, who shall hear and pass upon such motion de novo. But no such motion shall be heard until ten days notice thereof shall first have been given to the opposing party or his attorney. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 92, s. 16; 1925, c. 282, s. 2.)

The provision for motions for removal to the federal court to be made before the clerk, and allowing an appeal therefrom to the judge, was enacted by the Legislature 1921, c. 92, sec. 16. The provision was amended by the Acts 1925, c. 282, sec. 2, by writing in the words "at chambers," after the word "judge," and before the words "at the next term." The sentence allowing ten days notice was also added by this section. Ed. Note.

Effect of Improper Order.—An order of the clerk of the Superior Court, having jurisdiction of a motion to remove a cause under this section, that the cause be removed as prayed by the defendants, meeting the requirements of the Federal statutes relating thereto, and made in apt time, when improperly made is erroneous and not void. Such order is effective until reversed on appeal or until remand by the Federal court. Abbitt v. Gregory, 195 N. C. 203, 141 S. E. 587.

Art. 46. Notices

§ 914. Form and service.—All notices must be in writing, and notices and other papers may be served on the party or his attorney personally, where not otherwise provided in this chapter. (Rev., ss. 878, 879; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353.)

Cross References.—As to service on Sunday, see s. 3958; as to service of summons, see sec. 475 et seq.

Form of Notice Required.—When, a statute requires notice to be given, it must be given in writing, addressed to the proper person, contain the substance, intelligently and sufficiently expressed, of the information to be communicated, signed by the party giving it, or his attorney, and served in such way so that the court can see and learn that it has been served, and, it, or a copy of it, must be returned into court, properly authenticated unless it shall in some way be waived, as by the appearance of the party to be affected by it. Allen v. Strickland, 100 N. C. 225, 228, 6 S. E. 780; Harper v. Sugg, 111 N. C. 324, 327, 16 S. E. 173, 174.

Section Should Be Strictly Observed.—The service of notice, made in a way and manner recognized and sanctioned by the law, is an essential requisite of it; without this it is ineffectual for the purpose intended and void. Unless it is given as the law directs or allows, the party to whom it is given is not bound to recognize or act upon it; nor, indeed, is it notice. It is the legal sanction that gives the notice, in sufficient form and substance, life and efficacy. Allen v. Strickland, 100 N. C. 225, 229, 6 S. E. 780. Citing Wade on notice, sections 1293, 1295, 1335, 1342.

Applicable to Cases on Appeal.—The statute regulating the manner of service of notices, is applicable to service of cases on appeal and exceptions thereto. State v. Price, 110 N. C. 599, 15 S. E. 116.

Verbal Notice Insufficient.—A motion heard upon verbal notice given on the day of the hearing is irregular, and should have been dismissed. Harper v. Sugg, 111 N. C. 324, 326, 16 S. E. 173.

Notice Not Required—Road Duty.—A summons to a person liable to road duty does not fall within the purview of this article, and need not be in writing. State v. Telfair, 130 N. C. 645, 40 S. E. 976.

Same—Sureties on Sheriff's Bond.—Notice to sureties on an indemnity bond that the sheriff has been sued for the wrongful levy of an execution need not be in writing. Martin v. Buffaloe, 128 N. C. 305, 38 S. E. 902.

Service Made on Attorney.—The counsel is responsible to the court and his client, and generally, the court recognizes him as having charge of the action, and authorized and bound to take notice of all motions and proceedings in it. This is so upon general principles that govern courts ordinarily in the administration of justice; and under this section, in respect to notices and the filing and service of papers, expressly provides that service may be made on the party or his attorney. Branch v. Walker, 92 N. C. 87, 89.

Personal Notice.—Where notice of appeal was served on the plaintiff by leaving a copy with him, another notice of the same appeal served the next day by reading it to the plaintiff was unnecessary under this section. Sondley v. Asheville, 110 N. C. 84, 89, 14 S. E. 514.

Same—Determined by Clerk.—The fact that personal notice was given to the defendant is determined affirmatively by the clerk in making the order. Surratt v. Crawford, 97 N. C. 372, 375.

Service Must Be by Officer.—Service of all papers, except subpoenas, and in cases where service by publication is authorized, must be by an officer, or acceptance of service. Smith v. Smith, 119 N. C. 314, 318, 25 S. E. 878.

Same—Case on Appeal.—A case on appeal, unless service is accepted, can be served only by an officer. Forte v. Boone, 114 N. C. 176, 177, 19 S. E. 632; State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 852, 13 S. E. 843.

Same—Appeal from Justice of the Peace.—The notice of appeal from a justice of the peace, when the notice is not given on the trial, must be served by an officer. Clark v. Manufacturing Co., 110 N. C. 111, 14 S. E. 518.

Qualifications of Officer Serving.—Service of notices must be made by an officer authorized generally and by virtue of his office to serve process of the court having jurisdiction of the action in which the notice is given. Cullen v. Absher, 119 N. C. 441, 26 S. E. 33.

Same—Town Constable.—A town constable can not serve a notice to take a deposition in an action pending in the superior court. Cullen v. Absher, 119 N. C. 441, 26 S. E. 33; Forte v. Boone, 114 N. C. 176, 177, 19 S. E. 632.

Same—Chief of Police or Marshal.—Where a town charter provides for the appointment of a chief of police or marshall and declares that, in the execution of process, he shall have the same power, etc., which sheriff and constables have, the service by such officer of a summons directed to "the sheriff of W. county or town constable of W. town" is valid. Lowe v. Harris, 121 N. C. 287, 28 S. E. 535.

§ 915. Service upon attorney.—Notice upon an attorney may be served during his absence from his office, by leaving a copy of the paper with his clerk, or a person having charge of the office; or, when there is no person in the office, by leaving it, between the hours of six a. m. and nine p. m., in a conspicuous place in the office; or, if it is not open so as to admit of such service, then by leaving it at the attorney's residence with some person of suitable age and discretion. (Rev., s. 880; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353.)

Notice to Attorney is Notice to Client. — In Ladd v. Teague, 126 N. C. 544, 548, 36 S. E. 45, quoting from United States v. Currey, 6 Howard (U. S.) 106, it was said:

"No attorney or solicitor can withdraw his name after he has once entered it on the record without the leave of the court. And while his name continues there, the adverse party has the right to treat him as the authorized attorney or solicitor, and the service of notice on him is as valid as if served on the party himself." See also Branch v. Walker, 92 N. C. 87; Walton v. Sugg, 61 N. C. 98.

Notice of Motion.—A notice of a motion to set aside a judgment may be properly served on the attorney of record of the opposing party. Branch v. Walker, 92 N. C. 87.

§ 916. Service upon a party.—Notice upon a party may be served by leaving a copy of the paper at his residence, between the hours of six a. m. and nine p. m., with some person of suitable age and discretion. (Rev., s. 881; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353.)

Notice Left with Wife.—Notice may be duly served by leaving a copy thereof at the residence of the person sought to be served, with his wife, she being of suitable age and discretion. Turner v. Holden, 109 N. C. 182, 185, 13 S. E. 713.

Compliance with Section Sufficient.—Service made under the section is sufficient. The court has jurisdiction in cases like this of the party to the action, and it is deemed sufficient to give him notice in the way prescribed for any motion or proceeding in the action. It is the duty of parties to actions to be on the alert at all times, until the same shall be completely ended. Turner v. Holden, 109 N. C. 182, 185, 13 S. E. 731.

§ 917. Service by publication.—Notice upon a person who cannot be found after due diligence, or who is not a resident of this state, may be served by its publication once a week for four successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county from which the notice is issued; and if no newspaper is published therein, then in some newspaper published within the judicial district; and the proof of service is the same as is required by law in the case of service of summons by publication. (Rev., s. 882; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353.)

Cross References.—As to service by publication generally, see secs. 484, 485 and annotations thereto; as to when service by publication is complete, see sec. 487 and annotations thereto; as to filing complaint in cases of publication, see sec. 486.

Substitute for Ten Days Personal Notice.—The publication "once a week for four successive weeks" is a substitute for and stands in lieu of the "ten days," which is allowed to a party personally served. Guilford v. Georgia Co., 109 N. C. 310, 313, 13 S. E. 861.

Form of Publication.—It is sufficient if the publication contains the substantial elements of the summons, and the fact that it is not a literal copy will not render the service void. Guilford v. Georgia Co., 109 N. C. 310, 13 S. E. 861.

§ 918. Service by telephone or registered mail on witnesses and jurors.—Sheriffs, constables and other officers charged with service of such process may serve subpoenas and summonses for jurors by telephone or by registered mail, and such service shall be valid and binding on the person served. When such process is served by telephone the return of the officer serving it shall state it is served by telephone. When served by registered mail a copy shall be mailed and a written receipt demanded and such receipt shall be filed with the return and be a necessary part thereof. (1915, c. 48; 1925, c. 98.)

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of this section providing for service by registered mail is new with the Laws 1925 c. 98. The words "Or by registered mail," immediately following the word telephone, in the first sentence, are also new with the Act.

If served by registered mail a written receipt must be demanded and filed with the return, such receipt being a necessary part thereof. While the meaning of this provision is by no means clear, it would seem to refer to a written receipt given for the registered letter by the postmaster. This seems a more logical interpretation of the legislative meaning than to say that it refers to a written receipt signed by the addressee, showing that he had received the letter. See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 129.

§ 919. Subpoena, service and signature. — Service of a subpoena for witnesses may be made by a sheriff, coroner or constable, and proved by the return of such officer, or the service may be made by any person not a party to the action, and proved by his oath. A subpœna for witnesses need not be signed by the clerk of the court, and is sufficient if subscribed by the party or by his attorney. (Rev., s. 884; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353.)

As to issuance by the clerk, see sec. 1803.

A subpoena may be served by any person not a party to the action, and proved by his oath. State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 852, 853, 13 S. E. 843; Smith v. Smith, 119 N. C. 314, 318, 25 S. E. 878.

§ 920. Application of this article. — This article does not apply to the service of a summons, or other process (except summonses for jurors, as provided in the second section preceding), or of any paper to bring a party into contempt. (Rev., s. 885; Code, s. 597; C. C. P., ss. 349, 353.)

Article Applies where Papers Not Excepted.—It seems clear that the article applies to all papers except those excepted by this section. State v. Price, 110 N. C. 599, 601, 15 S. E. 116.

The exceptions provided for in this section do not include the service of cases and counter-cases on appeal. State v. Price, 110 N. C. 599, 601, 15 S. E. 116.

§ 921. Officer's return evidence of service. — When a notice issues to the sheriff, his return thereon that the same has been executed is sufficient evidence of its service. (Rev., ss. 886, 1529; Code, s. 940; R. C., c. 31, s. 123; 1799, c. 537.)

Officer's Return is Prima Facie Correct. — In Caviness v. Hunt, 180 N. C. 384, 386, 104 S. E. 763, it was said: "While this is one of the states in which the return on the process is not conclusive, even between the parties and privies to the action, still, under this section, and the authorities, such return is prima facie correct and cannot be set aside unless the evidence is clear and unequivocal."

The sheriff's return is taken as prima facie correct, and may not be successfully attacked by motion in the cause, except by clear and unequivocal evidence, requiring the testimony of more than one person to overturn the official return of the officer. Commissioners v. Spencer, 174 N. C. 36, 93 S. E. 435.

Same—Service on Infant. — Where service of process has been served upon the general guardian of the infant, and it appears from the officer's return of notice that service has been executed upon the infant, such return is sufficient evidence of its service upon the infant to take the case to the jury upon the question involved in the issue. Long v. Rockingham, 187 N. C. 199, 121 S. E. 461.

Imports Verity.—Where the summons in an action has been duly served on a party defendant by a proper officer, it imports verity, and will not be set aside and a judgment vacated in the absence of clear and unequivocal proof that the summons had not in fact been served, and such proof must be more than the one affidavit by the defendant. Raleigh, etc., Trust Co. v. Nowell, 195 N. C. 449, 142 S. E. 584.

Sheriff's Signature Acted on without Proof. — The official returns of the sheriff are acted on without proof of his signature in a court in which he is an officer. McDonald v. Carson, 94 N. C. 497, 502.

"Executed by Delivery."—The term used in a return, "executed by delivering copy," necessarily implies a delivery to each of those to whom the notice is addressed, as otherwise it would be but a partial and uncompleted service. McDonald v. Carson, 94 N. C. 497, 502.

Executed.—The word "executed" in the return of a process ex vi termini carries with it the idea of a full performance of all that the law requires. Isley v. Boon, 113 N. C. 249, 18 S. E. 174.

Art. 47. Time

§ 922. How computed. — The time within which an act is to be done, as provided by law, shall be computed by excluding the first and including the last day. If the last day is Sunday, it must be excluded. (Rev., s. 887; Code, s. 596; C. C. P., s. 348.)

Uniform Rule. — The cases all go to establish one uniform rule, whether the question arises upon the practice of the courts, or the construction of a statute, and the rule is to exclude the first day from the computation. Cook v. Moore, 95 N. C. 1, 3; Burgess v. Burgess, 117 N. C. 447, 23 S. E. 336; Walker v. Scott, 104 N. C. 481, 10 S. E. 523.

"From the Day of the Date." — "From the day of the date" and "from the date" signify the same thing, and according to the intent are either inclusive or exclusive. Houser v. Reynolds, 2 N. C. 114, 1 Am. Dec. 551, cited in notes in 49 L. R. A. 200, 201.

Actions on Judgments. — Where a judgment was rendered on October 20, 1873, and an action was brought on the judgment on October 20, 1883, it was held that the statute barring actions on judgments in ten years was a defense. Cook v. Moore, 95 N. C. 1, cited in note in 49 L. R. A. 214.

Time for Filing Appeal. — In calculating the five days after the end of the term within which the case on appeal must be filed, the first day on which the court adjourned, is to be excluded. Turrentine v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 92 N. C. 642.

Petition for Rehearing. — Under the rule requiring petitions to rehear to be filed within twenty days after the commencement of the succeeding term, the first day of the period allowed is to be excluded from the count. Barcroft v. Roberts, 92 N. C. 250, cited in note in 49 L. R. A. 226.

Service of Case. — Where thirty days were allowed by agreement within which to serve a case on appeal, and the court adjourned on October 31st, the time for service expired on November 30th, the last day not being Sunday, the service on December 1st was a nullity. Zell Guano Co. v. Hicks, 120 N. C. 29, 26 S. E. 650.

Bill and Notes. — A note drawn payable one day after date is due the second day after its execution without demand. Baucom v. Smith, 66 N. C. 537.

Limit of Option. — An option given February 7th, provided no better offer was received that day by mail, to close "by 8 February," includes the latter day. Blalock v. Clark, 133 N. C. 306, 45 S. E. 642, cited in note in 15 L. R. A., N. S. 688.

When Loss of Time Not Imputed to Appellant. — Where appellant's counsel, five days after the adjournment of court, mailed by registered letter notice of appeal, etc. to the sheriff of the county so as to leave ample time for service on appellee's counsel, the failure of the sheriff to take the notice, etc., from the postoffice until after the ten days allowed for service cannot be imputed to the appellant as his laches. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 113, 19 S. E. 105.

When Last Day is Sunday. — The last day for service of a case on appeal being Sunday, service on the following day was legal. Pittsburg Lumber Co. v. Rowe, 151 N. C. 130, 65 S. E. 750.

In computing the time wherein a case on appeal may be served under an agreement, when, by excluding the first, the last day falls on Sunday, service on the next succeeding day is sufficient. Pittsburg Lumber Co. v. Rowe, 151 N. C. 130, 65 S. E. 750; Sondley v. Asheville, 110 N. C. 84, 14 S. E. 514.

Sunday Excluded Only When Last Day. — The section excludes Sunday only when it is the last day of the time limited. Glanton v. Jacobs, 117 N. C. 427, 428, 23 S. E. 335, cited in note in 49 L. R. A. 242.

The Legislature has not written the words "Sundays excluded" into the statute, and the court has no authority to do so. The Revisal, sec. 887, by providing that, in computing time, if the last day is Sunday it shall be excluded, shows that, except when Sunday is the last day, it shall be counted in the time "provided by law." Davis v. Atlantic etc., R. Co., 145 N. C. 207, 211, 59 S. E. 53.

Same—Cases on Appeal and Counter-Cases. — Appeals must be taken in ten days, cases on appeal served in ten days, counter-cases in five days, under penalty of loss, yet the court has not extended the time by writing in the statute "Sundays not counted," though lawyers are no more expected to work on Sundays than freight trains. Davis v. Atlantic etc., R. Co., 145 N. C. 207, 212, 59 S. E. 53.

Same—Execution of Ca. Sa. — In Drake v. Fletcher, 50 N. C. 411, in construing the statute which allowed twenty days in which a ca. sa. must be executed, the court held that Sundays must be counted, though the statute forbade service of such process on Sunday, the court saying that when Sundays are to be excluded the Legislature so declares in express terms. In Barcroft v. Roberts, 92 N. C. 250, the court held, as to the twenty days allowed in which a petition to rehear could be filed, that the first day is to be excluded from the count, and the last day is to be counted unless Sunday, and counted all other Sundays in the twenty days. Davis v. Atlantic etc., R. Co., 145 N. C. 207, 211, 59 S. E. 53.

Same—Transportation of Freight.—Though freight trains are prohibited from running on Sunday within certain hours, Sundays are not excluded from the reasonable time in which railroads are given to transport freight, except when Sunday is the last day in computing the time. Davis v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 145 N. C. 207, 59 S. E. 53.

Cited in Adcock v. Fuquay Springs, 194 N. C. 423, 425, 140 S. E. 24.

§ 923. Computation in publication.—The time for publication of legal notices shall be computed so as to exclude the first day of publication and include the day on which the act or event of which notice is given is to happen, or which completes the full period required for publication. (Rev., s. 888; Code, s. 602; C. C. P., s. 359.)

Cross References. — As to matter of publication generally, see sec. 485; as to service and content of notice of attachment, see sec. 806; as to publication of warrant of attachment obtained from a justice of the peace, see sec. 810.

§ 924. Advertisement of public sales. —When a statute or written instrument stipulates that an advertisement of a sale shall be made for any certain number of weeks, a publication once a week for the number of weeks so indicated is a sufficient compliance with the requirement, unless contrary provision is expressly made by the terms of the instrument. (1909, cc. 794, 875.)

Cross References. — As to manner of publication generally, see sec. 485; as to advertisement, and cost of newspaper publication, see sec. 687; as to advertisement of resale, see sec. 688; as to sale days, see sec. 690; as to sale hours, see sec. 691; as to postponement, see sec. 692; as to personal property, notice and place of sale, see sec. 2585.

Notice of Sale under Mortgage. — Powers of sale in a mortgage are contractual, and it is essential to the validity of a sale under a power to comply fully with the requirements of giving notice of the sale. Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 186, 95 S. E. 166.

Where a mortgage of lands provides that notice of the sale under the power thereof given in the conveyance shall be published in a newspaper, etc., "for a time not less than thirty days prior to the date of the sale," by the agreement the advertisement should be inserted in the newspaper once a week for four consecutive weeks, and not consecutively for thirty days, and an allowance made in the superior court for an advertisement for thirty consecutive days was erroneous. Saving Bank & etc., Co. v. Leach, 169 N. C. 706, 86 S. E. 701.

Burden of Proof. — However, "the presumption of law is in favor of the regularity in the execution of the power of sale; and if there was any failure to advertise properly, the burden was on defendant (here on plaintiffs) to show it." Jenkins v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 184, 186, 95 S. E. 166.

CHAPTER 13.

CLERK OF SUPERIOR COURT

Art. 1. The Office

§ 925. Judge of probate abolished; clerk acts as judge.—The office of probate judge is abolished, and the duties heretofore pertaining to clerks of the superior court as judges of probate shall be performed by the clerks of the superior court as clerks of said court, and all matters pending before said judges of probate shall be deemed transferred to the clerks of the superior court. (Rev., s. 889; Code, s. 102.)

Cross Reference.—As to powers and jurisdiction generally, see sections 397, 403, 752, 765, and 938.

Editor's Note. — The office of probate judge was created by the constitution of 1868. The powers of the probate judge were extensive and his jurisdiction embraced many of the vital transactions of the business community. It covered the proof of wills, deeds, and official bonds; the appointment and revocation of guardians of infants and lunatics; the granting and revocation of letters testamentary and of administration; the auditing of the accounts of guardians, executors, and administrators; he could bind out apprentices, cancel indentures, and exercise jurisdiction in many other matters which might be prescribed by law. Although the office has now been abolished by the Constitution of 1883, the Legislature has seen fit, on the score of economy and practical administration, to shift the jurisdiction of matters of probate, plus certain other specified matters, to the clerk of the superior court.

Jurisdiction. — Under this section the duties of the probate judge devolve upon the clerk of the superior court, and in such case he has a special jurisdiction which is distinct and separate from his general duties as clerk. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498; Helms v. Austin, 116 N. C. 751, 753, 21 S. E. 556.

The clerk acts not as the servant or ministerial officer of or as and for the superior court, but as an independent tribunal of original jurisdiction. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4.

The exercise of judicial powers by the "clerk of the court" is the exercise of them by the "court" through the clerk; and the action of the clerk stands as that of the court, if not excepted to and reversed or modified on appeal. Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498.

The clerk has jurisdiction of a proceeding by a ward against his guardian for an account. McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 52, 11 S. E. 265. See also Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110.

The clerks of superior courts have jurisdiction of proceedings for the removal of executors and administrators. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 5.

Although the clerks of the Superior Courts have no equity jurisdiction, they are given probate jurisdiction by this section, and in the exercise of their probate jurisdiction they may hear and rule on a petition of an executor for authorization to operate the estate's farms to preserve the property pending the determination of caveat proceedings. Hardy & Co. v. Turnage, 204 N. C. 538, 168 S. E. 823.

§ 926. Election; term of office.—A clerk of the superior court for each county shall be elected by qualified voters thereof, at the time and in the manner prescribed by law for the election of members of the general assembly. Clerks of the superior court shall hold office for four years. (Rev., s. 890; Const., Art. 4, ss. 16, 17.)

Appointee. — When there is a vacancy and the judge appoints one to fill that vacancy, such appointee holds office only until the next election at which members of the General Assembly are chosen. Rodwell v. Rowland, 137 N. C. 617, 50 S. E. 319. (Deloatch v. Rogers, 86 N. C. 358, overruled.)

§ 927. Clerk's bond.—At the first meeting of the board of commissioners of each county after the election or appointment of any clerk of a superior court it is the duty of the clerk to deliver to such commissioners a bond with sufficient sureties, to be approved by them, in a penalty of not less than ten thousand dollars, and not more than twenty-five thousand dollars, payable to the state of North Carolina, and with a condition to be void if he shall account for and pay over, according to law, all moneys and effects which have come or may come into his hands, by virtue or color of his office, or under an order or decree of a judge, even though such order or decree be void for want of jurisdiction or other irregularities, and shall diligently preserve and take care of all books, records, papers and property which have come or may come into his possession, by virtue or color, of his office, and shall in all things faithfully perform the duties of his office as they are or thereafter shall be prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 295; Code, s. 72; 1899, c. 54, s. 52; 1903, c. 747; 1889, c. 7; 1891, c. 385; 1901, c. 32; C. C. P., s. 137; 1895, cc. 270, 271; 1931, c. 170.)

Cross Reference. — As to liability and action on the bond, see secs. 928, 354, 356. As to interest, see sec. 2309. As to cemeteries, see sec. 5028.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 increased the maximum penalty of the bond required by this section from fifteen thousand to twenty-five thousand dollars.

Purpose. — In Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 346, 10 S. E. 520, it was said, "The purpose of this provision is very broad and comprehensive. It requires every clerk of the superior courts to give bond, with sufficient sureties, to secure the faithful discharge of his official duties, and especially, among other things, to secure the accounting for and paying over according to law of all moneys and effects that may be or come into his hands 'by virtue or color of his office'."

"Color of His Office." — "Color of his office," has been construed to embrace all cases where the officer receives the money in his official capacity, when he is not authorized or required to receive the same. Presson v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 12 S. E. 897; Sharpe v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 87, 11 S. E. 177; Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 342, 10 S. E. 520: Ex Parte Cassidy, 95 N. C. 225; Brown v. Cable, 76 N. C. 391; Greenlee v. Sudderth, 65 N. C. 470. See also Cox v. Blair, 76 N. C. 78; McNeill v. Morrison, 63 N. C. 508.

Scope of Bond. — This section requires only one bond to be given by the clerks, and the condition is extensive enough to cover every possible default in office. Hunter v. Routlege, 51 N. C. 216, 220.

An official bond given by a clerk, upon his entry into office, covers his whole official term, whether a new bond be given afterwards or not. Hunter v. Routlege, 51 N. C. 216.

The clerk's bond embraces receiverships and incidental liabilities growing out of them. Presson v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 83, 12 S. E. 897; Syme v. Bunting, 91 N. C. 48; Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

The bond also covers funds which have come into the hands of the clerk under a statute enacted subsequent to the execution of the bond. Wilmington v. Nutt, 78 N. C. 177, and 80 N. C. 266; Presson v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 83, 12 S. E. 897. See also, State v. Bradshaw, 32 N. C. 229; Cameron v. Campbell, 10 N. C. 285.

Cumulative Security. — The clerk's bonds are cumulative security for the performance of official duties. Darden v. Blount, 126 N. C. 247, 35 S. E. 479.

Liability on the Bond. — The surety bond of a clerk of the superior court is fixed as to amount in the sum of five thousand dollars, and to that extent a surety is responsible for the defalcation of his principal, including 6 per cent interest from the time of notice given it, except from judgment thereon. when a different principle applies and the surety is liable for 6 per cent interest on the judgment until it is paid. State v. Martin, 188 N. C. 119, 123 S. E. 631; Presson v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 87, 12 S. E. 897.

A clerk and his sureties are liable on his bond as an insurer for money that comes into his hands, and not merely for the exercise of good faith in regard to such money. Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 397, 42 S. E. 849. See generally, Bd. of Education v. Bateman, 102 N. C. 52, 11 Am. St. 708, 8 S. E. 882; Morgan v. Smith, 95 N. C. 396; Havens v. Lathene, 75 N. C. 505.

Where a defaulting clerk succeeds himself, and has given the required bond for each term, with the same surety, and continues his defalcation, the surety is liable only to the amount of the bond given for each term. State v. Martin, 188 N. C. 119, 123 S. E. 631.

And the burden is on the sureties of the bond in force when the money was received by the clerk to show that he paid it over to himself as his own successors. Morgan v. Smith, 95 N. C. 396, 397.

The clerk is liable on his bond for failure to pay over funds paid to him by commissioners in partition. Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 42 S. E. 849.

Where a clerk of the Superior Court has forged the signatures of Confederate pensioners to warrants issued by the State Auditor and sent to him for payment to the persons entitled, and has witnessed such signatures, cashed the warrants, and converted the funds to his own use, such sums are received by him by virtue of and under color of his office, and come within the terms of his bonds given under the provisions of this section, and the surety thereon is liable within the penalty of the bonds for the amount so embezzled. State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 159 S. E. 427.

Same—Negligence.—A clerk who is negligent in issuing an execution was held to be liable in damages for whatever sum the plaintiff might show he had sustained by such non-feasance. McIntyre v. Merritt, 55 N. C. 558.

Action on the Bond. — No action can be maintained on the bond given by a clerk conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty, except where there has been such damages sustained as would give the party a right to maintain an action on the case for the neglect of his official duty. Jones v. Biggs, 46 N. C. 364.

In an action on an official bond, on failure of a defendant to answer, a judgment entered against him on default cannot be final, since the action is not for the breach of an express or implied contract to pay a definite sum of money fixed by the terms of the bond or ascertainable therefrom, but must be "by default and inquiry." Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668. See also Morgan v. Bunting, 86 N. C. 67, 68.

A demand is necessary before bringing an action upon the bond of a clerk for moneys, payable to private individuals, received under color of his office, and the statute of limitations will not begin to run in his favor until after such demand is made. But it is otherwise if he has converted the money, or if it is public money. Furman v. Timberlake, 93 N. C. 66.

Same—Proper Parties. — Under this section, claimants of a fund arising from a partition sale are the proper parties to sue on the bond of the clerk for failure of the clerk to pay funds by the commissioners in partition. Smith v. Patton, 131 N. C. 396, 42 S. E. 849.

Where a clerk wrongfully prefers one judgment creditor over another in issuing executions, the wronged party has a remedy upon the official bond of the clerk for the actual loss sustained by his misconduct. Bank v. Jones, 17 N. C. 284.

Same—Evidence. — In an action against a clerk and one of the sureties on his official bond, the record of a judgment against the clerk and others of his sureties, in a previous action against them for the same demand, and on the same bond, but in which action the surety in the present action was not a party, is competent evidence to fix the amount due by the clerk. Morgan v. Smith, 95 N. C. 396.

Effect Where Penalty of Bond Exceeds Amount Prescribed.—Although this section is directory and prescribes the penalty on the bond of a clerk of the Superior Court, both the clerk and his surety are presumed to know the provisions of the statute, and where the clerk has voluntarily executed a bond in a greater sum, and the surety has accepted premiums based on a bond in this amount, the surety is estopped to deny the validity of the bond, and the plaintiff may recover of the surety, upon a proper showing, to the full amount of the penalty of the bond. State v. Gant, 201 N. C. 211, 213, 159 S. E. 427.

Clerical Error.—An error in reciting the term of office in the bond, which is clearly clerical and inadvertent, does not invalidate the bond, but will be treated as surplusage. Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668. See also, Sprinkle v. Martin, 69 N. C. 175.

§ 928, Clerk's bond; approval, acknowledgments and custody.—The approval of said bond by the board of commissioners, or a majority of them, shall be recorded by their clerk. The said bond shall be acknowledged by the parties thereto, or proved by a subscribing witness, before the clerk of said board of commissioners, or their presiding officer, registered in the register's office in a separate book to be kept by him for the registration of official bonds; and the original, with the approval thereof endorsed, deposited with the register for safe keeping. The like remedies shall be had upon said bond as are or may be given by law on official bonds. (Rev., s. 296; Code, s. 73; C. C. P., s. 138.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations to §§ 354, 356.

Proof—Evidence.—Such a bond may be proved, as at common law, without being subjected to the strict rules of evidence, and if there is a subscribing witness it may be proved by other witnesses, as if there was no subscribing witness. Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668.

A duly certified copy of the record of the registered bond is competent evidence of its provisions. Battle v. Baird, supra.

Same—Presumption.—The clerk of the superior court being required to give a bond for the discharge of the duties of his office, etc., it will be presumed, in the trial of an action on such bond, that he did so; and any such bond found in the keeping of the proper custodian will be presumed to have been properly given and accepted as such. Battle v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668.

§ 929. Local modifications as to clerk's bond.—The bonds of the clerks of the superior court of Carteret, Jones and Pamlico counties may be fixed at an amount not less than five thousand dollars, in the discretion of county commissioners.

The clerk of the superior court of Currituck County shall not be required to give bond in a larger penalty than the sum of five thousand dollars, unless the money or funds coming into his hands by order of the court or otherwise, by virtue of his office as clerk, at any time exceed in the aggregate one-half the penalty of his bond. In that case he shall, within twenty days, file with the clerk of the board of commissioners a good and sufficient bond duly executed and justified as required by law, of like condition as already prescribed, and in a penalty double the amount of said funds, though not exceeding ten thousand dollars. This shall not be construed to modify or repeal any provisions of law whereby the county commissioners are authorized at any time to require said clerk to justify or renew his bond whenever necessary. The bond of the clerk of Superior Court of Mecklenburg County shall be in an amount to be named by the board of commissioners of said county in its discretion, such an amount to be not less than ten thousand dollars ($10,000) and not more than sixty thousand dollars ($60,000): Provided, however that the premiums upon the amount of said bond in excess of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) shall be paid by Mecklenburg County. (Rev., s. 295; 1907, c. 103; 1907, c. 990; 1925, c. 6, 184.)

§ 930. Oath of office.—The clerks of the superior court, before entering on the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe before some officer authorized by law to administer an oath, the oaths prescribed by law, and file such oaths with the register of deeds for the county. (Rev., 891; Code; s. 74; C. C. P., s. 139.)

Cross Reference.—See sec. 4383. See also notes to secs. 927, 928. As to deputy, see sec. 935.

§ 931. Vacancy; judge of district fills.—1. Otherwise than by expiration. In case the office of clerk of a superior court for a county becomes vacant otherwise than by the expiration of the term, and in case of a failure by the people to elect, the judge of the superior court for the county shall appoint to fill the vacancy until an election can be regularly held.

2. Failure to qualify. In case any clerk fails to give bond and qualify as required by law, the presiding officer of the board of commissioners of his county shall immediately inform the resident judge of the judicial district thereof, who shall thereupon declare the office vacant and fill the same, and the appointee shall give bond and qualify.

3. Resignations. Any clerk of the superior court may resign his office to the judge of the superior court residing in the district in which is situated the county of which he is clerk, and said judge shall fill the vacancy. (Rev., ss. 892, 893, 895; Const., Art. 4, s. 29; Code, ss. 76, 78; C. C. P., s. 140.)

See sec. 349.

Commissioners' Duty.—A failure on the part of the clerk to give bond must be ascertained by the commissioners before the judge is authorized to declare a vacancy. And in accepting or rejecting the bond tendered, the court cannot interfere in the exercise of their discretion. Buckman v. Commissioners, 80 N. C. 121.

Conflicting Claimants.—Where there are conflicting claimants for a vacant office a court must act upon the prima facie evidence of right and admit the right of possessing it, leaving the other to pursue the proper legal remedy for the recovery of possession. Clark v. Carpenter, 81 N. C. 309.

§ 932. Removal for cause.—Upon the conviction of any clerk of the superior court of an infamous crime, or of corruption and malpractice in office, he shall be removed from office, and he shall be disqualified from holding or enjoying any office of honor, trust or profit under this state. (Rev., s. 894; Code, s. 123; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 53.)

See notes to sec. 385.

§ 933. Office and equipment furnished.— The requisite stationery, records, furniture and filing cases and devices for official use must be furnished to the clerk by the board of commissioners; and to each of such books there must be attached an alphabetical index securely bound in the volume, referring to the entries therein by the page of the book, unless there is a cross-index of such book required by law to be kept. These books must, at all proper times, be open to the inspection of any person. (Rev., s. 896; Code, ss. 82, 84, 113; C. C. P., s. 428.)

§ 934. Solicitor to examine and report on office.—The Solicitor of the Judicial District shall inspect the office of the clerk as often as he shall deem it necessary, and shall make written report of his inspection to the court. (Rev., s. 897; Code, s. 88; C. C. P., s. 147; 1917, c. 81, s. 1; 1935, c. 423.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 the section required an inspection at every regular term and also provided the penalty in case the solicitor neglected or failed to perform his duty.

Art. 1(A). Assistant Clerks

§ 934(a). Appointment; oath; powers and jurisdiction; responsibility of clerks.—Each clerk of the superior court, by and with the written consent and approval of the superior court judge resident in his district, may appoint an assistant clerk of the superior court, who before entering upon his duties shall take and subscribe the oath prescribed for clerks: Provided, that no more than one such assistant clerk shall hold office in any county at one time. Upon compliance with the provisions of this article such assistant clerk shall be as fully authorized and empowered to perform all the duties and functions of the office of clerk of the superior court as the clerk himself, and all the acts, orders, and judgments of such assistant clerk shall be subject in all respects to all laws which apply to the clerks. The several clerks of the superior court shall be held responsible for the acts of their assistant clerks, and the official bonds of such clerks as now provided by law shall be written to and shall cover the acts of their assistant clerks. (1921, c. 32, s. 1.)

Funds of minors paid into the hands of the assistant clerk of the Superior Court, appointed guardian, were not paid into court, and the surety on the guardianship bond may not successfully contend that the clerk's bond was liable therefor. State v. Royal Indemnity Co., 203 N. C. 420, 166 S. E. 327.

§ 934(b). Certificate of appointment; confirmation; revocation of appointment; compensation.—Any clerk of the superior court desiring to appoint such an assistant clerk shall present a formal written certificate of such appointment to the superior court judge residing in his district, and such judge, if he concurs in and approves such appointment, shall in writing enter his consent and approval upon such certificate and confirm such appointment. Said certificate of appointment, and approval of the judge, together with the oath subscribed by the appointee, shall thereupon be entered in full upon the minute docket of the court, and shall be recorded and cross-indexed in the office of the register of deeds for such county. The appointment of any such assistant clerk may be revoked at any time by the clerk who appointed him or by the superior court judge resident in the district, by the entry of the word "revoked" and the date thereof, with the signature of such clerk or judge, upon the margin of the records of such appointment in the offices of the clerk of the superior court and the register of deeds; and all such appointments shall expire by limitation when the clerk making same ceases to hold office. Nothing in this article shall increase the fees or compensation now allowed by law to the clerks or deputy clerks of the superior court of the several counties of the state. (1921, c. 32, s. 2.)

§ 934(c). Clerks not relieved from duties; deputies.—This chapter shall not in any wise excuse or relieve the clerk of the superior court from giving to the performance of his duties the same time, care, and attention as is now required of such clerks by law, nor shall it change or amend the present laws with reference to deputy clerks of the superior court: Provided, that one person may be appointed both as assistant clerk and as deputy. (1921, c. 32, s. 3.)

Art. 2. Deputies

§ 935. Appointment. — Clerks of the superior court may appoint deputies, who shall take and subscribe the oath prescribed for clerks. (Rev., s. 898; Code, s. 75; R. C., c. 19, s. 15; 1777, c. 115, s. 86.)

See sec. 3?92, See also Co..stitut. , Art. VI, sec. 8, Art. XIV, sec. 7.

Purpose.—In Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 402, 404, it was said: "The purpose of creating the office of 'deputy clerk' was to help the dispatch of public business, and to provide for the same when the clerk might be necessarily absent from his office, or unable for any cause to give personal attention to his official duties."

Section Provides Only Method of Appointment.—Deputy clerks can be appointed only in the manner prescribed by this section. Shepherd v. Lane, 13 N. C. 148. And are required to take the same oaths before entering upon their duties which are required of their principals. Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 75, 76.

The certificate of probate of a deed by a deputy clerk, expressly authorized by statute to acknowledgment, etc., the deed having been duly registered, was prima facie evidence of his appointment and qualification. Piland v. Taylor, 113 N. C. 2, 18 S. E. 70.

Scope of Authority.—Deputy clerks may do all the acts which the clerk may do, except such as are judicial in their character, or such as a statute may require specially to be done by the clerk himself. Miller v. Miller, 89 N. C. 402, 404; Piland v. Taylor, 113 N. C. 3, 185 S. E. 70.

Deputies are expressly authorized to take acknowledgment and proof of deeds, and in exercising such functions a deputy acts by force of the statute alone, and not as the agent of or by a delegation of authority from the clerk. Piland v. Taylor, 113 N. C. 2, 18 S. E. 70.

The probate of a deed of trust or mortgage by one acting as deputy clerk, but who had not been duly appointed, nor had not taken the prescribed oath, is invalid. Suddereth v. Smyth, 35 N. C. 452.

Women as Deputies.—It would seem that women are not disqualified under the constitution nor any statute from holding the office of deputy clerk. See Bank v. Redwine, 171 N. C. 559, 569, 572, 88 S. E. 878; Preston v. Roberts, 183 N. C. 62, 110 S. E. 586; State v. Bateman, 162 N. C. 588, 77 S. E. 768, referred to in Bank v. Redwine, Supra, 171 N. C. 569, 572, 88 S. E. 878.

§ 936. Record of appointment and discharge; copies.—Each clerk of a superior court shall make a record of the appointment of each deputy he may appoint, on the special proceedings docket of his court, giving the name of such appointee and the date of such appointment, and make a cross-index of the same, and shall furnish to the register of deeds of his county a transcript of such record; and such register of deeds shall record the same in the records of deeds in his office and make a cross-index thereof on the general index in his office. When any such deputy clerk is removed from his office the clerk of the superior court by whom he was appointed shall write on the margin of the record of such appointment in his office, and on the margin of the record of such appointment in the office of the register of deeds, the word "Revoked" and the date of such revocation, and sign his name thereto. A duly certified copy of such appointment and of such revocation, under the hand and official seal of the register of deeds, shall be deemed prima facie evidence of the regularity of such appointment and revocation, and shall be admitted as evidence in all the courts. (Rev., s. 899; 1899, c. 235, s. 3.)

§ 937. Responsibility of clerk for deputy's acts.—The several clerks of the superior court shall be held responsible for the acts of their deputies. Deputies shall be subject in all respects to all laws which apply to the clerks. (Rev., c. 900; 1899, c. 235, s. 2.)

Liability for Acts.—Both deputy and clerk are liable for an unlawful act committed by the deputy under color of the office. Coltraine v. McCain, 14 N. C. 308. See also, Bank v. Redwine, 171 N. C. 559, 569, 88 S. E. 878.

Deputy's Bond.—This section does not require any bond of a deputy clerk; but, as the clerk is liable for the defaults and misfeasance of his deputies, common prudence dictates that he require bonds of them for his own protection. Such a bond, not being required by law, is not an official bond in the strict sense of that term. When given, however, it is valid as a common-law bond, the clerk individually, and not the public, being the obligee in interest thereunder. The fact that it runs in the name of the clerk as clerk is immaterial. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Hoyle, 64 F. (2d) 413, 415.

Art. 3. Powers and Duties

§ 938. Powers enumerated.—Every clerk has power—

1. To issue subpœnas to compel the attendance of any witness residing or being in the state, or to compel the production of any bond or paper, material to any inquiry pending in his court.
2. To administer oaths and take acknowledgments, whenever necessary, in the exercise of the powers and duties of his office.
3. To issue commissions to take the testimony of any witness within or without this state.
4. To issue citations and orders to show cause to parties in all matters cognizable in his court, and to compel the appearance of such parties.
5. To enforce all lawful orders and decrees, by execution or otherwise, against those who fail to comply therewith or to execute lawful process. Process may be issued by the clerk, to be executed in any county of the state, and to be returned before him.

6. To exemplify, under seal of his court, all transcripts of deeds, papers or proceedings therein, which shall be received in evidence in all the courts of the state.

7. To preserve order in his court and to punish contempts.

8. To adjourn any proceeding pending before him from time to time.

9. To open, vacate, modify, set aside, or enter as of a former time, decrees or orders of his court, in the same manner as courts of general jurisdiction.

10. To enter judgment in any suit pending in his court in the following instances: judgment of voluntary nonsuit in any case where judgment is permitted by law; and judgment in any suit by consent of parties.

11. To award costs and disbursements as prescribed by law, to be paid personally, or out of the estate or fund, in any proceeding before him.

12. To compel the return to his office by each justice of the peace, on the expiration of the term of office of such justice, or, if the justice be dead, by his personal representative, of all records, papers, dockets and books held by such justice by virtue or color of his office, and to deliver the same to the successor in office of such justice.

13. To take proof of deeds, bills of sale, official bonds, letters of attorney, or other instruments permitted or required by law to be registered.

14. To take proof of wills and grant letters testamentary and of administration.

15. To revoke letters testamentary and of administration.

16. To appoint and remove guardians of infants, idiots, inebriates and lunatics.

17. To audit the accounts of executors, administrators, collectors, receivers, commissioners and guardians.

18. To exercise jurisdiction conferred on him in every other case prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 901; Code, ss. 103, 108; C. C. P., ss. 417, 418, 442; 1901, c. 614, s. 2; 1919, c. 140.)

Cross Reference.—As to oaths, see sec. 3293; As to depositions, see secs. 1809-1813; As to process, see secs. 664, 666, 669, 675; As to direction of court papers, sec. 1779; As to probate, secs. 1, 2, 3293, 3305, 3322, 4143; As to administration, secs. 30, 31, 44; As to guardians, secs. 2150-2155, 2158, 2165, 2166, 2187, 2191, 2285, 2286; As to accounts of executors, etc., see secs. 105, 109, 123, 124, 765, 2188. For "Color of his office" construed, see annotations to sec. 927.

Jurisdiction—Limited.—The clerk is a court of very limited jurisdiction—having only such jurisdiction as is given by statute. It has no common law or equitable jurisdiction. McCauley v. McCauley, 122 N. C. 288, 292, 30 S. E. 344.

Same—Corrections.—The clerk has the jurisdiction to correct a mistake in a partition proceeding. Little v. Duncan, 149 N. C. 84, 62 S. E. 770; Wahab v. Smith, 82 N. C. 232. Or in a proceeding to subject real estate to sale for assets, after a report of the sale is returned and confirmed, he has the right to set aside the sale and order a resale by showing proper cause. Lovinier v. Pearce, 70 N. C. 168.

Same—Administrators.—The clerk has the power, for good and sufficient cause, to remove an administrator; or for like cause, as necessarily equivalent, to permit him to resign his trust. Tulburt v. Hollar, 102 N. C. 406, 409, 9 S. E. 430; Murrill v. Sandlin, 86 N. C. 54, 55.

It is thus incumbered on the probate judge (now the clerk) to make inquiry, and ascertain for himself the facts upon which the legal discretion reposed in him to remove an incompetent or unfaithful officer is to be exercised. Murrill v. Sandlin, supra.

Same—Accounts.—The jurisdiction for auditing accounts of executors, administrators, etc., conferred upon the clerk is an ex-parte jurisdiction of examining the accounts and vouchers of such persons, allowing them commissions, etc., as formerly practiced, and does not conclude legatees, etc., or affect suits inter partes upon the same matters. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 710.

The words, "audit the account of executors, administrators and guardians," have reference to the duty of examining accounts filed by executors, etc., to see that the account of charges corresponds with the inventories, passing upon the vouchers and striking a balance, after allowing commissions, as under the existing laws. Heilig v. Foard, 64 N. C. 710, 713.

Appeals.—In appeals from the clerk, in that class of cases of which he has jurisdiction in his capacity as clerk, as given under this section, it is not necessary that he should prepare and transmit to the judge any statement of the case on appeal. Ex Parte Spencer, 95 N. C. 271.

§ 939. Disqualification to act.—No clerk can act as such in relation to any estate, proceeding or civil action—

1. If he has, or claims to have, an interest by distribution, by will, or as creditor, or otherwise.

2. If he is so related to any person having or claiming such interest that he would, by reason of such relationship, be disqualified as a juror; but the disqualification on this ground ceases unless the objection is made at the first hearing of the matter before him.

3. If he or his wife is a party or a subscribing witness to any deed of conveyance, testamentary paper or nuncupative will; but this disqualification ceases when such deed, testamentary paper, or will has been finally admitted to or refused probate by another clerk, or before the judge of the superior court.

4. If he or his wife is named as executor or trustee in any testamentary or other paper; but this disqualification ceases when the will or other paper is finally admitted to or refused probate by another clerk, or before the judge of the superior court.

5. If he shall renounce the executorship and endorse the same on the will or on some paper attached thereto, before it is propounded for probate, in which case the renunciation must be recorded with the will if admitted to probate. (Rev., s. 902; Code, s. 104; C. C. P., s. 419; 1871-2, c. 196; 1935, c. 110.)

See generally, secs. 3242, 3293, 3299, 3343.

Editor's Note.—This section has been amended by the laws 1921, c. 99, which is itself amended by Laws 1923, c. 14. It is so amended that where the clerk is a devisee, or legatee under the will, a subscribing witness thereunto, or has any interest in the property thereby disposed of, it may be probated by the clerk of the adjoining county, upon a petition filed before him by interested parties. The petition and probate, along with a certified copy of the will shall be returned to, and filed with, the clerk of the original county and there properly recorded. Thereupon, the clerk of the original county is authorized to issue the necessary letters to the personal representative of the deceased. Then the personal representative is entitled to qualify and administer the estate, and the title to the property shall, in all respects, be as valid as if the will had been originally probated in such county.

The legislative intent was to provide a speedy, yet sound and practical method of admitting a will to probate in cases where the clerk is disqualified. This has been accomplished. Whether or not the amendments were intended to change the former practice, in case of interest, and, if so, to what extent, is not so clearly shown. See 1 N. C. L. R. 313.

The amendment of 1935 effected only one change in the section. Prior to the amendment the opening statement read: "No clerk can act as such in relation to any estate or proceeding." Section two of the amendatory act declares it shall apply to pending actions. Section three of the act prescribes that in all cases where the procedure set out in sections 940 and 941 was followed all orders or judgments rendered in civil actions are validated, provided that no action has been instituted attacking the order or judgment.

Clerk Interested.—The clerk is disqualified, both by common law rules and by this section, to act in any cause wherein he is interested. Gregory v. Ellis, 82 N. C. 225, 226; Land Co. v. Jennett, 128 N. C. 3, 37 S. E. 954; White v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 65, 72, 11 S. E. 177.

And probate of a deed by a clerk interested therein is a nullity. Land Co. v. Jennett, supra.

And where he is personally interested in the commissions to be allowed the executors, he is excluded from jurisdiction. Barlow v. Norfleet, 72 N. C. 535, 539.

Same—Judicial and Ministerial Acts.—The act of "admitting to probate" is a judical act, and a clerk is prohibited from acting on a deed or deed of trust in which he is grantor or grantee. White v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 65, 69, 11 S. E. 177; Freeman v. Person, 106 N. C. 251, 10 S. E. 1037; Piland v. Taylor, 113 N. C. 2, 18 S. E. 70; Norman v. Ausbon, 193 N. C. 791, 138 S. E. 162.

But the issuing of a warrant in attachment, or an order for seizure of property in claim and delivery, are ministerial acts, and can be performed by a deputy, or even by the clerk, in a case to which he is a party. White v. Connelly, supra; Evans v. Etheridge, 96 N. C. 42, 1 S. E. 633.

Nor is a clerk incompetent to take acknowledgment of the execution of a deed because he is a subscribing witness to the document. He cannot take proof of a deed of which he is the subscribing witness, because he cannot administer oath to himself. Trenwith v. Smallwood, 111 N. C. 132, 134, 15 S. E. 1030.

And it has been the practice in this state for clerks to issue process either for or against themselves. Evans v. Etheridge, 96 N. C. 42, 1 S. E. 633.

Clerk Related to Party.—A clerk is prohibited from acting as such in relation to any estate or proceeding if he is so related to any person having, or claiming to have, such interest that he would by reason of such relationship be disqualified as a juror. Land Co. v. Jennett, 128 N. C. 3, 37 S. E. 954.

But probate and private examination taken before an officer are not invalid simply because he is related to the parties. McAllister v. Purcell, 124 N. C. 264, 32 S. E. 715.

§ 940. Waiver of disqualification.—The parties may waive the disqualification specified in subdivisions one, two, three and five of the preceding section, and upon filing in the office such waiver in writing, the clerk shall act as in other cases. (Rev., s. 903; Code, s. 105; C. C. P., s. 420.)

Written Waiver.—The waiver must be in writing and made when the opposing parties are present and capable of objecting. White v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 65, 71, 11 S. E. 177.

Probate a Nullity.—When the probate of a deed is a nullity because the clerk was disqualified to act, the defect is not cured by the approval of the final decree, under which it is made, by the judge of the superior court. Land Co. v. Jennett, 128 N. C. 3, 37 S. E. 954.

§ 941. Disqualification unwaived; cause removed or judge acts.—When any of the disqualifications specified in this chapter exist, and there is no waiver thereof, or when the disqualification does not permit of waiver, any party in interest may apply to the judge of the district or to the judge holding the courts of such district for an order to remove the proceedings to the clerks of the superior court of an adjoining county in the same district; or may apply to the judge to make and render either in vacation or term time all necessary orders and judgments in any proceeding where the clerk is disqualified, and the judge in such cases is hereby authorized and empowered to make and render any and all necessary orders and judgments as if he had the same original jurisdiction as the clerk over such proceeding. (Rev., s. 904; Code, s. 106; C. C. P., s. 421; 1913, c. 70, s. 1.)

§ 942. Disqualification at time of election; judge acts.—In all cases where the clerk of the superior court is executor, administrator, collector or guardian of any estate at the time of his election to office, in order to enable him to settle such estate, the judge of the superior court mentioned in the preceding section is empowered to make such orders as may be necessary in the settlement of the estate; may audit the accounts or appoint a commissioner to audit the accounts of such executor or administrator, and report to either of said judges for his approval, and when the accounts are so approved, it is his duty to order the proper record to be made by the clerk, and the accounts to be filed in court. (Rev., s. 905; Code, s. 107; 1871-2, c. 197.)

Action.—The proper practice, in a proceeding against an administrator who at the time was elected clerk, seems to be to make the summons returnable before him, and then, transfer the whole proceeding before the district judge, who will make the necessary orders in the premises. Wilson v. Abrams, 70 N. C. 324.

§ 943. Custody of records and property of office.—1. Receipt from Predecessor. — Immediately after he has given bond and qualified, the clerk shall receive from the late clerk of the superior court all the records, books, papers, moneys and property of his office, and give receipts for the same, and if any clerk refuses or fails within a reasonable time after demand to deliver such records, books, papers, moneys and property, he is liable on his official bond for the value thereof.

2. Transfer to Successor; Penalty.—Upon going out of office for any reason, any clerk of the superior, inferior, or criminal court shall transfer and deliver to his successor (or to such person, before his successor in office may be appointed, as the court may designate) all records, documents, papers, and money belonging to the office. And the judge appointing any clerk to a vacancy in the clerkship of the superior court may give to such person an order for the delivery to him, by the person having the custody thereof, of the records, documents, papers and moneys belonging to the office, and he shall deliver the same in obedience to such order. In case any clerk going out of office as aforesaid, or other person having the custody of such records, documents, papers, and money as aforesaid, fails to transfer and deliver them as herein directed, he shall forfeit and pay to the state one thousand dollars, which shall be sued for by the prosecuting officer of that court. (Rev., ss. 906, 907; Code, ss. 81, 124; R. C., c. 19, s. 14; C. C. P., s. 142.)

Cross Reference.—As to failure to deliver as a misdemeanor, see secs. 4384, 4385. As to summary remedy, see sec. 356.

Order and Demand.—A person, duly elected clerk of the superior court by the people, needs no order from any person or authority to demand from his predecessor the property of all kinds belonging to the office, nor is it necessary for a retiring superior court clerk to be ordered to pay over to his successor, whether elected or appointed, the funds, etc., of the officer. Peebles v. Boone, 116 N. C. 58, 21 S. E. 187.

But where the judge places some person temporarily in charge of the office until the regular appointment is made, it is then necessary for the new clerk to have an order from the judge, directing the person temporarily in charge, to deliver the possession of his office to such clerk. Peebles v. Boone, 116 N. C. 58, 60, 21 S. E. 187.

Right of Action.—The right of clerk of a superior court to bring an action against his predecessor on the latter's official bond to recover the records, money, etc., in his hands, does not rest on any injury done to the plaintiff, but on the ground that the law requires that each successive clerk shall receive from his predecessor all the records, money and property of his office. Peebles v. Boone, 116 N. C. 58, 62, 21 S. E. 187.

Remedy.—When an out-going clerk fails to deliver the property of his office, as herein provided, the successor's remedy is by attachment and suit for the penalty. O'Leary v. Harrison, 51 N. C. 338, 341.

When Liability Ceases.—When a former clerk delivers to his successors all the proceeds, etc., of his office, his official duties, powers, and liabilities cease. Gregory v. Morisey, 79 N. C. 559, 562.

§ 944. Unperformed duties of outgoing clerk. —1. Performance Secured. — When, upon the death or resignation, removal from office, or at the expiration of his term of office, any clerk has failed to discharge any of the duties of his office, the court, if practicable, shall cause the same to be performed by another person, who shall receive for such services, and as a compensation therefor, the fees allowed by law to the clerk.

2. Liability on Outgoing Clerk's Bond.— Such portion thereof as may be paid by the county may be recovered by the county, by suit on the official bond of the defaulting clerk, to be brought on the relations of the board of commissioners of the county. (Rev., s. 908; Code, s. 87; R. C., c. 19, s 19; 1844, c. 5, s. 6.)

Proceeding Recorded.—Where an outgoing clerk has failed to record a proceeding, the court has the power, and it is its duty, on the application of an interested party, to have such proceeding recorded as of its proper date. Foster v. Woodfin, 65 N. C. 29, 30.

§ 945. Location of and attendance at office.—The clerk shall have an office in the courthouse or other place provided by the board of commissioners, in the county town of his county. He shall give due attendance, in person or by deputy, at his office daily, Sundays and holidays excepted, from nine o'clock a. m. to three o'clock p. m., and longer when necessary for the dispatch of business; and personally every Monday for the transaction of probate business, and on each succeeding day till such matters are disposed of; and upon his failure to do so, unless caused by sickness or other urgent necessity or unless leave of absence is obtained by law, he shall forfeit his office. (Rev., s. 909; Code, ss. 80, 114, 115; C. C. P., s. 141; 1871-2, c. 136.)

Forfeiture of Office.—A single failure on the part of a clerk to keep his office open on Monday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., for the transaction of probate business (unless such failure is caused by sickness), is a distinct and complete cause for forfeiture of his office. People v. Heaton, 77 N. C. 18.

Quo Warranto.—The forfeiture of office incurred by a superior clerk as herein provided by failing to keep open his office on Monday, can only be enforced by proceedings in the nature of quo warranto. State v. Norman, 82 N. C. 687, 689; People v. Heaton, 77 N. C. 18, 20.

§ 946. Obtaining leave of absence from office. —Upon application of any clerk of the superior court to the judge of the superior court residing in the district in which the clerk resides the judge of the superior court riding the district or judge of superior court presiding in the county of said clerk, showing good and sufficient reason for the clerk to absent himself from his office, the judge may issue an order allowing him to absent himself from his office for such time as the judge may deem proper. But he shall at all times leave a competent deputy in charge of his office during his absence. The order of the judge granting leave of absence shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county in which the clerk resides. (Rev., s. 910; 1903, c. 467; 1935, c. 348.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 makes the section applicable when application is made by "the judge of the superior court riding the district or judge of superior court presiding in the county of said clerk."

§ 947. To keep fee bill posted. — Every clerk shall keep posted in his office in some conspicuous place the fee bill, for public inspection and reference, under a penalty of one hundred dollars for such neglect, to be paid to any person who will sue for same. (Rev., s. 2774; Code, s. 3740.)

§ 948. To furnish blank process, bonds and undertakings.—Clerks of courts shall furnish to parties printed copies of the formal parts of all process required to be issued by them, with convenient blank spaces for the insertion of written matter; and also the blank forms of such bonds and undertakings as are required to be taken by them. (Rev., s. 911; Code, s. 3761; C. C. P., s. 559; 1868-9, c. 279, s. 558.)

§ 949. To file papers in proceedings.—The clerk must file and preserve all papers in proceedings before him, or belonging to the court; and shall keep the papers in each action in a separate roll or bundle, and at its termination attach them together, properly labeled, and file them in the order of the date of the final judgment. All such papers and the books kept by him belong to, and appertain to, his office, and must be delivered to his successor. (Rev., s. 912; Code, ss. 86, 111; C. C. P., ss. 146, 426.)

Filing Papers.—The fee allowed the clerk for "filing papers," is allowed for the single act of filing all the papers when the case is closed, as herein provided. Guilford v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 23, 27 S. E. 94.

§ 950. To keep records of his office; obtaining originals or copies.—He shall keep in bound volumes a complete and faithful record of all his officials acts, and give copies thereof to all persons desiring them, on payment of the legal fees. He shall be answerable for all records belonging to his office, and all papers filed in the court, and they shall not be taken from his custody, unless by special order of the court, or on the written consent of the attorneys of record of all the parties; but parties may at all times have copies upon paying the clerk therefor. (Rev., s. 913; Code, s. 82; C. C. P., s. 143; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 4.)

Clerks are required to keep a record, in which shall be recorded all orders and decrees passed in their office, which they are required to make in writing. Gulley v. Macy, 91 N. C. 356, 359.

§ 951. To endorse date of issuance on process. —The clerk shall note on all precepts, process and executions the day on which the same shall be issued; and the sheriff or other officer receiving the same for execution shall in like manner note thereon the day on which he shall have received it, and the day of the execution; and every clerk, sheriff or other officer neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay one hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 914; Code, s. 100.)

Action in Name of State.—An action brought against a sheriff, for the penalty herein provided for neglecting to note upon process the day on which it was received, should be in the name of the state as plaintiff. Duncan v. Philpot, 64 N. C. 479, 480.

Final Process.—This section has no reference to the final process. Wyche v. Newsom, 87 N. C. 144, 145. See also, Person v. Newsom, 87 N. C. 142.

§ 952. To keep books; enumeration. — Each clerk shall keep the following books, which shall be open to the inspection of the public during regular office hours:

1. Summons Docket, which shall contain a docket of all writs, summonses or other original process issued by him, or returned to his office, which are made returnable to a regular term of the superior court; this docket shall contain a brief note of every proceeding whatever in each action, up to the final judgment inclusive.

2. Judgment Docket, which shall contain a note of the substance of every judgment and every proceeding subsequent thereto.

3. Civil Issue Docket, which shall contain a docket of all issues of fact joined upon the pleadings, and of all other matters for hearing before the judge at a regular term of the court, a copy of which shall be furnished to the judge at the commencement of each term.

4. Cross-index to judgments, which shall contain a direct and reverse alphabetical index of all final judgments in civil actions rendered in the court, with the dates and numbers thereof, and also of all final judgments rendered in other courts and authorized by law to be entered on his judgment docket.

5. Cross-index of Parties to Actions.—The clerk shall keep an alphabetical index and cross-index of all parties to all action and special proceedings. Upon the issuance of summons or commencement of an ex parte proceeding he shall forthwith index and cross-index the names of all parties to such action or proceeding. When an order is made that any new or additional party be brought into an action or proceeding his name shall forthwith be indexed and cross-indexed by the clerk. The index shall be so arranged that beside each name shall appear a reference to the book and page whereon the action or proceeding will be found upon the summons docket, civil issue docket, special proceeding docket, and judgment docket, or such of said dockets as carry reference to said action or proceeding; and immediately upon said action or proceeding being entered upon any of said dockets the clerk shall cause said index to carry reference thereto upon the index and cross-index as to every party.

6. Record of lis pendens, which shall contain the names of the parties to the action, place where such notice, whether formal or in the pleadings, is filed, the object of the action, the date of indexing, and a sufficient description of the land to be affected, and which shall be cross-indexed.

7. Criminal docket, which shall contain a note of every proceeding in each criminal action.

8. Minute docket of superior court, which shall contain a record of all proceedings had in the court during term, in the order in which they occur, and such other entries as the judge may direct to be made therein.

9. Special proceedings docket, which shall contain a docket of all writs, summonses, petitions, or other original process issued by him, or returnable to his office, and not returnable to a regular term; this docket shall contain a brief note of every proceeding, up to the final judgment inclusive.

10. Minute docket of proceedings before clerk, which shall contain a record of all proceedings had before the clerk, in actions or proceedings not returnable to a regular term of the court.

11. Record of wills, which shall contain a record of all wills, with the certificate of probate thereof.

12. Record of appointments, which shall contain a record of appointments of executors, administrators, guardians, and collectors, with revocations of all such appointments; and on which shall be noted all subsequent proceedings relating thereto.

13. Record of orders and decrees, which shall contain a record of all orders and decrees passed in his office, which he is required to make in writing, and not required to be recorded in some other book.

14. Records of accounts, which shall contain a record of accounts, in which must be recorded inventories and annual accounts of executors, administrators, collectors, trustees under assignments for creditors, and guardians, as audited by him from time to time.

15. Record of settlements, which shall contain a record of settlements, in which must be entered the final settlements of executors, administrators, collectors, commissioners, trustees under assignments for creditors, and guardians.

16. Record of jurors, which shall contain a list of all persons who serve as grand, petit, and tales jurors in his court; which shall be properly indexed.

17. Record of justices of the peace, which shall contain a complete list of the justices of the peace of the county, by townships, giving the date of election or appointment, qualification, and expiration of term of office of each; and whenever a vacancy occurs it shall be noted therein. These books shall at all times show a complete list of the justices of the peace of the county and who was the predecessor of each justice and the succession in office.

18. Record of books, which shall contain the date of delivery to each justice of the peace of any dockets, records, and books; and the date of the receipt by him to any justice of the peace, or to the personal representative of a deceased justice of the peace, for any dockets, records, and books returned to him.

19. Cross-index of wills, which shall contain a general alphabetical cross-index of all wills filed or recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and devising real estate or any interest therein, whether such devise appears on the face of said will or not, showing the full name of each devisor, and all devisees as they are given in the will, together with the date of the probate of such will.

20. Cross-index of executors and administrators, which shall contain a general alphabetical cross-index of the appointment of all executors and administrators made by the courts of their county, showing the name of the appointee, the name of the decedent, and date of appointment.

21. Cross-index of guardians, which shall contain a general alphabetical cross-index of the appointment of all guardians made by the courts of their county, showing the name of the guardian, the names of the wards, and date of appointment.

22. Record of fines and penalties, which shall contain an itemized and detailed statement of the respective amounts received by him in the way of fines, penalties and forfeitures, and paid over to the county treasurer.

23. Lien docket, which shall contain a record of all notices of liens filed in his office, properly indexed, showing the names of the lienor and lienee.

24. Record of appointment of receivers, which shall contain a record of all appointments of receivers, and all inventories, reports, and accounts filed by them; which shall be properly indexed.

25. Record of corporations, which shall contain a record of the certificate of incorporation of all corporations charted under general law, with principal office or place of business in his county.

26. Accounts of indigent orphans, which shall contain a record of all receipts from persons for money paid for indigent children.

27. Register of physicians and surgeons, which shall contain a list of the names and places of residence, with date of registration, of all persons registered by him as physicians and surgeons.

28. Register of dentist, which shall contain a registration of certificates of all persons entitled to practice dentistry in his county.

29. Register of chiropodists, which shall contain a list of the names and places of residence, with date of certificate, of all persons registered by him as chiropodists.

30. Register of trained nurses, which shall contain the name, residence and date of registration of all trained nurses duly licensed in his county.

31. Permanent roll of registered voters, which shall contain an alphabetical list by townships of all persons entitled to permanent registration, giving the name and age of each, the name of the person from whom he was descended, unless he himself was a voter on July 1, 1867, or prior thereto, the state in which he was such voter and the date he applied for registration.

32. Record of payment of poll tax, which shall contain a list by townships of all persons certified to him by sheriff or tax collector as having paid their poll tax by May first.

33. Lunacy docket, which shall contain a record of all the examinations of persons alleged to be insane, a brief summary of the proceedings, and his findings, and a record of all proceedings in lunacy transmitted to him by justices of the peace.

34. Record of county treasurer's report, which shall contain an itemized statement of all fines and penalties paid to the county treasurer; which said itemized statement of fines and penalties received by the county treasurer shall be by him reported to the clerk on the first day of January, April, July and October, respectively, of each and every year.

35. Nol. pros. with leave record, which shall contain a record of all cases in which a nolle prosequi with leave is entered in criminal actions, with the term of court at which the order is made, and which shall be cross-indexed.

36. Record of permits to purchase weapons, which shall contain the name, date, place of residence, age, former place of residence, etc., of each person, firm or corporation to whom or which a permit is issued to purchase deadly weapons. (Rev., s. 915; Code, ss. 83, 95, 96, 97, 112, 1789; 1893, c. 52; 1899, c. 110; 1903, c. 51; 1901, c. 2, s. 9, 1899, c. 82, 1889, c. 181, s. 4; 1887, c. 178, s. 2; 1903, c. 359, s. 6; 1901, c. 550, s. 3; 1901, c. 89, s. 13; 1899, c. 78, s. 7; 1919, c. 197, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, c. 88, amended this section as to Durham County only by adding at the end of sub-section five the following: "Provided, that it shall not be necessary to enter upon the cross index of the judgment docket the names of a party or parties against whom or which no liability of any kind is fixed or charged by the judgment."

Purpose.—The clerk's proceedings are summary in their nature, and should always be put in such shape as to present all that he does in the course of a proceeding, including his orders and judgments, intelligently, and so that the same may be distinctly seen and understood. To this end, he is required to keep certain permanent records of proceedings before him. Edwards v. Cobb, 95 N. C. 4, 8.

Notice of Judgment Docket.—The law prescribes what shall be recorded on the judgment docket, and everybody has notice that he may find there whatever ought to be there recorded, if indeed it exists. He is not required to look elsewhere for such matters. But he is required and bound to take notice in proper connections of what is there. The law charges him with such notice. Dewey v. Sugg, 109 N. C. 328, 333, 13 S. E. 923; Holman v. Miller, 103 N. C. 118, 120, 9 S. E. 429.

Civil Issue Docket.—Not only issues of fact joined upon the pleadings, but also all other matters for hearing before the judge at a regular term of the court are to be put upon the civil issue docket. Brown v. Rhinehart, 112 N. C. 772, 776, 16 S. E. 840. See also, Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498; Walton v. McKesson, 101 N. C. 428, 7 S. E. 566.

Minute Docket.—The minute docket is intended to and should contain a record of all the proceedings of the court, and such other entries as the judge may direct to be therein made. Walton v. McKesson, 101 N. C. 428, 7 S. E. 566; Guilford v. Commissioners, 120 N. C. 23, 28, 27 S. E. 94.

When Minute Docket Prevails.—While in the absence of entries on the minute docket those made on the civil issue docket should not be disregarded, yet where there is a conflict between them, nothing else appearing, those on the former must prevail. Walton v. McKesson, 101 N. C. 428, 7 S. E. 566.

Record of Fiats.—Clerks are required to record in general order books copies of all fiats made by them. Perry v. Bragg, 111 N. C. 159, 164, 16 S. E. 10.

Evidence of Appointment.—The record of appointments is admissible as evidence to show a guardian's appointment. Topping v. Windley, 99 N. C. 4, 5 S. E. 14.

Sufficient Notice of Lien.—A notice of a lien filed on the lien docket should go into details sufficiently so as to give reasonable notice to all persons of the character of the claim and the property upon which the lien is attached. Fulp v. Power Co., 157 N. C. 157, 160, 72 S. E. 867. See also Cook v. Cobb, 101 N. C. 68, 70, 7 S. E. 700; Cameron v. Lumber Co., 118 N. C. 266, 24 S. E. 7.

Treasurer's Report as Evidence.—The record of county treasurer's report is competent evidence against the sureties upon the official bond of such officer, and is prima facie evidence of the correctness of statements therein made. Davenport v. McKee, 98 N. C. 500, 4 S. E. 545.

§ 953. To notify commissioners of insolvency of surety company in which county officer bonded.—Every clerk of the superior court shall furnish the chairman of the board of county commissioners with all notifications furnished him, in accordance with section 6380 under the article Fidelity Insurance of the Chapter Insurance, by the insurance commissioner, that any surety company in which any officer of the county is bonded is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency. (Rev., 295.)

Art. 4. Reports

§ 954. List of justices to secretary of state.—The clerk of the superior court of each county in which justices of the peace are not elected by the qualified voters thereof on the first Monday in January preceding each regular session of the general assembly shall certify to the secretary of state a correct list of all justices of the peace in office in his county, the township in which each resides, the term of office of each, time of election or appointment, and when the respective terms of office of each expires. He shall also report the names of those elected or appointed justices of the peace, but who have failed to qualify, and when their terms of office began and the length thereof. (Rev., s. 916; Code, s. 89; 1901, c. 37, s. 2; 1881, c. 326.)

§ 954(a). List of attorneys-at-law to commissioner of revenue.—It shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Superior Court in each county of the State on or before the first day of May of each year to certify to the Commissioner of Revenue of the State of North Carolina the names and addresses of all Attorneys-at-Law located within the county and engaged in the practice of law. (1931, c. 290.)

§ 955. Criminal statistics to attorney-general.—Within twenty days after the adjournment of any term of the superior court at which criminal causes were triable, the clerk thereof shall transmit to the office of the attorney-general of the state a duly certified statement of the number of indictments finally disposed of at such court, specifying the number for each separate offense, the number on which convictions were had and on which defendants were acquitted, and of indictments against persons who were convicted on confession, and against persons who were discharged without trial, and also the name, age, occupation, sex, race and offense of every person convicted at such court, or pleading guilty of any offense, together with such other items of information in relation to such convicts and their offenses as the attorney-general shall require, on a form prescribed by him. For every neglect of any clerk of said court he shall forfeit the sum of fifty dollars, to be adjudged in the superior court of Wake County on the motion of the attorney-general, whose duty it is hereby made to make such motion at the first term of said court held after such neglect of any clerk. (Rev., s. 917; 1889, c. 341, ss. 1, 2, 3.)

Art. 5. Money in Hand; Investments

§ 956. Public funds to be reported to county commissioners.—On the first Monday in December of each and every year, or oftener, if required by order of the board of commissioners or any other lawful authority upon ten days' written notice, clerks of the superior courts shall make an annual report of all public funds which may be in their hands. The report shall be made to the board of county commissioners and addressed to the chairman thereof. It shall give an itemized statement of said funds so held, the date and source from which they were received, the person to whom due, how invested and where, in whose name deposited, the date of any certificate of deposit, the rate of interest the same is drawing, and other evidence of investment of said fund; and it shall include a statement of all funds in their hands by virtue or color of their office, and which may belong to persons or corporations. The report shall be subscribed and verified by the oath of the party making it before any person allowed to administer oaths. (Rev., s. 918; 1891, c. 580; 1931, c. 156.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 inserted the words: "upon ten days' written notice" in the first sentence of this section.

Cross Reference.—As to failure to report, or a false report, as a misdemeanor, see sec. 4386. For construction of "color of his office," see sec. 927.

Method of Procedure.—Where a clerk has admitted money to be due in the manner prescribed by this section, he can only be proceeded against on motion for a summary judgment for money that has remained in his hands for three years. Summey v. Johnston, 60 N. C. 98.

Prima Facie Case of Correctness.—This section raises a prima facie case of the correctness of the annual report of the clerk only when the statute is substantially complied with. Gilmore v. Walker, 195 N. C. 460, 142 S. E. 579.

§ 957. Approval, registration, and publication of report.—The board of commissioners shall refer all itemized statements made by the clerks of the superior courts to a special committee of their board, who shall compare the same with the records of the clerk's office from which the report is made and certify the same to the board as correct, and if approved the board shall cause the same to be registered in the office of the register of deeds, in a book to be furnished to said register by the board of county commissioners, which book shall be styled Record of Official Reports, with a proper index of all reports recorded therein, and each original report shall, if approved by the chairman of the board, be endorsed with the word "Approved," the date of approval and the endorsement signed by the chairman, and when recorded by the register of deeds he shall endorse thereon the date of registration, the page of the Record of Official Reports upon which the same is registered, sign the same and file it in his office. The register shall also cause a copy of the report to be published one time in some newspaper of general circulation published in the county of the register and also posted at the courthouse door within twenty days after filing the reports; and if no newspaper is published in the county the posting of the report at the courthouse door shall be a sufficient publication. The cost of publishing the report shall be paid by the county. (Rev., s. 919; Code, s. 90; 1891, c. 580, s. 3; 1893, c. 14, s. 3; 1874-5, c. 151; 1876-7, c. 276.)

Cited in Gilmore v. Walker, 195 N. C. 460, 142 S. E. 579.

§ 958. Report compelled by commissioners.—If any clerk fails to report, or if after a report has been made the board of county commissioners have reason to believe that any report is incorrect, the board shall take legal steps to compel a proper report to be made by suit on the bond of such clerk, or by reporting the fact to the solicitor of the district to which the county of said board may belong for his action. (Rev., s. 920; Code, s. 92; 1891, c. 580, s. 2; 1874-5, c. 151, s. 3; 1876-7, c. 276.)

§ 959. Payment to persons entitled.—The said clerks shall, on or before the first day of January in every year after statements required in the foregoing sections are made, account with and pay to the persons entitled to receive the same all such balances reported as aforesaid to be in their hands. (Rev., s. 921; Code, s. 1865; R. C., c. 73, s. 2; 1823, c. 1186, s. 2; 1831, c. 3, ss. 1, 3; 1893, c. 14, s. 1.)

Account.—"Account" means a statement in writing of debts and credits, or of receipts and payments, and when payments or settlement is intended, additional words are used. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 668, 46 S. E. 949.

§ 960. Unclaimed fees of jurors and witnesses paid to school fund.—All moneys due jurors and witnesses which remain in the hands of any clerk of the superior court on the first day of January after the publication of a third annual report of the said clerk showing the same shall be turned over to the county treasurer for the use of the school fund of the county, and it is the duty of said clerk to indicate in his report any moneys so held by him for a period embracing the two annual reports. (Rev., s. 922; 1891, c. 580, s. 4; 1893, c. 14, s. 3.)

§ 961. Use by public until claimed. — The money aforesaid, while held by the clerks, shall be paid, on application, to the person entitled thereto; and after it ceases to be so held, it may be used as other revenue, subject, however, to the claim of the rightful owner. (Rev., s. 923; Code, s. 1869; R. C., c. 73, s. 6; 1828, c. 41, s. 1.)

§ 962. Payment of money for indigent children and persons non compos mentis. — When any moneys in the amount of three hundred dollars or less are paid into court for any minor, indigent or needy child or children for whom no one will become guardian, upon satisfactory proof of the necessities of such minor, child or children, the clerk may upon his own motion or order pay out the same in such sum or sums at such time or times as in his judgment is for the best interest of said child or children, or to some discreet and solvent neighbor of said minor, to be used and faithfully applied for the sole benefit and maintenance of such minor indigent and needy child or children. The clerk shall take a receipt from the person to whom any such sum is paid and shall require such person to render an account of the expenditure of the sum or sums so paid, and shall record the receipt and the accounts, if any are rendered by order of the clerk, in a book entitled, Record of Amounts Paid for Indigent Children, and such receipt shall be a valid acquittance for the clerk. That in all cases where a minor child is now or may hereafter be the beneficiary of any policy of life insurance and the sum due to said minor child by virtue of any such policy does not exceed three hundred dollars, the insurance company which issued said policy may pay the sum due thereunder to the clerk of the superior court of the county where said minor child resides whose duty it shall be to receive it, and said clerk shall issue and deliver to such insurance company his receipt for the sum so paid, which shall be a complete release and discharge of said company from any and all liability to said minor child under and by virtue of any such policy of insurance. Moneys so paid to said clerk shall be held and disbursed by him in the manner and subject to the limitations provided by this section. This section shall also apply to incompetent or insane persons, and it shall be the duty of any person or corporation having in its possession $300.00 or less for any minor child or indigent child, or incompetent or insane person to pay same in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and the clerk of the superior court is hereby authorized and empowered to disburse the sum thus paid into his office, upon his own motion or order, without the appointment of a guardian. (Rev., s. 924; 1899, c. 82; 1911, c. 29, s. 1; 1919, c. 91; 1924, c. 1, s. 1; 1927, c. 76; 1929, c. 15 s. 1; 1933, c. 363.)

Cross References.—As to application of section when judge does not provide for the disbursement upon an order confirming partition, see § 2180 and note thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by the Laws 1924, c. 1 to apply to all funds contemplated by it, which are now, or may come into the hands of the clerk of the superior court, when the amount thereof does not exceed one hundred dollars ($100) for each child who may be entitled to share therein. The Act of 1927 added a proviso relating to persons non compos mentis which was struck out by the Act of 1929. The latter Act changed the word "one" formerly appearing in line two to "three." See note under sec. 962(a).

The last sentence of the section, relating to payment of $300 or less held for a "minor child or indigent child, or incompetent or insane person," was added by Public Laws 1933, c. 363.

§ 962(a). Limitation on investment of trust funds.—It shall be unlawful for the clerk of the superior court of any county in the State of North Carolina receiving any money by color of his office to apply or invest any of said money except as hereinafter provided. (1931, c. 281, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The act from which this and the six following sections are codified, was apparently intended to supply the need indicated in William v. Hooks, 199 N. C. 489, 154 S. E. 828, wherein the court held that "there is no mandatory requirement of law imposing upon the clerk of the Superior Court the express duty of investing funds in his hands belonging to minors." The act is broader than that, however, and applies to all funds held by the clerk as such or as receiver or trustee for any infant or person non compos mentis. It should be read in connection with §§ 153, 956 and 5027. The first, in part, and the last, in part, would seem to be impliedly repealed by the act. The effective reform inaugurated by the act suggests the need of a general overhauling of the law relating to investments by fiduciaries. Apparently no law regulates investments by saving banks. Sections 2308 and 4018 are wholly permissive. Section 6334, as to insurance companies, is, aside from this new statute, the only restrictive regulation. Independently of statute, the Supreme Court has consistently adhered to the rule that a fiduciary, in handling investments, is required only to exercise good faith and the care that a prudent man, under the particular circumstances, would use in the management of his own affairs. In Sheets v. Flynt Tobacco Co., 195 N. C. 149, 141 S. E. 355, apparently the latest decision in this field, a guardian, without an order of court, invested all of the funds of his ward in the preferred stock of a local tobacco company, purchased from the company. The stock depreciated. The wards attempted to recover the amount of the investment, less dividends, from the company. The court held that on the record the company was not liable, but intimated that the company and the guardian might be liable if the guardian had not complied with the test of good faith and due care. This case should be compared with Mobley v. Phinizy (Ga. App.), 155 S. E. 73, where a trustee, without an order of court, and in violation of a Georgia restrictive statute, had invested funds in bank stocks. The bank failed. The trustee was held responsible both to the beneficiaries and to the Superintendent of Banks. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 399, 400.

For act applicable in Cleveland County only, see Public Laws 1933, c. 110.

§ 962(b). Investments prescribed; funds from lands of infants and persons non compos mentis. —The clerk of the superior court of any county in the State may in his discretion invest moneys secured by color of his office or as receiver in any of the following securities:

(a) By loaning the same upon real estate security, such loans not to exceed fifty per cent (50%) of the assessed tax value; and said loans when made to be evidenced by a note, or notes, of the borrower and secured by first mortgage or deed of trust.

(b) United States Government bonds.

(c) United States Government Postal Savings Certificates.

(d) North Carolina State bonds.

(e) North Carolina county or municipal bonds which are approved by the Sinking Fund Commission.

(f) Certificates of deposit for on time deposit with any bank or trust company where such protection is furnished as required in section four of this act.

(g) When the clerk of the superior Court as receiver or trustee for any infant or non compos mentis shall come into the possession of any lands for the use of such person and it shall be necessary to make investments of the funds of such person to manage or cultivate said lands, the clerk may make such investments as are necessary for said purposes: Provided, the same is approved by the resident judge of the superior court or the judge holding the court of the district. (1931, c. 281, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—In the investment of funds of infants or persons non compos mentis used in the management or cultivation of lands held for them by the clerk as receiver or trustee, he is unlimited by the items mentioned in this section. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 399.

For act applicable in Cleveland County only, see Public Laws 1933, c. 110.

§ 962(c). Securing bank deposits.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court of any county in the State to require of any bank or trust company, wherein he may deposit money placed with him in trust, a corporate surety bond in an amount sufficient to protect such deposits, but in lieu of such corporate surety bond, the clerk may require such bank to furnish bonds of the United States Government, North Carolina State bonds, or North Carolina county or municipal bonds which have been approved by the Sinking Fund Commission. (1931, c. 281, s. 3.)

§ 962(d). Inspection of records by local government commission; report to solicitor of mismanagement. — The County Government Advisory Commission, or its successors, is hereby authorized and empowered to inspect the records of any clerk of the superior court in the State for the purpose of ascertaining that such clerk is complying with the requirements of this act and if, in the course of such inspection, it is found that such clerk has failed to comply with the requirements of this act, it shall be the duty of the County Government Advisory Commission, or its successors, to report such findings to the solicitor of the district in which the county is located and said solicitor shall proceed to prosecute as hereinafter provided. (1931, c. 281, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws, 1931, c. 60, the Local Government Commission is the successor of the County Government Advisory Commission. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 398.

§ 962(e). Inspection and audit by county auditors or accountants; reports of audits.—It shall be the duty of the County Auditor or County Accountant of any county to inspect and audit the records and accounts of the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county for the purpose of ascertaining that such clerk is complying with the requirements of this act and that such clerk is properly safeguarding and accounting for all funds of every nature and character which have come into his hands by virtue of his office; such audits to be made and a report thereof made by the County Auditor or County Accountant to the board of county commissioners of the county and to the County Government Advisory Commission or such other governmental agency as shall succeed to the rights and duties of the County Government Advisory Commission. (1931, c. 281, s. 6.)

See note under § 962(d).

§ 962(f). Liquidation of present funds within year. — It shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court of any county in the State, who shall have funds invested other than as provided for in this act, to liquidate same within one year from the passage of this act: Provided, however, that upon approval of the resident judge of his district, the clerk may extend from time to time, the time for sale or collection of any such investments; that no one extension shall be made to cover a period of more than one year from the time the extension is made. (1931, c. 281, s. 7.)

§ 962(g). Violation of §§ 962(a)-962(f) a misdemeanor. — The clerk of the superior court of any county in the State who shall have violated the provisions of §§ 962(a)-962(f) shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment or both in the discretion of this court. (1931, c. 281, s. 5.)

COMMISSIONERS OF AFFIDAVITS AND DEEDS

§ 963. Appointment by governor; term; oath. —The governor is authorized to appoint and commission one or more commissioners in any foreign country, state or republic, and in such of the states of the United States, or in the District of Columbia, or any of the territories, colonies or dependencies as he may deem expedient, who shall continue in office for two years from the date of their appointment, unless sooner removed by the governor. Before such commissioner proceeds to perform any duty by virtue of this chapter, he shall take and subscribe an oath before a justice of the peace in the city or county in which he resides well and faithfully to execute and perform all the duties of such commissioner, according to the laws of North Carolina; which oath shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. (Rev., ss. 926, 927; Code, ss. 632. 633.)

§ 964. Record of appointments; certified copies evidence.—It is the duty of the governor to cause to be recorded by the secretary of state the names of the persons who are appointed and qualified as commissioners, and for what state, territory, county, city, or town; and the secretary of state, when the oath of the commissioner is filed in his office, shall forthwith certify the appointment to the several clerks of the superior courts of the state, who shall record the certificate of the secretary at length. All removals of commissioners by the governor, and the names of all commissioners whose commissions have expired by law, and which have not been renewed, shall be recorded and certified in like manner. A certified copy thereof from the clerk, or a certificate of the appointment or removal aforesaid from the secretary of state, shall be sufficient evidence of the appointment or removal of such commissioner. (Rev., s. 928; Code, s. 634.)

It is the duty of the Secretary of State forthwith upon the appointment of such commissioners, to certify the same to the several clerks of the superior courts of the State, and, in like manner, to certify to the said clerks all removals of commissioners, and of all whose commissions have expired. Evans v. Etheridge, 99 N. C. 43, 5 S. E. 386, 388.

§ 965. List of appointments prepared and published by secretary of state.—The secretary of state shall prepare and cause to be printed in each volume of the public laws a list of all persons who since the preceding publication in the public laws have been appointed commissioners of affidavits and to take the probate of deeds in any foreign country and in the several states and territories of the United States and in the District of Columbia, under this chapter, setting forth the state, territory or district or foreign country for which such persons were appointed and the dates of their respective appointments and term of office; and he shall add to each of said lists a list of all those persons whose appointments have been renewed, revoked, or have resigned, removed or died since the date of the list previously published, as far as the same may be known to him, with the dates of such revocation, resignation, removal or death. (Rev., s. 929; Code, ss. 635, 636, 637, 639.)

§ 966. Published list conclusive.—The list of commissioners so published in any volume of the public laws shall be conclusive evidence in all courts of the appointments therein stated, and of the dates thereof. (Rev., s. 930; Code, s. 638.)

§ 967. Powers of such commissioners. — The commissioners have authority to take the acknowledgment or proof of any deed, mortgage, or other conveyance of lands, tenements, or hereditaments lying in this state, and to take the private examination of married women, parties thereto, or any other writings to be used in this state. Such acknowledgment or proof, taken or made in the manner directed by the laws of this state, and certified by the commissioner, shall have the same force and effect for all purposes as if made or taken before any competent authority in this state. The commissioners also have full power and authority to administer an oath or affirmation to any person willing or desirous to make it before him, to take depositions, and to examine the witnesses under any commission emanating from the courts of this state, relating to any cause depending or to be brought in said courts. Every deposition, affidavit, or affirmation made before him is as valid as if taken before any proper officer in this state. (Rev., ss. 926, 927; Code, ss. 632, 633.)

Editor's Note.—In the case of De Courcy, etc., Co. v. Barr, 45 N. C. 181, the court, construed section 2, chapter 21, of the Revised Statutes, as empowering commissioners of affidavits to take the acknowledgments of nonresidents only, upon the ground that the section declared that the acknowledgment should have "the same power and effect," etc., if the same had been made "before some of the judges of supreme jurisdiction in any other state." Section 5, chapter 37, of the Revised Statutes, authorizes judges of courts of supreme jurisdiction in other states to take the acknowledgment of grantors residing "in any of the United States other than this state." The Revised Code was enacted at the next session of the General Assembly held after that decision was rendered, and the law (as embodied in section 2, chapter 21, Rev. Code) seems to have been drawn with the purpose of enlarging the powers of commissioners of affidavits, and enabling them to take and certify acknowledgments of grantors of deeds, whether they were nonresidents, or residents of this state temporarily absent from the state. The section last mentioned has been in force since its enactment by the Legislature of 1854-55, being almost the same as section 633 of the Code. The latter gives to acknowledgments, taken before commissioners of affidavits, "the same force and effect, for all purposes, as if the same had been made or taken before any competent authority in this state." It does not seem that any serious doubt has been entertained as to the true meaning of the law now in force since the case of Simmons v. Gholson, 50 N. C. 401, was decided. It has been considered as conferring upon a commissioner of affidavits the same authority to take the proof of executions or the acknowledgment of grantors, who may be in the state for which they were appointed (whether there temporarily or as residents), as to the execution of deeds conveying land or other property located in this state that are required or allowed by law to be registered—that is, given by law to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land lies but the clerk has power to adjudge that the execution has been properly proven and order the registration, while the commissioner is functus officio, as to any given deed, when he has attached to it his certificate as to proof or acknowledgment of its execution. Evans v. Etheridge, 99 N. C. 43, 5 S. E. 386; James, etc., Co. v. Pegram, 102 N. C. 540, 543, 9 S. E. 412.

Scope of Commissioner's Authority.—Under the section commissioners of affidavits have full authority to take the acknowledgment, within the states for which they are appointed, of the grantors to any deed or conveyance of lands in this state, and to take the private examination of femes covert. James, etc., Co. v. Pegram, 102 N. C. 450, 9 S. E. 412; Maphis v. Pegram, 107 N. C. 505, 12 S. E. 235.

Commissioners of affidavits are empowered by the section to take acknowledgments of deeds in other states, by residents of both this state and that for which such commissioners are appointed. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 717, 727, 24 S. E. 124.

Acknowledgments of Residents Visiting in Another State.—Where a man and his wife, being residents of this state, duly acknowledged a deed before a commissioner in Virginia, where they had gone on a visit merely, and the certificate of the commissioner, being in due form, was approved by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land was situated, and the deed duly recorded, the registration was valid. James, etc., Co. v. Pegram, 102 N. C. 540, 9 S. E. 412; Maphis v. Pegram, 107 N. C. 505, 12 S. E. 235.

Seal Unnecessary.—A commissioner of deeds for this state, residing in another state, is not required to affix his seal to the certificate acknowledging the execution of a deed conveying land in this state. Johnson v. Duvall, 135 N. C. 642, 47 S. E. 611; Sluder v. Wolf Mountain Lumber Co., 181 N. C. 69, 106 S. E. 215.

Acknowledgment a Judicial Act.—In this state it is settled law that an acknowledgment of a deed by the husband and privy examination of the wife taken before a commissioner is a judicial, or at least a quasi judicial, act. This was laid down by Pearson, J., in Decourcy, etc., Co. v. Barr, 45 N. C. 181; Long v. Crews, 113 N. C. 256, 257, 18 S. E. 499.

Sufficient Verification.—An affidavit upon which an application for a provisional remedy is based is sufficiently verified when made before a commissioner for this state resident in another state and authenticated by his official signature and seal. Young v. Rollins, 85 N. C. 485.

§ 968. Powers of clerks of courts in other states.—Every clerk of a court of record in any other state has full power as a commissioner of affidavits and deeds as is vested in regularly appointed commissioners of affidavits and deeds for this state. (Rev., s. 931; Code, s. 640.)

As to probate and registration by officials of the United States, foreign countries, and sister states, see sec. 3294.

Authority of Clerks to Act.—The section confers upon clerks of courts of record in other states the powers both of commissioners of affidavits and of deeds and of commissioners regularly appointed by the courts, and the courts will take judicial notice of their seals. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 727, 24 S. E. 124; Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.

§ 969. Clerks and notaries to take affidavits.—The clerks of the supreme and superior courts and notaries public are authorized to take and certify affidavits to be used before any justice of the peace, judge or court of the state; and the affidavits so taken by a clerk shall be certified under the hands of the said clerk, and if to be used out of the county where taken, also under the seal of the court of which they are respectively clerks, and, if by a notary, under his notarial seal. (Rev., s. 925; Code, s. 631.)

Judicial Notice of Seals.—Courts take judicial notice of the seals of the courts of another state for the purpose of declaration of the will of the legislature. Kent, Vol. 1, just as they do of the seals of foreign courts of admiralty and notaries public. Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.

Verification of Pleadings Before Clerk.—A verification of a pleading made before the clerk of the Hustings Court of Richmond, Virginia, and authenticated by his seal, is valid. Hinton v. Life Ins. Co., 116 N. C. 22, 21 S. E. 201.

COMMON LAW

§ 970. Common law declared to be in force.—All such parts of the common law as were heretofore in force and use within this state, or so much of the common law as is not destructive of, or repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the freedom and independence of this state and the form of government therein established, and which has not been otherwise provided for in whole or in part, not abrogated, repealed, or become obsolete, are hereby declared to be in full force within this state. (Rev., s. 932; Code, s. 641; R. C., c. 22; 1715, c. 5, ss. 2, 3; 1778, c. 133.)

For more particular instances in which the common law of England has been held a part of the organic law of this state, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 157.

General Considerations.—The common law includes those principles, usages and rules of action applicable to the government and security of persons and property, which do not rest for their authority upon any express and positive declaration of the will of the legislature. Kent, Vol. 1, P. 471; Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 96, 51 L. Ed. 956.

As distinguished from law created by the enactment of legislatures, the common law comprises the body of those principles and rules of action relating to the government and security of persons and property, which derive their authority solely from usages and customs, immemorial antiquity, or from the judgments and decrees of the courts recognizing. Affirming and enforcing such usages and customs. Black Law Dict., P. 232; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Call Pub. Co., 181 U. S. 92, 102, 45 L. Ed. 765.

The term "common law" refers to the common law of England and not of any particular state. Eidman v Martinez, 184 U. S. 578, 46 L. Ed. 697.

So much of the common law as is in force by virtue of this section may be modified or repealed, but those parts of the common law which are imbedded in the Constitution are not subject to control. State v. Mitchell, 202 N. C. 439, 444, 163 S. E. 581.

Vested Rights in Common Law.—A person has no property, no vested interest, in any rule of common law. Hurtado v. California, 110 U. S. 516, 532, 28 L. Ed. 232.

Section 8028 Part of Same Act.—This section declaring the common law to be in force, first enacted in North Carolina in 1715, re-enacted in 1778, and successively with each complete re-enactment of our statute law, and finally in 1919, must be construed as a part of the same Act as sec. 8028. Price v. Slagle, 189 N. C. 757, 128 S. E. 161, 166.

Reference to Debts Due to State Abrogated.—The English common law which gave a debt due to the sovereign a preference over the debts due to others, is abrogated by this section, and is not in force as applied to a debt due to this state. This on the principle that the rule as it existed at common law is antagonistic to the spirit of our governmental institutions. Corp. Com. v. Trust Co., 193 N. C. 513, 137 S. E. 587.

Right of Bail in Capital Cases.—At common law bail might be granted in capital cases only by a high judicial officer upon thorough security of the facts and great caution. This right though once modified by the old constitution against its existence in felony cases where the proof was evident and the presumption was great, now prevails in this state as it existed at common law, since that Constitution is superseded by the present Constitution which contains no provisions which qualify the right. In England the power to bail was exercised by the King's superior courts of justice; and in this state the power is conferred upon the justices of the Supreme Court, judges of the superior and criminal courts. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 941, 12 S. E. 268.

Exemption of Attorneys from Arrest.—The common law exemption of an attorney from arrest in a civil action, should, under our institutions and because of absoluteness by nonusage, not prevail, except where the attorneys are actually in attendance upon court in the due course of their employment as attorneys. Greenleaf v. Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 296, 45 S. E. 638.

Medietate Jury.—The statute, 28 Ed., VIII, cl. 13, in England, giving a jury de medietate, is not in force in this state. State v. Antonio, 11 N. C. 200.

Percolating Waters.—The owner of lands is only entitled to the reasonable use of percolating waters collected in subterranean channels on his own lands; and the English common law doctrine to the contrary is inapplicable under this section. Rouse v. Kinston, 188 N. C. 1, 123 S. E. 482.

Habeas Corpus.—It is an admitted principle of common law that every court of record of superior jurisdiction has the power to issue the writ of habeas corpus. This power is preserved in this state and can be exercised by all courts of record of superior jurisdiction. In re Bryan, 60 N. C. 1, 42.

Forfeiture for felony which was the established rule at common law, has had no force in this state since 1778. White v. Fort, 10 N. C. 251, 264.

Exemption from Civil Process.—The common law privilege of the exemption of nonresidents from service of civil process while attending upon litigation in the courts of this state, as suitors or witnesses, was not repealed by implication by sections 1808, 2328. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 784, 29 S. E. 947.

Survivorship; Husband and Wife Tenants by Entireties.—The common law doctrine of survivorship between husband and wife as tenants by entireties has not been changed by statute and is in force in this state. Dorsey v. Kirkland, 177 N. C. 520, 99 S. E. 407.

Presumption as to Common Law in Sister States.—Where there is no evidence to the contrary, the presumption is that the common law is in force in a sister state. Hipps v. Southern R. Co., 177 N. C. 472, 99 S. E. 335.

Presumption of Death.—The doctrine of the common law as to presumptive death is not repealed or affected by statute, and obtains in our courts. Steele v. Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., 196 N. C. 408, 145 S. E. 787.

Limitation Over in Personal Property.—The common-law rule that there can be no limitation over in personal property after reservation of a life estate therein is in force in this state, under this section and has been recognized by judicial decision and by statutory implication. Speight v. Speight, 208 N. C. 132, 179 S. E. 461.

Cited in Hinton v. Hinton, 196 N. C. 341, 342, 145 S. E. 615; Rhodes v. Collins, 198 N. C. 23, 26, 150 S. E. 492; Grantham v. Grantham, 205 N. C. 363, 366, 171 S. E. 331.

CONSTABLES

§ 971. Election and term.—In each township there shall be a constable, elected by the voters thereof, who shall hold his office for two years. (Rev., s. 933; Const., Art. 4, s. 24.)

For more particular treatment of the law relating to constables in general, see 11 N. C. Enc. Dig. 242.

The provision of Art. IV, section 25 of the Constitution that officers shall hold office until their successors are qualified, does not embrace the office of constable. State v. McLure, 84 N. C. 153.

§ 972. Oaths to be taken.—All constables, before they shall be qualified to act, shall take before the board of county commissioners the oaths prescribed for public officers, and also an oath of office. (Rev., s. 934; Code, s. 642; R. C., c. 24, s. 8.)

§ 973. Bond; where registered; how fees paid.—The board of commissioners of each county shall require of each constable, elected or appointed for a township, on entering upon the duties of his office, to give a bond with good surety, payable to the state of North Carolina, in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, conditioned as well for the faithful discharge of his duty as constable as for his diligently endeavoring to collect all claims put into his hands for collection, and faithfully paying over all sums thereon received, either with or without suit, unto the persons to whom the same may be due. Said bond shall be duly proved and registered and, after registration, filed in the office of the register of deeds; and certified copies of the same from the register's office shall be received and read in evidence in all actions and proceedings where the original might be. The fees for proving and registering the bond of constable shall be paid by the constable. In Stanly County the fees shall be paid by the county. (Rev., s. 302; Code, s. 647; R. C., c. 24, s. 7; 1818, c. 980; 1820, c. 1045, s. 2; 1833, c. 17; 1869-70, c. 185; 1899, c. 54, s. 52; 1891, c. 229.)

See §§ 324 et seq. and the notes thereto.

No Formal Condition.—This section does not prescribe any formal condition of a constable's bond. Holcomb v. Franklin, 11 N. C. 274, 275.

Liability Where No Execution Issued.—The securities on a constable's bond are accountable for his default in paying the moneys collected, even though no execution was issued for the purpose of collecting the same. Holcomb v. Franklin, 11 N. C. 274, 277.

Failure to Pay over Money.—Where a claim against a nonresident of the state, but subject to a single justice's jurisdiction, was put into a constable's hands for collection, and he collected the money, it was held that a failure to pay over such money on demand was a breach of his official bond. Dunton v. Doxey, 52 N. C. 222, distinguishing Dade v. Morris, 7 N. C. 146.

Money in Excess of Amount of Execution.—Where a sale of property under execution is made by a sheriff or a constable, and the property brings more than the amount of execution, it is the duty of such sheriff or constable to see that the excess is paid to the owner of the property. If he fails to do so, he is liable on his official bond. State v. Reed, 27 N. C. 357.

Failure to Collect.—Where a person put into the constable's hands for collection a note, the amount of which exceeded the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, and the constable procured the maker to substitute for it two notes, each within the jurisdiction of a justice, and afterwards failed to collect the same when he might have done so, it was held that he was liable on his bond. State v. Stephens, 25 N. C. 92.

Failure to Return Uncollected Notes.—Where a constable received notes to collect, and for want of time did not collect them before his term of office expired, and afterwards refused to deliver them up, it was held that his surties were liable therefor on his official bond. State v. Johnson, 29 N. C. 77.

Constable Becoming Surety.—If an insolvent constable become surety for stay of execution committed to him for collection, it is a breach of his bond. The law requires him to take responsible sureties. Governor v. Davidson, 14 N. C. 361. See also, Governor v. Coble, 13 N. C. 489.

Necessity of Demand.—In an action upon a constable's bond for failing to pay over money collected by him, it is necessary to prove a demand on him. White v. Miller, 20 N. C. 50.

Where negligence in failing to collect is the breach assigned in a suit on a constable's bond, no demand is necessary. Nixon v. Bagby, 52 N. C. 4.

Defense to Suit on Constable's Bond.—It is a sufficient defense to a suit on a constable's bond for failing to return a note given him for collection that the note had been sued and judgment obtained upon it. The note is thus sufficiently accounted for. Miller v. Pharr, 87 N. C. 396. See also, State v. Hooks, 33 N. C. 371.

Limitation of Action.—An action by warrant against a constable's sureties to recover moneys collected by a constable by virtue of his office, can only be barred by the same length of time that bars an action on the bond. Wilson v. Coffield, 27 N. C. 513.

Parties.—Where a debt is due to A., and he places it in the hands of a constable for collection, A. is the only person who can maintain, as relator, an action on the official bond of the constable for a breach of duty, notwithstanding A. may have afterwards assigned his interest in the debt to another. Governor v. Deavor, 25 N. C. 56.

Nature of Damages.—In an action on the official bond of a constable for his failure to collect notes placed in his hands for collection, the plaintiff is entitled to recover only nominal damages, unless he shows some actual injury sustained. State v. Skinner, 25 N. C. 564.

§ 974. Special constables.—For the better executing any precept or mandate in extraordinary cases, any justices of the peace may direct the same, in the absence of or for want of a constable to any person not being a party, who shall be obliged to execute the same under like penalty that any constable would be liable to. (Rev., s. 935; Code, s. 645.)

Decision of Justice Conclusive as to Extraordinary Case.—The decision of the justice of the peace is conclusive as to the existence of an "extraordinary case" for which he is, under this section, authorized to appoint anyone a special constable to execute his mandate. State v. Wynne, 118 N. C. 1206, 1208, 24 S. E. 216; State v. Armistead, 106 N. C. 639, 641, 10 S. E. 872.

However, while what has been stated in the preceding paragraph is true, it is always well to state that the person specifically appointed is so appointed for the want of a regularly constituted officer; as the section does not contemplate the appointment of special constables except on "extraordinary cases." State v. Dula, 100 N. C. 423, 428, 6 S. E. 89.

Defective Deputation of Special Officer.—Though the process be defective because it is not signed, or the deputation of the special officer is not in writing, as this section by fair intendment would seem to require, the defect may be waived by the defendant by his appearance before the court. In such a case, whatever may be the rights of the defendant making the arrest, the validity of the judgment is not thereby affected. State v. Cale, 150 N. C. 805, 63 S. E. 958.

Powers and Duties of Special Constables.—When a special constable is appointed under this section, in writing and without words restricting his authority, it confers upon him a general power to serve all processes and perform all the duties in regard to the particular case as those of a regular constable. State v. Armistead, 106 N. C. 639, 10 S. E. 872.

What Validity of Arrest Dependent upon.—The validity of the prisoner's arrest by the special constable depends upon the validity of the officer's deputation and not upon the sufficiency of the mittimus which is to terminate his duties. State v. Armistead, 106 N. C. 639, 640, 10 S. E. 872.

In Civil Actions.—A justice of the peace has no authority to depute a special officer to serve process in a civil action. McKee v. Angel, 90 N. C. 60.

§ 975. Vacancies in office.—Upon the death, failure to qualify or removal of any constable out of the township in which he was elected or appointed constable, or upon the failure of the voters of a township to elect a constable as required in section nine hundred and seventy-one of the consolidated statutes, the board of commissioners may appoint another person to fill the vacancy, who shall be qualified and act until the next election of constables. (Rev., s. 936; Code, s. 646; R. C., c. 24, s. 6; 1925, c. 206.)

Editor's Note. — The clause providing for appointment in case of failure to elect was inserted by the Public Laws of 1925. By the terms of the amendment it does not apply to Washington County.

County commissioners have the power to fill vacancies under the Constitution, Art. IV, section 24. State v. McLure, 84 N. C. 153.

§ 976. Powers and duties.—Constables are hereby invested with and may execute the same power and authority as they have been by law heretofore vested with, and have executed; and, in discharge of their duties, they shall execute all precepts and processes of whatever nature to them directed by any justice of the peace or other competent authority within their county or upon any bay, river, or creek adjoining thereto; and the said precepts and processes shall be returned to the magistrate, or other proper authority. (Rev., s. 937; Code, s. 643; R. C., c. 24, s. 9.)

See generally, 11 N. C. Dig. 242.

Common Law Rule Not Changed.—This section and section 3936 do not change the common law rule that an escape convict may be rearrested, in any county of the State without new process, by the officer in charge of him. State v. Finch, 177 N. C. 599, 99 S. E. 409.

Effect of Constitutional Requirement.—Section 24, Article IV, of the Constitution of North Carolina, was not meant to restrict the powers and duties of the constables to the township in which they were elected, but to intersperse the constables throughout every part of the county. State v. Corpening, 207 N. C. 805, 806, 178 S. E. 564.

How Process Addressed to Officer.—To make a valid service of process from the superior courts by constables, the same should be specially addressed to such officer by his official title. Carson v. Woodrow, 160 N. C. 143, 147, 75 S. E. 996.

§ 977. To execute notices within justice's jurisdiction.—Constables shall likewise execute, within the places aforesaid, all notices tendered to them which are required by law to be given for the commencement or in the prosecution of any cause before a justice of the peace; and the service thereof shall be made by delivering a copy to the person to be notified or by leaving a copy at his usual place of abode, if in the jurisdiction of the constable, which service, with the time thereof, he shall return on the notice, and such return shall be evidence of its service. On demand they shall deliver the notice to the party at whose instance it was issued. (Rev., s. 938; Code, s. 644; R. C., c. 24, s. 10.)

Town Constable's Authority to Serve Papers Other Than Process.—A town constable is given no authority to serve any papers for the superior court except process, and that only when expressly directed to him by the court. Forte v. Boone, 114 N. C. 177, 19 S. E. 632.

CHAPTER 17

CONTEMPT

§ 978. Contempts enumerated; common law repealed.—Any person guilty of any of the following acts may be punished for contempt:

For an exhaustive treatment of the more particular phases of the law of contempts, see 3 N. C. Enc. Dig. 355.

Editor's Note.—It is essential for an effective administration of justice in an orderly and efficient way that the court possess certain powers to enforce its mandate. A legislative interference to the extent of depriving the courts of these powers is tantamount to depriving the judicial department of the means of self-preservation and cannot be constitutionally justified. See Snow v. Hawkes, 183 N. C. 365, 111 S. E. 621; Ex parte McCown, 139 N. C. 95, 107, 51 S. E. 957.

These powers, however, as they existed at common law, while they may not be abrogated, may be reasonably regulated by legislation. See In re Robinson, 117 N. C. 533, 23 S. E. 453. Thus, this and the following sections are regulatory legislation upon the subject, and being in accord with modern doctrine, cannot be assailed on the ground of unconstitutionality. See In re Brown, 168 N. C. 417, 84 S. E. 690; In re Oldham, 89 N. C. 23, 26.

The enumeration of the acts punishable for contempt under this section is exhaustive; hence no other act than those specifically designated may be the subject matter of contempt proceedings. See In re Odum, 133 N. C. 250, 252, 45 S. E. 569.

For a masterly opinion on the history, nature, and extent of the power of courts to punish for contempt, see In re Brown, 168 N. C. 417, 84 S. E. 690, and Ex Parte McCown, 139 N. C. 95. 51 S. E. 957.

Construed Strictly.—This section should be strictly construed as a criminal statute. West v. West, 199 N. C. 12, 13, 153 S. E. 600. See also In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 630, 172 S. E. 345.

Definition.—Contempt is a willful disregard of the authority of a court of justice, or a legislative body or disobedience to its lawful orders. Black Law Dist.

Nature and Purpose of Proceedings.—The purpose of contempt proceedings is to uphold the power of the court and also to secure to suitors therein the rights by it awarded. In The Matter of Lewis, 202 U. S. 614, 50 L. Ed. 1172.

Punishments for contempt of court have two aspects, namely: 1. To vindicate the dignity of the court from disrespect shown to it or its orders. 2. To compel the performance of some order or decree of the court which it is in the power of the party to perform and which he refuses to obey. See In re Chiles, 22 Wall, 157, 22 L. Ed. 819; Bessette v. Conkey Co., 194 U. S. 324, 337, 48 L. Ed. 997.

Nature of Offense.—A contempt proceeding is sui generis. It is criminal in its nature, in that the party is charged with doing something forbidden, and, if found guilty is punished. Yet it may be resorted to in civil as well as criminal actions, and also independently of any civil or criminal action. In The Matter of Lewis, 202 U. S. 614, 50 L. Ed. 1172.

Facts Must Be Found and Filed.—In contempt proceedings the facts upon which the contempt is based must be found and filed, especially the facts concerning the purpose and object of the contemnor, and the judgment must be founded on those findings. In re Odum, 133 N. C. 250, 252, 45 S. E. 569.

Inherent Powers Incident to Punish for Contempt.—This and the following sections regulating proceedings for contempt confer on the courts all the inherent powers to attach for contempt that were recognized by the common law as essential to the due and orderly exercise of their jurisdiction and functions. State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 94 S. E. 680.

The power to punish for contempt is inherent in all courts. Ex parte Terry, 128 U. S. 289, 32 L. Ed. 405.

Not Repugnant to Principle of Due Process.—Summary proceedings for contempt, in which there is no right of appeal or trial by jury or removal before another judge, are not within the constitutional prohibition contained in the due process clause. The power to punish summarily for contempt has existed at common law "as far as the annuals of the law extends." State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 748, 94 S. E. 680.

1. Disorderly, contemptuous, or insolent behavior committed during the sitting of any court of justice, in immediate view and presence of the court, and directly tending to interrupt its proceedings, or to impair the respect due to its authority.

Must Be in Presence of the Court.—A wilful disobedience of the process or order of the superior court to desist from obstruction of a public road is not a contempt committed within the immediate presence or view of the court. In re Parker, 177 N. C. 463, 99 S. E. 342. But see, clause 4 of this section.

Nature of the Acts Punishable for Contempt.—Acts which are punishable under this section include all cases of disorderly conduct, breaches of the peace, noise and other disturbance near enough, designed and reasonably calculated to interrupt the proceedings of the court then engaged in the administration of justice and the dispatch of the business presently before it. State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 94 S. E. 680.

Protection Extended to Officers of Court, Witnesses, etc.—It is an act of contempt to interfere with the functioning of the business not only of the judge but also of all the officers of the court, and persons such as attorneys, jurors and witnesses, who in the line of their duty are assisting the court in the dispatch of its business. State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 94 S. E. 680. Snow v. Hawkes, 183 N. C. 365, 111 S. E. 621.

Assaulting the Judge during Recess of Court.—Where the respondent visited the judge at his boarding house during a recess of the court, before the adjournment of the term and assaulted the judge, it was held that this conduct was a direct contempt of the court as much as if the assault had been committed in the court during trial. Ex Parte McCown, 139 N. C. 95, 51 S. E. 957.

Appeal.—Acts committed in the presence of the court are not reversible on appeal. See State v. Nowell, 156 N. C. 648, 72 S. E. 590; In re Davis, 81 N. C. 72, 75; Ex parte Biggs, 64 N. C. 202. The contrary, however, is true of acts committed not in the presence of the court. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 11 S. E. 244.

Fighting in Courthouse Yard.—In State v. Woodfin, 27 N. C. 199, fighting in the yard of the courthouse, before the courthouse door, constituted the basis of the offense of contempt.

2. Behavior of the like character committed in the presence of any referee or referees, while actually engaged in any trial or hearing pursuant to the order of any court, or in the presence of any jury while actually sitting for the trial of a cause, or upon any inquest or other proceeding authorized by law.

Punishment by Court Making the Reference.—When, in the course of supplementary proceedings before a referee, a contempt is committed by refusing to answer the questions, it must be punished by the court making the reference. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 133.

3. Any breach of the peace, noise or other disturbance directly tending to interrupt the proceedings of any court.

See annotations under clause (1).

4. Willful disobedience of any process or order lawfully issued by any court.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 260, for comment on this and succeeding sections.

"Wilful" and "Unlawful" Distinguished. — "The word 'wilful,' when used in a statute creating an offense, implies the doing of the act purposely and deliberately in violation of law." "The term unlawfully implies that an act is done, or not done as the law allows, or requires; while the term wilfully implies that the act is done knowingly and of stubborn purpose." In re Hege, 205 N. C. 625, 630, 172 S. E. 345, citing West v. West, 199 N. C. 12, 153 S. E. 600.

Refusal to Deliver Note.—In Thompson v. Onley, 96 N. C. 9, 14, 1 S. E. 620, it was held that a refusal to obey the order requiring the surrender of a note, whether amounting to contempt or not, warranted a commitment as a means of forcing a compliance.

Disavowal of Disrespectful Intent.—The wilful disobedience of a restraining order by the party on whom it had been served, and who was aware of its meaning and import, is in itself an act of contempt under this section, from which he may not purge himself by disavowing a disrespectful intent. In re Parker, 177 N. C. 463, 99 S. E. 342

Impossibility to Comply with the Order or Process. — Where the disobedience to the process or order is due to circumstances which make it impossible for the contemnor to obey such an order or process, he may not be punished for contempt. Thus where the clerk issued a notice to the respondent to produce a certain will which was in the custody of some other clerk, it was held the order to adjudge the respondent guilty of contempt was reversible on appeal. In re Scarborough Will, 139 N. C. 423, 51 S. E. 931. But where the impossible circumstances are removed prior to the arrest for contempt the defendant will not be excused. Shooting Club v. Thomas, 120 N. C. 334, 26 S. E. 1007. The excuse is sufficient where the defendant has been unable to pay money according to an order. Kane v. Haywood, 66 N. C. 1; Boyett v. Vaughan, 89 N. C. 27; Smith v. Smith, 92 N. C. 304.

Where the husband, in proceedings against him for contempt for disobeying an order to pay moneys for the support of his child, shows by the uncontradicted testimony of himself and witness that he had no property nor income except what he could earn, and that he had been unable to obtain employment and was therefore unable to comply with the terms of the order, the evidence fails to show that the disobedience was wilful, and he may not be adjudged in contempt of court and a sentence imposed upon him. West v. West, 199 N. C. 12, 153 S. E. 600.

Order Void Ab Initio.—Where an order is void ab initio, one may not be held for contempt for disobeying such order, and the fact that he did not appeal from the granting of the order does not affect his liability, the order not being one "lawfully issued" as provided by this section. In re Longley, 205 N. C. 488, 171 S. E. 788.

Advice of Counsel No Excuse.—The failure to obey the order of the court placing property in possession of a receiver is, under this clause, a direct contempt, even though the contemnor acted under an advice of counsel. Such advice is no protection to the intentional violation of the order. Delozier v. Bird, 123 N. C. 689, 694, 31 S. E. 834. In such a case the counsel himself may be subjected to contempt proceedings. Id. This fact, however, will be considered by the judge in imposing the punishment. Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 270, 73 S. E. 799. See Green v. Griffin, 95 N. C. 50.

Disobeying Order of Clerk.—Where, in supplementary proceedings, the defendant has willfully disobeyed an order of the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction, in disposing of his property, he is guilty of contempt of court under the provisions of this section. Bank v. Chamblee, 188 N. C. 417, 124 S. E. 741.

Must Be Able to Obey.—The defendant must have been able to obey the order, and in spite of his ability must have disobeyed it. Inability to obey is a good excuse—for example payment of money. Kane v. Haywood, 66 N. C. 1; Boyett v. Vaughan, 89 N. C. 27; Smith v. Smith, 92 N. C. 304.

Other Actions Held to Constitute Contempt.—Disobeying an injunction or restraining order such as cutting timber after injunction against the same. Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 270, 73 S. E. 799; In re Carolina R. Co., 151 N. C. 467, 66 S. E. 438; Fleming v. Patterson, 99 N. C. 404, 6 S. E. 396. Writ of habeas corpus Id. Failure to pay alimony, Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334; failure of clerk to make transcript of record, Worth v. Bank, 121 N. C. 343, 344, 28 S. E. 488. See also generally Murray v. Berry, 113 N. C. 46, 18 S. E. 78, failure to deliver property, McLean v. Douglass, 28 N. C. 233; failure to return process, Ex parte Summers, 27 N. C. 149; failure to settle estates by public administrator, In re Brinson, 73 N. C. 278.

5. Resistance willfully offered by any person to the lawful order or process of any court.

6. The contumacious and unlawful refusal of any person to be sworn as a witness, or, when so sworn, the like refusal to answer any legal and proper interrogatory.

Refusal to testify before a commissioner, held contempt in Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 17 S. E. 69; and before a referee in LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 133.

Commissioner May Ask Aid of Judge; Declaration of Power.—The commissioner before whom the witness had refused to answer, may invoke the aid of the judge to punish for contempt. Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 17 S. E. 69. But the judge has no right to delegate the judicial power to punish for contempt to an executive officer. Id.

Self-Incrimination No Defense.—Witness may not refuse to answer on the ground that his answer may tend to incriminate him. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 133.

7. The publication of grossly inaccurate reports of the proceedings in any court, about any trial, or other matter pending before said court, made with intent to misrepresent or to bring into contempt the said court; but no person can be punished as for a contempt in publishing a true, full and fair report of any trial, argument, decision or proceeding had in court.

In General.—To state that the judges of the Supreme Court singly or en masse moved from the path of judicial propriety because of political zeal, subjected the party so stating to liability under this clause of the section. In re Moore, 63 N. C. 396, 397.

Publication after Adjournment of Court.—For constructive contempt by publication of false matter relating to the conduct of the presiding judge, published after the adjournment of the court, the judge must seek redresss by the ordinary method and bring his cause before an impartial tribunal. He may not proceed to determine the matter summarily without the intervention of a jury. In re Brown, 168 N. C. 417, 84 S. E. 690.

Publication of Past Matter.—There no longer exists the power to punish summarily for defamatory reports and publications about a matter which is past and ended. To justify contempt proceedings the publication must have been pendente lite. In re Brown, 168 N. C. 417, 418, 84 S. E. 690.

Trial of Issue by the Court instead of the Jury.—If on the face of the publication there is nothing to show that it was grossly incorrect or calculated to bring the court into contempt, the respondent is entitled to have the issue tried not by a jury but by a court. In re Robinson, 117 N. C. 533, 23 S. E. 453.

8. Misbehavior of any officer of the court in any official transaction.

The several acts, neglects and omissions of duty, malfeasances, misfeasances, and nonfeasances, above specified and described, shall be the only acts, neglects and omissions of duty, malfeasances, misfeasances and nonfeasances which shall be subject of contempt of court. And if there are any parts of the common law now in force in this state which recognized other acts, neglects, omissions of duty, malfeasances, misfeasances and nonfeasances besides those specified and described above, the same are hereby repealed and annulled. (Rev., s. 939; Code, s. 648; 1905, c. 449.)

Attorneys failure to pay the costs of cases in which they have been guilty of gross negligence is a sort of contempt, and the court may order them to pay. Ex parte Robins, 63 N. C. 310.

§ 979. Appeal from judgment of guilty.—Any person adjudged guilty of contempt under the preceding section has the right to appeal to the supreme court in the same manner as is provided for appeals in criminal actions, except for the contempts described and defined in subsections one, two, three, and six. Nor shall the right to appeal lie under subsections four and five if such contempt is committed in the presence of the court. (Rev., s. 939; Code, s. 648; 1905, c. 449.)

Finding of Fact Not Disturbed.—Where the judge has found sufficient facts to attach the defendant for direct contempt of court, upon imposing punishment therefor, the finding will not be disturbed by appeal. State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 94 S. E. 680; In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 62, 11 S. E. 244. Nor upon an appeal on an indirect contempt will the finding of fact by the judge be disturbed. In re Parker, 177 N. C. 463, 99 S. E. 342.

It is otherwise however on appeals from a subordinate court to the superior court. In such a case the facts as well as the law will be reviewed, and even additional testimony may be heard. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 63, 11 S. E. 244.

Habeas Corpus and Not Appeal.—Where the defendant punished for direct contempt contends that his legal rights have been denied, and it is made to appear that the court had no jurisdiction, his remedy is not by appeal, but by habeas corpus proceedings which, if necessary, may be carried up by a writ of certiorari. State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 94 S. E. 680.

As to contempts not committed in the presence of the court, an appeal lies. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 62, 11 S. E. 244; In re Davis, 81 N. C. 72; In re Walker, 82 N. C. 95; Cromartie v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 211.

§ 980. Solicitor or attorney-general to appear for the court.—In all cases where a rule for contempt is issued by any court, referee, or other officer, the solicitor shall appear for the court or other officer issuing the rule, and in case of appeal to the supreme court, the attorney-general shall appear for the court or other officer by whom the rule was issued. (Rev., s. 939; Code, s. 648; 1905, c. 449.)

§ 981. Punishment.—Punishment for contempt for matters set forth in the preceding sections shall be by fine not to exceed two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed thirty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 940; Code, s. 649.)

Imprisonment for 60 days and a fine of $2000 were held illegal under this section. In re Patterson, 99 N. C. 407, 6 S. E. 643. See also In re Walker, 82 N. C. 95.

Imprisonment for Debt.—The abolishment of imprisonment for debt does not include commitment under attachments for failure to comply with an order of court. Wood v. Wood, 61 N. C. 538.

Commitment until Alimony Paid.—A judgment for commitment until alimony is paid was held valid. Green v. Green, 130 N. C. 578, 41 S. E. 784.

Imprisonment until the order is complied with is valid. Cromartie v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 211; Thompson v. Onley, 96 N. C. 9, 5 S. E. 120; Delozier v. Bird, 123 N. C. 689, 694, 31 S. E. 834.

A fine for contempt goes to the State, being a punishment for a wrong to the State, and should not be directed to be paid to a party to the suit. In re Rhodes, 65 N. C. 518; Morris v. Whitehead, 65 N. C. 637.

Punishment by Working on Road.—A person sentenced to jail as for contempt of court can not be worked on the roads. State v. Moore, 146 N. C. 653, 61 S. E. 463.

Punishment Immediate.—The punishment in contempt cases, must be immediate, or it would be ineffectual, as it is designed to suppress an outrage, which impedes the business of the court. State v. Yancy, 4 N. C. 133.

No Defense to Criminal Prosecution.—The fact that a person has been punished for contempt of court, is no defense to a criminal indictment for the act constituting the contempt. State v. Yancy, 4 N. C. 133. In re Griffin, 98 N. C. 225, 3 S. E. 515.

Power of Industrial Commission.—The Industrial Commission proceeding under the Workmen's Compensation Act, being expressly given the authority to subpœna witnesses and have them give evidence at the hearing, acts in a judicial capacity in adjudging in contempt a witness who refuses to give material evidence, and in imposing a sentence or a fine or imprisonment under the provisions of this section. In re Hayes, 200 N. C. 133, 134, 156 S. E. 791.

§ 982. Summary punishment for direct contempt.—Contempt committed in the immediate view and presence of the court may be punished summarily, but the court shall cause the particulars of the offense to be specified on the record, and a copy of the same to be attached to every committal, attachment or process in the nature of an execution founded on such judgment or order. (Rev., s. 941; Code, s. 650.)

Remedy by Habeas Corpus.—This section, providing that the court shall find the facts constituting the contempt and have them spread upon the record, does not have the effect of giving the right of an appeal nor to a writ of certiorari in direct contempts. But such facts when spread upon the record may authorize a revising tribunal on habeas corpus to discharge the party. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 62, 11 S. E. 244.

Jury Trial.—It is well settled that the defendant, in contempt proceedings, is not entitled to a jury trial upon the controverted facts. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 64, 11 S. E. 244.

Assaulting Judge During Adjournment.—For assaulting a judge in his house pending an adjournment of the court the petitioner was properly punished for contempt by attachment in summary proceedings. Ex parte McCown, 139 N. C. 95, 51 S. E. 957.

§ 983. Courts and officers empowered to punish.—Every justice of the peace, referee, commissioner, clerk of the superior court, inferior court, criminal court, or judge of the superior court, or justice of the supreme court, or board of commissioners of each county, or corporation commissioner, has power to punish for contempt while sitting for the trial of causes or engaged in official duties. (Rev., s. 942; Code, ss. 651, 652.)

Authority of Mayor to Punish.—The authority given under this section to a justice of the peace to punish for contempt is extended to mayors by sections 2634-5. State v. Aiken, 113 N. C. 651, 18 S. E. 690; In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 65, 11 S. E. 244.

Referee.—Acts constituting contempt committed before a referee in supplementary proceedings are to be punished by the court making the reference. LaFontaine v. Southern Underwriters, 83 N. C. 133.

Authority of Commissioner Not Exclusive.—The authority, if any of the commissioner to commit the person refusing to answer, was not exclusive, and that the court, on reports of the facts by the former, might lawfully commit such person. Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 17 S. E. 69.

A judge of the district court has no authority, except in his own district, to punish for contempt. In re Rhodes, 65 N. C. 518; Morris v. Whitehead, 65 N. C. 637.

Nisi Prius Judge.—The right of a nisi prius judge to order a witness or anyone else into immediate custody for a contempt committed in the presence of the court in session is unquestioned. State v. Ownby, 146 N. C. 677, 61 S. E. 630; State v. Dick, 60 N. C. 440; State v. Swink, 151 N. C. 726, 728, 66 S. E. 448.

§ 984. Indirect contempt; order to show cause.—When the contempt is not committed in the immediate presence of the court, or so near as to interrupt its business, proceedings thereupon shall be by an order directing the offender to appear, within reasonable time, and show cause why he should not be attached for contempt. At the time specified in the order the person charged with the contempt may appear and answer, and, if he fail to appear and show good cause why he should not be attached for the contempt charged, he shall be punished as provided in this chapter. (Rev., s. 943; Code, s. 653.)

In the cases of contempts out of the presence of the court the practice is to have a foundation laid by facts shown forth, by affidavit or otherwise, constituting a prima facie case, and then by a rule to put the accused to show cause against the attachment by an answer denying the alleged facts of which he had notice in the rule or on the record, or excusing his conduct, or, where the gravamen of the charge rested on intention, by a disavowal of the imputed purpose. 4 Blk., 286; 3 Whar. Cr. Law, 3449, 50; In re Moore, 63 N. C. 396, 397. In re Walker, 82 N. C. 95, 97.

§ 985. Acts punishable as for contempt.—Every court of record has power to punish as for contempt when the act complained of was such as tended to defeat, impair, impede, or prejudice the rights or remedies of a party to an action then pending in court—

Cross References.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 260, for comment on this and other sections dealing with contempt.

For a discussion of this section and its relation to the preceding sections, see Cromartie v. Commissioners, 85 N. C. 211.

Applicable to Civil Actions.—The provisions of this section, except subsections 4, 5, and 6, apply only to civil actions. In re Deaton, 105 N. C. 59, 64, 11 S. E. 244.

Jury Trial.—Respondents in proceedings as for contempt are not entitled to a jury trial. In re Gorham, 129 N. C. 481, 40 S. E. 311.

Persuading Witness.—Where a defendant in a criminal action tried to persuade the state's witness to leave the state and not to appear against him, it was held that he was subject to proceedings as for contempt. In re Young, 137 N. C. 552, 50 S. E. 220.

Refusal to effectuate an agreement to sign a consent judgment may not be made the basis for contempt proceedings by this section where it does not appear that the parties ever agreed to the exact terms of such judgment. State v. Clark, 207 N. C. 657, 178 S. E. 119.

1. Any clerk, sheriff, register, solicitor, attorney, counselor, coroner, constable, referee, or any other person in any manner selected or appointed to perform any ministerial or judicial service, for any neglect or violation of duty or any misconduct by which the rights or remedies of any party in a cause or matter pending in such court may be defeated, impaired, delayed, or prejudiced, for disobedience of any lawful order of any court or judge, or any deceit or abuse of any process or order of any such court or judge.

2. Parties to suits, attorneys, and all other persons for the nonpayment of any sum of money ordered by such court, in cases where execution cannot be awarded for the collection of the same.

3. All persons for assuming to be officers, attorneys or counselors of the court, and acting as such without authority, for receiving any property or person which may be in custody of any officer by virtue of any order or process of the court, for unlawfully detaining any witness or party to any suit, while going to, remaining at, or returning from the court where the same may be set for trial, or for the unlawful interference with the proceedings in any action.

Under this clause a person may be punished as for contempt, for unlawful interference with proceedings in any action. In re Gorham, 129 N. C. 481, 40 S. E. 311.

Suggesting to Witness Not to Attend.—Suggesting to a material witness not to attend court, etc., with apparent intent to prevent the attendance of the witness, is under this clause an unlawful interference with the process and proceedings of the court. State v. Moore, 146 N. C. 653, 61 S. E. 463.

4. All persons summoned as witnesses in refusing or neglecting to obey such summons to attend, be sworn, or answer, as such witness.

Applied.—Bradley Fertilizer Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 17 S. E. 69.

5. Parties summoned as jurors for impropriety, conversing with parties or others in relation to an action to be tried at such court or receiving communication therefrom.

Juror Improperly Influenced.—Under this subdivision a juror may be punished as for contempt for allowing himself to be improperly influenced. In re Gorham, 129 N. C. 481, 40 S. E. 311.

6. All inferior magistrates, officers and tribunals for disobedience of any lawful order of the court, or for proceeding in any matter or cause contrary to law, after the same shall have been removed from their jurisdiction.

7. All other cases where attachments and proceedings as for contempt have been heretofore adopted and practiced in courts of record in this state to enforce the civil remedies or protect the rights of any part to an action. (Rev., s. 944; Code, ss. 654, 656.)

§ 986. Trial of proceedings in contempt.—Proceedings as for contempt shall be prosecuted and carried on as provided in provisional remedies. In all proceedings for contempt and in proceedings as for contempt, the judge or other judicial officer who issues the rule or notice to the respondent may make the same returnable before some other judge or other judicial officer. When the personal conduct of the judge or judicial officer or his fitness to hold his judicial position is involved, it is his duty to make the rule or notice returnable before some other judge or officer. Nothing herein contained shall apply to any act or conduct committed in the presence of the court and tending to hinder or delay the due administration of the law, nor, to proceedings for the disobedience of a judicial order rendered in any pending action. (Rev., s. 945; Code, s. 655; 1915, c. 4.)

CONTRACTS REQUIRING WRITING

§ 987. Contracts charging representative personally; promise to answer for debt of another.—No action shall be brought whereby to charge an executor, administrator or collector upon a special promise to answer damages out of his own estate or to charge any defendant upon a special promise to answer the debt, default or miscarriage of another person, unless the agreement upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum or note thereof, shall be in writing, and signed by the party charged therewith or some other person thereunto by him lawfully authorized. (Rev., s. 947; Code, s. 1552; R. C., c. 50, 1826, c. 10; 29 Charles II, c. 3, s. 4.)

An exhaustive treatment of the subject of Statute of Frauds is found in 6 Enc. Dig. 638, to which the counsel is referred for the specific applications of the general rules.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 263, for comment on this section.

Editor's Note.—This and the following sections of this chapter are generally known as the "Statute of Frauds," and are based upon the original English Statute entitled "An Act for the Prevention of Frauds and Perjuries." As the name indicates, its object was to prevent fraud and perjury; and it was designated by Lord Campbell as the most important piece of judicial legislation of which England can boast.

Though the scope of the original English Statute was not confined to provisions with regard to necessity of writing for the enforceability of certain contracts, which were embodied in the first four and the seventeenth sections of the Statute, in modern usage the term "Statute of Frauds" has assumed an exclusive meaning as to the necessity for certain contracts to be in writing.

An oral contract under the old common law was sufficient for all types of transactions. But the tendencies for the perpetration of fraud and perjury arising from the inherently alluring nature of certain transactions, such as contracts for sale of land, contracts to answer for the debt or default of another, necessitated a legislation which would exclude all but written evidence for the establishment and enforcement of such contracts. How far, and whether at all, the accomplishment of the object of its legislators has justified its existence and whether it has not resulted in a tendency opposite to the motive which impregnated it, is a matter of conjecture.

Contracts Within the Statute.—The Supreme Court of the United States has expressed the opinion that the relaxing construction of the Statute of frauds under which so many cases have been taken out of its operation, which seem to be within its letter, ought not to be extended further than it has already been carried. Grant v. Naylor, 4 Cranch 224, 235, 2 L. Ed., 222.

The clause relating to promise to answer for the debt, default, miscarriage, etc., of another does not apply to a promise in respect to debts created at the instance and for the benefit of the promisor. Davis v. Patrick, 141 U. S. 479, 35 L. E. 826, 12 S. Ct. 58. But it applies only to those by which the debt of one party is sought to be charged upon and collected from another. Id.

The question always is, what the parties mutually understood by the language, whether they understood it to be a collateral or a direct promise. Id.

Contracts Not within the Statute.—One financially interested in a crop induced the landlord to part with his lien, in order that the tenant might retain possession, and to sign an appeal bond of the tenant, and promised to save the landlord from harm thereon. The landlord was required to pay the bond. It was held that the release of the landlord's lien was sufficient consideration for the promise to save from harm, and the transaction was not within this section. Jennings v. Keel, 196 N. C. 675, 146 S. E. 716.

Plaintiff held assignments covering all funds to become due under a building contract, and was entitled to apply such funds to the extinguishment of claims it held for advancements made to carry on the work. Defendant, surety on the contractors' bond, orally agreed that if allowed to use part of the money received by plaintiff, on a payment under the contract, to pay claims for labor and materials so the construction could be carried on without going outside of the funds derived from the work, it would pay the balance due plaintiff from the contractors. It was held that such agreement was not within this section. National Surety Co. v. Jackson County Bank, 20 Fed. (2d) 644.

Oral Promise by Administrator.—A promise by the administrator that he would see that a debt of his intestate is paid, or that he would pay it, is void under this section, unless made in writing. Smithwick v. Shepherd, 49 N. C. 196.

Out of Representative's Estate.—The agreement, in order not to be enforceable unless in writing, must be to pay out of the representative's own estate. Norton v. Edwards, 66 N. C. 367.

Original Undertakings—New Consideration.—The general rule is that a promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another for which that other remains liable, must be in writing to satisfy this section. It is otherwise when the other does not remain liable. Mason v. Wilson, 84 N. C. 51, 53.

In other words if the promise is an original undertaking, it need not be in writing. For example, where the debtor places in the hands of the promisor property for the payment of the debt, who converts it into money and promises to pay the debt. And if the promise is supported by a new and independent consideration, whether the old debt subsists or not, the case does not fall within the statute. See Mason v. Wilson, supra; Cooper v. Chambers, 15 N. C. 261; Whitehurst v. Hyman, 90 N. C. 487; Hickory Novelty Co. v. Andrews, 188 N. C. 59, 123 S. E. 314; Taylor v. Lee, 187 N. C. 393, 121 S. E. 659; Hasty Mercantile Co. v. Bryant, 186 N. C. 551, 120 S. E. 200; Peele v. Powell, 156 N. C. 553, 73 S. E. 234. And this is true even where the benefit of the consideration for the promise accrues to a person other than the promisor. Gainesville, etc., Hospital Ass'n v. Hobbs, 153 N. C. 188, 69 S. E. 79. But see Stanly v. Hendricks, 35 N. C. 86; Threadgill v. McLendon, 76 N. C. 24, 26, where it is said that a new consideration does not take the promise out of the operation of the Statute. In connection with the rule set out above, see Sharp v. Tatham, 205 N. C. 827, 170 S. E. 654; Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 201, 176 S. E. 275.

In order for the defendant to fall within the protection of the Statute, it must be shown that the debt is that of a third person who still continues liable for the same. If the debt is an original obligation of the defendant, or if the creditor in accepting the promise of the defendant has released a third person who was the original debtor, the Statute has no application. Sheppard v. Newton, 139 N. C. 533, 535, 52 S. E. 143. The Statute does not forbid an oral contract to assume the debt of another who is thereupon discharged of all liability to the creditor, the promisor becoming sole debtor in his stead. Jenkins v. Holley, 140 N. C. 379, 53 S. E. 237.

A promise made at the time or before the debt is created, and where credit is given solely to the promisor, or a promise based on a new consideration between the promisor and the creditor, or a promise for the benefit of the promisor where he has a personal and pecuniary interest in the transaction in which a third party is the original obligor, has been held to be an original promise. Whitehurst v. Padgett, 157 N. C. 424, 73 S. E. 240.

Similarly a direct and unconditional promise by one to pay for goods furnished to a third party, made prior to the delivery of the goods, upon the faith of which the goods are delivered is an original undertaking. Morrison v. Baker, 81 N. C. 76; Garrett Co. v. Hamill, 131 N. C. 57, 42 S. E. 448.

What Constitutes Collateral Promise.—Where there is no benefit to the one promising to answer for the debt of another, and the promise does not create an original obligation, but is a collateral promise, merely superadded to the promise of another, the original promisor remaining liable, the collateral promisor is not liable unless there is a writing, whether the promise is made when the debt is created or not. Peele v. Powell, 156 N. C. 553, 73 S. E. 234; Sheppard v. Newton, 139 N. C. 533, 52 S. E. 143.

Where the promisor says to the creditor "collect from him (the debtor) and if he fails to pay, I will," the undertaking is a collateral one, and not enforceable unless in writing. Garrett Co. v. Hamill, 131 N. C. 57, 42 S. E. 448.

Promise Made to Debtor Not within Statute.—It is held that, where a purchaser agrees by parol in consideration thereof to pay certain debts of his vendor due to a third person, the promise is original and not within the Statute. Stanly v. Hendricks, 35 N. C. 86; Rice v. Carter, 33 N. C. 298.

Intent of Promisor—How Determined.—The intent of the promisor to become bound may be shown by the surrounding circumstances and other transactions or written communications between the creditor and the promisor. Hickory Novelty Co. v. Andrews, 188 N. C. 59, 123 S. E. 314.

Where a writing or notation is not a continuing guaranty, each order being a separate and independent transaction, the defendant is bound only for the order upon which his guaranty appears. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 201, 176 S. E. 275.

Goods Furnished to Son on Father's Credit.—If goods are furnished to a son upon the promise and credit of the father, the promise need not be in writing; but if the son was the principal debtor and the father merely a surety, the promise must be in writing. White v. Tripp, 125 N. C. 523, 34 S. E. 686.

Definiteness of Subject Matter of Contract.—The principle that no contract can be enforced unless the subject matter upon which it is intended by the parties to operate can first be definitely ascertained from its terms, either through an explicit description therein or a reference which points to extrinsic means of identification applies to verbal agreements as well as to those required by this section to be in writing. Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 514, 26 S. E. 152.

Evidence of Guarantor's Obligation.—The obligation of one as guarantor of payment must be evidenced and established by a written agreement, or some written note or memorandum signed by him or some person authorized to sign for him. Supply Co. v. Finch, 147 N. C. 106, 60 S. E. 904; Hickory Novelty Co. v. Andrews, 188 N. C. 59, 123 S. E. 314.

What Amounts to Contract of Guaranty.—A telegram that the debtor is a reliable person and that any justifiable claims will be taken care of is insufficient to establish a contract of guaranty or a promise to answer for the debt, etc., of another, in the absence of a promise to pay the debt if the debtor does not pay. Fain Grocery Co. v. Early, etc., Co., 181 N. C. 459, 107 S. E. 497.

Parol Assumption of Mortgage Debt Not within the Statute.—A promise by a grantee of mortgaged land to assume and pay the amount of the mortgage is not a promise to pay the debt of another required by this section to be in writing, but is a direct obligation of the grantee supported by sufficient consideration. Parlier v. Miller, 186 N. C. 501, 119 S. E. 898.

Agreement to Prevent Sale of Land.—An agreement in consideration of the extention of an option that the defendant will pay a certain mortgage note owned by the plaintiff or otherwise prevent the sale of the land is not a promise to answer for the debt, etc., of another, within this section. Whedbee v. Ruffin, 189 N. C. 257, 126 S. E. 616.

Promise to Guarantee Safety of Money.—An oral promise to guarantee the safety of money placed in the promisor's hands for investment is not an agreement to answer for the debt of another within the meaning of this section. Partin v. Prince, 159 N. C. 553, 75 S. E. 1080.

A promise by the president of a bank to become personally liable for a deposit when supported by a new and independent consideration constitutes an original undertaking by him, and the agreement does not come within the provisions of this section. Dillard v. Walker, 204 N. C. 16, 167 S. E. 636.

The guaranty of payment of a deposit made by the vice-president, director and stockholder of the bank was an original promise to answer for the debt, upon sufficient consideration, and does not come within the provisions of this section, and upon the insolvency of the bank and loss to the depositor the plea of the statute of frauds is not a valid defense. Garren v. Youngblood, 207 N. C. 86, 176 S. E. 252.

The president and treasurer of a corporation who has no personal, immediate and pecuniary benefit in the purchase of materials by the corporation is not an original promisor under this section and may not be held personally liable for the purchase price because of verbal promises to answer for the benefit made in his behalf by the secretary for the corporation as his alleged agent. Gennett v. Lyerly, 207 N. C. 201, 176 S. E. 275.

An oral guarantee of genuineness or validity of a note and the liability of the maker to pay it, made by the holder upon a transfer of it for value, is not a promise contemplated by this section to be in writing. Adcock v. Fleming, 19 N. C. 225; Ashford v. Robinson, 30 N. C. 114; Rowland v. Rorke, 49 N. C. 337.

Statement of Consideration.—Under this section, the consideration for a promise to answer need not be contained in the writing. Standard Supply Co. v. Person, 154 N. C. 456, 70 S. E. 745; Green v. Thornton, 49 N. C. 230.

Cited in Newburn v. Fisher, 198 N. C. 385, 387, 151 S. E. 875; Coxe v. Dillard, 197 N. C. 344, 148 S. E. 545.

§ 988. Contract for sale of land; leases.—All contracts to sell or convey any lands, tenements or hereditaments, or any interest in or concerning them, and all leases and contracts for leasing land for the purpose of digging for gold or other minerals, or for mining generally, of whatever duration; and all other leases and contracts for leasing lands exceeding in duration three years from the making thereof, shall be void unless said contract, or some memorandum or note thereof, be put in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or by some other person by him thereto lawfully authorized. I. IN GENERAL.

Purpose to Prevent Fraud.—Contracts within the meaning of this section were required to be in writing, to prevent frauds and perjuries. Winberry v. Koonce, 83 N. C. 351, 354.

This section will not prevent an unwritten promise from being the basis for an action to cancel a deed where the promise was merely a device to accomplish fraud, and the relief sought is not to enforce the promise or to recover damages for its breach. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 206 N. C. 546, 174 S. E. 447.

Executory Contracts.—This section applies to executory and not executed contracts. Rogers v. Lumber Co., 154 N. C. 108, 69 S. E. 788; Bailey v. Bishop, 152 N. C. 383, 67 S. E. 968; Choat v. Wright, 13 N. C. 289; Herndon v. Durham, etc., R. Co., 161 N. C. 650, 77 S. E. 683; Bailey v. Bishop, 152 N. C. 383, 67 S. E. 968.

This section applies to executory contracts, and not to those that have been executed. Kieth Bros. v. Kennedy, 194 N. C. 784, 140 S. E. 721.

Where a contract was for the sale of an automobile in consideration of the conveyance of certain realty, and the vendor executed a good and sufficient deed, it was held that the contract was executed as to the conveyance of lands under this section. Keith Bros. v. Kennedy, 194 N. C. 784, 140 S. E. 721.

Parol Trusts.—That section of the English Statute of Frauds which prohibited the establishment of trusts by parol, has never been reenacted in this State. Hence a parol agreement to purchase land and hold it in trust for another is valid and enforceable. Newby v. Atlantic, etc., Realty Co., 182 N. C. 34, 108 S. E. 323.

But a parol agreement to create a trust, entered into after the purchase of property is void under this section. To establish a parol trust the agreement to hold in trust must have been entered into before or at the sale of the property. Kelly v. McNeill, 118 N. C. 349, 24 S. E. 738.

Effect of Non-Compliance.—The contracts which are not entered into in compliance with this section are not void, but voidable merely at the instance of the party charged. And when such party takes advantage of the provisions of the statute, he repudiates the contract in its entirety and can not derive any benefit from it. For example a vendee cannot recover the money he has paid the vendor under a parol contract which he has repudiated. Improvement Co. v. Guthrie, 116 N. C. 381, 21 S. E. 952. They are enforceable unless the party to be charged takes advantage of the statute. McCall v. Textile Industrial Inst., 189 N. C. 775, 128 S. E. 349, 353.

II. WHAT CONSTITUTES AN INTEREST IN OR CONCERNING LAND.

Parol Transfer of Parol Contract.—A parol transfer of the interest of a purchaser of land under a parol contract is invalid. Wilkie v. Womble, 90 N. C. 254, cited in note in 3 L. R. A., N. S., 148.

An agreement to buy and sell land at a profit is not a contract relating to any interest in land which is required to be in writing. It relates only to profits of the land, and is valid even though not in writing. Newby v. Atlantic, etc., Realty Co., 182 N. C. 34, 108 S. E. 323; Brogden v. Gibson, 165 N. C. 16, 80 S. E. 966.

The section contemplates those transactions in which there is a conveyance of land from one party to another; not those as to ventures for profits in realty. Id.

A dower interest can not be surrendered by parol. Houston v. Smith, 88 N. C. 312. See the title Dower, 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. p. 886.

Partition.—A contract between tenants in common for the partition in lands is a contract concerning realty, within the meaning of this section. Medlin v. Steele, 75 N. C. 154; Anders v. Anders, 13 N. C. 529; Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 14 S. E. 685; Rhea v. Craig, 141 N. C. 602, 54 S. E. 408.

A contract to devise real property comes within the provisions of this section, and performance of services by the promisee as consideration for the contract does not take the contract out of the provisions of the section, and the promisee cannot successfully maintain an action for specific performance of the contract. Grantham v. Grantham, 205 N. C. 363, 171 S. E. 331.

Crops and Fruit.—Crops which are produced annually are personal chattels, and a sale of them while growing is only a sale of goods, and not a contract or sale of land, or any interest in or concerning land, under this section. Brittain v. McKay, 23 N. C. 265, cited in note in 23 L. R. A., N. S., 1219.

Fruits on trees cannot be reserved by the vendor by a parol agreement. Flynt v. Conrad, 61 N. C. 190.

Standing Timber.—A contract conveying standing timber is a contract concerning realty. Drake v. Howell, 133 N. C. 162, 45 S. E. 539; Ward v. Gay, 137 N. C. 397, 49 S. E. 884; Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249; Ives v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 131, 55 S. E. 74.

Guaranty of Acreage.—A vendor's guaranty of the number of acres need not be in writing. Sterne v. Benbow, 151 N. C. 460, 66 S. E. 445; Currie v. Hawkins, 118 N. C. 593, 24 S. E. 476.

Also an agreement between vendor and purchaser that the latter shall have the land surveyed, and that if it falls short the vendor shall refund pro tanto, need not be in writing. Sherrill v. Hagan, 92 N. C. 345.

Equitable Estates.—A parol contract of sale of an equitable estate in land is void. Holmes v. Holmes, 86 N. C. 205.

Parol Release of Mortgage.—An agreement to terminate the relationship of a mortgagor and mortgagee does not fall within the intent and meaning of this section. Hence a parol contract to release a part of the mortgaged property is valid and enforceable. Stevens v. Turlington, 186 N. C. 191, 119 S. E. 210; Hemmings v. Doss, 125 N. C. 400, 402, 34 S. E. 511. This is upon the theory that the mortgagee does not, by the mortgage, acquire an interest in land (but a mere lien in equity), and hence his release does not transfer back an "interest" in land.—Note.

Where a mortgagee agreed by parol to release the mortgage to a purchaser of the land from the mortgagor, the mortgagee was held stopped to deny the validity of the agreement under the Statute of Frauds. Stevens v. Turlington, 186 N. C. 191, 119 S. E. 210.

A parol lease for three years is not within the statute. It must be for a term exceeding three years. Smithdeal v. McAdoo, 172 N. C. 700, 704, 90 S. E. 907.

In order to determine whether a lease is for more than three years or not the computation must be made from the time of making the agreement to lease, and not from the time of its going into effect. Hence a parol agreement of lease for three years to commence in futuro is voidable by the lessor and renders the tenant a tenant at will. Mauney v. Norvell, 179 N. C. 628, 103 S. E. 372; Falkner v. Hunt, 73 N. C. 571.

Where the owner of land agrees to erect a certain kind of building thereon for a proposed lessee, and makes a parol lease for the rental of the property for three years to take effect upon the completion of the building, the lease for three years to take effect in the future comes within the provisions of the Statute of Frauds, and where in an action thereon the lessee denies the contract of lease and pleads the statute, he may not be held liable unless it was executed in writing, or some memorandum thereof made and signed by the party to be charged therewith or by some other person by him duly authorized. Sammax Inv. Co. v. Zindel, 198 N. C. 109, 150 S. E. 704.

Assignment of Lease.—A verbal assignment of an unexpired lease to continue more than three years is void under this section. Alexander v. Morris, 145 N. C. 22, 58 S. E. 600.

Negative Easement.—A restriction on the use of land being in effect a negative easement is an interest in land required under this section to be contracted for in writing. Davis v. Robinson, 189 N. C. 589, 127 S. E. 697.

Where land in a development is sold by deeds containing certain restrictive covenants, the covenants are in the nature of an easement, and it would seem that ordinarily such easement may not be released by parol agreement. Moore v. Shore, 206 N. C. 699, 175 S. E. 117.

Party Walls.—The right to contribution for costs of a party wall is implied in law regardless of the promise; and hence enforceable notwithstanding that the agreement was not in writing. Reid v. King, 158 N. C. 85, 73 S. E. 168.

Creation of Mill Dam.—A permanent right to overflow land by the erection and maintenance of a mill dam can not be created by parol. Bridges v. Purcell, 18 N. C. 492.

Judicial Sales.—Judicial sales were not within the contemplation of the legislature at the time of making this enactment. Tate v. Greenlee, 15 N. C. 149, 150.

Judgment.—The Statute of Frauds does not require that a judgment constituting a lien on land should be assigned by a written instrument. Winberry v. Koonce, 83 N. C. 351.

III. SUFFICIENCY OF COMPLIANCE WITH SECTION.

A. In General.

No special form or instrument is required. A letter, note, bill or draft is sufficient. Neaves v. North State Min. Co., 90 N. C. 412.

A promissory note for the purchase price signed and given by the purchaser is not such a contract or memorandum thereof. Burriss v. Starr, 165 N. C. 657, 81 S. E. 929.

Letters addressed to third party may be used against the writer as a memorandum of it. Such writings are sufficient evidence of the contract to warrant the court in giving effect to it. Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249, 254; Nicholson v. Dover, 145 N. C. 18, 58 S. E. 444, cited in note in 24 L. R. A., N. S., 316.

Series of Letters Construed Together.—A series of letters, telegrams or other papers, documents, etc., signed as required by this section, will be construed together, and when the contract appears to be complete, the omission in some of the writings will be supplied by the others. Simpson v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 193 N. C. 454, 137 S. E. 311.

As to Seal.—The Statute of Frauds does not require a contract for the sale of land to be under the seal of the party to be charged. Simmons v. Spruill, 56 N. C. 9; Stephens v. Midyetti, 161 N. C. 323, 77 S. E. 243.

The admissions of the parties in their pleadings may stand for the writing. Sandlin v. Kearney, 154 N. C. 596, 70 S. E. 942.

Time of Making Memorandum.—The written memorandum required by this section need not necessarily be made at the time of the agreement. Even if made thereafter, if otherwise good, it will be valid. McCall v. Lee, 182 N. C. 114, 108 S. E. 390; McGee v. Blankenship, 95 N. C. 563, cited in note in 22 L. R. A. 273; Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249; Winslow v. White, 163 N. C. 29, 31, 79 S. E. 258.

Contract Partly Written Partly Oral.—A contract for the sale of land may be partly verbal and party in writing, unless the writing purports to embrace all the contract. Thus where the vendor upon a conveyance by deed, verbally agreed that he would make good any deficiency in the acreage, it was held that this section did not require the agreement as to the quantity to be embraced by the written contract or deed. McGee v. Craven, 106 N. C. 351, 356, 11 S. E. 375.

What the Writing Must Contain.—In order that a contract falling within the sphere of this section be enforceable it must appear that there is a writing containing expressly or by implication all the material terms of the alleged agreement which must have been signed as required by the section. Hall v. Misenheimer, 137 N. C. 183, 186, 49 S. E. 104; Gwathmey v. Cason, 74 N. C. 5.

Memorandum Inconsistent with Contract.—Where the memorandum of a contract partly in parol was inconsistent with the terms of the contract, it was held that the memorandum not being the contract between the parties, the plaintiff suing under the parol contract is not entitled to recover. Keith v. Bailey, 185 N. C. 262, 116 S. E. 729.

Even though the contract be informally and awkwardly expressed in the writing, yet if its nature, scope and purpose clearly appear from it, there is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this section. Mayer v. Adrian, 77 N. C. 83; Farmer v. Batts, 83 N. C. 387; Thornburg v. Masten, 88 N. C. 293; Gordon v. Collett, 102 N. C. 532, 537, 9 S. E. 486.

The vendor of lands in substantial conformity with his parol agreement tendered the vendee a deed to the lands, which the latter refused because the amount of the agreed purchase price had been increased after the vendor had sold the lands the vendee brought an action for damages. It was held that the deed tendered was a sufficient writing within the statute of frauds to bind the vendor, and the vendee could recover damages sustained by defendant's breach of contract to convey. Oxendine v. Stephenson, 195 N. C. 238, 141 S. E. 572.

Sufficiency of Description.—This section does not render void a contract which contains a defective description merely. It only requires that the contract be in writing and signed by the party to be charged. Improvement Co. v. Guthrie, 116 N. C. 381, 21 S. E. 952.

A written contract to convey the grantor's entire tract of land consisting of 146 acres was, under the circumstances of the case, held to be sufficiently certain as to the land conveyed, so as to admit parol evidence in regard to the identity of the land without violating the Statute of Frauds. Norton v. Smith, 179 N. C. 553, 10 S. E. 14. See Higdon v. Rice, 119 N. C. 623, 625, 26 S. E. 256, where it is said that a defective description cannot be aided by parol testimony because that would mean to substitute by parol an essential portion of a contract required by this section to be in writing; though mistakes can be corrected and ambiguities explained by parol.

Where the calls of a deed are sufficiently definite, the locations cannot be changed by parol agreement unless contemporaneous. Haddock v. Leary, 148 N. C. 378, 62 S. E. 426.

The following memorandum found in the books of the defendant's intestate was held too vague and uncertain to take the contract out of the Statute: "1841, W. P. to H. C. O. Dr. To 4 loads of Rock, one lot at one year's credit, $125." Plummer v. Owens, 45 N. C. 254, 255.

The memorandum of a sale of standing timber must be sufficiently definite in its essential elements to comply with the requirements of the Statute of Frauds to enable the court to decree specific performance; but latent ambiguities may be explained by parol evidence. Camp Mfg. Co. v. Jordan, 292 Fed. 182; see also, Keith v. Bailey, 185 N. C. 262, 116 S. E. 729.

When all the circumstances of possession, ownership, and situation of the parties, and of their relation to each other and the property, as they were when the negotiation took place and the writing was made, are disclosed, if the meaning and application of the writing, read in the light of those circumstances, are certain and plain, the parties will be bound by it as a sufficient written contract or memorandum of their agreement. Gilbert v. Wright, 195 N. C. 165, 168, 141 S. E. 577; Norton v. Smith, 179 N. C. 553, 103 S. E. 14.

Agreement "to buy the vacant lot," from the vendor was held not unenforceable under this section where the evidence showed that it was the only lot owned by the vendor anywhere. Gilbert v. Wright, 195 N. C. 165, 141 S. E. 577.

B. The Signature.

What Constitutes Signing.—The signing of a paper, writing or instrument is the affixing of one's name thereto with the purpose or intent to identify the paper or instrument, or to give it effect as one's act. McCall v. Textile, etc., Co., 189 N. C. 775, 128 S. E. 349, 353.

Actual Signature—Position Immaterial. — Although the place of the signature upon the writing of the party to be charged is immaterial, and such party need not necessarily "subscribe" the writing, yet there must be a writing in which such party must have put his name with the intention of signing it. Thus where the plaintiff, the purchaser, gave for the purchase price a note to the defendant which was filled in by the latter payable to his own name, it was held that the note was not signed by the defendant, since filling in the note with his own name was not equivalent to signing it. Burriss v. Starr, 165 N. C. 657, 81 S. E. 929.

This section is satisfied when the writing contains the signature anywhere in the instrument. Flowe v. Hartwick, 167 N. C. 448, 83 S. E. 841.

Subscribing or Signing.—This section does not require that the memorandum of sale be "subscribed," it only requires that it be signed. Hence the signing by the auctioneer of the name of the highest bidder on the side of a printed advertisement is a sufficient signing of the contract. Proctor v. Finley, 119 N. C. 536, 26 S. E. 128; Devereux v. McMahon, 108 N. C. 134, 12 S. E. 902.

Mark Sufficient.—When written by the party to be charged, a mark of an illiterate person is a sufficient signature to fulfill the requirement of the Statute. Devereux v. McMahon, 108 N. C. 134, 142, 12 S. E. 902.

The phrase "the party to be charged" does not necessarily refer to the vendor, it may refer to the vendee. The party to be charged, within the meaning of the section is the defendant in the action, whoever he may be. Hall v. Misenheimer, 137 N. C. 183, 187, 49 S. E. 104.

In a suit for the specific performance of a contract to convey land the "party to be charged" is the vendor, and hence the contract must have been signed by him. The vendee does not fulfill the condition imposed on him to show that the Statute has been complied with, by a writing by which he alone is bound. Clegg v. Bishop, 188 N. C. 564, 125 S. E. 122.

The "party to be charged" under this section is the one against whom the relief is sought; and if the contract is sufficient to bind him, he can be proceeded against, though the others could not be held because, as to them, the Statute is not fully complied with. Lewis v. Murray, 177 N. C. 17, 97 S. E. 750.

Thus a contract in writing to sell land, signed by the vendor is good against him, although the correlative obligation to pay the price is not in writing and cannot be enforced against the purchaser. Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249.

The Statute requires that the writing be signed by the party to be charged. So that if A contract in writing to sell land to B, the former's promise being in writing and signed, but the latter's not, A would be bound to perform, but B would not. Improvement Co. v. Guthrie, 116 N. C. 381, 384, 21 S. E. 952; Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N. C. 249. See also, Durham Consol. Land, etc., Co. v. Guthrie, 116 N. C. 381, 382, 21 S. E. 952.

Member of Corporation or Partner May Sign.—Under the clause "or by some other person by him thereto lawfully authorized" a member of a corporation or a partner is a competent agent to sign for the corporation or partnership. Neaves v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 412, 415.

Signature of Agent.—If signed by one who is proved or admitted by the principal to have been authorized as agent, it is a sufficient compliance with the Statute if the agent sign his own name instead of that of his principal by him. Hargrove v. Adcock, 111 N. C. 166, 171, 16 S. E. 16.

Where the agent is the one by whom the contract or the memorandum is signed, the authority of the agent to sign it for his principal need not have been given in writing. And even a subsequent ratification of an unauthorized signing will suffice. Johnston v. Sikes, 49 N. C. 70.

It is not necessary that the name of the principal or his relation to the transaction shall appear upon the writing itself or in the form of the signature. Neaves v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 412, 415.

Ordinance, Resolution or Vote.—An ordinance, resolution or vote of a municipal corporation, accepting a lease or contract tendered, does not constitute a signing within the meaning of the Statute. Wade v. New Bern, 77 N. C. 460.

C. Statement of Consideration.

Whether oral or in writing, the contract must have a consideration to support it. Draughan v. Bunting, 31 N. C. 10; Stanly v. Hendricks, 35 N. C. 86, 87; Combs v. Harshaw, 63 N. C. 198; Haun v. Burrell, 119 N. C. 544, 547, 26 S. E. 111. But if in writing, the consideration need not appear in the writing, and may be shown by parol. Nichols v. Bell, 46 N. C. 32; Haun v. Burrell, 119 N. C. 544, 547, 26 S. E. 111; Peele v. Powell, 156 N. C. 553, 557, 73 S. E. 234; Bateman v. Hopkins, 157 N. C. 470, 73 S. E. 133; Lewis v. Murray, 177 N. C. 17, 19, 97 S. E. 750.

But see Hall v. Misenheimer, 137 N. C. 183, 49 S. E. 104, where it is said that a memorandum of a contract for the sale of land is not good as against the vendee unless it shows the price to be paid.

IV. PART PERFORMANCE.

In General.—The doctrine which prevails in many states, that a part or even a full performance of the stipulation of an unwritten agreement for the disposition of an interest in land exempts such agreement from the operation of the Statute of Frauds, is not recognized in this state under this section which declares such agreements to be void and of no effect. Kivett v. McKeithan, 90 N. C. 106, 108; Ellis v. Ellis, 16 N. C. 342. In such a case, however, the party who has advanced the purchase price or has made improvements shall be refunded his advances. Kivett v. McKeithan, supra; Barnes v. Brown, 71 N. C. 507; Luton v. Badham, 127 N. C. 96, 37 S. E. 143; Smithdeal v. McAdoo, 172 N. C. 700, 703, 90 S. E. 907. But see the dissenting opinion of Judge Douglas, in Luton v. Badham, supra. See also Dunn v. Moore, 38 N. C. 364; Albea v. Griffin, 22 N. C. 9; Plummer v. Owens, 45 N. C. 254, 255, where cases were held not within statute.

V. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

General Issue or General Denial.—A party may rely on the Statute of Frauds under the general issue or a general denial. Luton v. Badham, 127 N. C. 96, 37 S. E. 143; Winders v. Hill, 144 N. C. 614, 57 S. E. 456.

A denial of the contract as alleged is equivalent to a plea of the Statute. McCall v. Textile Ind. Inst., 189 N. C. 775, 128 S. E. 349, 353.

But see Curtis v. Piedmont, etc., Min. Co., 109 N. C. 401, 13 S. E. 944, where it is held that in an action on a contract for lumber the defendant in order to avail himself of the defense of the Statute of Frauds should plead it specifically.

Demurrer.—The Statute of Frauds cannot be taken advantage of by demurrer, since that admits the contract. The contract is valid and binding unless the invalidity, by reason of the Statute, is set up by the answer. Hemmings v. Doss, 125 N. C. 400, 402, 34 S. E. 511; Stevens v. Midyetti, 161 N. C. 323, 77 S. E. 243.

Record on Appeal.—Where upon appeal, the insufficiency of letters to constitute a valid contract under this section is sought to be raised, the contents of the letters must appear upon the record. Layton v. Godwin, 186 N. C. 312, 119 S. E. 495.

Oral Arbitration.—An oral agreement of arbitration as to real property cannot be enforced. Fort v. Allen, 110 N. C. 183, 14 S. E. 685.

Issues as to title of land cannot be shown by parol. Cox v. Ward, 107 N. C. 507, 12 S. E. 379; Presnell v. Garrison, 122 N. C. 595, 29 S. E. 839.

Discharge by Matter in Pais.—A written contract for the sale of land can be discharged by matter in pais. Miller v. Pierce, 104 N. C. 389, 10 S. E. 554, cited in note in 19 L. R. A., N. S., 881.

§ 989. Contracts with Cherokee Indians.—All contracts and agreements of every description made with any Cherokee Indian, or any person of Cherokee Indian blood within the second degree, for an amount equal to ten dollars or more, shall be void, unless some note or memorandum thereof be made in writing and signed by such Indian or person of Indian blood, or some other person by him authorized, in the presence of two witnesses, who shall also subscribe the same: Provided, that this section shall not apply to any person of Cherokee Indian blood or any Cherokee Indian who understands the English language and who can speak and write the same intelligently. (Rev., s. 975; Code, s. 1553; R. C., 50, s. 16; 1907, c. 1004, s. 1.)

Defense Concluded by Judgment.—While, under this section, there may be defenses available against a contract, if they are not availed before a judgment is rendered, the judgment is res adjudicata. Rogers v. Kimsey, 101 N. C. 560, 563, 8 S. E. 159.

One Party White.—This section applies as well where the contract is between two Indians as where one of the parties is white. Lovingood v. Smith, 52 N. C. 601; State v. Ta-Cha-Na-Tah, 64 N. C. 614, 616.

§ 990. Promise to revive debt of bankrupt.—No promise to pay a debt discharged by any decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, in any proceeding in bankruptcy, shall be received in evidence unless such promise is in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith. (Rev., s. 978; 1899, c. 57.)

See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 60, for possible construction of this section.

CHAPTER 19

CONVEYANCES

Art. 1. Construction and Sufficiency

§ 991. Fee presumed, though word "heirs" omitted.—When real estate is conveyed to any person, the same shall be held and construed to be a conveyance in fee, whether the word "heir" is used or not, unless such conveyance in plain and express words shows, or it is plainly intended by the conveyance or some part thereof, that the grantor meant to convey an estate of less dignity. (Rev., s. 946; Code, s. 1280; 1879, c. 148.)

Cross References.—As to presumption of conveyance in fee simple when deed and registry of conveyance destroyed, see section. 1766; as to establishing boundaries and interests, where original and copy destroyed, see section 367; as to burnt and lost records generally, see section 365 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This section changes the common-law rule that in order to convey a fee simple the words "heirs" should appear either in the premises or the habendum of the deed. Carolina Real Estate Co. v. Bland, 152 N. C. 225, 67 S. E. 483. Even prior to the enactment of the section the courts of this State commenced to draw away from the strictness of the common-law rule in this respect, and a perusal of a large number of cases bearing upon and controlling the subject show a marked tendency to mitigate the harshness of the law. So an exception as to devises and equitable estate had already been made. (See Whichard v. Whitehurst, 181 N. C. 79, 106 S. E. 463; Hollowell v. Manly, 179 N. C. 262, 102 S. E. 386, relating to a conveyance in trust). And a series of cases established the proposition that the word "heirs," when used as indicative of the estate to be granted, no matter where the word appeared in the instrument, would be transposed and inserted so as to cause the instrument to operate as a fee simple. See Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 319, 51 S. E. 889. But perhaps the most radical departure from the early rule is found in the case of Vickers v. Leigh, 104 N. C. 248, 10 S. E. 308, where it was decided that if it appeared that the word "heirs" was omitted from the instrument because of ignorance, because of inadvertance or because of a mistake, the word would be supplied so as to pass title in fee in accordance with the intention of the grantor.

These early cases may be of importance as this section is not retroactive, and the construction of instruments enacted prior to its passage will be governed by the rules herein set out.

Same Rule as for Construction of Devises.—This section provides the same rule of construction of deeds as is contained in section 4162 for construction of devises. Vickers v. Leigh, 104 N. C. 248, 10 S. E. 308.

Construction of Word Heir.—The word "heirs" is always a word of limitation and vests the absolute property in chattels as well as land. Cutlar v. Cutlar, 3 N. C. 154.

Word "Heirs" Unnecessary to Create Equitable Estate.—An equitable estate in fee may be declared without the use of the word "heirs," if an intention to pass such estate can be gathered from the instrument. Holmes v. Holmes, 86 N. C. 205; Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 51 S. E. 889.

Interpreted in Accord with Intent.—Where it is the manifest purpose of a deed to pass a fee, the court will effectuate this purpose, if it can do so by any reasonable interpretation. Ricks v. Pulliam, 94 N. C. 225.

The presumption of fee raised by this section is rebutted by the fact that the deed in this case intended to convey only a life estate which is manifest from the many restraining expressions contained therein. Boomer v. Grantham, 203 N. C. 230, 231, 165 S. E. 698.

Same—Fee Simple Presumed Unless Clear Intent Otherwise.—All conveyances of land executed since the passage of the act are to be taken to be in fee simple, unless the intent of the grantor is plainly manifest in some part of the instrument to convey an estate of less dignity. It is the legislative will that the intention of the grantor and not the technical words of the common law shall govern. Triplett v. Williams, 149 N. C. 394, 398, 63 S. E. 79.

And by this section, which was section 946 of the revisal of 1905, a deed though not using the word "heirs", is a conveyance in fee, unless the contrary intention appears. Holloway v. Green, 167 N. C. 91, 83 S. E. 243.

The section was applied where the intent of the donor, appearing by proper construction of a deed, was to give a fee simple estate to his grandchild upon the birth of her child by marriage. Sharpe v. Brown, 177 N. C. 294, 98 S. E. 825.

Section as Curing Repugnancy.—The premises of a deed to land read, among other things, "unto said M. G., her heirs and assigns;" and the habendum, "to herself, the said M. G. during her lifetime, and at her death said land is to be equally divided between" her children. It was held that since under this section, the same estate would have passed if the word "heirs," an established formula, had been omitted in the granting clause, there is no repugnance in this deed between the granting clause and habendum. Triplett v. Williams, 149 N. C. 394, 63 S. E. 79.

The limitation of the estate in the habendum, and the creation of an estate in remainder therein, were conclusive proof that there was no intention of the grantor to create an estate in fee, but an estate for life to M. G. with a remainder over to her children. Triplett v. Williams, 149 N. C. 394, 63 S. E. 79.

Deeds Executed Prior to Effective Force of Section.—Although a deed to lands executed and delivered prior to the effective force of this section would not pass an estate in fee simple if the deed entirely omitted the word "heirs" or other appropriate words of inheritance, a deed executed before such date to a school committee "and their successors in office in fee simple" is sufficient to pass a fee simple title to the lands conveyed therein. Tucker v. Smith, 199 N. C. 502, 154 S. E. 826.

Deed to Husband and Wife and Heirs of Wife.—A deed to a husband and wife, and only to the heirs of the latter, does not pass the fee to the former by virtue of this section, for as to him it is plainly intended that the grantor meant to convey an estate of less dignity. Sprinkle v. Spainhour, 149 N. C. 223, 62 S. E. 910.

Restraint of Alienation.—Where a conveyance is construed under this section to be in fee, any attempt of restraint upon alienation is void, but where relevant, the words therein used may be construed to ascertain whether the intent of the grantor was to convey a fee or an estate of less dignity. Holloway v. Green, 167 N. C. 91, 83 S. E. 243.

Correction of Instrument.—The court, in its equitable jurisdiction, may correct an instrument so as to pass a fee in land when the intent so appears in the submission of a case agreed. Whichard v. Whitehurst, 181 N. C. 79, 106 S. E. 463.

Deed with Possible Reverter.—A deed to lands to be held for school purposes under this section transfers a fee simple estate. The fact that there was a possible reverter to the grantor, which could have been removed by a subsequent unqualified deed, does not show the intent to convey an estate of less dignity, but merely shows the purpose of the conveyance. Claremont College v. Riddle, 165 N. C. 211, 81 S. E. 283.

Reservation of Easement.—In Ruffin v. Seaboard Air Line Railway, 151 N. C. 330, 66 S. E. 317, this section applied in holding that a reservation of an easement was a reservation in fee, as no contravening intent appeared from the conveyance.

Retention of Mineral Rights.—Under this section where a deed conveys land "with the exception of one half of all the mineral found upon the premises, which is hereby expressly reserved," the grantor retains the fee in one half the mineral rights. Central Bank, etc., Co. v. Wyatt, 189 N. C. 107, 126 S. E. 93.

§ 992. Vagueness of description not to invalidate.—No deed or other writing purporting to convey land or an interest in land shall be declared void for vagueness in the description of the thing intended to be granted by reason of the use of the word "adjoining" instead of the words "bounded by," or for the reason that the boundaries given do not go entirely around the land described: Provided, it can be made to appear to the satisfaction of the jury that the grantor owned at the time of the execution of such deed or paper-writing no other land which at all corresponded to the description contained in such deed or paper-writing. (Rev., s. 948; 1891, c. 465, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—In Blow v. Vaughan, 105 N. C. 198, 10 S. E. 891, it was held that a deed describing land "as adjoining lands of A, B, and others and containing 25 acres, more or less," etc., was too vague and indefinite to be aided by parol proof. A similar holding appears on p. 411 of the same volume of the reports where the case of Wilson v. Johnson is set out. These two cases, published in 1890, were received by the bar and the state with manifest disapproval and were the cause of much concern as to the validity of titles. Hence, the Legislature in 1891 enacted the salutory provisions of this section. The section does not operate retrospectively. Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 514, 519, 26 S. E. 152.

Description.—The word "description" imports such a description as is susceptible of being aided by parol proof. Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 514, 26 S. E. 152.

And a deed which fails to describe any land is as void now as it was prior to the passage of this section. Moore v. Fowle, 139 N. C. 51, 51 S. E. 776.

Application.—In Harris v. Woodard, 130 N. C. 580, 581, 41 S. E. 790, it was said: "The statute (§§ 1763 and 992), applies only where there is a description which can be aided, but not when, as in this case, there is no description." Quoted in Bryson v. McCoy, 194 N. C. 91, 95, 138 S. E. 420.

A deed which fails to describe with certainty the property sought to be conveyed, does not fix a beginning point or any of the boundaries, and contains no reference to anything extrinsic by reference to which the description could be made certain, is too vague and indefinite to admit of parol evidence of identification, and it being impossible to identify the land sought to be conveyed, the deed is inoperative, this section not applying to such cases. Katz v. Daughtrey, 198 N. C. 393, 151 S. E. 879.

Capable of Being Reduced to Certainty.—A description contained in a deed or contract to convey lands is sufficiently definite to admit of parol evidence of identification when it is capable of being reduced to certainty by reference to something extrinsic to which the instrument refers. Patton v. Sluder, 167 N. C. 500, 83 S. E. 818.

Application.—A description in a mortgage to a life estate in lands as being in a certain county and township, containing twenty acres more or less, a part of a certain estate, and giving the names of two parties whose lands join it, is sufficient to admit parol evidence to fit the locus in quo to the description in the instrument, and is not void for vagueness of description under this section. Bissette v. Strickland, 191 N. C. 260, 131 S. E. 655.

A description of land in a deed, which designates all that tract of land in two certain counties, lying on "both sides of old road between" designated points, and bounded by lands of named owners, "and others," being parts of certain state grants, conveyed by the patentee or enterer to certain grantees, etc., is sufficient under this section to admit of parol evidence in aid of the identification of the lands as those intended to be conveyed. Buckhorn Land, etc., Co. v. Yarbrough, 179 N. C. 335, 102 S. E. 630.

Same—Sufficiency of Description in Will.—Where a will leaves to the widow of the testator for life, "at least 75 acres of land * * * * * * * to include the dwelling house and to be located as she may want it to be, and as near four-square as is consistent," it is sufficient under this section to be located by parol evidence. Heirs at Law of Freeman v. Ramsey, 189 N. C. 790, 128 S. E. 404.

§ 993. Conveyances to slaves.—When it is made to appear that any gift or conveyance has been made to any person, while a slave, of any lands or tenements, whether the same was conveyed by deed or parol, and the bargainee or donee has been placed in actual possession of the same, such gift or conveyance shall have the force and effect of transferring the legal title to the lands and tenements to such bargainee or donee: Provided, such possession shall have continued for the term of ten years prior to the ninth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and seventy: Provided, further, that any absence from the premises from the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, shall not be held as an abandonment or discontinuance of the possession: Provided, also, that this section shall not affect the interest of a bona fide purchaser for value from the grantor or bargainor of the lands or tenements in dispute. (Rev., s. 949; Code, s. 1278; 1869-70, c. 77.)

As to vagueness of description in pleadings, see section 1783.

Affects Remedy Only.—The statute affects the remedy only and does not interfere with vested rights. Buie v. Carver, 75 N. C. 559, 563.

Former Laws Do Not Defeat Purpose of Section.—Whenever it shall judicially appear that a slave purchased and paid for any property, real or personal, and that conveyance thereof was made to him, or to any one for his use, such purchaser, or those lawfully representing him, shall be entitled to such property, anything in the former laws of this State forbidding slaves to acquire and hold property, to the contrary notwithstanding. Caldwell v. Watson, 74 N. C. 296.

When Not Applicable to Will.—Where a man made a will in 1860 and dies in 1861, leaving certain property to his wife during her life and then to his slaves, naming them, and the widow died in 1899, the slaves cannot take under the will. Jervis v. Lewellyn, 130 N. C. 616, 41 S. E. 873.

Conveyor Must Have Had Title.—The section does not apply to a case where one having himself no title made a parol conveyance of land to a slave and put the slave in possession more than ten years before the passage of the act, but extends only to cases where the alleged donor or vendor had title himself. Buie v. Carver, 75 N. C. 559.

§ 994. Conveyances by infant trustees.—When an infant is seized or possessed of any estate in trust, whether by way of mortgage or otherwise, for another person who may be entitled in law to have a conveyance of such estate, or may be declared to be seized or possessed, in the course of any proceeding in the superior court, the court may decree that the infant shall convey and assure such estate, in such manner as it may direct, to such other person; and every conveyance and assurance made in pursuance of such other decree shall be as effectual in law as if made by a person of full age. (Rev., s. 1036; Code, s. 1265; R. C., c. 37, s. 27; 1821. c. 1116, ss. 1, 2.)

Editor's Note.—The general rule is that the contracts of an infant are voidable at the option of the infant, and when avoided, the contract is null and void ab initio. Pippen v. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co., 130 N. C. 23, 40 S. E. 822. To this general rule, there is one exception as old as the rule itself: "An infant may bind himself for necessaries." Jordan v. Coffield, 70 N. C. 110; Turner v. Gaither, 83 N. C. 357, 35 Am. Rep. 574. It would seem that this section added a second exception to the general rule in this State. It expressly creates a class of contracts which an infant is authorized to make, and which are as binding "as if made by a person of full age." See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 110.

Cited in Coker v. Virginia-Carolina Joint-Stock Land Bank, 208 N. C. 41, 44, 178 S. E. 863.

§ 995. Official deed, when official selling or empowered to sell is not in office.—When a sheriff, coroner, constable or tax collector, in virtue of his office, sells any real or personal property and goes out of office before executing a proper deed therefor, he may execute the same after his term of office has expired; and when he dies or removes from the state before executing the deed, his successor in office shall execute it. When a sheriff or tax collector dies having a tax list in his hands for collection, and his personal representative or surety, in collecting the taxes, makes sale according to law, his successor in office shall execute the conveyance for the property to the person entitled. (Rev., ss. 950, 951; Code, s. 1267; R. C., c. 37, s. 30; 1891, c. 242.)

A tax deed executed by an "ex-sheriff" may be authorized under this section. Manufacturing Co. v. Rosey, 144 N. C. 370, 57 S. E. 2; McNair v. Boyd, 163 N. C. 478, 79 S. E. 966.

When Executed by Successor.—A deed made by a succeeding sheriff (or coroner) operates by virtue of the section to pass the title to what was sold. Edwards v. Tipton, 77 N. C. 222; Isler v. Andrews, 66 N. C. 553.

Same—May Demand Clear Evidence.—Before a successor in office can be required to make a conveyance sought under this section he is entitled to demand clear and conclusive evidence that a sale was made by his predecessor, and also that the price was paid by him. Isler v. Andrews, 66 N. C. 553; Harris v. Irwin, 29 N. C. 432.

Deeds as Evidence. — A sheriff's deed made pursuant to this section after he has gone out of office is still subject to the rule that such deeds are prima facie evidence of sale and execution. Curlee v. Smith, 91 N. C. 172. But the recitals in a deed made by a successor of the sheriff are only hearsay, as they constitute his opinion based on information and not from his own knowledge. Id. See also Edwards v. Tipton, 77 N. C. 222; McPherson v. Hussey, 17 N. C. 323.

Power of Court to Correct Deeds. — A sheriff's deed is under control of the court, and the court can compel a sheriff to correct his deed; if the sheriff who executes the deed dies, the court can compel his successor to correct the deed, pursuant to this section, hence, the court may on motion during the trial of the suit correct such a deed. Millsaps v. McCormick, 71 N. C. 531, 533.

Does Not Extend to Clerks.—This section does not extend to clerks, and they cannot exercise the power herein conferred after going out of office. Shew v. Call, 119 N. C. 450, 453, 26 S. E. 33.

§ 996. Revocation of deeds of future interest made to persons not in esse.—The grantor in any voluntary conveyance in which some future interest in real estate is conveyed or limited to a person not in esse may, at any time before he comes into being, revoke by deed such interest so conveyed or limited. This deed of revocation shall be registered as other deeds; and the grantor of like interest for a valuable consideration may, with the joinder of the person from whom the consideration moved, revoke said interest in like manner. The grantor, maker or trustor who has heretofore created or may hereafter create a voluntary trust estate in real or personal property for the use and benefit of himself or of any other person or persons in esse with a future contingent interest to some person or persons not in esse or not determined until the happening of a future event may at any time, prior to the happening of the contingency vesting the future estates, revoke the grant of the interest to such person or persons not in esse or not determined by a proper instrument to that effect: provided that in the event the instrument creating such estate has been recorded, then the deed of revocation of such estate shall be likewise recorded before it becomes effective. (Rev., s. 1045; 1893, c. 498; 1929, c. 305.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the last sentence to this section. Formerly the section applied only to voluntary conveyances; as amended, it includes the creation of voluntary trusts in real or personal property, not only for the benefit of the grantor, maker, or trustor, and of persons not in esse, but for the benefit of persons determinable upon the happening of a future event. Furthermore, as amended, it applies to trusts heretofore created as well as to such as may be created hereafter. Stanback v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313.

Section Not Retroactive.—This section does not apply to deeds executed prior to its enactment. Roe v. Journegan, 175 N. C. 261, 95 S. E. 495; Roe v. Journigan, 181 N. C. 180, 106 S. E. 680.

The amended section has no reference to crimes, and is therefore not ex post facto. Nor does it disturb any vested rights. Stanback v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313.

Voluntary Trusts.—A trust estate in personalty created by the donor in consideration of one dollar and natural love and affection is a voluntary trust revocable by the donor under this section. Stanback v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313.

Where a voluntary trust is created in bank stock for the life of the donor or until he reach the age of fifty years, and at the termination to his issue or in the absence of issue to his next of kin, those who take in remainder take upon a contingency, the vesting of which depends upon the uncertain happening of a future event, and the trust may be revoked by the donor. Stanback v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 292, 148 S. E. 313.

Where a woman receives property without restriction from her father's estate and executes a deed in marriage settlement in trust without consideration, the deed is a voluntary trust in contemplation of this section. MacRae v. Commerce Union Trust Co., 199 N. C. 714, 715, 155 S. E. 614.

Revocation of Trust Settlement.—Where a woman executes a trust deed of settlement upon her marriage for the benefit of her children who may be born of the marriage, depending upon their reaching a certain age, the trust interest subject to be changed by her during her life, after the birth of children, their interests do not ipso facto become vested, and she may revoke the trust upon giving a sufficient deed to that effect and in compliance with the statute. MacRae v. Commerce Union Trust Co., 199 N. C. 714, 715, 155 S. E. 614.

Law Governing Power of Revocation of Trust Settlement.—Where the daughter of a British subject takes property absolutely from the trustees under his will upon her marriage, and marries in North Carolina, executing in this State a deed of settlement in trust, without consideration, for beneficiaries of this State, upon certain contingencies, the lex loci contractu governing the marriage settlement is that of North Carolina and controlled by the provisions of our statutes as to its revocation. MacRae v. Commerce Union Trust Co., 199 N. C. 714, 155 S. E. 614.

Art. 2. Conveyances by Husband and Wife

§ 997. Instruments affecting married woman's title; husband to execute; privy examination. — Every conveyance, power of attorney or other instrument affecting the estate, right or title of any married woman in lands, tenements or hereditaments must be executed by such married woman and her husband, and due proof or acknowledgment thereof must be made as to the husband and due acknowledgment thereof must be made by the wife, and her private examination, touching her voluntary assent to such instrument, shall be taken separate and apart from her husband, and such acknowledgment or proof as to the execution by the husband and such acknowledgment by the wife and her private examination shall be taken and certified as provided by law. Any conveyance, power of attorney, contract to convey, mortgage, deed of trust or other instrument executed by any married woman in the manner by this chapter provided, and executed by her husband also, shall be valid in law to pass, bond or charge the estate, right, title and interest of such married woman in and to all such lands, tenements and hereditaments or other estate, real or personal, as shall constitute the subject-matter or be embraced within the terms and conditions of such instrument or purport to be passed, bound, charged or conveyed thereby. (Rev., s. 952; Code, s. 1256; 1899, c. 235, s. 9; C. C. P., s. 429, subsec. 6; 1868-9, c. 277, s. 15.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—In arriving at the legislative intent and a sound construction of this section, it must be considered in connection with Article X, section 6 of the Constitution of North Carolina, and the statute pertaining to married women, sections 2506 to 2530, inclusive, of this code. The Constitution secures to a feme covert her property, real and personal, acquired before or after marriage, as her sole and separate estate and property. However, it requires the written consent of the husband before she can make a valid conveyance thereof.

The very year of the adoption of the Constitution the Legislature, in the endeavor to carry out and give effect to this provision, passed an act requiring that for the validity of a conveyance or other instrument, affecting the "estate, right or title of any married woman in lands, tenements or hereditaments," her privy examination must be taken by the proper officer. Code, Civil Procedure, sec. 429, sub-sec. 6. Re-enacted, with some slight modifications, Laws 1868, 69, ch. 277, sec. 15. This enactment continued, in substance, through the various codes and laws on the subject, appearing in Revisal 1905 as sec. 952, Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 445, 69 S. E. 404, which was brought forward in a substantial manner as this section. Section 2113 of the Revisal, now 2526 of the Code, conferred upon a free trader the "power to contract and deal as if she were a feme sole." In Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 69 S. E. 404, it was held that this referred to the ordinary contracts made in some business in which the feme might engage, and did not change her status as to conveyance, or contracts to convey her real estate. The Legislature of 1911, ch. 109, enacted the Martin Act, which is sec. 2507 of the Code.

Since this enactment it is held that contracts wrongfully broken by married women will subject them to liability for damages, even though they cannot be compelled to convey unless they have been privily examined according to forms of law. In other words they may be liable for damages, although specific performance cannot be required. Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 87 S. E. 126; Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820; Royal v. Southerland, 168 N. C. 405, 84 S. E. 708; Pomeroy Contracts (2 Ed.), p. 11; Anson Contracts, pp. 384, 385.

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 78 S. E. 6; Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 69 S. E. 404; Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 90 S. E. 113.

It is not in conflict with the constitutional provision which secures to the wife her entire estate, notwithstanding her coverture. Southerland v. Hunter, 93 N. C. 310.

This section is distinct from § 4103, Coker v. Virginia-Carolina Joint-Stock Land Bank, 208 N. C. 41, 44, 178 S. E. 863.

Extent to Which Feme Covert Deemed Feme Sole.—After a full review of the decisions in this State and an exhaustive examination of the subject, the conclusion arrived at in Hardy v. Holly, 84 N. C. 662 is thus announced by Ruffin J. "We must take it to be the settled law of this State, at least, that a married woman as to her separate property, is to be deemed a feme sole only to the extent of the power expressly given her in the deed of settlement."

The section expressly provides that a married woman can contract and thereby "affect" both her personal and real property, requiring only in some cases her husband's "written consent" and dispensing with it in others. Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 96, 52 S. E. 410.

Strict Compliance Necessary.—Unless the formalities of this section are complied with the deed is absolutely void. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 107, 78 S. E. 6, and cases cited.

Same—Creation of Trust.—A woman under coverture cannot create a trust by parol or in any other manner except by embodying it in a written instrument executed in accordance with this section. Ricks v. Wilson, 154 N. C. 282, 287, 70 S. E. 476.

Registration of Power of Attorney Unnecessary.—A power of attorney given by a married woman to dismiss an action concerning her land need not be registered to give it validity. Hollingsworth v. Harman, 83 N. C. 153, 154.

No Distinction between Legal and Equitable Interests.—The section admits no distinction between legal and equitable interests and embraces every "estate, right and title," which the married woman may possess in land, and such is the construction put upon it by the court. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 109.

II. EXECUTED BY BOTH HUSBAND AND WIFE.

A. In General.

Reason for Joinder of Husband.—The purpose of the section in making these requirements as to the deeds of feme covert is stated by Chief Justice Smith in Ferguson v. Kinsland, 93 N. C. 337, as follows: "The requirement that the husband should execute the same deed with the wife was to afford her his protection against the wiles and insidious arts of others, while her separate and private examination was to secure her against coercion and undue influence from him." And Connor, J., in Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 52 S. E. 410, says: "For the purpose of throwing around her the protection of her husband's counsel and advice, the Legislature declared that with certain exceptions she could not contract without the written consent of her husband." Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 108, 78 S. E. 6.

It is true that the husband, under our Constitution, Art. X, sec. 6, has no interest as husband in his wife's property, real or personal. The provision that he must give his written assent to conveyances by her of realty is the sole survival in our Constitution of the ancient idea that a wife must be under the guardianship and control of her husband and is incompetent to transact business. This requirement in our Constitution is omitted in nearly all the other State constitutions. It is not based upon his having any interest in his wife's land, nor on his having a vested interest therein at her death, for she has full authority to devise the same without his consent and deprive him of any interest as tenant by the curtesy. Accordingly, it is held that while his assent must be in writing, it need not be by deed, for he has nothing to convey; that his joining with her in the instrument is sufficient. Jones v. Craigmiles, 114 N. C. 613, 19 S. E. 638, and cases there cited, and that his signing the instrument merely as a witness is a sufficient "written assent." Jennings v. Hinton, 126 N. C. 48, 35 S. E. 187; or a letter written by him is sufficient. Brinkley v. Ballance, 126 N. C. 393, 35 S. E. 631. Stallings v. Walker, 176 N. C. 321, 323, 97 S. E. 25.

Execute Same Instrument.—This section clearly contemplates that the same instrument of writing shall be executed by both husband and wife. Slocomb v. Ray, 123 N. C. 571, 31 S. E. 829; Green v. Bennett, 120 N. C. 394, 27 S. E. 142.

Order of Procedure.—It is contemplated and required by the statute that the deed shall be first acknowledged by the husband and wife, and that her privy examination shall be taken afterwards; or if, for any of the causes specified in the statute, this cannot be done, then, first, the husband must acknowledge the execution of the deed, or it must be proved as to him by witnesses before a judge or the county court, and then, upon suggestion to the judge or county court, as directed by the statute, the commission may go out to take the acknowledgment and privy examination of the wife. Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 178, 90 S. E. 113.

Binding Dower Interest by Mortgage.—To bind the dower interest by mortgage the husband and wife must join in the execution of the deed, separate conveyances will not comply with the requirement of this section. Slocomb v. Ray, 123 N. C. 571, 31 S. E. 829.

B. Husband's Acknowledgment and Proof Thereof.

Time of Acknowledgment.—While the husband and wife must both be parties to the same deed, there is manifestly no requirement in the language of the section that the act of acknowledgment by both should be contemporaneous. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 512, 10 S. E. 758.

Same—Husband Executes First.—The deed is none the less effectual to pass the title of the wife because the husband not only executes it before she does, but after execution sends the officer to take her acknowledgment and privy examination at a point several miles distant, provided that she does then voluntarily assent and her acknowledgment and privy examination is taken and certified in form substantially the same as that prescribed by Code, sec. 1246(7), by a competent officer. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 511, 10 S. E. 758.

Must be Proved as to Husband.—The statute has been changed to permit the acknowledgment of the husband to be taken after that of the wife and before a different officer (next section), but this section still requires the acknowledgment of the husband or proof of his execution of the deed to pass the title or interest of the wife; and the principle announced, that the General Assembly has power to prescribe the form in which the assent of the husband to the execution of a deed by the wife shall be evidenced, is unimpaired, and was fully recognized in Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 87 S. E. 126. Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 179, 90 S. E. 113.

The case of Southerland v. Hunter, 93 N. C. 310, which has been approved on this point in Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 511, 10 S. E. 758, and in Slocomb v. Ray, 123 N. C. 571, 574, 31 S. E. 829, construes section 1256 of the Code (1883), Revisal, sec. 952 which is this section; and it is there held that a deed signed by the husband, but not proved as to him, was ineffectual to pass the title of the wife, although her acknowledgment and private examination were taken, which is the precise question now before us. The fact that the General Assembly saw fit to change the statute requiring proof as to the husband and wife to be taken before the same officer, and that proof as to the husband should precede proof as to the wife, after the decisions of McGlennery v. Miller 90 N. C. 215, 218, and Ferguson v. Kinsland, 93 N. C. 337, 339, and left the statute unchanged as to the requirements that the deed must be proved as to the husband to pass the title or interest of the wife, after the decision in Southerland v. Hunter, furnishes the strongest possible evidence that the General Assembly thought the latter a safeguard which ought to be retained. Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 179, 90 S. E. 113.

Acknowledgment after Wife's Death.—A deed to lands is only complete upon delivery, and a married woman's deed to her lands requires the written consent of her husband under the form provided for by this section requiring that such conveyance be signed by both the husband and wife; and a deed made and signed in due form by the wife, and thereafter the husband writes in his name as a grantor, and, here death acknowledges its execution before the clerk, is invalid to pass title. Hensley v. Blankinship, 174 N. C. 759, 94 S. E. 519.

Consent Proved and Recorded after Wife's Death.—No title is conveyed by a married woman's deed of her separate property where her husband's consent thereto was not proved and recorded until after the death of the wife. Green v. Bennett, 120 N. C. 394, 27 S. E. 142.

Evidence of Husband's Consent. — Where an instrument executed by a husband and wife specifically charges the latter's land with the payment of a debt, the consent of the husband need not be specifically set out in the deed, since his joining in the conveyance is sufficient evidence of his consent. Bank v. Ireland, 122 N. C. 571, 29 S. E. 835.

Effect of Husband's Minority.—The part of this section requiring execution by the husband when his wife's lands are conveyed, is contractual in its nature; and hence when the husband is a minor the conveyance is subject to the usual rules applying to infant's contracts, and he may avoid or ratify it upon reaching his majority. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 78 S. E. 6.

Veto Power of Husband.—While the husband has no interest in the wife's property, he has a "veto" power over the alienation of her realty by withholding his written assent, without which her conveyances of realty are invalid. Stallings v. Walker, 176 N. C. 321, 324, 97 S. E. 25.

C. Acknowledgment and Privy Examinations of Feme Covert.

Origin of Privy Examination.—A provision for the privy examination is found for the first time in 18 Edw. I. It was first enacted in this State in 1715. Paul v. Carpenter, 70 N. C. 502, 504.

Deed Void without Privy Examination.—That a deed of a feme covert, until she is privily examined by the proper authorities, is mere blank paper, so utterly void that even if it contains a stipulation in her own behalf, she cannot have the benefit thereof. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 105, 40 S. E. 984; Askew v. Daniel, 40 N. C. 321, cited, quoted and approved in Scott v. Battle, 85 N. C. 185, 39 Am. Rep. 694, which in effect overrules Daniel v. Crumpler, 75 N. C. 184.

Where a conveyance of land is made under a power of attorney sufficient in form by the heirs at law of a deceased owner of land, as tenants in common, but one of them, a feme covert, at the time, had not had her privy examination taken under the provisions of this section, both the power of attorney and the deed predicated and dependent upon it are ineffective to convey her interest, and she holds as a tenant in common with the purchaser, or those who may have acquired title under his deed. Adderholt v. Lowman, 179 N. C. 547, 103 S. E. 1.

Where the private examination of a married woman is not taken to a deed of trust executed by her it is void. Boyett v. First Nat. Bank, 204 N. C. 639, 169 S. E. 231.

Same—When Executed in Another State.—A deed executed by a married woman in another state, according to the laws of such state, for realty in this state, without privy examination of the wife, as required by this section is void. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 40 S. E. 984.

When only Interest is Dower.—Where the only interest of a married woman in land is her dower, her failure to sign the deed and to be privily examined does not preclude the grantee from recovering possession during her husband's life. Deans v. Pate, 114 N. C. 194, 19 S. E. 146.

Time of Privy Examination.—Privy of acknowledgment of execution by one or both (husband and wife) must precede the examination in reference to the volition and freedom of the wife. Southerland v. Hunter, 93 N. C. 310, 312; Barrett v. Barrett, 120 N. C. 127, 26 S. E. 691. See the Curative Act, section 3349 of this Code, which was held in the Barrett case not to apply so as to impair or divest the rights of intervening third persons. But the decision in these cases is now changed by the following section.

A deed which conveys the estate of a feme covert must be proved or acknowledged as to both husband and wife, before the private examination of the married woman is made, otherwise the deed will be inoperative to divest her estate. Southerland v. Hunter, 93 N. C. 310, now changed by the next section.

Same—Husband not to be Present.—The last scene necessary to the valid execution of such a deed by the wife is certainly one that the law does not intend shall be witnessed by the husband. Proof of execution by him must be made on his acknowledgment, taken before that of his wife, and her privy examination must be subsequent to both, but the law fixes no definite interval that must elapse between these acts, and it is not even essential that the probate as to the husband should be taken and certified to by the same officer who conducts the privy examination of the wife. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 512, 10 S. E. 758.

III. EFFECT OF FEME COVERT'S DEED.

How Lands of Feme Covert Bound.—In Green v. Branton, 16 N. C. 500, 504, the court says that a feme covert can be bound as to her land in only two ways: first, by her deed executed jointly with her husband with her privy examination thereto, and, secondly, by the judgment of a competent court. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 105, 40 S. E. 984.

Specific Performance.—Specific performance of the realty of a married woman will not be decreed when the contract is executed in compliance with the statute. Tillery v. Land, 136 N. C. 537, 48 S. E. 824.

Delivery of Deed Not Presumed. — The delivery of a deed will not be presumed from the acknowledgment of the husband and the acknowledgment and privy examination of the wife. Tarlton v. Griggs, 131 N. C. 216, 42 S. E. 591.

When Deed is Inoperative. — In Scott v. Battle, 85 N. C. 185, it is held that a feme covert's deed, not executed in the prescribed mode, is wholly inoperative. Clayton v. Rose, 87 N. C. 106, 110.

Same—Formalities Not Observed. — A purchase-money deed given by a feme covert, living with her husband, in which the husband does not join and which does not contain any privy examination of the wife, is void because not complying with this section and Art. X, sec. 6 of the Constitution. Hardy v. Abdallah, 192 N. C. 45, 133 S. E. 195.

Estoppel. — A married woman is not estopped by a deed not executed in the mode prescribed by the statute. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 107, 40 S. E. 984, citing 11 A. & E. Enc. (2 Ed.), 393; Towles v. Fisher, 77 N. C. 437.

Subject to Collateral Attack. — A deed and privy examination of a feme covert does not have the effect of an assurance of record, and may be collaterally impeached on the ground of infancy or other disability. Warlick v. Lowman, 111 N. C. 532, 16 S. E. 336. It was to meet the decision in this case that section 1001 was passed, changing the rule.

When Not Subject to Collateral Attack. — Where an infant feme covert acknowledged the execution of a deed, and her privy examination was taken before a judge of the superior court, the deed was then a conveyance of record and could not be collaterally impeached in an action of ejectment. Wright v. Player, 72 N. C. 94.

§ 998. Acknowledgment at different times and places; before different officers; order immaterial. —In all cases of deeds or other instruments executed by husband and wife and requiring registration, the probate of such instruments as to the husband and acknowledgment and private examination of the wife may be taken before different officers authorized by law to take probate of deeds, and at different times and places, whether both of said officials reside in this state or only one in this state and the other in another state or country. And in taking the probate of such instruments executed by husband and wife, including the private examination of the wife, it is immaterial whether the execution of the instrument was proven as to or acknowledged by the husband before or after the acknowledgment and private examination of the wife. (Rev., s. 953; 1899, c. 235, s. 9; 1895, c. 136.)

As to probate before judges of the Supreme or superior courts or clerks before 1889, see sec. 3339; as to probate before clerks of inferior courts prior to 1885, see sec. 3340.

Editor's Note. — Prior to the enactment of this section a deed made by husband and wife, conveying the wife's land, was required to be first acknowledged by the husband and wife, and then her privy examination taken. This order was regarded as material, and of the substance of the execution of such a deed. Unless this order of acknowledgment and probate was observed, the deed was ineffectual to pass any title or interest whatsoever. McGlennery v. Miller, 90 N. C. 215. And in Barrett v. Barrett, 120 N. C. 127, 129, 130, 26 S. E. 691, it was said that the only defect in the privy examination in question was that it was taken a few minutes or hours before the husband's acknowledgment on the same day of the execution of the deed by him.

Obviously such stringent and technical requirements could hardly be said to be in line with the spirit of a statute whose leading purpose was to facilitate alienation by married women, or as said in Barfield v. Combs, 15 N. C. 514, its object is to protect, not to hamper, married women. It is hard to see where any additional protection is afforded married women, while the evils and inconveniences resulting therefrom are only too apparent. This section offers a solution to the difficulty by removing the technicalities while in no wise decreasing the protection provided for married women. Burgess v. Wilson, 13 N. C. 306; Pierce v. Wanett, 32 N. C. 446; Malloy v. Bruden, 88 N. C. 305; Barrett v. Barrett, 120 N. C. 127, 26 S. E. 691, citing Cooley Const. Lim. (6 Ed.), 463, 464; Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 90 S. E. 113.

Need Not Be at Same Time or before Officer. — It is not necessary that the husband should actually sign at the same time as the wife, or in her presence; nor is it necessary that the proof or acknowledgment of the execution should be at the same time or before the same officer. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 10 S. E. 758.

Cannot Be Taken over Telephone. — This section, providing the proper mode of conveyance of real property by husband and wife of his lands, tenements and hereditaments, contemplates that the acknowledgment and privy examination of the wife provided for shall be made in the presence of the officer, which is emphasized by sections 3323 and 3324, as to acknowledgments of grantors and married women; and such acknowledgment taken of the wife over a telephone does not meet the statutory requirements, and renders the conveyance invalid as to her. Southern State Bank v. Sumner, 187 N. C. 762, 122 S. E. 848.

Acknowledgment of Husband Required. — The acknowledgment of the husband or proof of his execution of the deed is still required to pass the title or interest of the wife. Graves v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 176, 179, 90 S. E. 113.

§ 999. Absence of wife's examination does not affect deeds as to husband.—When an instrument purports to be signed by a husband and wife the instrument may be ordered registered, if the acknowledgment of the husband is duly taken, whether the private examination of the wife is properly taken or not, but no such instrument shall be the act or deed of the wife unless her private examination is taken according to law. (Rev., s. 954; 1899, c. 235, s. 8; 1901, c. 637.)

As to private examination of a feme covert, see secs. 997, 3324, 3325.

When Assent of Wife Not Needed. — An unembarrassed owner of land, no matter when the land was acquired, can convey the same, absolutely, or by way of trust or mortgage, free of all homestead rights, without the assent of his wife, except in the following cases: (1) Where the land in question has been allotted to him as a homestead, either on his own petition or by an officer, in accordance with law; (2) where no homestead has been allotted, but there are judgments against him which constitute a lien on the land, and upon which execution might issue and make it necessary to have his homestead allotted; (3) where no homestead has been allotted, but he has made a mortgage, reserving an undefined homestead, which mortgage constitutes a lien on the land that could not be foreclosed without allotting a homestead; (4) where the conveyance is fraudulent as to creditors, and no homestead has been allotted in other lands. Hughes v. Hodges, 102 N. C. 236, 9 S. E. 437.

Constitutional Requirement as to Homestead. — By the eighth section of the tenth Article of the Constitution, a deed made by the owner of a homestead without the voluntary signature and assent of his wife is void. Wittkowsky v. Gidney, 124 N. C. 437, 441, 32 S. E. 731.

When Probate Does Not Authorize Registration.—Where probate deed recites the acknowledgment and privy examination of the wife of the grantor only, it is insufficient and does not authorize registration. Hatcher v. Hatcher, 127 N. C. 200, 37 S. E. 207.

§ 1000. Officers authorized to take privy examination.—The Officials authorized by law to take proofs and acknowledgments of the execution of any instrument are empowered to take the private examination of any married woman, when her private examination is necessary, touching her free and voluntary assent to the execution of any instrument to which her assent is or may be necessary, and to certify the fact of such private examination. (Rev., s. 955; 1899, c. 235, s. 6.)

When Husband and Wife out of State. — When the husband and wife reside in a foreign country her acknowledgment, etc., may be taken by an ambassador, etc., of the United States, or by the mayor or other chief officer of any city or town. Paul v. Carpenter, 70 N. C. 502, 508.

Acknowledgment before Military Officer. — An acknowledgment and private examination taken by the provost marshal of the city of New Bern while that place was in possession of the United States military authorities, in the absence of fraud and the like, is good, having a similar effect as foreign judgments. Paul v. Carpenter, 70 N. C. 502.

When Officer Employee of Grantee. — The privy examination of a married woman as to her execution of a deed is not invalid because taken by a notary public who was a clerk in the office of the grantee, but had no interest in the transaction. Bank v. Ireland, 122 N. C. 571, 575, 29 S. E. 835.

When Officer Related to Parties. — Probate and private examinations taken before an officer are not invalid simply because he is related to the parties. McAllister v. Purcell, 124 N. C. 262, 32 S. E. 715.

Omission of Seal by Justice of the Peace. — The omission by a justice of the peace to attach his seal to a certificate of the proof of execution of a deed and privy examination of the wife will not invalidate his action, which is otherwise regular. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 10 S. E. 758.

Corrections after Expiration of Office. — A justice of the peace cannot correct his certificate made to a deed after his term of office has expired, such authority not having been given by statute. Cook v. Pittman, 144 N. C. 530, 57 S. E. 219.

§ 1001. Innocent purchaser not affected by fraud in treaty, if privy examination regular.—No deed conveying lands nor any instrument required or allowed by law to be registered, executed by husband and wife since the eleventh of March, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, if the private examination of the wife is thereto certified as prescribed by law, shall be invalid because its execution or acknowledgment was procured by fraud, duress or undue influence, unless it is shown that the grantee or person to whom the instrument was made participated in the fraud, duress or undue influence, or had notice thereof before the delivery of the instrument. Where such participation or notice is shown, an innocent purchaser for value under the grantee or person to whom the instrument was made shall not be affected by such fraud, duress or undue influence. (Rev., s. 956; 1889, c. 389; 1899, c. 235, s. 10.)

As to sufficiency of probate and registration without livery, see sec. 3308, and annotations thereunto.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 71.

Presence and under Influence of Husband. — The presence and undue influence of the husband at the ceremony of the privy examination would not vitiate a certificate to a deed in all respects regular as against the grantee, unless the grantee had notice of it, and the burden would be upon the plaintiff attacking the validity of the deed for that reason. Brite v. Penny, 157 N. C. 110, 72 S. E. 964, citing Butner v. Blevins. 125 N. C. 585, 34 S. E. 629; Davis v. Davis, 146 N. C. 163, 59 S. E. 659.

When Fraud of Probate Office Alleged. — Where a married woman has signed a mortgage or deed of trust to secure borrowed money, she may not have it set aside upon allegation of fraud of a probate officer in taking her separate examination, when she admits that the examination was taken in substance of the requirement of the statute and she had signed the conveyance, and there is no evidence that the mortgagee participated in the fraud. Whitaker v. Sikes Co., 187 N. C. 613, 122 S. E. 468.

In Whitaker v. Sikes Co., 187 N. C. 613, 615, 122 S. E. 468, the court said: "Even if the justice practiced a fraud upon her, since she does not allege that the Sikes Company, the party to whom the instrument was made, had any knowledge thereof, or participated in any way in the alleged fraud, she is precluded now from having it adjudged invalid and set aside."

When Privy Examination Not Taken. — In an action to invalidate a deed to lands because, in fact, the privy examination of the feme covert, the owner and plaintiff, had not been taken, though expressed to have been taken, as required in the certificate of the justice of the peace, the plaintiff, may by clear, cogent, and convincing proof show that her examination had not been taken at all, and when, under a proper charge thereon from the judge, the jury has found that such examination was not taken, the verdict will stand, though the grantee may not have been fixed with notice. Davis v. Davis, 146 N. C. 163, 59 S. E. 659.

Same—Or Was Irregular. — Where the privy examination of a wife is not taken, or is taken in a manner insufficient to fulfill the requirements of the law, though the grantee has had no knowledge thereof, the matter is open to judicial investigation. Benedict v. Jones, 129 N. C. 470, 40 S. E. 221.

Must Allege Guilt of Grantee. — A defense by a married woman that her privy examination as to her execution of a deed was procured by fraud and imposition is unavailing unless supported by an allegation that the grantee had notice of or participated in the same. Bank v. Ireland, 122 N. C. 571, 29 S. E. 835.

Innocent Purchaser from Guilty Grantee. — The section also protects the title of an innocent purchaser for value from a grantee, who did have notice of such fraud, duress or undue influence. Butner v. Blevins, 125 N. C. 585, 34 S. E. 629.

Note Procured by Duress.—Upon the principle embodied in this section, a note given by a husband and wife, where the husband procures her execution by duress, is voidable only, and is good in the hands of a bona fide holder. L. A. Randolph Co. v. Lewis, 196 N. C. 51, 144 S. E. 545.

§ 1002. Power of attorney of married woman.—All conveyances which may be made by any person under a power of attorney from any feme covert, freely executed by her with her husband, shall be valid to all intents and purposes to pass the estate, right and title which said feme covert may have in such lands, tenements and hereditaments as are mentioned or included in such power of attorney. (Rev., s. 957; Code, s. 1257; R. C., c. 37, s. 11; 1798, c. 510.)

§ 1003. Wife need not join in purchase-money mortgage. — The purchaser of real estate who does not pay the whole of the purchase money at the time when he takes a deed for title may make a mortgage or deed of trust for securing the payment of such purchase money, or such part thereof as may remain unpaid, which shall be good and effectual against his wife as well as himself, without requiring her to join in the execution of such mortgage or deed of trust. (Rev., s. 958, Code, s. 1272; 1868-9, c. 204; 1907, c. 12.)

Dower Right Subject to Defeat. — The dower right of a feme covert may be defeated by a mortgage of the husband alone, when for part of the purchase money. Corporation Comm. v. Dunn, 174 N. C. 679, 683, 94 S. E. 481.

§ 1004. Wife insane, husband's deed transfers her interest.—Every man whose wife is a lunatic or insane and whose homestead has been allotted, may bargain, sell, release, mortgage, transfer and convey any of his real estate by deed, mortgage deed, deed of trust or lease, except his homestead, without the signature or private examination of his wife: Provided, that the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the wife was adjudged a lunatic or declared insane, or the superintendent of an insane institution of the state, or any other state, shall certify under his hand and seal that she has been adjudged a lunatic or declared insane, and that her sanity has not been declared restored as is provided by law, and this certificate must be attached to the husband's deed, mortgage deed, deed of trust, or lease.

Such deed, mortgage deed, deed of trust or lease executed, probated and registered in accordance with law shall convey all the estate and interest as therein intended of the grantor in the land conveyed free and exempt from the dower rights and other interests of his wife: Provided, this section shall not apply to the homestead of the husband. (Rev., s. 959; 1905, c. 138, ss. 1, 3; 1919, c. 20; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 94.)

Editor's Note. — Chapter 65 of the Acts of 1923 is a re-enactment of this section which is not referred to in the Act. The Act contains a general repealing clause, repealing all laws and clauses of laws in conflict therewith, and a special repealing clause, purporting to repeal all parts of section 4903 which conflict with the act. Clearly this has reference to 1003 rather than 4903. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 271.

The dower of an insane wife may be conveyed by the husband alone. Corporation Comm. v. Dunn, 174 N. C. 679, 683, 94 S. E. 481.

Art. 3. Fraudulent Conveyances

§ 1005. Conveyance with intent to defraud creditors void.—For avoiding and abolishing feigned, covinous and fraudulent gifts, grants, alienations, conveyances, bonds, suits, judgments and executions, as well of lands and tenements as of goods and chattels, which may be contrived and devised of fraud, to the purpose and intent to delay, hinder and defraud creditors and others of their just and lawful actions and debts, every gift, grant, alienation, bargain and conveyance of lands, tenements and hereditaments, goods and chattels, by writing or otherwise, and every bond, suit, judgment and execution, at any time had or made, to or for any intent or purpose last before declared and expressed, shall be deemed and taken (only as against that person, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, whose actions, debts, accounts, damages, penalties and forfeitures, by such covinous or fraudulent devices and practices aforesaid, are, shall, or might be in anywise disturbed, hindered, delayed or defrauded) to be utterly void and of no effect; any pretense, color, feigned consideration, expressing of use, or any other matter or thing to the contrary notwithstanding; and in all actions by creditors to set aside gifts, grants, alienations and conveyances of lands and tenements and judgments purporting to be liens on the same on the ground that such gifts, grants, alienations, conveyances and judgments are feigned, covinous and fraudulent hereunder, it shall be no defense to the action to allege and prove that the lands and tenements alleged to be so conveyed or encumbered do not exceed in value the homestead allowed by law as an exemption: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the sale under execution or other final process, obtained on any debt during the continuance of the homestead, of any interest in such land as may be exempt as a homestead. (Rev., s. 960; Code, s. 1545; 1893, c. 78; R. C., 50, s. 1; 50 Edw. III, c. 6; 13 Eliz., c. 5, s. 2; 1715, c. 7, s. 4.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of the statute 13 Eliz., C. 5, sec. 2. Bank v. Adrian, 116 N. C. 537, 547, 21 S. E. 792. Prior to its enactment it was necessary to invoke the aid of a court of equity to have a deed declared void for fraud, and where, under a statutory provision, deeds were pronounced void as against creditors in order to secure a formal declaration of their invalidity, the moving party must have asked for relief that would have been formerly administered solely in a court of equity. Farthing v. Carrington, 116 N. C. 315, 328, 22 S. E. 9. At an early period in the judicial history of this state, it was held that courts of law might hear evidence and pass even incidentally upon the question whether a deed was fraudulent under 13 Eliz. Logan v. Simmons, 18 N. C. 13, 16; Lee v. Flannagan, 29 N. C. 471; Hardy & Bro. v. Skinner, 31 N. C. 191; Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 259, 11 S. E. 470; Wharton on Evidence, sec. 131. 13 Eliz., is declaratory of the common law so far as regards existing creditors. The remedy given to subsequent creditors rests entirely upon the enactment of the statute. In this sense the statute is sometimes spoken of as being in affirmance of the common law. Long v. Wright, 48 N. C. 290, 293, citing Co. Lit. 290 b 3 Ba. Ab. Titl. "Fraud," p. 307.

The object of the English statute was to prevent debtors from dealing with their property in any way to the prejudice of their creditors. See Central Bank v. Hume, 128 U. S. 195, 203, 32 L. Ed. 370, 9 S. Ct. 41.

Scope of Section. — The statute dealing with fraudulent conveyances applies to the state as well as to individuals, and the state can not rely on its prerogative. Hoke v. Henderson, 14 N. C. 12.

It applies to voluntary conveyances of personalty, as well as realty, as against creditors. Garrison v. Brice, 48 N. C. 85.

Prevents Passage of Any Estate. — The section makes fraudulent conveyances absolutely void, and in that way prevents the passing of any estate whatever, as against creditors of the grantor. Flynn v. Williams, 29 N. C. 32.

Same—Conveyance Made by Debtor. — The section operating, as it does, to wholly avoid the conveyances coming within its purview, can be applied only to conveyances made by the debtor himself. Gowing v. Rich, 23 N. C. 553.

Mortgagor Considered as Owner. — In expounding the statute against fraudulent conveyances, the mortgagor is considered the owner of the estate, and the mortgagee but an encumbrancer. Wall v. White, 14 N. C. 105, 107.

Cited in Askew v. Interstate Hotel Co., 195 N. C. 456, 142 S. E. 590.

II. WHAT CONSTITUTES FRAUD.

A. In General.

Rule Stated. — In Aman v. Walker, 165 N. C. 224, 227, 81 S. E. 162, it was held that the principles to be deduced from the authorities as to fraudulent conveyances, are: (1) If the conveyance is voluntary, and the grantor retains property fully sufficient and available to pay his debts then existing, and there is no actual intent to defraud, the conveyance is valid. (2) If the conveyance is voluntary, and the grantor did not retain property fully sufficient and available to pay his debts then existing, it is invalid as to creditors; but it cannot be impeached by subsequent creditors without proof of the existence of a debt at the time of its execution which is unpaid, and when this is established and the conveyance avoided, subsequent creditors are let in and the property is subjected to the payment of creditors generally. (3) If the conveyance is voluntary and made with the actual intent upon the part of the grantor to defraud creditors, it is void, although this fraudulent intent is not participated in by the grantee, and although property sufficient and available to pay existing debts is retained. (4) If the conveyance is upon a valuable consideration and made with the actual intent to defraud creditors upon the part of the grantor alone, not participated in by the grantee and of which intent he had no notice, it is valid. (5) If the conveyance is upon a valuable consideration, but made with the actual intent to defraud creditors on the part of the grantor, participated in by the grantee or of which he has notice, it is void. Black v. Sanders, 46 N. C. 67; Warren v. Makely, 85 N. C. 12, 14; Credle v. Carrawan, 64 N. C. 422, 424; Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265, 268; Savage v. Knight, 92 N. C. 493, 498; Clement v. Cozart, 112 N. C. 412, 420, 17 S. E. 486; Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 188, 67 S. E. 495; Powell Bros. v. McMullan Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 52, 58, 68 S. E. 926.

Employing an attorney who resides at some distance, and in another county, to draw the deed of assignment, and making a provision therein authorizing public or private sale for cash, are not circumstances of fraud. Barber v. Buffaloe, 111 N. C. 206, 16 S. E. 386.

Fraud a Compound Question of Law and Fact. — In Crow v. Holland, 12 N. C. 481, 482, it was said: "Fraud is a compound question of law and fact. The facts going to establish it are decided by a jury. Whether, when proved, they will amount to such a fraud as will vacate a grant is a question of law for the court to decide."

B. Intent.

See ante, this note, the preceding analysis line.

Intent as Poisonous Element. — In Moore v. Hinnant, 89 N. C. 455, 459, Chief Justice Smith, speaking for the court said: "The intent is the essential and poisonous element in the transaction, and not merely the effect; since in every conveyance and appropriation of property, the property conveyed is placed beyond the creditor's reach, and he is so far obstructed in the pursuit of his remedy against the debtor's estate. But the inquiry is, was this the purpose of the assignment; and if so, and it was participated in by the assignee or party to take benefit under it, the assignment is invalid, though the debt or liability professed to be the object to be secured be bona fide due, and itself tinged with no vicious ingredient."

Sufficiency of Intent. — It is not necessary that there should have been an intent to hinder, delay, and defraud, but an intent either to hinder and delay, or an intent to defraud, is sufficient. Peeler v. Peeler, 109 N. C. 628, 14 S. E. 59.

Same—Actual Delay Need Not Result. — In the language of Lord Ellenborough in Mieux v. Howell, 4 East., 1-13: "The Act of Parliament (and ours conforms to it) was meant to prevent deeds, etc., fraudulent in their concoction, and not merely such as in their effect might delay or hinder other creditors." Quoted in Moore v. Hinnant, 89 N. C. 455, 459.

"It is clear, however, from the language of the statute of 13 Elizabeth," remarks a recent author after a full discussion of the subject, and as his conclusion from a review of adjudged cases, "that its provisions were directed exclusively against conveyances made with an actual intent on the part of the debtors to hinder, delay or defraud creditors, as distinguished from the mere effect or operation of such conveyances. The expressions in the premable, 'devised and contrived,' 'to the end,' 'purpose and intent,' etc., leave no room for doubt on this point. Hence it has been sometimes very expressively designated, as the statute against fraudulent intents in alienation." Moore v. Hinnant, 89 N. C. 455, 460, quoting Burrill Assign., sec. 332.

Intent as Objective Element. — The intention of a conveyance is to accomplish the objects that moved the maker to execute it, and if any of these latter be covinous, the intent is necessarily so. Stone v. Marshall, 52 N. C. 300, 302.

Acts fraudulent in view of the law, because of their necessary tendency to delay or obstruct the creditor in pursuit of his legal remedy, do not cease to be such because the fraud as an independent fact was not then in mind. If a person does and intends to do that which from its conveyances the law pronounces fraudulent, he is held to have intended the fraud inseparable from the act. Cheatham v. Hawkins, 80 N. C. 161, 163, cited in note in 23 L. R. A., N. S., 386.

Mutuality of Fraudulent Intent.—In Horback v. Hill, 112 U. S. 144, 148, 28 L. Ed. 670, 5 S. Ct. 81, it was said that the fraud which will vitiate a sale must be mutual, that is, must be intended by both parties, or by one with knowledge of the other's purpose, and thus acquiesced in and furthered, and actual notice or knowledge, of such intent of the grantor, or reasonable cause to suspect the existence of such intent, is sufficient. Shaver v. Alterton, 151 U. S. 607, 621, 38 L. Ed. 286, 14 S. Ct. 442.

Evidence of Intent.—The rule laid down by Mr. Justice Boyden in Reiger v. Davis, 67 N. C. 185, 189, was that when a debtor, much embarrassed, conveys property of much value to a near relative, and the transaction is secret and no one is present to witness the trade but these near relatives, it is regarded as fraudulent, but when these relatives are made witnesses in the cause, and dispose to the fairness and bona fides of the transaction, and that, in fact, there was no purpose of secrecy, it then becomes a question for the jury to determine the intent which influenced the parties, and to find it fraudulent, or otherwise, as the evidence may satisfy them. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 263, 11 S. E. 470.

Same—Reservation of Exemptions. — The reservation of exemptions allowed by law in a deed of assignment is no evidence of a fraudulent intent. Barber v. Buffaloe, 111 N. C. 206, 16 S. E. 386.

Same—Conveyance Fraudulent on Face.—A conveyance sometimes contains provisions which in themselves justify the inference of a fraudulent intent. Peters v. Bain, 133 U. S. 670, 686, 33 L. Ed. 696, 10 S. Ct. 354.

Intent Not Clear—Badges of Fraud.—It is true that courts and juries cannot see and know the intent of an assignor except from his words and acts. Where he expresses his intent—his purpose to be—to defraud his creditors, we need not look further. This will avoid the assignment. But if he had not so declared his purpose, then we have to look to his acts to ascertain the intention with which the assignment was made—to what are called the "badges of fraud." Royster v. Stallings, 124 N. C. 55, 64, 32 S. E. 384. These "badges of fraud" constitute the subject of the next succeeding analysis line of this note.

C. Badges of Fraud.

Badges of Fraud Defined.—As stated in the last paragraph under the preceding analysis line of this note it frequently becomes necessary, in order to ascertain the debtor's intentions, to look for what are designated as "badges of fraud."

These badges of fraud are suspicious circumstances that overhang a transaction, and where the parties to it withhold testimony that it is exclusively within their power to produce, and that would remove all uncertainty, if believed, as to its character, the law puts the interpretation upon such conduct most unfavorable to the suppressing party as it does in all cases where a party purposely or negligently fails to furnish evidence under his control and not acceptable to his adversary. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 11 S. E. 470.

The usual badges of fraud are continuation of possession, or a secret trust, or some provision for the ease and comfort or benefit of the assignor, or the insertion of some feigned debt not due by the assignor. Royster v. Stallings, 124 N. C. 55, 65 32 S. E. 384.

Same—Possession Not Fraudulent Per Se. — Possession retained by the vendor of chattels does not, per se, make the sale fraudulent in law. It is but presumptive evidence of fraud, proper to be left to a jury. To repel this presumption the vendee may show that consideration passed, though none be stated in the bill of sale. Howell v. Elliott, 12 N. C. 76.

Same—Permitting Mortgagor to Remain in Possession of and Sell Stock of Merchandise.—Where mortgagees expressly agree to permit mortgagor to remain in possession of the stock of merchandise and sell the same in the usual course of trade, but do not require him to account for the proceeds of same, which the mortgagor does, until he is adjudged bankrupt, the mortgage is presumptively fraudulent in law and the burden is upon the mortgagor to rebut that presumption by proof that there were no pre-existing debts at the time the mortgage was executed, or that the mortgagor had assets sufficient and available to pay the existing debts exclusive of the property embraced in the mortgage. In re Joseph, 43 F. (2d) 252. See also Morris Plan Bank v. Cook, 55 F. (2d) 176, 179.

Same—Secrecy.—It is a mark of fraud if the transaction be secret; and it is meant by secrecy, if it be done in the presence only of near relatives, being such persons as may be relied on not to disclose what they know to the neighborhood; or if it be done at such distance from the neighborhood, that it is unlikely that the affair will become known to them. Vick v. Kegs, 3 N. C. 126.

That the only parties present, at a conveyance of all the vendor's land in satisfaction of old debts, were the vendor and vendee who were brothers-in-law and subscribing witnesses, also a brother-in-law of the vendee, is a fact calculated to throw suspicion upon the transaction, i. e., is a badge of fraud. Peebles v. Horton, 64 N. C. 374.

Same—Kinship.—The U. S. Supreme Court held in Gottlieb v. Thatcher, 151 U. S. 271, 279, 38 L. Ed. 157, 14 S. Ct. 319, that the relationship of brothers does not, of and in itself, cast suspicion upon a transfer from one to the other of property, or create such a prima facie presumption against its validity as would require the court to hold it to be invalid without proof that there was fraud on the part of the grantor participated in by the grantee.

Conveyance of Exempt Property. — The U. S. Supreme Court held in Rio Grande R. Co. v. Vinet, 132 U. S. 565, 571, 33 L. Ed. 438, 10 S. Ct. 168, that where a member of a firm covered his homestead with a mortgage, which was used to raise money by the firm to pay its debts, it was not a transaction that should be branded as a fraud by other creditors.

Wife's Separate Property.—In Schreyer v. Scott, 134 U. S. 405, 415, 33 L. Ed. 955, 10 S. Ct. 579, it was held that the transfer by a husband to his wife of the legal title to property of which she was prior thereto, the equitable owner, or in which she had at least a large equitable interest, is not voluntary.

III. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF PARTIES AND PURCHASERS.

Bona Fide Purchaser without Notice.—A purchaser for a valuable consideration, and without notice, from a fraudulent grantee, acquires a good title against the creditors of the fraudulent grantor. Saunders v. Lee, 101 N. C. 3, 7 S. E. 590. And in Young v. Lathrop, 67 N. C. 63, 69, Chief Justice Pearson said: "Whatever may be said about fairness or unfairness towards creditors, the legislative will gives preference to a bona fide purchaser, for valuable consideration at full price and without notice of the fraud and covin."

Purchaser with Notice.—Since the passage of the Act of 1840 a purchaser of land with notice at the time of a former fraudulent conveyance is not protected in his purchase, although he paid value therefor. Triplett v. Witherspoon, 70 N. C. 589; Hiatt v. Wade, 30 N. C. 340.

Same—Constructive Notice.—A purchaser from a trustee, under a conveyance containing upon its face evidence of a fraudulent purpose to defeat creditors, takes with notice of such evidence. Eigenbrun v. Smith, 98 N. C. 207, 4 S. E. 122.

Valid Against Maker.—A conveyance made with an intent to defraud creditors, is nevertheless valid against the maker and all others, except creditors and those who purchase under a sale made for their benefit. Saunders v. Lee, 101 N. C. 3, 7 S. E. 590.

When Parties in Pari Delicto.—In York v. Merritt, 77 N. C. 213, the action was by the grantee against the grantor for possession of the land conveyed to defraud creditors. The court held that when the parties have united in a transaction to defraud another or others, or the public, or the due administration of justice, or which is against the public policy or contra bonos mores, the courts will not enforce it against either party. Bank v. Adrian, 116 N. C. 537, 540, 21 S. E. 792.

Although a purchaser may pay a full price for the property, yet if he purchased with the intent to aid his vendor to defeat the latter's creditors his purchase will be void. Eigenbrun v. Smith, 98 N. C. 207, 4 S. E. 122.

A bond given as a pretext to enable one person to set up a claim to the property of another, so as to defraud the creditors of that other, is void even as between the parties to the same. Powell & Co. v. Inman, 53 N. C. 436.

When Conveyance to Trustee Void.—A conveyance to a trustee for the use of creditors, if made with intent to defraud any one of the vendor's creditors, is void, though the trustee be ignorant of such intent, and his conduct is bona fide. Eigenbrun v. Smith, 98 N. C. 207, 4 S. E. 122.

Personal Liability of Wife.—It was held in Trust Co. v. Sedgwick, 97 U. S. 304, 24 L. Ed. 954, that where property is conveyed to a wife in fraud of her husband's creditors, a judgment inpersonam for its value cannot be taken against her, nor, in case of her death, against her executors.

Burden of Proof.—Where a conveyance from an insolvent husband to his wife is attacked for fraud, the onus is upon the wife to show that a consideration, in the shape of money paid, the discharge of a debt due from him to her, or something of value, actually passed. Peeler v. Peeler, 109 N. C. 628, 14 S. E. 59.

The burden is on the purchaser of property conveyed to defraud creditors to show that he bought for a valuable consideration and without notice. Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 44 S. E. 635.

IV. RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF CREDITORS.

As to status of a preference of one creditor due another, or others in case of a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, see s. 1609.

Editor's Note.—It would seem that this Article dealing with fraudulent conveyances is the controlling law until the debtor makes an assignment for the benefit of creditors, whereupon sections 1609 to 1620, inclusive, govern. Under section 1609 when a debtor executes a deed of trust, or deed of assignment, all of the debts of the said debtor shall become due and payable at once. The said deed shall not contain any preference whatsoever of one creditor over another, except as provided in Article 1, Chapter 28.

Section 1611 makes it the duty of the trustee to recover any property which was conveyed by the debtor for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, or of giving a preference. In defining a preference, the section goes on to say that it shall be deemed to have been given when the conveyance is within four months of the registration of the deed of trust or deed of assignment. This definition is quite similar to section 60(a) of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

Preference of Creditors.—It is stated in emphatic terms by Gaston, J., speaking for the court in Hafner v. Irwin, 23 N. C. 490, 496, thus: "Every conveyance of property by an insolvent or embarrassed man, to the exclusive satisfaction of the claims of some of his creditors, has necessarily a tendency to defeat or hinder his other creditors in the collection of their demands. But if the sole purpose of such a conveyance be the discharge of an honest debt, it does not fall under operation of the statute against fraudulent conveyances." It is entirely well settled, both in England and America, that at common law a debtor, insolvent or in failing circumstances, has a right to prefer certain creditors to whom he is under special obligations, where done in good faith and without fraud, though by such preference the fund for the payment of other creditors be lessened or absorbed. See Huntley v. Kingman, 152 U. S. 527, 532, 38 L. Ed. 540, 14 S. Ct. 688.

But an agreement by which a conveyance, made for the purpose of preferring a creditor, is to be kept secret until the debtor has an opportunity to get beyond the reach of process issued by his other creditors, renders the conveyance fraudulent towards other creditors, as intended to hinder, delay, or defeat them. Hafner v. Irwin, 23 N. C. 490.

Same—Private Motions Immaterial.—In a case decided in the U. S. Supreme Court, Emerson v. Senter, 118 U. S. 1, 10, 30 L. Ed. 49, 6 S. Ct. 981, it is said: private motives for giving the preference cannot affect the exercise of the right, if the preferred creditor has done nothing improper to secure it.

Conveyance to Defeat Claims for Torts.—A secret conveyance of a mill made to defeat, hinder or delay a party injured by the erection thereof in the recovery of his damages, is fraudulent and void as to such party, and the former owner of the mill, notwithstanding such conveyance, continues liable for the damage. Purcell v. McCallum, 18 N. C. 221.

Where a deed was executed to evade the payment of any judgment that might be recovered against the grantor in an action for slander pending at the time of its execution, it is fraudulent, under the section, as to his creditors. Helms v. Green, 105 N. C. 251, 11 S. E. 470.

Secret Trusts.—In Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 179, 13 S. E. 862, it was said that if a deed be made, showing upon its face a full valuable consideration, but upon the secret trust that the vendee shall not pay anything therefor, but shall hold the same in contemplation of insolvency for the benefit of the vendor, so as to protect and shield the property against any debts that he may owe at the time, or any liabilities that he may subsequently incur, such a deed would be void as to all persons whose claims are, shall or might be defrauded thereby. As to pre-existing debts such a deed would be ipso facto fraudulent and void. Morgan v. McLelland, 14 N. C. 82.

Same—Evidence.—In Barber v. Buffaloe, 122 N. C. 128, 129, 29 S. E. 336, it was held that there was sufficient evidence of fraud to take the case to the jury. There the party preferred was a relative of the assignor, went 16 miles on Sunday night with the attorney who drew the deed or assignment, brought in the property with the debt secured, and allowed the assignor to remain in possession free of rent; this was evidence of a secret trust and benefit to the assignor, and the turning point in the case. Royster v. Stallings, 124 N. C. 55, 65, 32 S. E. 384.

Absolute Transfers Intended as Security.—A deed absolute but executed upon a parol agreement for redemption, is, in law, fraudulent and void against the creditors of the vendor. Gregory v. Perkins, 15 N. C. 50.

A deed absolute on its face, which is mere security for a debt, is void as against creditors of the grantor. Bernhardt v. Brown, 122 N. C. 587, 29 S. E. 884.

Absolute Transfer Intended as Mortgage.—A deed absolute on its face, but intended as a mortgage only, is fraudulent and void against creditors and purchasers, and against subsequent as well as prior creditors. Halcombe v. Ray, 23 N. C. 340.

When Insolvent Debtor Improves Wife's Estate. — An insolvent debtor cannot withdraw money from his own estate and give it to his wife to be invested by her in the purchase or improvement of her property, and to that extent, when it is done, creditors may subject the property so purchased or improved to the payment of their claims. Michael v. Moore, 157 N. C. 462, 73 S. E. 104.

Mortgage for Just Debt.—It would seem that a mortgage of land for a just debt can not be a fraud upon another creditor, because it can not obstruct his remedy by a sale of all that under any circumstances ought to be sold, namely, the debtor's entire interest in the premises. Lee v. Flannagan, 29 N. C. 471.

Prior and Subsequent Creditors. — Indebtedness, at the time of making a voluntary conveyance of part only of the grantor's property, is, in respect to subsequent creditors seeking satisfaction out of the property conveyed, merely evidence of fraud, the consideration of which belongs to the jury; but in respect to prior creditors where debts can not be otherwise satisfied, it constitutes fraud in law to be declared by the court. O'Daniel v. Crawford, 15 N. C. 197.

Same—Surety on Bond.—The liability of a principal to indemnify a surety on a bond is an existing liability at the time the bond is executed, within the rule that conveyance with intent to defraud creditors is void as to existing obligations. Graeber v. Sides, 151 N. C. 596, 66 S. E. 600.

Void in Part Void in Toto.—If only a part of the consideration of a deed is fraudulent against creditors, the whole deed is void. Hafner v. Irwin, 23 N. C. 490.

Same—Fraud in Law.—As respects fraud in law as contradistinguished from fraud in fact where that which is valid can be separated from that which is invalid, without defeating the general intent, the maxim, "void in part, void in toto," does not necessarily apply, and the instrument may be sustained notwithstanding the invalidity of a particular provision. Peters v. Bain, 133 U. S. 670, 688, 33 L. Ed. 696, 10 S. Ct. 354.

When Deed of Trust Fraudulent.—A deed of trust executed by a corporation, or an individual for the purpose of creditors, in order to dispose of property to advantage, and prevent a sacrifice by a sale for cash, when the company or individual has the means and resources from which enough might be realized to pay all the debts, is fraudulent and void as against creditors. London v. Parsley, 52 N. C. 313.

It is no ground for a court to pronounce a deed of trust fraudulent per se, as against other creditors, that the property conveyed was to be sold at a private sale. Burgin v. Burgin, 23 N. C. 453.

When Wife Participates in Husband's Bank Deposits. — Where the wife participates in her husband's depositing his money in her name at a bank for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, the attempted appropriation is void under this section which was enacted to prevent fraudulent gifts, and in an appropriate action the deposit will be considered and dealt with as if it stood in the name of the husband. Moore v. Greenville Banking, etc., Co., 173 N. C. 180, 91 S. E. 793.

When Trustee in Bankruptcy May Have Conveyance Set Aside.—A trustee in bankrutcy is entitled to have a fraudulent conveyance set aside and to recover the property transferred, provided any creditor of the bankrupt would be entitled to the same. Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 44 S. E. 635.

Fraudulent Conveyance of Life Insurance Policy.—A life insurance policy issued to one for the benefit of himself is an integral part of his estate, and a voluntary assignment thereof to his children, made when he is insolvent, is fraudulent and void. Burton v. Farinholt, 86 N. C. 261.

Feigned and Covinous Judgment.—A feigned and covinous judgment is made utterly void as against the person who is in anywise hindered, delayed, or defrauded of his debts. Powell v. Howell, 63 N. C. 283, 285.

Bona Fide Purchaser from Fraudulent Vendee. — The statute 13 Elizabeth being intended to protect creditors, a bona fide purchaser from a fraudulent vendee has no title against the creditors of the vendor. Hoke v. Henderson, 14 N. C. 12.

§ 1006. Conveyance with intent to defraud purchasers void.—Every conveyance, charge, lease or encumbrance of any lands or hereditaments, goods and chattels, if the same be made with the actual intent in fact to defraud such person who has purchased or shall purchase in fee simple or for lives or years the same lands or hereditaments, goods and chattels, or to defraud such as shall purchase any rent or profit out of the same, shall be deemed utterly void against such person and others claiming under him who shall purchase for the full value thereof the same lands or hereditaments, goods and chattels, or rents or profits out of the same, without notice before and at the time of his purchase of the conveyance, charge, lease or encumbrance, by him alleged to have been made with intent to defraud; and possession taken or held by or for the person claiming under such alledged fraudulent conveyance, charge, lease, or encumbrance shall be always deemed and taken as notice in law of the same. (Rev., s. 961; Code, s. 1546; R. C., c. 50, s. 2; 27 Eliz., c. 4, s. 2; 1840, c. 28, ss. 1, 2.)

Cross References.—As to conveyances to defraud creditors, see sec. 1005 and annotations; as to registration (the Connor Act), see secs. 3308-3310; as to promise for protection of innocent purchaser for value, see sec. 1009.

Editor's Note.—The section is substantially the same as 27 Eliz. c. 4, sec. 2, with the exception of two important changes. The Act of 1860 amended it so as to limit its operation to the purchaser, both for full value and without notice, and gave to creditors of bargainors or mortgagors, and to such purchasers of their interests, but not to the bargainors or mortgagors themselves, the right to impeach conveyances on the ground that they were executed to hinder, delay or defeat, or defraud creditors or such purchasers. Bank v. Adrian, 116 N. C. 537, 547, 21 S. E. 792.

In Cadagan v. Kennett, Comp. 434, Lord Mansfield, in his sweeping manner, commences his opinion with this broad proposition, i. e., "The principles and rules of the common law, as now universally known and understood, are so strong against fraud in every shape, that the common law would have attained every end proposed by the statutes 13 and 2 Eliz." This proposition has never received the sanction of any adjudication, and is treated by writers as dictum. In Long v. Wright, 48 N. C. 290, 293, Pearson, J., speaks of it as "a striking illustration of his Lordship's proneness to break through the distinction between law and equity."

In Plummer v. Worley, 35 N. C. 423, Ruffin, C. J., uses this language "It is true that the statute of 27 Eliz. is in its terms confined to lands, but it has been often said that it is but in affirmance of the common law." It is apparent that reference is here made to the dictum of Lord Mansfield, and the inference is indistinctly suggested that the principle of 27 Eliz. might be extended to "things personal;" but the idea is not followed out in the decision. So it came to be a settled and unbroken holding in this State that the section applied only to land. However, the need for an extension of its provisions to "things personal" was keenly felt. So, while the rule was too well established for the courts to break away, the statute brought relief by extending the section to "goods and chattels," the change appearing for the first time in section 1546 of the Code of 1883.

Section Construed with Registration Act.—This section and the Registration Act (Sections 3308-3311) were both intended to prevent fraud, and must be construed together with that view. Austin v. Staten, 126 N. C. 783, 36 S. E. 338.

First Bona Fide Purchaser Protected.—27 Elizabeth being intended for the benefit of purchasers, the first bona fide purchaser, whether from the fraudulent vendor or vendee, is within its operation. Hoke v. Henderson, 14 N. C. 12.

"Purchaser" Defined. — The term "purchaser" is not used in the statute in its technical sense, for one who comes to an estate by his own act. It is to be received in its popular meaning as denoting one who buys for money, and, as we think, buys fairly and of course at a fair price. Fullenwider v. Roberts, 20 N. C. 420, 425, citing Upton v. Basset, Cro. Eliz. 445.

The Legislature thought proper in 1840 to declare that no person shall be deemed a purchaser unless he purchased the land for the full value thereof, without notice, at the time of his purchase, of the conveyance by him alleged to be fraudulent. Hiatt v. Wade, 30 N. C. 340, 342.

Second Purchaser Must Be Bona Fide.—The second purchaser must now, as before the Act of 1885, still be a bona fide purchaser, and for full value. We do not mean to say that he should have paid every dollar the land was worth, but he should have paid a reasonable fair price, such as would indicate fair dealing and not be suggestive of fraud. Austin v. Staten, 126 N. C. 783, 788, 36 S. E. 338.

Validity as between Parties. — In a U. S. Supreme Court case, Railroad Co. v. Soutter, 13 Wall. 517, 523, 20 L. Ed. 543, it was held that a fraudulent purchaser of property when deprived of its possession by attacking creditors, cannot recover of them for repairs or improvements, or for incumbrances lifted by him whilst in possession.

Bona Fide Purchaser Prevails.—A bona fide purchaser of personal property, without notice, acquires a good title, though his vendor may have made a prior fraudulent conveyance to a third person. Plummer v. Worley, 35 N. C. 423.

Same—Equity Will Not Deprive of Legal Advantage.—No one has superior claims to the consideration of a court of equity than a purchaser without notice; and there is no case in which the court has interfered to deprive such a purchaser of a legal advantage. Crump v. Black, 41 N. C. 321, 324.

Curing Invalidity. — It is a settled principle that a deed voluntary or even fraudulent in its creation, and voidable by a purchaser, may become good by matter ex post facto. See Sumner v. Hicks, 2 Black 532, 535, 17 L. Ed. 355.

Consideration.—To constitute a good purchase, good faith and a fair price are requisite. Fullenwider v. Roberts, 20 N. C. 420, 428.

Same—A "Petty" Sum. — When the consideration is pecuniary, a "petty" sum, when compared with the value of the land, would not help a second over the head of a first conveyance. Fullenwider v. Roberts, 20 N. C. 420, 426.

Same—One-half or Two-thirds Value. — Under the section a man cannot be held to be a purchaser for a valuable consideration who gives for the land not more than one-half or two-thirds of the value. Harris v. DeGraffenreid, 33 N. C. 89.

Possession by Third Person Legal Notice. — Where one purchases land which he knows to be in the possession of a person other than the vendor, he is affected with legal notice and must inquire into the title of the possessor. Bost v. Setzer, 87 N. C. 187.

Burden of Proof. — Where both parties claim by deed from a common grantor, the deed of the plaintiff being the younger, but registered first—he makes out a prima facie case, and the burden of proof is shifted upon the defendant to attack the bona fides of the plaintiff's deed, and to defeat it, if he can, by establishing fraud. Austin v. Staten, 126 N. C. 783, 36 S. E. 338.

Same—Mortgages. — A mortgage to secure a present loan constitutes the mortgagee a purchaser for value within the meaning of the section. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 541, 84 S. E. 852.

And the same principle obtains in reference to mortgages and deeds of trust to secure a part indebtedness, except as to an estate or interest existent in the property conveyed. Fowle v. McLean, 168 N. C. 537, 541, 84 S. E. 852; Brem v. Lockhart, 93 N. C. 191; Potts v. Blackwell, 57 N. C. 59.

Same—Deed in Trust. — A deed in trust to sell property and pay certain creditors is supported by a valuable consideration, and is valid against a prior deed of gift as being a subsequent sale to a purchaser for a valuable consideration under this section. Ward v. Wooten, 75 N. C. 413, 416.

Same—Assignee of Fraudulent Vendee. — An assignee of a fraudulent vendee for the benefit of creditors, incurring no new liability on the faith of his title, is not protected. Wallace v. Cohen, 111 N. C. 103, 105, 15 S. E. 892, which cites: Farley v. Lincoln, 51 N. H. 577; Harris v. Horner, 30 Am. Dec. 182; Stevens v. Brennan, 79 N. Y. 254; Montgomery v. Bucyrus Mach. Works, 92 U. S. 257, 23 L. Ed. 656; Donaldson v. Farwell, 93 U. S. 631, 23 L. Ed. 993.

But such an assignee takes title subject to any equity, or other right, that attaches to the property in the hands of the debtor. Carpenter v. Duke, 144 N. C. 291, 293, 56 S. E. 938.

Possession. — It is clear that the possession here spoken of is not a possession continued by the fraudulent donor, but is that of the donee himself or his tenant, taken under the conveyance, and that such possession of the donee or for him amounts to notice in respect only of those tracts or parcels to which that possession extends, and cannot affect a person who buys a parcel which is not, at the time of his purchase, in the possession of the fraudulent donee. Wade v. Hiatt, 32 N. C. 302, 303.

§ 1007. Voluntary conveyance evidence of fraud as to existing creditors.—No voluntary gift or settlement of property by one indebted shall be deemed or taken to be void in law, as to creditors of the donor or settler prior to such gift or settlement, by reason merely of such indebtedness, if property, at the time of making such gift or settlement, fully sufficient and available for the satisfaction of his then creditors, be retained by such donor or settler; but the indebtedness of the donor or settler at such time shall be held and taken, as well with respect to creditors prior as creditors subsequent to such gift or settlement, to be evidence only from which an intent to delay, hinder or defraud creditors may be inferred and in any trial shall, as such, be submitted by the court to the jury, with such observations as may be right and proper. (Rev., s. 962; Code, s. 1547; R. C., r. 50, s. 3; 1840, c. 28, ss. 3, 4.)

Gifts of Visible Estate and Retention of Choses in Action. —Gifts of visible estates can not be defeated, where the debtor has resources in stocks or other securities of value to meet his liabilities. Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265.

When Donor Is Unable to Pay Debts. — It is a well settled rule of law in this state, that no voluntary deed can be upheld as against creditors, when the bargainor is unable to pay his debts at the time of the execution of the deed. Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 188, 67 S. E. 495; McCanless v. Flinchum, 89 N. C. 373.

When Conveyance Avoided Only as between Parties to Action. — When the court, in an action under this section has declared a voluntary conveyance void as to the plaintiff, and decreed that it be "set aside, revoked, rescinded, and annulled," it is avoided only as between the parties to the action. Sturges v. Portis Min. Co., 206 Fed. 534, 538; Allred v. Smith, 135 N. C. 443, 47 S. E. 597, 65 L. R. A. 924.

Legatee Must Suffer Loss. — The assent of an executor to a legacy, before he has paid all of the debts of his testator, is void as to the creditors; for it is a fraud, an act done in violation of the maxim, "A man must be just before he is generous." So long as the executor is solvent, no debt can be left unpaid, for he is liable to the creditors de bonis propriis, by reason of the devastavit. If the executor be insolvent, the loss must fall upon the legatee rather than upon a creditor. Barnawell v. Threadgill, 40 N. C. 86 Barnawell v. Threadgill, 56 N. C. 50, 62; Pullen v. Hutchins, 67 N. C. 428, 433.

A qualification is made in cases where the donor, at the time of the gift "retained property, fully sufficient and available for the satisfaction of all of his then creditors." This modification of the maxim "A man must be just before he in generous," is confined to gifts inter vivos. In respect to legacies, or gifts by will, there has been no modification of the maxim; on the contrary, the legislation upon the subject tends to enforce a strict adherence to it. Pullen v. Hutchins, 67 N. C. 428, 432.

Conveyance to Son. — Where a deed to the grantor's son is impeached as a voluntary gift upon the ground that he did not retain property "fully sufficient and available for the satisfaction of his then creditors," as required by the section, it was held, that such a conveyance is valid if not made with a fraudulent intent and enough property is retained for all his creditors. Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265.

But where such a deed provides that the grantee shall support his invalid brothers (naming them) and comply with the conditions imposed, it is not voluntary within the meaning of the section, but rests upon a valuable consideration. Worthy v. Brady, 91 N. C. 265.

A voluntary conveyance to a son is not avoided by the fact that the grantor was indebted at the time, if he afterwards paid the debt. Smith v. Reavis, 29 N. C. 341.

A contract made in consideration of support by the son of his father and mother for life for one hundred dollars and certain shares of stock of the father, of the value of seven thousand dollars, and the father has not retained sufficient property out of which to pay his then existing creditors, and the son has acted in good faith without notice or knowledge, the transfer of the stock to the son is not valid as against his father's creditors beyond the amount he has previously expended for the support, and for which he was liable under the terms of the contract, and where issues raising this question have been tendered, refused, and exceptions entered, and this phase of the evidence in the case has not been presented to the jury, a new trial will be ordered on appeal. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Mackorell, 195 N. C. 741, 143 S. E. 518.

Same—When Void Per Se.—A voluntary deed of land or other property made to a son by a father unable to pay his debts is void per se as to creditors; indeed, such a deed to any person is void, and such a deed appearing, the court declares it void in law. Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 188, 67 S. E. 495; McCanless v. Flinchum, 89 N. C. 373.

Conveyances to Wife. — A conveyance of lands to husband and wife by entireties which was paid for by the husband will not be considered as fraudulent with respect to his creditors, when he retained property amply sufficient to pay them at the time of the deed. Finch v. Cecil, 170 N. C. 114, 86 S. E. 991.

Where a husband makes a gift of land to his wife, without any valuable consideration, but it is admitted he had no fraudulent intent, and he retains property sufficient to pay his debts in existence at the time of the gift, it is not fraudulent as to creditors. Taylor v. Eatman, 92 N. C. 601, 602.

Same—Evidence. — When a deed from a husband to his wife is sought to be set aside by his creditors for fraud, evidence, tending to show that she had a resulting trust by reason of her having conveyed the same land to her husband without consideration moving to her, is inadmissible under the principle that a grantor in a deed to lands may not engraft a resulting trust upon his conveyance of the fee simple title with full covenants and warranty of title. Kelly Springfield Tire Co. v. Lester, 192 N. C. 642, 135 S. E. 778.

In an action to set aside a husband's deed to his wife for fraud as to his creditors, the presumption formerly arising from a voluntary conveyance is removed and the indebtedness of the husband is evidence only from which the intent may be inferred, and a requested instruction is properly refused which requires the defendant to satisfy the jury by the greater weight of the evidence that he retained property fully sufficient and available. Shuford v. Cook, 169 N. C. 52, 85 S. E. 142, citing Hobbs v. Cashwell, 152 N. C. 183, 67 S. E. 495.

Partition between Husband and Wife.—Where a bankrupt is allotted an undivided interest in certain lands as his homestead and the remainder in the undivided interest in such lands is sold to make assets, and at the sale it is bought by the wife of the bankrupt, and the land is partitioned by order of court, and in the partition proceeding the husband acknowledges the interest in remainder of his wife, the judgment in the partition proceeding estops the husband from denying the interest of his wife, and operates as a gift to her within the meaning of this section. Wallace v. Phillips, 195 N. C. 665, 143 S. E. 244.

Necessary Allegations to Set Aside Gift.—In order for a creditor of a husband to set aside a gift to his wife as fraudulent against creditors, his complaint must allege that at the time of the alleged gift the donor had not retained property fully sufficient and available to pay his then existing creditors, and in the absence of such allegation a demurrer thereto is good. Wallace v. Phillips, 195 N. C. 665, 143 S. E. 244.

Presumption and Burden of Proof. — The law presumes that the sale was made in good faith and with honest intentions; in the absence of proof to the contrary, the validity of the sale could not be questioned. See Shauer v. Alterton, 151 U. S. 607, 625, 38 L. Ed. 286, 14 S. Ct. 442.

The burden is on plaintiff in an action to set aside a deed as being fraudulent as to creditors to prove that the grantor failed to retain property sufficient and available to pay his then existing creditors. Hood v. Cobb, 207 N. C. 128, 176 S. E. 288.

Same—When Presumed Fraudulent. — If there is an existing debt, and the debtor makes a voluntary conveyance, and afterwards becomes insolvent, so that the creditor must lose his money, unless the property conveyed can be reached, such voluntary conveyance is presumed as a matter of law to be fraudulent. Black v. Sanders, 46 N. C. 67.

Deed Made for Benefit of Debtor's Family. — Where a deed, made without consideration by a debtor, expresses on its face that it is made for the benefit of the debtor and his family, the court can itself pronounce it fraudulent and void as against a then existing creditor. Sturdivant v. Davis, 31 N. C. 365.

Sufficiency of Property Retained. — A deed of gift may be fraudulent, though the donor, at the time of the gift, honestly believed that she had property sufficient to satisfy all her debts then existing, when in fact she was mistaken. Black v. Sanders, 46 N. C. 67.

In an action to set aside a deed, evidence that the grantor retained $11,625 to pay debts to the amount of $11,500 is not sufficient to show that the grantor retained property sufficient to pay his debts. Williams v. Hughes, 136 N. C. 58, 48 S. E. 518.

In an action to set aside a deed as being fraudulent as to creditors, under this section, evidence of the tax valuation of the other lands of the debtor at the time of the conveyance is competent on the issue of intent to hinder, delay and defraud creditors as tending to show the debtor had reason to believe he was retaining property sufficient and available to pay his then existing creditors. Hood v. Cobb, 207 N. C. 128, 176 S. E. 288.

Same—Question for Jury. — It is a question of fact for the determination of the jury whether the donor had retained property amply sufficient to pay his creditors at the time of his making a gift, within the intent and meaning of the section, which determines the validity of the transaction, and the question of his intent to defraud has no significance. Garland v. Arrowood, 177 N. C. 371, 99 S. E. 100.

When Value Determined.—A commissioner's deed of sale of part of the lands of the debtor, executed three years after the execution of the deed sought to be set aside as being fraudulent as to creditors, is held incompetent, under this section, the issue being the value of all the debtor's lands at the time of the voluntary deed attacked in the action. Hood v. Cobb, 207 N. C. 128, 176 S. E. 288.

Prior and Subsequent Creditors. — The controlling principle is stated in Aman v. Walker, 165 N. C. 224, 227, 81 S. E. 162, as follows: "If the conveyance is voluntary, and the grantor did not retain property fully sufficient and available to pay his debts then existing, it is invalid as to creditors; but it cannot be impeached by subsequent creditors without proof of the existence of a debt at the time of its execution, which is unpaid, and when this is established and the conveyance avoided, subsequent creditors are let in and the property is subjected to the payment of creditors generally." Sutton v. Wells, 177 N. C. 524, 527, 99 S. E. 365.

A voluntary conveyance is necessarily and in law fraudulent when opposed to the claim of a prior creditor; as against subsequent creditors, whether fraudulent or not, depends upon the bona fides of the transaction, and the question is one of intent to be passed upon by the jury. O'Daniel v. Crawford, 15 N. C. 197, in which the subject of fraudulent conveyances is elaborately discussed in concurring opinions by Ruffin, C. J., and Gaston, Daniel, JJ. Clement v. Cozart, 109 N. C. 173, 180, 13 S. E. 862.

When Question of Fraud for Jury. — The section only requires the question of fraud to be submitted to a jury, in cases where property fully sufficient and available to pay all creditors is retained by the donor. Black v. Sanders, 46 N. C. 67.

§ 1008. Marriage settlements void as to existing creditors.—Every contract and settlement of property made by any man and woman in consideration of a marriage between them, for the benefit of such man or woman, or of their issue, whether the same be made before or after marriage, shall be void as against creditors of the parties making the same respectively, existing at the time of such marriage if the same is antenuptial, or at the time of making such contract or settlement if the same is postnuptial. (Rev., s. 963; Code, ss. 1270, 1820; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 11; R. C., c. 37, s. 25; 1785, c. 283, s. 2.)

Cross References. — As to married women generally, see secs. 2506-2530; as to contracts between husband and wife, see sec. 2516.

Women Affected with Notice. — The law recognizes no disability on the part of married women which gives them the fruits of a fraud on the ground that they are not, like persons sui juris in all respects, affected by actual notice of its perpetration. Peeler v. Peeler, 109 N. C. 628, 633, 14 S. E. 59.

Gifts between Husband and Wife Good Inter Se. — All gifts from a husband to his wife are good inter se, and against all persons claiming under them; and good against all persons, if he is not in debt at the time; but such gifts are voidable as to existing creditors, if their rights are not secured, and as to subsequent purchasers without notice, and creditors, if made with intent to delay or defraud them. Kelly Mar. Women, Chapter 6, sec. 9, at page 137, quoted in Walton v. Parish, 95 N. C. 259, 263.

May Surrender Curtesy Initiate. — Since the Act of 1848, a husband has the right to surrender his estate as tenant by the curtesy initiate and let it merge in the reversion of his wife, who, with the assent of her husband, may sell the same and receive the whole of the purchase money. Teague v. Downs, 69 N. C. 280.

Same—Proceeds to Separate Use of Wife. — And an agreement, that the wife shall receive such a price in personal property and hold the same to her separate use to enable her to lay it out in the purchase of another tract of land, is valid, such price not vesting in the husband jure mariti, so as to subject the same to the claims of his creditors. Teague v. Downs, 69 N. C. 280.

Application. — Where, in 1862, a husband was about to enter military service made a deed to his wife of certain land for her support, but retained sufficient property to pay all of his existing debts, it was held, that the consideration was a meritorious one. Walton v. Parish, 95 N. C. 259.

Where a man, upon the eve of marriage, agreed with his intended wife that a previous transaction by which he had mortgaged a certain tract of land to one who was a trustee for her children, in order to secure a part of the purchase money due for such land, should be cancelled, and that, in lieu of what was due, which exceeded the then value of such land, the land should be conveyed to such children, and this was done; it was held that this was not an act of which creditors of the husband could complain. Credle v. Carrawan, 64 N. C. 422.

§ 1009. Purchasers for value and without notice protected.—Nothing contained in the preceding sections shall be construed to impeach or make void any conveyance, interest, limitation of use or uses, of or in any lands or tenements, goods or chattels, bona fide made, upon and for good consideration, to any person not having notice of such fraud. (Rev., s. 964; Code, s. 1548; R. C., c. 50, s. 4; 13 Eliz., c. 5, s. 6; 1785, c. 7, s. 6.)

See note under § 1007.

Editor's Note. — In Reiger v. Davis, 67 N. C. 185; Lassiter v. Davis, 64 N. C. 498, and the class of cases of which they are the leading representatives, the question as to the burden of proof was not involved. The court decides in those cases merely that the fraudulent conveyance is void unless it appears that the vendee was not a party to the fraud, or purchased without any notice of the fraudulent intent. See Devries & Co. v. Phillips, 63 N. C. 53; Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 741, 44 S. E. 635.

Intended as Proviso.—The purpose of the Legislature in enacting this section was to constitute an independent provision, operating as a proviso to the other sections on fraudulent conveyances. Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 44 S. E. 635.

Scope and Effect.—In Young v. Lathrop, 67 N. C. 63, 72, 12 Am. Rep. 603, the court held that the section was a proviso to the preceding sections of the chapter, and Pearson, C. J., in referring to it, uses this language: "The proviso can only be made operative by giving to it the scope and effect of purging the original conveyances of the fraud with which it was tainted, by allowing the bona fides and the full valuable consideration of the second conveyance to supply the want of these qualities to the first, so as to perfect the title to the bona fide purchaser, by carrying it back to the donor and claiming the title from him, and thus prevent the title of the first purchaser from being impeached and made void." Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 735, 44 S. E. 635.

Bona Fide Purchaser before Execution Sale. — Where a fraudulent grantee of land conveyed it to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice of the fraud, after a creditor of the fraudulent grantor had obtained a judgment against him, but before the land was sold under an execution issued on such judgment and tested of the term where it was obtained, it was held that by force of the proviso obtained in this section (4th section of the 50th ch. of the Rev. Code, 13th Eliz., ch. 5, sec. 6), the title of the bona fide purchaser from the fraudulent grantee was to be preferred to that of the purchaser under the execution of the creditor of the fraudulent grantor. Young v. Lathrop, 67 N. C. 63.

Bona Fide Purchaser Gets Good Title.—Under this section a purchaser for value and without notice of any fraud gets good title by conveyance or transfer from fraudulent vendor. Peoples Bank, etc., Co. v. Mackorell, 195 N. C. 741, 745, 143 S. E. 518.

Trustees and Mortgagees Subject to Equities. — It is a settled principle, acted upon every day, that the trustee or mortgagee is a purchaser for a valuable consideration with the provisions of 13 and 27 Elizabeth; but it would seem they take subject to any equity that attached to the property in the hands of the debtor, and cannot discharge themselves from it on the ground of being purchasers without notice. Potts v. Blackwell, 56 N. C. 449, 453.

Good Consideration.—"Good consideration" means valuable consideration, or a fair price. Young v. Lathrop, 67 N. C. 63, 72; Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 151, 167, 19 S. E. 351, citing 2 Bigelow Frauds 443.

Onus Probandi.—When a grantor executes a deed with intent to defraud his creditors, the grantee can only protect his title by showing that he is a purchaser for a valuable consideration, and without notice of a fraudulent intent on the part of his grantor. Saunders v. Lee, 101 N. C. 3, 7 S. E. 590; Morgan v. Bostic, 132 N. C. 743, 44 S. E. 639; Cansler v. Cobb, 77 N. C. 30, 32.

In Bamberger v. Schoolfield, 160 U. S. 149, 40 L. Ed. 374, 16 S. Ct. 225, what is said by the court with reference to the burden of proof does not relate to the notice of the fraud, but to the fraud itself, and of course the burden to establish the latter was placed upon the contesting creditor. Cox v. Wall, 132 N. C. 730, 741, 44 S. E. 635.

When Wife Takes with Notice of Fraud.—Where a husband's conveyance to his wife is executed with a fraudulent intent, and the wife, with a knowledge of his purpose, accepts the benefit of the act and claims under it, she puts herself beyond the pale of the protection offered to innocent purchasers by the section. Peeler v. Peeler, 109 N. C. 628, 633, 14 S. E. 59.

Conveyance to Daughter in Consideration of Services. — Where A made a deed to his daughter, in consideration of services rendered and to be rendered in the future for attending upon him in his old age, with intent to defraud his creditors, the deed is void, even though the daughter had no knowledge of such fraudulent intent. Cansler v. Cobb, 77 N. C. 30.

Cited in Threlkeld v. Malcragson Land Co., 198 N. C. 186, 151 S. E. 99.

§ 1010. Bona fide purchaser of mortgaged property not affected by illegal consideration of note secured.—No conveyance or mortgage, made to secure the payment of any debt or the performance of any contract or agreement, shall be deemed void as against any purchaser for valuable or other good consideration of the estate or property conveyed, sold, mortgaged or assigned, by reason that the consideration of such debt, contract or agreement is forbidden by law, if such purchaser, at the time of his purchase, did not have notice of the unlawful consideration of such debt, contract or agreement. (Rev., s. 965; Code, s. 1549; R. C., c. 50, s. 5; 1842, c. 70.)

When Part of Debts Secured are Fictitious.—A purchaser for value without notice, under a deed in trust in which some of the debts secured are fictitious, gets a good title, even against the creditors of the fraudulent trustor. McCorkle v. Earnhardt, 61 N. C. 300.

Mortgage Note Tainted with Usury.—This section does not purport to protect the innocent holder of a mortgage note which is tainted with usury, but the "purchaser of the estate or property" at the sale under the mortgage, who buys without notice of the usurious taint in the debt secured. The only case in our reports that seems to mitigate against the otherwise uniform tenor of the decisions on this subject is Coor v. Spicer, 65 N. C. 401, which held that a mortgage given to secure a usurious bond might be enforced in the hands of an innocent purchaser for value. The case recognizes the general rule, but takes mortgages out of it upon the supposed wording of the section. Aside from the fact that this is held expressly otherwise in the latter case of Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, an examination of the section will show that Coor v. Spicer was a palpable inadvertence. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 493, 18 S. E. 717.

Where a deed of trust is made to secure certain specified debts one of which is tainted with usury, and a purchaser buys at the trustee's sale for a valuable consideration without notice of the illegality of the consideration of the said debt his title is not affected thereby. McNeill v. Riddle, 66 N. C. 290.

§ 1011. Bona fide purchaser of fraudulently conveyed property treated as creditor.—Purchasers of estate previously conveyed in fraud of creditors or purchasers shall have like remedy and relief as creditors might have had before the sale and purchase. (Rev., s. 966; Code, s. 1550; R. C., c. 50, s. 6.)

§ 1012. Persons aiding debtor to remove to defraud creditors liable for debts.—If any person removes or aids and assists in removing any debtor out of any county in which he has resided for the space of six months, or more, with the intent, by such removing, aiding or assisting, to delay, hinder or defraud the creditors, or any of them, of such debtor, the person so removing, aiding or assisting therein, and his executors or administrators, shall be liable to pay all the debts which the debtor removed may justly owe in the county from which he was so removed; and the same may be recovered by the creditors, their executors or administrators, by civil action. (Rev., s. 1939; Code, s. 1551; R. C., c. 50, s. 14; 1820, c. 1063.)

What Constitutes Aid and Assistance.—Aid or assistance is the doing of some act whereby the party is enabled, or it is made easier for him to do the principal act, or effect some primary purpose. Wiley & Co. v. McRee, 47 N. C. 349, 351.

Where a party persuades a debtor, who is temporarily absent from the county of his residence, not to go back into that county, but to go to distant parts, and promises, if he will do so, to send his property from his residence to him, and does afterwards send such property to him, and aids him with money to abscond from where he then is, and goes part of the way with him, for the purpose of defrauding his creditors, he is liable under the section. Moore v. Rogers, 48 N. C. 91.

Where a party, having the money of his principal in his hands for a fair and honest purpose, paid it to his son fraudulently to assist him in absconding, the mere fact that, in a settlement of accounts between the principal and the agent, the former allowed the latter's bill for money thus applied does not amount to such a ratification as to subject the principal. Moore v. Rogers, 51 N. C. 297.

Same—Carrying Debtor to Railway Station. — Where a party, with his horse and buggy, carried a debtor to a railroad station, and there procured the money to enable him to leave the State, with the intent to assist him in the purpose of avoiding his creditors, it was held to be a fraudulent removal within the statute. Moffit v. Burgess, 53 N. C. 342.

Same—Property Not Carried Entirely Out of County. — Where a debtor removes out of a county with intent to defraud his creditors, a person who, knowing of such intent, helps him by carrying him or his property a part of the way in order to assist him in getting him out of the county, becomes bound for his debts, although he did not convey the debtor or his goods entirely out of the one county into another. Godsey v. Bason, 30 N. C. 260.

Same—Aid without Acts.—There is no distinction between frauds consisting mainly in acts, and those which consist mainly in words, the criterion of the plaintiff's right of action and the defendant's liability being, that the one should have been damaged in consequence of the fraud of the other. March v. Wilson, 44 N. C. 143.

Same—Mere Advice Insufficient. — Simply advising a debtor to run away, though the advice be given to delay, etc., is not equivalent to aiding and assisting, and will not sustain an action under the statute against the fraudulent removing of debtors. Wiley & Co. v. McRee, 47 N. C. 349.

Knowledge of Particular Debt Unnecessary. — Where a person who has removed a debtor out of a county is sued by a creditor it is not necessary to show that this person had a knowledge of any particular debt due from the debtor, but is sufficient if the circumstances of the case induce the jury to believe that the removal was made with a view to defraud creditors. Godsey v. Bason, 30 N. C. 260.

One Arrested under Writ of Capias Ad Respondendum. — The bail of a person arrested under a writ of capias ad respondendum may maintain an action on the case at common law against one for fraudulently aiding and assisting the principal to remove from the county, in consequence whereof he had to pay the debt sued on. March v. Wilson, 44 N. C. 143.

Surety on Constable's Bond Not Creditor.—A surety on a constable's bond, upon which there has been a breach, but no judgment nor payment by him, is not a creditor, so as to entitle him to recover against one for fraudulently removing his principal. Booe v. Wilson, 46 N. C. 182.

Measure of Damages.—In an action under this section the measure of damages is the amount of the debt due by the debtor to the plaintiff. Godsey v. Bason, 30 N. C. 260.

Same—Jury in Suit by Different Creditors.—An action on the case, brought by A. against B., for fraudulently removing a debtor, is tried, and a verdict found for defendant. The same jury are tendered in a case of C. against B. for the same act of removing, and are challenged by the plaintiff. They are under a legal bias by reason of having decided the case of A. against B., and the challenge ought to be allowed, and this although additional evidence is to be adduced in the second trial. Baker v. Harris, 60 N. C. 271.

Intent of Escaped Debtor Immaterial.—The declaration of a debtor fraudulently removed, that "he intended to get the defendant into a scrape," was held to be immaterial. Moffitt v. Burgess, 53 N. C. 342.

§ 1013. Sales in bulk presumed fraudulent.—The sale in bulk of a large part or the whole of a stock of merchandise, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade and in regular and usual prosecution of the seller's business, shall be prima facie evidence of fraud, and void as against the creditors of the seller, unless the seller, at least seven days before the sale, make an inventory showing the quantity and, so far as possible, the cost price to the seller of such articles included in the sale, and shall seven days before the proposed sale notify the creditors of the proposed sale, and the price, terms and conditions thereof. If the owner of said stock of goods shall at any time before the sale execute a good and sufficient bond, to a trustee therein named, in an amount equal to the actual cash value of the stock of goods, and conditioned that the seller will apply the proceeds of the sale, subject to the right of the owner or owners to retain therefrom the personal property exemption or exemptions as are allowed by law, so far as it will go in payment of debts actually owing by the owner or owners, then the provisions of this section shall not apply. Such sale of merchandise in bulk shall not be presumed to be a fraud as against any creditor or creditors who shall not present his or their claim or make demand upon the purchaser in good faith of such stock of goods and merchandise, or to the trustee named in any bond given as provided herein, within twelve months from the date of maturity of his claim, and any creditor who does not present his claim or make demand either upon the purchaser in good faith or on the trustee named in a bond within twelve months from the date of its maturity shall be barred from recovering on his claim on such bond, or against the purchaser, in good faith, of such stock of goods in bulk. Nothing in this section shall prevent voluntary assignments or deeds of trust for the benefit of creditors as now allowed by law, or apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers or assignees under a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, trustees in bankruptcy, or by any public officers under judicial process. (1907, c. 623; 1913, c. 30, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 6, s. 1; 1933, c. 190.)

Editor's Note.—The words "seven days before the proposed sale," near the end of the first sentence, were substituted by Public Laws 1933, c. 190, for the words "within said time."

Constitutionality.—This section is not unconstitutional or void as an unwarranted limitation of the right to sell and dispose of property. Pender v. Speight, 159 N. C. 612, 75 S. E. 851.

Same—Valid Exercise of Police Power.—This section regulating the sale of merchandise in bulk, with certain requirements as to notice to creditors, inventories, etc., making such sales, contrary to the provisions of the statute, prima facie evidence of fraud and void as against creditors of the seller, is a valid exercise of the police powers of government, and such sale is to be regarded as prima facie fraudulent in the trial of an issue, as to its validity. Raleigh Tire, etc., Co. v. Morris, 181 N. C. 184, 106 S. E. 562; Whitmire-Ligon Co. v. Hyatt, 175 N. C. 117, 119, 95 S. E. 38; Gallup & Co. v. Rozier, 172 N. C. 283, 90 S. E. 209; Pennell v. Robinson, 164 N. C. 257, 80 S. E. 417.

Construed Strictly.—The statute making void as against creditors a sale of a large part or the whole of a stock of merchandise in bulk, unless the requirements of the act are complied with, is in derogation of the common law, and must be strictly construed. Swift & Co. v. Tempelos, 178 N. C. 487, 101 S. E. 8.

A sale in bulk of a large part or the whole of a stock of merchandise under the conditions set forth in the statute, without an inventory and proper notice to creditors or without an adequate and proper bond to account for the proceeds, is absolutely void as to creditors and may be made available for their debts and claims. Gallup & Co. v. Rozier, 172 N. C. 283, 90 S. E. 209; Pennel v. Robinson, 164 N. C. 257, 80 S. E. 417; Whitmore-Ligon Co. v. Hyatt, 175 N. C. 117, 119, 95 S. E. 38.

Merchandise Defined.—Within the intent and meaning of the section the word "merchandise" is limited to things ordinarily bought and sold in the way of merchandise, the subject of commerce and traffic, and does not include a stock of provisions or supplies kept in a restaurant to be prepared and served to its customers for meals, or to the furniture and fixtures used therein in connection with conducting the business of a restaurant. Swift & Co. v. Tempelos, 178 N. C. 487, 101 S. E. 8.

"Sale" within Statute.—Where a bankrupt transfers a large part of his stock of goods to a corporation, which does not assume any of the debts, but merely issues its capital stock in payment, the sale is void as against creditors, in view of this section, the word "sale" in the statute meaning the transfer of property from one person to another for consideration of value, regardless of the mode of payment of consideration. First Nat. Bank v. Raleigh Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 37 F. (2d) 301.

Subsequent Creditors Not Included.—This section applies only as to creditors of the seller at the time of the sale and not to a subsequent creditor: Certainly where there are no creditors at the time of the sale. Farmer's Bank, etc., Co. v. Murphy, 189 N. C. 479, 127 S. E. 527.

Notice within Seven Days. — The statutory requirement that the seller of a stock of merchandise in bulk shall give notice thereof to his creditors "within seven days" is interpreted to mean that such notice may be given at any time within the number of days specified. Gallup & Co. v. Rozier, 172 N. C. 283, 90 S. E. 209.

Vendor's Right to Personal Property Exemption.—A vendor of merchandise in bulk which is void under our statute is not deprived of his right to his personal property exemption under execution of his judgment creditor. Whitmore-Ligon Co. v. Hyatt, 175 N. C. 117, 95 S. E. 38.

When Question for Jury.—In an action to set aside the sale of a stock of merchandise in bulk as void against creditors, it is for the jury to determine the fact as to whether the seller had complied with the statutory requirement as to invoice, notice to creditors, etc., upon his evidence that he had done so, under proper instructions from the court; and a charge in effect that if he had failed in this respect the transaction was prima facie fraudulent, and not that it was void, is reversible error. Gallup & Co. v. Rozier, 172 N. C. 283, 90 S. E. 209.

Liability of Purchaser. — Where a dealer in automobile supplies has sold his stock of merchandise in bulk to those whose business it is to use such material in making repairs for their customers, the latter may not avoid liability to the creditors of the vendor on the ground that they were not dealers in such wares under the doctrine announced in Swift & Co. v. Tempelos, 178 N. C. 487, 101 S. E. 8, for the sale of the original creditor is itself void for noncompliance with this section. Raleigh Tire, etc., Co. v. Morris, 181 N. C. 184, 106 S. E. 562.

Purchaser Not Liable.—Under the provisions of this section a creditor, at most, would be entitled to have the transfer set aside, but not to hold the purchaser personally liable. Goldman & Co. v. Chank, 200 N. C. 384, 156 S. E. 919, discussing but not deciding whether sale was contrary to section.

Cited in Begnell v. Safety Coach Lines, 918 N. C. 688, 153 S. E. 264.

Art. 4. Voluntary Organizations and Associations

§ 1013(a). Authority to acquire and hold real estate.—Voluntary organizations and associations of individuals, when organized for the purposes which are not prohibited by law, are authorized and empowered to acquire real estate and to hold the same in their common or corporate names. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 95, s. 1.)

§ 1013(b). Title vested; conveyance; probate. — Where real estate has been or may be hereafter conveyed to such organizations or associations in their common or corporate name the said title shall vest in said organization, and may be conveyed by said organization in its common name, when such conveyance is authorized by resolution of the body duly constituted and held, by a deed signed by its chairman or president, and its secretary or treasurer, or such officer as is the custodian of its common seal with its official seal affixed, the said conveyance to be proven and probated in the same manner as provided by law for deeds by corporations, and conveyances thus made by such organizations, and associations shall convey good and fee simple title to said land. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 95, s. 2.)

§ 1013(c). Effect as to conveyances by trustees. —Nothing in this law shall be deemed in any manner to change the law with reference to the holding and conveyance of land by the trustees of churches or other voluntary organizations where such land is conveyed to and held by such trustees. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 95, s. 3.)

§ 1013(d). Effective date of article; limitation. — This law shall be in force from and after December 20, 1921, and shall expire by limitation on May 1, 1922. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 95, s. 4.)

Art. 5. Sale of Building Lots in North Carolina

§ 1013(e). Application for permit to sell.— Hereafter before a building lot or lots in a new sub-division of real estate is offered for sale or sold in North Carolina wherein it is represented or agreed that streets, sidewalks, water sewer, lights or other improvements are to be made for the benefit of the purchaser or purchasers, the person, firm or corporation desiring to offer the same for sale shall first apply to the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county wherein the building lot or lots are situated for a permit to so sell said lots. (1927, c. 210, s. 1.)

§ 1013(f). Contents of application.— The application for a permit to sell must state the location of the lots or lot with an estimate of the cost of the improvement proposed to be made on each lot as a whole; that the estimate of cost so made shall be certified as approximately correct by a civil engineer or county surveyor licensed to practice in the State of North Carolina. (1927, c. 210, s. 2.)

§ 1013(g). Matters to be investigated by clerk. —Upon the filing of said application and the certificate of the cost of the improvement, the clerk of the court shall satisfy himself that the land or lots are located in his county and he shall also satisfy himself of the genuineness of the application and certificate of the engineer or county surveyor, and shall, if so satisfied, require a good and sufficient bond, in a sum equal to the amount certified by the engineer or county surveyor as the approximate cost of the improvement or improvements, with a corporation licensed to do business in the State of North Carolina as surety thereon, conditioned to save the purchaser or purchasers of each lot or lots harmless to the amount of the estimated and certified cost of the proposed improvement on each lot or lots so purchased. (1927, c. 210, s. 3.)

§ 1013(h). Application, certificate, bond and order filed as permanent record.—The clerk of the Superior Court shall preserve the application, certificate and bond and his orders thereon as a permanent record for the benefit of any party whose rights are affected thereby and shall, when the provisions of this act have been fully complied with, together with a filing fee of one dollar, issue a permit to the applicant to sell said lot or lots. (1927, c. 210, s. 4.)

§ 1013(i). Penalty for violation.—Any person, firm or corporation selling or offering for sale any building lot or lots in violation of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1927, c. 210, s. 5.)

CORONERS

§ 1014. Election; appointment by clerk in special cases.—In each county a coroner shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof in the same manner and at the same time of the election of members of the General Assembly, and shall hold office for a term of two years, or until his successor is elected and qualified. When there is no coroner in the county, or in the case of a vacancy in the office of coroner occurring for any reason, the clerk of the Superior Court for the county shall appoint the coroner, who shall, upon qualification, hold office until his successor is elected and qualified; Provided, that the clerk of the superior court for the county shall appoint some competent person to act as coroner in any case wherein the law requires a coroner's inquest to be held when the coroner shall be out of the county, or when the coroner shall for any reason be unable to hold the necessary inquest as provided by law. (Rev., s. 1047; Const. Art. IV, s. 24; Extra Sess. 1924, c. 65; 1935, c. 376.)

Editor's Note.—The provision in this section that the coroner shall hold office "until his successor is elected and qualified" is new with the Acts of 1924. The provision for filling vacancies "occurring for any reason" is also new. The old section provided only for appointment by the clerk for special cases, but since the Acts of 1924 the clerk appoints a coroner to fill the vacancy "until his successor is elected and qualified."

The amendment of 1935 adds the proviso at the end of this section relating to appointment when the coroner is out of the county or for any reason is unable to hold the inquest.

Upon a failure to give or renew bond, as the case may be, and the office declared vacant, the commissioners appoint. See section 1297, subsection 12, 13.

§ 1015. Oaths to be taken. — Every coroner, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take and subscribe to the oaths prescribed for public officers, and an oath of office. (Rev., s. 1048, Code, s. 1661; Extra Sess. 1924, c. 65.)

Editor's Note.—This section was not changed by Acts of 1924.

§ 1016. Coroner's bond.—Every coroner shall execute an undertaking conditioned upon the faithful discharge of the duties of his office with good and sufficient surety in the penal sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000), payable to the State of North Carolina, and approved by the board of county commissioners. (Rev., s. 299; Code, s. 661; R. C., c. 25, s. 2; 1791, c. 342, ss. 1, 2; 1920, c. 1047, s. 562; 1889, c. 54, s. 52; 1924, c. 65.)

For action on bond of coroner acting as sheriff, see § 3930.

Editor's Note.—The words "and sufficient" and "penal sum" in this section are new with the Acts of 1924.

Want of Official Bond.—Where one has been appointed coroner of a county, though it may appear he has not renewed his official bonds, as required by law, yet his acts as coroner de facto are valid, at least as regards third persons. Mabry v. Turrentine, 30 N. C. 201.

§ 1017. Coroners' bonds registered; certified copies evidence.—All official bonds of coroners shall be duly approved, certified, registered, and filed as sheriff's bonds are required to be; and certified copies of the same duly certified by the register of deeds, with official seal attached, shall be received and read in evidence in the like cases and in like manner as such copies of sheriffs' bonds are now allowed to be read in evidence. (Rev., s. 200; Code, s. 662; 1860-1, c. 18; 1924, c. 65.)

Editor's Note.—The Acts of 1924 substituted in this section the words "certified by the register of deeds with official seal attached" in lieu of "from the register's office."

§ 1018. In case of vacancy, clerk appoints special.—Whenever there is a vacancy existing in the office of coroner in any county, and it is made to appear to the clerk of the Superior Court of such county by satisfactory evidence that a deceased person whose body has been found within the county probably came to his death by the criminal act or default of some person, it is the duty of the clerk of the Superior Court of such county to appoint some suitable person as special coroner to hold an inquest over the body of the deceased. Such special coroner shall not be appointed, however, unless, in the opinion of the clerk, the coroner's investigation ought to be made before he has sufficient time to select a coroner to fill such a vacancy for the remainder of the term, and if it is practical for him to fill such vacancy for the remainder of the term in time for the investigation of the deceased, he shall do so; otherwise, he shall make a special appointment and shall fill the vacancy in the office of coroner for his county as soon as it is practical for him to do so, and not later than thirty days thereafter. (Rev., s. 1049; 103, c. 661; 1924, c. 65.)

Editor's Note.—In this section, the Acts of 1924 substituted the words "to the clerk of the superior court of such county by satisfactory evidence" for "by the affidavit of some responsible person." The latter half of this section is new with the same Act.

§ 1019. Powers, penalties, and liabilities of special coroner.—The special coroner appointed under the provisions of the preceding section shall be invested with all the powers and duties conferred upon the several coroners in respect to holding inquests over deceased bodies, and shall be subject to the penalties and liabilities imposed on the said coroners. (Rev., 1050; 1903, c. 661, s. 2; 1924, c. 65.)

Editor's Note.—This section was not changed by the Act of 1924.

§ 1020. The duties of coroners with respect to inquests and preliminary hearings. — The duties of several coroners with respect to inquests and preliminary hearings shall be as follows:

1. Whenever it appears that the deceased probably came to his death by the criminal act or default of some person, he shall go to the place where the body of such deceased person is and make a careful investigation and inquiry as to when and by what means such deceased person came to his death and the name of the deceased, if to be found out, together with all the material circumstances attending his death, and shall make a complete record of such personal investigation: Provided, however, that the coroner shall not proceed to summons a jury as is hereinafter provided if he shall be satisfied from his personal investigation that the death of the said deceased was from natural causes, or that no person is blamable in any respect in connection with such death, and shall so find and make such finding in writing as a part of his report, giving the reason for such finding; unless an affidavit be filed with the coroner indicating blame in connection with the death of the deceased.

2. To summon forthwith a jury of six good and lawful men, freeholders, who are otherwise qualified to act as jurors, who shall not be related to the deceased by blood or marriage, or to any person suspected of guilt in connection with such death, and the coroner, upon the oath of the jury at the said place, which oath may be taken by him or any other person authorized to administer oaths, shall make further inquiry as to when, how and by what means such deceased person came to his death, and shall cause to come before himself and the said jury all such persons as may be necessary in order to complete said inquiry.

3. If it appears that the deceased was slain, or came to his death in such manner as to indicate any person or persons guilty of the crime in connection with the said death, then the said inquiry shall ascertain who was guilty, either as principal or accessory, or otherwise, if known, or in any manner, the cause of his death.

4. Whenever in such investigations, whether preliminary or before his jury, it shall appear to the coroner or to the jury that any person or persons are culpable in the matter of such death, he shall forthwith issue his warrant for such person and cause the same to be brought before him and the inquiry shall proceed as in the case of preliminary hearings before justices of the peace, and in case it appears to the said coroner and the jury that such persons are probably guilty of any crime in connection with the death of the deceased, then the said coroner shall commit such person to jail, if it appears that such person is probably guilty of a capital crime, and in case it appears that such persons are not probably guilty of a capital crime, but are probably guilty of a lesser crime, then such coroner to have the power and authority to fix bail for such person or persons, all such persons as are found probably guilty in such hearing shall be delivered to the keeper of the common jail for such county by the sheriff or such other officer as may perform his duties at such hearings and committed to jail unless such persons have been allowed and given the bail fixed by such coroner.

5. As many persons as are found to be material witnesses in the matters involved in such inquiry and hearings, and are not culpable themselves shall be bound in recognizance with sufficient surety to appear at the next Superior Court to give evidence, and such as may default in giving such recognizance may be by such coroner committed to jail as is provided for State witnesses in other cases.

6. To summon a physician or surgeon and to cause him to make such examination as may be necessary whenever it appears to such coroner as proper to have such examination made, or, upon request of his jury, or upon the request of the solicitor of his district or counsel for any accused or any member of the family of the deceased: Provided, however, that when the coroner shall himself be a physician or surgeon, he may make such examination himself.

7. Immediately upon information of the death of a person within his county under such circumstances as, in the opinion of the coroner, may make it necessary for him to investigate the same, to notify the solicitor of his district, and to make such additional investigation as he may be directed to do by such solicitor.

8. To permit counsel for the family of the deceased, the solicitor of his district, or any one designated by him, and counsel for any accused person to be present and participate in such hearing and examine and cross-examine witnesses and, whenever a warrant shall have been issued for any accused person, such accused person shall be entitled to counsel and to a full and complete hearing.

9. To begin his inquiry with his jury where the body of the deceased shall be, said hearing may be adjourned to other times and places, and the body of the deceased need not be present at such further hearing.

10. To reduce to writing all of the testimony of all witnesses, and to have each witness to sign his testimony in the presence of the coroner, who shall attest the same, and, upon direction of the solicitor of the district, all of the testimony heard by the coroner and his jury shall be taken stenographically, and expense of such taking, when approved by the coroner and the solicitor of the district, shall be paid by the county. When the testimony is taken by a stenographer, the witness shall be caused to sign the same after it has been written out, and the coroner shall attest such signature. That the attestation of all the signatures of witnesses who shall testify before the coroner shall include attaching his seal, and such statements, when so signed and attested, shall be received as competent evidence in all courts either for the purpose of contradiction or corroboration of witnesses who make the same, under the same rules as other evidence to contradict or corroborate, may be now admitted. (Rev., 1051; Code, s. 657; 1899, c. 478; 1905, c. 628; 1909, c. 707, s. 1; 1924, c. 65.)

Editor's Note.—No radical changes were made to the old section by the Act of 1924. The same procedural steps are retained but are set out in much greater detail. Subsections 7, 8, 9, and the portions of 10 referring to stenographic reports are new.

The Inquest a Judicial Proceeding.—The inquest is the coroner's court and it is an indispensable requisite that the jury which is summoned be sworn and charged by the coroner in the presence of the body of the deceased. Though the coroner is judge of the court and the power and authority to administer oaths to the witnesses rests in him, the administration of oaths is a ministerial act and may be performed by anyone by the direction and in the presence of the court. State v. Knight, 84 N. C. 790.

§ 1021. Acts as sheriff in certain cases; special coroner.—If at any time there is no person properly qualified to act as sheriff in any county, the coroner of such county is hereby required to execute all process and in all other things to act as sheriff, until some person is appointed sheriff in said county; and he shall be under the same rules and regulations, and subject to the same forfeitures, fines, and penalties as sheriffs are by law for neglect or disobedience of the same duties. If at any time the sheriff of any county is interested in or a party to any proceeding in any court, and there is no coroner in such county, or if the coroner is interested in any such proceeding, then the clerk of the court from which such process issues shall appoint some suitable person to act as special coroner to execute such process, and such special coroner shall be under the same rules, regulations, and penalties as hereinabove provided for. (Rev., s. 1052; Code, s. 658; 1891, c. 173; 1924, c. 65.)

Editor's Note. — This section was re-enacted without change by the laws of 1924.

Service of Summons by Coroner when Sheriff is Party.—In an action to which the sheriff is a party it is proper that the summons be addressed to and served by the coroner, State v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 862, 24 S. E. 668, or by his deputy since the service of a summons is the discharge of a purely ministerial duty. Yeargin v. Siler, 83 N. C. 348.

Deputization of Special Officers.—The words "any proceedings in any court" contained in the provision for deputizing special officers where the sheriff and coroner are interested, have been given a literal interpretation and the provision is held applicable to courts of justices of the peace as well as to the higher courts. Baker v. Brem, 127 N. C. 322, 37 S. E. 454.

§ 1022. Compensation of jurors at inquest.—All persons who may be summoned to act as jurors in any inquest held by a coroner over dead bodies, and who, in obedience thereto, appear and act as such jurors, shall be entitled to the same compensation in per diem and mileage as is allowed by law to jurors acting in the Superior Courts. The coroners of the respective counties are authorized and empowered to take proof of the number of days of service of each juror so acting, and also of the number of miles traveled by such juror in going to and returning from such place of inquest, and shall file with the board of commissioners of the county a correct account of the same, which shall be, by such commissioners, audited and paid in the manner provided for the pay of jurors acting in the Superior Courts. (Rev., s. 1053; Code, ss. 659, 660; 1924, c. 65.)

Editor's Note. — This section was re-enacted without change by the Laws of 1924.

Right to Compensation.—A person summoned as a juror on a coroner's inquest is not entitled to any compensation. Green v. Wynne, 66 N. C. 530.

§ 1022 (a). Hearing by coroner in lieu of other preliminary hearing; habeas corpus. — All hearings by a coroner and his jury, as provided herein, when the accused has been arrested and has participated in such hearing, shall be in lieu of any other preliminary hearing before a justice of the peace or a recorder, and such cases shall be immediately sent to the clerk of the Superior Court of such county and docketed by him in the same manner as warrants from justices of the peace. Any accused person who shall be so committed by a coroner shall have the right, upon habeas corpus, to have a judge of the Superior Court review the action of the coroner in fixing bail or declining the same. (1924, c. 65.)

§ 1022 (b). Service of process issued by coroner.—All process, both subpoenas and warrants for the arrest of any person or persons, and orders for the summoning of a jury, in case it may appear necessary for such coroner to issue such order, shall be served by the sheriff or other lawful officer of the county in which such dead body is found, and in case it is necessary to subpoena witnesses or to arrest persons in a county other than such county in which the body of the deceased is found, then such coroner may issue his process to any other county in the State, with his official seal attached, and such process shall be served by the sheriff or other lawful officer of the county to which it is directed, but such process shall not be served outside of the county in which such dead body is found unless attested by the official seal of such coroner. (1924, c. 65.)

CHAPTER 21

CORPORATION COMMISSION; UTILITIES COMMISSIONER

Art. 1. Organization and Abolition of Commission

§§ 1023-1034: Repealed by Acts 1933, ch. 134, codified as §§ 1112(a)-1112(q).

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, ch. 134, which in section 1 abolished the corporation commission and the office of corporation commissioner, became effective on and after January 1, 1934.

Art. 2. Corporations and Business Within Control of Commissioner

§ 1035. Corporations and business within control of commissioner.—The utilities commissioner shall have such general control and supervision as is necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter and the laws regulating the companies, corporations, copartnerships and individuals specified herein, over—

1. Railroad, street railway, steamboat, canal, express and sleeping car companies, and all other companies or corporations engaged in the carrying of freight or passengers, and all copartnerships or individuals engaged in the business of common carriers. (Rev., s. 1066; 1899, c. 164, s. 1; 1901, c. 679.)

2. Telegraph and telephone companies and all other companies engaged in the transmission of messages; over persons and individuals owning and operating telegraph or telephone lines in North Carolina and who rent phones and wires to persons generally. (Rev., ss. 1066, 1096; 1899, c. 164, ss. 1, 2; 1907, c. 966.)

3. Electric light, power, water and gas companies and corporations, other than such as are municipally owned or conducted, and over all persons, companies and corporations, other than municipal corporations now or hereafter engaged in furnishing electricity, electric light, current or power and gas. (1913, c. 127, s. 1.)

4. All water power, hydro-electric power and water companies now doing business in this state, or which may hereafter engage in doing business in this state, whether organized under the general or private laws of this state, or under the laws of any other state or country. Such companies are deemed to be public service companies and subject to the laws of this state regulating public-service corporations. (1913, c. 133, s. 1.)

5. Flume companies which avail themselves of the power of eminent domain as provided in the chapter Eminent Domain. (1907, c. 39.)

6. Corporations, other than municipal corporations, or individuals, owning and operating a public sewerage system in North Carolina. (1917, c. 194.)

7. Public and private banks, and all loan and trust companies or corporations. (Rev., s. 1066; 1899, c. 164, s. 1; 1901, c. 679.)

The power of control and supervision vested in the utilities commissioner under this section with respect to the various classes of public-service corporations and individuals engaged in furnishing the public utilities mentioned shall be the same as that vested in him in respect to railroads and other transportation companies. (1913, c. 127, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—The words "utilities commissioner" have been substituted for "corporation commission" in this and following sections of this chapter as directed by Public Laws of 1935, chapter 134, section 8, codified as section 1112(g), which also provides for the proper substitution of pronouns. Where only the word "commission" appeared "commissioner" has been substituted therefor.

General Considerations — Right of State to Regulate. — The right of the State to establish regulations for public service corporations, and over business enterprises in which the owners, corporate or individual, have devoted their property to a public use, and to enforce these regulations by appropriate penalties, is now and has long been too firmly established to require or permit discussion. Efland v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 135, 138, 59 S. E. 355, citing Harrill Bros. Southern R. Co., 144 N. C. 532, 57 S. E. 383; Stone & Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 144 N. C. 220, 56 S. E. 932; Walker v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 163, 168, 49 S. E. 84; McGowan v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 95 N. C. 417; Branch v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 77 N. C. 347; Seaboard Air Line Railway v. Florida, 203 U. S. 261, 51 L. Ed. 175, 27 S. Ct. 109; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512, 513, 29 L. Ed. 463, 6 S. Ct. 110; Mobile v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 26 L. Ed. 238; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113. See note "Legislative Power to Regulate," under sec. 1023. See also Whiting Mfg. Co. v. Carolina Aluminum Co., 207 N. C. 52, 60, 175 S. E. 698.

Same—Classification Must Not Be Arbitrary.—As to intrastate or domestic matters, the general assembly has the right to establish regulations for public service corporations and for business enterprises in which the owners have devoted their property to public use, and to apply these regulations to certain classes of pursuits and occupations, imposing these requirements equally on all members of a given class, the limitation of this right of classification being that the same must be on some reasonable ground that bears a just and proper relation to the attempted classification and is not a mere arbitrary selection. Efland v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 135, 59 S. E. 355.

In Tullis v. Lake Erie, etc., R. Co., 175 U. S. 348, 44 L. Ed. 192, 20 S. Ct. 136. Chief Justice Fuller, quotes with approval from the decision in Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 43 L. Ed. 552, 19 S. Ct. 281, 562: "The state in exercising the power to distinguish, select, and classify objects of legislation necessarily has a wide range of discretion; it was sufficient to satisfy the demands of the constitution if the classifications were practical and not palpably arbitrary." Efland v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 135, 139, 59 S. E. 355.

Same—Not a Federal Question.—Whether a regulation of a state railroad commission otherwise legal is arbitrary and unreasonable because beyond the scope of the powers delegated to the commission is not a federal question. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Comm., 206 U. S. 1, 51 L. Ed. 933, 27 S. Ct. 585.

Subsection One—Legislature May Regulate Directly or Indirectly.—Railroad companies from the public nature of the business by them carried on, and the interest which the public has in their operation, are subject as to their state business to state regulation, which may be exerted either directly by the legislative authority or by administrative bodies endowed with power to that end. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Comm., 206 U. S. 1, 51 L. Ed. 933, 27 S. Ct. 585.

Same—Rate Fixing Power May Be Delegated.—The General Assembly has the power to establish a commission to supervise and regulate the rates of common carriers. Corporation Comm. v. Seaboard Air Line Railroad, 140 N. C. 239, 240, 52 S. E. 941; Corporation Comm. v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 114, et seq., 49 S. E. 191; Corporation Comm. v. Seaboard Air Line System, (Rate Case), 127 N. C. 283, 37 S. E. 266; Atlantic Exp. Co. v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 111 N. C. 463, 16 S. E. 393; Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., ("Track Scales case",) 139 N. C. 126, 51 S. E. 793.

Same—When State May Regulate Interstate Commerce.—The power of Congress over commerce between the states is, as a general rule, exclusive, and its inaction is equivalent to a declaration that it shall be free from any restraint which it has the right to impose, except by such statutes as are passed by the states for the purpose of facilitating the safe transmission of goods and carriage of passengers, and are not in conflict with any valid federal legislation. Colley Const. Lim. 595; Mobile v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 697, 26 L. Ed. 238; Wilson v. McNamee, 102 U. S. 572, 26 L. Ed. 234; Wilson v. Blackbird Creek Marsh Co., 2 Peters, 245, 7 L. Ed. 412; Pound v. Turck, 95 U. S. 459, 24 L. Ed. 525; Turner v. Maryland, 107 U. S. 38, 27 L. Ed. 370, 2 S. Ct. 44; Morgans Steamship Co. v. Louisiana, 118 U. S. 455, 30 L. Ed. 237, 6 S. Ct. 1114; Morris, etc., Co. v. Southern Exp. Co., 146 N. C. 167, 173, 59 S. E. 667.

Same—Power of Commission Over Railroads.—This section gives the Commission general control and supervision of all railroad corporations. Tilley v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 162 N. C. 37, 39, 77 S. E. 994.

Same—Same—Lacks Power to Appraise and Assess.—Either intentionally or accidentally, the Corporation Commission was not clothed with the power of appraising and assessing railroad property. Southern R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Comm., 97 Fed. 513, 518.

Same—When Power to Regulate Arbitrarily Exercised.—The public power to regulate railroads and the private right of ownership of such property coexist, and the one does not destroy the other; and where the power to regulate is so arbitrarily exercised as to infringe the rights of ownership the exertion is void because repugnant to the due process and equal protection clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Comm., 206 U. S. 1, 51 L. Ed. 933, 27 S. Ct. 585.

Same—When Duty of Railroad Entails Pecuniary Loss.—The state has power to compel a railroad company to perform a particular and specified duty necessary for the convenience of the public even though it may entail some pecuniary loss. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Comm., 206 U. S. 1, 51 L. Ed. 933, 27 S. Ct. 585.

Subsection Two — Telephone Company Subject to State Control.—A telephone company, acting under a quasi public franchise, is properly classified among the public service corporations, and as such is subject to public regulation and reasonable control. Clinton-Dunn Tel. Co. v. Carolina Tel., etc., Co., 159 N. C. 9, 14, 74 S. E. 636; Godwin v. Carolina Tel. Co., 136 N. C. 258, 48 S. E. 813; Leavell v. Western Union Teleg. Co., 116 N. C. 211, 21 S. E. 391; Horner v. Oxford Water, etc., Co., 163 N. C. 535, 69 S. E. 607; Griffin v. Goldsboro Water Co., 122 N. C. 206, 30 S. E. 319; Telegraph v. Telegraph Co., 61 Vt. 241; Telephone Co. v. Telegraph Co., 66 Md. 399; Yancy v. Telephone Co., 81 Ark. 486; Cumberland Tel,, etc., Co. v. Kelly, 160 Fed. 316.

A local telephone company having an arrangement for the transmission of long distance messages over the lines of another company for pay, is a public-service corporation and comes within the provisions of this section. Horton v. Interstate Tel., etc., Co., 202 N. C. 610, 163 S. E. 694.

Same—Jurisdiction of Court Not Ousted. — The section giving general control of telephone companies to the Corporation Commission does not oust the court of its jurisdiction to compel the company to perform a public duty it owes to an individual. Walls v. Strickland, 174 N. C. 298, 93 S. E. 857.

Same—When Message Not Interstate Commerce. — In State v. Western Union Teleg. Co. (Albea's case), 113 N. C. 213, 18 S. E. 389, the court held that telegraphic messages transmitted by a company from and to points in this state, although tranversing another state in the route, do not constitute interstate commerce and are subject to the tariff regulation of the Commission. In this it followed the unanimous opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States, delivered by Fuller, C. J., in Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 145 U. S. 192, 36 L. Ed. 672, 12 S. Ct. 806, to the same purport, Campbell v. R. R., 86 Iowa, 587; Leavell v. Western Union Teleg. Co., 116 N. C. 211, 220, 21 S. E. 391.

Subsection Seven—Cross References.—As to power to fix rates for public utilities, see section 2783; as to manner of enforcing regulations, see section 2784; as to existing power, see section 2785.

Cited in In re Lafayette Bank & Trust Co., 198 N. C. 783, 787, 153 S. E. 452.

Art. 3. Powers and Duties

§ 1036. To be Board of State Tax Commissioners. — The corporation commissioners constitute the Board of State Tax Commissioners with the powers and duties prescribed by article four of the chapter entitled Taxation. (Rev., s. 1119.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1935, ch. 134, sec. 8, codified as § 1112(g), directed that the words "utilities commissioner" be substituted for "corporation commissioners" in this section which conferred upon the former board of state tax commissioners the powers and duties prescribed by former article four of the chapter on taxation. The utilities commissioner is now a member of the State Board of Assessment. See § 7971(3).

Commission Functions in Corporate Capacity.—The Corporation Commission acts as a body and in a corporate capacity, and an action or proceeding to compel that body to perform its ministerial duties must be brought against it in that capacity and not against its members, for its functions are not individual or personal, but corporate. Hence mandamus to compel the refund of taxes alleged to have been paid under an excessive valuation of property will not lie against two of the commissioners as individuals. Jenkins Bros. Shoe Co. v. Travis, 168 N. C. 599, 84 S. E. 1036.

§ 1037. To make and enforce rules for public-service corporations. — The utilities commissioner has power to make any necessary and proper rules, orders and regulations for the safety, comfort and convenience of passengers, shippers or patrons of any public-service corporation, and to require the observance of and to enforce the same by the company and its employees, such power being the same as that provided in this chapter in respect to railroads and other transportation companies. (1907, c. 469, s. 1a; 1913, c. 127, s. 2.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Legislative Intent.—There was no intention to give to a schedule of the thousands of appliances used in handling the business of common carriers, nor to enumerate the countless dealings between them and their patrons, which such Commission should supervise. The clearly declared purpose was to put the control and supervision of the whole matter in the hands of an impartial commission, with power to make reasonable rules and orders, subject to the right of appeal by either party, the shipper or the carrier, to the courts, instead of leaving such dealing to the unrestricted will of one party—the carrier. Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 139 N. C. 126, 132, 51 S. E. 793.

Power to Make Orders and Regulations.—The Corporation Commission is given the power to make orders and regulations for the safety, etc., of shippers or patrons of any public-service corporation. Tilley v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 162 N. C. 37, 77 S. E. 994.

§ 1037(a). System of accounts. — The utilities commissioner may establish a system of accounts to be kept by the public utilities, under his jurisdiction, or may classify said public utilites and establish a system of accounts for each class, and prescribe the manner in which such accounts shall be kept. (1931, c. 455.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1037(b). Reports. — The utilities commissioner shall at least once every twelve months require any public utility to file annual reports in such form and of such content as the commissioner may require and special reports concerning any matter about which the commissioner is authorized to inquire or to keep himself informed, or which he is authorized to enforce. All reports shall be under oath when required by the commissioner. (1931, c. 455.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1037(c). Investigations. — The utilities commissioner may, on his own motion and whenever it may be necessary in the performance of his duties, investigate and examine the condition and management of public utilities or any particular utility. In conducting such investigation the commissioner may proceed either with or without a hearing as he may deem best, but he shall make no order without affording the parties affected thereby a hearing.

If after such an investigation, or investigation and hearing, the commissioner, in his discretion, is of the opinion that the public interest shall be more greatly conserved by an appraisal of any properties in question, the investigation of any particular construction, the audit of any accounts or books, the investigation of any contracts, or the practices, contracts or other relations between the utility in question and any holding or finance agency with which such public utility may be affiliated, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to report his findings and recommendation to the governor and council of state with request for an allotment from the emergency and contingency fund to defray such expense which may be granted as provided by law for expenditures from such fund or may be denied. (1931, c. 455.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1037(d). Certificate of Convenience and Necessity. — No person, or corporation, their lessees, trustees or receivers shall hereafter begin the construction or operation of any public utility plant or system or acquire ownership or control of, either directly or indirectly, without first obtaining from the utilities commissioner a certificate that public convenience and necessity requires, or will require, such construction, acquisition, or operation: Provided, that this section shall not apply to new construction in progress at the time of the ratification of this act, nor to construction into territory contiguous to that already occupied and not receiving similar service from another utility, nor to construction in the ordinary conduct of business.

The utilities commissioner is hereby empowered to make rules governing the application for, and the issuance of such certificates of public convenience and necessity. (1931, c. 455.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1037(e). Contracts of public service corporations.—All public service corporations when requested by the utilities commissioner shall submit copies of contracts made with any person, firm or corporation classed as a holding, managing or operating company or selling service of any kind, and the utilities commissioner shall have the right to disapprove any such contract, after hearing, if in his judgment it is found to be unjust or unreasonable, and designed, or entered into for the purpose of concealing, abstracting, or dissipating the net earnings of the public service corporation receiving such services. (1931, c. 455.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1038. To require transportation and transmission companies to maintain facilities. — The utilities commissioner has power to require all transportation and transmission companies to establish and maintain all such public-service facilities and conveniences as may be reasonable and just. He may require steamboat companies to provide such wharf and warehouse facilities as may be reasonable and just. (1907, c. 469, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 52, s. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1039. To authorize lumber companies to transport commodities. — The utilities commissioner has power to authorize lumber companies, having logging roads, to transport all kinds of commodities other than their own and passengers, and to charge therefor reasonable rates to be approved by the commissioner. (1915, c. 160, s. 1; 1915, c. 6.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Establishing Joint Rate of Transportation. — A lumber company, chartered and organized for the purpose of transporting its own products, may be created a limited public carrier by the order of the Corporation Commission, under the provisions of this section. Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 187 N. C. 424, 121 S. E. 767.

§ 1040. To establish and regulate stations for freight and passengers.—The commissioner is empowered and directed to require, where the public necessity demands, and it is demonstrated that the revenue received will be sufficient to justify it, the establishment of stations by any company or corporation engaged in the transportation of freight and passengers in this state, and to require the erection of depot accommodations commensurate with such business and revenue, and to require the erection of accommodations for loading and unloading livestock and for feeding, sheltering and protecting the same in transportation. The commissioner shall not require any company or corporation to establish any station nearer to another station than five miles. (Rev., s. 1097; 1899, c. 164, s. 2, subsec. 12; 1913, c. 155.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Power to Require and Regulate Depots.—The Commission can order new depots established wherever they are needed, R. R. v. Minnesota, 193 U. S. 53, 63, 24 S. Ct. 396, and of course, has the lesser power to require proper facilities at those already established. Corporation Comm. v. Railroad, 139 N. C. 126, 130, 51 S. E. 793.

Orders Subject to Review by the Courts.—This power can not be unreasonably exercised, and such orders are subject to review by the superior and Supreme Courts. Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 139 N. C. 126, 51 S. E. 793.

May Require Track Scales.—The Commission is empowered, under this section, to require "depot accommodations commensurate with such business and revenue", which justifies the Commission in requiring "track scales" at points along the line. Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 139 N. C. 126, 131, 51 S. E. 793.

The court or the jury, upon proper instructions, as the case may be, should pass upon the reasonableness and necessity of an order of the Corporation Commission requiring track scales to be put in. Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 139 N. C. 126, 51 S. E. 793.

Railroad Not Released from Private Contract.—The limitation on the powers of the Commission to require common carriers to establish stations within five miles of each other does not release the said carriers from a contract, with an individual, to maintain a flag stop within the bounds of his plantation. Parrott v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 165 N. C. 295, 81 S. E. 348.

§ 1041. To require change, repair, and additions to stations.—The commissioner is empowered and directed to require a change of any station or the repairing, addition to, or change of any station house by any railroad or other transportation company in order to promote the security, convenience and accommodation of the public, and to require the raising or lowering of the track at any crossing when deemed necessary. (Rev., s. 1097; 1899, c. 164, s. 2, subsec. 13.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to grade crossings, see sec. 1048 and the notes thereto. See also note under sec. 1042.

Liberal Construction.—This section and section 1042 are of a remedial nature, and will be liberally construed by the courts in favor of the exercise of the authority conferred. State v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 435, 117 S. E. 563. See also State v. Southern R. Co., 196 N. C. 190, 145 S. E. 19.

Entire Expense on Railroad.—In New York, etc., R. Co. v. Bristol, 151 U. S., 556, 38 L. Ed. 269, 14 S. Ct. 437, it was held that the imposition upon a railroad company of the entire expense of a change of grade at a railroad crossing is not a violation of any constitutional right. Atlantic Coast Line Railroad v. Goldsboro, 155 N. C. 356, 359, 71 S. E. 514.

In the case of Cleveland v. Augusta, 102 Ga. 233, 43 L. R. A. 638, the court held that the railroad company was liable for the expense of raising its roadbed to conform to the city grade, and said that it must yield to the reasonable burden imposed by the growth and development of the country or the city, and where the public welfare demands a change or grade of the highway or street, the railroad company must, at its own expense, make such alterations in the grade of its crossings as will conform to the new grade. In the course of its opinion the courts said: "Upon streets or highways crossed by it, or subsequently laid out, the railroad company must construct proper crossings (Lancaster v. R. R., 29 Neb., 412; R. R. v. Smith, 91 Ind., 119, 13 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cases, 608), and must alter, change, or otherwise reconstruct such crossings whenever the public welfare demands." Eng. v. New Haven Co., 32 Conn. 240. Quoted and approved in Atlantic Coast Line Railroad v. Goldsboro, 155 N. C. 356, 361, 71 S. E. 514.

§ 1042. To provide for union depots.—The commissioner is empowered and directed to require, when practicable, and when the necessities of the case, in his judgment, require, any two or more railroads which now or hereafter may enter any city or town to have one common or union passenger depot for the security, accommodation and convenience of traveling public, and to unite in the joint undertaking and expense of erecting, constructing and maintaining such union passenger depot, commensurate with the business and revenue of such railroad companies or corporations, on such terms, regulations, provisions and conditions as the commissioner shall prescribe. The railroads so ordered to construct a union depot shall have power to condemn land for such purpose, as in case of locating and constructing a line of railroad: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the commissioner to require the construction of such union depot should the railroad companies at the time of application for said order have separate depots, which, in the opinion of the commissioner, are adequate and convenient and offer suitable accommodations for the traveling public. (Rev., s. 1097; 1903, c. 126.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to power of railroad companies to condemn land for union depots, etc., see section 1708. See also note under section 1041.

Remedial in its Nature.—The statute in its principal purpose may be considered as remedial in its nature, and as to that feature will receive a liberal construction. Dewey v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 392, 399, 55 S. E. 292. Endlich on Interpretation of Statutes, secs. 107-108. Lewis' Southerland, Statutory Construction, sec. 336.

When Union Stations May Be Required.—Under the section the Corporation Commission is empowered to direct the establishment of union stations under certain conditions, to wit; when practicable, and when the necessities of the case require two or more railroads entering a city or town to have one common union passenger depot for the security, accommodation, and convenience of the traveling public. State v. Seaboard Air Line, etc., R. Co., 161 N. C. 270, 273, 76 S. E. 554.

The remedy was intended to apply to all the towns and cities in the state where, in the legal discretion of the commissioners, the move is practicable, the convenience of the traveling public requires it, and the existing facilities, in the judgment of the commissioners, are inadequate. Dewey v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 392, 401, 55 S. E. 292.

Same—Must Be Practicable.—Whenever the Commission requires and orders a union station to be built, the only restriction in the statute is when "practicable." The other matters as to the security, accommodation, and convenience of the public are simply reasons addressed to the judgment of the commissioners. When there is an appeal from their order, the sole query for a jury, under the statute, is whether the execution of the order is "practicable." The finding of the Corporation Commission that it is practicable is prima facie correct; and the burden is upon the defendant to show evidence to the contrary. State v. Seaboard Air Line, etc., R. Co., 161 N. C. 270, 274, 76 S. E. 554.

Same—To Be Commensurate with Business and Revenues.—When these conditions are found to exist, then the two railroads may be compelled to unite in the erecting, constructing, and maintaining such union passenger depot commensurate with the business and revenues of such railroad companies on such terms, regulations, provisions and conditions as the Corporation Commission shall prescribe. State v. Seaboard Air Line, etc., R. Co., 161 N. C. 270, 273, 76 S. E. 554.

New Union Station.—Under the provisions of this section and § 1041, the commission has the power to require railroad companies subject to its jurisdiction, which have constructed or maintained a union passenger station in a city or town of the State, to construct or equip a new union passenger station in such city or town upon its finding that the present station is inadequate. State v. Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 190, 145 S. E. 19.

Jurisdiction Original — Exercised upon Own Motion on Petition of Interested Parties. — The jurisdiction of the Commission with respect to the construction of passenger stations is original, and may be exercised either upon its own motion or upon petition of interested parties. State v. Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 190, 145 S. E. 19.

Parties.—Under this section the commission is not without jurisdiction of a proceeding with respect to the erection, construction, and maintenance of a new union passenger station in city or town, because one or more railroad companies entering such city or town are not made parties in the proceeding. The presence of two or more railroad companies as parties is sufficient. Corporation Commission v. Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 190, 145 S. E. 19.

Same—Lessor—Appeal.—Where three railroad companies use a union station in a city in connection with the operation of their railroads, two as owners, and the other as lessee of a fourth road, it is not jurisdictional before the Corporation Commission or the Superior Court on appeal under § 1097 that in the proceedings before the Corporation Commission under this section and § 1041 to compel them to build and maintain an adequate station, that the lessor railroad be a party, but it is not error for the trial judge to order that the lessor road be made a party, but it is not error for the trial judge to order that the lessor road be made a party and the cause proceeded with therein. State v. Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 190, 145 S. E. 19.

Section Valid Exercise of Legislative Power.—The power of the Legislature to enact a statute of this character has been established by numerous and well-considered decisions of this and other courts of Supreme jurisdiction, and is no longer open to question. Dewey v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 142 N. C. 392, 399, 55 S. E. 292; Corporation Comm. v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 239, 52 S. E. 941; Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 139 N. C. 126, 51 S. E. 793.

Powers Given by Necessary Implication.—The statute authorizing the Corporation Commission to order union stations to be built and maintained carries with it the power to do what is reasonably necessary to execute such order, including the use of the streets of a town for legitimate railroad purposes, the laying of tracks, etc., necessary to that end. Griffin v. Southern R. Co., 150 N. C. 312, 64 S. E. 16.

Inter and Intra-State Carriers.—The order of the Corporation Commission for the joint erection by an intrastate carrier and an interstate carrier of a union station at a junction cannot be regarded as objectionable so far as it relates to the intrastate carrier, as a burden on interstate commerce, when it appears that the commission was passing upon the petition of only a few cities or towns in the state separately and not as a part of a state wide scheme, and the expenditures required were in amount too small to affect such commerce. State v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 435, 117 S. E. 563.

Same—"Esch-Cummings" Act Prospective.—The Federal Transportation or the "Esch-Cummings" Act is prospective in its enforcement, and cannot relate back to a final order of the State Corporation Commission not appealed from, for the erection of a union station where the lines of an intrastate and interstate carrier cross each other, the execution of which has been stayed by the Commission until after the passage of the Federal Statute solely for the advantage of the carriers at their request. State v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 435, 117 S. E. 563.

§ 1043. To provide for separate waiting rooms for races. — The commissioner is empowered and directed to require the establishment of separate waiting rooms at all stations for the white and colored races. (Rev., s. 1097; 1899, c. 64, s. 2, subsec. 14.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1044. To require construction of sidetracks.— The commissioner is empowered and directed to require the construction of sidetracks by any railroad company to industries already established or to be established: Provided, it is shown that the proportion of such revenue accruing to such sidetrack is sufficient within five years to pay the expenses of its construction. This shall not be construed to give the commissioner authority to require railroad companies to construct sidetracks more than five hundred feet in length. (Rev., s. 1097; 1899, c. 164, s. 2, subsec. 15.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the enactment of this provision of the statute, the establishment of such sidings rested in the arbitrary will of the common carrier, who could also discontinue them at will. Such power, it will be seen at once, placed the industrial development of the state at the mercy of the railroad management, which could mar the prosperity of any plant along its line by refusing a siding, or arbitrarily discontinuing it, if established. This power could be used for both political and pecuniary advantage.

The General Assembly, while not prohibiting the carrier from continuing to establish sidings at its pleasure, deemed it wise to take the power of refusing to grant or continue such sidings out of the arbitrary will of the common carrier by authorizing the Corporation Commission to require the establishment of such sidings in proper cases. Corporation Comm. v. Seaboard Air Line Railroad, 140 N. C. 239, 241, 52 S. E. 941.

Not an Interference with Interstate Commerce.—The establishment of an industrial siding under the authority of the Corporation Commission, is not an interference with interstate commerce. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. State, 216 U. S., 262, 54 L. Ed. 472, 30 S. Ct. 330; State v. Southern R. Co., 153 N. C. 559, 563, 69 S. E. 621.

Restriction upon Power.—The Corporation Commission can require a railroad company to build a side track to an industrial plant only upon the company's right of way or when the right of way is tendered. State v. Southern R. Co., 153 N. C. 559, 69 S. E. 621.

Same—Revenue.—The power conferred upon the Corporation Commission to order a railroad company to build a side track, is with the restriction that the revenue from such side track shall be "sufficient within five years to pay the expenses of construction"; and the lower court having denied the authority of the Commission in this action, the presumption is in favor of its judgment, and it will be affirmed in the absence of evidence tending to show that the revenue will be sufficient according to the terms of the statute. State v. Southern R. Co., 153 N. C. 559, 69 S. E. 621.

Same—Length.—The section confers upon the Corporation Commission the power to establish sidings under certain conditions, and restricts the exercise of such a right to 500 feet in length. Hales v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 172 N. C. 104, 90 S. E. 11, 13.

Rights of Intervening Owners.—A railroad company, of its own initiative or by virtue of a contract with private persons, can acquire no right to construct and use side tracks to private industries off their right of way and over the lands of intervening owners against the will of such owners. When they have once permanently located their line, they are, as a rule, restricted to that and the right of way incident to it. Pierce on Railroads, c. 9, p. 254; Elliot on Railroads (2d Ed.) section 930. Hales v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 172 N. C. 104, 90 S. E. 11, 13.

Non-Resident Railroad without Power of Eminent Domain. — The Corporation Commission cannot confer the power of eminent domain, and when the Legislature has not conferred such power upon a nonresident railroad company respecting the construction of a side track over the lands of others, an order of the Commission for the railroad to build such a track is void. This matter is res judicata. State v. Southern R. Co., 153 N. C. 559, 69 S. E. 621; Butler v. Pen. Tobacco Co., 152 N. C. 416, 68 S. E. 12.

Cited in Aileen Mills v. Norfolk-So. R. R. Co., 194 N. C. 647, 140 S. E. 306.

§ 1045. To require trains to be run over railroads and connections at intersections.—The commissioner is empowered and directed to require, when practicable and when the necessities of the traveling public, in the judgment of the commissioner, demand, that any railroad in this state shall install and operate one or more passenger or freight trains over its road, and also require any two or more railroads having intersecting points to make close connection at such points: Provided, that no order under this section shall be made unless the business of the railroad justifies it. (1907, c. 469, s. 3.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Connection Contemplated One of Trains as Well as Tracks.—The connection required is one of trains as well as of tracks. The public cannot travel upon a track alone, nor upon a train without a track. Both are required to furnish facilities for traveling at all, and close connection of both to secure the convenience of the traveling public. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 137 N. C. 1, 49 S. E. 191, 195.

Running Additional Trains.—It is within the power of a state railroad commission to compel a railroad company to make reasonable connections with other roads so as to promote the convenience of the traveling public, and an order requiring the running of an additional train for that purpose, if otherwise just and reasonable, is not inherently unjust and unreasonable because the running of such train will impose some pecuniary loss on the company. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Comm., 206 U. S. 1, 51 L. Ed. 933, 27 S. Ct. 585.

§ 1046. To inspect railroads as to equipment and facilities, and to require repair.—The commissioner is empowered and directed, from time to time, to carefully examine into and inspect the condition of each railroad, its equipment and facilities, in regard to the public's safety and convenience; and if any are found by him to be unsafe, he shall at once notify and require the railroad company to put the same in repair. (1907, c. 469, s. 3.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1047. To require installation and maintenance of block system and safety devices. — The commissioner is empowered and directed to require any railroad company to install and put in operation and maintain upon the whole or any part of its road a block system of telegraphy or any other reasonable safety device, but no railroad company shall be required to install a block system upon any part of its road upon which is not operated as many as or more than eight trains each way per day. (1907, c. 469, s. 1b.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

The lack of a "block system", when required, is held to be negligence per se. Gerringer v. North Carolina R. Co., 146 N. C. 32, 59 S. E. 152; Stewart v. Raleigh, etc. R. Co., 137 N. C. 687, 50 S. E. 312; Stewart v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 253, 53 S. E. 877.

§ 1048. To regulate crossings and to require grade crossings.—The commissioner is empowered and directed to require the raising or lowering of any tracks or highway at any highway or railroad crossing, and designate who shall pay for the same; and, when he thinks proper, partition the cost of abolishing grade crossings and the raising or lowering of said track or highway among the railroads and municipalities interested. (1907, c. 469, s. 1 (c); 1911, c. 197, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to intersection with highways, see sec. 3448; as to obstructing highways, defective crossings, and failure to repair after notice a misdemeanor, see sec. 3449; as to service of notice of defective crossings, see sec. 3450; as to cattle-guards and private crosssings, see sec. 3454; as to concurrent right of a city to regulate crossings, see sec. 2675.

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

See sec. 1041 and the notes thereto. And see sec. 3846(y).

Editor's Note.—Throughout Europe grade crossings are forbidden by law. Some few of the American States, including New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut have followed the European example and abolished such crossing. This section confers upon the Corporation Commission the power to require the track to be raised or lowered at crossings where deemed necessary. This provision was Rev., section 1097 (2), which was re-enacted and emphasized in Laws of 1907, c. 469, s. 1 (2).

See section 1041 of this Code, and the notes thereto.

The General Assembly can make the abolition of grade crossings by railroads imperative instead of leaving it, as now, unexercised in the discretion of the Corporation Commission, and can place the cost of doing so upon the corporations, whose duty it is to remove them. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 208 U. S. 583, 52 L. Ed. 630, 28 S. Ct. 341, cited Atlantic Coast Line Railroad v. Goldsboro, 155 N. C. 356, 362, 71 S. E. 514. In the meantime, like any other collision, or a derailment, the act itself is prima facie negligence on the part of the railroad company. Marcom v. Raleigh, etc., R. Co., 126 N. C. 200, 35 S. E. 423. This matter has heretofore been called to the public attention in Cooper v. Railroad, 140 N. C., 209, 52 S. E. 932; Wilson v. Railroad, 152 N. C. 333; 55 S. E. 257; Gerringer v. Railroad, 146 N. C., 32, 59 S. E. 152; Atlantic Coast Line Railroad v. Goldsboro, 155 N. C. 356, 71 S. E. 514, (affirmed on writ of error, Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Goldsboro, 232 U. S., 548, 58 L. Ed. 721, 34 S. Ct. 364; McMillian v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 172 N. C. 853, 90 S. E. 683. (Where the matter is fully discovered with full citation of authorities), and Borden v. Southern R. Co., 175 N. C. 179, 95 S. E. 146; Goff v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 179 N. C. 216, 224, 102 S. E. 320.

That the State may exercise its police power either directly, or indirectly through some delegated agency is undisputed. The fact that some particular agency is delegated does not of necessity make that exclusive. Hence, while the section gives to the Corporation Commission the power to regulate crossings and require grade crossings, it is merely a delegated power, and does not preclude the State from direct, or indirect action. See 2 N. C. Law Rev. 104.

Commission Vested with Full Power.—The Corporation Commission is vested with full and complete power to compel the raising or lowering of the track, to remove all danger to those using the public roads. Gerringer v. North Carolina R. Co., 146 N. C. 32, 37, 59 S. E. 152.

Authority is conferred by statute upon the Corporation Commission to abolish grade crossing by a railroad company when by the operation of the railroads they become dangerous or inconvenient to the public traveling alone their highways or private ways. Tate v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 168 N. C. 523, 84 S. E. 808.

Municipal Authority. — See § 2675 and notes thereto.

§ 1049. To require installation and maintenance of automatic signals at railroad intersections, etc.—The commissioner is empowered and directed to require, when public safety demands, when and in case two or more railroads now cross or may hereafter cross each other at a common grade, or any railroad crosses any stream or harbor by means of a bridge, to install and maintain such a system of interlocking or automatic signals as will render it safe for engines and trains to pass over such crossings or bridge without stopping, and to apportion the cost of installation and maintenance between said railroads as may be just and proper. (1911, c. 197, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 63, s. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1050. To require railroads to enter towns and maintain depots in certain cases.—Where two or more railroads may maintain freight depots and a union passenger depot within one mile of a town of two thousand population for the convenience of the inhabitants thereof, and do not enter the corporate limits of the town, it is the duty of the utilities commissioner, upon the petition of a majority of the qualified voters of the said town, which petition shall be properly sworn to by the signers thereof, to require and compel, where practicable, the said railroads to run their lines into or through the corporate limits of the said town, and construct, equip, and maintain suitable passenger and freight depots at some convenient place or places therein, and the passenger depot shall be a union station and be built and maintained by the several railroads according to a plan and in such a manner as shall be approved by the commissioner.

When a petition is filed with the utilities commissioner as aforesaid, the commissioner shall set a day for the hearing thereof, which day shall be not more than twenty days from the filing of said petition, and shall immediately cause a notice to issue to the railroads interested in the matter set out in the petition, and after the hearing of the matter on the day named in the notice, the commissioner, if he deem it practicable, shall thereupon cause an order to be made requiring the said railroads to build, equip, and maintain in a suitable manner roadbeds, yards and depots, and any other necessary buildings or equipment, at convenient places within the limits of said town, as to him seems proper for the needs and growth of the business and inhabitants of the said town.

The order of the utilities commissioner to the railroads shall name a time within which all the necessary work of entering the said town and construction of depots and other buildings shall be completed and opened to the public for the transaction of business, and the said railroads, for every day beyond the said time that they shall not be in operation according to the said order, shall pay the sum of fifty dollars for each and every day of such failure and neglect, to the board of commissioners or aldermen of said town, which shall be for the benefit of the said town, this amount to be recovered as in other actions.

This section shall also apply to any railroad that may hereafter enter into or run within one mile of the corporate limits of said town, and the utilities commissioner shall have the power to require such railroads to unite with the other railroads in maintaining the depots, tracks, and other structures, and also pay such part of the cost thereof as to the said utilities commissioner may seem proper.

The railroads have the power to condemn such quantity of lands, including gardens, yards, residences and the premises pertaining thereto, as are necessary for the purposes of this section, the condemnation proceedings to be had in the same manner as now provided by law. (1907, c. 465.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1051. To consent to abandonment or relocation of depots.—A railroad corporation which has established and maintained for a year a passenger station or freight depot at a point upon its road shall not abandon such station or depot, nor substantially diminish the accommodation furnished by the stopping of trains, except by consent of the commissioner. Freight or passenger depots may be relocated upon the written approval of the commissioner. (Rev., s. 1098; 1899, c. 164, ss. 19, 20.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1052. To regulate crossings of telephone, telegraph and electric power lines.—Power is conferred on the utilities commissioner whenever any telephone, telegraph or electric power lines cross, to require such crossings to be constructed and maintained in a safe manner, so that the wires of one line will not fall upon the other; to prescribe the manner in which this shall be done; to discontinue or prohibit such crossings where they are unnecessary and can reasonably be avoided; and to apportion the cost of proper changing and construction of such crossings among the lines interested, as to said commissioner may seem just: Provided, that in all crossings made dangerous by the presence of high tension wire or wires of any power or light company, the cost shall be paid by such power or light company. (1913, c. 130, s. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1929, c. 101, applicable only to Ashe County, amended this section by adding the following: "Whenever it may be necessary for an electric light and power company furnishing public service to cross a railroad with its transmission wires or lines, such crossing may be made, either with or without condemnation proceedings, provided it be constructed and maintained according to the rules and regulations of the Corporation Commission, and provided further, that the Corporation Commission may assess the actual damage, if any, of such crossing."

§ 1053. To regulate delivery of freight, express, and baggage. — The utilities commissioner shall make reasonable and just rules—

1. For the handling of freight and baggage at stations.

2. As to charges by any company or corporation engaged in the carriage of freight or express for the necessary handling and delivery of the same at all stations. (Rev., s. 1094; 1899, c. 164, s. 2, subsecs. 2, 7.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1054. To prevent discriminations.—The utilities commissioner shall make reasonable and just rules and regulations—

1. To prevent discrimination in the transportation of freight or passengers, or in furnishing electricity, electric light, current, power or gas.

2. To prevent the giving, paying or receiving of any rebate or bonus, directly or indirectly, or the misleading or deceiving the public in any manner as to real rates charged for freight, express or passengers, or in furnishing electricity, electric light, current, power or gas. (Rev., s. 1095; 1899, c. 164, s. 2, subsecs. 3, 5; 1913, c. 127, s. 6.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Cross References.—As to discrimination by rebate or reduced charges, misdemeanor, see sec. 3417; as to discrimination against connecting lines, see secs. 1107, 3418; as to discrimination against Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, a misdemeanor, see sec. 3419.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 297, for discussion of this topic.

Discrimination Defined.—Discrimination in freight tariffs by railroad companies, means to charge shippers of freight unequal sums for carrying the same quantity of freight equal distances; that is, more in proportion for a short than for a long distance. Hines v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 95 N. C. 434.

Discrimination by Log Road. — A railroad carrying logs to a sawmill cannot charge a shipper agreeing to ship the manufactured products by the same line less for the same service than it charges a shipper who makes no such agreement. Lumber Co. v. Railroad, 136 N. C. 479, 48 S. E. 813.

§ 1055. To fix a standard for gas.—The utilities commissioner shall fix, establish and promulgate a standard of quality for gas and prescribe rules and regulations for the enforcement of and obedience to the same. (1919, c. 32.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1056. To regulate shipment of inflammable substances.—The utilities commissioner is authorized and empowered to adopt and promulgate rules for the shipment of inflammable and explosive articles; cotton which has been partially consumed by fire, and such other like articles as in his opinion may be apt to render transportation dangerous. And after the promulgation of such rules, no common carrier shall be required to receive or transport any such articles except when tendered in accordance with the said rules; nor shall such common carrier be liable for any penalty for refusal to receive such article for shipment until all the rules prescribed by the utilities commissioner in regard to the shipments of the same shall be complied with. (1907, c. 471, s. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

The commission is particularly authorized to regulate the carriage of inflammable articles as freight. Tilley v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 162 N. C. 37, 39, 77 S. E. 994.

§ 1057. To regulate demurrage, storage, placing, and loading of cars. — The commissioner shall make rules, regulations and rates governing demurrage and storage charges by railroad companies and other transportation companies; and shall make rules governing railroad companies in the placing of cars for loading and unloading and in fixing time limit for delivery of freights after the same have been received by the transportation companies for shipment. (Rev., s. 1100; 1903, c. 342.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1058. To fix rate of speed through towns; procedure.—If a railroad company is of the opinion that an ordinance of a city or town through which a line of its railroad passes, except in the counties of Cumberland, Rockingham, Union and Wayne, regulating the speed at which trains may run while passing through said city or town, is unreasonable or oppressive, such railroad company may file its petition before the utilities commissioner, setting forth all the facts, and asking relief against such ordinance, and that the utilities commissioner prescribe the rate of speed at which trains may run through said municipality. Upon the filing of the petition a copy thereof shall be mailed, in a registered letter, to the mayor or chief officer of the town or municipality, together with a notice from the utilities commissioner, setting forth that on a day named in the notice the petition of the railroad company will be heard, and that the city or town named in the petition will be heard at that time in opposition to the prayer of the petition. And upon the return day of the notice the utilities commissioner shall hear the petition, but any hearing granted by the utilities commissioner shall be had at the town, city or locality where the conditions complained of are alleged to exist, [or some member of the said commission shall take evidence, both for the petition and against it, at such city, town or locality, and report to the full commission before any decision is made by the commission.]

Either party, petitioner or respondent, has the right to introduce testimony and to be heard by counsel; and the utilities commissioner, after hearing the petition, answer, evidence and argument, shall render judgment thereon. If the commissioner finds that such ordinance is reasonable and just the petition shall be dismissed, and the petitioner shall pay all the costs, to be taxed by the clerk to the utilities commissioner. If the commissioner is of the opinion that the ordinance is unreasonable, he shall so adjudge; and in addition thereto he shall prescribe the maximum rates of speed for passing through such town. And thereafter the railroad company may run its trains through such town or city at speeds not greater than those prescribed by the utilities commissioner, and the ordinance adjudged to be unreasonable shall not be enforced against such railroad company.

If the judgment of the utilities commissioner is in favor of the petitioner, it shall be lawful for the utilities commissioner to make such order as to the payment of the costs as shall seem just. He may require either party to pay the same or he may divide the same. The costs in such proceeding shall be the same as are fixed by law for similar services in the superior court. (Rev., ss. 1101, 1102, 1103; 1903, c. 552.)

Editor's Note.—It would seem that the words in brackets in the first paragraph of this section should be omitted. See editor's note under sec. 1035.

In Gladson v. Minnesota, 166 U. S. 427, 430, 41 L. Ed. 1064, 17 S. Ct. 628, the court said: "The state which created the corporation may make all needful regulations of a police character for the government of the company while operating its road within the jurisdiction. It may prescribe the rate of speed at which the trains shall run, and the places at which they shall stop, and may make any other reasonable regulations for their management in order to secure the object of its incorporation, and the safety, good order, convenience and comfort of its passengers and of the public." North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 137 N. C. 1, 49 S. E. 191, 197.

§ 1059. To hear and determine controversies submitted. — When a company or corporation embraced in this chapter has a controversy with another corporation or person, and all the parties to such controversy agree in writing to submit such controversy to the commissioner as arbitrator, the commissioner shall act as such, and after due notice to all parties interested shall proceed to hear the same, and his award shall be final. Such award in cases where land or an interest in land is concerned shall immediately be certified to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said land is situated, and shall by such clerk be docketed in the judgment docket for such county, and from such docketing shall be a judgment of the superior court for such county. Parties may appear in person or by attorney before such arbitrator. (Rev., s. 1073; 1899, c. 164, s. 25.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1060. To investigate companies and businesses under its control.—The commissioner shall from time to time visit the places of business, and investigate the books and papers of all corporations, firms or individuals engaged in the transportation of freight or passengers, the transmission of messages either by telegraph or telephone, or in the furnishing of other public utilities the supervision and control of which is vested in the utilities commissioner, all public or private banks, loan and trust companies, to ascertain if all the orders, rules and regulations of the utilities commissioner have been complied with, and shall have full power and authority to examine all officers, agents and employees of such companies, individuals, firms or corporations, and all other persons, under oath or otherwise, and to compel the production of papers and the attendance of witnesses to obtain the information necessary for carrying into effect and otherwise enforcing the provisions of this chapter, and the chapter entitled Banks. (Rev., s. 1064; 1913, c. 127, ss. 1, 2, 7; 1917, c. 194; 1899, c. 164, s. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1061. To investigate accidents.—The commissioner may investigate the causes of any accident on a railroad or steamboat which he may deem to require investigation, and any evidence taken upon such investigation shall be reduced to writing, filed in the office of the commissioner, and be subject to public inspection. (Rev., s. 1065; 1899, c. 164, s. 24.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1062. To notify of violation of rules and institute suit.—The commissioner, whenever in his judgment any corporation has violated any law, shall give notice thereof in writing to such corporation, and, if the violation or neglect is continued after such notice, shall forthwith present the facts to the attorney-general, who shall take such proceedings thereon as he may deem expedient. (Rev., s. 1113; 1899, c. 164, s. 8.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Construed as Mandatory.—This provision is positive, and must be construed as being mandatory. In this case the statute of North Carolina makes it clearly the duty of the Attorney-General, when called upon, to prosecute any suit or action which may be deemed necessary to secure the enforcement of the laws of the State, in regard to the fixing of maximum rates. This section, when construed in accordance with the rule laid down in the Regan case, 154 U. S. 362, 14 S. Ct. 1047, 38 L. Ed. 1014, and the Ames case, 169 U. S. 466, 43 L. Ed. 819, 18 S. Ct. 418, clearly charges the Attorney-General with a duty in relation to the enforcement of the act in question. Southern R. Co. v. McNeill, 155 Fed. 756, 775.

Procedure.—The section provides that the Commission, whenever in its judgment any corporation has violated any law, shall first give notice of such violation to the offending corporation, and, in the event of a failure on the part of such corporation to comply with the law, to present the facts to the Attorney-General. Southern R. Co. v. McNeill, 155 Fed. 756, 775.

§ 1063. To keep record of receipts and disbursements. — The commissioner shall keep a record showing in detail all receipts and disbursements. (Rev., s. 1115; 1899, c. 164, s. 34.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1064. To pay fees and money into treasury.—All license fees and seal tax and all other fees paid into the office of the utilities commissioner shall be turned into the state treasury; also all moneys received from fines and penalties. (Rev., s. 1114, 1899, c. 164, ss. 33, 26.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1065. To report annually to governor.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner to make to the governor annual reports of his transactions, and recommend from time to time such legislation as he may deem advisable under the provisions of this chapter, and the governor shall have one thousand copies of such report printed for distribution. (Rev., s. 1117; 1899, c. 164, s. 27; 1911, c. 211, s. 9, 1913, c. 10, s. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Reports of the Corporation Commission of North Carolina are matters of public record, of which the courts therein will take judicial notice. Staton v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 144 N. C. 135, 56 S. E. 794.

§ 1065(a). Investigation of record of movement of less than carload shipments.—The North Carolina utilities commissioner is empowered and authorized to employ one or more special agents, having knowledge and experience in transportation, to make thorough investigation of the record of movement of less than carload shipments of freight between points in this state, and particularly with relation to such shipments involving transfer from one railway system to another, or shipments passing through concentration points on one system; and if unreasonable delays are found, to ascertain the cause or causes of such unreasonable delays and to make report of their findings and recommendations to the utilities commissioner, which said utilities commissioner shall pass upon such reports, and make and promulgate necessary rules and regulations in the manner now prescribed by law, to the end that such shipments of freight may be transported within a reasonable time. For the purposes herein expressed an appropriation is hereby made of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00) per year for a period not to exceed two years. (1923, c. 239.)

Art. 4. Rate Regulation

§ 1066. Commissioner to fix rates for public utilities.—Subject to the provisions as to passenger rates in the chapter, Railroads, and as to railroad freight rates in this chapter, the commissioner shall make reasonable and just rates and charges, in intrastate traffic, and regulate the same, of and for—

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Cross References.—As to carriage of passengers, including rates, see sec. 3489 et seq.; as to freight rates, see sec. 1078 et seq.; as to free carriage, see sec. 1070; as to authority to fix rates to be charged by public service corporations, see sec. 2783.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 289, 294, for article on "Electric Rates."

General Rate Fixing Power.—By the section the Commission is given broad and general powers to make rates for freight and passengers service. Tilley v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 162 N. C. 37, 39, 77 S. E. 994.

Duty to Fix Rates.—When the Corporation Commission is called upon, by either a corporation or those to whom the services are rendered, under its franchise to exercise its rate fixing power and authority, it is its duty to fix and establish just and reasonable rates to be charged for such services. Corporation Comm. v. Henderson Water Co., 190 N. C. 70, 72, 128 S. E. 465.

Power to Classify.—The Legislature has absolutely no power to classify persons, natural or artificial, engaged in precisely the same occupation, laying a tax upon some of them and exempting others, or imposing a tax not operating uniformly upon all. Efland v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 135, 143, 59 S. E. 355.

Same—Must Not Be Arbitrary.—In Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 151, 41 L. Ed. 666, 17 S. Ct. 255, it was said: "The mere fact of classification in rate regulating is not sufficient to relieve a statute from the reach of the equality clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, and in all cases it must appear, not merely that a classification has been made, but also that it is based upon some reasonable ground—something which bears a just and proper relation to the attempted classification and is not a mere arbitrary selection." Efland v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 135, 140, 59 S. E. 355.

"Traffic" Defined.—The word "traffic," used in the section includes the transportation and also the sale and distribution of the commodities affected. State v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 185 N. C. 17, 116 S. E. 178.

1. Railroads, street railways, steamboats, canal and express companies or corporations, and all other transportation companies or corporations engaged in the carriage of freight, express or passengers.

As to corporations and businesses within control of Commission, see subsection 1 of section 1035.

"Company" Defined.—The term "company" was used and intended to include all corporations, companies, firms or individuals who were engaged as common carriers in the transportation of freight. Efland v. Southern R. Co., 146 N. C. 135, 142, 59 S. E. 355.

Supervisory Power of Commission.—The Corporate Commission is given general supervision over railways, street railways, and like companies of the State, and empowering it to fix such rates, charges and tariffs as may be reasonable and just, having in view the value of the property, the cost of improvements and maintenance, the probable earning capacity under the proposed rates, the sums required to meet operating expenses, and other specific matters pertinent to such an inquiry, and these being police powers delegated to this commission, governmental so far as they extend. In re Southern Pub. Utilities Co., 179 N. C. 151, 152, 101 S. E. 619.

When Fares of Street Railway May Be Raised.—A public service street railway company, operating under a city charter, and under a contract with the city restricting the passenger fare authorized to be charged its patrons, may be authorized by the Commission, to raise its charges to its passengers, when in the opinion of the Commission such is necessary for it to properly maintain its system, allowing a reasonable profit, to meet the requirements of the public for adequate, safe, and convenient service. In re Southern Pub. Utilities Co., 179 N. C. 151, 152, 101 S. E. 619.

Cannot Fix Fares by Contract.—A public service railway corporation operating in various localities may not by contract fix its passenger fares and thus prevent the Corporation Commission, under the authority conferred by statute, from determining what rates are, under the circumstances, just and reasonable, for such would authorize such companies to discriminate, unlawfully, among its patrons. In re Southern Pub. Utilities Co., 179 N. C. 151, 152, 101 S. E. 619.

2. The transmission and delivery of messages by any telegraph company, and for the rental of telephone and furnishing telephonic communication by any telephone company or corporation.

As to Commission's control over telephone and telegraph companies, see subsection 2 of section 1035.

Telephone System Must Not Discriminate.—In Telegraph Co. v. Telephone Co., 61 Vt., 241, 5 L. R. A., 15 Am. St. Rep., 893; 3 Am. Elec. Cases, at p. 435, it is said: "A telephonic system is simply for the transmission of intelligence and news. It is, perhaps, in a limited sense, and yet in a strict sense, a common carrier. It must be equal in its dealings with all." Walls v. Strickland, 174 N. C. 298, 300, 93 S. E. 857.

Telephones are public vehicles of intelligence, and they who own or control them can no more refuse to perform impartially the functions that they have assumed to discharge than a railway company, as a comomn carrier, can rightfully refuse to perform its duty of the public. Telephone Co. v. Telegraph Co., 66 Md., 399, at p. 414, 59 Am. Rep., 167; quoted with approval in Walls v. Strickland, 174 N. C. 298, 300, 93 S. E. 857.

In Clinton-Dunn Tel. Co. v. Carolina Tel., Co., 159 N. C. 9, 16, 74 S. E. 636, the court says of the duty and the remedy: "It is very generally recognized that a telephone company acting under a quasi public franchise, is properly classified among the public-service corporations, and as such is subject to public regulations and reasonable control, and is required to afford its service at uniform and reasonable rates and without discrimination among its subscribers and patrons for like service under the same or substantially similar conditions." Godwin v. Telephone Co., 136 N. C. 258, 48 S. E. 636; Walls v. Strickland, 174 N. C. 298, 300, 93 S. E. 857.

Same—Preference to Railroad. —A contract whereby a telegraph company gives to a railroad company a preference of business over its line to the exclusion of others is an illegal discrimination. Leavell v. Western Union Tele. Co., 116 N. C. 211, 21 S. E. 391.

Mandamus to Compel Telephonic Accommodations. — In Godwin v. Telephone Co., 136 N. C. 258, 259, 48 S. E. 636, the court declares: "A mandamus lies to compel a telephone company to place telephones and furnish telephonic facilities without discrimination for those who will pay for the same and abide by the reasonable regulations of the company." State v. Telephone Co., 52 Am. Rep. 404; Am & Eng. Ency. (2d Ed.), 1022, 19 ib., 877; Joyce on Electric Law, sec. 1036; Walls v. Strickland, 174 N. C. 298, 300, 93 S. E. 857.

When Message Transmitted Over Lines of Another Company.—Where a telegraph company has a continuous line between two points in this State, the fact that, in transmitting a message, it sent the message over the lines of another company does not excuse its violation of the rate prescribed by the Railroad Commission for the transmission of a message sent over the lines of one company. Leavell v. Western Union Tele. Co., 116 N. C. 211, 21 S. E. 391.

Messages Traversing Another State.—Telegraphic messages transmitted by a company from and to points in this State, although traversing another State in the route, are subject to the tariff regulations of the Commission of this State. State v. Western Union Tele. Co., 113 N. C. 213, 18 S. E. 389.

Public Duty to Transmit Messages.—It is the duty of a telegraph company to have sufficient facilities to transmit all the business offered to it for all points at which it has offices, since it is not a mere private duty but a public duty which its franchise authorizes it to perform. Leavell v. Western Union Teleg. Co., 116 N. C. 211, 21 S. E. 391.

Power to Ascertain Corporation in Control.—The Commission has the incidental power (subject to the right of appeal) to ascertain what particular corporation is in the control of or operates any line in this State, in order that it may exercise its authority to fix rates, as well as to know against whom to proceed for a violation of its regulations. State v. Western Union Teleg. Co., 113 N. C. 213, 18 S. E. 389.

3. Persons, companies and corporations, other than municipal corporations, engaged in furnishing electricity, electric light current, power or gas, or owning or operating a public sewerage system in North Carolina.

As to power to fix and enforce rates vested in Corporation Commission, see secs. 2783-2785.

Discrimination Remedied by Mandamus.—Where a public-service corporation has discriminated among its patrons in its charges for the same or similar service, a mandamus will lie to compel it to charge a uniform or undiscriminating rate; for the question does not require the courts to fix a rate, or pass upon its reasonableness, the lowest rate charged becoming, automatically, the proper one. North Carolina Public Service Co. v. Southern Power Co., 179 N. C. 18, 101 S. E. 593.

Rates Coextensive with State's Jurisdiction.—When the Corporation Commission has finally established, under the provisions of the statute, rates to be charged by a public-service corporation for furnishing electrical power, the rates are coextensive with the State's jurisdiction and territory, and conclusively bind all corporations, companies, or persons who are parties to the suit and have been afforded an opportunity to be heard. State v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 185 N. C. 17, 116 S. E. 178.

Police Power of State.—The authority, conferred upon the Corporation Commission to establish reasonable and just rates of charges by a public-service corporation for furnishing to its customers electrical power, comes within the police powers of the State, and contracts previously made are subordinate to the public interest, and that such rates be reasonable and just, and afford the corporation supplying the service a safe return upon its investments, having proper regard to the public interest that plants of this character should be properly run and maintained. State v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 185 N. C. 17, 116 S. E. 178.

Sale of Electricity Generated in Another State.—While the generation of electricity in another State when transported to purchasers in this State may be regarded as interstate commerce, its distribution and sale here is local to the State, permitting the Corporation Commission to establish a just and reasonable rate of charge in conformity with the statutory powers, there being no interfering act of Congress relating to the subject. State v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 185 N. C. 17, 116 S. E. 178.

Hydroelectric Company Authorized to Sell to Other Companies.—Where a public-service corporation engages in a class of business authorized by its charter, it dedicates its property to that particular class of use, and where a hydroelectric company having a monopoly has been authorized by its charter to sell to other electric companies, etc., power, etc., for retail or distribution among customers, it may not resist the jurisdiction of our courts upon the ground that they were not legally required to do so, though the distributing or retail company is in some sense a competitor, and has the charter right to generate or manufacture its own electricity. North Carolina Pub. Service Co. v. Southern Power Co., 179 N. C. 18, 101 S. E. 593.

4. The through transportation of freight, express or passengers.

5. The use of railway cars carrying freight or passengers.

6. And shall make rules and regulations as to contracts entered into by any railroad company or corporation to carry over its line or any part thereof the car or cars of any other company or corporation.

7. And he shall make, require or approve for intrastate shipments what is known as milling-in-transit, or warehousing in transit rates on grain, or lumber to be dressed, or cotton or peanuts or tobacco. (1929, cc. 82, 91.)

Editor's Note.—This subsection was amended by c. 37 of the Acts of 1925, by adding at the end the provision giving the Corporation Commission "authority to make, require and approve what is known as warehousing-in-transit rates on cotton." Chapters 82 and 91 of the Public Laws of 1929, which are identical, substituted the above in lieu of the stricken section.

Milling in Transit.—"Milling in Transit," is where freight is shipped a long distance and the carrier will, at his own cost, defray the expense of its change in form en route because of the easier handling in a more compact shape, as, for example, Cowan v. Bond, 39 Fed. 54, where a railroad company receiving cotton in Louisiana for shipment to mills in New England had it compressed en route at Vicksburg at its own expense, charging the shipper no more than if it had carried the uncompressed cotton all the way, the same privilege being open to all shippers. Lumber Co. v. Railroad, Discrimination Case, 136 N. C. 479, 486, 48 S. E. 813.

8. And, conjointly with such railroad companies, shall have authority to make special rates for the purpose of developing all manufacturing, mining, milling and internal improvements in the state.

Nothing in this chapter shall prohibit railroad or steamboat companies from making special passenger rates with excursion or other parties, also rates on such freights as are necessary for the comfort of such parties, subject to the approval of the commissioner.

The powers vested in the commissioner by this section over the several subjects enumerated shall be the same as that vested in him in respect to railroads and other transportation companies. (Rev., ss. 1096, 1099; 1899, c. 164, ss. 2, 14; 1903, c. 683; 1907, c. 469, s. 4; 1913, c. 127, s. 2; 1917, c. 194; 1925, c. 37; 1929, cc. 82, 91.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1066(a). Railroads less than fifty miles in length. — The utilities commissioner shall fix such freight and passenger rates for railroads of less than fifty miles in length, which may hereafter be constructed, as will yield a net amount equal to the legal rate of interest on the amount of actual capital invested in such railroads; but this section shall not apply to the counties of Haywood, Swain, Jackson and Transylvania. (Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 56.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Editor's Note.—This section was chapter 56 of the Extra Session Laws of 1920, which was an act to regulate passenger and freight rates on short line railroads of less than fifty miles in length. The rates are to be so fixed as to yield a net amount equal to the legal rate of interest on the capital invested. The counties of Haywood, Jackson, Swain, and Transylvania are expressly excepted from the operation of the section.

§ 1067. Rates established deemed just and reasonable.—The rates or charges established by the commissioner shall be deemed just and reasonable, and any rate or charge made by any corporation, company, copartnership or individual engaged in the businesses enumerated in the preceding section other than those so established shall be deemed unjust and unreasonable. Provided, however, that upon petition filed by any shipper or receiver of freight, and a hearing thereon, if the commissioner shall find the rates or charges collected, to be unjust, unreasonable, discriminatory or preferential, the commissioner may enter an order awarding such petitioner a sum equal to the difference between such unjust, unreasonable, discriminatory or preferential rates or charges and the rates or charges found by the commissioner to be just and reasonable, nondiscriminatory and nonpreferential upon all shipments made or received by said petitioner within two years prior to the filing of such petition; provided, however that this shall only apply to charges assessed and collected on and/or after the date of ratification of this act. (1913, c. 127, s. 3; 1929, cc. 241, 342.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended twice by Public Laws of 1929. Chapter 241 inserted the first proviso and Chapter 342 added the other.

Burden of Proof.—The rates or charges, established by the Commission, shall be deemed just and reasonable. The burden was therefore upon the appellant to offer evidence sufficient for the jury to find upon appeal and under the instructions of the court, that the schedule of rates established by the Commission, in this case, was not just and reasonable to both petitioner and respondent. Corporation Comm. v. Henderson Water Co., 190 N. C. 70, 72, 128 S. E. 465.

Rates Other Than Those Fixed Deemed Unjust.—Including public-service corporations furnishing its customers electricity for power, etc., the Corporation Commission is authorized by statute to fix just and reasonable rates of charges, and when these rates are so fixed, other or lower rates are to be deemed as unjust and unreasonable. State v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 185 N. C. 17, 116 S. E. 178.

Deemed Reasonable Until Modified.—Under the provisions of our statute, Rev., 1054, et seq. (ch. 20), any party affected by the order of the Corporation Commission as to rates or charges for passengers by a street railway company, etc., is given the right of appeal to the courts from such order, and the charges so fixed are to be considered just and reasonable charges for the services rendered, unless and until they shall be charged or modified on appeal or the further action of the commission itself. State v. Seaboard Air Line Ry. Co., 173 N. C. 413, 92 S. E. 150, was approved In re Southern Pub. Utilities Co., 179 N. C. 151, 101 S. E. 619.

§ 1068. How maximum rates fixed.—In fixing any maximum rate or charge, or tariff of rates or charges, for any common carrier, person or corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter, the commissioner shall take into consideration if proved, or may require proof of, the value of the property of such carrier, person or corporation used for the public in the consideration of such rate or charge or the fair value of the service rendered in determining the value of the property so being used for the convenience of the public. He shall furthermore consider the original cost of construction thereof and the amount expended in permanent improvements thereon and the present compared with the original cost of construction of all its property within the state; the probable earning capacity of such property under the particular rates proposed and the sum required to meet the operating expenses of such carrier, person or corporation, and all other facts that will enable them to determine what are reasonable and just rates, charges and tariffs. (Rev., s. 1104; 1899, c. 164, s. 2, subsec. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 289, 298, for comment on this section.

Section Controls.—In establishing rates the Commission is governed and controlled by the provision of this section. Southern R. Co. v. McNeill, 155 Fed. 756, 769.

Word "Maximum" Explained.—The word "maximum," used in an order of the Corporation Commission for fixing the rates of charges allowed to a petitioning public-service corporation, was not intended to mean that a descending rate therefrom was to be allowed under the contract set up by the customers or users, but to distinguish it from the word "minimum," which also was used in reference to the subject. State v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 185 N. C. 17, 116 S. E. 178.

Manner of Arriving at Rate. — Under the provisions of this section, which is a valid statute, the Corporation Commission, in fixing a reasonable and just rate of charges for public service corporations, may make a fair estimated value of the property presently used, and in relation thereto consider the tax valuation of the plant. State v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 185 N. C. 17, 116 S. E. 178.

§ 1069. Commissioner entitled to free carriage. — The commissioner and his clerks shall be transported free of charge over all railroads and transportation lines which are under the supervision of the commissioner; and when traveling on official business, he may take with him experts or other agents whose services he may deem temporarily of public importance. (Rev., s. 1105.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1070. Free carriage.—Nothing in this chapter shall prevent or prohibit—

1. The carriage, storage, or handling of property free or at reduced rates for the United States, state or municipal governments, or for charitable or educational purposes; or for any corporation or association incorporated for the preservation and adornment of any historic spot, or to the employees or officers of such company or association while traveling in the performance of their duties, provided they shall not travel further than ten miles one way on any one trip free of charge or to or from fairs or exhibitions for exhibition thereat.

2. The free carriage of destitute or homeless persons transported by charitable societies, and the necessary agents employed in such transportation; or the free transportation of persons traveling in the interest of orphan asylums or homes for the aged or infirm, or any department thereof, or traveling secretaries of Railroad Young Men's Christian Associations, or ex-Confederate soldiers attending annual reunions.

3. The use of passes for journeys wholly within this state which have been or may be issued for interstate journeys under the authority of the United States interstate commerce commission.

4. The issuance of mileage, excursion or commutation passenger tickets.

5. Common carriers from giving reduced rates to ministers of religion, or to municipal governments for the transportation of indigent persons, or to inmates of national homes or state homes for disabled volunteer soldiers, and of soldiers' and sailors' orphan homes, including those about to enter and those returning home after discharge, under arrangements with the boards of managers of said homes.

6. Common carriers from giving free carriage to their own officers and employees and members of their families, or furloughed, pensioned, and superannuated employees, persons who have become disabled or infirm in the service of such common carrier, and the remains of a person killed in the employment of a common carrier, and employees traveling for the purpose of entering the service of such common carrier, and the families of those persons named; also the families of persons killed, and the widows during widowhood, and minor children during minority of persons who died while in the service of such common carrier.

7. The principal officers of any common carrier from exchanging passes, franks or tickets with other common carriers for their officers or employees, and members of their families.

8. Transportation companies from contracting with newspapers for advertising space in exchange for transportation over their lines to such an extent as may be agreed upon between the parties for said consideration.

9. Transportation companies, if they so desire, from furnishing transportation to such agricultural extension and demonstration workers as are engaged in work in the field in efforts to increase production on the farm and to improve the farm home, when such workers are actually engaged in the performance of duties requiring travel.

10. Any common carrier that is operating under lease a railroad in this state, in which the state owns a majority of the capital stock, from giving free carriage, according to the contract of lease, to the officers and their families and the committees of the lessor owning such leased railroad, nor prevent such operating common carrier from issuing annually free transportation to ex-presidents of such lessor owning companies and their families in compliance with the contract of lease entered into by them or according to and for such period of time as may have been prescribed by any by-law of the lessor which was in force at the time such lease was made. (Rev., s. 1105; 1899, c. 164, s. 22; 1899, c. 642; 1901, c. 679, s. 2; 1901, c. 652; 1905, c. 312; 1911, cc. 49, 148; 1913, c. 100; 1915, c. 215; 1917, cc. 56, 160.)

As to the carriage of passengers, see sec. 3489 et seq.

Unlawful Transportation.—The transportation, by a common carrier, of any person except of the classes specified without charge, is unlawful under sec. 4 of said act, the offense being the actual free transportation and not the issuance of the free pass. State v. Southern R. Co., 122 N. C. 1052, 30 S. E. 133.

A gratuitous passenger is not in pari delicto with the common carrier. McNeill v. Railroad Co., 135 N. C. 682, 47 S. E. 765.

Injured while Riding on Pass Illegally Issued. — The rights, privileges and protection attaching to the relation of the passenger are imposed by law upon common carriers upon consideration of the public policy, independent of contract, and arises from the nature of their public employment. Hence, one injured while riding on a pass illegally issued may recover from the railroad. McNeill v. Railroad Co., 135 N. C. 682, 47 S. E. 765.

Construction of Penal Statute.—In construing a penal statute prohibiting discrimination between passengers, the construction placed on it by common carriers generally, and by private individuals and officials, will not be considered. State v. Southern R. Co., 122 N. C. 1052, 30 S. E. 133.

§ 1071. Revision of rates. — The commissioner shall from time to time, and as often as circumstances may require, change and revise or cause to be changed or revised any schedules of rates fixed by the commissioner, or allowed to be charged by any carrier of freight, passengers, or express, or by any telegraph or telephone company. The powers of the commissioner, under this section, shall be exercised with respect to railroad freight and passenger rates under the limitations prescribed by article 5 of this chapter and article 10 of the chapter entitled Railroads. (Rev., s. 1106; 1899, c. 164, s. 7.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Limitation on Rate Fixing Authority.—Article 5 herein referred to is chapter 20, Laws Extra Session 1913, and it limited the authority of the Corporation Commission as to increasing the maximum rates for freight carriers. Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 187 N. C. 424, 429, 121 S. E. 767.

Joint Rate between Lumber Road and Connecting Carrier.

—When a lumber road is of standard gauge and of sufficient equipment and extensiveness to affect the interest of the public, the Commission may make a valid order establishing a joint rate of transportation in the same cars between it and a connecting common carrier by rail to points beyond the initial road. Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 187 N. C. 424, 121 S. E. 767.

§ 1072. Long and short hauls.—It shall be unlawful for any common carrier to charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of passengers or of like kind of property under substantially similar circumstances and conditions for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer distance; but this shall not be construed as authorizing any common carrier within the terms of this chapter to charge and receive as great compensation for a shorter as for a longer distance: Provided, however, that upon application to the commissioner, such common carrier may in special cases be authorized to charge less for longer than for shorter distances for the transportation of passengers or property; and the commissioner may from time to time prescribe the extent to which such designated common carrier may be relieved from the operation of this section: Provided, that nothing in this chapter contained shall be taken as in any manner abridging or controlling the rates of freight charged by any railroad in this state for conveying freight which comes from or goes beyond the boundaries of the state and on which freight less than local rates on any railroad carrying the same are charged by such railroads. (Rev., s. 1107; 1899, c. 164, s. 14; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 9; 1915, c. 17, s. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1073. Contracts as to rates.—All contracts and agreements between railroad companies as to rates of freight and passenger tariffs shall be submitted to the commissioner for inspection and correction, that it may be seen whether or not they are a violation of law or the rules and regulations of said commissioner, and all arrangements and agreements whatever as to the division of earnings of any kind by competing railroad companies shall be submitted to the commissioner for inspection and approval in so far as they affect the rules and regulations made by the commissioner to secure to all persons doing business with such companies just and reasonable rates of freight and passenger tariffs, and the commissioner may make such rules and regulations as to such contracts and agreements as may then be deemed necessary and proper, and any such agreements not approved by the commissioner, or by virtue of which rates shall be charged exceeding the rates fixed for freight and passengers, shall be deemed, held and taken to be violations of this chapter and shall be illegal and void. (Rev., s. 1108; 1899, c. 164, s. 6.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1074. Rates to be published.—All carriers shall, whenever required by the commissioner, file with him a schedule of their rates of charges for freight and passengers, and the commissioner is authorized and required to publish the rates, or a summary thereof, in some convenient form for the information of the public, and quarterly thereafter the changes made in such schedules, if he deems it advisable. (Rev., s. 1109; 1899, c. 164, s. 7; 1907, c. 217, s. 5.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1075. Interstate commerce. — The utilities commissioner, or other body charged by law with the supervision and regulation of intrastate rates, is authorized and empowered upon his own investigation to bring such cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission, or other body of the National Government supervising and regulating the interstate freight rates, rules and practices, as in his opinion may be necessary to secure for the receivers and shippers of freight in this State such just and reasonable schedule of freight rates as in his opinion may be necessary; and is authorized to maintain before the courts of this State, or the United States, such action as in his opinion may be necessary for the enforcement of just and reasonable schedules of freight rates. In the performance of this duty the said commissioner shall receive upon application the services of the Attorney General of the State to represent him before the Interstate Commerce Commission or the courts of this State or the United States. (Rev., s. 1110; 1899, c. 164, s. 14; 1907, c. 469, s. 5; 1929, c. 235.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 struck out the former section and inserted in lieu thereof the above.

§ 1076. Duplicate freight receipts; charges stated; freight delivered on payment of charges.—All railroad companies shall on demand issue duplicate freight receipts to shippers in which shall be stated the class or classes of freight shipped, the freight charges over the road giving the receipt, and so far as practicable shall state the freight charges over the roads that carry such freight. When the consignee presents the railroad receipt to the agent of the railroad that delivers such freight such agent shall deliver the articles shipped upon payment of the rate charged for the class of freight mentioned in the receipt. (Rev., s. 1111; 1899, c. 164, s. 17.)

As to additional provisions as to rates, see chapter on railroads, articles 10 and 11.

When Bill of Lading Demanded.—A consignee must produce, upon the carrier's demand, a bill of lading for a prepaid shipment of goods in the carrier's possession. Jeans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 164 N. C. 224, 80 S. E. 242.

§ 1077. Schedule of rates to be evidence.—The schedule of rates fixed by statute or under this article shall, in suits brought against any company wherein is involved the charges of any company for the transportation of any passenger or freight or cars or unjust discrimination in relation thereto, to be taken in all courts as prima facie evidence that the rates therein fixed are just and reasonable rates of charges for the transportation of passengers and freight and cars upon the railroads. All such schedules shall be received and held in all suits as prima facie evidence the schedules of the commissioner without further proof than the production of the schedules desired to be used as evidence, with a certificate of the clerk of the commissioner that the same is a true copy of the schedule prepared or approved by him for the railroad company or corporation therein named. (Rev., s. 1112; 1899, c. 164, s. 7.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Prima Facie Evidence.—The schedules of rates are de-cared to be prima facie evidence that such rates are just and reasonable, by the section, which also provides for the certification of copies of all such schedules by the clerk of the Commission. Tilley v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 162 N. C. 37, 39, 77 S. E. 994.

Art. 5. Railroad Freight Rates

§ 1078. Classification of articles, commodities, and property.—For the purposes of this article all articles, commodities, and property are classified as now provided and specified by law, or by order or orders of the North Carolina utilities commissioner, in numbered and lettered classes and as commodities, subject to change in classification in the manner which is now or which may be provided by law. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 1.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to additional provisions as to freight rates, see secs. 3513 to 3534.

*NOTE.—Classes C and D, carload shipments, 20% less than rates shown, including hay in straight or mixed carloads with grain or grain products other than flour.

§ 1079. Changes in classification.—The utilities commissioner, or such commission as may have conferred upon it by law the powers and duties now exercised by the North Carolina utilities commissioner with reference to public-service companies, has the power to establish a different classification of freight than that referred to in the preceding section if thereby a more systematic or uniform method can be secured, in the opinion of such commissioner; but shall not, except as provided in this article, increase the rates fixed herein as a maxima. Such commissioner has the power, if in his judgment it seems just to do so, to change the percentage relation of other classes of freight than the first class, to the first class: Provided, he shall not thereby raise the rate on any class, except in the manner and upon the conditions specified in this article: Provided, further, that before any carrier, subject to the jurisdiction of the utilities commissioner, shall be authorized or empowered to make effective within the limits of this State any change in the classification for intrastate application of any article transported by freight, intrastate, the carrier, or carriers, proposing said change in classification shall file notice of such intention with the utilities commissioner at least thirty days in advance of the proposed effective date of such change and shall file with said notice a sworn affidavit in duplicate setting forth the name and address, or names and addresses, of the person, or persons, by or for whom the change, or changes in the classification was proposed, with their place, or places, of business and the nature of such business, together with the name, or names, of the carrier, or carriers, sponsoring such changes, together with the name and address, or names and addresses, of all persons, firms or corporations who have placed themselves on record as being opposed to the change, or changes, contemplated, stating in connection therewith the facts and arguments relied upon by both proponents and opponents of such proposed changes and provided, further, that after the receipt of such notice of a proposed change in the classification of any article, the utilities commissioner is authorized to suspend such proposed change pending the hearing and decision thereon and may waive the requirement of thirty (30) days' notice. (Ex Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 2; 1929, c. 239.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added all of this section beginning with the second proviso.

§ 1080. Rates established.—Except where the utilities commissioner shall order or has ordered to the contrary, the following specified rates are declared to be reasonable maximum rates to be charged by railroad companies owning, operating, controlling or maintaining seventy-five or more miles of railroad in North Carolina, it being understood that articles heretofore included in Class E, under the state classification, are here rated under fifth class; articles heretofore included in Class H, under the state classification, are here rated under fourth class; flour in barrels is here rated double Class C per barrel, and flour in barrels same as Class C; articles heretofore included in Class M, under state classification, are here rated two-thirds of Class A: (See table on preceding page.)

The rates so fixed are for the number of miles indicated in the first column, and for the amount of charge indicated for the respective classes and commodities opposite the number of miles stated in the first column, and the rates so indicated for the respective classes are in cents per hundred pounds except where otherwise indicated at the head of the column. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1081. Rules governing rates.—The following rules shall limit and modify the application of the rates in the next preceding section:

1. The rates are subject to southern classification, except where lower ratings are or may be published by the North Carolina utilities commissioner, in which cases the lower ratings shall prevail.

2. Rates which were lower prior to October thirteenth, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, than contained in the scale of rates are continued in effect, except that, in such isolated cases as may occur where an advance of not more than one cent in a particular class will bring the existing rate up to the rate here prescribed, such advance is allowed in the interest of uniformity.

3. When rates are not shown for the exact distance, the charge shall not exceed the rate for the nearest distance. In cases where the haul is equidistant the charge shall be that for the next higher distance.

4. When one railroad company has two or more routes between two given points the rate shall be based on the shortest route. On joint hauls, the line handling the traffic must base their rates upon the shortest practicable route having physical connection.

5. For joint hauls over two or more independently controlled railroads under the management of companies operating seventy-five or more miles of railroads within the State, add the following to the straight mileage rates for the combined total distance:

Per 100 Pounds

Class	1	2	3	4	5	6	A	B	C	D
	5	4	3	3	2	2	2	2	2	2

Other classes and commodities, 1c.

6. In the absence of an agreed basis of division between roads participating in a joint haul, locals shall be used as factors in dividing after first deducting cost of transfer, if any, at interchange point.

7. The minimum charge on small shipments shall be for actual weight at the tariff rate, but not less than 25 cents for a haul over one road, or 30 cents for a joint haul over two roads, or 40 cents for a joint haul over three or more roads.

8. Existing rates on commodities not mentioned in the schedule of rates in the preceding section are continued in effect. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1082. Charging or receiving greater rates forbidden.—No railroad company being engaged in the business of common carrier of property within the state of North Carolina shall charge, take, or receive any sum for carrying property entirely within the state of North Carolina between initial and terminal points which are within the state, greater than the amount specified in this article for the respective classes and commodities, and for the respective distances mentioned in said schedule, except in the manner and to the extent and on the conditions mentioned in this article. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 5.)

§ 1083. Application for investigation of rates; appeal; rates pending appeal. — The utilities commissioner, or such commission or body upon which jurisdiction and power may be conferred to fix rates for the transportation of property to be charged by the railroads doing business in North Carolina, may, and upon request of any person directly interested in such charge shall, under rules and regulations fixed by law or prescribed and established by such commissioner, hear evidence as to the reasonableness of the maximum rates fixed by law, or by such commissioner or body, and establish such rates, in the manner prescribed and allowed by law, as may, in the judgment of said commissioner, be just, subject to the limitations fixed by this article; and from such an order of such commissioner any shipper or railroad company directly affected by such order may, under rules and regulations prescribed by law, or under reasonable rules and regulations prescribed by such commissioner, appeal to the superior court of North Carolina: Provided, that pending the appeal of any railroad company from an order of such commissioner fixing maximum rates, there shall be no suspension of such order of such commissioner. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 7.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

This section expressly confers authority upon the Corporation Commission to investigate rates upon the request of any person directly interested. It permits that body to hear evidence as to the reasonableness of the maximum rates fixed by law or by the Commission, and to establish such rates as it may deem just. The authority conferred upon the Commission is plenary. Corporation Comm. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 187 N. C. 424, 429, 121 S. E. 767.

§ 1084. Rates lower than maximum prescribed to be maintained.—When any commodity or particular kind of property is at the time of the ratification of this article allowed to be shipped at a rate to be charged by any railroad company, which rate is lower than the maximum rate specified in this article for the shipment of such article, or for the class in which such article is assigned, by lawful classification at the time of the ratification of this article, or when such article is not assigned to any class, such rate so charged for the shipment of such commodity or property shall be the maximum rate which shall lawfully be charged, unless the same be raised in the manner and under the circumstances contemplated, provided for and allowed by the provisions of this article for an increase in the maximum rate fixed herein. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 8.)

§ 1085. Rates between points connected by more than one route.—When there is more than one railroad route between given points in North Carolina, and freight is routed or directed by the shipper or consignee to be transported over a shorter route, and it is in fact shipped by a longer route between such points, the rate fixed by law or by such commissioner for the shorter route shall be the maximum rate which may be charged, and it shall be unlawful to charge more for transporting such freight over the longer route than the lawful charge for the shorter route. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 11.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1086. Action for double of overcharge; penalty.—Any railroad company in the state of North Carolina which shall charge a rate for transporting property wholly within the state of North Carolina, between terminals within the state, in excess of that fixed by law or by the lawful order of such commissioner or board, and which shall omit to refund the same within thirty days after written notice and demand of the person or corporation overcharged, shall be liable to an action for double the amount of such overcharge, and to a penalty of ten dollars per day for each day's delay after thirty days from such notice, in case of shipments of less than carload lots, and to a penalty of twenty dollars per day in the event of shipments of carload lots. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 12.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1087. Double penalty.—Any such railroad company so doing business in the state of North Carolina that shall knowingly charge a rate in excess of that fixed by law or by such board or commissioner, for shipments wholly within the state, shall be subject to a penalty and shall pay double the penalty above prescribed. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 13.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1088. Persons to receive penalties; accounts and receipts kept separate.—The penalties herein provided for shall be payable to the person or corporation who pays the freight or against whom the freight is charged, and such person or corporation may sue such railroad company and recover such penalty and the amount of such overcharge. The commissioner shall require the railroad companies, and may require all other such public-service companies as are mentioned in this chapter, to keep separate the cost of doing interstate and intrastate business in North Carolina, and to keep separate receipts from the respective classes, and to direct the manner of keeping the accounts, and to enforce, by penalties, contempt, or otherwise as the law provides, obedience to its orders. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 14.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1089. Minimum carload.—In no event shall the minimum carload freight of any kind be less than is now allowed by law, unless such commissioner shall allow it, and it is authorized to fix such minimum weight. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 20, s. 15.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

To Fix Minimum Carload.—The Corporation Commission may provide what shall constitute a minimum carload for particular commodities. Corporation Comm. v. Seaboard Air Line System, 127 N. C. 283, 37 S. E. 266.

§ 1089(a). Freight Rate Commissioner.—The Governor shall designate one member of the Corporation Commission as the Freight Rate Commissioner, who shall be authorized and empowered to supervise, direct and prosecute all interstate rate cases and to investigate any and all interstate freight rate schedules affecting the welfare of the State or any portion thereof. (1929, c. 336, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1935, ch. 135, sec. 8, codified as § 1112(g), directed that the words "utilities commissioner" be substituted for "corporation commissioner" in this chapter.

§ 1089(b). Report.—The Freight Rate Commissioner shall make a report to the Governor annually. (1929, c. 336, s. 2.)

See note under preceding section.

Art. 6. Powers in Respect to Procedure

§ 1090. Witnesses; production of papers; contempt. — The utilities commissioner shall have the same power to compel the attendance of witnesses, require the examination of persons and parties, and compel the production of books and papers, and punish for contempt, as by law is conferred upon the superior courts. (Rev., s. 1067; 1899, c. 164, ss. 1, 9, 10.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1091. Witnesses before utilities commissioner. — If any person duly summoned to appear and testify before the utilities commissioner shall fail or refuse to testify without lawful excuse, or shall refuse to answer any proper question propounded to him by said commissioner in the discharge of duty, or shall conduct himself in a rude, disrespectful or disorderly manner before said commissioner deliberating in the discharge of duty, such person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than one thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3691; 1899, c. 164, s. 10.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1092. Rules of practice.—The utilities commissioner shall prescribe rules of practice and procedure in all matters before him and in all examinations necessary to be made under this chapter. (Rev., s. 1068; 1899, c. 164, s. 2, subsec. 24.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

In footnote 33, page 74, Vol. 2 of the North Carolina Law Review, it is said of this section that it "expressly authorized the Commission to prescribe the rules of practice and procedure in all matters before it. The rules adopted in accordance therewith may be found in the annual reports of the Commission under the caption, 'Rules of practice in cases and proceedings before the court of North Carolina Corporation Commission.'"

§ 1093. Rules of evidence.—In all cases under the provisions of this chapter the rules of evidence shall be the same as in civil actions, except as provided by this chapter. (Rev., s. 1069; 1899, c. 164, s. 26.)

As to evidence generally, see secs. 1747 et seq.

Rules Same as in Civil Actions. — The section provides that the rules of evidence shall be the same as in other civil actions. The petitioner must prove the existence of the facts alleged as the basis for the relief sought, unless the respondent admits them or fails to answer. In case of failure to answer, the Commission will take such proof of the charge as may be deemed reasonable and proper, and make such order thereon as the circumstances of the case appear to require. Subpoenas will issue requiring the attendance of witnesses or the production of books, papers, documents, etc., relating to any matter pending before the Commission. And depositions may be taken in any cause at issue, 2 N. C. Law Rev. 74.

§ 1094. Subpoenas; issuance; service. — All subpoenas for witnesses to appear before the commissioner, and notice to persons or corporations, shall be issued by the commissioner or his clerk and be directed to any sheriff, constable or to the marshal of any city or town, who shall execute the same and make due return thereof as directed therein, under the penalties prescribed by law for a failure to execute and return the process of any court. (Rev., s. 1070; 1899, c. 164, s. 10.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1095. Service of orders.—The clerk of the commissioner may serve any notice issued by him and his return thereof shall be evidence of said service; and it shall be the duty of the sheriffs and other officers to serve any process, subpoenas and notices issued by the commissioner, and they shall be entitled therefor to the same fees as are prescribed by law for serving similar papers issuing from the superior court. (Rev., s. 1071; 1899, c. 164, s. 9.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

§ 1096. Undertakings.—All bonds or undertakings required to be given by any of the provisions of this chapter shall be payable to the state of North Carolina, and may be sued on as are other undertakings which are payable to the state. (Rev., s. 1072; 1899, c. 164, s. 7.)

§ 1097. Right of appeal; how taken.—From all decisions or determinations made by the utilities commissioner any party affected thereby shall be entitled to an appeal. Before such party shall be allowed to appeal, he shall, within ten days after notice of such decision or determination, file with the commissioner exceptions to the decision or determination of the commissioner, which exceptions shall state the grounds of objection to such decision or determination. If any one of such exceptions shall be overruled, then such party may appeal from the order overruling the exception, and shall, within ten days after the decision overruling the exception, give notice of his appeal. When an exception is made to the facts as found by the commissioner, the appeal shall be to the superior court in term time; otherwise to the judge of the superior court at chambers. The party appealing shall, within ten days after the notice of appeal has been served, file with the commissioner exceptions to the decision or determination overruling the exception, which statement shall assign the errors complained of and the grounds of the appeal. Upon the filing of such statement the commissioner shall, within ten days, transmit all the papers and evidence considered by him, together with the assignment of errors filed by the appellant, to a judge of the superior court holding court or residing in some district in which such company operates or the party resides. If there be no exceptions to any facts as found by the commissioner, it shall be heard by the judge at chambers at some place in the district, of which all parties shall have ten days notice. (Rev., s. 1074; 1899, c. 164, ss. 7, 28; 1903, c. 126; 1907, c. 469, s. 6; 1913, c. 127, s. 4.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to appeal to Supreme Court, see sec. 1100. As to appeal generally, see sec. 629 et seq. See also note under sec. 1042.

Right Confined to Parties.—The section distinctly confines the right of appeal to a party to the proceeding. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Winston-Salem, etc., R. Co., 170 N. C. 560, 87 S. E. 785.

Appeal Limited to Party.—The right of appeal, conferred by this section is limited to a party to the proceedings. For purposes of appeal, those who have no property or proprietary rights which are or may be affected by orders of the Commission, are not such parties. An appeal by persons who are not parties to the proceeding will be dismissed by the Superior Court, for the reason that said court acquires no jurisdiction by such appeal. State v. Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 190, 193, 145 S. E. 19.

Any Party Affected.—Under the provisions of our statute, Rev., 1054, et seq. (ch. 20), any party affected by the order of the corporation commission as to rates or charges for passengers by a street railway company, etc., is given the right of appeal to the courts from such order. In re Southern Pub. Utilities Co., 179 N. C. 151, 101 S. E. 619.

"From all decisions or determinations made by the Corporation Commission any party affected thereby shall be entitled to an appeal," must necessarily mean from a decision which affects or purports to affect some right or interest of a party to the controversy and in some way determinative of some material question involved. State v. Southern R. Co., 147 N. C. 483, 489, 61 S. E. 271.

It is the duty, and assuming the right, of a municipality granting its charter to a corporation to operate a street car system therein and which, by contract, has limited the fares to be charged passengers within a certain amount, to represent the public in proceedings upon a petition filed by the railway company before the Corporation Commission requesting that it be permitted to raise the fares beyond those limited in the contract, and the municipality may appeal through the courts as the statute prescribes, when the order is adverse to it or the interest it represents, as a "party affected by the decision and determination of the Commission," expressly provided for by the statute. In re Southern Pub. Utilities Co., 179 N. C. 151, 101 S. E. 619.

Who Are Not Parties.—Citizens seeking to have a railway station moved may not appeal from the Commission's decision, because they are not parties. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Winston-Salem, etc., R. Co., 170 N. C. 560, 87 S. E. 785.

Notice.—When notice of appeal to the superior court is given to the Corporation Commission by a railroad company, and the other requirements of the section relating thereto, have been met by the company, it is sufficient without giving notice of the appeal to the complaining party in the proceedings had before the Commission, as upon this appeal the statute makes the Commission the party plaintiff. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Southern R. Co., 151 N. C. 447, 66 S. E. 427.

Same—Mandatory.—The statutory notice of an appeal by a railroad company from an order of the Corporation Commission is mandatory and cannot be extended by the consent of the parties of record. State v. Southern R. Co., 185 N. C. 435, 117 S. E. 563.

To Superior Court.—Appeal from the Commission must be to the superior court. Pate v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 877, 29 S. E. 334.

Same—De Novo.—And there the trial will be de novo, and from thence only will a further appeal lie to the Supreme Court, governed by the rule that it must not be fragmentary, but that it shall be from a final judgment or one final in its nature. State v. Cannon Mfg. Co., 185 N. C. 17, 116 S. E. 178.

Jurisdiction of Superior Court—Dismissal.—The jurisdiction of the superior court with respect to the trial of law and fact on appeal under this section is derivative and not original, and therefore if the Corporation Commission was without jurisdiction of the proceeding in which the order was made, from which the appeal was taken, because of the absence of a necessary party, or upon any other ground, the Superior Court is likewise without jurisdiction, and the proceeding pending therein, upon appeal, should be dismissed by said court. State v. Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 190, 193, 145 S. E. 19.

Hearing on Appeal.—Upon appeal by a party to a proceeding before the Corporation Commission from an order made therein, under §§ 1041, 1042, the Superior Court has jurisdiction to try and determine both issues of law and issues of fact, duly presented by assignments of error based upon exceptions duly taken by the appellant during the hearing before the Corporation Commission. The trial of such issues by the Superior Court is de novo. State v. Southern Ry. Co., 196 N. C. 190, 193, 145 S. E. 19, citing S. v. R. R., 161 N. C. 270, 76 S. E. 554.

Final Process. — The Corporation Commission has no power to enforce its orders and decrees by final process issuing directly therefrom, and for such purpose resort must be had to ordinary courts, either by independent proceedings or in proper instances by process issued in cases carried before such courts on appeal. State v. Southern R. Co., 147 N. C. 483, 61 S. E. 271.

Removal to Federal Courts.—In proceedings for the removal of a cause from the state to the federal courts upon the question of diversity of citizenship under the federal statute applicable, the state court is not bound to surrender its jurisdiction until a case has been made which on the face of the petition, shows the petitioner has a right to the transfer of the cause to the federal courts. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Southern R. Co., 151 N. C. 447, 66 S. E. 427.

Same—Diverse Citizenship.—Assuming that the mere fact that an order of the Corporation Commission made to compel the carrier to change the location and conditions of its depot to promote the convenience, security and accommodation of the public would be an invasion of interstate commerce, it does not transform the proceedings in which the order is made into "a suit at law or in equity," and, as such, removable from the superior court of the state to an inferior federal tribunal, upon the ground of diverse citizenship. North Carolina Corp. Comm. v. Southern R. Co., 151 N. C. 447, 66 S. E. 427.

Cited in Corporation Commission v. Southern R. Co., 197 N. C. 699, 150 S. E. 335.

§ 1098. Appeal docketed; priority of trial; burden.—The cause shall be entitled "State of North Carolina on relation of the utilities commissioner against (here insert name of appellant)," and if there are exceptions to any facts found by the commissioner, it shall be placed on the civil issue docket of such court and shall have precedence of other civil actions, and shall be tried under the same rules and regulations as are prescribed for the trial of other civil causes, except that the rates fixed or the decision or determination made by the commissioner shall be prima facie just and reasonable. (Rev., s. 1075; 1899, c. 164, s. 7.)

See editor's note under sec. 1035.

As to right of appeal, and how taken, see sec 1097; as to appeal generally, see sec. 629 et seq.
